NAZIS PUSH ON TOWARD CAUCASUS OIL AFTER A BITTER ROSTOV BATTLE

Hitler Is Throwing All His Might Into One Big Gamble To Overthrow Southern Russian Armies And Reach Vital Resources This Summer

By United Press
A reinforced Axis offensive, using air-borne whippet tanks, battered into the oil-rich Caucasus and toward Stalingrad industrial center today in a spreading campaign to isolate the Red Army from supply routes for Allied war aid.

For the time being Hitler was throwing everything, including 11 fresh divisions from Holland and France, into the onslaught and the Russian army newspaper, Red Star, acknowledged that the battle was becoming increasingly difficult due to enemy superiority in tanks and men.

The German high command was facilitating the Caucasus drive by fighting a holding battle in North Africa.

In the air warfare the Nazis countered Royal Air Force devastation raids with comparatively weak attacks on England. Eight of the 50 to 70 Nazi planes were brought down in last night's attacks, apparently on Birmingham.

Thus the Germans were following their usual method of massing strength on one front. Their prime objective was to smash through to the Caucasus oil fields and to move eastward to the Volga before the United States can invade Europe.

On the fighting front the Germans had pushed southward through Rostov on the railroad leading to the West Caucasus oil fields.

The Axis gains have not been either easy or cheap. Russians, probably at considerable cost to themselves, have been fighting to delay and weaken the enemy, rather than to stop him north or west of the Don river.

Moscow dispatches told again and again of frightful Axis losses, but these were replaced by fresh troops drawn possibly from 1,000,000 troops in the southern area.

Confiscation Of Big Salaries Is Just A Pittance

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, said today that the Treasury Department estimates show that confiscation of all over $25,000, of individual incomes and taxation of the remaining $25,000 at the rates in the pending war revenue bill would easily raise only enough to finance the war for four days and 10 hours.

Local Delivery Orders Not Being Observed Closely

DALLAS, Tex.—Several complaints of violations of Office of Defense Transportation local delivery orders have been received by S. J. Cole, Dallas field manager of the Office of Defense Transportation, he said today.

Liability in causing a delivery truck to make more than one pick up or delivery to a person a day in violation of ODT orders rests equally on the customer and the carrier, Mr. Cole said. The orders also prohibits special deliveries and call-backs. Exceptions to this rule are hospitals and emergencies where health and safety are concerned.

In explaining the meaning of local deliveries which sometimes mean in neighboring communities and duties, Mr. Cole said, "Deliveries extending up to 25 miles beyond the boundaries of a municipality or involving one-way trips up to 25 miles in length are defined by the ODT orders as local deliveries."

80-Year Old Has Devised A Tire Made Out Of Wood

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (UP)—A 62-pound wooden wheel and tire that rumbles on brick but "purrs" on macadam, has been devised by Ernest G. Munck, Sr., 80, of suburban Iona, who says the tire showed no wear after 125 miles and appears good for "at least 10,000 miles."

Himself amazed at the ease with which it takes corners, Munck admitted that he intended the gadget primarily as a "spare," though claiming there's no reason why a set of four wouldn't serve admirably for speeds of 20-25 miles per hour, with a maximum of 40-miles per hour.

Turned on a huge lathe, the wheel-tire combination consists of layers of a strong, light wood cemented together with waterproof glue to form a plywood having equal strength in all directions. Now, Munck is working on improvements, hoping to incorporate some metal parts to reduce the over-all weight.

RUNOFF FOR O'DANIEL IS NOW ASSURED

DALLAS, July 28.—For the first time in his short but spectacular political career, Sen. W. Lee O'Daniel faces a runoff election, it was evident today from tabulations made by the Texas Election Bureau.

O'Daniel had 468,346 of a total of 968,255 votes tabulated by the bureau up to 10 o'clock this morning. His percentage total stood at 48.37, only a fractional change since early Sunday night. James V. Allred had 310,615 votes, or 32.07 per cent of the total cast.

And Sen. O'Daniel, by his failure to get a clear-cut majority precipitates the State into one of its hottest campaigns in many years.

