Puzzle: Can You Find Room on the Bank for Trout?

Elbow to elbow, fishermen jam banks of spring branch at Bennett Springs state park near Lebanon, Mo., as trout season gets off to an early start. Biggest crowd on record, including anglers from California and Virginia, turned out.

CONSERVATION OF OIL HELPS TAX REVENUES

DALLAS, March 7.—The Texas oil conservation program is of lasting benefit to Texas communities and to State and local taxing agencies, a study just completed by the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association shows. Conservation has made possible a permanent type of oil development which benefits all Texas and which has greatly increased the ultimate tax revenues to the State and its many local taxing subdivisions, the survey discloses.

Before the adoption of the conservation laws, Texas oil fields were drilled up immediately. Wells were allowed to produce all the oil possible with the result that their output soon fell off. As production declined, the towns which had been built around the fields naturally suffered slumps which cut off the incomes and security of those who had depended upon them. Taxable values collapsed and tax revenues to the State and local taxing agencies dropped to a fraction of the former total.

In ten old Texas oil fields developed before conservation practices became standard, production fell in six years to only 12.1 per cent of the peak output. This 87.9 per cent loss in output was responsible for a decline of $116,122,926 in taxable values in the counties embracing these fields, causing a big loss in tax revenues.

In contrast, seven newer Texas fields operated under conservation laws were still producing 66.8 per cent of their peak production six years after their peak had been passed. The decline of 33.2 per cent in output, however, was NOT accompanied by any drop in taxable values. So permanent was the new type of oil development that tax valuations in these counties not only did not drop, but actually showed an increase of $109,481,681. Since tax valuations usually on a 50 per cent basis, this represents an increase in actual values of perhaps $218,963,362.

"The Texas public has become accustomed to the many benefits of oil conservation," a statement from the association points out. "Millions of barrels of Texas oil that otherwise would have been lost have been saved for posterity by adoption of sound conservation statutes. In addition, Texas and all its citizens have profited from the new permanent type of oil development. The State government as well as county, city and numerous district taxing agencies have been afforded greatly increased tax revenues which they will enjoy over a period of years. Thus the conservation of oil is of decided financial benefit to the citizen, to the community, and to the State and its many local taxing subdivisions."

BRITISH PERFECTING A DEVICE FOR LOCATING ENEMY PLANES AT NIGHT

Ramrod Stance Is Passe for Soldiers Of Britain's Army

WASHINGTON, March 7.—British scientists are working on a device that would project high into the sky a series of magnetic fields for locating enemy planes at night.

This information was revealed today by army officers and civilian experts recently returned from London where they were official observers of the battle of Britain. Their information came from many sources. Some said the British were well along with their experiments.

Pieced together their reports indicated that the British are seeking to incorporate in the new detector device certain features of the photo-electric cell (electric eye) and the radio beam.

There is no practical way now to locate night raiders, these observers said. Sound detectors, invaluable in meeting daylight raids, have not proved successful after dark.

"Actually," one official said, "these night fighters take big chances. RAF pilots tell us that it is a piece of pure luck when they find a Nazi plane in the dark. Their luck is a little better on moonlight nights."

The British hope to develop the new device so that it will project electrical or magnetic fields into the air around most of Britain and through which German night fliers would have to pass. Once these fields are entered, an electric circuit is broken, disclosing to ground operators the exact location of the enemy craft. Thus, they would be able to map the course of invading aircraft almost instantaneously.

The information then would be relayed to British night-fighters flying at high altitudes.

The projected new night detector would be coordinated with searchlight batteries. Searchlights would automatically swing toward location disclosed by the detectors and bring anti-aircraft guns into play.

Searchlights, the officers said, generally have an effective range of approximately 20,000 feet and any plane coming within their beams would have little chance of escaping anti-aircraft fire.

BRITISH VESSELS MAY GO TO BLACK SEA FOR POSSIBLE ACTION THERE

Britain will send a part of her Mediterranean fleet to the Black Sea under a Turkish agreement, it was reported today, while rumors swept the Balkans that Germany would launch an attack upon Greece tomorrow.

There was no confirmation of the latter report, naturally, and the chances were good that it was merely a part of the Nazi war of nerves. It is doubtful that Germany is in a position to attack Greece only a week after troops have been moved into Bulgaria.

