singing. Then the Rev. Homer Haislip, First Christian pastor asked God's blessing upon the occasion, and particularly upon the young men who "volunteered because they love America."

"Boys, we're proud of you," declared Judge Cecil C. Collins in a brief talk. "At a time when men are needed you didn't wait for the nation to say 'Come,' but you stepped forward and said, 'Here am I.'"

Alluding to the uncertainty of the times, Judge Collins said the fact that not only six but 16 young men had volunteered instead of the board being forced to call anyone tended to "give us certainty where there was uncertainty" and "convinced that that which made America great still exists in you."

Murray Turns Down Chance To Head CIO

Vice President Had Been Only Man Talked For Job

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 19 (AP)—Philip Murray, Pittsburgh labor leader, told the Congress of Industrial Organizations' convention today that he was not a candidate to succeed John L. Lewis as CIO chief.

"I am not a candidate for president of the CIO. That decision has been reached by me," Murray had been the only man talked over for the day as successor to John L. Lewis, but there were increasing reports that he would be reluctant to assume the CIO presidency if the convention failed to take a stand against communism, or signify its willingness to reopen unity negotiations with the A. F. of L.

Some of Murray's close friends said he might be sold on becoming a candidate by a strong movement for him in the convention, but others said they thought he would not be induced to become a candidate under any circumstances.

Murray is reported to be strongly in favor of CIO adopting an outright stand against communism, and his friends said he was reluctant to even consider himself for the CIO presidency unless the convention took such action.

Murray's announcement came in the midst of convention consideration of Lewis' policies. He expressed hope the convention would work in harmony to elect the Lewis report of his stewardship during the past year.

Murray said he disapproved of Lewis' position in the presidential campaign, in which Lewis backed Wendell L. Willkie and Murray supported President Roosevelt.

Minister Says Success Will Not Last Long

Little Country Needs Planes And Other Assistance

ATHENS, Nov. 19 (AP)—Greece appealed to the "free countries" of the world today to help her in her war against Italy, with the declaration by Theo Nicoloudis, press minister, that they should not be misled by current Greek successes in the field.

He appealed especially to Britain and the United States, in a talk with foreign newspaper correspondents, to send the greatest possible number of planes, and compared Greece's present situation with that of Finland in the struggle with Russia a year ago.

Nicoloudis spoke as Italian troops were reported moving slowly out of Koriza after two weeks of Greek battering against the fortified Albanian city.

"We won't make the same mistake as heroic Finland which, content with her first successes, failed to ask for help from abroad," Nicoloudis said.

"Despite our epic victories, despite our unshakable faith in our cause which is blessed by God, we appeal with all our force to public opinion of our allies and of foreigners while there is still time so that aerial support given Greece may be extended without delay."

The Greeks, he continued, are fighting an enemy six times greater in war materials. In the Koriza area, he declared, the Italians are using 400 planes.

(Reuters, British news agency, in a dispatch from Belgrade said the city of Koriza fell to Greek mountain troops at 1 a. m. today.

Greek military sources, however, made no immediate claim of capturing the strategic crossroads city 10 miles inside Albania, but a government spokesman declared last night that fascist defenders in the Koriza sector had given up counter attacks and called upon their draw bombers to cover their withdrawal to positions farther back.

Even this, it was reported, failed because of counter action by Greek and British warplanes in which, the Greek high command said today, nine Italian planes were shot down, to two Greek planes lost.

DOWNTOWN STROLLER

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Howie were downtown dining with their daughter, Molly Ann, recently and made a good-looking trio. That Molly Ann is one of the cutest youngsters you will see in a long time.

Averil McClain is wearing a red, blue and grey plaid coat that really is pleasing to the eye. It is wooly and warm looking and makes a bright spot of color to see.

Marjory Whitaker and Jeannette Barnett, two chums, were out and about the other evening. They make a good pair, both being so tall and slender and dignified.

A good one we heard of from Mrs. Gordon Phillips, who is now in the hospital recovering from an operation, is that she and the nurses have two different ideas. Mrs. Phillips says she wants to see her friends and the nurses say "no" and it ends up sort of a hide and seek game with Mrs. P. sometimes winning. She can see visitors but not as many as she likes.

Sammy Allen of Brownwood is visiting Marvin House, Jr., for a few days and they hope in and out of the Herald office breathing a college atmosphere in the air.

Dr. M. H. Bennett was eating downtown the other noon and stopped to rib us about the line in the paper saying "when Dr. Bennett appeared, the horse ran." With him getting such a kick out of it, we laughed too.

Harley Sadler was in the office to get things lined up before his performance tonight and tomorrow. That is one man that West Texans really love and no matter what it is he's selling, they always are ready to take a little of it. He has more friends in this section than a lot of the old-time residents.

Children's Shoes Are Important During The Formative Years

Says Mrs. Green of Parents Magazine:

It's no trick to know whether your children's clothes fit them properly. If they are too big or too small they simply do not look well and you immediately do something about it. But, what about their shoes? Can you tell, just by looking at their feet, whether their shoes are fitted properly, or whether the shoes you bought several months before are still the correct size? Unfortunately there is seldom a warning discomfort to the child until the incorrectly fitted or outgrown shoes have had time to do much of their damage. Just as you take the children to the dentist for regular check-ups, so should waiting for toothaches, so should

INSTEP PAIN
If your child complains of pain in the instep, it is probably due to a badly fitted or poorly made shoe. The best thing to do is to use a responsible pediculator or doctor. In all probability you discover that the pain was caused by a weak arch condition where the muscles and ligaments were under a strain. Your doctor will recommend the best type of shoe or remedial measure for the child's feet.

This Is The Life! Spiral Puttees, Choker Collar Gone With Other 1917-'18 Ordeals

This is the second of a series of stories about the life you destined will live in army camps.

By MORGAN M. BEATY
AF Feature Service Writer
WASHINGTON—There's a word for the new citizen army uniform.

"Spunk!"
The uniform will try to improve on the army tradition of making a soldier's garb easy on the eyes of fair maidens and dotting mothers. And this time, they're trying to make Mr. Buck Private more comfortable, too.

The most welcome difference between 1918 and now will be the blouse collar. Coat to you, civilian. Reason? The standing choker-type collar of World war days was the devil's own plague to army tailors. If the choker fit, the shoulder didn't. If the shoulder fit, the back wrinkled like a wash-tub rubadub.

So a regular turned-down coat collar like yours and mine is the style. Coat pleats make the arm swing free. The soft-collared wool shirt and conventional black tie are staying.

Those blankety-blank britches that laced up tight around the knees and the endless roll-puttees are out. One reason, few manufacturers can make them. Another, there's little military common sense in 'em. Regular trousers without cuffs are in. Canvas leggings tucked in the legs in wet going.

Winter uniforms are of wool. Cotton shirts and shorts in the South, long handled underwear and caps with ear muffs in extremely cold areas. 55¢ short mackaws in the South, long overcoats up North. Shoes: standard army flat, high-top tan lace-ups.

But, Mon, P. S., pack your son's own shaving kit, two changes of underwear and make him take his overcoat for the trip to camp. He'll need 'em before he gets army clothing. The standard safety razor kit won't be issued, either, before he actually goes in the barracks. And some pocket change, too. He may not get that 30 bucks a month for 30 days.

TOMORROW: Provisions for spending leisure time.

