Senator Has Ideas About Entertaining Men In Service

AUSTIN—Senator H. L. Winfield of Fort Stockton, president of the Senate, who acts as governor while Coke Stevenson is out of the state, has some ideas of his own about entertaining soldiers who are on leave.

The regular recreational facilities, including those that give free doughnuts and coffee to visiting troops, are all right, says Winfield, but mainly they crave company.

"It seems to me that those boys would like most of all to get away from the hairy-chested atmosphere of army camps for a little while. They'd like to associate with civilians and smell some talcum powder," he says.

Winfield told a story describing what it means to be really broke, financially.

"I knew a Negro once that said he was so flat-busted that if a ticket around the world cost only a dime, he couldn't even ask what time the train left."

Mathematics Holds Back Applicants As Ensigns In Navy

AUSTIN, Tex. (UP)—Lack of fundamental education in mathematics is a major obstacle in choosing acceptable candidates for U. S. Navy ensign commissions, Dr. H. T. Ettlinger, University of Texas mathematics professor, has pointed out. He quoted from a letter of Admiral C. W. Nimitz, who commands the U. S. Pacific fleet.

Nimitz wrote that, of 8,000 applicants, 3,000 were rejected because they had no mathematics or insufficient math at college or had not taken plane trigonometry. Without fundamental mathematics, a person is not considered good naval reserve officer material.

Car Requisitioning Is Again Brought Up

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 22—Arthur Newhall, War Production Board chief, said that requisitioning of passenger automobiles may be necessary to meet the transportation demands in the war boom communities.

Next Registration Will Be On June 30

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 22—President Roosevelt today set June 30 as the date for registration of young men 18 and 19 years of age in order to complete the nation's wartime canvass of manpower.

STATE TAKES OVER AID FOR NEEDY BLIND

AUSTIN (Spd)—Have you been missing the blind beggars who once were familiar sights upon the streets of Texas cities?

Texas is now providing blind persons with regular monthly support in their own homes through the Aid to Needy Blind program of the State Department of Public Welfare. Those who continue to solicit alms either do so because they do not meet the residence or citizenship requirements, or prefer to make their living by begging because it is more profitable or because they have learned to love the daily contacts with passers-by and the hubbub of street life.

Welfare statistics reveal that 2,999 blind persons are now receiving a total of $78,661 per month in average grants of $22.89. The Texas law specifies that no person who publicly solicits alms shall be eligible for blind aid. Of course, only a small percentage of recipients of state aid previously lived by soliciting alms. The great majority of the blind population disdained this mode of livelihood.

Welfare Department statistics have not classified prior support so as to reveal the number who previously lived by soliciting alms. Of the 2,857 cases tabulated, 809 previously lived on their own earnings or resources; 1,437 had been supported by relatives or friends; 586 were being supported by public or private relief; and the prior support of 25 was not ascertained.

In order to qualify for aid a blind person must not only be in need but he must be examined by a physician who is skilled in diseases of the eye and determined to have less than one-tenth normal vision. Economic blindness includes not only those who are totally blind but those who may require assistance because their vision may be so poor they cannot work and support themselves. To be eligible a blind person must be a citizen of the United States and must have lived in the state at least one year just before applying for aid, and four more in the last nine. Grants vary according to the amount needed in each individual situation to provide the basic necessities and necessary treatment.

The Welfare Department attempts to render services to the blind such as securing Braille editions and talking book equipment. Sometimes they can be assisted toward securing employment or operating vending stands which, even though it may pay very little, frequently has a wholesome effect on their lives. In some cases state-financed surgical treatment may bring back sight, especially when blindness is due to cataracts, or medical treatment may avert complete loss of vision.

WAR RAGES 'SOUTH OF THE CLOUDS'

War-boomed, mountainous Yunnan province, whose name means 'South of the Clouds,' is the battlefield where China fights a back-roller attack on Chungking. Burma Road traffic and the shifting of Chinese war industries west brought great activity to this ancient province, first conquered by Kublai Khan and now threatened by Jap forces from Burma and Indo-China. Rain may wash out Jap hopes of reaching Chungking via Yunnan, for the monsoon season just beginning presages many soggy months in this area.