Diplomatic sources in Budapest reported advices from Istanbul today that Britain is preparing to send part of the Mediterranean fleet into the Black Sea under a guarantee made to Turkey by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden. Bulgaria is now tightly under Nazi control. The German military restricted newspaper correspondents so severely that trickles of news from Sofia were almost cut off.

Belgrade, a prolific source of rumors, and Budapest heard reports today that the Nazi attack upon Greece is about to begin.

According to Belgrade the Germans have become convinced that Greece will not yield to Nazi peace blandishments and Turkey can not be wooed from the British sphere and that Yugoslavia is bound to join the axis. For the last point there is considerable support.

Belgrade is full of reports that possibly by tomorrow Yugoslavia will adhere to the axis or will announce a policy of close collaboration with the Germans. The Turks forecast a quick move in the Balkans as soon as British Minister George Rendel and his staff left Sofia, probably Monday.

The Turks believed that a new front would be opened up by the German attack on Greece, opening the way for British Royal Air Force attacks on Nazi concentrations in Bulgaria and on the Rumanian oil fields.

The British saw little ground for optimism in the Balkans. It was said that Britain may have warned Yugoslavia she cannot guarantee territorial integrity at a post war peace conference if Yugoslavia joins the axis.

Rumania reported that Germany is giving the Rumanian army intensive training.

Administration Wins First Test Upon British Aid

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The Administration won its first major test on the British Aid Bill today when the senate rejected an amendment to require congressional consent for American armed forces to deliver or convey war supplies to Europe.

The vote was 63 to 28.

The vote came on an amendment by Sen. Joseph O'Mahoney of Wyoming and was opposed by the administration.

Earlier the president said that congressional delay would slow down delivery of war materials to the embattled democracies.

Wisconsin Pays An Honor To Teacher

MADISON, Wis.—A little old man with a long white mustache, Dr. Edward Asahel Birge, 89-year-old president emeritus of the University of Wisconsin and limnologist, once again has been honored for his long service to the state.

By unanimous vote both houses of the 65th Wisconsin legislature adopted a resolution expressing "sincere congratulations and felicitations" to Dr. Birge, a member of the university faculty for 66 years—7 as president, 27 as dean of the college of letters and science and 16 as president emeritus.

Dr. Birge, whose scientific work on lakes and streams are known throughout the world, paused in his research long enough to tell the legislature "It has always been a source of great pleasure to me—and of some pride—that it has been my good fortune through my active life, to do my part in advancing this commonwealth through its university."

Dr. Birge can be found almost any day of the week in his tiny office-laboratory in the university's biology building. Two years ago he learned typing so that he could write his own reports and scientific studies.

A native of Troy, N. Y., the university's president emeritus began teaching here in 1875. As one of the directors of the Wisconsin natural history survey, he has collected more scientific data on Wisconsin lakes than any other person with the exception of his colleague and co-worker, Dr. Chancey Juday.

Opposite Views On Free Text Books Offered By Schools

AUSTIN, Texas — Opposite views on the proposed amendment to the Texas constitution to furnish free text books to pupils in denominational schools came to a Texas legislative committee from representatives of two faiths that maintain their school systems.

The Rev. Father Thomas A. Carney of Dickinson, Texas, said that it is no more than right that the state should afford the same free text book facilities to a pupil in a denominational school as to one in the public school. The grant is to the child, not to the school, it would be fair for the state to furnish school bus transportation for pupils in denominational schools, the same as is done for public schools.

R. L. Benton of Keene, chairman of the board of the Southwest Junior College of the Seventh Day Adventists, protested against free text books for church-supported schools. He said he took that position although the Seventh Day Adventist schools would have free books available under the plan.

"We would not accept them," he said, "or if we did we would pay for them, because we consider this an improper union of church and state. If it is right for the state to furnish textbooks for denominational schools, why wouldn't it be proper for the state to help pay the teachers in such schools?"

Father Carney suggested that Benton's argument carried to its final conclusion would make it wrong for a city-paid fire department to put out a fire in a parochial school.

The proposed constitutional amendment would not require the schools to take state adopted text books but would make the books available without cost to the pupils in the schools that used the state adopted texts.

Bids Are Called On Highway East Out of Ranger

AUSTIN, March 7.—Highway department engineers rushed final plans today on a $2,600,000 construction program to be submitted to bids March 25.

