German Consuls Ordered From United States

GOOD POOL FOR COUNTY IS PLANNED

blood bank, with approximately 1,000 men in Eastland and other counties having their blood typed and Wasserman tests made at actual cost, which is estimated to be less than one cent per test, is being planned, under the auspices of the Eastland-Callahan County Medical society and civic organizations of the towns in the counties, it has been announced by Joe Holt, laboratory technician of Ranger, who is in charge of the idea.

Holt explained today that civic organizations in the towns which had been contacted to date, had agreed to cooperate in the idea. The work is to be done by the laboratory department of the Texas Clinic.

Holt explained that the blood could be tested at a very small cost, with his contribution of time in making the tests. The blood would then be given a card showing their blood type, which would be carried at all times, and used by hospitals in case of emergency. Their blood type being known, they could donate blood in case of necessity when relatives or friends of similar blood types needed transfusions.

One wishing to be typed may do so any night this week, between the hours of 7:00 and 10:00 p. m., at the West Texas State laboratory. Arrangements will be devised to have a representative from each town in Eastland and Callahan counties.

The movement was described by Holt as suggested it to the medical society, as a particularly useful defense measure.

Operation of Registrants And Others Required

cooperation of registrants and employers with their respective Service boards is essential for the proper placing of available men in the National Defense program, General J. A. S. State Selective Service director, declared today.

One of the trouble in classifying men, he said, "is the lack of understanding of the registrants and their employers, too, have a responsibility to help the Selective Service function to the best of their ability."

He said that, through misapprehension, many registrants and employers do not recognize their obligations. Page said that in some cases, employers have failed to give the local board by giving information about registrants when the employer alone at these registrants were in military occupations. Emphasis should be placed on the fact that the local board at the registrant sends in a dossier, and not wait until the man has been classified. Page emphasized the duty of each registrant to answer the question: "Where do I serve my Nation now?"

In this analysis, the registrant should consult the Registering Advisory Boards which are set up under the Selective Service System, he declared, to present the complete picture of his skill and capacity.

Apaches and Navajos Nickname The Two European Dictators As Being "Mustach Smeller" and "Gourd Chin"

SANTA FE, N. M.—"Mustache Smeller" and "Gourd Chin" had better watch their step, for the Navajos and Apaches are on the warpath.

"Mustache Smeller," in the lingo of the Indians of the Southwest, is Adolf Hitler. "Gourd Chin" is Benito Mussolini.

They care little for the issues and international aspects of the war. They're interested only in Hitler and Mussolini.

Many are not waiting to be called up, but are volunteering. Among the volunteers was Dugan-Chee-Bekis. The 80-year-old Navajo stalked into a selective service reservation, voiced his contempt for dictators, and announced he would like to join the air corps.

He was rejected, but many of his tribesmen are serving in the forces. The Navajos number more than 50,000 in western New Mexico and northwestern Arizona. They are the largest tribe in the nation.

They are peace-loving and content to tend their sheep and goats, but when registration day came more than 4,500 signed up for the draft. They affixed their thumbprints to the blanks, since there is no written Navajo language.

"The big wind that speaks" is the Navajo agency's short wave radio—informs them when their number appears. The transmitter is at Window Rock, Ariz., and the news is picked up by some 400 receiving stations. It is then passed along by word of mouth until the selectee hears of it.

The Jicarilla Apaches and the Mescalero Apaches, likewise, answered the draft call 100 percent, but unlike the Navajos, none of the Apaches was rejected because of physical handicaps.

Barnabe Nache, a grandson of one of Gerónimo's war chiefs, was among the first to leave the Mescalero reservation for the army. "Not one young man has been a conscientious objector or has objected to fighting," Supt. A. E. Stover, of the Jicarilla reservation, said.

Luna Vicenti, 101-year-old Apache scout who reportedly aided in the capture of Gerónimo, advised his grandson to go into the army. "I am in favor of this draft for the Apaches and think they should go for their country needs them," he declared.

Pensions Being Paid Regularly To Many In Texas

ABILENE, Tex.—Since January 1, 1940, the Social Security Board has been making monthly payments to retired workers and to their dependents, and to the families of deceased workers who had been employed in jobs covered by old-age and survivors insurance. Workers now employed in such jobs are building up credits toward a retirement income in old age and toward monthly insurance payments for their families if they should die.

