During the afternoon, an informal reception was held at the Community Clubhouse with the Music Club as host. Music and group singing were enjoyed throughout the afternoon with refreshment of home made cookies and punch served.

At 6 o'clock a picnic was held at the Eastland Park with Miss Roberta Kinnaird, Mrs. Guy Patterson, Mrs. C. W. Young, Mrs. P. L. Crossley, Mrs. Rhineman, Mrs. Joseph M. Perkins and Mrs. Art Johnson, the committee in charge.

Cached Bullets Are Cause of Rumors

BEAUMONT, Tex. (UP) — A modern day bad man legend has been prosaically punctured by the revelation that what was believed to have been desperado Raymond Hamilton's ammunition cache merely were cast-off army shells.

Hamilton, bank robber who terrorized the southwest before he was executed at the Huntsville prison, raided a national guard armory here in 1934 and carried off guns and ammunition.

Recently when 600 rounds of army bullets were found in a culvert near Hamshire, it was believed that Hamilton had cached part of his armory loot and was captured before he could return for it.

However, Jimmie Lum, who served with the U. S. Army in the ordnance department at San Antonio for 12 years, punctured the theory.

He came to the sheriff's office here and identified the cartridges as some which belonged to him. He said that in 1940 the ammunition became corroded and worthless and that he asked a brother-in-law to dump it in some stream or bayou.

Instead, Lum said, it was stuffed into the culvert.

Big Purse Proves a Boon To A Woman

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UP) — Miss Elaine McAlister used to fume at fashion for its decree that big purses were the style.

But no more. Fashion's dictates saved her $6. A young man accosted her at night, demanded her purse. She told him she had no money, opened her large purse to show a coin purse with a few hairpins in it.

Disgruntled, the youth walked away. Smiling, Miss McAlister went home. Tucked away in the big purse was a second coin purse. The six dollars were in it.

THE WEATHER
WEST TEXAS — Little temperature change tonight.

Farmers Urged To Treat Their Hogs To Prevent Worms

In pigs, worms cause a general digestive disorder resulting in unthriftiness, weakness, and emaciation. Pot-bellied, rough coats of hair and a husky cough are not uncommon—A severe infestation of worms will cause symptoms somewhat similar to hog cholera.

The old saying that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" holds good in this case. Sanitary hog lots, well drained, and treated with a coat of slaked lime at frequent intervals, will do much toward preventing worm infestation. For treatment of intestinal round worms of swine; Oil of chenopodium (wormseed oil) may be given in a dose 1/2 to 1 fluid dram (2 to 4 cubic centimeters) for a 100 pound pig—immediately preceded or followed by at least 2 oz. of castor oil. Animals weighing over one hundred pounds should be given 3 to 4 oz. of castor oil. This pigs should be kept off feed for twenty four hours and preferably thirty six hours before treatment. Feed and water should be withheld for three hours after treatment. It is advisable to have the treatment administered by a veterinarian who is best qualified to judge the condition of the pigs and the proper dose of drug to be used.

Those in Eastland who had soldiers as their guests Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Young, Mr. and Mrs. Grady Pipkins, Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Jones, Mrs. Marie Gustafson, Mr. and Mrs. B. E. McGlamery, Mr. and Mrs. John Turner, Mr. and Mrs. Ray McDaniell, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Cornelius, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Maynard, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Hart, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. John Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Perkins, Mr. and Mrs. V. T. Seaberry, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Davenport.

Children's Health Still Being Urged

AUSTIN, Texas. — In his recent May Day—Child Health Day proclamation, President Roosevelt stressed the vital importance of the health of children to the strength of our nation. He urged that all Americans exert every effort at this time to conserve child health, not only through the application of positive health measures, but also by reducing the incidence of the more devastating childhood diseases.

Doctor Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, today issued an urgent appeal to all Texans to cooperate wholeheartedly in this health conservation program.

"While it is true that science has had at hand for years the means to reduce almost to the vanishing point the incidence of diphtheria and smallpox," Doctor Cox stated, "nevertheless the actual control of these two diseases is largely in the hands of parents."

Children should receive toxoid treatment between the ages of six and nine, he declared, and pointed out that the necessity for immunization at this early age is based upon the fact that nearly two-thirds of all diphtheria deaths occur in children under six years of age.

"I can not emphasize too strongly that to deprive your children of the protection that science has made available amounts almost, if not altogether, to criminal negligence," Doctor Cox warned. "The family physician and the public health workers can only point the way and urge action, but the factor still lacking in most diphtheria illnesses and deaths is parental cooperation."