Projects by counties, included: Eastland, 5.9 miles grading, drainage structures, extending structures, emulsified asphalt stabilized base and concrete pavement on U. S. 80 from Blundell street in Ranger 6 miles east.

He Shuns Licenses Involved In Mishaps

DUNKIRK, N. Y.—James A. Vlachos was a little put out when he received license plates numbered 1-H 500 instead of 1-H 300. He had been receiving the latter number for several years and decided to investigate the change.

Vlachos, as a hobby, keeps a record of the license numbers of automobiles involved in accidents in the Dunkirk area. Glancing through his notes, the motorist was shocked to find that the 1-H 500 plates had been involved in fatal accidents in 1939 and 1940.

That was enough for Vlachos. He applied and got a new pair with a number that carried no blemishes, at least according to his records.

Doomed Men Not To Be Put On The Air

COLUMBIA, La., March 7.—Gov. Sam Jones and Attorney General Eugene Stanley today halted plans of four Arkansas convicts to broadcast last minute statements before their scheduled hangings at noon.

Local Anesthesia Urged After Surgery

ST. LOUIS — Sustained local anesthesia for several days after abdominal operations has been found to promote recovery and lessen pain shock, according to Dr. Robert Zollinger of Harvard University.

Dr. Zollinger told the Society of University Surgeons here that the procedure consisted essentially of blocking nerve centers with anesthetics in oil.

According to Dr. Zollinger, pain has been found to be a dominant factor in post-operative complications, including sudden weakness, prolonged lassitude and fatal shock. By submerging pain until healing has begun, recovery is expedited, he said.

Report From Camp Purely Erroneous

EL PASO, Tex.—An El Paso newspaper received this query from a Chicago paper: "We have report that one third of soldiers at Fort Bliss are stricken by scarlet fever epidemic and that rest have been ordered to stay drunk to avoid germs. Please check and wire answer."

The reply: "Scarlet fever report erroneous. Single member of one troop had scarlet fever weeks ago. Any liquor drinking done is purely personal prerogative."

Chaplain Lists a Few Items To Go To a New Recruit

FORTORD, Cal. — Chaplain W. V. Morgan of the 13th Engineers has prepared a six-point plan for enabling the "folks back home" to make their soldier boy in camp happy.

The six suggestions are:

- 1—Mail is a big thing in the life of a young man in camp. He should receive a letter or two every week.
- 2—Laundry is a difficult problem. Send a handkerchief of a pair of socks now and then.
- 3—A little nifty now and then is great in oiled paper.
- 4—A soldier can't always get to a post office. Send a book of stamps.
- 5—Send the home town paper.
- 6—Resolve to send a little package every week. Send one thing at a time—tobacco, razor blades, camphor ice for chapped lips.

Veterans Service Officers To Be In Eastland Mar. 21

J. H. Mitchell of the Eastland American Legion organization, announces that J. T. Gray of Abilene, Veterans State Service officer for 60 West Texas counties, will be in Eastland for one day, March 21, at which time he will be glad to interview any and all war veterans, their widows and other dependents with the view of rendering them such assistance as is possible.

Both Gray and Mitchell will be at the Eastland county courthouse on March 21 and invite veterans to bring their problems to them.

Guard Training May Get An Extension

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The war department may ask congress to extend the year the federal training of the National Guard by another six to 12 months, unless the international situation eases, authoritative sources reported today.

Statistician Says Prices May Remain Stable Six Months

AUSTIN, Texas—Calming the fears of many Texas people, a University of Texas business statistician believes that retail prices will not rise unduly for several months, and predicts that 1941 dollar sales will reach an all-time peak even exceeding those of 1929.

Texas business, according to Dr. F. A. Buechel, assistant director of the University's Bureau of Business Research, will continue to expand until early fall at least.

A composite index of Texas business, compiled by the Bureau from six major industries—employment, payrolls, miscellaneous freight carloadings, runs of crude oil to stills, department stores sales and electric power consumption—is 10 points higher than in January, 1940.

These industries all showed substantial gains: employment, up 6.6 points; payrolls, up to 6.8 points; freight carloadings, up 7.9 points; crude runs, up 12.8 points; department stores sales, up 4.5 points; electric power consumption, up 17.6 points.

