Grim Facts

Let no amount of wishful thinking deceive you. Next only to shipping, the rubber shortage is the most tragic bottleneck facing this nation today.

In one respect, the rubber situation is even grimmer than the maritime. We are on the way to solving our shortage of ships. If we have not quite turned the corner, we are about to, but the alarming deficiency in rubber remains a major problem.

Our vaunted industrial capacity depends, more than the layman realizes even yet, upon use of the automobile, which in turn hinges upon rubber for tires.

Take away our tires, immobilize our automobiles and we bring creeping paralysis upon the marvelous plant which we have builded and converted to supply the anti-Hitler world with armament and munitions.

Rubber is utterly essential to the task remaining before us of destroying the ability of totalitarianism to attack democracy.

Yet 97 per cent of the rubber we use came from Malaya and the Dutch East Indies, seized by Japan. We raise, at home hardly enough of the gum to make a month's supply of hot water bottles.

The American people stubbornly resist these brutal facts, and grab at every item of false hope they can find.

Such items are unfortunately common. There are literally scores of potential sources of rubber right at home. Day after day enthusiasts report that they can extract rubber from some hitherto unpublicized source.

Sure they can. Anything that can be fermented to make alcohol is a potential source of rubber.

But that is incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, to use our favorite legal objection. Petroleum, of which we have relatively unlimited supplies, will produce synthetic rubber better, quicker, more cheaply than the alcohol-producing plants. There is no problem there.

The difficulty is one of plant. Presently we are making synthetic rubber at the rate of 40,000 tons a year. By a supreme effort, the capacity of existing plants can be tripled to produce 120,000 tons a year. The Army will gobble that up and still be starved.

We have 455,000 tons in the stockpile. This can be raised to almost 600,000 tons by dilution with reclaimed used rubber. That still is less than a year's consumption.

We can and will construct plants to make more synthetic but every such plant diverts steel, manpower, and other items needed to build the immediate implements of war.

Let's get wise to the facts of life. When we wear out our present tires, we will stop using our cars. We have all there is. There won't be any more for a long time, for civilians.

We Don't Want To Be Over-Optimistic

American Mothers "Can Take It" Is Observation Of War Department

By JOSEPH L. MYLER United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 9—American mothers "can take it."

That's what they say there days at the war department's "women's interest section."

Since Pearl Harbor the WIS, headed by Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, has had to revise its approach to the mothers of fighting men.

Before the war, when the country was trying to get used to conscription, the Womens Interest Section spent much of its time assuring mothers that their boys in camp were receiving good treatment, plenty of vitamins, and ample recreational and religious opportunities.

"Since Pearl Harbor, however, everything has changed," a spokeswoman of the section said today. "Mothers no longer need to be soothed. They have what it takes to win a war."

Mothers still address a lot of questions to the WIS but the gist of most of them is, "what can I do to help?"

"All over the country," the spokeswoman said, "mothers have organized to do things for soldiers in camps — such things as mending their socks, having them out for Sunday dinner, providing furniture for 'day rooms.'"

"These mothers more often than not aren't working for their own sons, who may be in camps hundreds or thousands of miles away, but for other women's sons."

The WIS used to send out pretty booklets filled with reassuring details of camp life. Addressed to mothers, the booklets devoted considerable space to sprightly accounts of what soldiers-in-training were doing, eating, wearing and thinking. Such booklets are no longer being published.

The WIS has broadened its activities. Its speakers address wives of war workers, it sends information to women interested in getting war jobs, it distributes by printed word and the radio nutritional data, including "master menus," which war department experts have compiled for the armed forces.

The WIS is proud of the women who have gone to work in war industries. Pointing to a poster of an attractive girl in coveralls beside a hugh drill press, the spokeswoman said: "We could reproduce her 50,000 times."

Reminded that the topic under discussion was mothers, she replied: "Well—she's a potential mother."

From Aggeland are Jay T. Robbins, a baseballer of some note, and Don Kemendo, who passed up a chance to attend Baylor, in his native city, so he could play with the Texas A. and M. golf team and try out for the boxing squad at College Station.

Another collegiate golfer is Art Steel from the University of Texas. The other members of the outfit are: Ted O'Rear, whose promising football career at Hardin Junior College was interrupted by the call to arms; Bill Bonneau, ex-manager of the Hardin-Simmons baseball team; and Doug Youngblood, a Fort Worth high school football star a few years ago.