The number and amount of monthly awards and lump-sum death benefits paid in the State of Texas for the months of January, February, and March of 1941 are shown below:

705 retired workers	$13,645
169 aged wives	1,757
785 children	8,802
38 aged widows	715
305 widows with young children	5,540
Eight parents	105
865 lump-sum death benefits	94,207

Old-age and survivors insurance is operated entirely by the Federal Government, W. O. King, manager of the Abilene office of the Social Security Board, stated. In a statement releasing the claims statistics, he continued:

"Under this system, employees in commerce and industry pay a Federal tax of one penny out of each dollar of wages. Employers pay an equal tax. Out of a fund in the Federal Treasury, insurance payments are made to workers when they retire after age 65, to wives and dependent children of retired workers, and to families of workers who die.

"Old-age retirement benefits for workers were provided under the Social Security Act as passed in 1935; however, insurance protection for the families of workers has been in effect only since January 1, 1940. This feature of the Social Security Act is of particular significance to workers with young children," King explained.

"For example," King explained, "the young man down the street who has a wife and two children has been employed in a department store at $150 a month for several years. He has not been able to save much out of his salary. Suppose he is killed accidentally or otherwise. His widow and two children will not be left destitute, because they will have about $54 a month coming to them from old-age and survivors insurance until the children are grown."

THE WEATHER
WEST TEXAS—Cloudy, thunder showers east and south tonight. Tuesday partly cloudy, local showers south.

Undercover Work?

State Fair Shows Aid Texas Poultry To National Lead

Texas has come from some place below thirtieth state in the nation in poultry production in 1910, to the second ranking State in the Union, according to statistics just released in Washington.

The advance of the state in poultry production can be traced directly to the poultry show at the State Fair of Texas, for until 1913 there were no Texas chickens shown at this institution's poultry show. Inseted the poultry show consisted of four or five car loads of show chickens. These chickens were bred for show purposes only, and the owners pooled their entries, making the entire circuit of fairs.

It was in 1913 that officials of the State Fair of Texas decided on a Texas Poultry Show and entries were limited to Breeders Show. At that time less than 500 head of poultry was shown, and these were of the mongrel type of farm yard chickens.

However, the show began to grow. During the intervening years the State Fair of Texas has shown more than 150,000 chickens, ducks, geese, turkeys, pigeons and other members of the poultry family.

MOVE TO FORT WORTH
Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Henderson of Olden have moved to their new home, 2820 Merida Ave., Ft. Worth, where they will make their permanent home. They purchased the home more than a year ago, prior to Henderson's retirement.

ROBIN MOOR'S 35 SURVIVORS ARE RESCUED

CAPETOWN, South Africa, June 16.—The 35 missing passengers and crew members of the torpedoed American freighter, Robin Moor, arrived in Capetown today aboard a British ship that had rescued them at sea. Previously 11 crew members and passengers had been landed in South America.

The official announcement of the arrival of seven missing passengers and 28 crew members was made by Capetown authorities. The safe arrival of the 35 remaining survivors of the Robin Moor accounts for all the ship's passengers and crew. Ten crew members and one passenger were rescued by a Brazilian steamer.

There was no immediate official statement on the details of the rescue of the last of the Robin Moor passengers and crew members.

Water And Sewage Courses Offered By Texas University

AUSTIN, Tex.—National defense training courses in water and sewage plant operation are now being offered as part of the curricula in the University of Texas, A. & M. College, and Texas Technological College, according to Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Department as a national defense measure and are tuition-free.

The courses provide three months of full-time training for water treatment and sewage plant treatment operators. The courses were designed to meet the need of additional trained water workers and sewage operators to serve in municipal plants and in the plants of military and naval establishments.

The courses include instruction in general principles of sanitation, principles of water treatment, sanitary water analysis, water treatment, plant operation, principles of sewage treatment, sewage analysis, and sewage treatment plant operation. Practical application of sanitary problems is being stressed, and much of the course has been designated as laboratory work in the water and sewage plants of nearby municipalities.

That each student may obtain the maximum benefits from the defense course, enrollment has been limited to fifteen students per school.