Many other Texas business factors charted by the Bureau likewise showed gains over January, 1940:

- Passenger car sales—up 39 per cent.
- Commercial car sales—up 43.4 per cent.
- Southern pine—production up 34 per cent, shipments up 53.4 per cent; unfilled orders at the month-end up 50.2 per cent.
- Cement—production up 47 per cent; shipments up 76.2 per cent; stocks down 15.7 per cent.
- Postal receipts—up almost 10 per cent.
- A few unfavorable trends were noted, however: Charters—80, down 44.1 per cent; liabilities, $395,000, up 16.4 per cent.
- Building permits—down 11.9 per cent.
- Purchases of savings bonds—down 18.1 per cent.

Closed World or Open World?

Putting aside for a moment the principal issues of Wendell Willkie's appearance before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, let us look at the last paragraph of his prepared statement. It is worth reading and re-reading, because in it he so succinctly and clearly stated the great issue which divides the world.

We must have courage, we must bravely do what our moral sense tells us ought to be done, said Willkie, and we must prepare ourselves to take part in laying the foundations of a world such as we would want our children to live in.

"That world cannot be a closed world. It must be an open world," he said.

There Willkie put his finger on the broad issue between the free nations of the world and the totalitarian nations. It is not a question of forms of government.

It is fair to say that the rest of the world was middling indifferent when Mussolini seized power in Italy. True, the world gazed a little when the castor oil heroes swept across Italy and shuddered when various freedom-loving people were summarily put to death. But in the main, the world was indifferent, and is indifferent today, to what kind of a government Italy has within Italy.

So with Germany. The rise to power of Hitler was viewed with a similar indifference as long as it appeared to be a purely German matter. Again, the outside world was nauseated by the racial persecutions, the blood baths, the concentration camps. But as long as Germany alone was forced to wallow in the bed she had made for herself, the world remained restlessly tolerant.

Then it gradually became apparent that neither totalitarian system was, or could be, content with that. The nature of both demanded constant interference with the affairs of other countries. All meddled directly in the internal politics of others. Such tolerance as others extended to them was not reciprocated—could not be reciprocated by regimes found and based on intolerance, built on evangelization.

They closed their borders to normal intercourse. They made exclusive trade agreements which effectually barred others from normal markets. They closed their communications, their libraries, their minds, as they closed their borders.

A free world must be an open world. There must be an opening of doors, a lowering of barriers, not their multiplication. That is the road on which every free country, every free person travels today.

Religious Drama Plays On Sunday Night's Program

"Ba Thane," a one act play of Burma is to be presented Sunday night at 7:30 o'clock at the First Methodist Church as the first major production of the Religious Drama Players for the year.

The play is moving human drama of the struggles and victories of a Burmese lad, who feeling himself betrayed by the very Christians who had taught him to love, goes out for revenge only to be saved by the faith of a loyal Christian. The whole range of emotions from humor to deep pathos is portrayed in the process of the play.

"At a time when the Eastern world as well as the Western world is torn with upheavals and even those who hold the Christian Faith are filled with cynicism concerning the outcome, this theme is most appropriate. In living drama this play declares the triumph of the good even when it seems to be overwhelmed by evil and when faith is flickering in the dark," thus the pastor, Rev. Lance Webb describes the play.

"Ba Thane" was written by Edna Baldwin, and is being directed by Mrs. Lance Webb. The characters are as follows:

Ba Thane, a young Burmese lad, Orville Harrell; Ma May, his sister, Christene Lema; Gordon Worth, an American Missionary, Lance Webb; Mrs. Worth, his wife, Mrs. Orville Harrell; Joan Worth, their daughter, Miss Betty Joe Coughlan; Joe Fox, an American oil driller, Wade Thomas; Richard Ordway, an American newspaper reporter, John Webb.

Sunday morning at 10:45, the pastor will preach on "Happy

Stokowski To Hear Youths In Dallas This Saturday

AUSTIN, Tex.—Fifteen young musicians from Texas, Oklahoma, and Louisiana will appear in a final audition before Leopold Stokowski in Dallas, on Saturday, March 8, J. C. Kellam, state NYA administrator, announced today.

Dallas is one of several cities which Stokowski will visit as he selects 100 members for the Orchestra, scheduled to tour the United States, Canada and Mexico this summer.

Texas musicians to be heard by Stokowski include Alfred Villani, English horn; Vithold Kushleika, viola; and Philmore Gilbert, trumpet; Fort Worth; and Raymond A. Rike, clarinet, Austin.