Political Interest Is Still Lagging

AUSTIN—Except for the U. S. Senate race, there still is little interest in Texas politics. Nine positions as state representative are vacant now by resignation and one by death and one Senate seat by resignation. Eleven representatives have indicated they will not be candidates for reelection.

That leaves 129 probable candidates for re-election to the House, and thus far but 16 have announced opponents. The deadline for filing candidates is less than a month away.

Of representatives seeking other jobs, Lester Boone of Fort Worth wants to be railroad commissioner; Walter A. Ferguson of Overton, and G. C. Morris of Greenville, state senators; E. A. Coker of Livingston and Doyle Pevehouse of Corsicana, district attorney; Bruce Allen of Waxahachie and James M. Heflin of Houston, county judge.

It takes the work of 18 men back home to keep a single soldier on the fighting front.

Baylor University Holds Elections

WACO, Tex. (UP)—Results of three student elections at Baylor University were announced simultaneously.

First members of the new honor council, governing board for the honor system approved two weeks ago on the 97-year-old Baptist campus, are Jack Flanders, Little Rock, Ark., and Bill Coleman, Kerrville, seniors next year; Bland Swarting, Waco, and Terrell Blodgett, Wickett, juniors; Susan Sandorfer, Belton, and Tom Johnson, Beaumont, sophomores, and Peeler Williams, Waco, law school.

Jean Gibson, Waco; Larry Harris, Kaufeng, China, seniors, and Blodgett were named to the board of publications, which determines policies and editors of the student newspaper and annual.

Bill Allcorn, Brownwood; U. A. Young, Waco and Swarting were named yell leaders. Robert S. Denny, director of religious activities; Frank Burkhalter, journalism professor, and Dwight Parks, president of the Baylor Chamber of Commerce, announced the results.

Morton Valley H D Club Met On Last Tuesday P. M.

The Morton Valley Home Demonstration Club met, Tuesday, May 19, at 2 o'clock in the home of Mrs. W. E. Tankersley.

The meeting was opened by the vice president, Mrs. W. S. Tankersley. "America," was sung by the group. The club prayer was repeated in unison. Roll call was answered with "Patriotic Songs."

Mrs. R. W. Gordon read a victory demonstrators duty. She stated Victory pins would be awarded to these demonstrators by County Council.

Mrs. Josie K. Nix gave the council report.

The next meeting will be June 7, in the home of Mrs. Josie K. Nix.

Refreshments were served to Mes. T. L. Wheat, H. C. Pounds, Josie K. Nix, R. W. Gordon, and the hostess, Mrs. Tankersley. Clint Jones, Thad Henderson,

RUSSIANS NEARING THE "IMMEDIATE GOAL" NEAR VITAL CITY OF KHARKOV

UNION SIGNS AGREEMENT ON NO WAGE HIKE

By United Press

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 22—The Building Trades Union of the American Federation of Labor today signed an agreement with the government to stabilize wages on all federal construction for the duration of the war.

The building trade announcement was made shortly after President Roosevelt voiced opposition to individual companies granting pay raises out of line with the national wage stabilization policies.

The building trade agreement, affecting 1,500,000 members of 19 unions in the building construction industry, was the first covering national labor organizations under the law providing machinery for wage stabilization.

JUNGLE TROOPS ARE READY FOR CANAL DEFENSE

By United Press

PANAMA, Republic of Panama, May 22 (UP)—Any enemy which attempts a large-scale land attack against the Isthmus of Panama will face a defender who is eager and thoroughly trained for his job.

This was amply demonstrated last month when thousands of United States Army troops participated in the largest maneuvers ever held on the Isthmus.

Observation of Japanese infiltration and jungle tactics in the Philippines, Singapore, Malaya, Burma, and China have taught valuable lessons to military strategists throughout the world. Nowhere has the lesson been taken more to heart than by the officers in command of the Panama Canal Department, where steaming jungles, fetid swamps, and rugged mountains duplicate in many respects the terrain over which the Japanese swarmed to win their battles, thus far, in the Far East.

Attack Without Warning The maneuvers made use of thousands of men who have spent months in the jungles conditioning themselves and bringing their minds and bodies to the highest peak of efficiency for this type of warfare.