"The State Health Department wishes to commend the University of Texas, Texas A. & M. College, and Texas Technological College for their cooperation in making these courses possible, thus supplying trained professional water and sewage plant operators at a time of national emergency when the need for such personnel in Texas is particularly great," Dr. Cox concluded.

Industry Brings World Fair Oil Exhibit To Texas

Depicting the history of petroleum since its discovery in America in 1857, the Oil Exhibit which was a feature of the New York World's Fair, has been donated to the State Fair of Texas, and will become a permanent exhibit here, it has been announced by Harry L. Seay, president of the State Fair of Texas.

The exhibit has been donated to the State Fair of Texas by the Petroleum Industry Exhibition, which consisted of The Richfield Oil Corporation of New York, the American Oil Company, Gulf Oil Corporation, Shell Union Oil Corp., Sun Oil Company, the Atlantic Refining Co., Sinclair Refining Co., the Socomey-Vacuum Oil Co., Inc., Tide Water Associated Oil Co., Phillips Petroleum Co., and the Ethyl Gasoline Corporation.

The exhibit will be housed in the General Exhibit Building and will occupy a total area of 24,300 square feet. More than 10,000 adults and children visited the exhibit at New York World's Fair.

Missing Captain of 'Robin Moor'

Oil portrait of Capt. Edward W. Myers of Baltimore, Md., skipper of the ill-fated 'Robin Moor' reportedly torpedoed by a German submarine off the coast of Brazil, May 21. He is one of 35 passengers and crew members still missing.

that reminds me...

Saturday night in Eastland was a momentous occasion for the people of this entire section of the state. Not only in terms of thinking but in terms of deciding the qualifications of the man best fitted for the job of filling the seat of the late Hon. Morris Shepard in the United States Senate from Texas.

Lyndon Johnson was the keynote of focal attention to thousands of citizens who listened to an address by him in the interests of his candidacy for this highest office in the gift of the people from Texas.

Fortunately for Texans he came up the "Hard way." Boys who make the grade without the facilities of railroads, and at the time he was a kid, without any other means of traffic from one town to the other than buggies, wagons and ox carts has got to have it in "in to go places like he has done. Model "T's" and a few others in the Automobile angle were just coming into existence in the days when Lyndon Johnson was a boy and folks just didn't have too much confidence in them contraptions then, in fact anything that scared the horses and mules "just ain't no good."

But Lyndon Johnson evidently saw a star somewhere in the horizon and set his goal to reach it. Johnson City where he was born in Blanco county wasn't near a railroad and it didn't have any navigation facilities because the Pedronalis river nearby has a rocky bed, wide and beautiful and still the smell and atmosphere of that country in Texas is bound to turn out one hundred percent American citizens.

Of course this doesn't mean that every part of Texas can't turn out one hundred percent American citizens, but it does mean that hardships and not being born with a silver spoon somehow seasons a man of the quality that Texas needs in the Senate just a little bit more with good common sense "horse sense" that will revert to the best interests of all the people.

Those who were present were loud in their vociferous applause as to his plans and policies which he outlined in his masterful address.

BRITISH TAKE OFFENSIVE IN EGYPT, SYRIA

British Imperial forces, aided by widespread Royal Air Force planes, embarked on a scouting offensive in the Western Desert today and drove a deepening wedge into Syria.

The drive into the Western Desert was launched in the Sollum region of Egypt and heavy fighting was reported to be in progress.

In Syria Allied columns occupied Saida and Kiseoune. The Royal Air Force patrol over Kiseoune encountered a French detachment of planes and in the ensuing encounter shot down two of the French machines, it was reported. In a fighter raid on armed vehicles in the same area two bombers were reported to have been shot down.

The Royal Air Force was said to have carried out protective patrols over British warships now in operation off the Syrian coast, and intercepted two enemy formations, driving both of them off and inflicting damage to a number of planes.

Defense Becomes Number One Job On WPA Program

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—National defense has become the number one WPA program activity in Texas, State Work Projects Administrator H. P. Drought declared today, reporting in his detailed accounting of WPA accomplishments during the past five and one-half years that more than one-fourth of the 73,901 Texas WPA workers today are at work on defense projects.

