Assert the Brotherhood of Man!

The very words, "brotherhood of man," sound old-fashioned in the world of today.

It is true that no age and no country, perhaps, ever accepted the phrase with complete literalness in every implication. But at least lip-service was given to the ideal, at least there was a sense of shame in falling short of that glistening goal.

Today, however, there are whole governments and systems based specifically on the rejection of this universal brotherhood, based entirely on the theory of "master" races to which the rest of us owe obedience and virtual servitude. In times past, the brotherhood of man was an as yet unattained ideal, a shining goal from which men in their weakness fell short. Today, in large sections of the earth, the brotherhood of man is deliberately rejected.

We of the United States just as deliberately reject the idea of a "master race." We believe in men, in individuals; that the least of them is still a man, and that the best of them can be no more than that. On his ground our forefathers took their stand, on this ground we stand today. We believe that ground is not only solid but holy ground.

The week of the birthday of Washington (Feb. 22-28) has been chosen this year for the annual Brotherhood Week sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews, and President Roosevelt has urged its observance "to purge our hearts of all intolerance and to bind all our citizens in a common loyalty."

As never before, this Brotherhood Week should be marked by Americans to show the world how utterly we reject racial doctrines which are to us false and obnoxious. There is, thank God, in the United States no dominant group which merely "tolerates" others as a grudging duty. Every group has its contribution to make to America, and our strength lies in the combination of them all under a common urge to create here a better society.

Some time during this Brotherhood Week, it would be a fine thing if every person in the United States would read to himself in quiet, or aloud to another, these words from the call for the week's observance:

"We affirm the inherent dignity of every human being of whatever blood or creed. And, beyond all the divisions of our imperfect society, we assert the brotherhood of man."

Now that Christmas is over for another year we can all settle down—and up!

Italian press says Mussolini's soldiers have not lost sight of their goal. Must be looking over their shoulders.

Times are so bad right now that more people are having to go to work.

Only American Flying Giant R. A. F. Bombers

Brooklyn Daredevil Charlie Whitehead Gets Action Aplenty

BY PAUL MANNING

NEA Service Staff Correspondent
LONDON.—(By Wireless)—The big 15-ton Whitley stands there in the rain, its propellers slowly turning. In another 10 minutes it will be rolling across the airfield on another raid over German-occupied France.

Standing alongside this giant Whitley you wonder how any pilot can make the engines lift such a ponderous weight off this rain-swept flying field. Then Charlie Whitehead of Brooklyn, N. Y., comes waddling out from the hangar, encased in flying suit and heavy lined boots, and all complete with parachute and other equipment which adds about 50 pounds of his weight.

Then Charlie Whitehead of Brooklyn comes waddling out encased in flying suit and heavy lined boots.

Somehow, catching his determined air, you know he will get this airplane off the ground all right.

For this Charlie Whitehead is the one who turned in more hours of brilliant flying on Pan American's run to South America than probably any other pilot.

And this is the Charlie Whitehead who probably pulled more airplanes out of spins over Brooklyn's Floyd Bennett Field than any other instructor. That, of course, was when Whitehead was running his flying school at Bennett Field and had a $1000-a-week contract with the On Leong Tong of New York's Mott Street, under which he turned young Chinese into skillful war birds.

Today Charlie's war bird himself. He is the only American in the Royal Air Force who is flying the big bombers.

TAUGHT CHINESE FLYERS IN NEW YORK

Originally employed by Lord Beaverbrook to ferry planes from American factories to British airfields, Whitehead transferred to the R.A.F. because he wanted action.

The first day he reported at a bomber station he was one surprised American.

He had an idea that when he showed up the adjutant would lean back in his chair, point through the window to a waiting Whitley and tersely say: "Get going."

But it was months before he ever did get going. He was put through the complicated training by which the R.A.F. turns a good flyer into a top-notch pilot.

He had to do blind flying, blind take-off and bombing practice until he thought he would never get a chance for real action.