Civilian Diet May Be Curtailed Some

CHICAGO, July 28.—Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard said today that the civilian consumer will have to adjust his meat diet to accommodate the foodstuff requirements of the armed forces.

Salvation Army Peps Up Parties With "Sock Supper"

CLINTON, Okla. (UP)—The Salvation Army station here decided that the conventional and traditionally Oklahoman "box-supper" would have to be overruled in favor of some other type social. So the "sock supper" was inaugurated.

The girls get a new pair of men's socks, put the lunch in one of the socks and conceal the other. During the evening the men buy the more tightly filled socks and find the owner of the matching sock. The owner of the empty sock eats the supper with the purchaser.

It works fine, Miss Zilla Bergen, originator of the idea, said but she was a trifle worried someone would not get brand new socks to stuff the lunches in. Her fears were groundless. One girl brought a sock, size 13 1-2.

Abilene Recruiting Service Seeks Men To Man Destroyer

Enough men to equal the crew of a destroyer now building will be enlisted from the Abilene Navy Recruiting district each month during August and September, Chief C. L. Wylie, recruiter in charge of this district, announced today. The district includes Callahan, Coleman, Comanche, Eastland, Fisher, Haskell, Jones, Mills, Nolan, Shackelford, Stonewall and Taylor Counties.

Sponsoring the campaign to enlist at least 231 men from this district each month will be American Legion Posts and civic organizations in each county. Committees have been organized and supplied with Navy recruiting literature. Individual members will be designated "Volunteer Navy Recruiters."

A monthly quota of volunteer enlistments for naval service has been assigned each county, based on population. Exact figures on complements of naval vessels are secret, Chief Wylie said, but certain figures may be used for recruiting purposes. In the Houston recruiting district, comprising the Southern half of Texas, 1,000 Volunteers for Replacement of the Cruiser Houston."

Eastland County is asked to furnish 28 volunteers each of the two months. The recruiting slogan for this county is "Eastland County Navy Enlistment Shall Equal Four Torpedo Tube Crews."

Taylor county with a population of 44,147 and a quota of 42 men per month will have for a recruiting slogan "Taylor County Navy Enlistments Shall Equal Enough Men to Man Four Guns." Other counties will have appropriate recruiting slogans based on their monthly quota.

Navy enlistment ages are from 17 to 50 years. Unskilled men have opportunity to attend Navy trade schools. Qualified skilled men may be enlisted as petty officers with monthly pay ranging from $78 to $126.00. It is necessary that application for enlistment be made before induction into the Army.

England Rules Out Chorus Girls 18-24

LONDON, (UP)—The chorus girl between 18 and 24 years old is about to disappear from the stage. Mr. Bevin, Labor Minister, wants her—either in uniform or in war factories.

He has already warned the entertainments industry that when the present engagements of chorus girls in this age group come to an end, no more permits will be issued to them.

Those engaged for their speciality performances, or those in a team which would be put out of balance if one of its members had to leave may be given short deferments. But such deferment is only on condition that the majority of their regular audiences are service men.

Women's Auxiliary Corps Enlists 40 Negro Candidates

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Forty Negro women, successful in a nationwide competition for enrollment in the Officer Candidate School of the Women's Auxiliary Corps were scheduled to report today (July 20) to the Training Center at Fort Des Moines, Iowa, according to word received by the War Department from the Director of the Corps, Mrs. William P. Hobby.

The successful candidates passed all the preliminary mental, physical, and alertness tests taken by 4,000 prospective applicants. They are among the 440 young women in the first class of W. A. C. Officer candidates.

"Back of each one of these forty women, each already an outstanding figure in her community, will be the hope and faith and pride of the five million Negro women of the United States," Mrs. Hobby commented when the selections were made.

"As I studied their applications I was impressed by the integrity of their devotion to their country, and I was moved by the intensity of their desire to serve that country."

Curing Blackleg In Chickens Proves Poultry Problem

Blackleg is one of the serious problems confronting the turkey growers in Eastland County says Floyd Lynch, County Agent.

The principal symptoms are drooping and decline in feeding. Dr. Boney of the Extension Service says there is no practical treatment available, but he recommends that regular worming be practiced.

