One Reason Why Recovery Lags

The world can never attain prosperity as long as it is kept dangling in a state of suspense, staggering from crisis to crisis like a drunken idiot.

Here is a little story that may show to Americans, who, after all, feel somewhat remote from Europe's troubles, just what this state of suspense means, in concrete terms. An Englishman was telling the story, an intelligent and well-informed Englishman who was quite calm about it all, and related it without a sign of panic.

He and his wife had been thinking of installing a new hot water heater in their little cottage on the outskirts of London, he said. The amount involved was about $25, but that was an important item in the family budget. The new heater was not absolutely necessary, but an improvement they both wanted very much to install.

They considered the situation. "What," they quite calmly considered, "if the bombers come over some night? We are warned. We save our lives by the dugout. But our little house is blown to smithereens or burned. This might very possibly happen any night, practically without warning. Then with our house goes our new heater and our $25.

"Would it not perhaps be better to lay by the $25. If we were thus deprived of our home and became just two more of a wild mob of desperate refugees trekking wearily toward the country districts and comparative safety, wouldn't the $25 be doing us more good if we had it in our pockets and might buy with it some desperately-needed food or clothing?"

They decided on putting by the $25. Quite soberly they weighed the chances, quite soberly they decided that their $25 was worth more to them as a defense against such a desperate emergency than it was in the form of a comfort which needed some assurance of permanence to be realized.

Does it sound fantastic? Not at all. This was the deliberate decision of two excellent, intelligent, sensible, un-panicky people of London.

Multiply their decision by similar decisions of millions of families throughout Europe, and no doubt of some even in the United States. Watch the ripples of these decisions enveloping the entire economic world.

Now imagine what it would mean to world trade if all these millions of little decisions were made the other way if these people, feeling secure and safe, would decide normally, and buy what they need and want. And then you get some idea of what the militarists and glory-hunters are doing to the world.

Senator Andrews advocates a congressional resolution, asking the public to read the Bible. The public might well counter with a resolution, asking senators to read it, too.

ONE YEAR TO GO PRESIDENTIAL POSSIBILITIES

BY BRUCE CATTON

Politician's politician Jim Farley plays game according to rules. If politicians alone selected presidents, no man would have a better chance for 1940 than Postmaster General James A. Farley. Since they don't, however, his prospects are less than bright.

Big Jim is what you might call a politicians' politician. That is, he plays the game according to the rules. His word is as good as his bond. He renders the most complete loyalty to his chief and, at the same time, makes due allowances for the necessities of politics and the frailties of elected persons.

His executive ability is considerable. When he disposes of a morning batch of mail he is apt to have four secretaries in action at once, pitching letters at them so fast that one once remarked you needed to be a ball player rather than a typist to work for him.

He has a formidable memory for names, dates, and incidents, buttressed by an amazing card-index system which tells him just what remote and minor party hacks ought to be called by their first names, and so on.

He is 51, the father of three children, a genial and friendly non-smoker and non-drinker. Practically nobody dislikes him personally. He was once town clerk of Stony Point, N. Y., and he has been boss of the Democratic party machinery ever since F. D. R. was nominated in 1932. His loyalty probably would keep him from seeking the nomination if the President wanted it.

HIS ASSETS: Control of an enormous political machine, the friendship of innumerable politicians, a pleasant personality, and an immense capacity for work.
HIS LIABILITIES: Public uncertainty as to his basic political principles; distrust by the bulk of the "New Deal crowd"—and, unfortunately, the same handicap that Governor Smith took into the 1928 campaign.
HIS CHANCES: Only fair.

Eastland Teams Win at De Leon

Street's Dairymaids of Eastland Thursday night at De Leon beat the De Leon team by the score of 13 to 2. Another Eastland team, Modern Dry Cleaners and Dyers, also came away with a victory, beating a De Leon team at De Leon by 8 to 2.

Drake pitched for the Dairymaids Thursday night. Wednesday night at Mineral Wells the Dairymaids defeated the Mineral Wells team by the score of 19 to 2 with Reynolds pitching.

Games with the Dairymaids against Anson and Stamford are being set.

Hot weather puts the forecaster in the hole. If he predicts more heat, everybody's sore at him. If he predicts cooler—and it doesn't come—it's worse.

