Marine Corporal Of Morton Valley Reported Missing

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Craig, Lone Star Gas Plant No. 3, near Morton Valley, have received a telegram from the United States Marine Corps, stating that their son, Corp. Kermit E. Craig, is missing in the Manila Bay area. Kermit Craig is 28 years of age, and is a graduate of the Morton Valley school.

The telegram received by Mr. and Mrs. Craig reads as follows: "The Commandant, U. S. Marine Corps, regrets to advise you that according to records of this headquarters your son, Corporal Kermit E. Craig, U. S. Marine Corps, was performing his duty in the service of his country in the Manila Bay Area when that station capitulated. He will be carried on the records of the Marine Corps as missing, pending further information. No report of his death has been received and he may be a prisoner of war. It will probably be several months before definite official information can be expected concerning his station.

"Sincere sympathy is extended to you in your anxiety and you are assured that any report received will be communicated to you promptly."

Citizens Balk At Cost Of A Road So Build Their Own

LEXINGTON, Mass. (UP)—New England's early colonial project known as a road-laying bee has been revived by 25 residents of this historic village to remedy a 20-year agitation and save $24,000.

When home owners of a rocky section of the town learned it would cost $26,000 to have a road built through their district, they decided to do the work themselves.

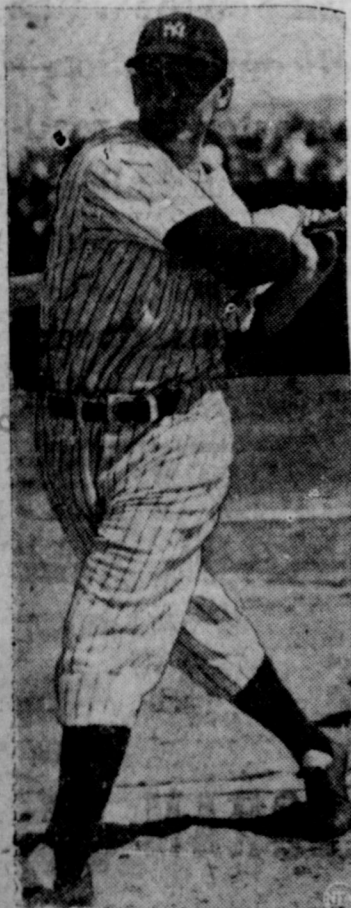

Children and women joined the men in digging the road on evenings and Sundays and finally the mile-long stone foundation was completed and paved with cinders. Total cost of the project was $2,000 and this cash was raised by assessing each neighborhood family $100.

When town officials noticed the community effort, they supplied an engineer, machinery, trucks and a bulldozer, so that the only cost to the household laborers was for building materials, dynamite and a skilled man to set off the dynamite.

Firemen Encounter Priorities

ST. LOUIS (UP)—Priorities are hitting the St. Louis fire department. Forty-eight new firemen were commissioned. They had to provide their own raincoats, rubber boots and helmets. Each had to obtain an individual priority on coats and boots. They weren't able to get regulation aluminum helmets.

Yanks Up Yanks

Joe Gordon's hitting kept New York Yankees going on western trip. Second baseman sported .384 average.

Save Weight And Shipping Space By Dehydration

AUSTIN, Tex. (UP)—Bulky fruits and vegetables can be preserved by dehydration with a saving of one-third in weight and more than one-third in space, according to Luis H. Bartlett, University of Texas research engineer.

Bartlett and his associates have been developing food preservation with dehydration and portable quick-freezing units for several years. These processes now are vital to supplying armed forces and civilians abroad.

"Through dehydration," Bartlett said, "you are able to keep the food in a fine state without enclosing it in a metal or glass container. Moreover, you reduce the weight by one-third or more and the space by even larger amounts."

Equally important, Bartlett said, is the fact that dehydrated food is preserved in a state "completely comparable to freshness."

Sub Commander Is Sorry He Had To Sink A Small Ship

KEY WEST, Fla., May 23—A German submarine commander expressed his regrets to survivors for shelling their small American merchantman in the Gulf of Mexico, but told them in broken English that "you can thank Mr. Roosevelt for this," they reported here today.