To do this use phenothiazine powder on the basis of one pound to 1,000 birds. It is easily mixed by placing the drug in 60 pounds of mash and feed six pounds of the mixture to each 100 birds for two days.

Two ounces of copper sulphate (blue stone) in one pint of vinegar furnishes a good medicated water. Use one tablespoon of this mixture to each gallon of drinking water for two days each month. Put this in non-metal containers.

It's about time for peaches to be preserved in other places than a beauty parlor.

Lt. Scott Neal Is Reported As Being Missing

Word has been received in Ranger that Scott Neal, who is a lieutenant in the United States Army Air Corps, is missing in action, was revealed here today, upon receipt of word to that effect from the War Department.

Local friends and relatives of Lt. Neal are hopeful, however, that the telegram might have been sent in error, as Neal was reported to have been in the hospital with measles, and it was believed likely that someone else might have been using his plane.

NTSTC Seniors Have New Grudge Against Hitler

DENTON, Tex.—North Texas State Teachers College seniors have still another grudge against Hitler.

Because he invaded Czechoslovakia, they must have class rings of solid gold this year, without the bright green stone which has been traditional with graduates of NTSTC.

The stones for the rings came from Czechoslovakia, and the supply has been exhausted this year, with no possibility of replacement in sight.

As a result, seniors have chosen a new ring carrying a solid gold crest, with two yucca plants, a star, and an eagle predominating in the design.

Prospective graduates like the new design, but they warn Hitler may hear from them yet.

Fewer Texans Die In Traffic Wrecks

AUSTIN, Tex.—There were fewer traffic deaths in Texas the first six months of 1942 than during any similar period since accurate records were started in 1938, State Police Director Homer Garrison announced today.

For the half year, Texas recorded a flat 20 per cent reduction in traffic fatalities, from 863 in the 1941 period to 689 this year.

Nationally, the reduction was 11 per cent for the first five months. The six-month average has not yet been announced.

As the Texas Highway Traffic Advisory Committee's conservation program began to make noteworthy progress in June, deaths fell to 104 as compared to 151 for June of 1941.

Leading the safety race were cities and small towns, with reductions of 30 and 29 per cent, respectively. Highway deaths were down 17 per cent; those on county roads, 14 per cent.

How Good Men Go Wrong

Meditating upon the fallacy of human judgment, the perils of prognostication and the blind spots of skilled observers, we turned back to the January issue of a national publication to reread an article by a veteran press association correspondent who spent more than a dozen years in Tokyo.

The thesis of the article may be judged from this statement, quoted by the writer with approval and agreement: "As a matter of cold fact, Japan as a Great Power is a hollow bubble, blown almost to the bursting point."

Thenceforth the article went on to assert, among other things, that:

Japanese fleets are not capable of operating successfully far from their bases. . . . But remember Pearl Harbor.

The people of Japan individually lack initiative. . . . But remember what happened in the Philippines, at Singapore, in the Aleutians.

Nippon has no ships for overseas commerce because all are needed to supply the expeditionary forces in China. . . . But remember the other expeditionary forces Japan moved by sea, while carrying on the war in China.

Gasoline is so scarce that Japanese water police could not operate their launches. . . . But there seemed to be plenty for the planes that devastated Hawaii, captured Guam and Wake, the Philippines and Hongkong and Singapore and Burma, and bombed Australia.

Finally, quoted with approval as of today: "As a menace to any country of any fighting consequence, Japan does not exist. As a first-class power, Japan is a myth."

These conclusions become significant in the light of their timing—for publication almost simultaneously with the first onslaught of that war in which, up to date, the Japanese have beaten us badly.

Looks pretty bad, doesn't it? One might say that this veteran newsman scored close to zero. But that would be unfair. In spite of this and other equally erroneous appraisals of Japanese potentialities, this correspondent's batting average was ordinarily rather high.

What is the moral, and what does it all matter? Just this: It is easy to second guess, in war. Almost any reasonably intelligent analyst can make the experts look like simpletons, after the event.

