IT'S MOVING DAY
Usually, that sound has a word of terror for the ones doing that stunt but the many moves of Fred W. Dumraese, of the Prairie Oil & Gas company, were each time to newer fields, and pastures green, etc., and had no disagreeable features in connection.
The wall, "It's moving Day," and my comb is in the coffee pot, boxes with Mr. Dumraese, that his boxes are corded up, and his little wife under his wing, all set, for their new adventure.
Mr. Dumraese came from the east, for the Prairie, in 1919, and made Tulsa his headquarters, until the following year, when he was located at Wichita Falls, remaining until the middle of the year 1922, and was then in Oklahoma until the middle of 1925, when he was transferred to Texas, and has made his headquarters in Eastland since that date.

DINNER PARTY FOR BRIDE AND GROOM TO-BE
Several intimate friends of Miss Allen and Mr. Walter Jarrett tendered a delightful dinner party to these young people, whose approaching marriage has given occasion for many charming pre-nuptial affairs.
Acorn Acres were her prettiest dress to greet the happy young folks Friday evening at eight o'clock, the welcome reflected in the beautifully appointed dinner table, centered with bowls of pink and white roses, spaced with silver sticks, holding pink tapers, and bearing delicious little place cards of cupids, and wedding rings.

completed, located on Lamar, near Commerce, and, spick and span, acting in flowered wall papers, set with built-in cabinets, and darling French doors throughout, that awaits the coming of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Hamilton Neal, who are celebrating his eighty-first birthday on June 15, and her birthday, the seventy-seventh, on June 23, and also their fifty-eighth wedding anniversary day, of the twenty-fifth of February.
It's a far cry from this little treasure house into which they move tomorrow to their first home on a plantation near Marshall, Texas, where water had to be carried to the house, and - pioneer times, made luxuries few, and French doors impossible.
Fifty-eight years of wedded happiness, since that first home, and this, the fifth home they have built, though the smallest of any, seems to the bride and groom of fifty-eight years, the loveliest of all, for they have just what their heart desires.
Colors a plenty, with ivory woodwork, and an apple green kitchen and an orchid bathroom.
The plans were drawn by Mrs. Neal in person, and, as she expressed it, "I have a darling little curly walk up to my front door." I have always wanted color, and now I want nothing that indicates age.

CHAPTER XLVIII

grouching on the floor, spread the crackles of The Capital City eyes devouring the picture of David. Lines of type above graph leaped out at her: graduate of A. & M. grandfather's farm."

"Oh, Mother, forgive me for hurting you like this! But don't you see that I would hurt you more by staying? After a while you would be ashamed of me because I could not marry. I would humiliate you in the eyes of your friends. And I could not be happy ever, away from David. I wanted to die after Arthur Van Horne told me today what he really wanted of me, but now I know I want to live—with David. Please, Mother, don't think my love for you—"

"She could write no more just then. Laying her cheek against the cold glass of the framed photograph of her mother she sobbed so loudly, so heart-brokenly that she did not hear a knock upon the door, did not know her grief was being witnessed until she felt a hand upon her shoulder."

"Sally, darling! What in the world is the matter?" It was Enid Barr's tender, throaty contralto.

Sally sprang to her feet, her eyes wild with fear, her mother's picture still tightly clutched in her hands. "I—I was writing you a letter!" she gasped. "I—I—"

"Perhaps I'd better read it now," Enid said in an odd voice, and reached for the scattered sheets of pale gray notepaper on the desk.

Sally wavered to a chair and slumped into it, too dazed with despair to think coherently. She could not bear to look at her mother, for she knew now how cowardly she had been, how abysmally selfish.

Her flaming face was hidden by her hands when, after what seemed many long minutes, she heard her mother's voice again: "Poor Sally! You couldn't trust me? Without giving me a chance to prove my love for you?"

Sally dropped her hands and stared stupidly at her mother. Enid was coming toward her, the newspaper with David's picture in it rustling against the crisp, lacy folds of her bouffant skirt. And on Enid's face was an expression of such scornful but loving reproach that Sally burst into wild weeping.

"Poor little darling!" Enid dropped to her knees beside Sally's chair and took the girl's cold, shaking hands in hers. "We all make mistakes, Sally. I've made more than my share. Maybe I'm getting old enough now to have a little wisdom. And I want to keep you from making a mistake that would cause both of us—and Court—untold sorrow."

