Plans New Stand

Forced to withdraw most of Britain's desert army from Libya, Gen. N. M. Ritchie is preparing for an Egyptian frontier stand against Marshal Rommel's formidable tank army.

'Mansion' Is House To The Governor Who Dislikes Show

son's modesty extends even to his surroundings. He does not refer to his official residence as "The Mansion." To him it is "the house."
He usually travels in a small type automobile without special number to designate that the rider is governor of the state.
When he goes places he does not tell how and when he will arrive, for fear there might be a hand out to meet him or a decorated car to ride in.
Yet he is not shy nor backward about following his own inclinations. When Lord and Lady Halifax visited "the house," there was much discussion about whether tea would be served in the approved British fashion. There was tea all right, but the governor took coffee. And Lady Halifax took coffee too.

Price Ceiling Is Being Completed

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 24 —The Office of Price Administration today completed its price ceiling program by placing controls over all consumers services connected with commodities.

Industry Exchanges Secrets And Resources To Speed Arms Output

NEW YORK, N. Y. —American business is removing the locks from trade secrets, pooling its production know-how, and merging its resources to speed the production of armaments, a recent survey of leading industrialists reveals.
From a meat products company recently came the offer of machine tools and shop space to "our government or to responsible parties holding war contracts."
The vice-president of the company made the following statement: "We believe the tools of a lasting peace will be cut in the machine shops of America—and that this is no time for machine shops to be idle. We are offering our machines and the facilities of our shops to our government or to responsible parties holding war contracts. We ask only maintenance costs in return—no profits."
Before the war, 1,550 companies produced cars and trucks, automobile bodies and parts, tools and dies. Since Pearl Harbor they have banded together into one gigantic arms production plant—the largest ever put together. They are trading their men, machines and know-how on a wide-open basis to get the most out of their war plants.
They now have an agreement to make tools for one another, and to release machinery, which they cannot use for their own war work, to anyone else who has need for such machinery for their war work.
When the tank program was expanded several months ago, the engineers of one company opened up their factory to production men from other companies. Result is that those companies were saved months of work in getting their plants into operation.
In the interest of increased production, companies have gone far beyond customary patent procedure in attempting to put their most advanced techniques to best service.
One example, cited from official records, is the best of a company

FAMILY MEN ARE EXEMPT FROM DRAFT

By United Press
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 24
President Roosevelt today signed a precedent-making bill, authorizing deferment of family men until the reservoir of single men is exhausted by the draft.
The bill, as signed by the president, also provided for financial aid for dependents of men in the lower pay brackets of all the armed forces of the United States.
The allowances to dependents vary with the degree of family relationship, providing $50 a month for a wife with no children, $62 for a wife and one child and $72 for a wife and two children.
Of this amount $22 comes out of the serviceman's pay check each month, and the remainder is contributed by the United States Government.

Colored Boys Get Juneteenth Melons In A County Jail

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UP) — Sheriff Owen Kilday of Bexar county is a mighty tough man to some—but with a kindly one.
And come June 19th—anniversary of Emancipation Day—21 colored prisoners were in a terrible predicament.
They knew they couldn't get out of jail—but they wanted to celebrate. They had no money. So some bright soul decided to appeal to Kilday.
The prisoners drafted a letter to the "Sheriff." It said:
"We are colored prisoners in the Bexar Co. jail and we would appreciate it if you would send us a good cold watermelon. Some of us have a year, some of us six months, and some life; and we certainly would enjoy it on the 19th of June. Oblige kindly."
The Sheriff came through. He bought watermelons—ice-cold ones to the tune of $6. And the colored boys in the Bexar county jail staged a celebration and a rousing cheer for Sheriff Owen Kilday.
Today is worth at least two tomorrows.

Three States To Drill Gas Wells To Cut Shortage

DALLAS — Threatened curtailment of war production and essential civilian activities in Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma because of insufficient natural gas has been averted through modification of existing conservation laws, announced today by the WPB Director of Industry Operations, the Dallas WPB region office has been advised.
Approximately 800 new wells will be allowed.
Order M-68-2 provides that in Missouri, and in certain areas of Kansas and Oklahoma, the size of the unit required before drilling, completing, or providing additional to any well can be carried out, will be sharply reduced from the original minimum of 640 acres. Necessary material for such work may be obtained if the unit is 40 acres or more.
That part of Kansas covered by the order consists of the land lying east of range 2 east of the sixth principal meridian. The following Oklahoma counties are included: Osage, Washington, Nowata, Craig, Ottawa, Pawnee, Tulsa, Rogers, Mayes, Delaware, Creek, Okmulgee, Wagoner, Cherokee, Adair, Muskogee and Sequoyah.
The order states in detail the spacing provisions to be followed in drilling gas wells. They can be in any discovered or undiscovered natural gas field, except a condensate field, but the drilling has to be located on land none of which is attributable to any well other than the proposed well.
In addition, all property interests in the 40-acre tract must be consolidated. Terms of such consolidation are the same as those provided in Amendment 3 to Conservation Order M-68. Further requirements concern the minimum distances the well must be from property lines or other wells. Finally, material necessary for drilling, completing, or providing additional to the well must be on hand or available without the use of priority assistance. The wells themselves will in nearly all cases be shallow and will average about 8½ tons of steel each.