Destroyer Under Construction Is Damaged By Fire

BOSTON, Nov. 19. (AP)—A midnight fire aboard the half-completed destroyer Gwynn at the Boston navy yard—second fire at the yard in three days—was investigated by navy officials.

They gave no estimate of the fire's damage, but city firemen said it was slight. Cause of the blaze, which sent smoke swirling around the after stack, was not disclosed. It was quenched in about half an hour.

Candidate Wastes Gift On Opponent

FALL RIVER, Mass., Nov. 19. (AP)—Dr. Owen L. Eagan, a candidate for mayor, announced that six turkeys would be awarded to holders of lucky tickets at a rally he was conducting.

The first winner smiled, took his turkey and walked out. The winner was Louis Morin, one of Dr. Eagan's opponents.

Navy Rushes Work On Defense Bases

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19. (AP)—The navy plans to rush construction, informed persons said today, on a $60,000,000 chain of bases for the sites acquired from Britain in the western hemisphere.

There also were indications that United States naval tenders might move into some of the newly-acquired anchorages immediately and provide temporary base facilities for American submarines and seaplanes guarding the Atlantic and Caribbean approaches to the vital Panama Canal area.

The way to a general start of construction and partial occupancy of some bases appeared cleared by the navy's announcement last night that "all the British authorities concerned" had agreed upon sites to be leased by this government in Bermuda, the Bahamas, Jamaica, Antigua, St. Lucia, British Guiana and Newfoundland.

Only at Trinidad, the southern "anchor" of the chain, were arrangements still incomplete. The base rights in both Newfoundland and Bermuda were given to the United States by Great Britain without compensation. The other six sites, under a 99-year lease, were obtained in the historic international "swap" involving 50 American destroyers.

American surveying parties already are at work in Newfoundland, northern "anchor" of the new chain, where a major defense post is planned.

These facilities at Newfoundland, off the coast of Canada, would put shore-based warships and planes on the flank of any enemy fleet which attempted to attack this country from the North Atlantic without first reducing that stronghold.

Another disclosure made in last night's announcement was that military aircraft of both the United States and Great Britain would have joint use of airfields established by both governments.

Speaker Points To Unemployment Danger Following Armament

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 19. (AP)—Loss of jobs by perhaps 5,000,000 men when this country returns to a peace economy was predicted today by Federal Housing Administrator Nathan Straus.

Plans to prevent such wholesale unemployment, Straus said in an address prepared for delivery at the American Federation of Labor convention, should include a public housing program of about 500,000 homes a year at the end of the defense emergency.

"I am not speaking of something theoretical or even problematical," said Straus in suggesting that in preparing against war this country should also prepare for peace. "I am speaking of an event which is as certain as death or taxes."

Straus said he cannot share the "optimism" of those thinking unemployment will be permanently cured by expansion of defense industries.

"The armament program will not in the long run solve the problem of technological unemployment," he added. "On the contrary, the defense program will, through sad necessity, in the long run aggravate and double the problem unless we can plan and act now."

Straus and Chairman Arthur J. Altmeyer of the social security board were two government spokes-

SMU Battles Fordham Rams This Weekend

By the Associated Press
Arkansas' towering Razorbacks, finding little to be happy about in their own ballclub, were on the way to New York today to try their luck against the Fordham Rams.

They are the only gridgers from the Southwest conference to play outside the circuit this week. The other six conference squads were hard at work, four of them for some immediate business and the other two—Texas A. and M. and the University of Texas—getting themselves into a frenzy for their traditional battle at Austin next week.

This week finds all the squads in good shape. Arkansas had only one sprained ankle, that belonging to Sophomore Fullback Jay Lawhorn.

The Aggies rested yesterday but Texas didn't take any time off from the hard work.

Texas Christian university goes to Houston to battle the Rice Owls.

Southern Methodist university, aiming at second place and a possible bid for the Cotton Bowl game—in the event the Aggies go to the Rose Bowl or some other post-season classic—play the Baylor Bears at Waco.

More Twelve Man Football Is Scheduled

ABILENE, Nov. 19 (AP)—Here's a nice opening for some young fellow who wants to play football but doesn't have the avoirdupois and stamina for withstanding those jarring tackles and blocks.

Oklahoma City University and McMurtry College of Abilene play at Oklahoma City Nov. 28. The 12-man idea will again be carried out but this time the coaches won't call the signals as was the case when Oklahoma City U. met St. Mary's at San Antonio recently.

Instead each team will use a twelfth man, who will call the plays but retire from the immediate scene of action when the ball is snapped.

It was the idea of Coach Oase Doenges, who evolved the 12-man coach-calling-the-signals plan.

Yesterday Doenges contacted Dale Morrison, McMurtry coach and suggested that they vary the program by use of a regular member of each squad for all the brain work.

Larger Oil Demand In U. S. Forecast

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP)—The bureau of mines today forecast the December market demand for domestic crude oil at 3,560,000 barrels daily or a total of 110,380,000 for the month.

This was 10,000 barrels a day higher than the November forecast and 10,000 more than the daily average demand last December.

Officials estimated crude oil exports at $900,000 barrels, the same as for November.

They said domestic demand for motor fuel likely would reach 46,400,000 barrels during December. This would be 6 per cent more than the total demand in December, 1939. Exports will be about 1,850,000 barrels, they said, or 10,000 higher than the November estimate but 1,300,000 less than a year ago.

The Big Spring Daily Herald

Big Spring, Texas, Tuesday, Nov. 19, 1940 PAGE FOUR

NO. 77 HONORS 'EM HOW—Red Grange's old number, 77, is being worn in honorable fashion these days by Tennessee's Box Foss. During his three years at Tennessee, Foss has averaged almost seven yards each time he has carried the ball; his punts average around 40 yards and that includes those out-of-bound punts in the coffin corner; he's a better than average passer, a good blocker, a good pass receiver, and one of the best defensive backs in southern football.

Experts Place A & M Second

NEW YORK, Nov. 19 (AP)—While some football authorities have advocated the abolition of the point after touchdown on the ground that it gives false indications of the strength of teams, one point still seems to carry a lot of weight when it comes to ranking the nation's leading teams.

Minnesota, on top of the list for the second straight week as 169 sports experts rank the teams, has

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By EDDIE BRIETZ
LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 19 (AP)—Jimmy Wilson made the Cubs lay plenty on the line and don't let anybody kid you. He was getting ten grand for coaching the Reds, and no managerial worries. Our neighbors over in Indiana are crying right out loud because their three big football teams—Indiana, Notre Dame and Purdue—went into a tailspin on the same day for the first time in many a year. A formal announcement says Max Baer will open in New Haven in "HiYa Gentlemen" on Thanksgiving Day—but it neglects to say which Thanksgiving Day.

Memory Dept.
Just in case you're wondering the conductor of this bureau of information is down here sitting in on the annual gabfest of managing editors of Associated Press newspapers from all over the country.

You don't hear much about them but they're the boys who really make your newspaper tick. We recall this slick city with mingled grief and pain. It was here that we bounced for the first time in our more or less exciting newspaper career. The old Evening Post (since deceased) gave us the heave-ho on a cold winter morning in December, 1917. We got in the Salvation Army bread line. But just as we got second from the front, damned if the grub didn't run out. But it's still Louisville, slick as ever, with just as many pretty dolls and just as many fast ponies—only sometimes they run the wrong way.