Remember how Hitler's experts worked with the Russians intimately, and knew to the last uniform button that the Reds possessed—on the strength of which the Nazis began a three-month stroll through Russia which still is going on.

Many a man thinks he's a big gun until he gets fired.

Nobody knows why a wrong number never is busy.

The Payoff

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK—There are too many inexcusable errors in "The Pride of the Yankees" to permit it to be called a "good picture from a baseball fan's point of view."

Why, they didn't even show Lou Gehrig as the little Dutch boy of Frank Graham's book. That would have been so easy to do. Obviously, the picture makers either neglected to read or paid no attention to Sports Columnist Graham's tome. That was a big blunder.

Gehrig is pictured as a clumsy rube. He was a bashful young man, but never a naive hick.

At the time of his marriage, Gehrig had been an outstanding American League star for nine years. He was a cultured gentleman. Yet even at that stage of his career the directors of the movie persist on something amounting to Ring Lardner stuff.

FROM the point of view of a non-baseball fan, "The Pride of the Yankees" might be often slowmoving and tedious, particularly in the beginning.

The climax of the picture—Gehrig's magnificent, though losing, battle against a fatal illness—is tremendously moving.

Gary Cooper, almost totally miscast, does an excellent job under distressing circumstances.

Teresa Wright is a very pretty young lady and carries off her difficult role as Gehrig's wife with high honors.

There is room for suspicion, however, that movie fans who are not baseball-minded may find the early going sufficiently difficult that they will walk out before the picture reaches its walloping climax—guaranteed to bring lumps to the most hardened throat.

BASEBALL fans who knew the Yankees of very recent years, especially those even slightly acquainted with Gehrig, will find too many mistakes to consider the thing genuine.

Why can't movie directors, particularly when they profess to portray the life of someone fresh in memory, stick to the natural facts?

The real life of Lou Gehrig furnished ample material for a grand picture.

It didn't require all the fancy trimmings indulged in by picture people.

Farmers and Ranchmen Get Low Interest

Farmers and ranchmen members of the Eastland and Stephens counties National Farm Loan Association stand to save approximately $20,623.00 during the next two years by continued low interest rates, according to Claude Strickland of Eastland, secretary treasurer of the two associations.

The saving, Strickland explains, will result from legislation recently passed by congress and which continues through to June 30 1944, the 3 1/2 per cent interest rate on long-term Federal Land Bank and Land Bank Commission loans.

The Eastland County Association will save approximately $14,400 on loans totaling $560,000 while the Stephens County association will save approximately $5,223.00 on loans totaling $250,000.

VACCINE STUDY WITH CHILDREN SHOWS RESULTS

GRAND RAPIDS, (UP)—Results of a control study among school children dealing with the effectiveness of a combined vaccine for diphtheria and whooping cough have added to the nationwide recognition given Dr. Pearl L. Kendrick by medical men during the past four years.

From a group of 2,000 boys and girls under study over a period of two years, it was found that whopping cough infection for those who received the vaccine was 1 per cent. Meanwhile, for those who did not receive the vaccine between 8 and 10 per cent showed infection.

Dr. Kendrick, who is director of the west Michigan division of the State health department, has

SERIAL STORY

SPORTING BLOOD

BY HARRY HARRISON KROLL

COPYRIGHT, 1942, NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Hunter Dent, manager of Strickland Ballard's farm, has bet his wealthy employer his coming year's salary that Ballard will return the prize horse and new strain of corn which he has politely stolen...

there was a blast of a motor horn out in front. Instead of entering the east wing of the big house, where young Ballard's room was located, Red, recognizing the horn, ran lightly by a footpath around the house...

THE young man at the wheel was Oliver Tisdale. He was bareheaded. He seemed disheveled. Something in his manner suggested great anxiety, and Hunter thought he detected a worried note in his voice when he called to Red. The girl ran up to him. She leaned on the rim of the car door. Hunter went quickly into the house.

He met Warwick, the butler, in the corridor. "The young master is in his room, isn't he, Warwick?" "Why, yes, sir, Mr. Dent, I am quite sure of it. He would be still asleep, sir."