50-Year-Old Note Not Complimentary To a Texas Town

BEEVILLE, Tex. — This is a little item smuggled out without knowledge of the chamber of commerce.

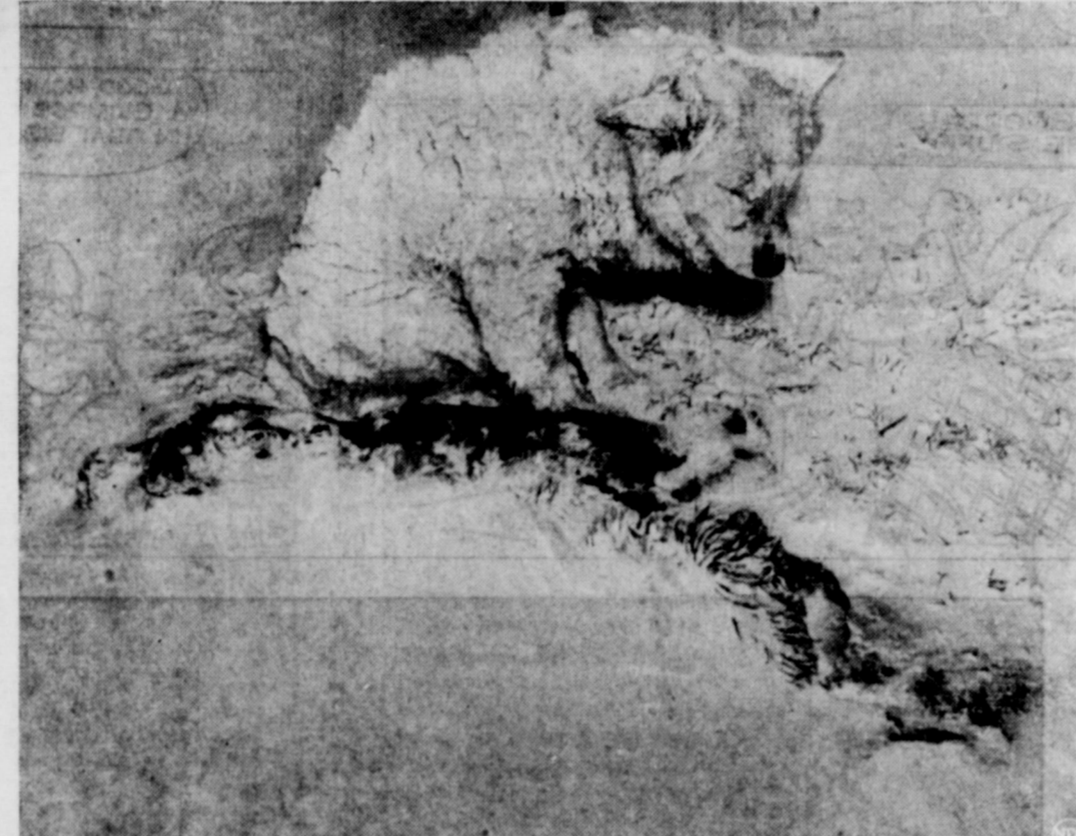

A 50-year-old note signed "Old Man" was found when the jail was demolished recently to make way for a new one.

Not at all complimentary toward the Beeville of half a century ago, it said:

"This is the most miserable town on earth. So hot at times you can hardly breathe. Thermometer stands at 104. The water is not even fit to irrigate (sic) a cactus plant much less to drink. (Has not rained for two years. Cattle all dying) The whiskey is vile, the beer wretched, the grub worse. People wild over politics. Not money enough in the place to pay for a good horse and not a good horse in the county."

IDENTIFICATION IS OBLITERATED
OROVILLE, Cal.—This city's famous 90-foot concrete "O" on Table Mountain has been ordered obliterated as being too good a tip-off for possible enemy air raids.

Vigil for a Fallen Friend

They were romping in the snow in a Flint, Mich., street . . . an auto came out of the storm, crashed one of them . . . but Porky, part pitz, part bull, would not leave . . . while the blizzard matted his dejected body, he stood guard, refusing approach to the dead dog . . . a small boy ventured too near, got nipped . . . hours later, the young brother of Porky's master came along, called Porky, took him home . . . thus ending this vigil for a fallen friend.

STORM DEATH TOLL AT 156; MAY BE MORE

More and more bodies, broken by the terrible force of the tornado season's first death-dealing winds, were found today in the path of ruin which was cut through the heart of the Mississippi Valley sector.

The known dead today stood at 156, at mid-afternoon. Wreckage in Kentucky, Tennessee and Mississippi were expected to yield more victims and the death lists are expected to be lengthened, possibly to reach as high as 200.