From Louisiana will come Adrian Geoffray, violin; Helen Enser, French horn; and Paul Guma, all of New Orleans; and Marguerite Munselle, harp; and Jean Harris, violin, both of University.

Oklahoma musicians to appear will be William W. Wright, violin; Norman; and Manuel Newman, violin; George Yeager, French horn; Ruth Herrick, flute-piccolo; and John A. Holmes, oboe, all of Oklahoma City.

Stokowski will be interviewed at 5 p. m. Saturday over Radio Station WFAA by John Rosenfield, Jr., Dallas News amusements editor; and Miss Marion Flagg, Dallas public school music supervisor.

The NYA assisted Stokowski in arranging preliminary and state auditions prior to the final audition in Dallas.

Tax Assessing To Be Taught Now By University

AUSTIN, Tex.—To teach stream lined methods of tax assessing, the University of Texas Bureau of Municipal Research today launched a training school for assessing officials that will move out to 30 Texas cities.

Under the direction of Aldro Jenks, itinerant instructor, the bureau's first two-weeks' course opens in Lufkin, March 3, Dr. Stuart MacCorkle, bureau director, said.

Sponsored jointly by the University fact-finding bureau and the State vocational education department, the assessing school will be held in every part of the state over a three-year period, MacCorkle said. It was set up following a recent meeting here of 18 assessing officials from Texas cities, and is backed by the Texas League of Municipalities.

MacCorkle pointed out that the extension classes will draw attendance not only from the town in which they are held, but from the surrounding territory.

"It is simply an effort on the bureau's part to carry its services free to the very doorsteps of the cities we work with," MacCorkle said. "We hope to be able not only to tell them how to improve assessing practices, but to show them how."

Schools will be held in Lufkin, Amarillo, Lubbock, Childress, Odessa, Stamford, Ballinger, Wichita Falls, Kerrville, Uvalde, Sinton, McAllen, Harlingen, Cuero, Wharton, Goose Creek, Beaumont, Austin, Bryan, Waco, Waxahachie, Denton, Mineral Wells, Livingston, El Paso, Dallas, San Antonio, Tyler, Mt. Pleasant and Greenville.

ACT FROM

SERIAL STORY

DRAFTED FOR LOVE

BY RUTH AYERS

COPYRIGHT, 1941.
NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY: There is a dance party for Ann on the eve of her wedding. But the congratulations Ann receives on the telephone and in person from on April's side. She tries to be the gay April again, but her father notices a difference. Hal proposes again and April knows that she can never marry him. After he leaves she bursts into tears. Then, suddenly, Ann and Kent are beside her.

ANN DISAPPEARS

CHAPTER XXIV

ANN followed April upstairs, her knock on the door imperative. "April!" she spoke her sister's name.

"Oh, Ann, don't mind me." April was struggling to pull herself together. She walked to the mirrored vanity and began to smear her mouth with lipstick.

"I think it's time we were truthful with each other," Ann said. Her voice was gentle. Her eyes, too, were the eyes of the real Ann, without steeliness or suspicion.

Ann went on, "I've guessed all along that you've been in love with Kent Carter since that time he came home on leave while I was away."

"Ann, you're being absurd."

"No, not absurd, April, but frank. We love each other very much, April. We're not alike in all ways, but we're sisters, just the two of us, April. Lots of times I've envied you because you've been beautiful and I'm not. I've resented you because you have all the admirers, the flowers, the dates. I've been jealous until it hurt. But Octavia said something tonight that expressed what I've always known deep down but haven't wanted to admit."

"Octavia?"

"Octavia said tonight when she was helping me dress, 'Once Ah thought Miss April had nothing more to her than that gold on the top of her head. Now Ah knows the real gold is in her heart.'"

"Oh—well, Octavia," April tried to smile it off, tried to find some way to stop Ann.

Ann persisted. "You've tried to cover up everything, even to the way you injured your ankle and paid off that wretch of a Winkie Appleman, and it's all been because you didn't want to hurt me. I think it's the most sporting thing I've ever known."

"But you're silly, Ann," April cried. "You're foolish to talk that way. There's nothing to what you're trying to say. It's your wedding day tomorrow. The house is all fixed. Mother and Dad are so happy for you! And Kent—what about Kent, Ann? You've forgotten about him in all this foolishness. Listen, honey, you and Kent are going to make a grand couple."