NEW ORLEANS, La., May 23—Two Axis submarine torpedoes sank a United States passenger-cargo ship in the Gulf of Mexico on May 19, with 36 missing in the area's worst shipping disaster of the present war, the Eighth Naval district announced today.

Russians Smash German Attacks

MOSCOW, May 23—Front line dispatches today said that tank-borne Russian riflemen and fast-moving artillery had smashed repeated Axis counter-attacks with huge losses—including 75 of 150 armored vehicles in one battle—and enabled the Red army to press its offensive on the Kharkov front.

Fighting on the front, where the Red army broke through the outlying German defenses, obviously was intensified in German counter-thrusts by tank units were stronger, especially in the direction of the Izyum-Barenkovo sector, on the south flank of the Soviet offensive.

(The German high command claimed that the Russian offensive had collapsed and that since Thursday the Axis forces had been progressing in a counter-offensive on the entire front.)

But dispatches to the Red Star and Izvestia told of repeated instances in which Russian automatic riflemen, riding on tanks and artillery units that wheeled rapidly against the enemy flanks, had hurled back counter-attacks in which the Germans were reported officially to have lost 15,000 killed in the Izyum-Barenkovo area.

Aviation Cadet Is Also An Inventor

FOSTER FIELD, Victoria, Tex. (UP)—Leonard H. Gutterson, 26, is learning to fight with the warplanes his brainchild is helping to rush from the assembly lines.

Gutterson is an aviation cadet. His career includes work as an inventor, orator, musician, athlete, scientist and researcher.

It was the inventor side which is helping this nation's war effort. Gutterson invented a turnbuckle wrench which has speeded production of planes at a leading aircraft concern.

"I'm crazy about aviation," Gutterson, tabbed as a "walking book of knowledge," declares.

Neckers Might Be Saboteurs SANTA BARBARA, Cal. (UP)—War delivered a serious blow to "night neckers" on the high school campus. The State Guard has warned high school students there is no way they can distinguish in the dark a "necker" from a saboteur and they will be obliged to act as though they were one and the same.

London — The Royal Air Force renewed its daylight raids on Nazi objectives in France, after bombing the St. Nazaire submarine base.

Chungking — Japanese are reported to have been repulsed by the Chinese with the loss of possibly 10,000 Japanese soldiers near Foochow, on the east coast.

Australia — Allied planes knock but two Japanese ships and 13 planes in aerial warfare over the island bases north of Australia, where the enemy was reported to be massing more strength for a renewed offensive.

India — Royal Air Force bombers attacked the Japanese at Ak-yah, on the west coast of Burma, hitting a steamship, and airdrome and a seaplane base.

Officers Seeking Forger In Area

AUSTIN (UP)—The Department of Public Safety has asked all police and sheriff's departments to keep on the alert for a forger who has operated widely, and successfully, in West and Central Texas.

The checks are given in amounts ranging from $35 to $98, usually with some notation such as "for two cows" or "wrecked car" which would avoid suspicion as to the size of the check.

The white man apparently obtains accurate information as to his victim's bank account and copies signatures expertly. He has been described as 30 to 40 years old, five feet nine or ten inches tall and of stocky build.

He has cashed checks — always at banks — in Quannah, Floydada, Jayton, Spur, Burnet, Mason, Lampasas, Georgetown, San Marcos, Blanco, Tahoka, Stanton, Midland, Stamford, Hamlin and Littlefield.

BATTLE OF KHARKOV IS ROARING TOWARD CLIMAX AFTER 12 DAYS OF SEIGE

RUBBER PLANT STARTS UNDER NEW PROGRAM

By REUEL S. MOORE United Press Staff Correspondent AKRON, O., May 23—Sheets of synthetic rubber, the first produced under a government program aiming at 1,000,000 tons a year, are rolling from two mills here.

This supply is in addition to small quantities private plants already were producing, and new plants will be producing soon, but officials of rubber companies see a long period in which civilians will get no tires.

P. W. Litchfield, chairman of the board of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, reviewed the situation for correspondents who are touring war plants under auspices of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Until American synthetic rubber production gains momentum, the United States must rely on its present stockpile, reclamation of vast quantities of old rubber over the nation and small quantities of raw rubber from Ceylon and South America.