More than 200 are known to have been injured in these states, as well as in Illinois and Indiana, where the cyclones struck with unabated fury. Many of the injured are known to be injured critically, and it is feared that many will die.

In addition to the large number of seriously injured, other bodies are expected to be found in the ruins left in the wake of the storm.

Man To End Half Century Of Service

TEXARKANA, Tex. — W. T. Salisbury will end a full half century of telegraph service April 1.

He started as a messenger. He retires as manager of the Texarkana of the nation's largest telegraph company.

Working as a railroad telegrapher, Salisbury recalls the days before typewriters when all messages were copied from the telegraph wire by hand.

"About 1897, when I was working for the Santa Fe," Salisbury said, "I had purchased one of the old double-case typewriters and had become fairly proficient in typing from the wire. The superintendent visited my office at the time and noticed I was using the typewriter, copying directly from the wire. He didn't say much, but in a few days I received a letter from him instructing me to discontinue using the typewriter for this purpose."

"He said it was a dangerous procedure because errors would be made and he didn't think there was much future in the typewriter."

WEDDING AWAITED UNIFORM
LONDON (UP)—A young man brought up in a North London Police Court was accused of deserting his girl friend. "She's an opportunist," he explained. "She didn't keep enough coupons to get a wedding dress. So she postponed our wedding until she received her W.A.A.F. uniform."

Movement of Men In Armed Forces Is Strict Secret

Newspapers have repeatedly been warned not to publish movement of men in service, either in troop movements or individuals, from one camp to another, unless authorized to do so.

In "censorship Bulletin No. 6" papers are also urged not to divulge such information over the telephone, unless positive of the identification of the person making the call, as this practice is often used by spies to obtain information. "In the event the soldier or sailor in question has been transferred this gives the enemy valuable information on American troop movements," the bulletin warns.

"It is suggested," the bulletin continues, "that publishers give the necessary instructions to all employees not to divulge any information whatsoever over the telephone or to persons who come into the newspaper office unless they properly identify themselves."

Because of censorship restrictions this paper does not publish, unless authorized, movements of any person in the armed forces, in order to prevent information being obtained by spies or fifth columnists.

Students Think War Is Being Waged To Save Democracy

AUSTIN, Texas. — Four out of every ten American College students believe the present war is being waged to save the world for democracy, a Student Opinion Surveys of America published at the University of Texas indicates.

Taken on college campuses all over the country, the poll shows that 40 per cent, a group twice as large as any other giving a different answer, believe that World War II is being fought for preservation of "democracy," "the bill of rights," and "freedom and liberty."

Economic reasons are believed responsible by ten per cent while nine per cent refer to it as a war of "self preservation."

Wedding Awaited Uniform
LONDON (UP)—A young man brought up in a North London Police Court was accused of deserting his girl friend. "She's an opportunist," he explained. "She didn't keep enough coupons to get a wedding dress. So she postponed our wedding until she received her W.A.A.F. uniform."

Contributions Of Science Discussed

AUSTIN, Texas. — Contributions of science in preparing substitutes for strategic raw materials were detailed before a University of Texas audience this week by Dr. Harry N. Holmes, president of the American Chemical Society.

Speaking before the Central Texas Section of the Society, Dr. Holmes—distinguished professor of chemistry at Oberlin College, gave special attention to the part being played by science in developing synthetic rubber, toluene, formaldehyde, chlorine, silk, aluminum, magnesium, mercury, manganese, chromium, steel, mica and cork.

"We are increasing our stock pile of these natural raw materials rapidly at present, but we began too late," Dr. Holmes declared. "Scientists had pointed out the threatened shortages but these warnings went unheeded, with the result we are now having to throw every ounce of scientific effort into development of acceptable substitutes."

Kokomo Girls Told How To Build A New Frame Garden

At a meeting Wednesday of the Kokomo girls 4-H club, a demonstration on how to make a frame garden was given by Miss Alice Wheatley, assistant Home Demonstration agent, at the home of the garden demonstrator, Phyllis Donaldson.

The club girls are going to be proud of their frame gardens even though they do require a little labor. The Fat Stock Show was also discussed at this meeting.

Students Who Go to State Meet To See A Campus Show

AUSTIN, Tex. — High school students from all over Texas, who will descend upon Austin May 7, 8, and 9 for events of the University of Texas Interscholastic League state meet, will be in on one of the campus' annual "magic shows."

Dean W. R. Woolrich of the college of Engineering has announced May 8 as date for the annual spring power show at the University, when the wonders of physics, chemistry, architecture and engineering laboratories and classrooms will be placed on display.

