Myrna Loy, Robt. Montgomery Are Co-Starred In Ritz Picture

"Petticoat Fever" Is Feature For Sunday and Monday

A new starring team heads the cast of the sprightly Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy, "Petticoat Fever," which is the featured attraction at the Ritz theatre Sunday and Monday.

The team is Robert Montgomery and Myrna Loy, and this is their first picture since the memorable "When Ladies Meet." Miss Loy has appeared in a number of starring parts since then, while moviegoers have seen comparatively little recently of Montgomery.

"Petticoat Fever" will be remembered by many in Big Spring as the stage play presented here last fall by the Playgoers League. A cast of New York players appeared in the production at the auditorium. The film version was adapted from the stage play which had a successful run last season on Broadway.

The Story

It is a story of a wireless operator in a remote Labrador station. When an airplane runs out of gas and lands near his lonely tower he sees a white woman for the first time in a year, and a beautiful woman for the first time since he left England, two years before. By refusing to send their messages, he holds the two people who were occupants of the airplane and who are engaged, as virtual prisoners, meanwhile making love to the lady with such charm and grace that she begins to like it. His fatherly service, 9:15 p. m. Y. P. E. meeting, Tuesday 8:15 p. m. Preaching, Friday 8:15 p. m. You are welcome, come hear the old-time gospel.

Beery Plays Part Of Great U. S. Showman

Appears At Queen In Title Role Of Picture, "The Mighty Barnum"

One of Wallace Beery's most successful pictures, that in which he portrays the greatest showman in American history, is "The Mighty Barnum," the Queen theatre's feature offering for Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Beery offers an outstanding characterization of P. T. Barnum; Adolphe Menjou also wins honors as E. Walsh, his tipping manager-partner and Virginia Bruce is enchanting as Jenny Lind, the lovely Swedish Nightingale whom Barnum, in a moment of reprieve from his misdeeds, fat ladies, sword swallowers and the rest of his freaks, introduced to America.

The film begins just a century ago, in 1835, when Barnum left his falling Bowery grocery, rented a livery stable and became a showman exhibiting such acquisitions as a two-headed calf, a couple of reptile monstrosities and an aged negro named Joice Heth, hailed as 160 years old and the nurse of the infant George Washington.

The expose of this exhibit as a hoax and the subsequent breaking up of the Barnum museum by an enraged crowd; the burning of the museum; the triumphant debut of Jenny Lind and the fiasco which Barnum's absurd social blunders make of the magnificent dinner he gives for her are highlights of the picture, which ends with Barnum and "Mr." Bailey Walsh parading proudly down the street in front of Jumbo, the world's largest elephant, heading the inception of Barnum & Bailey, "the greatest show on earth."

The story is replete with human touches, which add fictional interest to the historical points. Janet Beecher appears as the stern New England wife who frowns on Barnum's wild ventures and Rochelle Hudson plays as his pretty ward who has the misfortune to fall in love with the tipping Mr. Walsh.

Okla. Areas Hit By Storm

Four Dead, Property Damage Runs Into Thousands Of Dollars

ANDARCO, Okla., May 2 (AP)—Two sections of western Oklahoma counted four dead, 16 injured, and thousands of dollars of property damage today from windstorms and a flood.

Three persons were killed last night when a twister struck a group of farm homes in the vicinity of Albert, near here, 12 hours after a Chicago engineer died in a flood at Elk City, where the $300,000 city reservoir dam was broken.

The three who died in demolished homes last night were Mrs. Alice Lagron, 68; Harold Trull, 1-2, and Albert Earl Lane, one year old. Eleven persons were injured. Mrs. Virgil Lane, mother of the baby killed, was found severely hurt a quarter of a mile from her wrecked home.

The body of George Bates, 40, Chicago engineer, was found yesterday four miles from the bridge approach from which the water swept his car. He was last seen signaling to rescuers with a flashlight.

Elk City faced a drinking water shortage as the broken dam left the reservoir virtually empty and seven emergency wells choked with mud. State and federal agencies pushed rehabilitation work and guarded against an outbreak of disease. Damage to the east side of Elk City was estimated at $100,000 by city officials.

Heavy rains also brought long-needed moisture to the north central Oklahoma wheat section last night, and at the same time a severe dust storm moved over western parts of the state.