Litchfield said the automobile tires on roads and highways were one of the greatest rubber reserves, probably totaling 1,000,000 tons.

"This supply must be guarded and conserved," he said. "There is not an ounce of rubber to be wasted. We must stop using automobiles when they are not used economically. We must slow down our cars on the road, load them up, run them only when necessary."

While rubber companies are wrestling with the problem of a synthetic supply, they are going full speed on their war program and making a long list of goods, including leakproof airplane fuel tanks, barrage balloons, pneumatic boats and barges and pontoons.

Goodyear foresaw the stringency of rubber production, and in order not to waste time, swung over to making airplane parts, gun platforms, shells, small arms and ammunition. The changeover was made without difficulty and Goodyear employs thousands more workers than it did in peace time.

Pipeline, Canal Will Be Urged For East Coast

WASHINGTON, MAY 23—Chairman Joseph J. Mansfield, D. Tex., of the rivers and harbors committee, said today he would ask for early house consideration of the bill to authorize expenditure of $144,000,000 for a Florida pipeline and improvement of the gulf and Atlantic coastal waterways.

The bill, approved by the committee yesterday, would authorize a pipeline from Port St. Joe, Fla., to Jacksonville, Fla., connecting the Gulf inland waterway system to the Atlantic seaboard waterway. Both waterway systems would be improved and extended, with a new barge canal to be built from Port Inglis, Fla., to Jacksonville, and the Texas coastal waterway extended from Corpus Christi south to near the Mexican border.

Mansfield said he would ask Speaker Sam Rayburn and Democratic Leader John W. McCormack of Massachusetts to call the bill up as soon as possible.

Goebbels Urges His Brand Of Truth Telling

Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, German propaganda minister urged the United States and British governments today to be like him.

He added that he meant they should tell the truth at all times and not delude themselves with the idea that they could win the war.

At the same time Goebbels announced that 14 "Communists" had been sentenced to death at Mannheim, one of the most bombed industrial cities of Germany, on the charge of "support of enemy disintegration of defensive strength and listening to foreign wireless stations."

The Berlin radio also warned German washerwomen, seamstresses and "other persons" that too many of them refused to take jobs unless they were fed without being obliged to use their ration tickets.

"This exploitation of the war situation endangers normal distribution of vital and necessary foodstuffs," the Berlin radio said.

Goebbels, in his outburst, complained that the United States and Britain believed they could win the war. He urged them to abandon this idea because "German faith in victory is based not on illusions but on facts, and as facts are stronger than illusions, Germany will win the war."

The United States shipbuilding and plane production programs, Goebbels said, are based on illusions because there is still unemployment in the United States, and there were complaints of lack of patriotism among workers who will earn much money but will not work much.

"In Germany," he said in a special article published in the weekly magazine Das Reich, "everybody knows how difficult it is to achieve a grandiose war program. We do not hesitate to adopt radical measures to achieve our aims."

The United States, he said, could not possibly build merchant ships, warships and planes at the same time, even excluding tanks, and hence President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill were "lying political swindlers."

"We Germans are clinging to facts," he wrote. "We are continuously endeavoring to tell the truth. We do not say much but we let the facts speak. We consider that self-deception is the most fateful mistake one can make in a war."

Depositors Not Interested TOLEDO, O. (UP)—Money does not mean much to some Toledo bank depositors. When the deputy superintendent of banks in charge of liquidation announced a final dividend of 16.05 per cent on Commercial Savings Bank & Trust company claims, 18,500 of the 20,000 depositors didn't show up.

By JOE ALEX MORRIS United Press Foreign Editor The great mechanized battle of Kharkov roared swiftly toward a climax today with the Red army reporting hard-won advances in furious fighting and the Nazis claiming that a two-day old Axis counter-offensive was making progress.

The 12-day engagement in which the Russians dealt crushing blows at the men and machines massed by Hitler for a projected drive into the Ukraine still was undecided. It appeared that the Axis was now attempting to overcome its heavy losses (including around 500 tanks) by shooting the works in an effort to get a big-scale offensive moving on the southern front.

