REPUBLICANS FIGHT LENDING

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Senators and House Republicans, assisted by Democratic dissidents, today announced a fight against President Roosevelt's new $3,860,000,000 recovery-lending program. Congressional leaders expected the program to be put into effect this week. Fast action is expected because congress is anxious to leave for a summer vacation.

ONE YEAR TO GO PRESIDENTIAL POSSIBILITIES

John N. Garner
When you see John Garner you know they call him "Cactus Jack."

THE first time you look at Vice President John Nance Garner, you understand why he is called "Cactus Jack." His face is brick red, his eyebrows are dazzling white, his eyes squint out cannily from beneath them. No man ever looked more like a Texas plainsman than Garner.

Garner is getting on—70, or thereabouts—but the years aren't telling on him much. He lies low, wisely ducks the dining out and social whirl of the capital, and keeps his health. He is a veteran of veterans; served 30 consecutive years in the House of Representatives, winding up as speaker, and was elected vice president in 1932. He is one of the three or four vice presidents in American history who have been politically important in that office.

Now rated (by ardent New Dealers) as a conservative, Garner for years was known as a good deal of a liberal. When Hoover first controlled Congress after two years in the White House, Garner was the Number One thorn in his side. It is worth remembering that in the 1932 campaign the Democratic high command wanted Garner to make few speeches—felt he was "too radical," might scare some Roosevelt followers back to Hoover.

Garner has great popularity in the House and Senate—and, for that matter, with practically everyone who knows him. He is supposed to have broken with Roosevelt, but the break has never been open and, in the main, Garner has played ball with the White House fairly well since his election. He is fond of calling Roosevelt "my boss."

HIS ASSETS: Party leaders like him. Conservatives are tending to rally behind him. Most of the Democrats who have fallen out with Roosevelt would support Garner. He knows politics from A to Z and is a shrewd campaigner.

HIS LIABILITIES: Roosevelt probably wouldn't support him (though this is not dead certain). He wouldn't appeal to the labor or northern Negro vote. In general, the New Deal crowd would oppose him; to the end.

HIS CHANCES: For the nomination, good.

CHAMBERLAIN WARNS JAPAN AND THE NAZIS

By United Press
CARRDIFF, Wales, June 24.—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain tonight warned Japan and Germany of the might and quality of Great Britain's sea and air forces and told the world that Britain would never "submit to dictation from another power in its foreign policy."

In a speech to his conservative constituents in this rough mining country he warned the axis nations not to attempt any coercion, criticized the "insulting treatment of British subjects" in China, and stressed closer collaboration between Great Britain and the United States as a result of the visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth to America.

German charges that Great Britain is attempting to encircle Germany were termed by Chamberlain as a "gross travesty," but he told the nazis that the "peace front" is aimed at aggression for "the agreements we made and the guarantees we have given other European powers have the same purpose, which is to strengthen the peace front and to protect the independence of states whose faith in their own security has been shaken by the rate of others."

He offered a cautious economic friendship to Germany, if she will drop "unjust suspicion of others" for, he said, there is room in the world for the expansion of German markets, as well as British.

Britain's military strength, he declared, will be used only to bring about peace and order in the world.

Buchanan Dam To Hold Colorado Flood

AUSTIN, June 24.—The peak of the Colorado River flood, resulting from heavy West Texas rains, was reported today at Winchell, in Brown County.

The crest was expected to reach the Lower Colorado River Authority's dam in about two and a half days.

The authority continued emptying water from Lake Buchanan, the main storage base, at the rate of 50,000 gallons a second. This was considered enough to prepare for the incoming flood water and predictions were made that the level of the river at Austin next week would be raised only two or three feet.

JAPAN LIFTS HER BLOCKADE UPON SWATOW

By United Press
TIENSIN, China, June 24.—The Japanese have lifted their embargo against British shipping at blockaded Swatow, British sources said today, and foreigners in the city were eagerly awaiting the arrival of ships with food, passengers and mail.