Negroes Apply For Officer Training

AUSTIN (UP) — Texas Selective Service boards have had few negro applicants for officer candidate training, Gen. J. Walt Page, state selective service officer, reports.
Gen. Page pointed out that the provisions under which registrants deferred because of dependents are given an opportunity to become commissioned officers, apply to negroes as well as to whites.
During the officer candidate training period, the candidate gets the pay of a private.
A striking example of the unprecedented collaboration now the rule in the aircraft manufacturing business was cited by the president of one aircraft plant.
He pointed out that in a new Michigan plant that will build four-motored bombers the planes are being designed and powered by engines built by another, and equipped with propellers designed by another and built by still another plant.

Local Governments Reducing Spending

AUSTIN, June 24—Texas local units of government are decreasing their indebtedness, state auditor C. H. Cavness said today in a report to the governor and the legislature.
New German food comes in powder form, and no doubt the British hope it explodes where it will do the most good.

Summer Fight On Six Fronts

Summer finds the war in Europe and Africa expanding its scope of action, sweeping into the six arenas of conflict shown on map. Massed British bombers are raiding the Rhine-Ruhr and other industrial areas of western Germany. In the Balkans, activity is both in the air—with U. S. bombers raiding Rumania—and "underground." On the four other fronts, active axis-allied fighting goes on. Distances are from the centers of action in each circle. Size of rings does not indicate intensity of conflict.

Unusual Ruling Of Court Cited

AUSTIN (UP) — An unusual procedure was noted this week with announcement from El Paso that a district judge there has agreed to postpone setting an execution date for Fidel Contreras until after Contreras' attorney has applied to the State Board of Pardons and Paroles for a commutation of the death verdict in the case.
Usual procedure is to request commutation after the condemned man has been sentenced, though apparently there is nothing in the statutes to forbid the new procedure.
Court attendants here believe that if commutation is recommended by the pardon board the trial judge will still have to sentence can only carry out the judgment in the case as fixed by the jury verdict—which was death. That procedure, they say, would prevent any commutation ordered by the governor from taking effect. The governor can commute the sentence, however, only if the board of pardon recommends it.
Contreras was convicted of the desert slaying of Enrique Valles. An appeal was made to the court of criminal appeals from his conviction in El Paso county and the case affirmed.

Grandson Of Famed General Is Visitor At State Capitol

AUSTIN (UP) — Sr. Jose M. Pavon, a grandson of Mexican General Santa Anna, was a visitor at the Texas State Capitol last week. He did not call on officials and did not disclose his identity, registering in the visitors' book in the State Senate Chamber: "Mr. and Mrs. Jose M. Pavon, Mexico City."
Senor Pavon and his wife were enroute to Mexico City when they stopped here to visit the capitol. They have been in New York.
After they had viewed the picture "Dawn at the Alamo" in the Senate, Mrs. Pavon informed Mrs. R. H. Ward, Senate hostess, that her husband was the grandson of Santa Anna.

Houston To Vote On City Manager

HOUSTON, Tex. (UP) — On August 15 Houston voters will have an opportunity to vote whether they want a city manager form of government or a modification of the present mayor-commissioner type.
Sponsors of the city manager plan sought unsuccessfully to have the charter amendment election set of July 25—date of the statewide Democratic primary election.

Leading Ladies To Be Developed For The W.A.A.C.