Ann stood there, still smiling, listening without interrupting.

"I'll come to visit you in your new home," April finished in a rush. "I'll be godmother to your first boy." She was up from the vanity table, almost pushing Ann from the room.

"Annie, go down and dance until morning and then sleep until noon. And don't get any more of those last-minute bridal brainstorms."

Ann turned one searching glance on her and then leaned quickly and kissed her cheek.

After that, the day was over for April Burnett.

She was too tired to think about it now, too weary to live it over. While the trio from Casa Blanca played in waltz time, she went to sleep.

THAT'S why she was up early the next morning, surprisingly refreshed, ready to face the last day before she would be really free. Yes, once the wedding was over, she would be clear of all remorse and doubts and decisions.

Nip had pushed his way into her room last night and slept curled on the floor beside her bed.

"You be quiet," she cautioned him, "this is a sleeping household."

As she bathed and dressed, April saw that the early morning sky gave evidence of a sunny day. A good omen for Ann. She was glad she had reassured her sister last night, quieted any doubts in Ann's troubled head.

Now for the red skating skirt and the blue suede jacket. If she went out for a brief walk with Nip, maybe it would bring some color into her cheeks and she wouldn't look like a mourner at the wedding.

"Hush," she kept saying to Nip. "One growl out of you and no walk." Nip hushed.

The wedding was set for 5 o'clock. Everything was in readiness for it, from Octavia's white-tied cake to Ann's orange blossoms. The house slept quietly after the festivities of last night. Likely, no one would stir until noon. So as April left her room bound for the walk, she tiptoed.

Her first surprise was in seeing that the door to Ann's room was ajar. Nip nosed ahead of her, poked his nose into the door. April stepped to close it and as she did, something struck her as wrong.

The bed was made, Ann's evening dress tossed lightly across it.

APRIL tried to reassure herself. Ann had probably gone downstairs for early coffee. But even as she went to check, she knew that Ann wouldn't be in the kitchen.

The kitchen was empty, spotless, untouched. Octavia had stayed up late to wash and put away the party dishes so everything would be spic-and-span for the great day of her "little lamb's" wedding.

The other rooms were empty and the inside lock was still across the front door. This cut off the last, dwindling hope that perhaps Ann had started off on an early walk, too.

"Something's wrong, Nip," April whispered, "dreadfully wrong."

Nip knew it and sniffed up and down the hall and behind the fern screen. Then a door of the kitchen creaked and opened. April almost jumped in fright.

"Who all's there?" a familiar voice was asking.

"Just me, Octavia."

"Anything I can do for you, Miss April?"

No one must know yet; the house mustn't be aroused. So April thought quickly. "Yes, Octavia, go back to bed and sleep your head off for hours. It's going to be a hard day."

When Octavia, satisfied and unsuspecting, disappeared behind the door, April started upstairs. Every step was an agony. Even Nip sensed it, his whiskers bristling.

It didn't take long to find the white envelope with her name on it in Ann's room. April held it, afraid to read, fearful of what answer her sister had found out of the three tangled lives.

Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Johnson are the proud parents of a new baby boy.

Curtis Redwine spent Tuesday night with William Kimbrough.

Everyone is invited to attend Sunday school here at this place every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

Safety leaders in Texas are convinced law enforcement has a prominent part in reducing traffic deaths. Without an adequate patrol to properly enforce reasonable traffic laws, Texas will still have unnecessary deaths occurring on the highways, they declare. In seeking a larger patrol, safety leaders cite the fact that there is only one patrolman for every 120 miles of state highways.

A major factor in New York Giants' hopes to finish higher than sixth in 1941 is whether Bill Jurges, above, has recovered from last season's beaming which gave him headaches, caused him to lose equilibrium when looking up for fly balls.

Boys Are Warned Of Flying Kites Near Power Lines

With the 1941 kite flying season at hand, J. E. Lewis, manager for Texas Electric Service Company, issued today his annual appeal to parents to warn children flying kites to keep away from electric lines.

"That the innocent pastime of kite flying can be exceedingly dangerous is brought out forcibly by the fact that, over the nation, many accidents occurred in the year just past because of children getting their metalized kites tangled in power lines, although here in Ranger we were fortunate in that local boys and girls were careful and the only damage that occurred was a few broken kites," according to Mr. Lewis.