The Japanese decision, it was understood, applied also to ships of the United States and other nations. The ruling became effective today.

The attitude of the British toward Japanese repressive measures was stiffening. British authorities at Chefoo, 225 miles from here, asked the British Admiralty to send a warship to protect British subjects because of "the threatening political situation."

Minor clashes continued to occur. Two British sailors were involved in a fight with Japanese soldiers at Hankow. Another British subject reported he had been stripped to his underclothes and humiliated in Tiensin.

A Conqueror Assumes a Conqueror's Woes

Conquest is, on its face, a dramatic and impressive spectacle. It naturally tends to inspire a warm glow in the people at home who have sent their sons to bring it about, even in those whose sons did not come back.

But conquest is a coin with two sides. The bright face, the one polished by the clash of arms, is readily visible. But the other face is often dark and scaly. It is the business of consolidating the "grains," of making the conquest actually worth the cost.

Italy knows about that. Nobody can draw an accurate balance-sheet on the Ethiopian adventure, but it is a fairly easy guess that outgo far exceeds income up to this time. There is the good Italian blood spilled in the desert sands, there is the cost of the expeditionary force, and the continuing cost of supporting a big army. There are the development costs which must precede any great return in raw materials.

Germany is beginning to find out about the other side of the coin, too. In Kladno, near Prague, a German policeman is shot. Just what were the circumstances is not yet clear, but it would appear that he got into one of those jams which are inevitable when a foreign armed force is placed over native civilian populations.

Older Germans will remember the Zabern affair, when a young and arrogant Prussian officer cut down an Alsatian townsman with his sword. The Alsations, after many years of German occupation, still hated the garrisons, and iron rule was necessary.

So, too, we find now at Klano: meetings prohibited, theatres closed, schools closed, doors and windows of houses must be closed at night on pain of being fired into, civil officials are removed and local police disarmed.

These things have all happened before. They happened in Belgium when the German troops occupied Dinant, and Ypres, and a score of Belgian cities. The Belgian population was ruthlessly represented by the military. But they remained Belgian.

It makes no particular difference who is immediately at fault in the Kladno affair. Such things happen, they must happen, and will happen, as long as foreign military remains in charge of a freedom-loving people.

To cope with such situations, to polish the dirty side of the coin for conquest—that is a task for which Germany asked when it seized Czechoslovakia. Leaving the moral side out of it for the moment, was it worth it?

The Japanese ambassador says the doors of China are still open to the U. S. Yes, but do the doormen understand that?

A Detroit woman picked 302 four-leaf clovers in the back yard of her home. There isn't that much good luck in the world lady.

Cause Of Squalus Disaster To Remain Mystery At Present

—The cause of the sinking of the submarine Squalus, with a loss of 26 lives, will remain a mystery until it is raised from the bottom of the Atlantic Ocean, it appeared today.

A naval court of inquiry adjourned, apparently satisfied that the submarine was flooded through the main engine induction valve, but still puzzled as to what caused the valve to open and as to whether it opened before or after the start of the fatal dive on May 23.

The court will reconvene after the submarine has been raised and brought into drydock at the navy yard here, but that was expected to be at least another month and probably longer.

The New Duck Stamp
The new duck stamp to be issued July 1, for the year 1939-40, is a series chosen each year from the board of well known artists, will be from a painting by Lynn Bogue Hunt, of the Biological Survey.