Success Time.
The Southwest Conference coaches can take a holiday. For those mighty Texas Aggies Ain't scheduled Saturday.

Sports Cocktail.
Well, it seems Carl Snively leading exponent of football moves, was beaten by same Saturday. Three of Al Davis' bodyguards who tried to slug a couple of sports writers after the Zivig fight, got the works from Johnny Broderick, two-fisted detective ace.

Looking 'em Over

With Jack Douglas

This business of admittance of Texas Tech to the Southwest football conference appears to be something of a touch subject but is one that arises at the close of every successful year by the Red Raiders.

Various reasons have been given for holding to both sides of the question. Some are bona fide, others smack of plain malarkey. One of the most commonly heard arguments on the subject has been given the hush-hush in semi-official discussions—namely, the contention that some of the schools in the precinct are not favorably inclined toward some of those connected with Tech.

For one thing the conference is full. Southwest schools have a schedule that has been carefully mapped out to pit teams in games that are most convenient for all competitors. In addition to these intra-loop tilts, each school has found it to its own best interests to match several inter-sectional games. With a schedule such as this, there is very little chance for members of the league to take on another entry.

Texas A. and M., Southern Methodist, Rice, Baylor, Texas University, Arkansas, and Texas Christian would find it difficult to work in another school on their lists without cutting down on their visits to foreign fields, a custom that is practically necessary for a school that wants to make a showing in the national gridiron picture.

Another reason for the Southwest conference's reluctance about expansion is based on distances. Except for Arkansas, all circuit members are comparatively close to each other. The case of Arkansas has been unofficially discussed at times but no definite attempt has ever been made to make the league a strictly Texas set-up.

If Arkansas ever withdraws from Southwest competition, there is a possibility that Tech would be asked to fill the vacancy, although such a step would be doubtful, due to the over-crowded situation that is now present. But, an Arkansas withdrawal is rather unlikely.

And now for the taboo angle. Texas Tech plays a hard game of football. It plays to win and it takes a hard-hitting crew to do so. There has been some question raised as to how coaches feel about Tech's brand of ball, and these is an indication that the coaches have not seriously looked upon Tech's method of play as of vital importance.

Of course, Tech turns in a pleating performance in the majority of cases, but, after all, Southwest teams don't exactly make their afternoon sessions pink teas. Every coach puts his team on the gridiron to win, realizing that in order to do so there must be a bit of give-and-take. In that respect there is no difference between Texas Tech and any tribe of gridsters in the Southwest ballclub. So, the contention that Southwest schools are somewhat timid about competing with Tech seems to be, from this side of the stand, a mighty weak argument.

Losing Three Games -- Westbrook Captures Laurels In Scrambled Six-Man Loop

Westbrook's six-man footballers, defending champions from last year, retained their title as district 12 leaders after a season's close that saw them trampled 91 to 0 by Garner a week ago and 32 to 12 by Coahoma's sextet last Friday, tied for second place with four losses each were Forsan and Garner.

Westbrook lost a total of three games out of ten in the season, dropping at 32 to 33 district opener to Forsan on penetrations. From that time on until the massacre by Garner, Westbrook bowled over opposition without too much trouble.

Westbrook's windup let-down might have been partially caused by the loss of its star back, Frank Oglesby, because of injuries received in a game with Forsan a week before the upset by Garner.

Except for the two final games played, Westbrook left little doubt as to its power. One of the heaviest aggregations in the loop and possessor of experienced material, Westbrook took most of its games with impressive scores. Coach Herman Parsons' gridgers had a streak of hard luck in their final battles, but, for the season's record, copped the pennant in a convincing manner.

Crowding Westbrook for the top spot, Forsan and Garner made it a scramble up to the last game. Last Friday Forsan overcame Garner to hold a two-way deadlock.

Forsan was vanquished by Westbrook, Courtney, Garner and Coahoma. Garner, getting off to a slow start, made it a uphill fight throughout and was vanquished by Westbrook in a return engagement at Coahoma. Forsan and Sterling City.

Garden City moved into third place with a string of five wins. Although Big Spring high school's Steers are considered favorites in their gridiron joust with Sweetwater's Mustangs, defending district 3-AA titleholders, in Sweetwater's bowl on Thanksgiving Day, they will be meeting a crew that has gained a reputation for making last minute comebacks. Such was the case last year when the Herd was trampled under Ponies' hooves by the score of 26 to 7.

A muddy field will be likely to throw Big Spring's running attack, its most potent department, for something of a loss. Last year the Steers were unable to get going full steam because of a summy field, this condition contributing to their defeat by the Mustangs. Lefty Bethell, the Herd's booting artist last year, was able then to keep the tallies against Big Spring within reason with a series of long-range shots.

Sweetwater has been beaten, 14 to 7, by Midland and by Odessa, 26 to 6, during the current rounds. In addition to these losses, the Mustangs were barely able to scrape by Lamesa, with a 13 to 7 score. Judging from the record, Big Spring has considerable advantage over Sweetwater, the Big Springers having out-battled Midland, 6 to 0, tied with Odessa, and noted to Lamesa, 10 to 0.

Sweetwater is not as well supplied with reserve strength as it was last fall. In 1939 this extra material played a large part in Sweetwater's triumph over the Longhorn. Big Spring is not exactly gluttoned with and five losses. Courtney, Water Valley, Coahoma and Sterling City all batted 400 to make it a tie for cellar position.

Garden City was rolled up by Westbrook, Garner, Forsan, Sterling City and Water Valley. Courtney was forced to bow to Garden City twice, and once each to Sterling City, Water Valley, Westbrook and Garner. Water Valley's list of defeats was made in games with Sterling City, Garden City, Courtney, Forsan, Westbrook and Garner. Coahoma was nose-dumped by Westbrook, Water Valley, Forsan, Garden City, Sterling City and Garner. Sterling City was given the hatchet by Westbrook, Forsan, Courtney, Garden City, Water Valley and Coahoma.

Tonight at 7:30 in the Settles Hotel, the executive committee for district 12 six-man football will meet to formally declare the district champion. Also, the group is slated to pick the all-district team.

Kenneth Cowley of Forsan, Earl Baker of Garden City, Frank Oglesby of Westbrook, Max Graham of Courtney, Garner's Chapman and Sterling City's Broome are leading candidates for back positions. Far ahead in the field is Oglesby, a pounding, elusive runner and a heads-up defensive man. It was Oglesby who led Westbrook through a string of wins that allowed the 1939 champs a repeat for the title. Hurt in the Westbrook-Forsan roundelay, Oglesby's worth was well indicated by the showing made by Westbrook in the last two engagements of the season.

Other ball-carriers in the loop failed to come up to Oglesby's standing but bordered close to the ground-covering ace. Cowley, a rangy power-house, hammered Forsan's opponents unmercifully throughout the season. Although he was not as quick a defensive man as others in the league, Cowley's jarring offensive play makes him an outstanding bidder for district honors.

Baker and Chapman were two of the most consistent performers during the season, both sparking their clubs with a maximum of dive and slashing tactics. Of the two, the Garnerite perhaps would take the nod for being the outstanding hurler in the league, having thrown many a ball by the overhead route during the season without having one intercepted. Chapman's remarkable accuracy in calling his shots places him as one of the loop's top-rankers.