"As we've warned before, too often children use metal wire in the place of kite string and when this wire comes in contact with a power line the result is instantly disastrous. Even plain kite strings sometimes carry current, especially if the string is wet. The best idea, regardless of how the kite is built or what kind of string is being used, is to see that it is flown in open spaces where no electric lines are located.

"If a kite should become entangled in electric lines, children should not climb the poles or use long sticks to try to get the kite down. Call our company office and a trained lineman will come to rescue the kite if it is possible to do so," Lewis stated.

The State convention of Texas Federation of Garden Clubs will be held in Harlingen, Texas, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, March 12, 13 and 14, and a number from the Eastland Civic League and Garden Club plan to attend.

Leaving Monday of next week, Mrs. Jack Ammer will attend as delegate from the club; and others going also are Mrs. Frank Castleberry, Mrs. Bam White, Mrs. John Sawyer and Mrs. E. E. Layton. They will return Saturday, it was announced today.

RANGER LIVESTOCK SHOW IS BIG SUCCESS IN SPITE OF BAD WEATHER ON THURSDAY

A large number of entries was received in the fifth annual Ranger Livestock Show, held Thursday, though the bad weather kept many from exhibiting animals, particularly in the fat lamb division.

The Eastland Chamber of Commerce exhibited the grand champion Jersey bull of the show, Billy Henderson of Eastland had the grand champion Jersey female, Dr. Bob Hodges of Ranger showed the grand champion beef type bull and D. O. Koonze of Desdemona had the grand champion beef type female of the show.

J. F. Donley of Ranger won a majority of the goat prizes, Dr. R. H. Hodges won most of the sheep prizes, while in the Jersey division several won more than one ribbon.

Traders Grocery of Ranger purchased the champion baby beef, exhibited by Coy Bargsley, paying a price of $149 for the winning baby beef.

In the Angora goat class J. F. Donley won seven first places, three second places and O. C. Penn of Cisco won two second places and one third place.

Thomas Fox won first place for boars of any age, Billy Henderson won second and Odell Plumley of Cisco won third. Plumley also won first place for sows, first prize for sows or gilts under one year of age went to Raymond Beck, Clayton Henderson won second and Donnie Carroll third. Beck won first place for fat barrows and Billy Henderson second, with Beck winning first place for litters under six months of age and Odell Plumley won second.

In the Rambouillet sheep class Roland Downton, Eastland, won a first and second place, H. C. Wilkinson, Ranger, won two first places and a third place and Vernon Sage, Cisco, won a first prize. Dr. R. H. Hodges of Ranger took all prizes in the Delaine sheep class, winning four first and four second prizes. He also won all prizes in the Corriedale sheep class with four firsts, three seconds and one third.

Dr. Hodges won first place for Hereford bulls, dropped prior to Jan. 1, 1940 with Clarence Ledbetter winning second and Roy McCleskey third. Billie Guess won first place for Hereford bulls dropped after Jan. 1, 1940; Ledbetter won first and third place for Hereford cows dropped prior to Jan. 1, 1940 and Roy McCleskey won second place; C. E. Mitchell won first and second places for Hereford cows dropped after Jan. 1, 1940, with Ledbetter winning third place.

Coleman Brown won first place for shorthorn bulls dropped prior to Jan. 1, 1940; B. O. Koonze won first in shorthorn bulls dropped after Jan. 1, 1940, with Z. L. Koonze winning second place and Coleman Brown third. J. L. Polan won first place for shorthorn cows dropped prior to Jan. 1, 1940; B. O. Koonze won first for shorthorn cows dropped after Jan. 1, 1940, with Frank Bargsley winning second place.

Kenneth Lee Mitchell of Strawn won first place for the fat beef type calves, dry lot fed, Billie Mitchell of Strawn won second and Byron Gordon won third and fourth places.