The Payoff

BY HARRY GRAYSON NEA Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK.—Accounting for his getting the bum's rush for the first time this season, Charles Dillon Stengel insists Umpire George Magerkurth lacks tact and is a kibitzer drunk with authority.

On top of that, asserts Casey Stengel, Umpire Magerkurth is a meathard. It was calling the Maje that—right out loud—that led to Casey's banishment.

"And all I asked was a little privacy," explains the inimitable manager of the Boston Braves. "With the Maje around, you might as well be in Macy's window."

Frank Frisch of the Pittsburghs tells Stengel he lacks the right approach to the men in blue. "Case is wondering about that."

"We are playing the Phils and have a three-run lead going into the ninth," elucidates Strategist Stengel. "They score and have the tying runs on base with two out. I move off the bench and talk to my pitcher, Erickson. The Major is working the bases, and when I come out he moves toward me, and I say to Erickson: 'Move over here. We don't have to have this guy listening in.'"

"MAJOR comes after me and says: 'What are you going to do — keep this guy in or bring in Salvo?'"

"I say: 'Major, I want to talk to my pitcher in private. If I make a change, I'll let you know right away. This is a tough spot. Litchfield is up. He can break up the game. I want to talk to my man.'"

"But the Major's got to listen in. I say: 'Major, how do I know you aren't going to tip off the Phils to what I'm up to? How do I know you aren't a scout? I know you tell one of my players he don't know how to slide. You tell my third baseman you can give him lessons in fielding. You are not only an umpire. You are an umpire-coach. Now please let us discuss this thing in private.'"

"The Major starts to call me names, and of course there is nothing for me to do but call him a meathard."

"Did you call me a meathard?" he barks. I might as well confess, so I say: "Yep, that's what I did."

"Get out!" he hollers. "Okay," says I, "I'm going, but now I'm really going to tell you what I think about you!"

"SINCE this is my first real brush with an umpire, I don't think Mr. Frick will fine me, but you never can tell. I remember last year when we are playing the Pirates, and in the very first inning Frisch gets chased. The umpires catch up with me later, give me the thumb. The next day I am fined $75."

"I think that's pretty stiff, and I wonder what it cost Frisch. The next time we get out to Pittsburgh, I ask Frisch, and he looks surprised and says: 'Case, it cost me nothing.'"

"Nothing," I says, "but you really laid it in to the umpire!"

"Sure," Frisch says, "but I got the right approach."

Busses of the Bureau Boys Beat the Bans

By Use of Officials' Cars—Tires and All

BY PETER EDSON NEA Service Washington Correspondent

NOBODY paid much attention to the blast which Senator Harry Flood Byrd of Berryville, Va., loosed the other day against the 18,948 government automobiles which the non-military federal agencies operate traveling 211,866,978 miles at a cost in 1941 to the taxpayers of $4,813,561. Nor were there very many eyebrows raised when the senator disclosed that these bureaucrats had to get along with only 862 chauffeurs whose combined salary amounted to less than a million dollars.

Maybe all this is chicken feed and maybe the great men of the administrative end of your government shouldn't be annoyed by trifles, but the folks back home seemed a trifle annoyed by the handout of X gasoline ration cards to congressmen. That being the case, maybe it should be called to the attention of the public servants in the executive end of the government that there's a war on, that gasoline is being rationed on the Atlantic Seaboard, that there's a rubber shortage, and that to save rubber, gasoline may have to be rationed all over this broad and beautiful land.

Consequently, Senator Byrd was doing a useful service when, as chairman of the Joint Committee on Reduction of Nonessential Expenditures, he figuratively put the pinching shoe of national economy on Uncle Sam's other foot and cautioned the old gent to take that foot off the accelerator.

Of course the government is big, of course it has a lot of extra wartime duties, and of course $5 million for car operation is nothing at all when compared to the billions for war. Five million is even practically nothing at all when compared to the $147 million total travel expenses which government paid out last fiscal year. But this matter of saving gas and rubber has become a symbol.