Along with the actual laboratory work, there'll be tricks of the trades that only scientists can devise, all lined up for the amazement of whoever comes along.

"With the war demand for science and engineering, and the things we're finding as result of our intensive work, this show should be the best we've ever had," Dean Woolrich declares.

Donations For U of T Are Large

AUSTIN. — The $500,000 grant of the M. D. Anderson Foundation of Houston for the new cancer research and treatment hospital is the third fund of such size or larger to be administered by the University of Texas Board of Regents. The $500,000 from the foundation of the late cotton merchant will match a similar amount appropriated by the Texas Legislature last year, and will be spent in an effort to find a cure for one of mankind's most awful maladies.

The project will be located at Houston, but the regents have authority from the Legislature to establish sub-stations elsewhere in Texas.

Largest fund, outside state appropriations, given to the University of Texas was from the Will C. Hogg Foundation, which provides more than $2,500,000 for promoting mental hygiene in Texas and smaller amounts for student loans.

The late W. J. McDonald, Paris, Tex., banker and amateur astronomer bequeathed $1,000,000 to the University of Texas for establishment of an observatory in the Davis Mountains. The observatory now is being operated.

When the question of moving the University medical branch was discussed recently, it was recalled that most of the school's property came from the Sealy and Smith families. In December, 1940, the medical school's properties were estimated to be worth $3,307,000, of which $1,733,000 came from the two families.

Scholarships and foundations from non-public sources provided $3,344,977 endowment for the main university and medical school.

The 1940 audit of the university showed more than $150,000 income available from the E. D. Farmer fund for international scholarships; $104,000 in the Wilbur S. Davidson loan fund; $60,000 in the Will Rogers Memorial Scholarship fund; and numerous smaller grants.

The endowments represent more than 10 per cent of the university's assets.

'Eyes of Texas' Now 'Weight of Taxes'

Texas familiarity with "The Eyes of Texas" probably will make popular an anti-tax campaign song that is being circulated over the country.

The chorus of the song begins: "The weight of taxes is upon you All the live long day. As the song is directed to be sung to "I've Been Working on the Railroad," the tune is the same as that used for the University of Texas "stand up" song.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 17—Gen. Douglas MacArthur, foremost commander of Allied war chieftains arrived in Australia from the beleaguered Philippines Islands today and assumed supreme command of the United Nation's forces there in Australia's hour of peril.

Gen. MacArthur's transfer to Australia according to a War Department communique, was made at the specific request of the Australian Government.

The colorful defender of the Philippines reached Australia after a secret flight, only a few hours after official disclosure that American troops, both air and ground forces "inconsiderable numbers," have landed in Australia and are preparing to meet Japan's blows against the Southwest Pacific bastion.

Gen. MacArthur, the War Department announced, was ordered by President Roosevelt to leave the Philippines and go to Australia.

Gen. MacArthur was accompanied to Australia—nearly 2,000 miles south of the Philippines Islands, by his wife and son, who during recent weeks are believed to have remained in Corregidor Fortress, in the mouth of Manila Bay.

The world famous commander takes over the post vacated recently by Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, British commander, who was relieved of the United Nations' command in the Pacific. Gen. Wavell returned to command of defense of India and is also charged with the defense of Burma.

Gen. MacArthur was also accompanied by his chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Richard Sutherland, Brig. Gen. Harold George of the Air Corps and several other officers.

The War Department spokesman emphasized that Gen. MacArthur's transfer in the midst of odds of 20 to one or more, does not mean that the Battle of Bataan has been regarded as lost.

Maj. Gen. Jonathan Wainwright, a closer friend of Gen. MacArthur and his right hand man in the Philippines, will carry on against the Japanese on the Bataan Peninsula jungle battlefield, the spokesman said.

Gen. MacArthur undoubtedly will lose no time in putting into action the hard tactics which stymied and took a heavy toll of Japanese troops on Bataan, finally forcing a shift in command-in-chief.

Gen. MacArthur's shift heightened the enthusiasm stirred by the War Department's disclosure last night that a "considerable number" of American troops had arrived in Australia.

Giants Clash on Bataan

In this corner: General Tomoyuki Yamashita, conqueror of Malaya and Singapore, new yellow hope on Bataan peninsula.

He is the prototype of the efficient Japanese soldier, which means he is plenty good. He is hard. He is tested under fire. He learns quickly and well.

He fought the Chinese guerillas, learned their tricks and applied them in the Malayan jungles. He went to Germany and watched the Nazi air force in action. He returned to reorganize the Japanese air force along German lines. But in some things, notably the use of torpedo bombers, he improved on the German model.