The Garden City back was probably the most consistent all-around performer in the loop. Baker's offensive and defensive maneuverings made him a standout in practically every joust Garden City had.

M. Graham and Broome made strong bids for honors but had the misfortune of being on teams that were rated weak in the district.

There can be little doubt as to the top man for all-district center. Garner's Daugherty was a stellar performer in every game in which he was involved. Quick and accurate on the snap-back and a smashing defensive man, Daugherty contributed a great deal to Garner's final standing. This particular pivot man had the unique habit of passing the ball to a hauler, going down on a flip, and then putting the finishing touch on the play by receiving the ball and racing across for tally.

End positions offer more of a puzzle, but in a district that did not particularly feature wingmen Ellis Daves of Garden City was perhaps the most prominent. The scramble for the other wing berth was a toss-up between Sterling City's Abernathy and Forsan's Smith.

Todd Leads Scoring In Professional Loop

CHICAGO, Nov. 19 (AP)—Little Richard Todd, 165-pound speedster formerly of the Texas Aggies, is leading the individual scoring race of the National Football League, having contributed eight touchdowns to the Washington title fight.

The Washington Redskins star added his eighth touchdown last Sunday against the Chicago Bears, giving him a total of 48 points, four more than Cleveland's Johnny Drake in second place.

Conference Called In Vultee Strike

DOWNEY, Calif., Nov. 19 (AP)—A conference between union leaders, aircraft executives and government representatives, in an attempt to end the strike at the Vultee airplane factory, was recessed at 6 a. m. today—17 hours after it started.

There was no indication what progress, if any, had been made toward reopening the plant, closed now five days.

More than 5,000 Vultee employes were thrown into idleness and work on military aircraft was halted when the United Automobile Workers struck Friday for a 25-cent-an-hour increase in the basic wage scale of 50 cents an hour.

Commons Reminded On Invasion Danger

LONDON, Nov. 19 (AP)—Sir Edward Grigg, war office undersecretary, warned the house of commons today the Germans might attempt to invade Britain "at any time, particularly since their triumphs are beginning to look a little tarnished."

A large part of the Nazi army, he declared, still "stands marshaled behind invasion ports."

Ernest Bevin, minister of labor, told commons the "demands of the armed forces for men are already becoming so great that it is manifest that women must be employed in all forms of production in ever increasing numbers."

Greenland was named by the Norwegian navigator, Eric the Red.

Cornell Admits Indians Won Disputed Game

NEW YORK, Nov. 19 (AP)—Although Cornell and Dartmouth, with the co-operation of Referee Red Friesell, seem to have worked out a satisfactory solution to their "fifth down" mixup, the whole affair seems to offer a good argument in favor of making the "Try" League an official organization.

When pictures of the disputed play on which Cornell scored its touchdown last Saturday finally were developed, they revealed Cornell had been given five downs in the series. Officials' reports proved there had been no double offense called, and Friesell promptly admitted he had been in error and telegraphed his apologies to all concerned.

James Lynch, Cornell athletic director, wired William H. McCarter of Dartmouth that Cornell relinquished its claim to victory and McCarter accepted the offer. So both sides will regard it hereafter as a 3-0 triumph for the underdog Dartmouth team and the end of Cornell's string of 18 games without defeat.

The confusion surrounding the game, however, indicated the need of some sort of organization which would have jurisdiction over such cases. Where organized conferences exist, such an affair would be referred to conference authorities for decision. There's no major conference in the east, however, and if Cornell had been disposed to argue about the play, the doubt might have lasted indefinitely.

Colorado City Near District Championship

COLORADO CITY, Nov. 19 (Sp) John L. Dibrell's Colorado City Wolves, slated for the 6-A championship since their spectacular last-minute defeat of the Rotan Yellowhammers on Armistice Day, have been training intensively to avert any possible slip-up in their game with the Snyder Tigers here Thursday afternoon.

Victory in the game will mean that the Wolves will play the winner of the Brownfield-Oilton 5-A game for bi-district honors.

Although the Wolves have been undefeated in conference play this season, and unscathed upon except for the Rotan game, and although Snyder has been one of the trailers in the district, local dopsters agree that the outcome of a Tiger-Wolf battle is always unpredictable and very often surprising.

Royce Smith will captain the Wolves for the game.

Tame Deer Runs Away During Wrong Season

PITTSBURG, N. H., Nov. 19 (AP) Hunters hereabouts are requested to shoot before they shoot—so that if they come across an escaped tame deer named Simon Legree it will have a chance to walk up and "shake hands."

Frank Baldwin, Simon's owner, made the request. He said the deer had been trained to that, upon hearing his name shouted, it would advance and extend its right forefoot in friendly greeting.

DRAFTEE Peter Plink's spending a lot of time these days brushing up on that old song, "You're In The Army Now." It's a good idea except for one small catch—he won't really be in the army right away. There are two stops en route.

WHEN PETER'S "M" DAY comes, he'll entrain for a "reception center"—a sort of prep school where the first easy doses of toughening up are administered. There'll be vaccinations, all sorts of basic training, and many, many questions.

EVENTUALLY he will be classified—tabbed as suited for firing a machine gun or blowing a bugle. If there are vacancies he'll be sent to training camp. If not he'll check in temporarily at a "replacement center"—the army's personnel reservoir.

THE TRAINING CAMP—when Peter finally arrives—will be the real McCoy. He'll be expected to become a specialist in his branch of the service. And he can sing "You're In The Army Now," and really mean it and understand it.

For A United Labor

It is conceivable that a new era for organized labor will result from the retirement of John L. Lewis as president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations. The big man, who has been virtual dictator over a great cross section of American labor for several years, announced Monday that he was stepping down, in keeping with his announcement during the political campaign.

While his supporters will tell you that John L. Lewis, more than any man, is due credit for the resurgence of strength of American organized labor, many a neutral observer also will point out that Lewis' methods have done much to hamper labor's cause, particularly in the minds of the public.

The schism between the CIO and the American Federation of Labor has been a damaging one. And Lewis is the man who, more than any other, has prevented a healing of the breach. It is highly probable that a new and more conservative head of the CIO can work with AFL leaders in such manner as to effect a compromise merger. Certainly all divisions of labor stand to benefit if the consolidation can be effected.

The theory of organization of the two divisions is at cross purposes; AFL favoring craft or "horizontal" unionism, and the CIO following the "vertical" or company-integrated method. This basic difference, however, need not stand in the way of a general merging of forces so that all Organized Labor can be represented in the same executive departments.

The charges that CIO is beset with communistic influences and filled with other radical "isms" remain, generally speaking, to be established by proof. It is true, however, that the younger union has been more radical than the AFL, and has gone to drastic methods to win its goals. The many instances of intra-organization friction are evidence that the CIO has yet to be shaped into a mature, worthwhile and beneficial organization to its labor members.

It is to be hoped that the maturing process can be achieved under a new set of leaders, and that the good forces of the CIO can be merged with those of the AFL. Labor will be better off for it, as will all the nation.

Washington Daybook

WASHINGTON—Will Greece fall to the axis? Will Lincoln MacVeagh, United States envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the land of Homer and Socrates, become another minister without a country?

If those questions are answered in the affirmative, then Lincoln MacVeagh will grieve deeply indeed. No representative of the United States has more thoroughly and wholeheartedly adopted any country than MacVeagh has adopted Greece.

