A survey of the Leon river project by army engineers is forthcoming, provided President Franklin D. Roosevelt has or will sign congress' omnibus flood control bill, J. Frank Sparks, chairman of the board of directors who recently returned from Washington, stated Monday.

The bill was made to include the Leon project by amendments of Senator Morris Sheppard and representative Thomas L. Blanton, Sparks stated.

Army engineers would survey the project and the work, if approved, would be under their supervision.

Sparks stated the bill provides for appropriation of funds for the projects approved by the engineers.

The Leon district was formed by the Texas legislature and a preliminary survey has been completed. The district is composed of Eastland and Callahan counties.

Directors of the project hope for construction of a dam near Mangrum for the conservation of water and irrigation of land.

WITNESS SAYS PASTOR TALKED OF 'EXECUTION'

HOUSTON, June 8.—Clarence Keown of Orange told a district court jury here today Rev. E. Edgar Eskridge, on trial for murder, told him on May 9, 1935, "today is my day of execution."

This was a few hours before the preacher shot and killed Police Chief Ed O'Reilly on the streets of Orange.

"I am going to stay here and take it like a man," Keown quoted the Baptist minister as saying. He said Eskridge and O'Reilly were the "best friends I ever had."

Keown testified he found Eskridge talking to a group of men on the day of the slaying and the preacher told them "today is my day of execution."

"We then drove to some oil wells and when we got there Eskridge went into hysterics. He seemed to be having a fit, stamping his feet and cursing in the awful language I ever heard," Keown said.

"I slapped him on the back and he wiped his hands across his face like he had just waked up and said 'I am all right now. Don't talk to me any more.'"

Television Hostesses Await Debut; To Be Britain's "Most Seen" Girls

LONDON—Television programs produced by the British Broadcasting Corporation scheduled to begin July 1 will feature two attractive hostess-announcers.

Miss Jasmine Bligh, 22, blonde with auburn hair and blue-grey eyes, and Miss Elizabeth Cowell, 23, a petite brunette, are the two young women selected from 1,122 applicants.

These hostess-announcers, at least the B. B. C. proudly announces, like cocktails, theatres, films, jazz, open-air sports, they listen a good deal and they go to church on Sundays.

They will be seen and heard by thousands of Britons daily and should prove popular since they are smart dressers and have lovely faces and figures.

While one is announcing during programs to be broadcast from Alexandra Palace, the other will greet artists helping them to become accustomed to the unusual atmosphere of the television studios.

Television announcements must be memorized since speakers will dispense with notes before the scanner.

Miss Bligh and her partner hostess-announced must paint their lips blue and their faces yellow so they may be seen properly by television audiences. Other strange color combinations or contrasts will be required.

Miss Cowell speaks German and French fluently and has traveled extensively. She has been a mannequin and is interested in ballet.

Miss Bligh, niece of Lord Darnley, has visited the United States, Italy, Switzerland and France. She speaks French. Her favorite sports are golf, riding and squash racquets. She has had three years' stage and film experience, playing in "Julius Caesar" at His Majesty's Theatre and in the Charlot revue, "Please."

The two hostess-announcers who will be the most "seen" girls in Britain shortly, have received contracts for six months. Their starting salary is understood to be about $50 a week.

Army Flier Sets Blind Flight Record

LOS ANGELES, June 8.—Maj. Ira Eaker, army flier, was hailed today for a pioneer achievement in aviation after his blind flight from New York to Los Angeles in 23 hours.

That reminds me...

Arrived on the scene Sunday evening just after a car wreck. Miracles do happen and this was one of them. The car was a closed Chevrolet delivery car. It was originally loaded jam full of household effects and some were on top. Eight people were in the car at the time of the wreck, from a tiny baby, to adults including several women. Only one young man about 18 years old was badly hurt and he will recover. The rest only received minor bruises. The car was practically new and the tires were also. A flat tire caused the car to careen, turn over completely twice and catapult into a ditch around eight or ten feet deep. Most all the household effects were scattered within a radius of thirty or forty feet, having been thrown out through the top of the car. Not a particle of damage was done to the mechanism of the car which speaks volumes for the quality of this type of Chevrolet delivery trucks and no doubt saved the occupants from serious injury and death. A mashed fender and a broken door glass will repair the damage. A tiny little tack not an inch long caused the whole trouble, and on inspection we are sure that the Chevrolet manufacturers saved the lives of eight people by producing a delivery car that can withstand such abuse as in this instance. Still it was a miracle that all were not killed due to the household effects that were loaded in the car. The car was owned by the L. C. Cox Mattress Factory of Abilene.