He is 57. He has an Adolf Hitler mustache. He loves and reveres all things Prussian. He passionately hates the United States. He hopes and plans to destroy us.

He is a tough man in a fight.

In this corner, which is OUR corner: General Douglas A. MacArthur, defender of the Philippines and hero of Bataan.

Already he has been called the outstanding soldier of this war. He too is tough. He too is tested under fire, plenty of it. Obviously he too has learned quickly and well.

He fought under Pershing. But he is not fighting this war like another World War I.

He said the Philippines could be defended. He was called on to make good before he had time to get ready. But the Japanese would testify that he has done a job.

He is 62. He is hard and handsome. He is as American as pretty girls and corn bread and ice cream. He wears nobly the mantle of Washington, Jackson, Grant, Lee and Pershing. He is the living proof that some day and somehow we will win this war.

It goes without saying that he is a tough man in a fight.

So now these two clash on a little piece of land smaller than any of our states, a peninsula of jungles and mountains.

Yamashita has perhaps two hundred thousand seasoned Jap troops, plenty of everything, and he can bring in more.

MacArthur has probably no more than thirty thousand Americans and Filipinos. As long as the Japs hold their surrounding conquests, MacArthur cannot receive help. He must depend on his own genius and the courage of the fighting heroes who stand behind him.

All the odds are against MacArthur.

Yamashita should win.

But wouldn't it be great to see the two meet in even battle?

We pray that some day, somewhere, this nation will see to it that General Douglas A. MacArthur gets that chance.

Cork Oaks Being Planted In Texas As An Experiment

COLLEGE STATION. — Cork oak acorns and seedlings are being planted by scientists of Texas A. and M. College as part of a long range program to test suitability of Texas soils to this foreign tree whose shortage is causing concern in parts of the government's re-armament program.

The A. and M. College project is being conducted in cooperation with the University of California, which furnished the cork oak seedlings and acorns.

Fifty seedlings are being planted on state forests in Newton and Cherokee counties and at the college. D. A. Anderson, research chief of the Texas Forest Service, said.

One hundred and fifty acorns were sown at the college by Dr. S. H. Yarnell, horticulture chief, of the Texas Experiment Station. When the seedlings have sprouted they will be planted on experiment station farms and state forests in various sections of the state.

Cork is the outer layer of bark obtained from cork oak. It is used by the army to make gaskets and washers for engines, in airplanes, motor vehicles and tanks, for cartridge plugs and bomb parts, and for cold storage installation. The navy also uses it to prevent sweating in submarines.

The richest and most productive cork forests are in Portugal and Spain, but the tree also grows in southern France, Italy, Sardinia, Morocco, Algiers and Tunis, all within a restricted area along the coast of the western Mediterranean.

It is not native in the United States but has been successfully planted in California, and 248 trees from which part of the seed were gathered for the A. and M. College experiment, yielded more than 10,000 pounds of cork in 1940.

FIGHTING POWER Comes From ELECTRIC POWER!

Machine shops, garment factories, food processing plants, oil mills, flour mills, steel mills and many other industries in this part of Texas, both large and small, are adding to the rapidly growing deluge of war materials that will give the U. S. fighting power! Electric power from the lines of the Texas Electric Service Company is turning many wheels of production, is powering new military projects and adding to the output of local industries.

Highly trained and experienced employees of the Texas Electric Service Company are seeing to it that vital industrial plants in the area served by the company have dependable electric power for war production. Their training and experience in rendering good electric service in peace time is helping them to do the much tougher and far more important job of keeping vital electric power flowing in war time.

ELECTRIC POWER Multiplies Manpower!

Experienced men, with the help of electrically-driven machines, can turn out great quantities of materials needed by our armed forces. The productiveness of manpower in time of war depends largely upon vital electric power, and that is why Texas Electric Service Company employees are doing their utmost to keep the wheels turning in this area.

The West Texas Aircraft School, which will offer vocational training to both men and women, preparing them for positions in aircraft factories, will be opened in the very near future in Ranger, in the Oil Belt Motor Co., building. Applications for admission to the school are now being taken at the temporary office in Room 106, Paramount Hotel, Ranger.

Men and women will be eligible for this training for final assembly work in the aircraft industry, with men over 18 years of age being admitted to the classes, and women between the ages of 18 and 40 years being eligible. Applicants must register now to be accepted in the first class. Upon completion of the six-week course trainees go through a one-week test school, to determine if they are ready for work in the airplane factories, after which they will be put to work at 60 cents an hour, with a five-cent an hour raise each month until they receive a minimum of 75 cents an hour, it was stated today by representatives of the school.