The men, hard, tanned, tireless marchers and fighters, know the country thoroughly. They have been trained to creep through apparently impenetrable forests, to make long forced marches, to attack suddenly, without warning, and in general to accomplish the seemingly impossible.

The maneuvers indicated that these jungle-trained American soldiers are capable of meeting a tireless, wily enemy and, using his own tactics, defeat him soundly.

The Yellow, or attacking, forces in the maneuvers used infiltration tactics, forced marches, and surprise attacks. When it was over the attackers had spent their force without accomplishing their objective—destruction of the Panama Canal.

Self-Sufficient In Jungle As an illustration of the methods employed by the Yellow forces, it can be cited that they staged a 15-hour march of 26 miles through jungles, over a mountain more than 3,000 feet high, and out onto a plateau. There they attacked a numerically superior Blue, or defending army.

The Yellow force had enough stamina remaining to march an additional 20 miles that night in another sweeping infiltration movement. Both marches failed in their final objectives and this must be construed as a tribute to the jungle skill of the defending troops who also employed trained jungle fighters.

During the months these troops have been trained in this rough country, they have received specialized equipment for the type of work they perform. Specific details may not be revealed, but it may be said that once finished with his training, the American jungle fighter is a self-sustaining, mobile, self-sufficient, fighting man who knows both the difficulties and disadvantages of his territory.

Roosevelt States War Will Be Long

By United Press

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 22—President Roosevelt, declaring that this country still faces the prospect of an awfully long war, warned today against unwarranted and overly enthusiastic optimism about progress of the present conflict.

THE WEATHER West Texas—Little temperature change. Widely scattered thunder-showers in north portion this afternoon.

The Battle of Kharkov raged on without decision, but the Russian Red Army reported it was gaining the upper hand in one of the biggest tank battles of the war.

Moscow dispatches said that the Russian onslaught under Marshal Rimoshenko had broken into the fortified town on the heels of the retreating Nazis and that the army was nearing its "immediate goal" which might be either the breaking of the enemy communication lines, or upon Kharkov, itself.

The Axis, on the other hand, claimed that Soviet attacks upon the Kharkov Front had been repulsed with heavy losses and that the first time since the Germans had "regained the initiative."

The Russians said that fighting continued on the Kerch Peninsula area, where the Germans more than a week ago claimed that all resistance by the Russians had been broken. Today's German communique claimed that a total of 169,000 Russian prisoners had been taken in the mopping-up operation, which were now in progress after the Russian defeat.

Communication from other battle fronts showed:

Germany—Reports Reaching Soviet sources said that Adolf Hitler had started using extraordinary powers recently granted to him by the Reichstag, and had ordered arrest of a number of court officials in Berlin, Cologne, Frankfurt and other German cities, because the courts failed to impose drastic sentences upon persons who showed discontent with the Nazi party, or with the conduct of the war.

Australia—A United States Submarine has sunk a Japanese cruiser, two large freighters and Allied planes bombed the Japanese base at Lae, on New Guinea.

China—The Chinese have frustrated a Japanese landing at Foochow, but the enemy continued pressure toward the Allied air bases in Eastern China, with heavy fighting in progress in the Chekiang Province. More than 1,000 Japanese were killed in this area, and Chinese casualties were reported to have been high.

India—British planes of the Royal Air Force again have bombed the Japanese air base at Akyab, on the west Burma coast.

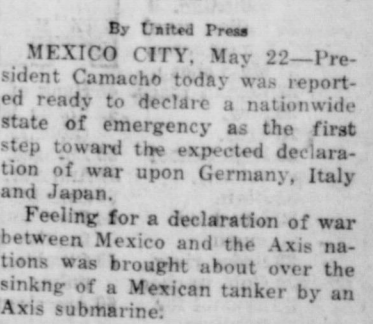

Mexico Ready To Declare Emergency

By United Press

MEXICO CITY, May 22—President Camacho today was reported ready to declare a nationwide state of emergency as the first step toward the expected declaration of war upon Germany, Italy and Japan.

Feeling for a declaration of war between Mexico and the Axis nations was brought about over the sinking of a Mexican tanker by an Axis submarine.

Let's Have Some Hoop-La

One thing missing in this war is the good old hoop-la that gets under the toughest hide, brings one's heart up into his throat, and transforms humdrum mechanics and prosaic clerks into dashing heroes.