WASHINGTON — The first Officer Candidate School of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps, which will start at Fort Des Moines, Iowa, July 15, is going to develop "leading ladies," but no prima donnas.
Colonel Don C. Faith, Commandant of the school, emphasizes that, "leadership, first, last and always," will be the principal objective of the curriculum which he has planned for the 450 women who will attend this first school. Far from learning how to "live alone and like it," these women, prospective officers in the W. A. A. C., will be taught how to live in a crowd, and how to lead a crowd.
"The most important quality to be developed in this training," Colonel Faith declared, "is the quality of leadership. Leadership means self-confidence but not arrogance; it means the ability to understand as well as to command. It is an essential quality in a successful officer."
In addition to developing this quality of leadership in the potential officers, Colonel Faith has also planned a course of study which will teach the women how to "get along in a military atmosphere."
"This means," he points out, "how to change from a civilian life to a military schedule with ease. It means to merge individualism into community life."
The course of study, as outlined by Colonel Faith will include military courtesies and drill, student officers also will be thoroughly grounded in military sanitation and hygiene, first aid, aircraft identification, gas mask drill, mess management, and mass life requisites. The students will be on a military schedule from 6 a. m. to 11 p. m. six days of the week. Sunday will be rest day and the women will be allowed to leave the post, but they must remain in Des Moines unless special leave is obtained.
At the end of the training period students will be commissioned in rank according to their record. Those who do not qualify for commissions will remain in the W. A. A. C. as non-commissioned officers and auxiliaries. Following the commissioning, a two weeks' course in specialized duties will be given. As requirements of the W. A. A. C. expand, additional officers will be promoted from the ranks.
There is a permanent chapel at the Fort and one cantonment-type chapel. Two chaplains, one Protestant, and the other Catholic, will be assigned. Arrangements are being made for adequate recreational facilities. It is estimated that by June of 1943 the W. A. A. C. will number approximately 17,000. The W. A. A. C. is headed by Director Oveta Culp Hobby, whose headquarters are in Washington, D. C.

Saving Fats Is A Wartime Must In The Kitchen

COLLEGE STATION, June 23 —Conserving kitchen fats and oils is a wartime "must" for every housewife, says Hazel Phipps, specialists in food preparation of the A. & M. College Extension Service. "Don't waste fats and spoil foods cooked in fats with too much heat."
When fat starts to smoke it starts to break down chemically. Food cooked in smoking fat will be harder to digest and may be irritating to the digestive tract. Once fat reaches the smoking stage it gets rancid more quickly if saved for future use. Many fats may be saved and reused. For example, fat used for deep frying several times afterward if it is strained each time before being put away. For this purpose several thicknesses of cheesecloth or other clean white cloth are suitable.
Miss Phipps advises using fats while fresh. But she cautions against adding fat on top of fat continuously and letting that poured up first (on the bottom of the can) get rancid.
"Every bit of surplus fat, unless it is too strong in flavor or has been scorched, may be used for cooking," Miss Phipps says. "Fats which have objectionable odors, tastes and colors easily may be clarified at home. To do this, melt the fat with an equal volume of water, heating at a moderate temperature for a short time, stirring occasionally, and then cooling until congealed. The fat then can be lifted from the water surface."
All fats should be stored in closely covered containers in a dark place and away from strong-flavored foods. Table fats should be kept very cool, in a refrigerator if possible.

England—

Prime Minister Winston Churchill faced a bitter debate on the Libyan defeat, to be followed by a vote on a motion of censure against the conduct of the war, designed primarily to force the prime minister to give up the post of defense minister.
China—
Chungking reports stated that the Chinese, in a counter attack had captured the important city of Kweiiki on the Chekiang-Kiangsi railroad, as the Japanese drives there appears to have been stalled.
Australia—
Allied airplanes have fought off Japanese planes on a scouting operation north of Australia.

Man Uses Teeth To Route Bandits But Loses Money

SAN ANTONIO (UP) — J. L. Kirkpatrick, a Palacios trucker, has good teeth.
The other night he parked his truck on Produce Row—went to sleep in the rear.
He awoke, and discovered two men going through his pockets.
Then the fight began.
Things weren't going so well for Kirkpatrick until he decided to use his teeth.
He clamped his molars on the hand of one of his assailants.
There was a blood-curdling scream—and the bitten adversary broke away. His companion also ran.
The attackers left a hat and a knife behind—but they got away with $1.50 belonging to the trucker.

The Best Defense

Archibald MacLeish scored a bull's eye when he told publishers that the truth is the best defense against enemy propaganda.

He would have performed a greater service, and struck a more novel chord, if he had given the newspapermen an idea how, under current conditions, they can get and print the truth.

Every responsible editor, even under censorship, is doing his best to see that nothing but the truth gets into his news columns. But there isn't a newspaper in this country which can pretend with straight face that it prints all of the important truths it can obtain and verify.

By general agreement, each executive withholds what in his opinion might be of value to the national enemies. Then—and this is what hurts—he deletes anything which he fears Washington might think could conceivably be of value to the enemy.