"But I love David and I shan't love anyone else," Sally sobbed, without first telling him the truth. Arthur Van Vorne knew and wanted me to be his mistress. He told me today. He did not think I was good enough to be his wife. It would always be the same. And so I am going to David, who knows and loves me anyway.

"Oh, Mother, forgive me for hurting you like this! But don't you see that I would hurt you more by staying? After a while you would be ashamed of me because I could not marry. I would humiliate you in the eyes of your friends. And I could not be happy ever, away from David. "But I love David and I shan't love anyone else," Sally sobbed, though she knew her resistance was broken.

"I'm forced to believe that now, darling," Enid said gently. "And I shall not stand in the way of your happiness with him. That is not the mistake I meant."

"You mean that you'll let me marry him?" Sally cried incredulously. "Oh, Mother! I love you so!"

"And I love you, Sally," Enid's voice broke as she cuddled Sally's cold hands against the velvety warmth of her own throat. "Your mistake would have been to run away to marry David. You have a mother and a father now, Sally. You're no longer a girl alone, as David called you. You have a place in society as our daughter, whether you want it or not. If David wants to marry you, he must come here to do so, must marry you with our consent and our blessing."

"But—Sally's joy suddenly turned to despair again. "He wouldn't marry a girl with a fortune. He told me so when he was here."

"That was when he was penniless himself," Enid pointed out. "I've just read this newspaper story about his inheriting his grandfather's farm. It's a small fortune, in itself, and since there's no immediate danger of your inheriting either my money or Court's I don't believe he will let your prospective wealth stand in the way—if he loves you."

"Oh, he does!" Sally laughed through her tears. "Look!" She snatched the newspaper from the floor and pointed to the last paragraph of the story about David. "He named his prize heir!"

It says here: "My only sweetheart is Sally! Oh, Mother, I don't know anyone could live through such misery and such happiness as I felt today! I wanted to kill myself after Van—Oh!"

"Tell me just exactly what he said to you!" Enid commanded, her lovely voice sharpened with anger and fear.

When Sally had repeated the contemptuous, sneering speech as accurately as possible, her mother's face, which had been almost ugly with anger and disgust, cleared miraculously.

"The man is an unspeakable cad, darling, but I am almost glad it happened, since you escaped unscathed. He won't hurt us again. I'm sure of it! He's not quite low enough to gossip about me to my friends. It is evident that he planned all along to use his knowledge as a club to force you to submit to his desires. And now that he doesn't want you any more, he will lose interest in the whole subject. I've known Van nearly all my life and I've never known him to act the end before. He's probably despising himself, now that his fever has cooled. If you marry David, with our consent, he'll probably turn up at your wedding and offer sincere congratulations with a whispered reassurance as to his ability to keep our secret."

"When I marry David, not if!" Sally cried, exultantly, flinging her arms about her mother's neck. "Oh, I'm so glad I have a mother!"

"Don't strangle me!" Enid laughed. "Leave me strength to write a proposal of marriage to this cocksure young farmer who boasts that he is as capable in the kitchen as on the seat of a cultivator."

"He can't cook half as well as I can!" Sally scoffed. "You ought to taste one of my apple pies! He can play nurse to his blue-ribbon stock all he wants to, but he's got to let me do the cooking! And, Mother, you'll— you'll tell him how much I love him, won't you? And—and you might remind him that we only need a marriage ceremony—the last half. Wouldn't it be fun if we could go back to Canfield and let the 'marring parson' finish the job?"

"Don't be too confident!" Enid warned her. "He may refuse you!" But at sight of Sally's dismay she relented. "I know he loves you, darling. Don't worry. If I were you I'd get busy immediately on a trousseau."

"One dozen kitchen aprons will top the list," Sally laughed.

Four days later the second telegram that Sally had received from David arrived: "Catching next train East, darling. Happiest man in the world. Can we be married day I arrive? Am wiring your blessed mother also. I'll be loving you always, David."

"Of course you can't be married the day he arrives!" Enid exclaimed indignantly when Sally showed her the telegram. "I'm going to give you a real wedding."