In a mechanical way we are doing very well. We are making enormous quantities of very superior airplanes, tanks, jeeps, ships guns, etc.

Yet five months after the sneak attack upon Pearl Harbor there is something like that swelling emotional response which swept the nation immediately after war was declared against Germany in 1917.

This is no evidence of disunity. Probably the people of the United States hate Hitlerism more intensely and more universally than their fathers and mothers disliked Kaiserism.

But we refuse to let ourselves go. We don't want to emote. We take pride in our cynicism—in being so sophisticated that even a world holocaust can't sweep us off our feet.

We believe this is all wrong. The underdog has to get steamed up to snarling, drooling oblivion of the odds against him, before he can hope to win a war.

We and our associates in the United Nations are the underdogs today. Don't let any Pollyanna convince you otherwise.

Potentially unconquerable, we softened ourselves with phony logic, rationalizations, sophistication. We permitted ourselves to be caught unprepared. Now we have been forced into a last ditch defense, struggling desperately to keep from being pushed off the face of the earth before we can muster our strength to fight back.

Cool, calm, reasoning efficiency is necessary. But that is not enough today.

We need the firecracker enthusiasm of 1917 and 1918. We need flags waving, troops marching, one-minute speakers. We need war songs that will spring to our lips as spontaneously as Tipperary and Over There did quarter of a century ago.

New Code Needed

The long-standing fight between railroads and trucking companies once had only academic and long-range interest for those on the outside. Now the controversy, or more specifically its effects, has become very important.

Restrictive state laws, enacted often to protect railroads against the competition of trucks, are interfering seriously with the effective utilization of trucks, tires, gasoline and manpower in moving war material.

So long as neither railroads nor trucks were being used to any approximation of their capacities, this didn't matter much except to the stockholders in the corporations affected.

PULASKI SHRINE IS CLOSED FOR THE WAR

SAVANAH, Ga. (UP)—The Fort Pulaski national monument, historic shrine visited by 60,000 persons each year, has been closed to the public for the duration.

The strategic location of Fort Pulaski, fortification used during the Civil War and engineered by Robert E. Lee shortly after his graduation from West Point, caused officials to close it.

Built during the 1820's, Fort Pulaski had been under improvement for seven years. It was dedicated as a national park in the fall of 1938. Naval officials said the fort and grounds would be maintained and turned back to the Department of Interior following the war.

OKLAHOMA CITY (UP)—Safety Commissioner Walter B. Johnson, who directed rescue work at 18 tornado-struck Oklahoma towns during the spring storm period, found the strangest quirk at Pryor, Oklahoma.

The roof, three walls and all of the furniture except a kitchen table were blown away from one Pryor residence. Resting on the kitchen table was a small basket full of eggs. None was broken.

Russian observers at the North Pole report that during May the temperature there rises as high as 32 above zero.

THE PAYOFF

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK—At the outset, William Malcolm Dickey at six feet two generally was considered too tall for a catcher. Some pitchers thought he stood too high to be a good target. Five feet 10 is regarded as the ideal height for a backstop. It was suspected that the catching squat would be tough—wear out a receiver towering into the air as high as Bill Dickey.

Yet Trainer Earl Palmer traces the Little Rock Larruper's athletic longevity to his long, supple muscles.

The Yankee bone tender points out that the leg muscles of many stocky catchers knot up after a few years.

OUTSIDE of the better heavyweights, the late Tex Rickard didn't know one fighter from another.

The great promoter bumped into Bud Taylor on a train the day after the Terre Haute Terror had turned in a phenomenal performance at Madison Square Garden.

"Hello, Mr. Rickard!" beamed Taylor, thrilled to meet the master showman.

"Hello, kid," replied Rickard, not recognizing the finest bantamweight in the land who had just filled the house he built on Eighth Avenue.

Larry MacPhail, who so quickly took the Brooklyn club out of the red, is that way to a certain extent, according to Jimmy Wasdell.

"Although I was with the Dodgers two years, I don't believe MacPhail knew me without my number," explains the Pittsburgh outfielder. "Once I was in a hotel lobby talking with Hugh Casey, when MacPhail breezed by and said: 'Hello, kid.' "He didn't know me."