Air Conditioning Equipment Placed In Fashion Shop

Installation of air conditioning equipment at The Fashion has been completed, it was reported today by Mr. and Mrs. Dave Wolf, operators of the store.

The equipment, which lowers the temperature to 80 and less degrees, was installed by the Harper Music Company of Eastland.

Wolf said that the equipment greatly increases comfort of customers in shopping. The equipment displaces a total of 7,000 cubic feet of air each minute.

Ranch Terms Are Different in South American Country

By United Press
FORT WORTH. — Argentine beef production differs from United States methods in more ways than the recently-publicized lower raising and packing costs of the South Americans.

F. H. Finch, Australian-born rancher from Argentina, reported while visiting here that in his land:

A herd of stock is a "mob."

A pasture is a "paddock."
A roundup of range animals is a "rodeo."

Finch, manager of 250,000 acres in Provincia de Corrientes, Argentina, is raising about 30,000 head of cattle designed for the London market.

He visited Fort Worth after stopping at the King Ranch of South Texas and inspecting the Hudgins Brahma herd near Wharton.

Lots of folks feel that way about SOUTHERN SELECT

SOUTHERN SELECT DRINKERS ARE a loyal bunch. There's a familiar, mellow friendliness about this famous old beer that grows better with acquaintance. We could give you lots of real reasons why SOUTHERN SELECT is such a fine beer—it's the South's only distilled water brew, made in the South's largest brewery. But, after all, one bottle will tell you more about its quality than a whole book of reasons. And that one bottle will make you a SOUTHERN SELECT booster too; why not try a bottle today? It will be the start of a long and happy companionship.

New 'Is'm' Signs Up In Montreal

MONTREAL.—Communists and Nazis again are using paint, brush and chalk to spread propaganda here.

Communist slogans, swastikas and anti-Semitic outbursts are appearing on walls, sidewalks and fences in widely-scattered parts of the city.

The latest Communist "paint and brush" propaganda campaign is aimed at the recent judgment handed down by the Superior Court here upholding the constitutionality of the Quebec Government's much-disputed "padlock law" against Communism.

At the same time a few blocks north, where the population is largely foreign-born, walls, fences and sidewalks were marked with swastikas, executed in chalk.

The signs appear to attract little attention. Passersby accord them a casual glance and hurry on. Street workers seem more interested in their jobs than in padlocks. Even police ignore them.

At first regarded as the work of small boys and classified with the "Johnny loves Lillian" inscriptions abundant in every school area, the chalk swastikas and anti-Semitic blasts are now believed to have been executed by organized Nazi propagandists.

Paint and chalk propagandists stayed their activities during the royal tour and for a few weeks preceding the arrival of the king and queen, allegedly because of the rigorous measures instituted

Politicians Watch Mexico's Reaction Upon a Candidate

MEXICO, Tex.—Texas with an interest in politics across the border in Mexico are watching closely for some sign from President Lazaro Cardenas regarding the presidential aspirations of Gen. Juan Androu Almazan.

General Almazan, who is well known in the United States, has been commander of the Northeastern Mexico military zone, which includes the territory immediately to the south of here.

Interest centered on the appointment of Almazan's successor. Political observers in the Lower Rio Grande Valley believed that President Cardenas would indicate his feeling toward Almazan's presidential ambitions when he names the general's successor.

Appointment of Gen. Rodolfo Higuera, Almazan's immediate subordinate, to the post of commander of the Northeastern Mexico military zone would be regarded by many as a gesture of encouragement for Almazan.

With Our Wildlife

By JOHN R. WOOD, State Game Warden, Fish Rescue Work

Fish rescue work, of which much is done each year by the Texas Game, Fish and Oyster Commission, has started. State Game Warden Sam Turner of Waco reports the rescue of 21,000 fish from an old channel of the Bosque river.

Receding waters following heavy rains, the streams, lakes, bays drying up during the summer months stranded millions of fish

British Prison Has Nightly Smokers

LONDON.—Convicts in the Chelmsford jail, Essex, instead of being locked up for the night at 7:30 p. m., now have smoking parties up to 9 p. m., with games, newspapers, darts and wireless.

And if they feel inclined to improve their education there is a French lesson, conducted by a woman visitor. There is also a debating society. An ex-school teacher takes classes in arithmetic and general subjects.