Failure of the Hague Is a Lesson To Us

We seem to have let an important anniversary get away from us. It is just 37 years since the first Hague peace treaty was signed, and no one has so much as given the occasion a thought.

To celebrate that particular anniversary would take a bit of crust. The last 37 years have done a good many things to us, but they have not treated anything quite as cruelly as they have treated our late 19th century ideas about world peace.

Those Hague treaties—as out of date as the flintlock musket, now—symbolize the complete failure of the world's pre-war effort to put international society on a stable, peaceful basis; and they failed because the people who sponsored them were kidding themselves in a wholesale manner.

It was supposed, in those days, that kind words and pious hopes could work miracles. There was an essential unreality about the whole business, a bland refusal to face the facts and to see the world as it really was.

Imperialism, of the kind that can lead nowhere but to war, was in its heyday. England was gobbling up the Boers, America was cutting away the last vestige of Spain's new world empire, France was mopping up in the Sahara, Germany was looking restlessly for new worlds to conquer.

But people didn't see it. They somehow managed to gloss over the unmistakable signs of approaching war. They built a great peace palace at The Hague, signed a long string of treaties which sounded very fine and meant next to nothing at all, and went around assuring one another that a large-scale war was hence forth impossible.

Just how impossible it was they learned in 1914. The mental attitude embodied in those Hague treaties was forever discredited. And the anniversary of the signing of the first of those treaties comes and goes, year after year, utterly unnoticed.

All of that is worth recalling now. For our dire need to avert war is more pressing today than ever before, and we can learn something by meditating over the failure of our fathers' generation.

We can learn, for instance, that treaties and good intentions are useless as long as the causes of war remain unchanged. Until the world gets smart enough to rearrange its map, its economic boundaries, and its habit of seizing and holding the good things of this earth by force of arms, it will continue to have wars.

That lesson the well-intentioned makers of the Hague treaties failed to learn—and 1914 was the price of their failure.

WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—This is that period in Washington when always is marked by more weaseling, duty-dodging, and hypocrisy than any other.

The closing days of any session of Congress are invariably more conspicuous for the legislation sidetracked than for legislation enacted.

In a campaign year the politicians in charge of Senate and House machinery seem to have no scruples in ditching bills of great public importance.

Lately it has appeared that practically anyone who wanted to hire a lobbyist to make a fuss could stop almost any bill he desired to have killed.

CONGRESS can work with remarkable speed when it wants to and could pass the following measures if it stayed around through June.

THE take-the-profits-out-of-war bill, modified from the Senate munitions committee's draft by a Senate Finance subcommittee, but which would still impose a total wartime tax of 89 per cent on a $50,000 income.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

GAIL EVERETT, ambitious to become a designer, comes to New York and—due to a stroke of luck—is hired by MADAME LIEBOWITZ, proprietor of an exclusive fashion house. Her job is monumental and difficult to work out.

DEREK HARGREAVES, young artist, is interested in Gail and writes her friendly advice. Freely she sees DICK SEARLES, whose sister, ROSEMARY, is a famous model in Arizona. MARK TRAVERS, a newspaper editor, returns to find his old home in the hands of the Travers Mining Company. He does not know the whereabouts of his niece, Gail, the rightful owner of the property. REX HALL, Madame Liebowitz's assistant, is representing the Travers company.

MADAME PRESTON, who lives at the same place as Gail, sees an advertisement in the "personal" column of a newspaper asking for information about PETER EVERETT, and later meets a MRS. BARTON, and tells her about Gail. Madam Liebowitz is a badly needed and handsome man.