He finally made the grade. Now he has made dozens of what he terms little nickel raids over

French coastal ports, like the raid this day.

MOST INSTRUMENTS "DON'T MEAN A THING"

Moving on the side of his bomber, he makes one last adjustment of his parachute. Then he tells you to follow him while he checks the instrument. Entering the plane from the side, you crawl nearly its whole length. Then you get seated in the cockpit.

Divides Tenancy Of Apartment Building

By United Press

HOLEY, N. Y.—A three-story Public Square building has become a "house divided within itself" with the death of Michael A. Bocacio.

Under terms of his will, Bocacio's son, Michael, receives the sole use of the two upper floors. With another brother, Michael operates a barber shop on the second floor while the third floor is vacant. A meat market and grocery are on the first floor.

Ex-Pan American Pilot Once Taught Chinese War Birds

Whitehead tests his engines. Then he begins his check-up. You ask him about a few of the 182 instruments. He says most of them do not mean a thing. He says if you just give him the Sperry directional gyro and artificial horizon, he is happy.

Remembering the difficulty in crawling into the cockpit, you ask him what happens when he wants to get out quickly, as, for instance, when a pilot is making a crash landing and knows the plane will probably burst into flames.

Whitehead replies that when that happens the pilot just does not get out. It is only a matter of seconds until the bomber is enveloped in flames after striking the ground.

He says the best bet is to bail out while the machine is still in the air. There are emergency hatches for that. One is directly over the pilot's head, but because the pilot is like the captain of a ship, he cannot leave until the crew—the navigator second pilot, observer and rear gunner—have cleared from the plane.

Outside the plane once more, we walk across the field where Whitehead's crew and men of other Whitleys are awaiting their zero hour. Only they don't act as if it was zero hour as they steam out from operational headquarters.

Whitehead goes back to his machine with his crew. You say that it is too bad the weather isn't better. Whitehead replies that weather does not mean a thing to these flyers. He goes inside his machine.

OFF INTO THE MIST

Now, as a mere observer, you move a good distance away from his ship because he is giving his engines their liberty.

The ground ropes are pulled and with a slow heave, the Whitley rolls forward. It gathers momentum as it reaches midfield. Its tail comes up and then the plane is up in the air. Other Whitleys follow and then you turn away, because there is nothing more to watch. They have all disappeared in the mist at the far end of the field.

Next morning you learn Whitehead has returned from his mission. The official communique says: "All aircraft returned safely."

Provision is made for rigid regulation of racing and, in case of flagrant violations, fines and jail or prison sentences are provided.

Profits of those conducting a race meet are held to a reasonable figure, not to exceed 10 per cent of the investment represented by the property actually necessary to hold a meet. The commission has power to set a valuation on the property and any surplus earnings will go to the State as a tax in addition to the tax of 5 per cent of the gross amount going through the pari-mutuels, besides one-half of the "breakage," taxes on concessions and admission tickets as well as a license fee. The tax revenue would amount to approximately $2,500,000, of which 75 per cent would go to old age pensions and 25 per cent to the State public school fund.

Scrap Iron Gathered Over South Africa

By United Press

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa—South Africa's countryside is being cleared of scrap iron to supply material for the government's iron and steel works in Pretoria.

Farmers are being asked to bring old and discarded agricultural implements, chains, and other suitable scrap to the nearest railway station for transport to the works. Stationmasters pay for the material on the spot with credit vouchers drawn on banks.

Strict Regulation Of Horse Races Is Provided In Bill

AUSTIN, Jan. 28.—The strict supervision and the restriction of profits of those holding horse races to a "reasonable" figure are features of the racing bill which are being stressed by its advocates, including officials of the Thoroughbred Horse Association of Texas.

The Texas Racing Commission of five members would consist of men who have lived in the State for at least five years and have been thoroughbred horse breeders for at least the past two years. Since racing was barred in Texas in 1937, a breeder of thoroughbreds has had to go to the expense of shipping his horses to distant tracks for proving before he could sell them; therefore, the Texas breeders have operated at a loss. The fact that they have continued, nevertheless, proves that they are interested primarily in the horses themselves and, if the welfare of racing is entrusted to the hands of men who love thoroughbreds, the sport will be conducted properly, it is felt.