It is expected that as many as 450 will be trained at a time, with 50 being enrolled each week after the school is started, and that number being graduated each week, as they complete the six-week course.

It was pointed out that there are very few jobs in the aircraft industry now for untrained employees, and that the factories do not have time to train men. Those who enter the school in Ranger will receive exactly the same training as those who go to schools in the larger cities, at much less expense, and will also have the advantage of being in smaller classes where they can be given more individual instruction. Factory-trained instructors have been secured for the school, who have had previous experience not only in the larger aircraft factories, but also in training schools of this type.

The school in Ranger is being established, it was stated today, in order to bring the school to the students, instead of having the students go to the school. In this way it will be possible for many who otherwise could not attend because of the expense of living conditions in the larger cities, to remain at home and attend the classes while continuing their regular jobs.

Included in the general courses to be given to all trainees will be general aircraft assembly, blueprint reading, metallurgy, A & N coating, hand forming, care and handling of tools, aircraft sheet metal and riveting work in all its phases, along with all the other required instruction in all its branches.

The fact is being repeatedly stressed that while the school is in a small town it will give each enrollee exactly the same training as he or she could obtain in similar schools in the larger cities, while the cost will be less. Entrance cost will be but $35, with the balance being paid after the trainee secures a position, as compared to $150 to $175 which similar instruction usually costs in the larger cities.

Those who are aiding in formation of the school and who are now preparing for the first classes to be opened under expert instructors are J. L. Horn, formerly with the Renfro Drug Stores; J. H. Ferrel of Fort Worth; R. H. Carnahan, formerly with Show Boat; A. T. Whitacre, formerly with the Norman Young Ford Agency and J. P. Hodges, formerly with the Pangburn Candy Company. These men are sponsors of the school, but all instruction will be entrusted only to adequately trained and skilled instructors who have long previous records in their lines.

Specific advantages to be obtained by attending the West Texas Aircraft school have been listed as follows:

- Live at home or the immediate vicinity while training.
  - No tools, uniforms or books to buy.
  - Only $35 down payment, balance to be paid after going to work.
  - No interest or handling charges to be paid.
  - No co-signers.
  - Attend school at night and retain your present job until your training is completed and you have been employed in an aircraft factory.
- The same course of training

PEYTON WON'T HELP CHAPTER XXII

ONE day in a kind of desperation he went to see Peyton Graves. Drake smiled at the surroundings. "Well, well! You look like a bank president in here, Peyton."

"What can I do for you, Drake?"

"Just dropping in to see how you're getting along, Peyte. Are you busy?"

"Pretty busy, Drake, just now."

"Well, I'll come again."

"You've had a lot of bad luck, haven't you?"

"Yeah, pretty bad. I'll get things straightened out, though. How's your big proposition coming on?"

"You mean the West End Crescent?"

"Is that what you call it?"

"Yes, well, pretty fine, Drake. I finally got Macmillan St. George interested, and he talked old Thurston into it. They are going to let me put it through. Takes money, though."

"Thurston St. George thinks I ought to build out there myself and make one bang-up place just to show how it would look."

"I see. Sounds right smart, Peyte."

Peyton sighed and moved some papers suggestively. "Too bad you lost your money, Drake. That would have been a fine proposition for you and me."

"Well, I was just going to ask you, Peyton, if you don't need some help."

Peyton flushed. "Gosh, Drake, I haven't got a thing for you to do. You know, of course, this thing's just getting going. I'm working altogether with other people's money—for the time being. Later—maybe."

"Well, I just thought—"

"I'm awfully sorry, Drake. Wish I did have something."

"So long, Peyte. Good luck."

Young Peyton Graves' new house was the subject of much discussion. Of course, everybody knew that the St. Georges were back of Graves, but it did show what an enterprising young man could do in Kings Row.

across town. He was walking straight into the wind. Better to face it going than coming.

He had had a letter from Parris that morning—a longish letter this time. Parris said he was terribly busy, working harder than ever, but now that his stay was certain, he had begun to think about his return. He couldn't hope now to start back to America before September of 1902. He had been in correspondence with Dr. Nolan, the medical head of the state asylum, the situation looked encouraging. Why didn't Drake write? What was he doing? Had he really ever started that real-estate venture? And how about Louise? Had Kings Row heard about Vera? Vera had come to Vienna, and played with the Royal Philharmonic. She'd made a real success. Vera had developed amazingly in every way. Musically, of course, but did Drake remember what a funny-looking little washed-out thing she had always been? Well, she was positively glowing.