CHAPTER XVII

DAN DRAFFEN rose from the bench outside Jed Hosker's back. "Well, so long, fellows," he said. "Got to get home now. Going to town tomorrow. Anything you want?"

"No," Jed answered. "How about you, Mark?"

"I wouldn't mind if you'd bring me some tobacco," he handed Draffen a dollar. "Thanks, old man."

"Oh, that's all right. Always glad to do anything for a neighbor," Whistling for his dog, Draffen took the path to the Rancho Angelo.

"Obliging sort of chap—Dan is first attempt," Jed remarked.

"Yes, but has it ever struck you?" Mark paused.

"What's that?" asked Jed. Then he whispered hoarsely. "Guess I know what you're thinking. I've been thinking the same myself—ever since Rex Hall came out that night. Draffen's getting mighty anxious about our welfare. But say, he don't know a thing more than he did before—just that I'm going to get even with the Travers bunch."

"Well, how's your going to do that?"

"The old man spat vigorously, then shook his head. "Guess I can do it—wait!"

"What would you say, partner, if I told you I've got the very card in my hand that you've been looking for to take the trick?"

"You mean, you've something on them, too? It wasn't exactly by accident you happened down the canyon?" Jed took his pipe from his mouth.

"Just that, Jed! But we've got to be mighty careful about this. Now, if you—"

Striking View of Ship Christening

Miss Mai Duane, descendant of William J. Duane, Secretary of the Treasury in President Jackson's cabinet, took no chances in flinging the christening of the new U. S. Coast Guard Cutter at Philadelphia Navy Yard. She gritted her teeth, grasped the baptismal bottle of champagne firmly and used both hands to smash the flagon against the Duane's prow. Then look what happened.

Britain Builds Parasite Planes

Aviation's first aerial parasites, sketched above, are being created at Rochester, England, for the Imperial Airways in an attempt to surmount difficulties that have blocked long range, non-stop airmail flights. Too heavily loaded to be able to take off under its own power, a 5000-mile airmail ship is mounted atop a huge flying boat, designed to help lift it into the air. After reaching cruising altitude, the lower unit will return to the airport for duty as a passenger carrier on shorter flights.

which a few years ago were rather highly prized have been selling in Tokyo recently for as little as $7. The difference between the cultivated and natural pearl is slight. In both cases the pearl is produced as a result of an irritating substance getting inside the oyster. In the cultivated pearl the irritant is applied by human agency and the oyster does the rest.

Control of production is necessary, Mikimoto believes and plans to reduce the output to a third of its present rating. Just as in the case of the silk industry, the farmers began to grow pearls along the seashore. There are now 230 pearl culturists in Japan Mikimoto says. He intends to buy these small pearl farms.

Thereafter he will become a salesman rather than a producer. The Mikimoto interests gather and sell natural pearls also but in this line there is severe competition in other countries.

Burr Girl Team Showing Progress

Dean Turner is turning out a fine job as coach for the Burr Department Store girl team. After wiping out the only defeat of the season by a victory over the Breckenridge girl team last Friday night at Breckenridge, the girls are all set for another go at the Ranger girls at the formal opening of the Ranger softball field tonight at Ranger.

PRIZE FOR NAME Five dollars in merchandise at the Burr store will be awarded for the best name for the girls' team sponsored by that business, it was announced Monday.

If you have never had a formal introduction to this gang of feminine ball players, we'll try to make you acquainted. First string pitcher is "Butch" Fry (Margaret to you if you don't know her very well). She's in there working hard all the time and getting better every game.

Catcher, Margery "Possum" Moore whose peppery line of chatter keeps the cash customers rolling in their seats and the opposing batters groggy.

First base, Jimmie Mitchell. Can put those will throws out of the air and die 'em out of the dirt like a veteran.

Edith Rosenquest, the blond guardian of the wide open spaces around second base, turns many a neat play and makes very few errors.

At third base Helen Rosenquest (Jeannie to the bunch) takes care of this difficult position in a surprisingly clever manner.

Short stop and captain of the team is Pee Wee Jennings. Her work on ground balls and accurate pegs to bases will surprise you. She knows what to do with that ball when she gets it.