For seven years, this quiet, scholarly New Englander has been our chief diplomat in the shadow of the Acropolis. His love and knowledge of Greece, however, date much farther back than that—at least 30 years back when as a student at Harvard, he became engrossed in the Greek classics.

KNOWS EVERY VILLAGE

Long before he was appointed to his post, MacVeagh knew his Greece from Crete to Macedonia. Since then, he has traveled over almost every foot of it, going by donkey over the rough mountain trails and on walking tours through the less rugged sections. There is a story in Greece that there is not a town or village in the country where MacVeagh has not stayed the night. There is a saying that even the Greeks go to MacVeagh for out-of-the-way information about their country.

When MacVeagh looks up at the Acropolis, he sees not the ruins that are familiar to almost every schoolboy, but the majestic marble beauty of the temple which was the inspiration of Pericles and adorned by Phidias, one of the greatest of the immortals among the sculptors. He knows every catastrophe that befell the temple down through the ages to bring it to its present tragic state.

When MacVeagh stands on the hills above

Marathon, he hears Miltiades haranguing the Athenian generals and inspiring them to that battle fervor that made it possible for a handful of Greek warriors to drive into the sea a Persian host which outnumbered them ten to one and to write into history the first great battle which changed the course of the world.

When MacVeagh, seven years ago, presented his credentials to the government, he spoke up in informal but perfect modern Greek.

That, say friends here, is how our envoy and minister to the latest country to hear the roar of axis guns knows his Greece.

WORLD WAR MAJOR

Lincoln MacVeagh was born 50 years ago in Narragansett Pier, R. I. He attended both Groton and Harvard and in those years became acquainted with the Roosevelt family. He attended the Sorbonne in Paris for a year and went into the army, rising to the rank of major during the World war and being cited for courage under fire.

When he came back to the United States, he entered the publishing business in New York and after a brief period with a publishing firm struck out for himself in the MacVeagh Publishing Co., a company known in the trade and out for good bindings and fine printing.

During this time, MacVeagh lived in Connecticut and commuted. Friends recall that he always carried a copy of Homer in the original in his pocket to read during hours on the train. After his appointment in 1933, MacVeagh became best known at the state department for the humor and wit he would get into his dispatches. The files are full of them. But of late, his messages and reports have been entirely lacking in witticisms.

If Greece goes, Lincoln MacVeagh will be, at least, a man without an adopted country.

Man About Manhattan

NEW YORK—Pipe smoking is frowned upon in a majority of New York's hotel dining rooms, night clubs, and restaurants. . . . But occasionally some calloused bird will give way to the urge and build a comforting smoke in his briar. . . . We mention this because one night last July we were in Leon & Eddie's and did just that. . . . And then we walked out, some time later, and left the pipe on the table. For some reason it wasn't until last night that we got back around to seeing Leon and Eddie. . . . First thing Leon said was, "It's upstairs on my desk." Just as if we'd left it there only five minutes before.

At the Waldorf the other night, during intermission, Kay Kyser walked over to the pianist of the orchestra that was playing the "fill-in" period, and said, "My pianist is helping out over in the Bert Room tonight. Could you keep on playing until he gets back?" The fellow agreed. What had happened was this: Carol Bruce, who was supposed to sing that evening in the Bert Room, had been prohibited from appearing because of contract trouble. . . . At the zero hour the management hurried in and asked Kyser if Ginny Simms could fill in for her. . . . Ginny wanted Kay's regular pianist.

Ginny looked mighty fetching in a candy-stick dress and an old, old bracelet that was her grandmother's. . . . She also wore a little locket that was bent curiously. . . . Close examination revealed several small dents. . . . "I did that when I was a baby," she explained. "I used this locket as a teething-ring."

Five Broadway shows have new lines for their comics. . . . The old ones, based chiefly on pre-election political debates, had to be re-written. . . . We can't tell you what the gags were because ladies and little children are present. . . . Harry Carey postcards that he is going to come east for several months so that he can be around when his kids, a boy 20 and a girl 17, get their starts in the theatre. . . . The old "Trader Horn" has just finished "Shepherd of the Hills." . . . Neatest trick of the decade: The other day we read where Lawrence of Arabia spent three years in a British library and over that period read 20 books a day. . . . "He could tear the heart out of any book in an hour," this author said. . . . We believe every word of it, and we also believe that cows have wings.

Ninety-nine of 100 popular songs are 32 bars in length. Occasionally, some composer oversteps this mark, as Cole Porter did in using 60 bars in which to express "Night and Day." The record has been smashed, however, in a new song called "African Etude," which Bing Crosby will introduce soon in "The Road to Zanzibar." It has 200 bars, or more than six times as many as the average song. It was written by Jimmy Van Heusen and Johnny Burke last week at Palm Springs, where they were the house guests of John Scott Trotter.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

HOLLYWOOD—Mitchell Leisen, once an extra himself, is popular with extras. Some of them, in an informal election, have declared him the "most popular" director.

Here is the reason: When Leisen was an extra, he was forever damed because directors never told him what he was supposed to be, why he was in a picture, what his presence meant to the story. Extras were told to "walk past" or "talk" or "dance"—without any knowledge of the reasons behind orders, without explanation of the situation.

So Leisen treats extras as actors. When they assemble on one of his sets, he takes time to explain exactly what they, as characters in the story, are supposed to contribute.

"They never fail," he reports. "They are actors—why shouldn't they be treated as such?" Leisen has new stature now as director of "Arise My Love," which is traveling well at the box-office and in critical hearts. He has made successful films before, but it has taken him a long time to reach the top—including 12 years he spent as art director under Cecil B. DeMille. This apprenticeship, probably due to Leisen's unquenchable thirst for laughs in a mad business, has not affected his style. The two men's "touches" are as far apart as the blow of a sledge-hammer and the brush of angel's wings.

I would not imply that Leisen is an angel; to the contrary, he is quite a gay devil, with a sophisticated sense of humor that slays pretentiousness and says "Aw, nuts" to high-flown folders.

An architect when DeMille took him on, Leisen's first assignment was to design costumes. He did this successfully enough to win a berth as art director and must have acquired a reputation for DeMille lavishness—when Cecil B. quit production for a world tour, Leisen was left jobless amidst a depression. He'd been getting $750 a week, then a fabulous sum for art directors, and producers scurried away at his approach. Fond of eating, he became an extra until DeMille's return.

Aiming at direction on his own, he assisted on "Tonight Is Ours" and "The Eagle and the Hawk" (1933) before soloing on "Cradle Song" and the successful "Death Takes a Holiday." Then he tried all kinds of pictures, including musicals, to find his favorite. The one he's faking now is different: "I Wanted Wings." It has developed into an "aviation epic."

Leisen believes "Arise My Love" is getting a hand because it's a picture with something to say; with characters who speak up and call "a spade a spade instead of a pink ornament for a manglepiece." It was banned at first by the movie code, but passed when the Colbert-Milland stop-over in Compiègne forest was labeled "innocent."

THE ORCHID DOOR

Chapter 32

Temu opened his eyes in the morning to find Lynn sitting beside him and a Mongol guard at the door. Healthy color had returned to his face. His hands and feet were bound.

"I thought it best," she said, "to make no remonstrance. A man came in bearing a basin of water and a shaving kit."

