Whooping Cough Should Be Isolated Says Health Officer

AUSTIN, Tex.—Careful isolation of a child ill with whooping cough is a measure that pays health dividends, according to Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

There is no other communicable disease so dangerous as whooping cough to the very young and there is no other infection to which there is a more universal susceptibility in infancy and childhood. Over 99 per cent of all deaths from whooping cough.

Mrs. Art Johnson was in Wichita Falls Friday and Saturday on business.

Whooping cough is usually transmitted by direct contact with the secretion of the mouth or nose, or with articles freshly soiled with the secretion. Only a short exposure is required to contact the infection. The communicable stage extends from seven days to three weeks after exposure until development of the characteristic whoop.

Among precautionary measures to be considered by parents as protection of their children against whooping cough are the following:

Isolation plays a hardship on a child in that it keeps him from seeing relatives and playmates. On the other hand, isolation exerts a two-way, salutary influence on public and individual health. First, isolation of the patient helps to prevent the spread of whooping cough to others who are susceptible. Second, and this is of immediate importance to parents, isolation protects the sick child against possible exposure to severe infection which may be carried by otherwise healthy persons.

1. A child with what appears to be an ordinary cold should be kept away from others and a physician consulted to determine the true nature of illness.

2. Whooping cough vaccine of

Two Representatives Claim Two Records

By United Press
 BONHAM, Texas—When Fannin County's two representatives take their oath of office at the convening of the 47th Texas Legislature Jan. 14, it is believed they will be able to claim two distinctions no other pair of members can claim.

John W. Connelly of Trenton, representative from Fannin county, will claim the title of the youngest legislator. Connelly was 21 years old only three days before the second democratic primary in August and cast his first vote in that election after spending the first primary day at home worrying over the outcome. He held a good lead in the first primary.

ENCHANTED LOOKING-GLASS

Do you ever wish for a magic mirror, a genii's gift, in which the world of yesterday, today and tomorrow will be reflected?

Standing on the brink of recorded time, your daily newspaper is such a gift. You have only to turn the pages. . . .

Yesterday Lindbergh landed at Le Bourget . . . today a Yankee Clipper lands at Lisbon . . . Tomorrow, perhaps, you will be landing in London.

Yesterday, Versailles . . . Today, Munich . . . Tomorrow? . . . Your newspaper will have the answer.

Yesterday (in 1919) a four-inch advertisement quietly announced "Radio Apparatus." Today, in the pages of radio news, small notices are advertising television. Tomorrow you will be buying a set. . . .

Advertising, no less than the news and the editorials, marks the progress of the world. . . . and advertised products are dependable, worth-while aids in the art of civilized living.