CONTRACT AWARDED FOR CABALLO DAM

WASHINGTON, May 2 (UP)—Secretary of Interior Harold I. Ickes today awarded a $957,018 contract to Mitty Bros., construction company, Los Angeles, to construct Caballo dam on the Rio Grande river federal reclamation project near Hatch, N. M.

The project, part of the international-boundary commission's plan for Rio Grande rectification in El Paso and Hudspeth counties, Texas, was financed with $2,500,000 federal money.

The construction company will begin work within 30 days and must complete the 4,250-foot long dam in 700 calendar days.

Seven Texans Given Medals By The Carnegie Commission For Heroism

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP)—Three Texas school boys and four other residents of the state today were recognized for heroism and awarded bronze medals by the Carnegie hero fund commission.

Lawrence L. Tarrillon, 14, San Antonio school boy, won recognition for his bravery in saving Winston D. Byrom, 11, from drowning in the San Antonio river Jan. 30, last. The Byrom boy plunged into the stream on his bicycle.

Harold R. McCaskill, 14-year-old Gonzales school boy, rescued Joseph D. Jowers, 65, from a burning house after the aged nurseryman had leaped from the second floor. The lad managed to pull Jowers to safety.

Margaret L. Prince of Point (Rains county) was recognized for her efforts to save Lee Woodson, 15, from drowning near her home. Miss Prince, a poor swimmer, struggled in the water with the youth until William A. Rabb, Point school boy, who also was awarded a medal, dived in and helped hold Woodson above the water while another youth obtained a timber on which the trio reached shore.

Jesus C. Hernandez, 21, a laborer, won recognition for saving Charleen Wiech, eight, at San Benito after her parents' automobile plunged from a bridge into an irrigation ditch standing 11 feet in water. The parents managed to free themselves and swim to safety but the child was trapped. While half a dozen other persons stood by without attempting to help, Hernandez leaped in, broke a window and pulled the child out of the car.

Lawrence P. Hill and Charles E. Stanfield, Jr., both of Galveston, were rewarded for heroism in the rescue of John W. Davis, Jr. Davis, swimming in the Gulf of Mexico, drifted out about 650 feet and Hill waded and swam until within 100 feet of the helpless man. His hip boots filled with water and he could go no farther. Then Stanfield leaped in, pushed Hill into shallow water and rescued Davis.

Orr was first president of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association and later served as its general manager. He also was president for a time of the Texas Farm Bureau federation and a director of the National Cotton Growers' Exchange and the American Farm Bureau federation. Recently Orr had been serving

Ford And Bolt Have Leading Male Roles In High School Play

The two leading male roles in the annual senior play entitled "Lady Spitfire", are held by W. T. Bolt and Jimmie Ford. The high school seniors are seen as two college boys who have lost $5,000 in a stock deal, and in return, miss a trip to Europe.

Not to be discouraged by their misfortune, they roam over the country in a dilapidated car, and by some means secure a job as janitor and gardener at an exclusive girls school. Here they promptly meet the lady for whom the play is named and excitement really begins. W. T. Bolt plays the role of Tom Brown, son of a university professor, and Jimmie Ford, Bud Jones, son of a scientist.

They are threatened a jail sentence by the small-town constable, but on promise to build a fence for the officer, are allowed to go free. The play reaches its climax when "lady spitfire" starts to leave town with the villain, and is brought home by the college boys. But "lady spitfire" is not daunted by her adventure and instantly begins another by falling in love with the professor's son.

Other high school seniors in the play are, Mary Alice McNew, who plays the title role; Horace Puns, the villain; Judith Pickle, the orphan girl; Tommy Reeves, the constable; Jewel Caudle, the spoiled daughter of wealthy parents; W. C. Gallemore, the frat father; Mary Louise Inkman, mistress of the boarding school; Eloise Kuykendall, who eats most of the time; and the two college boys, Miss Dorothy Jordan, who has had varied experience in producing plays of this kind, is the director.

The comedy-drama will be staged in the city auditorium Thursday night.

THOMPSON HONORED AT VETS' BANQUET GIVEN IN FT. WORTH

FORT WORTH, May 2 (AP)—Clint Small, state senator from Amarillo, described Chairman Ernest O. Thompson of the Texas railroad commission last night as "the leading citizen of West Texas and the most useful citizen in the state of Texas at this time."