"I'll fetch your breakfast," Lynn said and left. His quietness had surprised her. But then, he was always surprising her, and she remembered that acceptance is part of the philosophy of the East.

When she returned, he was standing up, looking ruefully at the bonds on his ankles and wrists.

"Now," he said, "I know how a hobbled horse feels."

"Does that mean you will never hobble a horse again?" she asked.

"It means that I will never get into this kind of a predicament again if I can help it. What are you planning to do with me?"

"Hold you prisoner for a while," she had the guard bring in a camp box for Temu to sit on. She stood at his side and fed him cheese and tea and candied persimmons.

He bit her fingers and they were soon laughing together. "I'm helpless, tell me your plans," he coaxed.

"For one thing, I'm going to Delhi."

"So I have always maintained," he jests.

"But I am going of my own free will," she reminded him.

He looked at her with his clear, tea-colored eyes. "So you are, Tara Lynn."

"Chin Pak and I are riding on ahead to find out what luck Dick and the Duke of Sachtö have had."

"I hope it's rotten," he grinned.

"Your hopes don't seem to be coming true lately," she sobered.

"I'll tell you this—if I have my way your Prince shall not be imprisoned. I wonder if he would prefer to live in Paris or America."

Temu spoke sadly. "I surmise he would prefer not to live at all!"

With his cheek, he caught her hand against his shoulder in the only caress he was free to give her. "I love to hear you talk, Tara Lynn. I wish I could put my arms around you."

She met his eyes and some imp of perversity prompted her. "I notice," she said, "that you wait till your hands are bound before you make that statement."

Lynn felt the next instant as if she had ignited a powder keg. With one motion Temu rose, burst the bonds on his wrists, took her in his embrace and covered her face with kisses. At first his violence frightened her. Then, when she had ceased resisting, they clung together for a moment, they opened into paradise. She broke away and ran to the door.

"Lead the prisoners' hands," she directed the guard. "He has broken the cords."

She did not go near his tent again. In half an hour she and Chin Pak were on their way. They arrived in Dorchi that night at dusk.

"Do you know the house where my brother and the Duke were to establish headquarters?" she asked Chin Pak.

"I show you," he said.

The town was a great trading station, with a motor road reaching to Jehin and caravan trails branching out to Tibet, to India, to Sinkiang, to Russia, and across Gobi to the Pacific Ocean. About it were irrigated farms and orchards. The streets of the town hummed with an unusual activity, the hum of holiday or successful revolution.

Magnificence

Chin Pak conducted Lynn to a semi-foreign house inside a walled garden. As Chinese servants met them and bowed low, he disappeared. She ate dinner alone and felt rather lost. The servants could not talk to her or she to them. She looked for Little Bamboo and Ger-sing. Presently, walking through the rooms all elaborately furnished, she spied on a massive rosewood table, a pair of gloves that she had seen Dick wearing. She realized he must have been here recently. A servant brought her a note from Chin Pak.

"We are success as planned. You go palace by morning. Wear Chinese dress. Servants know. I come. Reverence.—Chin Pak."

Lynn interpreted the note as best she could. Tomorrow would tell the tale if she were to have any power against her brother or not. And if not, what a tragedy her coming had brought to Sherdock, to Temu, and the Prince!

Despite firm intentions she woke very late the next morning and was dressed by servants who had feared to disturb her. Donning the Chinese dress was a slow and mad-dening process. After the bath and the painting and the powdering that made her look like an Oriental doll, they would her from armpit to hip in bias folds of strong white silk and covered this with a trouser suit of heliotrope satin. They drew white socks on her feet and wrapped her ankles in neat spirals of apple-green silk. One dressed her hair in the Chinese fashion while another stood ready with a gown of heavy, yellow satin covered with a long, blue, sleeveless mantle embroidered in gold.

She asked at last distractedly for Chin Pak. He appeared as if he had been waiting long for her summons.

"Are you to go with me to Delhi?" she asked.

"Yes, Missie."

"And if I should wish to summon Temu Dorchi, could you have him brought to the capital swiftly?"

"Yes, Missie, I arrange."

The serving woman bowed and giggled. One laid a white cape on Lynn's shoulders, fixed a lily in her hair, a gold disk on her chin and another between her eyes. Someone placed an apple in her hand.

She went down the courtyard where a state automobile stood waiting, yellow silk curtains at the windows of the long, cream-colored limousine.

She asked Chin Pak about the apple.

"A lady-in-waiting take it when you pass the orchid door," he explained gravely.

It didn't make sense to Lynn. "Orchid door! To match my pajamas?"

He looked bewildered and Lynn laughed. She knew she was being silly. But all this robing and ceremony was getting on her nerves. And what was ahead of her? Probably more deadly ceremony. Then a struggle against Dick. Could she curb his greed for gold? Could she do the thing she wished to do? And she remembered Temu Darin's query: "Can you imagine what it means to be loved by a million people with never a thought of criticism?"

Strange Journey

The recollection thrilled and comforted her. Her chin went up. She put her hand to the charm box at her throat; it had brought her through so far.

She rode along in grandeur on a highway lined with merry-makers the whole length of its sixty miles. There appeared no mourning for Sherdock's death, or for the Prince's overthrow.

They climbed steadily towards the mountains. The climate and the scenery enchanted Lynn. Yet under it all, she felt a strange depression as if, against all logic, something told her she had done wrong in opposing her will to Temu's.

As they approached the capital that lay across a wide plain dotted with countless Mongol tents. At the gate-tower the driver slowed the car to a crawl. Firecrackers exploded. Confucian music wailed and keened. Sturdy Mongols craned their necks, hailing the approach of the Goddess.

Footmen opened the car door. A tall Chinese lady with two remarkably long fingernails on her left hand greeted Lynn.

"The Princess Mother! How does she feel about this?" wondered Lynn. The woman's eyes met hers searchingly.

The Princess Mother conducted her down the long reception room to a passage where a lady-in-waiting took the apple which Lynn had carried so faithfully.

"The orchid door, whatever that means," thought Lynn, overcomes for the moment by an apprehensive excitement, half pain, half pleasure. She stepped inside and stood alone trembling in a cool dim, incense-filled room.

Somewhere a rich voice chanted the Jew and haunting melody of an ancient song. An orchestra of violins and great guitars played in the courtyard below the windows.

As the music died, she heard the tinkle of silk, and through the shadows of the room, she saw a tall form garbed in a Chinese costume of rich, dark silk come towards her with the stride of a man.

"Temu!" she gasped, and warm blood leaped to her face.

He bowed, his eyes blank, inscrutable, recalling to her mind that first encounter with him in the house in Pai Shu where a sense of his strange, personal power had so disturbed her.

"Chin Pak said you would be wanting me?"

"But not now!" she cried. "Later, after I have seen Dick and know where I stand."

"I know where you stand. The power here is yours, not your brother's."

"Then Chin Pak has not betrayed us?"

"Chin Pak is faithful to his gods." He stepped closer. "You have made the Princess Mother very happy by coming in Chinese garb." He scrutinized her face, her hands, her hair, her tall and graceful form. Though puzzled, she stood proud before him.

"Do I pass inspection?" she asked ironically.

"The Prince will be pleased, I am sure."

She turned on him swiftly.

"What do you mean?"

"There was no revolution, Lynn. Your brother is on his way to Russia under guard. When he and the Duke of Sachtö arrived at Dorchi, they were captured and dispatched to the north."