"I think the children are right, Enid," Courtney Barr unexpectedly championed Sally in her protest. "A quiet, impromptu wedding, by all means. Our announcement to the papers will indicate that we approve, and since the boy is unknown in New York and Sally has only just been introduced, I think the less fuss the better."

Sally kissed him impulsively, aware, though the knowledge did not hurt her, that he liked her better now that she was to leave his home, than he had ever liked her.

David arrived on Monday, and was guest of honor that night at a small party of Enid's and Sally's most intimate friends, at which time announcement of the forthcoming marriage was made. They remembered having seen him briefly at Sally's coming-out party and so handsome he was, so much at ease, now that he was to be married to the girl he loved, that it occurred to none of Enid's guests to question his eligibility. Sally, sitting proudly beside him, looked happily from her mother to David, knew that in gaining a husband she was not losing a mother, as she would have done if Enid had not interrupted the writing of that terrible letter.

On Tuesday Sally and David, accompanied by Enid and Courtney Barr, went to the municipal building for the marriage license, and the afternoon papers carried the news on the front pages, under such headlines as "Popular Deb to Marry Rich Farmer." But in all the stories there was no hint of scandal, no reportorial prying into the "past" of the adopted daughter of the rich and prominent Courtney Barrs.

The wedding took place on Wednesday, in the drawing-room of the Barrs' Fifth Avenue mansion, and the next morning, in his account of the "very quiet" wedding, a society editor commented: "The ceremony was read by the Reverend Horace Greer, of Canfield, —, the choice of celebrant being dictated by unexplained sentiment."

What the society editor did not know was that "the marrying parson" of Canfield spoke only the last half of the marriage service, beginning where he had been interrupted nearly three years before.

Little Students Are Grateful for Frogs

An interesting correspondence has sprung up between Dr. H. B. Tanner of Eastland and the students of one room in a school in Seattle, Wash., where his daughter is the teacher.

The correspondence began after Dr. Tanner had sent two horned frogs to the pupils and they wrote to thank him. He receives as high as four letters at a time from his small correspondents, the latest communications telling him of the accidental death of one of the frogs.

START CONSTRUCTION OF ADMINISTRATION BLDG.

By Associated Press

ABILENE, Texas.—The work of constructing the first unit of Abilene Christian College's new administration building on the recently acquired 80-acre campus in the eastern section of Abilene will start soon, it was announced.

Contract for the erection of this unit was awarded recently to H. M. Selby on a bid of $73,950.

Two other units of the administration group of buildings, the academy hall and the auditorium, also will be started within near future. Each of these buildings will cost approximately $50,000. Two modern fireproof dormitories will be erected during the next year.

Plans of college officials are to have the buildings finished by the beginning of the fall term in 1930. The 1928-29 seasons will be held at the present plant in the western side of the city.

The new and larger campus and plant have been made necessary by the rapid growth of the college during recent years. The present campus comprises only five acres.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

Church of Christ

W. H. WRYE, Minister

Sunday School 9:45 a. m. Communion 11 a. m. Preaching 11:30 a. m. Theme, "Unconscious Drifting." Young People's class, 7 p. m. Preaching 8 p. m. Subject, "Redeemed by the Blood of Christ." Ladies' Evangelism Class, Tuesday, 3 p. m. Prayer meeting Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Song practice Friday night, 8 o'clock. J. E. Meroney, director.

Unconscious Drifting
The importance of watching and praying lest we enter into temptation is emphasized in the first chapter of Hebrews, and commented on by the writer in the first verse of the second chapter. Drifting is dangerous. It presupposes currents. Slow to swift currents that sweep on to the Gulf of Despair. "Therefore we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard."

Redeemed by the Blood of Christ
Justification—a forensic term, denoting the act of a judge who declares one innocent, who has been accused at the bar. God, the righteous Judge forgives the sinner for Christ's sake and says, "I will remember your sins no more." Sanctification—a sacred term, denoting a separation from the world, and a setting apart to a holy service. These words apply alike to Christians. Three questions will be considered: (1) What was lost that made redemption necessary? (2) From whom or from what are we redeemed? (3) By what are we redeemed? Concluding this discourse the New Testament writers will be called upon to tell how we are redeemed by the blood of Christ.

May we have the pleasure your attendance at all of the above meetings. A hearty Christian welcome awaits you.