SAVING rubber is a holy crusade with all the significance of the widow's mite. Therefore, it behooves every government third deputy assistant co-ordinator, before stepping into one of Uncle Sam's jalopies, to raise his right hand and swear by St. Christopher and Harold Ickes that this trip he is about to make is absolutely necessary. The image of 18,948 government-owned cars roaming the country roads on unlimited X ration cards contributes nothing to the peace of mind of the average taxpayer, or the fellow trying to get along on three gallons a week.

The point of this little hemlock is that an executive assistant section chief is no better than a congressman and if you're agoin' to raise Cain with your representathe proper precautions to be used in water sports was released from the State Health Department today by Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

It was pointed out that, in view of wartime restrictions, vacation pleasures are apt to be limited to excursions and picnics at nearby lakes, rivers, and ponds of unfamiliar depths and currents, and without the usual lifeguard supervision associated with bathing beaches and commercial swimming pools.

"Swimming and water sports are beneficial to good health provided one's physical condition justifies his type of exercise," Dr. Cox asserted; "nevertheless, they possess dangerous possibilities if the rules of safety, through carelessness or thoughtlessness, are disregarded."

The State Health Officer outlined the following simple rules for bathing and swimming in safety.

1. At least one hour should elapse after a meal before entering the water.
2. Upon the first indication of fatigue, come ashore and call it a day. Don't re-enter the water.
3. If becoming chilled, leave the water immediately.

4. Do not enter the water when overheated.
  5. Learn to float. This is most important.
  6. Never attempt to rock a boat in a spirit of fun.
  7. Never swim in water that may be polluted. Swimming close to or even a few miles below sewage outlets is inviting the possibility of acquiring disease.
- "Excursions, picnics, and swimming parties contribute much to a healthy, happy, normal life, which is especially desirable at this particular time when the whole nation is tense and under a strain," Dr. Cox said. "It is by no means advisable to eliminate these excursions from our summer program, but it is important that they prove beneficial and not disastrous."

Urges Parents To Be Musical As Aid To Children

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Practice still makes perfect for youngsters taking music lessons, but a musical atmosphere at home puts more incentive and meaning to a child's musical education.

Agnes Lee, music director of Sewickley Academy, believes this to be true and urges parents to play musical instruments if their children are to progress better with their lessons.

"The greatest musicians came from musical homes—homes where fathers and mothers and children played and sang together," Miss Lee said. "A child can have an exciting time with music in school, then lose all joy in it when he goes home if no one in the home is ready to appreciate and share his joy."

Instead of fathers shouting at their children to stop practicing those "fool scales," they would do better to sit down and play the piano or beat the drums to accompany their offspring, Miss Lee believes.

Mothers, she says, should try duets with their daughters to replace the drudgery of practice hours with family companionship.

She is convinced that music "does something for a family."

"People can't play and sing together without developing a kinder feeling for each other," she explains.

SERIAL STORY CARIBBEAN CRISIS

BY EATON K. GOLDTHWAITE

THE STORY—Four visitors arrive at a Dutch West Indian island to complicate the life of Bill Talcott, who is finishing six years there as branch manager for an American chemical firm. They are Halsey, Bill's successor; an auditor, who immediately accuses Bill of a large shortage in his accounts; MacDowell, a detective brought to take Bill back to the States if any irregularities were found; and June Paterson, beautiful cousin of Bill's former roommate. At dawn two more visitors arrive, deposited by an amazing skipper after a fight in which MacDowell is wounded and Halsey routs the skipper.

EVE OF DEPARTURE CHAPTER IX

INEXPLICABLE as Bill Talcott's actions might have seemed to June Paterson, they were the direct and simple result of a combination of circumstances which, in the space of half a day, had changed the course of his life. For link by link about him was being woven a chain. Twist and struggle as he might, the thing only bit deeper into his flesh, throttled his spirit, threatened not alone his freedom of movement but his mental balance as well.

It is true that in questioning Halsey's orders and resenting his presence he had acted with all grace, scarcely in the manner of one upon whom responsibility had rested for six long years. But therein, where lay his greatest strength, was also his greatest weakness. Believe as he might that he wanted to be clear of Abas Island, wanted to put behind him its small and fith and oppressive heat, one uncompromising fact remained.

For six however long and lonely years they might have been, Bill Talcott had been monarch of a tiny kingdom. His subjects were a half-thousand natives; his chancellor Sebastian. That he had ruled fairly and justly, that he had acquitted his responsibility with honor and measurable success was no longer a matter of moment. He was being deposed, kicked out; it was not an abdication. For him there were no banquets, no poet laureates to sing his virtues. He was being forced out under suspicion. Manufactured out of whole cloth though they might be, the circumstances were sufficient to ruin him.