Small spoke at an ex-service man's banquet given in honor of Thompson. Both Thompson and Small live in Amarillo.

Other tributes to Thompson came from speakers representing war veterans, railroad executive, railroad employes, the oil industry, the motor carriers and the railroad commission itself.

Inference came that Thompson would be a gubernatorial candidate two years from now came when the West Texas senator observed, "No, I don't think he'll be there all of six years more."

"I think that the record of the railroad commission commends the chairman of that body to the serious consideration of the people of Texas," Senator Small concluded.

Farm Credit Unit Shows Interest For Howard Farmers

Financing debts through the Farm Credit administration has pleased Howard county farmers more than $12,400 a year on interest alone, according to figures from the central office of the Farm Credit administration in Washington.

Over $27,000 of farm debts with interest rates have been refinanced with long-term mortgage loans carrying interest rates of five per cent a year or less.

The figures show that the local National Farm Loan association has been a big factor in making these long-term mortgages available at low interest rates. The association guarantees loans to the

The federal land bank made 93 first mortgage loans and the land bank commissioner 165 loans. Many of the commissioner's loans were made on second mortgage security to farmers who also obtained first mortgage loans. Most land bank loans are endorsed by associations and advanced from funds obtained by selling farm loan bonds. The commissioner lends from funds provided by the federal government.

Others Fight Tax Program

Hearings Continued By Finance Committee Of The Senate

WASHINGTON, May 2 (UP)—More business men gathered today to oppose the administration tax program before the senate finance committee, which heard the plan denounced by representatives of two trade organizations and defended by the treasury yesterday. More business men, including a United States chamber of commerce delegation, requested opportunity to testify. A major feature of the program, a tax on corporation income, graduated according to the percentage of earnings turned into surplus drew the fire of witnesses from the New York board of trade and the Philadelphia chamber of commerce. Earlier George C. Haas, treasury research director, argued that corporation surpluses were not used during the depression to maintain employment and dividends. Critics have contended that the present bill, recently passed by the house, would prevent the creation of surpluses to see corporations and their

Industrial Jobless Total About 3 Million, Paper's Survey Shows

NEW YORK, May 2 (UP)—The New York Sun estimated today in a news story that the total unemployment in all United States industries, trades, mining and transportation—which the newspaper's survey said covered 58.7 per cent of all fields of employment—amounted to 3,084,300 persons.

The paper's survey of 2,000 companies did not include such categories as agriculture, public service and professional services. It did not attempt to calculate the total amount of unemployment. The National Industrial Conference board, a statistical organization supported by corporations, has estimated total unemployment in the United States at 3,649,000, and the American Federation of Labor has placed it at 12,184,000. The Sun's unemployment figure was based on a survey of the em-

Foreign Trade Gets National Stress In May

Third Week Of Month Is Set Aside For World Commerce Drive

WASHINGTON, May 2 (UP)—Three hundred chambers of commerce and other trade bodies will observe "National Foreign Trade Week" from May 17 to May 23 in a campaign for world commerce that incidentally may have broad political significance. It is the second "week" of the kind, organized by chamber of commerce of the United States and its member organizations. Determination of the country's commercial organizations to foster international trade is considered a practical refutation of sentiment for national economic "isolation," or self-sustenance, which has gained some strength since the beginning of world depression. Ten million persons affected by manufacture, shipping, advertising and other phases of foreign trade gradually are making their influence felt. The foreign trade week will comprise "National Maritime Day" on May 22 and on at least one day programs will be devoted especially to Latin American commerce. Participation of railways whose lines benefit by international trade is another feature. Commerce Bureau to Aid The bureau of foreign and domestic commerce will co-operate with private trade bodies through voluminous publicity, assistance in 800 trade radio programs, and local aid through the 79 district and co-operative offices. The foreign trade week is the first national event of its kind since Dr. Alexander Dye, formerly United States commercial attache at Buenos Aires, became director of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, and his collaboration has been widely sought. The object of "National Foreign Trade Week," as announced by the chamber of commerce of the United States is "to direct attention to and promote consideration of the importance of foreign trade. This includes emphasis upon the value of markets abroad for production of American factories, farms, mines and forests; study of the dependence of American industries and population upon many foreign countries for raw materials, foodstuffs, and other essential imports; consideration of the essential character of the American merchant-marine to world trade and national defense; discussion of important phases of international commercial policy, tariff policy as related to the welfare of the United States, and widespread effort to interest more American producers in the possibilities for marketing their individual products in foreign countries."

