Let Us Think Clearly and Calmly While We Can

Galloping with the ever-increasing speed and recklessness of a cavalry charge, the events of Europe rush to their fulfillment. No man can yet tell exactly what that fulfillment may be. We only know that it cannot be good.

Any day, any hour, any minute, the feared catastrophe may come; Europe may again be enveloped in such a war as swept it in 1914. If that happens, it will affect the life of every man, woman and child in the United States. While we can still do so, while we are yet free of the whirlpool in which reason and decency go down together, let all Americans think clearly and calmly of what our attitude is to be if the worst happens.

We know that we can no longer look on such a European catastrophe with the fine detachment with which we viewed it in 1914. The world has grown smaller since then, more closely interlocked and mutually interdependent. It will immediately affect us, no matter what course we decide to pursue, no matter what course circumstance may set for us.

The outlines of this naked struggle for power were never clearer than at this moment. The real aims of the contesting powers, putting aside the ideological window-dressing and the sentimental appeals, are quite simple:

If Germany fights, it will be because for six years she has staked everything on a promise to her people of expansion and world-power which has led her so far along that road that she cannot turn back even if met by resistance in arms. If Britain fights, it will not be for love of Poland or its institutions, but simply because a Germany dominant over Poland would rule Europe and threaten the existence of the British Empire and perhaps of England itself. It would from that point continually gain strength with time until challenge became impossible. If France fights, it is for those same reasons. With Germany dominant throughout eastern Europe, France is little better than another Poland. If Italy fights, it will be because Hitler tells her to.

If Russia fights—there is the riddle! But her willingness, far in advance of expiration of their present pact, and at the time when it did the greatest possible harm to the British-French cause, to sign a non-aggression pact with Germany, is a clear signal that Russia plans to remain aloof and throw her weight when she chooses into the place where she thinks it will do her the most good.

This is power politics of the old familiar type—all Europe is playing that game today, and all the brave talk of Democratic fronts and Anti-Communist fronts is out the window.

Looking such coldly-practical viewpoints of self-interest in the fact, the United States can scarcely adopt any other attitude. We must with the utmost coolness, nay coldness, chart a course in the face of a shifting tempest which is calculated to bring us safe into harbor. Only in that way shall we save ourselves, and in the long run, serve civilization.

Japan's Buying Of U. S. Oil Decreases

"Little Fuehrer" Takes Over as Danzig Head

While the free city of Danzig waits tensely for some settlement of its fate, Nazis parade the street to the salute of Albert Forster (right foreground), their "little Fuehrer," who was elected to the post of Head of State by the Senate of Danzig.

June. Last year, during the same months, exports to that country were 83,200 barrels daily, indicating a loss in business this year to the producers of 15,400 barrels daily, or 18.5 per cent.

Three reasons are cited by the agency as possible causes for this decreasing purchase. One is that Japan no longer may be able to obtain sufficient foreign exchange to make the purchases; the second is that possibly the administration is frowning upon such exports as an implement of war, and the third is that possibly Japan is finding other markets.

Japanese purchases of California oil, the agency states, for the first seven months of this year have been 20.6 per cent or 20,200 barrels daily less than in the same period of 1938.

Including July, 1939, this year's movement of oil to Japan has been 77,900 barrels daily, as against 98,100 barrels of all oil products last year.

Oil producers on the Pacific coast are now speculating on what Japan will do now that the trade treaty with the United States has been denounced.

The supposition is that during the interim she will endeavor to accumulate a sufficient stock of oil to meet apparent needs, and that as a consequence purchases on the Pacific coast for the next six months will increase, in anticipation of an embargo in the early part of 1940.

The other possibility, experts here think, is that Japan will seek other sources of oil on a "barter" basis, thus conserving foreign exchange.

MOST MOTHERS ARE NOW... SUFFERING FROM SCHOOL DAZE!

The children will be back at school next week—but it's Mother who suffers most from the change. First-grade Mary needs a whole new wardrobe—grown-up clothes for a suddenly grown-up baby. Jimmy's vacation outfit—entirely bathing suits—won't do for the classroom, and he's grown completely out of last year's suits and shirts. Mother has to do a lot of buying, but the budget says, "Watch every penny!"—and that means a lot of shopping around. No wonder Mother's in a daze!

But many people are helping her. All the stores are featuring school clothes and school supplies in their advertising. Instead of going from store to store, Mother can sit down (for once) and do her shopping right in this newspaper's advertising columns. Everything's there—and a quick glance through the advertisements tells her just where to go to get just what she wants—and at the price she wants to pay.