Moscow dispatches acknowledged that fighting was growing heavier and that the Nazis were rapidly maneuvering groups of 40 to 60 tanks from one sector to another, warding off Red army blows and repeatedly counter-attacking. But Moscow also reported that the Russians continued heavy offensive blows, that 72 more enemy tanks, 150 automobiles and that a new strong point before Kharkov had been captured.

The German high command's communique, however, claimed that the Russian offensive on the Kharkov front had collapsed with heavy losses and said that for two days the German, Hungarian and Rumanian forces there had been on the offensive "along the entire front."

The communique said 20 Russian infantry divisions, three cavalry divisions and 15 armored brigades had fallen in the onslaught against Kharkov and that the Soviet supply lines had now been cut. Twenty-three divisions would be probably 300,000 men.

The Russians lost 452 planes between May 14 and May 21 compared to 45 German planes lost, the Nazis claimed.

Pending further reports from both Moscow and Berlin, it was impossible to judge accurately the extent of German success in counter-attacks. The Soviet dispatches so far have indicated that the German counter-blows were generally withstood or crushed.

The Royal Air Force resumed daylight attacks on German targets in Western Europe after a night raid on the big enemy submarine base at the French port of St. Nazaire. Large groups of fighter-bomber planes roared over the French coast in daylight.

In the Far East, Allied airplanes appeared to be increasing the number and strength of attacks on the Japanese bases north of Australia, apparently as a result of recent reports that the enemy was mobilizing greater air and sea power there. In attacks on Laos and Rabaul, the American and Australian pilots reported they had damaged an enemy tanker and a troopship and knocked out 13 enemy airplanes.

In China, stubborn fighting continued in the vicinity of Yiwu, about 25 miles north of the important Allied base at Kinwa in Chekiang Province, on the East coast, but a Japanese attempt to seize Foochow in Fukien Province apparently had been repulsed.

Chungking reported that possibly 10,000 Japanese out of an estimated 30,000 attempting to land on the Min river near Foochow had been wiped out.

In the Western hemisphere, the cabinet of Mexican President Manuel Avila Camacho approved preparations for a declaration of war against the Axis in reprisal for sinking of Mexican ships. The president will call congress at an undetermined date to put through the declaration, making Mexico the 10th American nation to join the conflict.

It becomes, then, the patriotic duty of every state to re-examine its trucking statutes and determine which restrictions can safely be lifted, if only for the duration of the war.

The situation has been rather thoroughly publicized. Illustrations of the existing confusion are plentiful, sometimes dramatic, and typical rather than individually unique. For example:

Five hundred truckloads of roofing material had to be moved from Birmingham, Ala., to an army depot under construction just outside Atlanta, Ga. In Georgia, each truck could carry approximately twelve tons, net. In Alabama, each was limited to about seven tons and a half, net. Result, 200 unnecessary truck trips from Birmingham to Atlanta.

Again: several days could have been saved by trucking roof trusses from Los Angeles to San Diego for the Navy destroyer base being built there. But the trusses were 15 inches wider than state laws permitted on the roads. The highway department could have waived the limitation. It wouldn't because trains run between Los Angeles and San Diego. So a naval base was delayed.

A trucking company wasted a whole day getting permission to haul a gun-turning lathe over Delaware and Pennsylvania highways from Wilmington to Bethlehem. A concern specializing in 600- to 1000-mile hauls between New England and the south has to underload its equipment regularly because about 40 miles of the trip is through Delaware, whose laws are less liberal than those of other states along the route.

These are only a few out of hundreds of authenticated illustrations—often more dramatic than the ones mentioned, but indescribable in the space available here—of the statutory confusion that exists. Evidence before the Interstate Commerce Commission indicates that in some instances the cost of haulage is being increased as much as 50 per cent by such limitations.

Some states already have recognized the emergency by liberalizing their statutes. It is time all states got together on a uniform code as liberal, so far as war shipments are concerned, as reasonable regard for highway safety will permit.

Because we're not psychologically ready. Because we haven't reached the flag-waving, hallelupah-shouting, Star-Spangled Banner-singing, to-Hell-with-conservatism, go-ahead-and-don't-mind-if-it-hurts-me pitch that will win this war.