Raw Materials Stressed
From the standpoint of foreign countries, the most significant phase in the objective described would be the "study of the dependence of American industries and populations upon many foreign countries for raw materials, foodstuffs, and other essential imports."

This study would imply a recognition of the certain but not entirely appreciated fact that the United States is dependent upon foreign countries for an absolute minimum of imports valued at $2,000,000,000, such as rubber, tin, vegetable oils and certain starches, used as raw materials in American industries, in addition to foodstuffs not produced here, such as coffee and cocoa.

Foreign trade week will open with the assurance that the United States international commerce has improved each year since 1932, although still far below the 1929 peak. American merchandise exports in successive years were: 1932, $1,611,000,000; 1933, $1,675,000,000; 1934,

$2,132,000,000; 1935, $3,282,000,000. Imports in the corresponding years were: 1932, $1,329,000,000; 1933, $1,450,000,000; 1934, $1,600,000,000; 1935, $2,047,000,000.

'SHARE-OUR-WEALTH' MOVEMENT HEADED FOR FIGHT IN COURT

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 2 (UP)—A row over who is head of the "Share-Our-Wealth" movement in Oklahoma, apparently was headed for the courts here today.

Dr. George S. Long of Tulsa, a brother of the late Senator Huey P. Long of Louisiana, said he would file suit here to dissolve a state charter obtained by Owen F. Renegar, Oklahoma City attorney, for a "share-our-wealth" organization. Dr. Long, who claims he was entrusted with carrying on the work begun by his brother, announced yesterday that the board of directors of his organization had dismissed Renegar and Jack Neal, advisory committee secretary, from the organization.

Renegar replied that his followers would have "a real board of directors meeting next week." Harry Stoeger and his former wife, both of Stanton, were remarried here Friday afternoon by Justice of Peace J. H. "Dad" Hefley. Stoeger is the son of Joseph Stoeger, pioneer Martin county resident who succumbed last week.

Madden said Bleefeld told of meeting the elder Parker in connection with efforts to have a prison sentence reduced for his brother, Jeff, convicted of possessing explosives.

"At that time Mr. Parker outlined the plan he was going to use to get a confession but to me it seemed to be a legal one. The whole thing was Parker's scheme."

The Week

News that the city commission had ordered the election for May 15 on the airport purchase proposal stirred much speculation in some quarters. While some 1,200 persons signed a petition asking for municipal ownership of the property, there are those who are dubious of passage by the tax-paying electorate. The city commission announced it would issue a statement in a few days explaining its position.

Several wildcat oil tests of varying importance are being drilled in this sector. If any one of them should hit, it would stimulate general activity. To mention a few—the M. E. Stanton No. 1 Edwards just over the line in Glasscock county is seeking shallow pay just short of 1,000 feet, another pay level if it comes in; the John I. Moore No. 1 Clayton-Johnson in Borden county, a new field if it hits; the Southern Oil No. 1 Edwards between the East Howard and Chalk pools, an important extension if successful; and the D. C. Reed No. 1 Pike, a new pool two miles from town where commercial production obtained.

It is not necessary to look afar off to find the unusual. We have plenty near at home. Take Foran school for example. By inviting in parents, town friends and other guests, the junior and senior classes are able to raise a large amount of money annually. They spend these funds on an extensive tour through the Northwest and to the Pacific coast. The tour is an education within itself. More than likely there is not another school in the state doing that thing.

Public records at the end of April reflected another substantial gain over last year. Because these public records mirror general business conditions with a fair degree of accuracy, this is good news. Should a general rain come in plenty of time, Big Spring will likely be one of the best, if not the busiest, year of its history. Fact that new lighting equipment was ordered for the city softball park was worth a half dozen lines as a news item last week. As commonplace as it may seem, it is a pretty important development at that. It costs the city a pretty penny to maintain a park, but there is little doubt but that it has paid for itself indirectly many fold. Like the other facilities of the growing city park, it furnishes a means for wholesome recreation and entertainment. It gives a lot of people something to do with their leisure time.