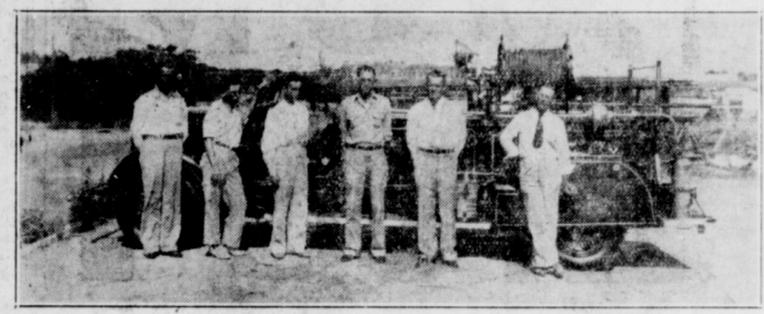

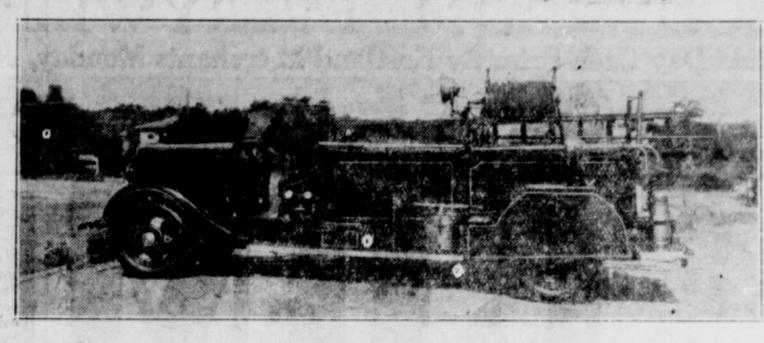

The subject chosen for the Federal stamp is a male mallard green-winged teal on a marsh edge. In the background, the teal are in a pond.

The Federal stamp will be available at all post offices, and also at all second class post offices. The price is one of those attached to his State hunting license. The duck stamp series was inaugurated in 1934 and has become familiar to all migratory bird hunters, philatelists and conservationists throughout the country. Nearly twice the size of a special delivery stamp, it costs $1 and must be purchased by all hunters over the age of sixteen.

The money realized from the duck stamps is used by the U. S. Biological Survey to supplement other funds for the maintenance of waterfowl refuges throughout the country. According to word received by the Texas Game, Fish and Oyster Commission, it is likely that three more new refuges will be established on the Gulf Coast within the next few months. In 1934-35, the first year of issuance, 635,000 stamps were sold. Last year a total of 783,000 and already in the current year more than 900,000 stamps have been purchased by

New Booster Truck Constructed by Fireboys

In top picture is shown the new booster truck built and assembled by Eastland firemen pictured in the group in the lower picture. From left to right are Huster Key, fireman; Arlie Hennessee, son of Fire Chief A. W. Hennessee, standing next in the line; Aubrey Yeager, fireman; Ed T. Cox, Jr., fireman, and M. H. Kelly, city manager.

FIREMEN'S WORK RESULTS IN Self-Made Unit Equals $3,500 Value BOOSTER TRUCK ACQUISITION

Combining skill and cleverness in devising and combining, Chief A. W. Hennessee and three members of the Eastland Fire Department have constructed a booster truck valued at $3,500, but which actually cost only $625.

Working in close cooperation with city officials, the firemen realized the need of a booster truck but felt that the expenditure of $3,500, as was asked by companies, too much when it was possible to near duplicate commercial jobs at a much lower figure.

So a Ford truck chassis with a 127-inch wheelbase was purchased. There was an old truck in the department, fast outgrowing its usefulness, so many of its parts were salvaged to form the new addition to the equipment.

Breckenridge is the only city in this section, beside Eastland, it is understood, which has a "home-made" booster truck. The booster truck will enable the Eastland firemen to go to a fire carrying a water supply of 300 gallons which lasts for two and one-half minutes. This enables a fire to be fought and many times brought under control before hose of the other trucks is connected. In 75 per cent of the cases the booster truck will be the only equipment necessary in combatting fires.

A system of cooling on the booster truck is believed unusual. While the engine is running cool water is pumped into the radiator which keeps the mechanism from getting too hot. It is possible to spray a moving fire with water and keep the truck in motion.