Eastland Over Subscribes USO Quota Of $600

In a report from Mrs. Marene Johnson, U. S. O. Drive Chairman for the City of Eastland, to Charles Kleiner, county chairman, she was very glad to be able to report that the citizens of the City of Eastland had oversubscribed the City's quota of $600.

Mrs. Johnson reports the citizens of Eastland seemed very anxious and willing to help in this very worthy cause, and in numerous cases, citizens called and requested their donations be taken.

Mrs. Johnson wished to thank the various co-workers, ladies clubs and many others who helped solicit the funds from the various sections of the town.

She also wishes to thank each and every subscriber for his hearty cooperation in helping to give our Soldiers A Home Away From Home.

War Labor Board Turns Up Hot Scraps That Never Get Into the Newspapers

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Service Washington Correspondent

SOME of the loveliest fights in Washington don't get in the papers. Maybe it's just as well, for the hardest fights are apt to be the longest fights and the longest fights have a tendency to develop like chess matches, where a move has to be made only once every half hour, or a British cricket match, where the spectators stand around in gray toppers, leaning on their canes for days at a time without any more signs of life than someone occasionally opening his mouth to say "Haw!"

Among the better and bitter battles that have been fought in Washington this past winter have been some of the closed session hearings before panels of the War Labor Board. Clarence B. Randall of Chicago, Inland Steel vice president who presented his company's case before the WLB recently, told about a few of the fast rounds fought in this case, and they make an interesting chapter on one phase of the war effort that isn't generally known.

Much to-do was made over the announcement that WLB was to make its full board meetings open to the public, but this does not apply to the panel meetings, where the real arguments are presented before three members, one representing the public, one labor, one management. In the Inland Steel case, Arthur S. Meyer, chairman of the New York state mediation board, presided as panel chairman, and at its opening session on Feb. 26, it was agreed that no one would talk until after the hearings were concluded. At first that was considered a gag rule, but as the hearings progressed it became apparent that this gag was probably for the best, for if both sides had been permitted to spout openly there would have been grandstanding that would have made this dispute over closed or union maintenance exceedingly dirty.

RANDALL himself is never at a loss for a word, and he pays full respects to Phil Murray, president of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee who presented the case for the union, as his opponent. Murray's rich Scotch burr, his sense of the dramatic and his timing make him an extremely forceful speaker. In one session Murray, in objecting to a ruling of Chairman Meyer's, said bitterly, "I do not think you are fit to preside over this panel!" It threw the session into an uproar, though a week later, Meyer and Murray were laughing about it when Murray had occasion to remark with mock meekness, "May I enter my usual mild objections?"

The Inland Steel negotiations have been going on eight months. There were 17 sessions of direct company-SWOC negotiations from September through December, disposing of all questions but closed shop and check-off. In mid-January, SWOC asked for $1 a day increase. In February the case was certified to War Labor Board. Panel hearings were concluded toward the end of April. The panel has been reviewing the record. They will call back union and management representatives. They will make their findings. Then will come public sessions before the full War Labor Board in which there will be oratory and arguing to tire the patience of the gods. It will be June or July by then, and the end will not yet be in sight.

NTSTC Co-ed Was Raised On Carnival Lots Of Nation

DENTON, Texas—From the world of "Hey, rube" to the college campus comes a North Texas State Teachers College junior, Charlene Lindsey of Dallas.

Daughter of a show couple who were touring with a cross-country carnival when she made her appearance, Charlene knows Texas as home, though she has literally lived out of a suitcase most of her life and can name all of the 48 states as being her address at one time or another.

During her childhood, Charlene's mother and father booked their shows of various concessions with touring fairs and carnivals and tried to keep her from an over indulgence of amusement rides. As a result of these years spent in show business, this 20-year-old co-ed admits that she has uncovered a number of mysteries of the side-show world and also saved money enough for a career at college.

Since the year her father decided it was necessary to light in one place long enough for Charlene to get an education it has been traditional for the family to winter in Dallas, where they own an amusement park.

At the Denton college, Charlene shows her flair for dramatics by taking leading roles in college plays and designing sets and costumes.

A return trip to New York is on Charlene's calendar or summer activities. After that she will meet her father in Iowa and spend a month of "suitcase" touring working in concession booths, and living side by side with real life show-world characters before she returns to school next fall.