The result is, of course, that the public obtains a very incomplete picture of what is going on. It learns much less than the truth.

Some of the details which the government withholds from the press, or which editors withhold from the public, obviously should not be printed, or should be deferred for strategic reasons.

There can be no sound criticism, for example, of the government's refusal to comment on the raid on Japan. Washington's reticence has been justified by the unbelievably asinine sequence of statements on the raid which have come from Tokyo and Berlin. Reading them, no layman could ever again give credence to any war communique out of Nippon until it had been verified from a responsible source. By keeping still, our government has let the Japs show themselves as the clumsy liars they are.

Moreover, there are occasions—and the Tokyo bombings may prove to be of this sort—when facts must be withheld until their disclosure no longer can endanger our military and naval forces.

In the name of national unity and morale, there is a persistent attempt to soft pedal criticism of the official conduct of this war. Specific facts and figures by which the progress of our preparation could be measured are all but impossible to obtain for publication. When critics generalize, in order to avoid divulging forbidden data, they risk being denounced as obstructionists, saboteurs, defeatists, even fifth columnists.

This is not a healthy situation. The less genuine information the newspapers are permitted to print, the more receptive is the public mind to distorted gossiping which sometimes actually is the product of obstructionists, saboteurs, defeatists, fifth columnists.

The Ugly Duckling

Texas, With More Men In Navy Than Any Other State, Has No Naval Militia

AUSTIN, Tex. (UP) — Texas furnished Admiral Chester W. Nimitz to the navy; it quickly enrolled more than 1,000 men to replace the crew of the lost Cruiser Houston and has led in Navy enlistments—yet the state has no naval militia.

A naval militia is authorized by Texas law and also a Texas Naval Board, but in recent years Ginger Rogers is the nearest Texas has come to having an official navy. Former Gov. James V. Allred appointed Ginger Rogers "rear admiral."

Like Ranger Commissions handed out to celebrities, the commission of Admiral Rogers carried no real authority. She was an admiral without a ship, a sailor, or a repair dock.

A Naval ROTC unit was formed at the University of Texas this year and now is off on cruise together with similar units from Tulane and other southern colleges. But Texas' only state-owned ships are ferryboats at Galveston, and vessels used in fish and oyster supervision by the game department.

Several years ago the National Guard detachment in charge of Camp Palacios built a boat out of spare materials and purchased parts, but its principal service was to stir up criticism in a political campaign.

Once, however, there was a Texas Navy. Privateers were given letters of marque and reprisal by the provisional government that preceded the Republic of Texas, and the Republic maintained a navy for a number of years.

Frequently the commanders and crews were accused of piracy. So little was their authority known that the captain of one French vessel mistook a Texas warship for a pirate craft. He never had seen the Texas flag nor knew that the Republic had been established.

Some of the vessels of the Texas Navy foundered on the Gulf Coast and some were sold for lack of money to pay for repairs in New Orleans or other ports, but in their day they wrote a stirring chapter of Texas history.

Capital Trends, Talk and Theories Include Trked Congressmen, Government by Directive

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Service Washington Correspondent

A NEW era of administrative legislation and red tape is coming into full bloom through the device of what might be known as "government by directive." The word "directive" is an old but rarely used one in diplomatic language. But now there is a veritable flood of directives floating around official Washington. No one can do anything without a directive. By long odds, "directive" is the new fashionable, polysyllabic three-dollar word of 1942 in Washington.

Just how a directive differs from an order or a memo or a request or even a mandate is not quite clear to the average vacant lot, victory garden variety of curbstone lawyer. Certainly, it sounds much more official to get a directive than it does to get a phone call, and maybe that's the secret. It is also unclear as to just who has the power to issue directives. Another back alley barrister's guess would be that individuals issue orders while boards, administrations, commissions and agencies issue directives. An implied meaning is that if Agency A has the authority to issue a directive, it has the power of telling Bureau B to do the work, while Agency A sits back and watches for results. The War Manpower Board can issue directives to the Selective Service Administration to exempt anglophobes from the draft. Board of Economic Warfare can issue directives to Rubber Reserve Company to stockpile so many tons of guayule goo. And so on.