Road-building, relegated for the first time since the inception of WPA in July, 1935, to second place by the defense program, leads all other types of WPA completed work with 27,924 miles of roadways finished. Farm-to-market routes have accounted for 25,415 miles of these WPA road improvements.

On Texas roads, WPA figures show, 5,207 new bridges have been built and 1,536 hazardous and outmoded structures have been rebuilt. WPA workers have installed 23,496 new culverts.

Barracks, warehouses and other military construction work are now assuming a dominant position in the WPA building program which has previously encompassed the erection and reconstruction of 3,136 public buildings in Texas, including such edifices as 581 schools, 185 gymnasiums, 18 hospitals, 21 fire stations, and 16 auditoriums.

Expansion of water distribution and sewage disposal systems in communities boomed by military and defense industry concentration has diverted much WPA energy into the type of work which, during normal times, involved the construction of public utility systems in 129 Texas towns, including the installation of 618 miles of water lines and 795 miles of storm and sanitary sewers.

Currently at work on twelve strategically-located airports in Texas, WPA workers have previously built four new airports and improved 24 others in the state. Airway markers have been placed in 373 localities and six new beacons have been erected.

Among other major construction work listed by Drought were the following items: 97 new stadiums built, 27 parks built and 160 improved, 13 golf courses built and 21 improved, 125 athletic fields built and 185 improved, 45 new swimming pools built, 50 conservation, flood and erosion dams constructed, and ten fish hatcheries reconstructed.

House And Senate Still Can't Agree Upon Adjournment

AUSTIN, June 16.—The Texas House of Representatives was unable to agree with the State Senate today upon a time for ending the current session of the Texas Legislature and voted to recess without pay from June 20 to July 15, to be followed by a sine die adjournment on July 16,

PROPAGANDA OFFICES ARE ALSO CLOSED

Order Closing 24 Consulates Is Effective By July 10 Upon Order of President.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—President Roosevelt today ordered closure of German consular and propaganda offices in the United States and expulsion of German employes on charges of improper activities "inimical to the welfare of the country."

The order does not break off relations between Berlin and Washington because the German embassy in Washington was not affected by the presidential order. The order is effective not later than July 10.

The expulsion and closure order affected 24 consular offices, including that of Fritz Wiedmann in San Francisco, over which there has been much controversy, and that of Baron Edgar von Spiegel, of New Orleans. Both consuls have been accused on numerous occasions of propaganda activities in behalf of the Nazi party in Germany.

Propaganda offices ordered closed and German employes removed from the United States included the German Library of Information, the German Railway and Tourist Agency and the Transoceanic News Service. DNB, the official German press association representative in Washington was not affected by the order.

The closure-expulsion order was the second diplomatic blow against the Axis in the United States in the past few days. President Roosevelt impounded and froze all German and Italian assets in the United States, Saturday, as well as the assets of captive states now dominated by Germany.

There was immediate similar action of reprisal in Italy while a German spokesman believed that reprisals were due in Germany.

Coincident with the order the treasury department revealed that funds of the German American Bund and other "fascist" organizations in the United States were subject to the fund freezing order issued Saturday.

Call From General Wasn't Any Joke For A Lieutenant

By United Press
FORT SILL, Okla.—Recently Lieut. Travis E. Perrenot of San Antonio was in his quarters here when the telephone rang.

"This is General Allin," the voice said over the wire. "I would like to have the limbs on some of my trees trimmed."

Sensing a practical joke, Lieut. Perrenot quipped: "Quit your kidding because I am busy."

Perrenot was pretty brusque about the whole thing because he "recognized" the voice of a fellow officer. After the voice on the phone kept insisting on the tree trimming, Perrenot said he would let the general talk to his maid. The young officer closed the conversation with a defiant "phooey."

Later Perrenot, worried, decided to call the general. When he heard the commanding officer's voice he had a sinking feeling so he hung up and rushed double-quick to the general's quarters and offered his apologies.

Those 'International Bankers'

Michael Edelstein is dead and buried. Does it seem late in the day to take note of that? The New York congressman died suddenly of a heart attack in the House cloak-room immediately after making his last impassioned speech. The customary tributes were made by his colleagues, and it was duly noted that his last words were concerned with the essential equality of men and the love they have for freedom.