"Do you know what time he got in last night—this morning?" "I watched the man closely, for if no one had seen Hunter carry Junior in, the situation would be simple. Why, well, the young master usually is quite early in getting in. It must have been about 2:30 when I heard him enter. I didn't see him come in, but I was awake, sir, and noted the time."

"Who were here—could you say?" "Why, yes, sir, I think I could name most of the guests. There were the twins—"

"The Ghibartos?" "Yes, sir. And Mr. Tisdale, quite naturally."

"Naturally." "And Mr. Hankins Temple, sir; and the Misses Etta and Jane McDougal; Bill McKeever, and Mrs. Ballard's brother Neal—"

"That's all, sir. I'd say none of the familiar group were missing, and there were new faces."

Hunter told them over in his mind. The Ghibarto twins were sleek, handsome fellows, with the mystery of strangers; they were the sons of one of the master contractors at what was known in Middleton as the "Shell Plant."

This was a huge ordnance manufacturing plant built by the government in its defense program about 40 miles south of Middleton. Hunter checked the rumor of scandal in the erection of the plant, and the gossip that the elder Ghibarto might be involved. He went no further than that in his thinking now. Hankins Temple was the son of Leland Temple, president of the First National Bank. He was a charming young fellow, whom Hunter really respected and liked. The McDougal girls were pretty young singers, who plugged the Ballard Bitters over the local radio station. Their father, "Bugs" McDougal, was a stockholder in the medicine company. Bill McKeever was a noted football star. Neal Frazier was the lazy, good-looking brother of Strickland Ballard's youthful second wife. A kind of hanger-on of a wealthy kinsman's house. All estates have them as ornaments.

And, of course, young Tisdale, now talking to Red out front.

A SPORTING collection, Hunter thought. All of them were unusual and individualistic. He could say this for all the Ballards: they were not snobs. There was still a democracy about their friendships not based on money values alone. To be sure almost all of the young friends of the house were from the holders in the Ballard company. But that was not the basis of the communion. Hunter, for instance, could have been a member of the group. He had neither money nor medicine stocks. But he was personable, well educated, an expert in the game, and an individual. These qualities would have given him entrée on an equality with the rest. He had declined to use his advantage maybe out of jealousy. He didn't know. But it got back, always, to Red. Maybe he loved her and because he could not have her now he was enjoying a contrary tantrum.

The butler followed Hunter into Junior's room. Junior was lying in just about the same position Hunter had left him. But there was some change Hunter did not immediately understand. He moved closer, and suddenly drew back. He turned to look at Warwick. The butler's voice was hoarse with fear when he said, "What is it, sir? Is he—"

Hunter bent over Junior. He gently rolled the boy over. The face was as colorless as the bedsheet. The blood stains that Hunter had thought were from the scratch on Junior's arm seemed bigger. Hunter looked at a hole in the black coat. He unbuttoned Junior's shirt. Warwick hovered anxiously by.

Hunter Dent straightened. He nodded to Warwick. "You'd better call a doctor quick. You'd better telephone Mr. Ballard too. He and Mrs. Ballard are in town at their home. Get in touch with them immediately. Junior has been shot, and I think he is dead."

As Warwick hurried out Hunter bent to listen to Junior's heart, to make sure if the boy were dead or alive.

JUNIOR-IN TROUBLE

CHAPTER III

SOMETHING happened to Hunter Dent in that kiss. He held the slim form of Red Ballard close to him. He put his mouth on hers, felt its softness, a tenderness, that had no place in a wager. For a moment he dared believe there was something more here than had appeared on the surface. He murmured, "You used to be such a charming brat, Red. So trusting, so—well, just everything."

Her voice was practical. "Now the clew. Come on, come on—the clew."

Hunter took on a vague air, for he was trying to think his way through a sudden problem. "Ah, yes—the clew. H-mmmm. What was your question?"

"You know very well that I asked you if my brother Junior Ballard was here last night! Was he or wasn't he?"

Would Junior Ballard have wanted his sister to know? Would it not be wiser for the moment to protect Junior; for Hunter could not guess the possible complications the presence of $17,000 of funds from the First National Bank would bring about; he perhaps would be protecting the girl as much as young Ballard by not talking too much. There was a way out.