What Big Spring and 35 other towns along the T. & P. had feared for a long time finally happened last week. A. C. Williamson, area executive for the Buffalo Trail Boy Scout council, resigned his post to accept another at El Paso. In making the change, money was not the consideration—it was greater opportunity for service. A fitting valedictory for Williamson inasmuch as he had fixed himself in the minds of all his associates as just that sort of man. The remarkable thing about him is that in seven years he has conducted the council affairs until some can remember anyone ever having said anything other than praise or appreciation for him and his work. The council was fortunate to have had him as long as it did. Several others had attempted to secure his services previously.

postoffice inspectors will not be available for payment unless Karpis is convicted in the Garrettsville robbery, the service said. Within an hour after his arrival, Hoover met reporters in the federal building. He ignored them at the airport where the plane was backed into a national guard hangar, with the transfer from the liner to an automobile being made behind closed doors.

During the entire trip and stops the prisoner was manacled inside the plane. Upon arrival here his feet scarcely touched the earth as the agents hurried him from the plane to the waiting car, thence to the federal building.

No Reward Hoover divulged some of the details of Karpis' capture. He emphasized no reward would be paid by the federal bureau of investigation, an indication no "tips" were received from persons seeking the $7,000 price offered for Karpis' arrest recently.

Hoover said Fred Hunter, captured with Karpis, was being held in New Orleans, pending decision as to whether he will be tried on a mail robbery charge or a postal offense.

Of the entire original Karpis-Barker gang, seven have been killed, the rest captured, with the one exception of Henry Campbell. If Campbell has companions at this time they likely were "punks" of the gang's affluent era or newly joined associates, officers agreed. The strength of the federal department, relieved of the Karpis search, sought Campbell today in an effort to make the cleanup complete.

Stalcup Plea For Stay Of Death Denied

AUSTIN, May 2 (AP)—Acting Gov. Walter Woodul today refused to interfere with the scheduled electrocution early Monday of Virgil Stalcup, West Texas desperado sentenced to die for the jail-break murder of Sheriff W. B. Arthur of Dickens county.

Woodul heard the pleas of Stalcup's mother, Mrs. E. M. Stalcup, and his wife, for either a stay or commutation of the sentence. They contended a confederate, Clarence Brown, under life sentence for the slaying, had confessed he fired the shot.

The acting governor said that conceding Stalcup may not have fired the shot which killed Sheriff Arthur, he would not halt the execution on Stalcup was under sentences of 25 years for other crimes.

Mrs. Stalcup said she did not know what her next move would be to prevent the execution. She said her attorneys in Lubbock had intended to forward briefs here so she might make a final appeal to the court for a writ to halt the execution.

Governor Allred previously left the state on a Centennial tour without granting clemency and the board of pardons recommended adversely on an application for commutation, asserting the penalty was "richly deserved."

Chapter 27
HIGH FRAISE

"Aunt Phina's from South Carolina," she said. "She and my mother had to work because their people were impoverished by the war—and I don't know much about that side of the family."
"Brought up in convents, I suppose," said the old lady.
"I don't know," said Iris innocently. "It's really only my father's side I know about. And that's because Uncle Will did genealogy after hours to make more money. He is the kind who says a man's a nice for a' that, you know." He was saying, "It's not what your ancestors are, but what you are yourself."
"But my Aunt Ella, his sister, was rather interested in them. If you are poor, you know—or so he always said—or a woman, ancestors are a comfort. Heavens," said Iris mournfully, "what I don't know about every one of them from my grandfather Lanning, who made the last Grand Tour, from Persia, to the Colonel on Washington's staff!"
"Did anybody tell you," demanded the old lady, "that I am interested in genealogy?" She fixed her sharp look on Iris again.
"They didn't have to," said Iris cheerfully. "I could tell it. You look like an old portrait, and like Aunt Ella's friends back home. That's why I felt so at home with you. You're like Mrs. Cadwallader, and I think people who look alike are alike, don't you?"
"What Mrs. Cadwallader?"
"Iris went into details, and it presently appeared that there was reason; it was a family distantly connected.
"One of her grandmothers was a Beckley. I married a Morgan. I had no sons, only grandsons," said the lady, looking over at Allan with a little sigh.
Allan came over to them promptly, putting a gentle hand on his grandmother's crackling taffeta shoulder.
"How are you getting on with this pretty thing, granny?" he said.
"I like her," said Mrs. Morgan decisively. "She's real, I believe."
Allan shrugged his shoulders. "We're all real—in a way. Glissier, mottled, n'appyes pas, is a good motto."
"Do you mean that you wouldn't ever want anyone to lean hard where you are concerned?" Iris asked, smiling up at him. He looked surprised. "People didn't seem to expect girls who came from small towns to know French, or anything," she reflected with a little annoyance.
With a sudden girlish desire to show them that there was something she did well, she took from her evening bag the miniature of Aunt Phina. "Do you like this?" she said.
Mrs. Morgan took it in her hand. "You shouldn't be allowed to carry valuable things like this around smile at Ella.