It would be unwarranted, no doubt, to imply that Edelstein died from the emotional strain of that last speech. He "should have died hereafter," like Lady Macbeth, and when the heart stops suddenly, no one has a formula to say how much was contributed by this word, that emotion, the other physical failure. No one can know whether the sting of the words of the speaker preceding him contributed much, or any, to his dying.

Edelstein is gone and can no longer dispute those words. It is so much more the duty of others to discuss them candidly.

They were the old, familiar, moth-eaten charge, hurled forth in the usual general terms, that "a little group of our international Jewish bankers" has been trying to lead the United States toward war.

Such a group either exists, or it does not. Either it is acting thus, or it is not. No good purpose, and many an evil purpose, may be served by repeating this phrase, repeating it again and again in a sinister and mysterious tone, always without specific evidence. It should be demonstrated, or left unsaid.

To begin with, it's pretty clear that international bankers these days don't have the weight they used to have, and that they are far less free than they used to be in throwing about the weight they do have. Further, it remains to be shown that such international bankers as happen to be Jewish are any more united on any single point of view than those who happen to be Christian. Yet the dark insinuation comes forward again and again, always without specific evidence subject to check.

The best that can be said about those who propagate these sly innuendoes is that they are ill-formed. The worst is that they are deliberately trying to create the kind of schisms in the United States which so effectively cleft France asunder, and which helped Hitler to power in Germany.

Michael Edelstein is dead and buried, dead in the very act of fighting a scurrilous and thoughtless charge which has so often been advanced to create division and confusion. The fight for clear and demonstrable truth, and against dark innuendo, goes on.

Once we read fashions to see what was going on now we read them to see what's being pulled off.

SERIAL STORY

CALIBAN FROM CALEB

BY NORMAN KAHL

COPYRIGHT, 1941, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY, Angus MacPhillips, truck driver, wants to marry Adoreen, Mickletwidge, pretty waitress in a roadside diner. But Adoreen dreams of a career on the stage or in the movies. Customers encourage this idea, and Adoreen convinces that New York is waiting to cheer her entrance. But she can't see writing down to life as a truck driver's wife on $125 a month. She promises to give Angus an answer on his next trip.

CHAPTER II

JUST as soon as Angus coaxes his ton-and-a-half truck over the top of Dunbar's Hill, he can see the lights of Herbie's Curbside Cafe about a mile down the road. Usually Angus takes the truck out of first gear and lets it coast down the slope in second, but tonight he doesn't bother.

He is in no particular hurry to get there. He hates to admit it, but he is afraid. Nothing that he can handle with his fists can scare him like this, but Adoreen can put him out for the count by flicking an eyelid.

He isn't sorry he asked Adoreen to marry him, and he hopes the answer will be yes. But he is afraid it might be no, and he is in no hurry to get jilted by the cutest little package that ever slid a platter of eggs across a marble counter.

Half a dozen trucks are piled up in the dirt next to Herbie's, and Angus squeezes in between a couple of semi-trailers. He is hoping he will get a minute alone with Adoreen without one of the boys busting in and making smart-aleck cracks.

The place is full of smoke when Angus walks in, and some of the fellows yell at him. Angus just waves and grabs a stool in front of where Millie is slapping butter on a dozen slices of bread.

"Hello, Millie," says Angus.

"Addie in the kitchen?" Millie swings around like she is about to suggest that somebody go climb a tree, but when she sees Angus, her face softens a little and she says, "Oh, it's you."

"Can I go in the kitchen, Millie?"

"Sure, sure. Go ahead. I'm busy. Don't bother me now."

Angus pushes his hair back under his cap, and it comes right out again. He takes a quick look around the place and ducks into the kitchen. He gulps once, and then he says, "Hello, Addie." But no one answers, so he tries again before he realizes the kitchen is empty.

HE is about to go back into the other room when Millie shows up. Her face is wet with perspiration and her hair looks like a thatched roof. "Now look here, Angus MacPhillips, don't ask any questions. I'm busy and I ain't got time to swap any conversation with you. I'm all alone and I'm trying to feed that mob out there without passing out any ptomaine."