These facts were revealed by the governor of the Chelmsford prison, when he addressed the Essex Discharged Prisoner's Aid Society.

The governor also revealed that convicts were building a row of houses for prison officers of the jail.

Fish Rescue Work In This District

In my district there are six counties and there has been many fish rescued this year. Earlier in the year the old Lucas lake, some two miles east of Brownwood, was going dry.

Mr. M. W. Ledbetter, Game Warden O. F. Etheredge and myself rescued some 12,000 fish from this lake and placed them all in Lake Brownwood.

During the last part of June the old T. P. lake at Baird, was washed out by the heavy rains in that section. When the dam broke nearly all of the fish were washed out. The author of this column, O. F. Etheredge, game warden, and hatchery attendants, L. A. Proctor and Walton Baum, and sportsmen of Baird rescued some 16,000 fish and placed them in lakes and government tanks in Callahan county.

Most of the fish rescued came from a small creek below the dam of the T. P. lake. Fish were taken from holes that would go dry within the next month or so. Others were left in permanent water in the creek where there was no danger of drying up.

"Deuce if she wouldn't, pal! You think maybe—well, listen, Frank, I'm just a ham fullback. Ex-fullback. Not a dime to my name, and not much future, looks like. You think she could—she'd ever—?"
Franklin wasn't looking at his friend. The pain in his own soul was throbbing. Which accounts, perhaps, for the fact that he jumped at a walk-on.
Finally he walked over and put a hand on the other's shoulder. "Dick," he said, smiling in slow friendly manner, "money doesn't matter with that girl. It's you. I—well, I already know. She told me so herself!"
BRISCOE & SON, Assayers and Metallurgists, advertised their business partnership with a sign in front of a cluttered laboratory on First street in Phoenix, Arizona, and this Thursday morning old man Briscoe himself, washed his hands, wiped them on an inkly towel, and went to the overloaded desk in the front of his establishment. He found his glasses and adjusted them an amazing distance from his eyes, then tilted back his head to see through them, automatically opening his mouth.
For 10 minutes then he searched, "prospected" through the litter of papers, rocks, dust, lint, envelopes, keys, pencils, whiskey glasses and cat hairs before him. Even the cat itself was moved, with a protesting meow. But Mr. Briscoe was thwarted.
Finally his son and partner, a man of almost 50 himself, grew impatient.
"Whyn't just send th' reports to Ed Felch?" he begged, contentiously. "You been knowin' him for 50 years. Goldcrest is Western M. & M. propiety, and Felch's still th' president, ain't he? Any assays'd have to git to him sooner or later anyhow."
"Yep, reckon so," old man Briscoe said. "Wasn't him that sent in th' samples, though. Still they both musta been his men, or they wouldn't of said they got th' samples at Goldcrest. One asked about this new business of handlin' low grade ore, I remember. You take and write Ed a letter for me, son, and say the low grade is good for about $6 a ton, but to forget that and work the rock samples. My lord, they assayed better'n a $100 a ton! Old Goldcrest is likely to boom again, son. You wish Ed Felch well, for me. We'll likely git more of his business."

and the personal letter from Briscoe & Son in Phoenix. And for the fact that Mr. Felch forthwith called in the burly field manager of his corporation for an executive session.
The two were closeted together for most of one morning, talking a lot and calling a lot, going over dusty old records from the corporation files, studying maps that had been forgotten for long years, speculating and planning and cursing some more. When they were done with it, though, they had agreed on two courses of action. The first was to be mild and gentle, even unctuous; but the second—a measure of desperation, really—held possibilities for considerably more force.
ROSELEE DALE, "Mayor" of Goldcrest, Arizona, a ghost municipality, received her business caller in her private office—really a room of Ace High Hotel which had in it an extra chair. The genial business man talked at some length.
"... and so that's how we felt, Miss Dale," he was saying. President Felch feels that you are a young woman of remarkable acumen. You have high talents and personal charm. You have already proven that. Now, Goldcrest could not possibly reach its maximum development as a show place for tourists without investment of considerable capital—say for a dude ranch resort all summer, a large tourist court, a store or two, an Indian village, all that sort of thing—and since it has doubtless reached its maximum under your limited means, I am authorized to purchase the town back from you and to offer you a job as assistant manager of the new and bigger development."
"Geel!" breathed Roselee.
"Good! I knew you would see it our way. Now we can of course show you a nice profit to start. You paid us a mere $500. Now, for all your assets in the place, I can offer you, say, $1200 cash."
The man paused, eyeing Roselee shrewdly. But she had stopped smiling. She inhaled instead, and looked straight at him.
"If it's worth that much," she began, at length. "I'd better look around and—"