Before granting a license for a race course, the law provides that the commission shall determine that the applicant is of good moral character or, in the case of a corporation, association or partnership, that the controlling stockholders and members meet this test.

not a word of truth in it. Marsha and I never—Bill!" "Come on, Marsha," Bill repeated inexorably. He walked out without a backward glance, without a word to the man who had been his friend for so many years. Helplessly, her heart like a stone inside her, Marsha went with him. There was nothing else to do.

SHE felt stiff and cold, weary with a weariness that dimmed even thought. Suzanne had threatened this, and now she had done it. With a few impassioned words—in a searing moment she had already regretted—Suzanne had brought the whole world tumbling down around their ears. It would bring her no nearer to Paul. And it had driven a wedge, cruel and all but insurmountable, between Marsha Marshall and the man she loved.

Suddenly the numbness left her. "Bill," she whispered, "Bill, you've got to listen to me. You can't go on, with those poisonous words in your mind. Let me explain. Let me tell you—"

"Explain?" How cold his tone was. "What is there to explain?" "Bill," she said desperately, catching at his sleeve, "Bill, please, listen to me. Everything she said was wrong. It wasn't like that at all. She didn't want Paul to take me out, she didn't want him to come up to the apartment, because she wanted to go with him alone. Don't you understand?"

"What is it?" "I want you to resign from Air Transport. Suzanne was wrong—but one thing she said was true. People are bound to talk. I—I think it'll be better if you don't see Paul again. Marsha, promise me you'll stay here with Helen and Eugene. Promise me you'll stay until I get out of the Army."

afford a lot of things. He lent you his car to come up and see me. The car I bought wasn't good enough."

"But, Bill, you know that meant nothing—the car—" She fought off the hysteria which was making her talk too fast, too shrilly. She turned squarely on the seat, lifting her eyes proudly to his. "Look at me, Bill. I have nothing to hide. Nothing! I swear to you, Paul never did a single thing, never said a single thing, he couldn't have done or said if you were there!"

Bill Marshall shook his head, like a man in a daze. "I don't know," he groaned. "I don't know what to think. I've always loved you so, I never dreamed—"

"Oh, darling, darling, there was nothing to dream about!" She put her arms around his neck. "Bill, if I cared for Paul, could I pretend like this with you?"

For a heartbeat, cold fear clutched at her. Was Bill stiffening? His face was drawn. Would he reach up and tear away her clinging arms? Then, with a little cry, she felt his arms tighten. Relief, sharp and unutterable, drove her fear away.

"Bill, Bill, darling!" "Oh, Marsha!" His arms were fierce, glad, suddenly asserting their possession once more. His mouth came down warm against her own. Long and hard, he kissed her. A kiss that went on and on, a kiss that was like a vow, compounded of love and faith renewed and fleeting doubts dispelled.

AGRICULTURE DEPARTMENT LIBERAL BLOC WINS 8-YEAR FIGHT TO PUT STRESS ON CONSUMPTION

BY BRUCE CATTON

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—An eight-year-old fight between liberals and conservatives in the Department of Agriculture is ending at last with the liberals winning all along the line.

Symbol of the liberals' victory is the retention of Claude Wickard as secretary of agriculture in the third-term cabinet.

In substance, the victory means a defeat for the AAA group, led by such men as AAA Administrator R. M. Evans and I. W. Dugan, head of AAA's southern division.

The victors' leaders are Milo Perkins, head of the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation; C. B. Baldwin, chief of the Farm Security Administration; and Howard Tolley, head of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

The decision will mean less emphasis on crop restriction and more emphasis on measures to increase consumption—less of the AAA program and more of the things like the stamp plan and the farm tenant program.

FIGHT GOES WAY BACK

TWO actions by Secretary Wickard recently gave the tip-off on the victory.