Angus is bewildered and much more scared than if Adoreen were around. "But where's Addie? I thought she was gonna have Saturday night off."

Millie wipes her hands on her apron and fishes around in her pocket. She hands Angus a letter. "Looks as if this is for you," she says. Then she grabs a couple of steaming platters and heads for the door.

Angus rips open the envelope. It is a letter from Adoreen, and he sits down to read it.

"Dear Angus: I am writing a few lines just to let you know I have decided to go to New York and seek my fortune like we talked about so many times. I saw an ad for some chorus girls in a New York paper that a salesman left here and if that isn't opportunity knocking, then I don't know what is. Even though it's not a big job I am willing to start at the bottom and dance in a

The filling station attendant is a genial, gray-haired man who has seen nearly everything. He squints uncertainly at the oily, yellow drops that drip from the corners of the truck and hit the pavement. "Looks like somethin' leakin', Buddy," he says.

"Just some butter."

The filling station guy misses the tank and shoots gasoline all over his shoes. "You didn't, by any chance, say butter?"

"Yeah," says Angus. "Meltin' a little. Nothin' serious."

The gray-haired fellow gulps and he is relieved when Angus finally drives off down the road.

It is not until late in the afternoon when Angus runs into trouble. He sees it coming in his rear-view mirror, and it is riding on a motorcycle and wearing the uniform of a state trooper. The needle on Angus' speedometer says 65, and Angus remembers signs that are pretty clear about the speed limit in the state being 45. So he pushes the accelerator down as far as it will go and moves down the road another three miles before the cop catches up to him.

The officer is very red and very mad and very hot and has practically no sense of humor. He looks at Angus a minute and boils some more. Then he sniffs around and looks suspiciously at the rich golden creamery product that is streaming out near the front of the truck.

"Too bad," says he, "that we keep the hot seat only for murderers."

"I am in a hurry to get somewhere, Officer," Angus explains. "You don't say?" says the cop. "I gotta get my girl."

The cop sneers. "Don't tell me there's someone that loves you, besides your mother."

"She's just in New York. She ran away from me to get a job in a chorus."

"Oh, yeah. Well, I wouldn't blame her if she got a job in a coal mine just to get away from you. I'm going to give her a hand. I'll keep you away for a little while longer. You're coming with me."

Putting Around The Country Club

By A Poor Putter

Well folks, after an absence of two weeks during which time we have been "puttern" around the state, making the acquaintance of the various golf courses, tourist camps, cafe owners, garage mechanics, crazy drivers, chiggers and sunburn, we are glad to return to dear old Ranger and especially to the country club which rivals the best we saw and played in our travels.

During our absence great things have taken place in the golfing world. The national open was played at Fort Worth and numerous of our members were over there watching the big shots. Cisco has held their annual invitation and some of our "boys" made good again. For instance JIMMY PHILLIPS got revenge on his old rival, DICK AMPITIN, by beating him 5 and 4 in the quarter finals Saturday afternoon—then went on to the finals and was only defeated by TOMMY BOLT of Abilene, 1 up, for the championship. Some of the other Ranger players who entered the Cisco tournament were R. V. COLE, W. R. COLE, E. L. NORRIS, CHIEF WILLIAMS, FRED DREINHOFFER and COACH JENNINGS.

But the big news was in FELTON BRASHIER shooting that hole-in-one on number seven. When one stops to think and remember that many of the world's best golfers have never made a hole-in-one. This feat stands out as all the more remarkable. But this time we claim our friend, FELTON is classed as a professional, for we understand the boys who were playing with him PAID to witness this hole in one.

In spite of the fact that Cisco was holding their tournament and some of our players were over there together with a number who were in the gallery, and also in spite of the hard rain Saturday morning, we had 30 play around Saturday afternoon. We see some out-of-town people on hand again—PETE ANDREWS, VIRGIL SEAFERRY and CHAS. ELLIS of Eastland were over and J. B. STUART of Strawn was registered.

Sunday we had our customary turnout, but missed some regular golfers who again either were playing at CISCO or went over to see the matches—43 played Sunday. Many of which played both in the morning and afternoon.

