Fifty Destroyers— And Then?

The transfer of 50 destroyers to Britain is, as the President said, a fait accompli, which is fancy French for something definitely completed.

Is the transaction complete? That's more important than the thing itself. As a horsetrade, even the President's most vociferous opponents have to admit it's a good one. The screen of naval bases in the Atlantic should be better protection in one year than all the ships which could be built in five. The destroyers themselves will not notably weaken present naval strength. Militarily, we gain.

It seems unlikely that the attitude of either Germany or Japan toward the United States will change as a result-Both are complete realists in foreign policy; we believe both will tend to respect another country's being equally realistic. Surely no accusation that 'this is war" can come with any force either from a country which sent not only material but crack-troops into Spain (denying it was war) or from one which after three years of big-time campaigning in China still insists it is not at war. If there are new conceptions abroad in the world of what a country can do and yet not be at war, those conceptions are not of our

Nor is the point of legalistic hair-splitting too important. There is still the gravest doubt that Jefferson had any constitutional warrant to buy Louisiana, yet nobody today suggests that he shouldn't have acted, and acted as he did, personally and promptly. The customary opportunity to repudiate this policy if the country feels that way, will be open at the polls in November; an opportunity not perhaps to rescind this action, but to check any further progress STRAWN, Texas—Coach W. WHAT A DIFFERENCE GOOD LIGHT MAKES

• Young eyes are quick to notice how much easier it is to see under the right kind of light—the kind of light that enables them to read longer without getting sleepy and tired. And parents will notice the difference too, for tests have proved that proper light will help students concentrate more closely on their studies when doing home work.

Good light is cheap. A 150-watt student lamp uses less than one penny's worth of electricity an hour, a small price to pay for good light to eliminate unnecessary eye fatigue which may cause eye troubles.

THE Russell-Overton amendment states that when a plant is commandeered the government must institute condemnatior proceedings, with the court fixing what it considers a fair and just rate of compensation. No crimi-nal penalty is provided.

Under the existing law, however, no condemnation proceed-ings are necessary, and the price the manufacturer is to get is simply fixed by the government. Furthermore, lailure to comply with the law is made a felony, and a recalcitrant manufacturer could be fined $50,000 and imprisoned for three years.

Many Have Fear RED RYDER Of Dental Chair Despite Advances

AUSTIN, Tex .- In spite of the great advances that have been made in dental instruments, local anaesthesia and operative methods in recent years, there yet are many persons who have an unjustified fear of the dental chair. Unfortunately, this attitude influences thousands to postpone the visit to the dentist until there is actual pain or until an accident to tooth structure occurs. Such a fear-complex not only is foolish but often produces real suffering. loss of teeth, serious illness in addition to unnecessary expenditure of money, Doctor George W. Cox. state health officer, states.

"It is true that some discomfort is connected with dental corrections, though often this fear may be psychological fear of pain rather than the pain itself. However, in view of the actual damage that can result because of delay, temporary inconvenience deserves no consideration whatsoever in a wise-and-economical personal dental program.

Cherries Flown For a Pharaoh's lunch

Hundreds of miles from Thebes, a special orchard of cherries grew. Picked at dawn, each cherry was strapped to a pigeon, so that mighty Pharaoh might have fresh cherries for lunch.

How a Pharaoh would have envied your year-round choice of fruits: Big yellow-ripe bananas from the tropics . . . creamy and mellowsweet. Glistening, golden wedges of pineapple from distant Hawaii. Florida grapefruit. Californit oranges.

Modern refrigeration brings fruit for thousands of miles—as fresh as when it was picked. Modern advertising assures the grower that his products will be in demand at the market. Otherwise, he would not risk the freight.

In the pages of our newspaper, you read about many foods. Scan the list-save money and shopping steps. At the store, you naturally buy advertised brands. Because you can trust them to be wholesome and pure. No sensible food-producer is going to spend good advertising money on rotten apples.