In another respect the truck is unusual. The tank top is portable and may be removed for frequent painting. The aid of Otis Knox was secured in fixing the tank.

The truck has two flood lights and one spotlight. The flood lights are mounted near the rear and operate from an independent battery supply. The flood lights also have extensions and may be placed in strategic positions when fires are being extinguished.

There are three lines from the tank, one with a three-quarter inch line and 200 feet of hose and two with one and one-half inch lines with 150 feet of hose each. Construction of the truck took nine weeks.

The old truck from which parts were taken still has equipment which when salvaged is worth $250, said Chief Hennessee.

Addition of the booster truck to the department brings equipment value of the department to $30,000.

The department as yet has not had a fire on which to use the booster truck.

City Golf Course To Eliminate All Passes

By United Press
EL PASO, Tex.—No more golf addicts dig divots on the municipal course without paying—a city council order has banned all golf course passes.

But the pay-as-you-play order is unlikely to hike the course revenue, for a check revealed that only two passes were outstanding. They will no longer be honored.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

Sunday School, 9:45 a. m. Morning worship, 11 a. m. Wednesday, testimonial service 8 p. m.

Public cordially invited.

"Christian Science" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 25.

The Golden Text is: "Sing, O heavens; and be joyful, O earth; and break forth into singing, O mountains: for the Lord hath comforted his people, and will have mercy upon his afflicted" (Isaiah 49:12).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father" (John 14:12).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The Principle of divine metaphysics is God; the practice of divine metaphysics is the utilization of the power of Truth over error; its rules demonstrate its Science" (page 111).

SERIAL STORY

PAR IS LOVE

BY EDWIN RUTT
COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CHAPTER I

ROYALTON AUGUSTUS HERRING brought his car to a stop beside the wall. Having done this, he got out and regarded the apple tree. The trunk was not in his line of vision for it grew discreetly behind the wall. But certain branches of nomadic disposition had seen fit to venture over and, weighted down with luscious fruit, were brooding over the territory by the roadside.

"Well," thought Royalton Augustus, "it may be a felony, but here goes." And he reached for the lowest bough, feeling like Adam.

As he did so a slight sound startled him. A girl, a black-haired girl, suddenly popped up from the other side of the wall. The fingers of Royalton Augustus Herring closed on empty air. His hand came down with guilty swiftness and for lack of anything better to do with it, he put it in his pocket.

"Oh," he said. "Oh—er—um... I beg your pardon."

More of the girl appeared. He perceived that she had great iridescent eyes that put him in mind of the sea at sundown, and a wide mouth which looked as if it wanted to laugh.

"Go on," she said, regarding him somberly. "Don't let me stop you."

"Well, I really—you know, I wasn't. That is, if you'll let me explain..." Royalton stopped, aware that he was jittering.

"I see," said the girl. "You didn't want an apple. You were just measuring something! Making a calculation, perhaps?"

"Why, how did you know?" asked Royalton, deciding upon a course of action. "As a matter of fact, that's just what I was doing."

ing. I was trying to figure out where I'd dropped my watch."

"Oh, I get it. You dropped your watch and it stuck in the tree. Well, it ought to be easy to find. I suggest this: Begin at the top of the tree and work down. You're bound to run it to earth that way."

"No," said Royalton slowly. "I think it's on the ground."

"How convenient!" The girl swung a leg over the wall. It was a silk-stocking leg and offhandedly Royalton Augustus couldn't recall when he'd seen a prettier one.

"Tell me, was it a good watch?"

"Nothing wonderful! But it—well, it had sentimental value. You see, it was my grandfather's."

"You oughtn't to throw your grandfather's watches around like this," said the girl severely.

"Here, I'm coming down to look for it. Help me down."

"You're not a baggage man by chance, are you?" she inquired.

"No. Why?"

"Oh, nothing. Just a passing thought."