Beauty and Brains Leads Campaign for Soldier Candidate

Edson

This is not just a campaign smile that Mrs. Vernon Lemens of Waxahachie has on her face as she sits behind the campaign manager's desk of her soldier husband working for votes to elect him lieutenant governor of Texas. Proof is that she was selected "Smile Girl" in a national photographic contest before she married into politics. These radiant features helped her selection as a "Cactus Beauty" during her student days at the University of Texas. And her beauty is more than skin deep. Along with that beauty prize she won the highest scholarship prize. She was also Phi Beta Kappa at the University. These prizes and more she won while earning her way as she was learning her way through the University. For further discouragement to opponents it may be said she is a veteran political campaigner now. Working with her husband she has won three previous legislative campaigns.

Her greatest joys are her two sons, age 6 and 3, but she leaves routine house chores to a nursemaid and keeps her place as political partner to her husband. So it was logical for her to carry on the race for lieutenant governor when the senator was called from reserve officer status into active army duty in April. He is stationed at Camp Hood near Austin and under Army rules governing public officials will be eligible for leave during the legislative session.

CONGRESSMEN who like to throw their weight around and use their influence to get people jobs have a secret beef against the Army and Navy for resisting congressional pressure to get commissions for their constituents.

Only reason the matter hasn't come out in public is that the congressmen can't prove their case. But their suspicions center around a couple of seemingly harmless and ordinary little initials, "C. I." It is the belief of some congressmen that whenever they make a recommendation that somebody be appointed to a job, the application is marked "C. I." And when those letters appear on any application, it is doomed from the start. The letters are supposed to stand for "Congressional Interference."

One decision to be made to stick, watch for a yowl from veterans of World War One. It was right after the infamous bonus army march on Washington that, in order to get the bonus marchers out of the capital, orders were issued that veterans who couldn't get jobs be taken care of in CCC camps.

At peak veterans' enrollment, there were 46,000 ex-soldiers taken care of, and there were 16,000 applicants on the waiting list at the bottom of the depression. Today there are 15,000 veterans in CCC, assigned to some 75 camps. Fifteen of these camps have been working on War Department projects, 60 on forestry.

The now 49 years old. Half of the vets now in CCC camps are unskilled, 26 per cent are skilled, 10 per cent white collar workers, 10 per cent miscellaneous. A fourth of the CCC vets have two or more dependents, the remainder being about equally divided between those with no dependents and those with one.

One of the ironies of the situation is that Paul V. McNutt, overall boss of CCC in his capacity of federal security administrator, was once the Legion's national commander.

Flash, and the Ocean.

They cruised the Gulf, keeping off attacks by vessels from Mexico and by privateers. According to the histories they did valiant service, even though at times their action seemed high-handed.

After 1836 the Republic of Texas established the "Navy of Texas." It appears to have been allowed to die after a successful engagement with Mexican vessels off the coast of Yucatan, which lasted several days. The fleet was ordered home by President Sam Houston.

One of the vessels in this fleet which Houston apparently found too ready to fight was the Austin, which an American naval officer said was the fastest sloop of war then in existence. Other vessels of the Navy were the Zavala, the San Antonio, the Wharton, and the San Bernard.

The San Antonio while on one of its cruises was the scene of a mutiny for which one mutineer was given 100 lashes and four others hanged at the yard arm. President Houston disapproved this disciplinary action and dismissed the commander who had ordered the court martial and then carried out its sentence.

Texas Couple Has Four Sons Now In The Marine Corps

SILSBEE, Tex. — The Buckner family of this peaceful agricultural community has gone all-out in its effort to help win this war for Uncle Sam.

The four sons of Mr. and Mrs. Carl C. Buckner are members of the United States Marine Corps and their father, well-known local farmer, has taken a job in the shipyards at nearby Orange, Tex., while the mother and four daughters operate the farm.

Three of the Buckner boys are six feet two inches tall and the other stands six feet four inches. The heaviest is 200 pounds and the lightest 190 pounds.

The quartet includes Sgts. Rya and Roy, twins, who enlisted about a year ago, Neuman, who became a Leatherneck last month and Joel, youngest of the group.

The boys are stationed at the Marine Corps base at San Diego, Calif.

A word of warning, though: Just a word description of how to tie one's shoestrings would be more involved than the actual process after one has done it a few times, harnessing a horse is not so difficult after all, one knows how. The procedure is as follows: "1. Untie the steed and back him from his stall to the barn floor. "2. If he will "stand without hitching," O. K. If not you will have to snap the two ropes that you will find there into the side rings in the halter. "3. Take the saddle-pad and appendances and place it in position. "4. SERIAL STORY CARIBBEAN CRISIS BY EATON K. GOLDTHWAITE