Pressure Against Saigon Increases

HONGKONG, Nov. 19. (AP)—A dispatch from French Indo-China to the British-owned China Mail today reported that Japanese warships and transports had appeared off the Saigon river, the approach to Saigon, Indo-China's chief port. This was said to coincide with renewed Japanese pressure for permission to land troops at Saigon.

American Legion Roll Call Slated

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 19. (AP)—The American Legion's annual telegraphic roll call—disclosing the number of members already enrolled for next year—highlights today's program for officers of the Legion's 33 departments in conference at national headquarters here. National Commander Milo J. Warner of Toledo, predicted the number of advance memberships reported would break the record of 601,200 set a year ago. Department commanders give reports of enrollments received by wire from their home states.

How To Torture Worst Enemy

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 19. (AP)—A rising young attorney had some bad moments when his younger brother, after an argument, left in a huff and printed and distributed a batch of cards which said, in effect: "John Q. Blotz, good cheap lawyer. Divorces—$198. Tag fixing—$1.50, etc."
A settlement between the brothers was reached almost immediately, although the terms were not disclosed.

JANET, WEREN'T YOU BEING MODEST IN GIVING ALL THAT CREDIT TO FOLGER'S? AREN'T COFFEE BRANDS REALLY ALL THE SAME?

MOST COFFEES ARE THE SAME. THAT IS, THEY COME FROM THE LOWLANDS. BUT FOLGER'S IS TRULY DIFFERENT.

Folger's has a distinct flavor advantage because it is imported from the Central American mountains where volcanic soil produces a Folger's in flavor. Yet Folger's luxury need not cost you one cent extra. Thousands of women say they can use one-fourth less Folger's and still enjoy the best flavor. Make tomorrow morning an especially good Folger's!

WHOEVER EES THERE... COME OUT!!

HE DON'T SEE US... HE'S JUST BLUFFING!

WELL PLUG HIM BEFORE...

CAN'T HE MAY KNOW WHO KIPPAPPED FRANK ADAMS! - WANT HIM ALIVE!

HA! HA! MY COMPANEROS HAVE GEEV EL ROY FONNY IDEAS! WHO WOULD DARE TO COME HERE? NOBODEE!

THE BACHELOR THAT GOT THE GOOD COFFEE and vice versa!

LOOK, JANET, THERE'S THAT HANDSOME AMES MAN WHO JUST CAME TO TOWN. HE CERTAINLY MUST LOVE COFFEE-THAT'S HIS THIRD CUR.

WISH ME LUCK, SALLY! MOTHER'S INVITED HIM FOR DINNER TOMORROW NIGHT.

I'M GLAD YOU LIKE THE COFFEE, MR. AMES. THAT'S JANET'S SPECIALTY IN OUR HOUSE.

NOWSENSE, MOTHER! ANYONE CAN MAKE GOOD COFFEE IF THEY STICK TO MOUNTAIN GROWN FOLGERS.

JANET, WEREN'T YOU BEING MODEST IN GIVING ALL THAT CREDIT TO FOLGER'S? AREN'T COFFEE BRANDS REALLY ALL THE SAME?

MOST COFFEES ARE THE SAME. THAT IS, THEY COME FROM THE LOWLANDS. BUT FOLGER'S IS TRULY DIFFERENT.

Folger's has a distinct flavor advantage because it is imported from the Central American mountains where volcanic soil produces a Folger's in flavor. Yet Folger's luxury need not cost you one cent extra. Thousands of women say they can use one-fourth less Folger's and still enjoy the best flavor. Make tomorrow morning an especially good Folger's!

GOODBYE, DEAR, I'LL HAVE THE COTTAGE READY FOR YOU WHEN YOU RETURN.

DON'T FORGET THE FOLGER'S, MOTHER, WITH A COFFEE-LOVING HUSBAND LIKE MINE!

I AM NOT LETTING TH' GRASS TO GROW... ALREADY THE SKETCHES ARE SKETCHED FOR MY MISSISSIPPI RIVER BOAT!

THERE SHE IS! IMMEDIATELY SHE WILL BE UNDER CONSTRUCTION... OR MAYBE SOONER!

SEE, MR. PANBERG - I JUST KNOW IT'S GONNA BE AN AWFUL LOT OF FUN MAKING THIS PICTURE!

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP)—The army and navy are cooking up the biggest Thanksgiving dinner since the mammoth meals they served in the years just after the World war.

Something like 64,500 turkeys (of 15 pounds each), 111 tons of cranberry sauce and 73 tons of dressing will go into Thursday's feast.

By Thanksgiving, the number of men in the armed services will total about 675,000—500,000 in the army and 175,000 in the navy.

The vanguard of selective service trainees will eat the holiday meals at army reception centers, getting the same fare as the regulars.

Fuehrer Will Confer With Hungarians

BERLIN, Nov. 19 (AP)—Hungary is next on the list for axis discussions, DNB (official German news agency) declared today, following Adolf Hitler's series of conferences this week with Italian, Spanish and Bulgarian leaders.

The German and Italian foreign ministers, Joachim von Ribbentrop and Count Galeazzo Ciano, the agency announced, left Berchtesgaden today for Vienna, to which Germany has invited Hungarian Premier Count Pal Teleyk and Foreign Minister Count Istvan Csaky. The Hungarians are due there tomorrow.

Yesterday von Ribbentrop and Ciano joined Hitler in a meeting with Ramon Serrano Suner, Spanish foreign minister who, DNB reported, left Salzburg this morning on his way back to Spain.

First of the fuhrer's callers, it was disclosed meanwhile, was King Boris of Bulgaria. As with yesterday's talk of the fuhrer's Berchtesgaden retreat, there was no inkling of what was discussed.

Next to come, it is generally believed, will be Gen. Ion Antonescu, dictator of Rumania's Iron Guard pro-nazi government. This, however, is not confirmed.

RAF Cripples Krupp Factory

LONDON, Nov. 19 (AP)—Production at the Krupp arms works at Essen, Germany, has been cut down 50 percent as the result of British raids, it was asserted today by the air ministry news service.

News reaching England indicates "the growing disruption of industry in cities of western Germany," the news service added.

The air ministry said the Krupp works were having great difficulty in obtaining their regular supplies of raw materials "because of transport troubles caused by wrecked railway junctions."

"Three sections of the factory have been hit and put out of commission," the bulletin said. "One particularly heavy bomb penetrated to the underground workshop before exploding and wrecking the place. Some departments have been closed and others have had to be moved to other cities."

Germans To Free French Captives

VICHY, France, Nov. 19 (AP)—German concessions which would restore to France some of the prisoners and internees she lost in capitulation to the axis were heralded today by a government spokesman as the first tangible results of French-German collaboration.

George Capini, a blind deputy with ambassadorial rank who now is in Berlin, notified his government yesterday that Adolf Hitler had agreed to grant "leave from captivity" to French prisoners who are fathers of four or more children, or who are elder brothers in families in which the father is unable to work.

In addition, Capini said Germany consented to release of 30,000 French prisoners interned in Switzerland.

Louisianans Must Serve Sentences

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 19 (AP)—Examination of the sentences for Seymour Weiss and two other men, convicted of federal mail fraud, in the first federal scandals trial in Louisiana, were ordered here today by Judge Wayne G. Borah in district court.