Every Dog Has His Day

This has been said of many faithful dogs that have shown loyalty, consideration, courage and unflinching love to his master . . . only after he is dead.

In many respects your newspaper is similar to the life of a dog—It must always be on the watch—show unflinching courage and consideration—be ready at all times to face its master, the reading world, fair and square showing no malice or partiality.

A newspaper has no "day" because it doesn't die . . . it must keep serving from day to day without end.

War Puts A Crimp In Sea Fishing

AUSTIN— Freshwater fishing in Texas this year generally has been good but the war is putting a serious crimp into the activities of the sportsmen who fish in salt waters. The U. S. Coast Guard now requires each boatload of salt water fishermen going outside the Gulf tiffies to stop by a Coast Guard station and apply for a fishing permit.

Each person in the boat must apply for permission to fish, exhibit proof of citizenship and three passport pictures of himself. The boat supplies and crew will be checked both outbound and inbound at the Coast Guard station. Separate papers are needed for each trip.

The game fish and oyster commission reports that freshwater fishing, particularly in lakes, has

PARK SCHOOL PLAN CUTS OUT VANDALISM

CHICAGO (UP)—Park vandalism, committed mainly by school children, forced village officials of Glencoe, Ill., to develop the "park school plan" under which losses amounting to $10,000 a year were cut to $500.

Put into practice about 10 years ago when the town became the owner of a seven-acre tract next to a public school, the plan has been expanded until now all of the school children serve as park helpers. Supervision of the project is in the hands of the assistant school superintendent.

The children operate a wild flower sanctuary, raise chickens, and conduct a nature museum. This year a victory garden was added.

It has been good during the first month of the season. Eleven million fingerlings from the state's ten hatcheries were released last year in Texas lakes and streams.

12 Legislators From Texas In Armed Forces

By United Press
AUSTIN, Texas, May 22— Twelve members of the Texas Legislature now are serving in the nation's armed forces, a tabulation shows.

The Senate has provided three—Major Franklin Spears of San Antonio; Lieut. Vernon Lemens of Waxahachie, and Private Marshall Formby of Dickens. Spears is in the National Guard; Lemens a reserve officer, and Formby volunteered at Lubbock as a private.

Highest officer from the House of Representatives is James E. Taylor of Kerens, now a major in the 36th division. Taylor is a candidate for the state Senate from the Corsicana district.

Rep. Paul Eubank of Matador is training to be a navy aviator and young Duncan Hughes of Georgetown seeks to become a bombardier in the army air force.

Austin friends report that the following also have entered various branches of the service: Clayton Bray of Longview; Otis E. Lock of Zavalla, John E. Lyle of Corpus Christi, Eugene McGlasson of Waco, Wayne Matthews of Gladwater and Jack Ridgeway of San Antonio.

Bray is the only one of the group who has resigned from the legislature.

National guard and reserve officers and men called into active service may continue to draw pay from their state offices, under a Supreme Court decision of 1941. A recent opinion of Atty. Gen. Gerald C. Mann, asked by Adjutant Gen. J. Watt Page, holds that a state legislature may continue to hold his office but not to draw pay, if he is in the regular army, until he becomes an army officer.

The opinion held that state officials would vacate their offices, however, by accepting an army officer's commission, except in the specified categories. So far as is known, none of the legislators who have gone into the army services would be required to vacate their offices.

Railroad Commissioner Jerry Sadler, the one-time cavalryman who has applied for re-entry into the army, has been silent about his plans pending acceptance of his application.

If he should resign from the railroad commission, Gov. Coke Stevenson would be authorized to appoint a successor to serve until a commissioner could be chosen at the general election next fall. Col. Earnest O. Thompson, commission chairman, is up for reelection, so there is a possibility that Texan may get a chance this year to vote on two railroad commissioners.

SERIAL STORY FRANTIC WEEKEND BY EDMUND FANCOTT

LOVE WALKS IN CHAPTER XIX

BALDY sat up with a jerk that shook his jowls. "What's too bad—about Fay?"

"Can't you guess?" Peggy's tone was as innocuous as jam. "I rather imagine she's going to be married before any of us realize what's happened."

"Married?" Baldy was aghast. With stubbornness he could deal. But romance?