We hate Hitler. We hate Mussolini. We hate the Japs. We hate everything which distinguishes the axis from civilization.

Let's say so. Let's have some songs, some slogans, some enthusiasm, something to let the ten millions who are going to be in uniform know that we're with them—not away behind.

The Payoff BY HARRY GRAYSON NEA Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK—One of the town's itinerant racing fans, so the story goes, journeyed to Baltimore to see The Preakness. When he arrived, he found the tariff beyond his means and after being rebuffed at the gate stood aside mournfully, trying to figure a way to get inside. A well-dressed gentleman approached the gate. "I'm Alsab's owner," he told the attendant. "Come right in, sir," was the respectful reply. Another chap stepped up. "I'm Alsab's trainer," he announced, was waved in promptly. A small fellow strolled up to the gate. "I'm Alsab's jockey," he informed. In he went. Our little East Side friend returned to the line. "Whaddayah want?" asked the gateman gruffly. The visitor looked him in the eye and without a blink informed, "I'm Alsab."

expense-Cutter McKellar Kills a Golden Goose, And Muddies Up Relations With Good Neighbors

THIS is the craziest country. That's what makes it so wonderful, but at the same time so exasperating and oh, so funny. Not the unfortunates in Washington these days is the rip-snortin' rampage of that roisterous riverman, the Hon. Kenneth McKellar, Memphis and senior senator from Tennessee. Senator McKellar is out to save the country by cutting expenses, a noble ambition if there ever was one, but the way Kenneth goes at the job is something to behold. His methods are those of a surgeon going into an operating room blindfolded, a doctor prescribing amputation at the hip for a sprained ankle, a veterinarian applying his horse pistol to relieve the animal of its pain. Doctor McKellar applies his cures to patients that are sound of health and need no treatment, as well as incurables that really need the money death treatment. There is, for instance, an unheralded outfit in your government called the Export-Import Bank of Washington. Its function is to finance and facilitate the exchange of commodities between the U. S. and foreign countries, and to assist in developing the resources and stabilizing the economies of countries in the western hemisphere. It functions very quietly, has only a small staff, hires no publicity agent. It is one of the very few government agencies which turns back into the Treasury more money than it spends. Its profits are actually over the $12 million dollar mark.

IN addition, Export-Import Bank has been of material aid in the war effort, in financing the production and purchase of many critical materials—rubber, sugar, tin, copper, and the like. The expenses of this bank have been running somewhat over $100,000 a year, but because of the war emergency, they were estimated for the coming fiscal year at $207,000 and legislation appropriating this sum of money passed the House as part of the Independent Offices bill. In the Senate, however, Mr. McKellar launched an all-out attack, and one of his shots had the effect, not of reducing the Export-Import appropriation, but of killing it entirely. The Export-Import Bank was simply put out of business, with no thought of what would happen to the hundreds of millions already invested. Now isn't that a heck of a way to run a country? It so happens that the people who run Export-Import aren't worried. They say the appropriation will be put back when the bill goes into conference to recon-

Sheep Barber Is Wanting To Quit But Just Can't Annual Is Dedicated To Senator Connally

SPRINGFIELD, O. (UP)—Although earning from $14 to $20 a day, Howard Locke, one of Ohio's champion sheep shearers, would like to get out of the business, but "it's hard to turn down old customers." Locke, as an 18-year-old 4-H Club member, won the state junior sheep-shearing championship in 1933. Four years later, he won the senior championship, and in 1938 he won the grand championship. Three years ago, he teamed with a cousin, Gale Locke, and each spring they make the rounds of the larger farms in Clark and Campaign counties. Now operating his own farm, Locke would like to devote all his time to it, but his shearing work is in big demand. With a big flock to work on, Locke, averages 100 sheep in 8 1/2 hours. This year's prices range from 18 to 22 1/2 cents a head, which bring attractive returns to such experts as the Lockes. Geologist recognize four great eras of world evolution—the Proterozoic (about 1,335,000,000 years ago), the Paleozoic (about 317,000,000 year ago), the Mesozoic (about 105,000,000 years ago), and the Cenozoic, which started 53,000,000 years ago, and continues. Fishing And Boating Regulations For Possum Kingdom Lake Outlined Here By A. A. King, Game Warden

A. A. King, state game warden from Breckenridge, was a visitor here Friday afternoon, and explained the fishing restrictions for Possum Kingdom Lake.