"Why, Junior this moment is in his room."

She seemed surprised. "His room! Wasn't he—"

"I suppose after the party and a big night he came home and crawled into bed. Fact is I saw him go to his room and go to bed."

Suddenly she started away. Hunter followed half across the rear lawn. He hardly knew why he felt this way—not wanting her to go to find Junior, just then

Used Auto Parts Must Be Turned In For New Ones

DALLAS—Motorists and truckers of the Southwest were reminded today by Leland T. Dysart, War Production Board regional priorities chief, that they must now turn in to garage or parts distributors any used automobile parts which they expect to have replaced.

The new WPB order governing the production of spare parts for automobiles and trucks is very strict in this regard," he explained, "and it even forbids a repairman to sell or deliver to a motorist consumer a new part to replace an old one that can be reconditioned."

This WPB order—L-158—limits sharply the quantity of replacement parts for less essential motor vehicles that could be manufactured after July 1. Vehicles in this category include passenger automobiles, taxicabs, station wagons, and light trucks.

Manufacturers of spare parts for such passenger cars and light trucks are allowed to make up to 70 per cent of their sales during the corresponding quarter of last year, but their overall inventory must not exceed a four-month supply.

Moreover, the parts allowed to be manufactured for such vehicles may be only functional or necessary parts, and may not include such items as fenders, doors and other parts not necessary to keep a vehicle in operation. The allowable list includes engines and their component parts; clutches, transmissions, propeller shafts, universal joints, axles, braking systems, wheels, tire valve assemblies; starting apparatus, frame and spring suspension assemblies, shock absorbers, speedometers, driving mirrors, windshield wiper assemblies, steering apparatus, exhaust systems, cooling systems, electrical systems including generators, motors, lights, reflectors and signal horns, and windshield safety glass.

Manufacturers of parts for medium and heavy trucks, trailers, buses and off-the-highway vehicles such as farm implements may make up to 125 per cent of the dollar value of their sales of these parts during the same period last year, but their inventory must not exceed a four-month supply.

The garage or parts distributors may not order more than a 30-day supply of parts and must limit its inventory to a 60-day supply.

Further, a turned-in part which cannot be reconditioned may not be kept by a seller more than 30 days, but he must dispose of such parts through scrap metal disposal channels.

"This list is an important feature of the order," Mr. Dysart said, "because it is expected to make available to the national scrap pile a quantity of scarce materials almost equal to that involved in the production of new spare parts."

It is expected also, he said, that the high priority as to stock available to parts producers will assure that essential motor vehicles can be maintained for the duration of the war.

Navy V-1 Program Being Expanded

NEW ORLEANS.—Recently transferred from recruiting to Naval Procurement, the Navy's V-1 Accredited College Program is functioning so as to speed up the enrollment of college freshmen and sophomores in the course of training leading to an ensign's commission in the United States Naval reserve.

Offices of Naval Officer Procurement in New Orleans, Houston, Dallas, Oklahoma City, Nashville, Birmingham and Atlanta are now accepting enlistments under the V-1 program. Enlistments may also be made at any Navy recruiting station or sub-station.

In contrast to the former single classification open for college freshmen and sophomores, there are now two classes in V-1 depending on physical qualifications: Class V-1(G) and Class V-1(S). The difference between the two classes is the admission to Class V-1(S) of certain of those students unable to meet the vision requirements for a commission in the general classification. In the special class the officer will do specialized work that does not require the physical fitness necessary for general service.

To qualify for enrollment in V-1 an applicant must be unmarried, between the age of seventeen thru nineteen inclusive, a U. S. citizen, of good character and possess potential officer-like qualities. He must be enrolled as a freshman or sophomore and an accredited college pursuing courses required under the program, and must meet the physical requirements for a commission in the Naval reserve in a general or specified classification.

daily certified by the State Department of Public Welfare has been paid in full the entire amount to which he is legally entitled to date.