"I weigh 119, Richard Bancroft, so there!"
He grinned. "Scram, small fry. I got work to do."
But he didn't take it as lightly as he pretended to. He did resume normal work, but he kept thinking about what she said.
He thought about it again that night, and next day, and on the second night he made up his mind he should take a precaution. The burlap sack in the vault now was a dummy, all right, but five people, including Mrs. Hogan, knew where the real money sack was. It occurred to Dick that this was an unhealthy situation. Franklin had gone in to Flagstaff on business for the night, and so he had nobody to consult. But presently the young man made up his mind to take action alone.
ROSELEE DALE told herself that she had never seen a group of customers as enthusiastic as this one she guided now. She had 20 men and women in tow, leading them through the old Bucket of Blood saloon, the Hummingbird Bar and Gambling Emporium (strangely contrasting names!) with its furo tables and chairs still there, the Twentieth Century Club which was just another barroom with famous nudes on its walls, the several "Gent. Mide." stores, Fry's Photo Gallery (with a lot of old negatives and prints still there), McGonigle's Saddlery, the Goldcrest Hardware and Mining Machinery Company warehouse, the Goldcrest City Bank (front part only), five or six residences, the Mohave Opera House, these and several more picturesque relics of yesteryear's prosperity. She gave her little talk and answered questions in each place, and stored them finally to Mrs. Hogan's refreshment and souvenir counter in the Ace High Hotel.
"I thought there was an old jail up here, dug back in a mountain," one man mentioned, there in the Ace High. "I'd heard about that. A sort of dungeon for their tough criminals."

help to make it safe and clean enough to bring guests in."
They were interrupted then by other guests who wanted to talk, so that she forgot the matter until the following evening after supper when she was alone in her room with Christine. Counting money and comparing mental notes on the day's activity, Roselee remembered what the tourist had said. She also saw a note on her work calendar, reminding her to look into the dungeon matter this night.
"We simply must prepare it for show, Christy," Roselee declared. "People are asking about it. Maybe we can get the Indian men and the two old cowboys—they're dears!—to help with the work there."
"Let's go look at it now and plan what to do," Christine said.
When they got outside, though, they discovered a fragile filament of light, curved and beautiful, etched in the green-blue sky just above Squaw Mountain to the east. Christine began humming, then singing in low tone.
"In June, with you, in a ca-noon, under the moon, ta-tum-tum-tee."
"Silly!" said Roselee. "Getting romantic?"
"Let's sit a while and watch it rise, Roselee. We'll rest only one-half hour. I promise."

Dallas Police Have 77mm Shell They Can't Dispose Of

FRECKLES and HIS FRIENDS

DALLAS, Tex.—Police Lt. R. W. Evans has something he wishes he knew how to get rid of.
It is a 77 mm. anti-aircraft shrapnel shell. It was taken to the police station by a man who found it near some riding stables at the edge of the city—a place where officers could find no possible excuse for it to be.
Lieutenant Evans called in officers of the national guard, but they said they didn't use any anti-aircraft shells, and they couldn't remember any wars that had been found in the neighborhood of the riding stables. So ownership of the shell remained a mystery, and in the meantime Lieutenant Evans has possession of it at the police property room.
Experts said that the shell was loaded and ready for use, and Lieutenant Evans doesn't want it around his office, but the peace-loving city council has never made any rules for the disposition of anti-aircraft shells.
Kansas penitentiary convicts staged a coal mine sit-down strike for the privilege of wearing silk underwear. Our experience in sitting in places like that has been that flannel is much more comfortable.