P. W. WALTHALL, Pastor

Last Sunday was a good day with us. Had a large and appreciative audience at the morning, hour, and at the night service the Inter-Church Orchestra put on their program—"The Appealing Power of Music."

There was a large audience present who enjoyed the program very much. One thing which added interest to the service was the presence of the author of the play, having come from Oklahoma to be there at that hour.

All of our regular services will be held Sunday at the usual hour. The morning subject will be "Christianity vs. Shirdetachel's 'Churchianity vs. Christianity.'" You will enjoy the study of this subject as it will be dealt with in its relation to present day conditions. Your presence will be an inspiration and will make the service more worthwhile. Come and invite your friends to come with you.

The evening service will begin promptly at 8 o'clock. Good singing, short, practical sermon, and a home-like welcome.

You are invited to attend.

Church of God

H. M. SELL, Pastor

It's universal. It's undenominational. It's non-sectarian. Its creed—The Bible. Its members—God's children. Its head—Is Christ. Its Leader—The Holy Spirit. Its Aim—to Save Souls. Its Desire—to have an influence for God.

"Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest."

While the time for the wheat harvest was yet four months away, yet Jesus saw fields white and ready for harvest. As Jesus looked back over the years of time said could see the sowings of the prophets, as they announced His coming. He no doubt had in mind the great harvest of souls. Were the fields not white unto harvest? It seems to me the world was crying out for the very thing Christ had to offer. The fast growth of the church in early Christianity speaks well of the ripeness of the fields.

They are ripe today, my friend, the world is calling for the salvation that Christ had to offer, in that far off day in Galilee. The world is dying for a touch of Jesus, and we must be the hem of His garment, that the afflicted ones may receive help and grace through us.

Every Christian should hear this message, it is a call to the highest deals of life. We can give enough to Him who saved us by His blood, nor can we withhold from those for whom He died.

Sunday night subject—"What Constitutes the Church." This message was prepared several weeks ago, but withheld on account of a fine weather. We feel it is a great message and want all God-loving people to hear it. Don't miss hearing it, as it answers some of the great questions of the day.

We will have a meeting of the Sunday School officers Sunday afternoon, in which we plan to make several changes in the school administration. We plan to have a men's Bible class, under the direction of Rev. E. W. Barnett, who will be the instructor of the Bible in the Warner Memorial University. Rev. Barnett is here in the interest of the University, being the treasurer of the school. He has charge of the office work now, which is located in the Bender Building. Rev. Barnett is well trained in his work and we are looking forward to a good class. There are some other changes planned to make Sunday School more efficient in training the mind in spiritual things as well as maintaining a spiritual atmosphere.

"Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest to your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light."

These words spoken by Christ, now echo through the church, in finding Christ our souls find rest.

St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church

REV. MICHAEL COLLINS Acting Pastor

June 3, 1928, Mass at 8 A. M.

This is Trinity Sunday and the Gospel is taken from the Gospel of St. Matthew 28:18-20. At that time, Jesus said to his disciples: All power is given to me in heaven and in earth. Going, therefore, teach ye all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost, teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you; and, behold, I am with you all way even to the consummation of the world.

The Trinity is a mystery and consists in this that there are three persons in the Godhead, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost. In religion a mystery is a revealed doctrine that we are bound to believe though we do not understand it. We are bound to believe it because God, who cannot deceive or be deceived has revealed it. We have plenty of proofs in the Bible for believing in the Trinity. Genesis 1:26; 3:22; Psalm 2:7; 42:6; St. Matt. 3:16; 2 Cor. 13:13. There are many mysteries in nature that we readily believe though we do not understand them. What is gravitation? What is electricity? No man can tell.

The more we study nature the more mysterious it becomes, the more we realize how little we know about it. Man is generally a mystery to himself. If nature that we can touch, handle and examine is a mystery to us why not God whom we cannot see with bodily eyes.

REV. A. M. COLLINS.

Methodist Church

F. E. SINGLETON, Pastor

Special music under the direction of Miss Drago and presentation of diplomas and sermon by the pastor at the morning service at 10:55. The choir will bring a new anthem at both morning and evening services.