Almost two more years before Parris would return. Almost as long as the time he had been absent. And that had seemed an eternity. He had never told anyone how much he missed Parris, not even Randy. He couldn't explain that to anyone. It was hard for him to understand it himself. He had never felt that way about anyone.

It was colder. The wind was leveling out into a steady cutting blast. He'd have to get in somewhere. Darned if he wasn't half frozen. . . .

Drake made a wide arc about the lower end of town. He came presently to the railroad and followed it to Fritz Bachman's place. He fumbled the doorknob with numb fingers.

"Give me a drink, Fritz."

"Better step into the back room, Drake. I bring it."

Drake dropped into a chair at a small table in Fritz's back room. He couldn't think, and he couldn't even shape his feelings into any kind of order.

what to do with him, neither. I ain't a-going to take him home, not tonight."

"Well, you can't turn him out. He'll freeze, sure as hell."

Fritz grumbled a little. "What I do, then? I want to close up and go home now pretty soon."

"Well, you sold him the likker, didn't you?"

"Sure. Good stuff, too."

Sam looked straight at Fritz. "You'd turn that boy out, wouldn't you?"

"I got to go home."

"Well, I tell you what I'll do. I can't get him home no way when he's as drunk as that. You help me and I'll take him to the calaboose for the night so's he won't git froze somewhere. He'll be safe till mornin'."

"All right, I help you."

RANDY MONAGHAN'S father opened the door of the kitchen stove and laid several sticks of wood on the coals. It was Sunday morning, and he had had breakfast two hours earlier.

There was a slow, undecided knock on the door.

"Good morning, Mr. Monaghan."

"Why, good morning, Drake. Come in, come in."

Mr. Monaghan stared hard at Drake. The boy looked like a tramp. He wasn't shaved, his hair was tousled, and his shirt was unfastened at the throat.

"What's up, Drake?"

"I want to talk to you a little while, Mr. Monaghan."

"How about a cup of coffee?"

"No, thank you. Sam Winters gave me some coffee."

"Sam Winters?"

"Yes. I was locked up in the calaboose last night, Mr. Monaghan."

Mr. Monaghan set the coffee pot down with a clatter. "What for?"

"I got drunk at Fritz Bachman's, and Sam Winters happened to come along about the time Fritz wanted to close up. Sam took me to the calaboose so I wouldn't freeze somewhere."

Mr. Monaghan grunted.

"I want a job, Mr. Monaghan!"

"Well?"

"Could you get me a job on the railroad?"

The weather-beaten old man looked keenly at Drake.

"Tell you what I think I can do."

"Yes?"

"I'll talk to Mr. Turner tomorrow. I believe he'd give you a job in the yards—switchman, or flagman, or something. Sure you'd be willing to take that kind of a job, Drake?"

(To Be Continued)

SHERIFF SAM WINTERS finished up a cup of coffee, and stood up. He walked over to the stove and toasted his fingers before putting on his leather-and-wool gloves. He glanced toward the back room.

"Who you got in there, Fritz?"

Fritz looked up from his account book. "Back room? Oh, it's that McHugh feller."

"Drunk?"

"Yeh. Dead to the world for the last two hours. Don't know that you get in the cities. Factory-trained instructors. Further information concerning the course offered at the West

Many Paid Fines For Starting Fires In Texas Forests

COLLEGE STATION. — Fifty-one men and women in East Texas paid more than $1,250 in fines during January and February on conviction of setting fire to forests. Most of the fires were started accidentally by farmers burning brush, according to records of the Texas Forest Service at A. and M. College.

The average fine was $24.84.

With America needing timber for the war program, county law enforcement officials are becoming increasingly strict in prosecuting those who burn timber through malicious intent or carelessness.

Fines assessed ran as high as $65.25. State laws provide penalties up to $300 fine and one to three year prison terms for persons convicted of willfully or negligently allowing fire to burn over woodland or prairie not their own.

Although two-thirds of those recently convicted were farmers, the list also included laborers, a retired teacher, a paper hanger and a housewife.

Ages of the offenders ranged from 18 to 75. The record shows 33 whites and 18 negroes among those convicted.

Nearly 70 per cent of the fires were the result of brush, grass or debris burning, with malicious burning accounting for most of the other fires.

Newton County had 11 persons convicted of causing fires during the 2-month period; Cherokee County, 10; Nacogdoches County, 7; Hardin County, 6; Jasper County, 4; and Polk County 4. One person was convicted in each of the following counties:

Dutch Oil Wells To Prove Problem For The Japanese

PALESTINE, Tex. — When the Japanese start redrilling oil wells in the Dutch East Indies, the technical difficulties of trying to produce petroleum in areas where the Dutch applied their scorched earth policy will be just one of their problems.