Seven were over from Eastland: TURNER, JACK COLLINS, SPINK HOWARD, BOB STEEL, J. W. LIGDON, PARKS POE, DON PARKER, C. J. OWENS, J. W. HARVEY, JERRY BAILEY, and PETE ANDREWS, all being registered from the county seat.

MR. and MRS. W. W. BAILEY were down from Breckenridge, and those regulars from Gorinn were again on hand, WADE SMITH and EARL PITTMAN.

It has been announced that Wednesday of this week the ladies of the Oil Belt Golf association will hold their monthly meet at CISCO. Many from Ranger are expected to attend this event, which always proves to be of interest. MRS. GLEN WEST of Ranger is the president of the Ladies Oil Belt Golf association and will preside.

And now since we are back on the job you can expect to see more of the "puttern" and all the news from out the country club way.

The ROAD AHEAD

Old Man Texas is today looking ahead and planning.

Beside the great farming and ranching country which Texans have built, he sees a new industrial empire here.

Already the start has been made. Some industries, such as petroleum, are now showing what can be done to utilize Texas' vast natural resources. Today this industry refines with Texas labor over four-fifths as much oil as the State produces. Its products make up nearly one-half of all Texas manufacturing. Altogether petroleum provides the living for almost one-sixth of our people. But this is only a beginning.

Texas has many other raw materials, unexceeded by any other State. Texas has in oil and gas the cheap and dependable fuel supply essential to industry. Texas is the gateway to Latin America, our new foreign market.

Each new industry means more jobs. It makes added tax values for our State and local governments, bigger payrolls for our workers, and greater prosperity for you and every other Texan.

dress. Those who went there with a skeptical mind we feel sure were convinced of his ability to best serve the state in this hour of crisis. He has not only proven by his words as to his power in Washington but has already proven by his past record in his close communication with the most powerful man in the world, President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

No one will deny that all eyes are on what the President will do next. Neither will one deny that whatever he does the majority of the Senate and Congress are behind him as well as the people of the nation. Is it not fitting then, that Lyndon Johnson with his proven record is the one and only man to send to Washington as our United States Senator to fill the seat of his predecessor who was also a profound advocate of the Roosevelt policies in our present world turmoil?

We noted particularly during his entire address that he did not make any rash promises. He did state that he advocated certain government policies and would do all in his power to bring them about. We believe that if any man can do it, Lyndon Johnson can.

We're quoting Terence "No man was ever endowed with a judgment so correct and judicious in regulating his life but that circumstances, time and experience would teach him something new, and apprise him that of those things with which he thought himself the best acquainted he knew nothing; and that those ideas which in theory appeared most advantageous were found, when brought into practice, to be altogether inapplicable." Some candidates found it so and in their lust for more power attempted to throw the blame elsewhere. Lyndon Johnson makes no rash promises. He has a platform and by the will of his constituents and the power of his closeness to the Administration, he can get things done.

And speaking of promises Fielding said "The man who is wontonly profuse of his promises ought to sink his credit as much as a tradesman would by uttering a great number of promissory notes payable at a distant day. The truest conclusion in both cases is, that neither intend or will be able to pay. And as the latter most probably intends to cheat you of your money, so the former at least designs to cheat you of your thanks."

West Texas in weighing the facts can well in enmasse give Lyndon Johnson the go signal in the United States Senate. Don't be misled by promises and catchy phrases. One candidate now says he will get from the Federal Government two dollars for one to pay old age pensions. Can he? Think it over.

Statistics on 1940 Strike Situation Don't Do Much to Brighten Today's Picture

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—It's too bad that statistics on some of the most important things in life like population, tax delinquency, and the per capita consumption of prunes take so long to collect, classify, cogitate on and conclude from. In the perfect state, we should know not later than Jan. 2 whether the prune seeds of the year before if laid end to end, would reach from Pasadena to Providence, or just to Palo Alto.

This being a democracy, however, we take our statistics as we get them and apropos of this, it might be mentioned that the Bureau of Labor Statistics, BLS in the Department of Labor, has but recently been able to release its study of strikes in 1940. Just what is to be gained by this compilation is something that will have to be left to you. It does show us where we have been and it may show us where we're going.