The pastor will preach in the morning on "The Joy of Self-Sacrifice as Taught by Jesus." This is indeed a new note, stirring the heart with wonder, that joy and self-sacrifice should be associated together. But it is plainly taught by the Master. Few of us have learned the lesson, and as has the world, through the ages we have been seeking joy in the circumstances of life.

"A Taint in the Blood" will be the pastor's theme at 8 p. m. Is there such a thing as heredity? Is red-headed-ity hereditary? If like produces like, then do we inherit evil tendencies. Do we inherit more than physical potentialities, such as mental and spiritual? Are we to blame for the sins of our fathers? These and other phrases of the law of heredity will be discussed. Everyone is welcome to worship with us.

The woman's Missionary Society will meet in the down stairs auditorium Monday afternoon in business meeting.

The Board of Stewards will meet in regular business session Wednesday night at the church.

A large number of Sunday School workers will receive their diplomas next Sunday morning at the morning service. Those who have gotten diplomas from the office are asked to allow the pastor to present them publicly Sunday morning. Please hand them to the pastor before Sunday morning.

Our calendars have arrived and are receiving a stiff piece of cardboard on the back this week and then they will be handed out for distribution. If you desire calendars to send to friends who have paid for their names in them we will gladly turn them over without the extra cardboard backs, thus making it easier to post them. Our Sunday School Council will meet as usual this first Monday, but a week will be given in order to get our breath after the training school. The committee will meet and make its plans for the council.

Monday night is visitation night at the Baptist revival. Our Methodist people have a special invitation for that night. We are glad to see our people there at every service.

Cases Are Set In the Court-at-Law

The following jury civil cases have been set for trial in Judge Tom J. Cunningham's Eastland county court-at-law, for the week beginning Monday, June 11th:

- Gulf Pipe Line Company vs. C. U. Connelley; Mrs. Ethel Henry vs. W. C. Shelton et al; W. C. Shelton vs. R. H. McLearnin; Continental State Bank vs. J. T. Jobe et al; J. P. Tucker vs. B. & H. Presbyterian Church

L. R. HOGAN, Pastor

Sunday is the regular time for "Children's Day." A service of unusual interest has been arranged for the 11 o'clock service at the Presbyterian church. Both parents and children will be interested. For sometime the Junior Department of the Sunday School with Mrs. James Horton as superintendent has been thinking of a Vested Junior Choir. This has been consummated and they will appear in their vestments next Sunday for the first time. They will occupy the choir and will take the place of the regular choir for the morning.

It has been found that children like the good substantial hymns and that they are really better for them than the catchy tunes with very little to them. The program has been arranged and is as follows:

- Processional—Maxine Johnston, Doxology.
- Invocation by the pastor, Gloria.

Benediction

The Sunday School will convene at the regular hour, 9:45 a. m. We trust that we may maintain as good or better attendance during the summer months than we have during the spring. Young people will be coming home from College to help swell the ranks. A number of our teachers have been attending the Standard Training School at the Methodist church this week. They have been gaining information and inspiration, and should help to make our school much more efficient in the future.

The biggest asset to any church is the Vacation Church School. Our school begins Monday morning, June 4, at 9 a. m. We want children from 4 to 14 years of age. There will be three departments with superintendents and helpers. The beginners with Mrs. M. C. Bays and helpers; the primary with Mrs. Stewart and helpers; and the juniors and intermediates with Mrs. James Horton and helpers. The pastor will be the general superintendent, and will have charge of the manual training assisted by Mr. Gay Quirk and some scouts. This school will continue two weeks each day except Saturday. The hours will be 9-11. If interested ask about it.

WILL BE "PRINCESS"

By Associated Press
CANYON, Texas, Miss Grace Ferguson will be "Miss West Texas State Teachers College" at the Tenth annual convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. She will be one of a number of college sponsors selected by educational institutions in the territory of the regional chamber.

Eagle Pass—Southern Pacific is building a new station here.

Baptist Church

W. T. TURNER, Pastor

"Good Seeking for a Man," will be the theme of the sermon at 11 a. m. by Pastor W. T. Turner.

"The Goodness of God Calling Men to Repentance," will be the theme of the message at 8 p. m. Mr. Roy Camp will sing at both services.

The revival meeting now in progress will continue through Sunday and the coming week.