A special permit to fish in Possum Kingdom Lake is required of all persons over 17 years of age, King stated. These permits cost $1.10 each and can be obtained from him by writing him at 309 West 4th Street, Breckenridge, sending check or money order for the amount and giving the applicant's name, age, weight, height, color of eyes and hair and address.

A state artificial lure license is also required for fishing with rod and reel and using artificial bait.

Boat permits can be obtained from S. M. Pitts, Brazos River Conservation Board, Mineral Wells, with a special permit being required for a boat placed on the lake.

Fishing and boating regulations and fees, as outlined here by King include:

- 1. Fishing shall be permitted in the waters impounded by Possum Kingdom Dam on and after June 1, 1942, and until March 1, 1943, except that no fishing shall be permitted within one-fourth mile from Possum Kingdom Dam in said lake. 2. Fishing shall be permitted only with ordinary pole and line, throw line equipped with not more than three hooks, rod and reel, and ordinary lures and baits, except as specified in paragraph Six herein. 3. No person shall be permitted to take any black bass, and white bass, any channel catfish, blue catfish, or yellow catfish that is less than eleven inches in length from snout to fork of tail, or any crappie of less than seven inches in length by the same method of measurement. 4. A person shall be permitted to take in any one day or to have in his possession on Possum Kingdom Lake at any one time not more than seven black bass, seven white bass, seven catfish of one kind or in the aggregate of all catfish species, twelve crappie of any one or all species of crappie (commonly called white perch or calico bass), not more than thirty in the aggregate of the smaller sun fishes, such as bluegill bream, green perch, Warmouth bass (commonly called goggle-eye), redeared sun fish, etc. 5. Nothing in these permissive regulations shall be construed to permit the use of any seine or net for the taking of fish or minnows from said waters or to use such devices in said waters for any other purpose. Because of the necessity of conserving food for fishes in said Lake, no minnows shall be removed from said body of water for any purpose. No trolling shall be permitted from a motor boat or any other power driven boat. 6. Any person may take carp, suckers, buffalo fish, and gar fish by the methods herein permitted for taking other fish and in addition thereto by the use of a wire loop snare in any numbers and may possess same in any numbers. In addition to State fishing license, a Special Possum Kingdom License is required, cost $1.10. Boating regulations, license fees:

- 1. For a motor-driven pleasure craft that is less than 26 feet in length, $2.00 per annum. 2. For a motor-driven pleasure craft that is more than 26 feet in length, $3.00 per annum. 3. For any manually operated or propelled boat, $1.00 per annum. 4. For any pleasure craft that is operated only by sails or by sails and manually, $2.00 per annum.

5. Each motor-driven boat that is operated for commercial purposes carrying ten passengers or less, will be charged an annual license fee of $25.00; boats carrying more than ten passengers will be charged an annual license fee of $50.00; and all commercial boats are to be inspected every six months.

TWO CAREERS CHAPTER XX

THE simplest happenstance, the commonest occurrence, can change the course of one person's desires and delineate his dreams. That happened to Nigel. That glimpse of Peggy in the half-light of the room, her bright face alive with animation, her slimness accentuated by the bulk of the chair in which she sat, long legs dangling over the arm, was a revelation to him.

In that moment Nigel realized that Fay's fascination for him had been an intense young man's natural reaction to flawless beauty, but that he didn't want a girl like Fay. Not really. He didn't want someone already grown up, someone who had been everywhere, had everything, whose beauty was fundamentally serene and quiet.

He wanted—yes, he was sure of it—someone like Peggy, a half-child, half-gamin creature who was wide-eyed and excited about living and who couldn't believe that it held everything for her. He wanted a stimulant, and wasn't she? In flashback he saw her again as she was that morning on the island, and remembered how completely easy he had been with her, how casually they had talked, how natural and frank she was. He looked at her dark hair framing her face, studied the expectant intensity of her green eyes, and contrasted this mood with the gay and sunny one of the morning.

"I'm in love," thought Nigel. It was with surprise and some relief that he realized that his restlessness of the afternoon and evening had been because he wanted Peggy with him, every moment, and she hadn't been. What a fool he'd been not to know his own mind until it opened for him with this glimpse of her in the moonlit room!

The noise of his footsteps wakened Peggy from her dreaming. "Nigel!" she cried, eager to tell someone how thrilling her dreams had been. Then she restrained herself, but the excitement in her voice had been mistaken by Nigel for pleasure at seeing him.

"I've got an idea," he said. "Let's slip away from the other and go down for a moonlight swim."

She jumped off the arm of her chair. It was just what she needed to work off some of her excitement.

"Yes, let's," she laughed. At that moment Baldy came back into the room lighting a fresh cigar, and with an indefinable air of having arranged the affairs of the world. He couldn't live without managing somebody or something, finding himself much better at arranging other people's lives than his own. He had also found it more profitable in the long run.

Baldy saw the two standing near the window and crossed to them swaggering with assurance. "It's all O. K. honey. Benny'll give you a break. Chorus line first, and then a tryout. Twenty-five per on my say-so and start in Monday week."

Peggy pushed Nigel ahead of her lest he hear too much. "See you in the morning, Baldy," she said. "And thank you. You're wonderful."

"O.K." said Baldy, "and don't forget Fay."

THE night was warm. Nigel and Peggy lay on the wooden wharf under the moon. The water below was still and with a glass-like surface.

Peggy lay on her back looking up into Nigel's eyes. He was stretched the opposite way, his head over Peggy's looking down at her. He was resting on his elbows, his hands were free to play with Peggy's hair. Nigel had just told her that he was in love with her and he had not found it hard to say. He waited hopefully for an answer.

Peggy studied his face. Brown eyes, nice eyes, the nicest eyes she had seen. Everything happens at once, she thought. It was too bad for Nigel but she had made up her mind to go on the stage. She felt a satisfying sense of power. She could afford to be Lady Bountiful. A glimmer of a smile crossed her face and her hands took his head between them and drew it down to her lips. It was a gesture that she imagine would have looked well on the screen and in her mix-like way she was playing a part. But the first touch of her cool lips on his broke his restraint, and in a swift rush of emotion his hands crushed her lips to his. Peggy struggled, thrusting him away. She sat up quickly, her self-confidence badly shaken. The blood was racing through her pulses and there was a startled look in her eyes as she faced Nigel. Something had flowed through her like liquid fire, and her breath came short with a quick rise and fall of her bosom.

"Let's swim," Peggy said suddenly, and she plunged from the wharf into the cool water and swam furiously, as if to wash from her mind the memory of that kiss and the strange power it had over her. She didn't want to fall in love and that kiss had told her she was dangerously near it.

Nigel lifted her out as she came back to the wharf easily outdistanced by his strong stroke. She pulled her hands free of his as soon as she was out, as if to pull herself free of his influence.

"Tell me," said Nigel, trying to be casual, "what was old polisher talking about up there?"

Impulsively, as if the revelation would destroy his new influence over her, she turned to Nigel. "I've got my chance. I'm going to New York."

A COMMITTEE of four met in the rockery the next morning. Nigel presided with a gloomy expression on his face. The day promised to be of the same unbroken sunshine as the previous one, but without the same harmony that had settled on the house party the day before. It had been obvious at breakfast, although no one had been quite able to understand why.

Ferdy had gone his way as usual. If his guests would allow him to paint at leisure he would allow them to solve their own troubles in their own way. Which they were doing.

Nigel and Michael faced Fay and Myra and there was not a smile among them.

In the house somewhere behind them Baldy was putting Peggy through what he called a routine. Peggy was co-operating enthusiastically. Baldy was glad to have something to do to fill the vacuum between his attacks on Fay's resolution. "I don't like it," said Nigel. "Here this squirt drops on us uninvited and makes a plague of himself. Now he caps it by persuading a young girl to go down to New York with him." Myra shook her head. "There's only one thing wrong with that argument. I know Peggy, and if I'm not mistaken there is more to it than a gleam in her eye." Fay spoke: "This is the first I have heard of it. What is Baldy doing, what has he done?" (To Be Continued)