There were slightly more than 2500 strikes in 1940 in which about 577,000 workers were involved and 6,700,000 man-days of labor were lost. Comparing that with the average of the previous five years it's not so bad, for the 1940 figures are 12 per cent under in number of strikes; they involved only 51 per cent as many workers and there was only 40 per cent as much time lost. The average 1940 strike though tied up 230 men for eleven and a half days, or 2645 man-days of labor lost. Or, taking the length of strike without reference to the number of workers, the average for 1940 was three weeks.

The interesting thing to do is to go on from there and see what the strikes were for and what they accomplished. As to the causes of strikes, one surprising sidelight is that of the 2500 strikes in 1940, 1541 were A. F. of L. and 689 were C. I. O. Seventy-seven strikes were of the now generally condemned jurisdictional variety.

THE difficulty of classifying strikes according to cause is primarily the problem of strikes involving two or more issues, but tabulating as carefully as it could, BLS comes forth with the conclusion that half of the 1940 strikes were primarily over issues of union recognition. You can attribute that to the Wagner act or not, as you choose. Wage and hour issues accounted for 30 per cent of the strikes and the remaining 20 per cent were over miscellaneous grievances.

As at the end of the strikes, however, BLS finds that only 27 per cent of all the workers involved in strikes ending in 1940 won substantially all of their demands. Compromises or partial gains were obtained by 56 per cent while 9 per cent gained little or nothing. Of the rest, some 6 per cent were jurisdictional strikes which settled nothing, and 2 per cent were unreported.

In general, a larger proportion of short strikes were more successful from the workers' point of view than the long strikes. More than 46 per cent of strikes lasting less than two weeks resulted in gains for the workers, whereas less than a fourth of the strikes lasting longer than two months resulted in substantial gains. There were, by the way, 526 strikes lasting more than a month.

All these figures are of course just more prune seed statistics unless they can be used in a study of the present strike picture and to see what help they give to a solution of defense industry disturbances. The difficulty in fitting general strike statistics over the defense industry picture is apparent, for in 1940 the defense industries were just getting under way. BLS has made a separate study, trying to segregate the defense strikes in 11 principal industries employing 2,300,000 workers. One out of every 17 of these workers was on strike at some time during the year in a total of 252 strikes. That is a none too promising trend.

What Is Advertising Anyway?

A lot has been written about advertising.

A lot of speeches have been made about it.

But the whole fact in a nutshell is—advertising is simply a time-saver.

It saves time for the man or woman who wants to buy something—and for the store or factory with something to sell.

And like most time-savers, it's a money - saver too.

KARL KOZELUH, famous internationalist, ranks the tennis greats. Tilden, La Coste, Cochet, Budge, Perry. "Tilden and La Coste stand out," explains Professional Kozeluh the one-time American Davis Cup team coach. "The others are close."

"Tilden was always good . . . every day. "Vines had one good year. A great player will stay up there for four or five years. Look how long Tilden was on top. He's still formidable and he is 48 years old."

"Perry was a better all-round player than Budge, but I believe Budge at his peak could have beaten the Englishman. Budge and Perry amateur tennis a year before he hit his peak. Budge and Perry was that is not tennis."

"Vines had a good serve and forehand but no backhand. Budge's worth's footwork was not good, either."

"PERRY had perhaps the best footwork. He was a smart player. "Vines and Stofen had the best serves. They were tall. Tilden was great, too."

"I did not see William M. Johnston at his best. He was fast and very quick. . . . California style. He was great for two or three sets, but in championship tennis a man must be good for five sets."

"Lott was the best doubles man. He won the championships with three different partners. "Riggs is the best amateur today, but he may not win any more. He argues with his wife. A man must concentrate to play winning tennis. Fighting with a wife is no good."

"KOVACS is a funny fellow. He makes shots nobody else can make, but he is not good every day. "McNeill is just a swinger. When he is hitting he can give you a body a game, but that is not often enough."

"Suzanne Lenglen was the greatest woman player who ever lived. She was like a boy on the court. Alice Marble would have no chance with her. Lenglen, then Helen Wills Moody, then perhaps Marble, Molla Bjurstedt Mallory was very good, but not good enough for Lenglen or Moody."

They all agree on Suzanne Lenglen and Big Bill Tilden.