Another problem, and a major one, will be the constant harassing from island natives who hate Angelina, Harrison, Houston, Morris, Marion, Panola, Rusk, Shelby and Tyler.

This was the opinion today of L. D. Sandefur, Palestine automobile dealer who served four years as a drilling superintendent for the Dutch Shell interests. In the islands a quarter of a century ago, Sandefur operated the first rotary rig ever used in the Indies.

The natives, fierce and unafraid, will not fail to wield knives and guns at every opportunity, Sandefur said.

"Those natives will pick off those Japs," the heavyset, middle-aged man said. "Believe me, those natives can see better at night than they can in the daytime, and they know how to use a good sharp knife."

"The natives have always seemed to have a bitter hatred for the Japanese. We tried to use Jap helpers but we never could work them on a rig with the natives. If we didn't separate them, there would be the biggest gang fight you ever saw."

Sandefur worked on the island of Java and did some work on Sumatra, but most of the time he was in Borneo.

In Borneo oil is produced from levels ranging from 750 to 5,000 feet. As one production level exhausts its supply, operators drill deeper to the next producing sand, he said.

"The wells produce a good grade of light paraffin-base oil," he recalled.

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Service Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—They should be called ATTACK bonds and AT-TACK savings stamps. That's the suggestion of Lieut.-Col. W. F. Kernan whose new book, "Defense Will Not Win the War," has become the overnight best seller in Washington. Professional and amateur strategists carry it around and pick holes in its arguments, but the mere title is having an influence on the psychological approach to the war question.

Right after Pearl Harbor, there was a flareup of publicity for calling them "victory" stamps, and Wendell Willkie suggested "bombardment bonds," but the Treasury Department's answer was that all its promotion was now keyed in with the word "defense," so that name would have to stick for a while.

The stamps don't bear the word "defense," so they could be called anything. But 30 million stamp albums have been printed, and they all bear the word "defense," as well as millions of pieces of promotion literature, posters, and pledge cards for the payroll savings campaigns. If the names were changed now, all this would have to be scrapped.

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR statisticians who make monthly calculations on changes in the cost of living have eliminated all consideration of payments on the purchase of a new car or new tires as items figuring in the cost of living. Reason—there aren't any more autos or tires to buy. Charges for increased auto and tire repair bills and increased use of public transportation are given added importance on the other hand, because the average family will hereafter be spending more on these items. Cost of living is now estimated at 13.5 per cent higher than in August, 1939.

SENATOR CARTER GLASS of Lynchburg, Va., president pro tem of the Senate and a member of Congress since the 57th session, is a good bit like a great and venerable grandfather clock. He ticks along quietly, apparently unperturbed by what goes on about him, and then on the hour, wheels whir and he strikes.

At hearings of the joint committee on reduction of non-essential federal expenditures the other day, Senator Byrd called to the attention of Office of Civilian Defense Director James M. Landis a speech which Philadelphia John B. Kelly of OGD's physical fitness department delivered, calling on the American people "to be a lot stronger and a little dumber."

Glass hadn't said a word all morning, but when he heard that his wheels whirred and he struck, exclaiming, "Could they be any dumber than they have been!"

If you want to get a nice trip to London at government expense, there seems to be one sure formula—get a high government administrative job, do it in a way which subjects you to widespread criticism, become unpopular with your associates, and as a reward for trying you'll be sent abroad on a special mission. That happened when John D. Biggers was eased out of the job of production boss at OPM, and it happened again recently when Charles F. Palmer was relieved of his position as federal housing co-ordinator.

The gag in Washington is that London should be re-named "the dog house."

Kids' Cautioned Not To Fly Kites Near Electric Wires

An appeal to boys and girls of Eastland to fly their kites in open spaces, away from electric wires, was issued by J. E. Lewis, manager of the Texas Electric Service Company.

"Aside from the danger to the kite flyers, the tangling of kites in the wires and unwise attempts to get them down can cause serious interruptions to electric service that may shut down factories engaged in war production," Mr. Lewis declared. "To safeguard our boys and girls, and at the same time, to prevent interruptions to vital electric power service in war time, we urge that kite flyers observe these safety rules:

1. Never fly your kite near electric lines.
2. Use only plain dry cotton string.
3. Do not run on or cross highways when flying kites.

4. Do not climb poles or throw rocks to dislodge entangled kites."

Mr. Lewis announced that if a kite should become entangled in