"Isn't Allan a swell host—and doesn't he the most exciting place you ever saw?"
"It isn't as exciting to me as mechanistic decoration," said Iris honestly, "because where I come from we're fatally colonial. But it is exquisitely thought out."
"Ah, wait till you see my Matings room," said Allan. "I keep my modern stuff away from all this, because it would make the ancestors stand on their heads in agony. And quite inconspicuously, I keep there the horns and heads and so forth that I've shot."
"You've been everywhere and seen everything, from what I can find out," Iris said.
He laughed, but he looked flattered. "Not quite."
"In other words, Iris is saying," said Georgia from his other side, "Beautiful, what makes you look so beautiful?"
"Georgia wants to know what you do about it," Allan said. He was playing her off a little against Georgia, she thought, and then was ashamed of herself, for Georgia said, soft-eyed, "You are lovely, you know. And a new kind of girl is so exciting! Madame Phina is even cleverer than I thought she was to have this particular kind of niece."
"I'm nothing like as nice as Owen," Iris protested, smiling back at Georgia, and turned to talk with Dicky, on her other side.
"Georgia's clever, isn't she?" said Dicky. "Do you know how she got the cowboy singer? Never saw him invited. He called up and said he'd take a chance if we would. Nice, isn't he?"
He was pensive, a gentle long silent boy who evidently was taking notes for the folks at home and thought it was mighty sweet of them to ask him to the party. It seemed queer to Iris, but she was beginning to understand better the snatching easiness of the group's social life. Anything for the amusement of the moment; at least Georgia and Dicky were like that.

WASHINGTON, May 2 (UP)—Butler who swing open Washington's most exclusive iron-grilled doors face a delicate problem when the cabinet is invited to dinner.
They must look sharp to avoid announcing "The attorney general of the United States, Mr. Cummings," as "The secretary of the treasury, Mr. Morgenthau." And vice versa would be just as deplorable.
The two gentlemen look very much alike; similar noses, similar mouths, the same quiet smiles, the same retreat of hair from the forehead. Just to add another element of confusion, they wear the same kind of pince-nez eye-glasses.
They're both tall with wide shoulders. They both move in a slow, dignified fashion. They both wear snap brim felt hats and conservative clothes.
There the similarity stops. Cummings' eyes are light blue and Morgenthau's eyes are dark.
Henry Morgenthau, Jr., was born in New York and grew up to become a gentleman farmer with financial acumen made necessary by the family's Manhattan real estate holdings. He shared the enthusiasm for conservation of his Hyde Park neighbor, now president of the United States. He followed his father to Albany and then to Washington.

Homer S. Cummings was born in Chicago. He became a familiar figure at democratic conventions, practiced law at Stamford, Conn., and served as the town's mayor three times.
Despite their very similar appearance, there is a difference of 22 years in their ages. Morgenthau is 44; Cummings is 65.

April Totals Ahead Of Last Month And Of April Last Year

AUSTIN, May 2.—Employment and payrolls in Texas recorded moderate gains during April over both the preceding month and April, 1935, according to the University of Texas bureau of business research.

bock and Waco.

The Friendliest Kind of Banking —is that which sticks closest to sound banking principles.

SOUND banking protects depositors' money, safeguards stockholders' interests and encourages borrowing customers to enter upon only such undertakings as contain the elements of success. Each one of these considerations is the truest form of friendship a bank can offer.
Sound banking principles permit only safe, profitable operations which return a fair yield on invested capital. They enable the bank to maintain an efficient organization and build up ample reserves and surplus to fortify the protection of depositors' money.
In our next advertisement we shall point out some practices which are not acts of true banking friendship, no matter how pleasantly and courteously performed.