"Yes. My brother, you know. She thinks he's wonderful, and well—no mistaking how he feels."

Baldy groaned. Peggy went on. "And now when you find someone you can work on, you can't get her."

"Who's that?" asked Baldy, suddenly wary.

"Me, of course. But I'm going on this Concert Party."

"That's right," said Baldy sympathetically. "You go."

Peggy wasn't beaten yet. "Just as the glamor girls are going out you get someone who could stand in for Vivien Leigh..."

Baldy sat up as though he had been struck. He looked at Peggy. "So you could," he said slowly. Then he shook his head. "No, it wouldn't do."

Peggy agreed with him. "No, it wouldn't. But that's what the public is going for. People get tired of these flapjacks swaying at the microphone. They want something vivacious that can knock 'em out, something like you made out of Fay Ransom."

"You got a point there, honey. Something new, always something new. Say, how old did you say you were?"

"Nineteen," lied Peggy.

Baldy shook his head. "Too old. Too set. The deb has been worked to death. People are sick of 'em. But if you could get a sub-deb crazy, something fresh and fluffy from the nest, kid spirits... say, how old did you say you were?"

"Seventeen," said Peggy.

"Split the difference," said Baldy. "You look a kid, yeah... and them green eyes."

"If I only had talent," said Peggy.

"Nuts on talent," said Baldy. "Give me Baldy Brien, a good columnist and a half-wit and we'll make a genius. And I ain't shootin' a line."

He looked at Peggy critically, studying every inch from top to toe. "Get up," he said. "Swing round." He paused. "Might take a chance. I can't lose. Say, kid, I could get you a stand in a cheap joint, friend of mine, twenty-five a week, ten for me, fifteen for you. Doesn't mean a thing to me and if you can live on fifteen I'll cut my commission to forty per cent till we see if you can break into the fifty a week class. If you can keep 'em looking at Benny's place I'll get a band leader in to look you over. That'll show 'em. The world's the same all over—knock 'em out in Benny's place and you can knock 'em out in the Cafe de Paris. All it needs is management and that's me."

He continued to study Peggy as though she were a biological specimen.

"YES, if I could keep you from getting tough, keep you fresh, keep you a year in Benny's place while I get your voice worked up and some good dancing steps—it's a chance, a chance in a thousand, but that's the game, that is, a chance in a thousand. While you got one winner, you got to have something new coming up."

He took up his glass and drained it, looked at his wrist watch. "Half-past ten. I'll get Benny long distance. O.K. kid, I'll give you a chance, take it or leave it, and you help me get Fay back on the dotted line."

Peggy jumped up, delighted. She had what most girls would give anything to have, a chance to go to New York, a chance on the stage. Money and the job meant nothing so long as she had her chance. After seventeen years the world suddenly became the exciting, thrilling place she had dreamed it might be. Nigel didn't matter so much now.

Nothing mattered. Only one thing could stand in her way. Myra and her family would forbid her to go. Peggy flicked off the lights. She could think better in the dark.

How could she keep Baldy quiet until she got away? How could she get away before her family could stop her?

She sat on the arm of a chair, a slim, attractive girl of seventeen, just out of high school, and dreamed dreams of a career that would begin in a New York night club and end in Hollywood. It was all a miracle, musted Peggy romantically, giving her machinations far less credit than they deserved. Her chance and worth fighting for!

Baldy had wandered to find the telephone. A long distance call to New York, from Ferry's house, gave him the pleasant feeling of being extravagant at someone else's expense and a feeling that at last he was doing something constructive after wasting his time all day.

PEGGY sat in the darkened room, her leg swinging idly and her mind a thousand miles away in her dreams. She did not notice Nigel standing near the French windows watching her for a moment before he came in.

Something had happened to Nigel in the moonlight. He had wandered out with Fay still hankering after something elusive in her strange mixture of sophistication and simplicity, still attracted by the striking combination of dark red hair and quiet good looks. But he could find very little to talk about. He felt awkward and ungracious. He was almost thankful when Michael joined them and he felt the burden of talking eased. He found himself slowly becoming more distracted by the moon riding high in the sky, by the line of the dark trees below the house; he felt curiously uncertain. A day ago nothing in the world had seemed more desirable than to be near Fay Ransom, to get to know her well and to find some channel by which their friendship might flow into something deeper. Now he was confused. Nothing had gone quite as he had wanted it.