Serving of sentences were ordered by Judge Borah in acceptance of a motion filed by District Attorney Rene A. Viosca asking execution of the sentences since the United States supreme court had refused to review the case.

Times Are Better

NEW YORK, Nov. 19 (AP)—Times are getting better, Welfare Commissioner William Hodson said today, because the city will have to provide only 6,300 Thanksgiving dinners to homeless persons at the municipal lodging house this year. "This is the smallest number in the last seven years," Hodson said.

Correspondent Killed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP)—The state department was notified today that Ralph D. Barnes, correspondent for the New York Herald Tribune, was among four persons killed in the crash of a British bombing plane on a mountain side in Yugoslavia yesterday.

SOIL PROGRAM PLANNED

NAVASOTA, Nov. 19 (AP)—Plans for an intensive soil-building program in East Texas—with emphasis to be placed on planting of soil-building crops—will be outlined at Texas A. & M. college Nov. 26. President John D. Rogers of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce announced here today. Eugene Butler, Dallas editor, will lead discussions.

But to complicate matters, Shick has never received the work order that will let Contractor J. M. Morgan start.

Inspection Of Schools Over

County Superintendent Anne Martin and Sue B. Mann, deputy state superintendent, Tuesday completed their inspection of Howard county common school districts for rural aid.

At the same time, Miss Martin received notice that rural aid allotments would be paid 100 percent this year.

Checks for standardization and for affiliated credits will be made around the first of the year, it was indicated.

Miss Mann leaves Tuesday evening for Fort Worth to confer with state department of education officials in advance of the state teachers convention. Decisions on rural aid will come following the conference.

Aliens Reminded To Register Soon

The department of justice has issued reminders that the final date for registration of aliens is December 28.

All aliens in the United States, 14 years of age or older, must register in person or be fingerprinted. Alien children, under 14, must be registered by their parents or guardians. Registration takes place at postoffices, at no cost to the alien.

German Guns Shell Coast Around Dover

LONDON, Nov. 19 (AP)—German "Big Berthas" tossed shells across the mist-shrouded Dover Strait today following a night of stormy weather which sharply curtailed the Nazi air raids of Britain.

For nearly an hour the German batteries shelled the English coast from the direction of Cap Gris Nez, which the British say is the site of eight of the 24 Nazi big gun emplacements strung out along the French coast from Calais to Boulogne.

In last night's curtailed activity, a few German raiders stabbed through howling winds to attack Liverpool, one section of the midlands and the south coast. London had four night alarms, but for the first time in weeks not a single bomb was dropped on the capital.

An official announcement said casualties in the bombed areas were small and damage was slight. British bombers themselves were grounded for the most part by the channel storm, but the air ministry reported one group managed to get in a lick against the synthetic German oil works at Leuna, near Leipzig. Here several large fires were declared started.

Striking a balance of shipping losses in the week ending Nov. 10-11, the admiralty announced 13 merchantmen totaling 71,749 tons were sunk "by enemy action." They included 10 British vessels aggregating 61,202 tons, one allied craft of 1,930 tons and two neutral ships totaling 8,617 tons.

The admiralty said last night that light naval units, such as were said to have bombarded the Somaliland port of Mogadiscio over the weekend, shelled Dante, a second Somaliland port, damaging oil tanks and coastal and anti-aircraft batteries.

The air ministry said RAF bombers raided Elbasani, an Italian base on the Albanian coast, hitting military supplies.

Lady Astor Gets Commons Stated

LONDON, Nov. 19 (AP)—Lady Astor told 'em off again today in the house of commons.

The occasion was a request by Sir William Davison for a more musical warning to replace air raid sirens, about which he said numerous women had complained because "they are more depressing than bombs."

"The women are showing more courage than the men," the American-born viscountess responded "and I beg Sir William not to listen to a few nervous letters from a few nervous women."

Incumbent Gains In Kansas Race

TOPEKA, Kas., Nov. 19 (AP)—Gov. Payne Rafter gained again today on William H. Burke in the tally of the out-state ballots for governor but there still was doubt whether the executive could overtake his democratic rival before the votes ran out.

Fifty complete counties on the out-state count gave: atner 1,759; Burke 801. Burke's lead on the total state vote: 838.

R. W. Crow Dies At Coahoma

Robert Wesley Crow succumbed to a sudden illness and died Monday afternoon at his home 5 miles northeast of Coahoma. Services were held Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Salem church with the Rev. R. Elmer Dunham, pastor of the East 4th St. Baptist church, in charge.

Burial was in the Salem cemetery.

Crow had resided in Howard county for the past 16 years and was employed as a farmer. He was born in Anderson county on October 24, 1882.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Ora Crow, five sons, Albert of Glascock county, Lloyd, Roy and Travis, all of Coahoma, and Robert of El Paso. Four daughters include Mrs. W. J. Johnson of Coahoma, Mrs. J. J. Robinson, Elgin Springs, Mrs. C. J. Bass of California, and Estelle Crow of Coahoma. Four grandchildren also survive.

Palbearers were Ed Martin, Charles Engle, Leroy Echols, W. C. Rogers, Earl Hull, C. E. Baker.

25 Billions Appropriated By Congress

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP)—An election-year congress which faced a brief, "do-little" session last January is winding up nearly 11 months of unexpected activity with a peacetime spending record of $25,572,819,337 and with a vast defense program approved and in operation.

About two-thirds of the money voted—$16,920,627,477—is in actual appropriations which can be spent before next July 1, according to the figures of Chairman Taylor (D-Colo.) of the house appropriations committee. The remainder represents authorizations for future contracts.

Defense expenditures were primarily responsible for the huge total, which has been exceeded only in the World war year of 1918. Appropriations and contract authorizations for the armed services aggregated $12,136,832,516. In addition, about $4,700,000,000 was authorized for eventual development of a two-ocean navy.

Adjournment talk already was in the air last May when President Roosevelt, following the German military successes in western Europe, called for an emergency expenditure of more than $1,000,000,000 to speed up preparedness on land, sea and in the skies. Within weeks, however, that estimate was doubled and redoubled and then increased again.

Fog Prevents Trial Blackout Of City

BREMERTON, Wash., Nov. 19 (AP)—A total blackout of this U. S. navy yard city was postponed because of the fog.

Authorities wanted to determine how completely the city could be smothered from the view of aerial observers. But the fog was so thick an observer would have been doing well to see the city with the lights on.

"They'll try again — weather permitting."

SCIENCE GUARDS
America's telephone service

Men of science watch as fantastic apparatus enacts an unrehearsed drama before their eager eyes... nearby, other research experts peer into their microscopes... in another room, laboratory technicians put through grueling tests some new and better part for America's telephone system...

The scene is the Bell Telephone Laboratories where nearly 5,000 scientists and assistants explore the unknown to build a better telephone service for America. Today their thousands of inventions and developments serve America.

By modern scientific methods huge telephone cables are made and buried underground, guarded from floods, fires, storms, and other disasters. Some of the more important cables are filled with gas, so that the smallest leak in the lead covering sounds an automatic alarm, summoning repair crews.

America's telephone system, guarded by science, is armed to withstand many attacks which a few years ago might have silenced thousands of telephones and isolated many communities.

Today Americans, in any emergency, turn to the telephone, knowing they will receive fast, dependable service.