Boy Runs Away Six Times; Can't Resist
NEW ORLEANS.—Mrs. O. S. Robertson is having trouble with her son again. He's got the wanderlust.
It's a deep yearning, said O. S., aged 9. He can't overcome it. It has made him run away from home six times.
The last time O. S. came home, he was apologetic.
"I love you better than anybody," he said to his mother by way of breaking the ice.
"Then why do you run away, O. S.?" Mrs. Robertson asked.
"I don't know, mama," O. S. said.
A few days later he said he had the old feeling again. Mrs. Robertson only sighed and went about beating up a cake. Maybe that would hold him a while.

Woman Who Drew Presidents Praise Now 80 Years Old

CLAYTON, N. M.—The recent critical illness of Mrs. E. C. Porter, 80, recalled to residents of this section the time that Mrs. Porter drew applause and a handshake from President Theodore Roosevelt for her ability to ride a horse.

Mrs. Porter believed that she possibly was the only woman in the country who ever rode a plunging cow pony down a railroad track in order to shake hands with a president of the United States.

When Theodore Roosevelt traveled through this country during his term as president, Mrs. Porter was living at a ranch about a mile from Clayton, which then was a straggling cow town.

Her husband did not find out until the train left Texline, Tex., ten miles away, that the president would stop in Clayton. Porter thought his wife might like to see the chief executive, so he telephoned her at the ranch.

Mrs. Porter saddled her horse, jumped on his back, and laid him in a dead run for the Colorado and Southern depot.

The train was just leaving. The cowpony, frightened by the crowd, plunged and reared, but Mrs. Porter reined him down and spurred him along the track.

The president stood on the rear platform of the train and cheered. As the running horse drew alongside the slowly moving train, the president reached out and grabbed Mrs. Porter by the hand.

"That," she often recalled, "was one of the memorable moments of my life."

'Nothing But Scratch' Often Is Dangerous

CHICAGO—"Oh it's nothing, just a scratch..." But "just a scratch" and comparable small cuts and lacerations were a million dollar item last year for organizations that pay compensation to employees.

The 1939 edition of Accident Facts, the National Safety Council's statistical yearbook, notes: "One out of ten compensated occupational injuries involves infection. Many of these cases begin as small scratches or lacerations that would have resulted in no disability if proper medical treatment had been given promptly."

The yearbook points out that if all states had similar proportions of infections and paid compensation on the same basis as four states in which a survey was made, the national compensation total for infected occupational injuries in 1938 was about $11,000,000.

Court Decision On Married Women On Payroll Is Watched

AUSTIN, Tex.—A court decision in Massachusetts is being watched with interest in Texas.

A court there held unconstitutional a provision against employment of married women on public jobs. A married woman does not lose her citizenship, nor her rights as a citizen, the Massachusetts court said, and to refuse her employment because of marriage is a deprivation of rights.

The department appropriation bill for operation of Texas agencies of government does not go quite so far as to forbid employment of married women. But it does prohibit employment of both husband and wife, except in isolated institutions where residence on the premises is required.

Deeper Drilling Is Constant Load On Production Of Oil

DALLAS, Tex.—Deeper drilling, advancing wage rates and a constantly heavier tax load on Texas oil have been accompanied by a steady increase in the cost of oil field equipment and supplies, according to a report recently completed by the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association.

Practically all items of equipment purchased by the Texas oil industry have shown substantial advances in price, with the result that today's oil field supply bill is 23 per cent above 1932 and 51 per cent above price levels which prevailed back in 1922.

Compared with 1932, principal items of equipment used by the Texas oil industry have advanced in cost as much as 66 per cent. Valves are 34 per cent higher in price today than they were in 1932.

Today, under restricted production, the necessity for drilling much deeper for oil and extremely high operating and overhead costs, it takes many years to pay out the original investment in Texas oil producing properties.

price today than they were in 1932. Guy wire has advanced 66 per cent more; tool joints have advanced 44 per cent; engines 27 per cent; pumps 18 per cent. Compared with 1922 price levels, items of this nature have shown advances of as much as 97 per cent.

All these factors, coupled with restricted production of oil under State proration laws, have contributed to high unit costs of operation. In 1922, when costs of labor, equipment and taxes were materially lower than they are today, and when the average market price of crude oil was $1.73, against one dollar and less prevailing in Texas today, it was possible to pay out the investment in an oil well within a comparatively short time.

Today, under restricted production, the necessity for drilling much deeper for oil and extremely high operating and overhead costs, it takes many years to pay out the original investment in Texas oil producing properties.