One was his public statement urging farmers to raise more hogs to take advantage of rising pork prices. This was heresy to the conservatives in the department, who argued it was simply a means of knocking down pork prices all over again.

Another was Wickard's announcement of a supplemental cotton program, which in effect will give cotton grow "a cotton stamp rather than cash for making further reductions in cotton acreage—a measure aimed at increasing consumption of cotton goods at the same time that it cuts production of raw cotton, thereby biting into the surplus from both sides.

The argument between the two wings of the department dates back to the beginning of the New Deal. In the main, the conservative group stood for the theory that the farm problem could be solved by cutting production and keeping prices up. It has fought to retain agriculture's foreign markets, via export subsidies, in cutting domestic production, it has consciously or unconsciously followed the viewpoint of the large-scale farmer, the big plantation owner, the farming-i.-a-business man.

"PURGE" REVERSED

FROM the start this brought about a scrap. The other group in the department protested that the AAA program was making the plight of the tenant and the sharecropper worse, that only a broadening of the domestic market offered any real hope, and that to insist on keeping the export market at all costs would ultimately raise hob with the nation's foreign policy.

Several years ago the conservatives triumphed, and there followed the famous "triple-A purge" in which such men as Jerome Frank and Gardner Jackson were ousted. But events played into the hands of the liberal bloc. The war helped kill the reliance on export markets. The existence today of a 14,000,000-bale cotton carry-over has stimulated the effort to broaden the domestic market.

Diphtheria Death Rate Decreases In Last Eight Years

ATLANTA, Ga.—The public health value of immunization against diphtheria has been repeatedly demonstrated in Texas during the last eight years, information collected by the State Health Department reveals.

The diphtheria death rate has diminished during the last eight years, from 14.3 deaths per 100,000 population in 1932 to a percentage of 1.9 per 100,000 for the ten months of 1940, according to Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

The 1939 cumulative deaths from diphtheria—1939 statistics are latest on which final tabulations are obtainable—are 78 per cent lower than the 1932 to 1935 deaths.

The 14.3 rate per 100,000 in 1932 is high for the decade, each succeeding year saw diminished rates to the decade low, 1940's 1.9 per 100,000.

Dr. Cox attributed the very significant decrease in diphtheria deaths and prevalence to the increasingly positive effects of public health and greater appreciation by the parent of the child's well-being. Dr. Cox pointed out that "the increased attention to the well child, using periods when the child is well to protect against future illness, represents an intelligent approach by parents to the health needs of their children."

In the many areas of Texas served by full-time health services, the past four years have seen the immunizations of pre-school children against diphtheria more than double in number. The influence of the full-time public health services in this matter cannot be considered minor. Diphtheria immunization has been a major public health platform in protecting the health of Texas children. The success of this program is indicated by a health survey based on a cross-section encompassing 145,000 school children in areas with and without public health services.

Children entering school in counties maintaining full-time county health units showed 69 per cent immunized against diphtheria as contrasted with 29 per cent where local health units were absent.

Dr. Cox reiterated that no child need have diphtheria, as it is one of the most easily prevented diseases. Every child six to nine months of age should be immunized with toxoid to develop immunity to diphtheria. Six months after immunization, a harmless skin test, called the "Schick test" should be given to determine if immunization to render him completely immune. If the test indicates that the child is not fully protected against diphtheria, additional immunization can be given, after which there need be no further fear of the disease.

The week of January 26th to February 2nd will be a busy week for church youth people.

For during that time they will conduct church services, rallies, and banquets in celebration of the Sixtieth Birthday of Christian Endeavor.

It was February 2, 1881, in a little Congregational Church in Portland, Maine, that Christian Endeavor, which is the forerunner of all church youth work, was organized by Dr. Francis E. Clark. This movement filled a need in the church and answered in a Christian way the cry of young people for action.

Within five years of its birth, this organization became worldwide and demonstrated its power to attract young people.