JUNE ENLISTS CHAPTER XIX SOMEONE was standing in the corridor; someone's hand was on the knob of the door. Talcott was in a terrible spot then. If this were Halsey returning, he would spend the rest of his shipboard days in the brig. If it were the steward, wondering why he took so long, he would be a little better off. But he would have to show the envelope to prove good faith and the steward, when Halsey's search began, would remember. Why, he thought agonizedly, couldn't I have said a magazine? The fumbling at the knob stopped and knuckles sounded against the polished wood panel. That wouldn't be Halsey. "Who's there?" Talcott called. "Constantine," the professor's voice quavered. "Didn't get a chance to speak to you in the dining room— Is your headache any better?" Blessed relief! "Quite, thank you," trying to make his voice sound like Halsey's. "May I come in?" "Not just now. I'm dressing." "Oh." Disappointment. Then, "All right. See you on deck." Talcott waited, counting to 20 by hundreds, and with the envelope tucked under his arm, stepped nonchalantly to the corridor. The professor was gone and the steward was nowhere in sight. A short distance aft a couple blocked the passageway, discussing plans for the evening. What to do with the envelope. Put it back? Halsey would immediately see the rip in the flap and would naturally assume that the true contents had been appropriated and blank paper substituted. No. Better to take the thing and leave it overboard. Unless— Could Struthers' report be written in invisible ink? Under ordinary circumstances such a thing would have smacked too much of fiction. Now, he wasn't so sure. He couldn't hide it in his cabin. Search and discovery would leave him without a straw of defense. No. Find a hiding place, and soon. There wasn't much time— He found it. In, of all places, the fire hose locker right beside the door to Halsey's stateroom. Only a snap-catch held its glass-enclosed front and Talcott, swinging out the ribbon-racked hose, placed the envelope behind. HE was pacing the deck when he saw a lone figure leaning over the rail, watching the moon. It was June Paterson and at his approach she glanced up and then hastily away. "Hello," she said dispiritedly. "Hello yourself," he replied with forced joviality. "Where are the rest of our playmates?" "If you mean Martha Swenson, she's with the doctor. Looking at the moon. Maybe you'd like to join her." He tucked her hand under his arm. "Let's find a couple of chairs and look at the moon ourselves. That is, if you can stand my company." She didn't answer that, but she accompanied him. Which in itself was an answer of sorts. Forward they found two unoccupied chairs, a little apart from the others. "You like to sit beside me?" asked June, as they sat watching the moon's path on the water. "I do." "Are you sure you trust me?" "More than I trust myself." She sighed. "I'm terribly glad. Really, I'm not a bad person. I just have the unhappy faculty of hurting most the people I want to hurt the least." "I suppose you refer to your spying on MacDowell and me back on Abas Island?" Her head turned quickly. "Spying? Do you mean the time I walked into MacDowell's room? I wasn't spying. You were so wrapped up in yourselves you didn't even hear me. And I was a little bit angry with you because you wouldn't take Leonard Halsey's suggestion." "Halsey's?" "Yes. It was he who told MacDowell to remind you of your rights of fighting extradition if you so desired. Didn't MacDowell tell you that?" So that was how it was. MacDowell, still groggy from the blow on his head, had forgotten who gave him the idea. No wonder Halsey's attitude had changed. Halsey had been trying to help him, Halsey and the girl. Sighing he said, "I'm sorry June. I owe both you and Halsey an apology. I'm pretty much mixed up." "I'm not surprised. I've kept silent because you acted so—so darned formal and disapproving. It was your attitude that made me mad. But I couldn't help noticing what was happening to you. You're not a criminal. I don't know what's behind all this, or why. But I do know you." SUDDENLY he understood. Her petulance. Her seeming spoilt-ness. Her swift changes of mood. She, an old acquaintance and cousin of his best friend had been expecting fun, or at least a welcome. And how had he acted? She was talking again; low, as if it were painful: "You forget that I grew up with Lowell. He was my ideal. Anything that he admired I admired, and your virtues and accomplishments were standard bywords. It was I who wormed you into our first blind date." And he had doubted her! She was in effect confessing that she had fallen in love with him as a girl; that as a woman she had accepted him as a standard to be held above other men. "You strong silent men! I shall be persistent. How much money are you supposed to have stolen?" "I can't discuss it, June." "Is it your pride? I shall further cast mine to the winds to tell you that I visited Saint Thomas with the sole purpose and intent of seeing you." "Good heavens!" "It's true. You can imagine my chagrin when I discovered how far Abas was from Saint Thomas. I had the notion that it was right next door. Do I bore you?" "No, no!" Against his will it came out in a tumbling rush. Everything. The frame-up, his suspicions, his fears. No smallest item did he leave out, even to discovering that the "report" in Halsey's envelope was nothing but sheets of blank paper. At its end she was silent; so silent that he leaned over in annoyance, thinking she must have fallen asleep. But she was very much awake, and the flash in her eyes warned him to turn. His room steward, the one he had asked about the grotesque bald-headed man, stood by his chair. "Mr. Talcott, sir? The gentleman, Mr. MacDowell, wishes to see you immediately. On the boat deck, sir. He said it was important." The steward trotted away and Talcott climbed to his feet. June Paterson arose also, saying, "Now that we have completely bared our souls I'd like to enlist on your side. I'm really very clever." He looked at her thoughtfully, and suddenly gathering her in his arms, kissed her hard on the mouth. Nor did she try to pull away. (To Be Continued)

Tire Shortages Prompt Lesson In Hitching A Horse

Harnessing a horse is virtually a lost art — but one which may have to be reclaimed a lot faster than the nation's old aluminum pots and pans. Noting the increasing difficulties of personal automotive transportation, the safety education department of a life insurance company has combed old records and has issued, in the lighter vein, the following instructive bulletin: "Before we get into the technicalities of how to harness a horse — when you get one — it seems desirable to set forth a brief glossary of technical stable terms which, if not defined, might be as incomprehensible as Sanskrit to the average motorist. You should, therefore, be familiar with the following terms: "Stall—the horse's garage. "Hames — steel necktie which the horse wears in his collar. "Saddle-pad — that which the horse wears on his back. Difficult to define, but necessary, very necessary. "Crupper—harness loop which fits around the base of the tail. "Breast Collar and Traces—a

The Payoff BY HARRY GRAYSON NEA Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK—Lunch with Clinton B. Conger, former Berlin correspondent for United Press, back from a two and a half year hitch on the continent, and looking like a sylph. When we last saw Pat Conger, he was a robust, jolly 195 pounder drumming sports copy out of Detroit. Forty of those pounds evaporated in Hitler's Germany, 20 of them at Bad Nauheim, where he was interned for five months. "See this suit," says Conger. "When I sailed it was single breasted. Now I wear it double breasted." The wars have taken Conger to Denmark, where he sat by during the bloodless blitz; to France, to help cover the invasion; to Zurich, where he worked the important relay point; and back to Berlin, where he stayed until war broke. He never lost his interest in sports, nurtured in days when an important beat was Tom Harmon's latest romance or Hank Greenberg's new home run streak. "WHEN I was in Zurich," he says. "I used to get the American newspapers and kept abreast of baseball and Big Ten football. "In 1940, before the Michigan-Ohio State game, I sent Fritz Trisler and Forest Evashevski a cable from Zurich. It read: Your most distant University of Michigan alumni club hopes you will dedicate one touchdown to me.' "They scored six times that day, so I always figured one of them was a Zurich special." Even in war-torn Berlin, Conger managed to keep informed on sports. "I heard the last half of the Michigan-Minnesota game on the radio last fall," he advises. "I would have to pick out a tough game like that to listen to." Michigan hasn't won from Minnesota since 1932. CONGER became the correspondents' sports authority at Bad Nauheim. He inserted a note in the "Bad Nauheim Pudding," American paper at the spa: "Anyone wishing scores of 1941 football games, please contact C. B. Conger." One of the chief diversions was softball. They had one old ball and bat and staged many wild games. "We used naval attache's pouches for bases," reports Conger. "After each game, doctors would sew up the ball. "The Yankees never play with any more spirit than that gang. The Germans thought we were going nuts. "They couldn't imagine anybody having fun with a war on their hands."

Eastland Schools Ask Bond Issue To Pay Off Debt

ABILENE, June 23 (Sp) — Asserting inability to meet accumulated debts amounting to $431,000 and past due interest charges of $12,077, the Eastland Free School Incorporation of Eastland county yesterday filed a petition in United States district court seeking a plan of composition and authority to issue refunding bonds.

The petition is not one of bankruptcy but is filed pursuant to and under the authority of Sections 401 to 404 inclusive, Chapter 9 Title 11, United States Code.

A hearing on the petition is scheduled for 10 a. m. Aug. 28 at Dallas.

Filing the document were K. E. Tanner, president of the Eastland board, and the board of directors, Frank Sparks, John W. Turner, R. N. Wilson, F. J. Crowell, E. H. Jones, R. S. Railey and the secretary of the school district, C. A.

Farm Ponds As Source Of Food Being Stressed

COLLEGE STATION — Planning and operation of farm ponds as a source of food for farm families will be the subject of a two-day conference at Texas A&M College July 3-4, it was announced today by the college extension service.

Dr. W. P. Taylor of the A&M Fish and Game Department and Dr. George E. Potter of the Department of Biology, will cooperate with R. E. Callendar, game management specialist of the Extension Service and with representatives of the Texas Game, Fish and Oyster Commission in leading the conference.

Representatives from the Agricultural Adjustment Agency, Soil Conservation Service, Farm Security, Southern Methodist University, North Texas State Teachers College, State and Federal Departments of Vocational Education, Texas State Conservation Board have been invited to attend.

In addition, the public is cordially invited to attend the meetings, Dr. Taylor said. Meetings will be held at 2 p. m. Friday and 8 a. m. Saturday, both in the Animal Industries building here.

"Farm ponds, believe it or not, produce more pounds of meat per acre than do dry pastures," Dr. Taylor said. "But ponds must be planned correctly, and care must be taken that natural food for fish is provided."

"We know that fresh fish provides an enjoyable variety in the farmer's diet, and we hope to improve Texas farm ponds until every farmer will be able to have fish in season."

More than 51 percent of the bondholders of the incorporation have agreed to the plan of composition with the Dunne-Israel Investment Company of Wichita, Kansas.

This plan calls for the issuance of refunding bonds in the amount of $431,000 to mature in 30 years with interest rates as follows: One percent the first seven years, 1 1/2 percent the next eight years, two percent the next five years, three percent the next five years, and four percent thereafter.

The petition sets the assessed valuation of taxable property of the incorporation at $2,290,339.

All-Girl Rodeo Planned At Bonham

By United Press

BONHAM, Texas, June 24—Bonham, in the heart of the North Texas blackland farming belt, went western this week (June 22-28) as the world's first all-cowgirl rodeo will be staged at the state's most modern rodeo pen in Fannin County's new $80,000 fair ground Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The rodeo is being promoted by Miss Fay Kirkwood of Fort Worth.

Cowgirls will not be the only attraction. Sam Fayburn, speaker of the House, has promised to attend if he can get away from Washington; and Lieutenant-Governor James E. Berry of Oklahoma has written he'll be present. Gov. Coke R. Stevenson of Texas has also promised to be present.

Among the cowgirls will be Tad Lucas, world's champion for eight years and winner of top money in Madison Square Garden in New York and in London and Sidney; Loraine Dyer, known as the only girl in rodeo who rides a Brahma bull; Alice Adams, bronc rider; Alice Siste, who presents one of the most sensational of rodeo acts—a "Roman jump" in which she rides two horses as they leap over a parked car; Vaughn Kreig, bulldogger; Vivian White, four times winner at Madison Square Garden; Claire Thompson, trick rider, and her daughters Glorine and Garlene, youthful trick ropers.

It will be rough on those citizens of Bonham who fail to wear cowboy regalia during the week, as a "kangaroo" court will be set up on the courthouse square to arrest and punish those who violate this order with 10, 25 and 50-cent fines.

The professional cowgirls won't have the show to themselves, as every North Texas town will send a sponsor girl and many amateur rider will be on hand to participate in a special contest. The biggest parade ever seen in Bonham is scheduled for the opening afternoon when all cowgirl sponsor girls, amateur riders, junior cowboys and cowgirls, city and county officials, visiting celebrities, and floats depicting various phases of western life will participate.

It takes that metal, to stop the enemy

So Take Good Care of Your Gas Equipment

Make it Last till We Win this War!

 Since this country has to skimp on metal household goods, we urge you to keep your gas equipment in first class condition.

I. ROOM HEATERS: To store for the summer, remove dust inside and out; wrap in newspapers and keep in a dry enclosed place.

II. RANGES: Do not let food spill over (in top cooking, the simmer-burner heat prevents this; in oven-cooking, careful handling does it). Do not set hot vessels on the bare porcelain surface. (Use cork mats.) Do not use the oven to heat the kitchen in cold weather (prolonged heat will out down the life of the oven walls). Do not clean up the range while the enamel is warm. When it cools, remove crumbs and spatters with a damp cloth. Do not over-cook foods. It means wear and tear on the range, as well as on the groceries.

SPECIAL NOTICE

The Government Order freezing all types of gas heating equipment has been amended. Floor Furnaces, Gasteam Radiators, Circulators and Radiant Heaters NOW may be sold and installed for use in rooms which do not already have some type of heating equipment. Likewise, under certain conditions, you are permitted to purchase and install Gas Ranges and Gas Water Heaters. You gas company will be pleased to advise and assist you with complete information and details.