Coy Bargsley won first place for fat baby beef calves raised by nurse cows, and which sold to Traders Grocery, Ranger, for $149, with S. S. Faircloth, Jr., winning second place. Winners of ribbons in the Jersey classes, and the number of ribbons won were Eastland Chamber of Commerce, blue; Chester Ervin, Desdemona, two blue, one white; Billy Joe Moore, Eastland, one red, one white; Delbert Bonney, one red; Raymond Beck, one blue, one white; Steve Gideon, one white; Ted Small, Rising Star, one blue; W. M. Sumers, one white; L. C. Cooksey, Alameda, one red; L. H. Wood, one red; H. G. Adams, one blue; Billy Henderson, one blue; Oscar White, Jr., Rising Star, one white; Doyle Tow, Eastland, one red; Nolan Butler, Eastland, one red; Earl Erwin, Eastland, one blue, one red; Wince Graham, Eastland, one red; Bobby Fox, Breckenridge, one blue; Larkin Akers, Cisco, one white and Lindsey Neal, Rising Star, one red.

Judges of livestock were G. G. Gibson, assistant extension dairyman, Texas A. & M. College; Guy Powell, county agent, Coryell County; W. R. Lacey, county agent, Stephens County, and T. J. Caudle, vocational agricultural teacher of Cisco.

Charles H. Bell, show superintendent and Dr. Ross Hodges, general chairman, today thanked all who had any part in making the show a success, and particularly the judges, Elmo V. Cook, county agent; Arthur Pratt, assistant county agent; Jack Gray, vocational agricultural teacher of Rising Star; the Eastland County Fair Association; the Eastland

Chamber of Commerce, Fire Chief G. A. Murphy of Ranger and the entire Ranger Fire Department, who secured and erected pens.

A final tabulation on the number of animals exhibited showed 14 goats, 39 swine, 28 sheep, 24 beef type cattle and 26 Jerseys.

Ants Lead Men In Race For Survival

MINNEAPOLIS, Min.—In a neck-and-neck race for survival, man is lagging behind the ant, according to prof. William T. Heron, a University of Minnesota psychologist.

"It seems to me that up to now the small-brained insects have been winning the race," he said. The reason for this, he explained has gone in cycles while ants and similar insects—flies, social beetles and bees—have continued steadily for 15,000,000 years.

Their survival is due, Heron said to control of reproduction and strict division of labor, "in some instances." Man's civilization, however, developed because man's brains enabled him to adapt himself to new situations, while ants' instinct is sufficient only to meet all situations in the same manner.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS ACIDS

Help 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes Flush Out Poisonous Waste
If you have an excess of acids in your blood, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may be overworked. These tiny filters and tubes are working day and night to help Nature rid your system of excess acids and poisonous waste.

When diseased kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of appetite, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Kidneys may need help the same as bowels, so ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Misfit Uniforms No Longer a Part Of Recruit's Life

By United Press
FORT BLISS, Tex.—Soldiers of the army's new draftee battalions, as well as enlisted men, need not fear they will be forced to wear misfitting apparel as part of their uniforms as popular opinion has pictured.

A tour through the draftee induction center at Fort Bliss, typical of the nation's military reception posts, shows that Uncle Sam has missed no details in clothing soldiers with an eye toward comfort and efficiency.

The ill-fitting footwear that provoked World War jokes is unheard of, and that goes for the rest of the soldier's outfit, too. From hat to shoes he is carefully-measured and issued correct sizes.

Upon entering the huge warehouse at Fort Bliss, where six million dollars worth of personal equipment is stored, a soldier is speedily measured and accurately sized-up for everything he wears. The sizes as shown by the measuring tape are recorded on a slip given to the soldier.

Next he is taken to a block long counter where a clerk begins to issue equipment, all personal articles, in sizes corresponding to those on the slip.

First the soldier is given an overcoat which is laid spread out on the counter. He pulls the coat along the counter and the clerk piles the other clothing on it. When he reaches the counter's end the soldier has his complete wardrobe. He picks it up in his arms and walks out a nearby door and is directed to his quarters.

The entire operation, from the time a soldier is measured until he has been given his last article of clothing, takes less than five minutes.

Each man is given the following items:

Two woolen blankets, one comforter, two khaki shirts, two wool shirts, two pair of wool trousers, two pair of khaki trousers, two pair of shoes, seven suits of underwear, two khaki neckties, two black neckties, seven pair of socks, four handkerchiefs, one field cap and one overcoat or mackinaw.

One toilet kit, one mattress, four sheets, one pillow, two pillow cases, two mattress covers, one bath towel, two hand towels, one barracks bag one foot locker and necessary insignia and hat cords.

Cotton, khaki and wool, olive drab, are the materials used in uniforms. At wholesale cost each soldier's personal articles cost about $65.