"As a matter of fact," said Royalton Augustus, "I'm in the advertising business."

"Well then, what are you doing here?" the girl demanded. "There's nothing to advertise in this vicinity."

Royalton wasn't so sure. He wouldn't have minded at that moment roughing out a bit of copy about iris-colored eyes and hair close-cropped and smoky black. He said nothing to this effect, however. Ordinarily he was a fast worker, but this girl rather took the wind out of him. She was so direct and—well, disconcerting.

"I'm on my vacation," he explained.

"Oh. Well, let's look for the watch." Her eyes were grave, but somehow he distrusted the gravity. "Where do you think you dropped it?"

Illustration by Scarbo
"A golf ball floated lazily over their heads, missing them by inches. 'That one had backspin on it,' she said."

At this point a golf ball floated lazily over their heads, missed the radiator of Royalton's car by a hair and settled in the dust of the road.

Royalton puffed in silence for a minute. "It ought to be easy," he said at last. "Why don't you grab the first one you see and call it a day? No use racking your brain. One pin's the same as another."

The iris eyes seemed to take on a sober look. "But if you're not sure whether you want a pin..."

"Ah," said Royalton, wondering why the sun should appear so bright. "That's another story."

The next instant the clouds blew up.

"But I guess I've got to want one," said the girl. "That explains the golf ball."

"Not to me, it doesn't."

"Well, I don't know why I'm telling you all this," she said. "But it's like this: I'm going to marry either Ronald or Wilfrid. By that I mean, only one of them will be the bridegroom. You understand that, of course."

Royalton nodded. "It's all right so far."

"But I can't decide which. So we're settling it on Saturday—with a golf match."

"Ronald against Wilfrid, eh? So they're golfers?"

"They are not," said the girl disdainfully. "They're the world's worst, both of them. You should see the lawn. Father's nearly crazy."

"I begin to see. Ronald and Wilfrid are here, practicing."

"That's right. You're smart to get it."

"Oh, I catch on to things quickly. Why don't they use the golf course?"

"Father has never let them use it. He's a life member of the club. He says he'd never live down the disgrace if they were seen there."

"But the match?"

"Oh, that's to be in the early morning. Before anyone else is up."

Suddenly Royalton looked at her. A wisp of dark hair was chivying her left earlobe. Her profile was straight and fine, ending in an I'll-take-care-of-myself chin. And all at once, he knew. This was the girl. To end girls.

"Look," he said boldly. "Is this a private twosome? Or can anybody get in?"

India To Support England In War A Bishop Declares

FORT WORTH, Tex.—If England should go to war, she need have no doubts about military support from India, according to Bishop Jashwant Rao Chitambar of Jubbulpore, India.

Here for a speaking engagement, the spiritual leader of 500,000 Indian Methodists described his countrymen as appearing to be anti-British.

"But actually they are not," he said. "In another war, all of the wealthy Indian chiefs will pool their resources and flock to the support of Britain, just as they did in the last war. The heart of India is loyal to Britain."

As for India's desire for political independence, the Indian bishop believes that a large number of people desire "semi-independence," similar to that of the Dominion of Canada.

A son of high caste parents of the Hindu faith, Bishop Chitambar holds degrees from Allahabad University and the Bareilly Theological School in India. In 1932, Oklahoma City University conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws upon him.

White Collar Jobs Sought By Students

DONNA, Tex.—Students graduated this spring from the high schools in the Lower Rio Grande Valley want "white collar" jobs.

That was the conclusion drawn from questionnaires answered by more than 1,000 students. Superintendent A. B. Sanders of the Donna public schools and a member of the Valley vocational guidance committee, said the tendency was "away from the backbone of country agriculture."

Clerical and office work was sought more than any other occupation, apparently because of the large number of girl graduates who gave it as a preference. Next in order of their preference, came engineering jobs, nursing, teaching, aviation, agriculture, and journalism.