He slipped away and wandered back to the house, deciding to read awhile and go to bed. He crossed the darkened veranda and stopped by the window as he saw Peggy sitting, unconscious of him, swinging her leg over the arm of the chair, her eyes bright with dreaming young dreams. The half-moon was shining right through the window and full on Peggy in the darkness.

Something happened to him in that moment that he could never quite explain. They say that when a man is drowning he sees the whole of his life flash past him in a few seconds. That was the experience that Nigel had, but in a thrillingly different sense.

PENTECOST SUNDAY

Sunday is an historic anniversary in the Christian church and also in the communion of the Church of Christ called Methodist. It is Pentecost Sunday. It was the day of Pentecost after the resurrection of Christ that a group of his disciples were filled with the Holy Ghost and went out from that experience new and spiritually powerful men. On the evening of May 24, 1738, in a chapel service in Aldersgate Street, London, there came to John Wesley a spiritual experience which transformed him from a great and good man into a powerful and effective preacher. Our Sunday morning service will have these events and their implications for us in mind.

EVENING SERVICES

All evening activities at the church will be suspended out of deference to the annual high school service at the auditorium.

WORLD SERVICE

The classes and departments of the church school will observe World Service in their opening services Sunday morning. This is a policy of the Methodist Church and not only of this Methodist church. The spiritual health of the church as a whole depends upon and is reflected by its soundness in this particular area. A church without a vision of things beyond its own household is like a man

The glory and strength of our church ever has been its world-mindedness. The fourth Sunday World Service programs seek to keep lifting up our spiritual horizons and pushing them back. We not only talk on these Sundays; we act, we put down some money to help support those enterprises of our great church in all parts of the world.

BENDER REPORTS

Mr. Earl Bender reports that some fifty contributions were received Sunday on the Art Glass windows. That is a wonderful response! No one is asked for much but all are asked for some. Wonder if we could not make a hundred per cent contribution? We are still a long distance from our goal of $300. Thanks to all who have been prompt and liberal.

Among the inspiring scenes on a Sunday is that of a family who come to the church and attend its school and its worship service. Those who hustle their children off home after school and do not give them the opportunity to worship in the church are doing their children wrong.

WOMAN'S SOCIETY

All circles of the Woman's Society will meet at the church Monday afternoon at three for a mission study program directed by Mrs. W. P. Leslie.

BANQUET BIG SUCCESS

The Father-daughter and Mother-son banquet Monday evening was nothing less than a grand affair. As usual, about time for the program to start torrents of rain came down. The lightning flashed, the thunder roared, and flurries of hail were dished up now and then for good measure. Yet the people came through it all and stayed to the end, more than a hundred of them, first and last, big and little. Food brought by the families was spread lavishly. Mrs. P. M. Kenny presided graciously. Mrs. Bert McGlamery pronounced a beautiful and appropriate invocation. Charles Fregeschlag gave a toast to the mothers and Virginia Ferguson gave one to the fathers to which responses were to the sons and daughters by Mrs. E. C. Satterwhite and Virgil T. Seaberry. All of which was done with taste and skill. Music was rendered by the Drago Octet, a piano duet by Billy and Don Brasher, and group singing lead by A. E. Herring and Ms. Olney Black. Mrs. Virgil T. Seaberry illustrated with chalk drawings some stale stories unworked by the pastor. The people went home through the rain and as they went they said: We ought to do this again. The event was sponsored by the Woman's Society of which Mrs. Frank Castleberry is the enterprising president.

WORK DELAYED ON WINDOWS

Those who visit the sanctuary of our church these days are impressed with the fact that for the time being ours is a holy church. In fact there are some three to four hundred holes in it. The officials have contracted for repairs to be made but the contractors are swamped with similar work and will be delayed a few days. In the meantime the church is receiving contributions from all the good people with which to pay for the repairs. The response, we are happy to note, is excellent. And thanks, of course.

COLORED METHODISTS

The colored Methodist of Eastland are rocking their church and stand in need of some financial assistance from the white Methodists. They are to be commended for their efforts to improve their church. You may help them through our church office.