Today this movement claims three to four million members in more than seventy-five thousand societies in more than eighty nations of the world.

of Texas join with those of the whole North American Continent in this celebration of Christian Endeavor Week. The climax of the Sixtieth Birthday celebrations will be the International Christian Endeavor Convention in Atlantic City, N. Style Bid Made By Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES—Southern California is expecting a new rush and if it materializes a new fashion capital may arise in the Far West. Buyers and manufacturers from the 4 other states, from south of the Rio Grande to Patagonia and from the Pacific isles have been journeying to California for the past few months, searching for a new source of fashion ideas. Leading Southern California fashion experts, as a result of the influx of buyers, have been predicting for months that Hollywood soon would replace Paris as the world's fashion center. And they've started a movement designed to turn that prediction into a fact.

The Los Angeles Fashion Group, a unit of an all-feminine international style organization, is planning to mobilize at least 70 creative style ideas and present them

WHERE economy is a large factor, dry skim milk plays an important role in family nutrition. It has practically the same value as fresh skim milk, providing protein, calcium, and other minerals with sugar and vitamins B and G. In the preparation of dry skim milk, only the fat, vitamin A, and water are removed from the whole milk.

Dry skim milk can be kept without refrigeration for several weeks if kept in a tightly covered container. If exposed to the air, however, it absorbs moisture, becomes lumpy, and changes flavor.

To prepare fluid milk with the powder, measure cold or warm water into a bowl, sprinkle powder over the surface, and beat until powder dissolves. Do not use boiling water.

SPOON BREAD

One cup dry skim milk, 1 cup cornmeal, 1 1/2 teaspoons salt, 1 cup cold water, 2 cups boiling water, 2 eggs, beaten; 3 tablespoons fat, melted.

Mix the meal, dry skim milk, and salt thoroughly. Combine with 1 cup of cold water and stir until smooth. Add 2 cups of boiling water, stirring constantly until the mixture thickens. Blend a small amount with the beaten eggs. Combine all the ingredients. Pour into a well greased hot pan or baking dish and bake for 45 to 50 minutes in a hot oven (450 degrees F.). Serve from the pan in which it was baked.

TOMORROW'S MENU

BREAKFAST: Orange juice, cracked wheat cereal, dropped biscuits, coffee, milk.
LUNCHEON: Cream of corn soup, lettuce sandwiches, prune tarts, tea, milk.
DINNER: Stuffed pork chops, baked squash, stewed tomatoes, watercress salad, apple pie, coffee, milk.

DROP BISCUITS

Four and one-half tablespoons dry skim milk, 2 cups sifted flour, 3/4 teaspoon salt, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 4 tablespoons fat, about 3/4 cup of water to make a very soft dough.

Sift the flour, dry skim milk, salt, and baking powder together. Cut in the fat. Add the water slowly, stirring from the center until a soft dough is formed. Drop from a spoon onto a greased baking sheet, and bake in a hot oven (450 degrees F.) for about 15 minutes.

To add nutrients at low cost to your menus, combine white sauce made with dry skim milk with vegetables, fish or chicken. Vary your seasoning to taste.

WHITE SAUCE

For white sauce for creamed meat or scalloped vegetables use 2 tablespoons of fat, 2 tablespoons of flour, 1/4 to 1/2 cup of dry skim milk to each cup of water, and 1/4 teaspoon of salt. Heat and stir constantly until thickened.

Building bring sales volume to every line of business...

Did you think that the only ones who profit financially from building a new home were the builders? They do profit considerably, but so do the workmen, and the lumber supply companies and their employees—in fact, everyone, who has any direct contact with the building, profits. They all have money to spend for their needs.

Of course, the home furnishers and landscape gardeners and decorators make direct sales to the family who owns the new home. But the businesses that profit the most are those who sell merchandise services to the workmen, the architect, the furniture store delivery man, and all the others who take part in helping to build and furnish a new home. In turn the butcher, the baker, the grocer, and the laundry man are able to buy new clothes from the man who lives in the new home.

That is business.