Halsey was no coward and he was no fool. He had shown that clearly enough in handling the refugee smuggler. He had done so well that already black Tomas and Sebastian were looking upon him as a kind of super being; even June Paterson's eyes became stary as she inspected the rangy, lantern-jawed new manager. What were Halsey's private thoughts about the guilt or innocence of Bill Talcott? Halsey was a Federal Chemical man. His life was routine, his blood was business. To him Plant Number Six was just a job, Bill Talcott just a plant manager being relieved. Bill Talcott knew, as surely as he knew that there were sharks in Anegada Passage, that loss of his head would bring the end. His personal feelings must not control him; whatever cause he might have to suspect Halsey of intrigue, however much he might resent the new man's calm efficiency in supplanting him, he must fight to keep his mind clear so that his powers of observation would not be dulled. For Talcott had come to realize that only by ceaseless watchfulness could he survive.

BILL TALCOTT suddenly chuckled. No matter how badly off he might be, he was in better shape than MacDowell. "Welcome to Abas," he chuckled aloud, and June Paterson, turning at his words, stared coldly.

Over a hastily assembled breakfast, the newest arrivals relaxed somewhat. First audience by any right belonged to the woman, and after having reiterated that she was Martha Swenson, she told of her escape from Norway.

"Through Sweden, where I have friends, I went to Murmansk," Martha Swenson said in her throaty, disturbing voice with its trace of accent. "From Murmansk to Moscow and then along the route to Vladivostok. I rode the Trans-Siberian railway to Tokyo. I sold my camera in Tokyo, it was a good camera and I got a good price. With part of the money I took passage on a freighter to the Panama Canal. It was in Colon that the Captain Jackson offered to take me to Puerto Rico where I could get a boat to New York. I wanted to go to New York because I have people there."

As her voice died silence came out of the rocky barrenness of the island and settled on the terrace. It was as if the lesser beings in their fight for existence recognized and paid silent tribute to one of their number.

June Paterson's sharply indrawn breath broke the spell. "You poor dear! You must forget all that now. If you like you may travel home with me. I'll be leaving Saint Thomas Monday on the 'Blue Petrel' and I'm sure arrangements can be made."

Woman Driver Is Delivering Milk

CLEVELAND (UP)—Women have become taxi drivers, bellhops and golf caddies, but Cleveland has discovered its first wartime feminine milk carrier.

Mrs. Sylvia Kral, standing six feet tall and weighing 170 pounds, daily wends her way through traffic, loading and delivering 340 quarts of milk.

Graduate of East Technical High school, a practical nurse, mother of two children and a night school student at Northeastern College, the attractive 27-year-old "milk-woman" admits several motives for accepting the job.

"I wanted to work out-of-doors, help in the war effort, and make some money to pay for a course I'm taking in mechano-therapy," she said. "There is on other job that fills the bill quite like this one."

Her husband, an engineer, is dubious, but admits "she ought to be able to do the job."

Arrest Of Foucaud Reported By Navy

VICHY (UP)—Major Henri Foucaud, a member of the staff of General De Gaulle, has been arrested in the free zone by French police on a charge of De Gaullist activity.

An infantry career officer he was gravely wounded during the war and because of his poor physical condition he was not jailed but was given a fixed residence near Bandol on the Mediterranean coast.

Girls Go in for Model Planes
PHILADELPHIA (UP)—A club was recently organized at the Sherwood Recreation Center to build and fly model airplanes—and the 18 members are all girls. Washington designated it as the first all-girl squadron in the N. A. A. Junior Air Reserve.

Chicken Scarce And Costly In Panama

WASHINGTON (UP)—The goose that laid the golden egg is called a chicken in Panama.

There, the Department of Commerce reports, chickens sell for as much as $2.50 each. The price is attributed to improved economic conditions and defense expenditures in the Canal Zone.

Panama, a poultry-producing country whose domestic supply is short of current demands, is trying to set a maximum of $1.80 each by lowering the import tariff from 50 cents to five cents a fowl and placing a limitation upon the number imported.

Undertakers have removed more obstacles from the path of progress than any other class of people.