The first week of the revival has been marked by a good attendance, a deepening spiritual interest, and a fine spirit of cooperation. We urge all who have not been attending to come with us.

The Sunday School will meet at 9:30 a. m., Ed Cox, superintendent. The B. Y. P. U. will meet at 6:30 p. m.

Mrs. Turner's Bible story for boys and girls will be given from 7:30 to 8:00 p. m.

Sunday night's service will be held out-of-doors on the lot in the rear of the church.

Right or Wrong

Go slow with the man who rushes in after a few minutes conversation and thrusts an insurance policy into your hand saying: "Here's the policy you want."

He may be sincere—but that's not the way for you to buy sure insurance—nor for him to sell it. Take your time—get the insurance that gives you protection.

We find out your needs—then fit the insurance to meet them.

Little Ohio Girl Who Was Slain After Being Stolen from Home

Here is Dorothy Selogoski, 7, of Toledo, O., who was dragged from her bed by a nocturnal intruder, kidnapped, murdered, and her body thrown on her grandfather's porch. The girl was choked to death with a pair of bloomers which the slayer removed from her body and knotted around her neck. A chauffeur who formerly roomed at the home of the little girl's parents made a written confession of the crime, but later plead not guilty when arraigned in court.

LAS VEGAS, June 1.—A handsomely carved saddle valued at $225, is being given by some of Las Vegas' most progressive merchants to the best all around cowboy at the Fourteenth Annual Cowboys' Reunion on July 3, 4 and 5.

This saddle is being made by Jeff Gates, for the waddle, who has the most points on the five all around cowboy events. These events will include bronc riding, calf roping, wild cow milking, range relay race and pack racing.

A possible twenty-five points can be made. The winner of the first money for each event automatically receives five points to his credit. Winners of second place get three points and the boys who come third receive one point.

These events in which the best all-around cowboy is expected to enter are those common to all ranges. They are contests in which practically every cowboy takes part and which will eliminate few if any waddies from participating.

Mysterious Car Is Viewed By Throngs

The mysterious Chevrolet, which was on display at the Oilbelt Motor Company's headquarters on West Commerce Street Thursday, Friday and Saturday, proved to be a great attraction and was seen and heard by thousands of people each day. Many were unwilling to believe that the car could talk, put on vaudeville stunts, sound its horn, answer questions, sing, etc., but they went away convinced after having seen it with their own eyes and heard it with their own ears.

W. L. Morgan, manager of Oilbelt Motor Company, was well pleased with the performance put on by the "Mystery Chevrolet."

Congratulating Messrs. Murray and Associates upon acquiring ownership and control of our daily newspaper and wishing them success in their new enterprise

HOW CHARLIE CHAPLIN CHOSE SCREEN FIGURE

Charlie Chaplin, in "The Circus" at the Connellee Theatre, plays a tramp, a character which is but another phase of Chaplin's concept of man. To his friend, Thomas Burke, English novelist, the star of "The Circus" told the genesis of his own concept of a screen character, the be-caned, be-moustached, be-derbed Charlie Chaplin, with a laugh in either huge foot.

Big Communication Merger Is Rumored

NEW YORK, June 2.—Report of a merger creating the biggest communicating system in the world sent stocks of the Radio Corporation of America and the International Telephone and Telegraph company to new high levels today.

Although word was current in Wall Street that the transmission facilities of Radio Corporation would be purchased by Int. T. & T. it was not officially confirmed but the feeling that it was true was reflected in the stock exchange.

Should the merger deal go through, it would have tremendous ramifications in the communication world. According to the plan as it was being discussed in Wall Street, the International T. & T. would take over from Radio Corporation of America merely its commercial communication facilities, leaving the latter free to develop its broadcasting and manufacturing activities, including the rumored hook-up with the Victor Talking Machine Company, whereby Radio Corporation would have access to Victor artists.

Misses Dorothy Elder, and Jessie Mae Griffin, pianists, Dorothy Leavell, contralto and Dorothy Chaney, violinist, will be presented.

Misses Grace Bucher, Sylvia Naylor, pianists, assisted by Edith Kelsay, soprano, will appear in public recital, Wednesday, June 8. The faculty of the school of fine arts will give a concert the evening of Saturday, June 9. The department of art will have students' work on exhibition during the weeks of May 28 to June 11.