Ima Ruth Hale (Honey-cut) takes a healthy cut at that ball, hence the name. Plays utility and can fit in at any position in the infield or outfield.

Dorris Lawrence playing short field is the spark plug of the out-

Boris Karloff attained film stardom by his portrayal of the monster in "Frankenstein" and many other "shiver" roles. But he has never had so weird and unusual a part as he has in "The Walking Dead," the Warner Bros. mystery picture which opens at the Connelley Theatre today.

field. Plenty of pepper and ginger. Other outfield positions are taken care of by Maxine (Red) Coleman, Mabel Kellett, Edith Horn, all of them good feminine ball hawks that can give that ball a ride.

If you know these girls, off the field I mean, and then see them out there playing hard, hitting the dirt to beat the ball to the base, bumping the opposing player that gets in their way on the base paths and shouting encouragement to their fellow players and derision at the enemy, you will get a real kick out of it.—Reporter.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Bennett were visitors in Ranger Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Bernie Blowers of Ranger were visitors here Sunday.

Mrs. R. J. Cox, Jr., and daughter, Sylvia Ann, arrived Monday to visit in the home of Mrs. Cox's parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Bittle.

Mr. and Mrs. Faye Earnest were scheduled to return today from a vacation trip to San Antonio and a visit with her mother.

Homer Brelsford, with the old age pension clerical force in Austin, who has been there the past two months, paid his wife a week-end visit, accompanied by his son Gates, who spent last week with his father in Austin.

Miss Thelma Powell of Waco is visiting her sister Mrs. Carl Miller, at Conner apartment.

We haven't seen that picture, "The Garden Murder Case," but the victim probably was the neighbor who offered advice over the back fence.

Softball Pitching Rules Discussed

(Editor's Note: This is the end in a series of stories in Joe Hughes, umpire, discuss ball rule).

The pitching rules in softball have undergone the most changes of all the rules of the game. It has changed the tiveness of many pitchers, certainly it has benefited game.

Rule 8—Pitching Rule. Section (a) Preliminary pitching, the pitcher shall take position facing the batsman, both feet squarely on the ground and both feet on top of the pitcher's plate, in front of the batter's feet. Section (b) In the act of throwing the ball to the batsman, the pitcher must keep one foot in contact with the pitcher's plate and not fake more than one step and left hand.

Section (c) The pitcher shall begin when one hand is taken from the ball and that hand shall again touch the ball before delivered to the batsman.

These three sections are explanatory. Section e is generally understood. No motion of the pitcher constitutes illegal pitch so long as both feet are on the ball.

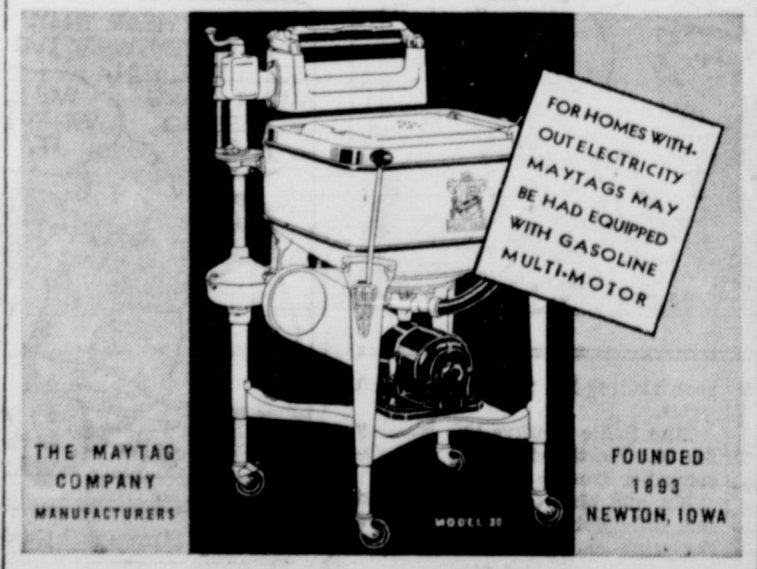

Tomorrow's column will be the pitcher's wind-up.