The State Auditor pointed out that under the present Federal law, with which the State law must conform, all monthly payments to each individual are fixed by the Department of Public Welfare after investigation of each case to determine actual individual need. He said that the amount of the cash balance that may be on hand cannot legally be used to increase the size of the checks—that any excess cash left over the amount necessary to pay the ones on the roll can be used only to increase the number, and that the total cash balance after the July 1942 checks had been written was only $15,813.96.

Cavness also stated that 176,413 Old Age Assistance checks were issued for July 1942, or an average of $19.86 per check. In July 1941 checks were issued to 144,359 old people—average $18.54. This is an increase in 12 months of 32,054 checks and $1.32 in their average monthly amount. Since January 1941 the lowest average check was $11.47, in May 1941 and July 1942 was the highest, the average having increased somewhat every month since June 1941.

How to Make Your Appliances Run Smoothly and Last Longer*

Your electric fan, and other motor-driven electric appliances, will run more smoothly and last longer if oiled according to the recommendations of the manufacturer. Now that the manufacture of fans has been restricted and many other motor-operated appliances are out of production due to the war, every needed attention should be given them to make 'em last.

A complete cleaning and oiling by a qualified electrician should make your fan operate more quietly and prolong its life. This attention is particularly important after a fan has been idle all winter.

Eastland Man Dies Suddenly

"Heavy" Hays, about 60, father of Montie and Arch Hays, who now reside in California, died in Eastland this morning. Funeral arrangements are awaiting word from his sons.

Hays, an employe of WPA, was awaiting the truck early this morning that was to carry him and other workers to their job, when he was stricken, dying before medical assistance could reach him.

It's nice to have little things running around the house if they aren't leaking faucets.

OMAR BURKETT THANKS VOTERS FOR SUPPORT

To the citizens of Eastland and Eastland county: I wish to express my sincere thanks to you for your help in returning me as one of your Representatives. I have always given you the best service I am capable of and will continue to do so.

I hope to sponsor legislation which will make State Aid to our Junior Colleges permanent and add thereto trades and industries, Home Economics and every phase of Vocational training so as to help those who are unable to attend our State Colleges because of the high cost to the taxpayer at both ends of the line. Also I wish to sponsor legislation which will help those committed to our eleemosynary institutions as my heart goes out to those thus affected.

I appreciate beyond measure those who interested themselves in my behalf actively and I assure you I will put forth every effort to represent you as I believe the majority would have me do. Again thanking you most sincerely, I am,

Gratefully Yours, OMAR BURKETT.

Fire Commissioner Seeks Information On Civil Defense

AUSTIN, Tex. — Marvin Hall, State Fire Insurance Commissioner and Fire Defense Coordinator of the National Defense Committee for Texas, today urgently requested local fire chiefs to supply him with information about local Civilian Defense training. "We are particularly anxious," Hall said, to receive the information recently requested of every fire chief on Fire Defense Form No. 3. This will supply us with information as to the number of persons in each community how being trained, or who have received training in first aid, rescue work, auxiliary fire fighting, and fire watching." Hall's appeal was directed to approximately 50-per cent of the organized fire departments in the state. About half have already responded with the information sought, for which cooperation is expressed appreciation. In addition, the State Fire Defense Coordinator suggested immediate organization of training for civilian defense in those communities where no defense training activities have been held.

Keep Long Distance VOICEWAYS clear for VICTORY! The weight of war on the long distance telephone lines grows heavier every day. We can't build new lines to carry it because materials aren't available. We've got to make the most of the service we now have. To keep our lines free for calls essential to fighting the war, we need your help and sympathetic understanding. In general, of course, we are able to handle fairly easily calls over shorter distances. But remember always that if your call goes to a large city where war work is under way, or must pass through such cities, it may add to an already dangerous congestion. This is especially true in the rush hours from 9 to 12 in the morning, 2 to 5 in the afternoon, 7 to 9 at night. On calls to more distant points during those hours, we are sure you will feel that your personal interests must give way to official messages that constantly are flooding our lines. By thoughtful use of telephone service civilians can help to win the war. And we know you're glad to help. War calls come first! SOUTHWESTERN BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY
