Romans Never Put Up A 'Quoddy Project'

Whenever an ardent patriot wants to pay his America the supreme compliment, he looks about at its great construction work and announces that Americans are the greatest builders since the ancient Romans.

It is a pretty thought, and such things as Boulder Dam and the Panama Canal justify it. But it has remained for the present administration to go the Romans one better by sinking a pile of money in a building project for which the country has no earthy use.

Quoddy, orphan child of Uncle Sam, is as charming a village as you would care to find. Its houses represent a million dollars in cash and a vast amount of loving care, the evidences of which are to be found in maple love seats, colonial candlesticks, grandfather's clocks, and other samples of the interior decorator's art.

It was built to house workers in the great tidal power project. This project has lately been counted out by Congress. The workers presently will scatter to the four winds, the tides will rise and fall unvexed by machinery, and the beautiful village will remain as a lasting memorial to an age that could build to perfection, but to no good purpose.

Consider, for just a moment, the topsy-turviness of the civilization that built Quoddy.

Every city in America has its desolate, disease-breeding, crime-incubating slums. They lie across the land like ugly, filthy sores, costing us stupendous sums in illness, in bad citizenship, in general human misery.

In three or four spots the government has moved, timidly, to rebuild—under a set-up which makes it certain that the former slum dwellers cannot afford to move into then we houses being erected to replace those being destroyed.

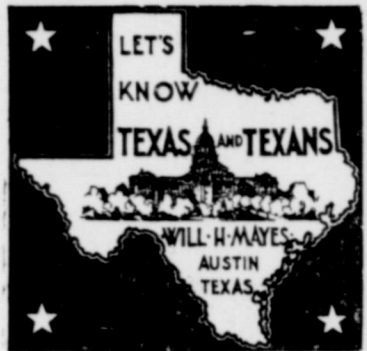

Up at Quoddy, where there never was and never will be a housing shortage, we show the sort of dwellings we can put up when we set our minds to the job; dwellings that are pleasant, airy, substantial, home-like, inviting, fit for a race of free men and women. But—and this is the point—having built them, we have no use for them.

The Romans, those other great builders, were a superstitious and unenlightened people in many respects. But when they set out to do a job of building, they at least figured out what they really needed—and then built it where they could use it.

of the island. Later, Father Nicholas Balli received the island as a grant from the King of Spain, and it took his name. In July, 1879, Patrick F. Dunn purchased the island for a ranch. Afterward, it was sold to the Jones Brothers of Kansas City, who carried out considerable development work there.

Of interest in connection with Padre Island is the proximity of Bird Island, a national wild life sanctuary.

Padre Island has been attracting increasing numbers of fishermen and hunters each year. Some of the best salt water fishing along the coast is found in the Gulf off Padre Island, particularly the tarpon fishing at Port Aransas, and Point Isabel, at the respective north and south ends of the island.

Laguna Madre offers good trout, drum and red fish catches the year around.

Duck and waterfowl swarm to waters adjacent to the island during the winter nesting season.

Evening worship, 8 o'clock. A special message and program to the public.

SHIRLEY PLAYS MOST ADORABLE PICTURE ROLE

Playing a little sea-sprite, darling Shirley Temple dances, sings and plays her way through her new 20th Century picture, "Captain January," which is now at the Connellee Theatre, presenting her in her greatest role ever.

A genuinely heart-tugging dramatic story underlies the song, dance and comedy delights of this new story, in which Shirley plays the darling of two grizzled old sea salts.

Guy Kibbee, in the principal supporting role, plays the keeper of the lighthouse, the man who rescued Shirley from the sea years before, and now jealously fears that someone will take his darling from him.

Due to the efforts of Sara Haden, as a vixenish truant officer, the dreaded thing almost does happen, but in the conclusion, Slim Summerville, Buddy Edsen and June Lang conspire to make Shirley and her foster daddy happy.

"The Right Somebody to Love" is the hit song of the new picture, composed by Jack Yellen and Lew Pollack. There are, however, two other delightful tunes sung by Shirley, as well as a fascinating series of new tap steps, many of which are danced in company with Buddy Edsen, hoofing star of the Ziegfeld Follies.

Jane Darwell, whose romance with Guy Kibbee brings many additional laughs, is prominent in the supporting cast of "Captain January," which was produced under the supervision of B. G. DeSylva, and directed by David Butler.

EDMUND LOWE BIDS FAREWELL TO TOUGH ROLE

The wars are over, Sergeant Quirt is mustered out and, so far as Edmund Lowe is concerned, the sergeant can enjoy a pleasant—and permanent—furlough.

"Quirt may come back to make life miserable for Captain Flagg some day," says Lowe who is currently starred in Fox's "Thunder in the Night," coming to the Connellee Theatre, "but I doubt if it will be for a long, long time."

As the acid-tongued sergeant of "What Price Glory" Lowe found himself astride the pinnacle of screen fame. But like so many other powerful characterizations, Lowe later found that the sergeant was throttling his screen career.

In his recent "Black Sheep," Lowe finally found escape from the tough-mannered characterizations of the old soldier. Now with "Thunder in the Night," he pursues his new type of characterization as the fascinating detective who mixes clues with kisses in a startling mystery melodrama.

And Lowe is exultant about the change.

"It's fine to be able to portray a regular human being," declares the screen actor. "And the greatest part of it is that I can say something every few minutes beside 'Sex you, Sex me!'"

In "Thunder in the Night," Lowe is featured with Karen Morley and Paul Cavanaugh. Morley's liking for the ladies almost proves his undoing as a detective, when he ignores his clues because they condemn a woman he had sworn to protect. But he follows his hunches to bring a murderer to justice.

MOVIE STARS' PLAYGROUND IS SEEN IN NEW FILM

Frances Langford, Sir Guy Standing, Smith Ballew, David Niven, Spring Byington and Ernest Cossart head the cast of Walter Wanger's production for Paramount, "Palm Springs," which opens at 11 p. m. Saturday night at the Connellee Theatre.

This is the first time the resort near Hollywood, where movie stars rest and play between pictures, has been filmed. Because of its interesting atmosphere, it is used as the setting for a story which offers Frances Langford as a young society deb who is suddenly thrown into the gay maze of a Palm Springs vacation.

She is forced into seeking marriage with a playboy millionaire to save her family from poverty, in spite of the great love she already bears for a handsome cowboy. To win the young scion, she masquerades as an English noblewoman. Frances almost succeeds in completing the alliance when her father, realizing that she is sacrificing herself for him, exposes her.

How he frustrates the marriage and aids Ballew, enacting the cowboy she loves, to get her, supply a fitting climax to the story.

Five songs especially written for the picture are sung by Miss Langford and Mr. Ballew during the course of story unfoldment.

PETER B. KYNE'S DRAMATIC TALE OF SACRIFICE

Chester Morris, in one of the most virile roles in his career, is teamed with Lewis Stone and Walter Brennan in bringing to the screen one of the greatest stories of an American novelist, Peter B. Kyne's "The Three Godfathers," current attraction at the Lyric Theatre. Produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, filmed in the Mohave Desert and in a Western village specially constructed on the desert's edge, it presents thrills, sacrifice and romance in a mighty drama of strong men in the inferno of sands.

The story is that of three bandits, fleeing into the desert, who find a dying mother and her baby. East in turn sacrifices his life in the fiery trek across the desert to bring the baby safely to civilization.

Morris plays Bob, leader of the outlaws, and the man who with his last spark of life hands the rescued baby over to the woman who once loved him. Stone is dominant as the oldest of the lawbreakers, and Brennan adds a comedy touch to the odd trio. The romance is between Irene Hervey, as the town minister's daughter, and Robert Livingston as the young bank cashier.

One of the most poignantly dramatic highlights of the picture is the scene where Morris deliberately insults Miss Hervey, to kill any vestige of love remaining for him, to insure her perfect future happiness. Richard Boleslawski directed, with deft handling of the human touches and mighty dramatic moments, and some of the most beautiful photography in years marks the desert sequences. The capable cast includes Sidney Toler, Dorothy Tree, Roger Imhoff, Willard Robertson, John Sheehan, Joseph Marievsky, Victor Potel and Helen Brown.

GLAMOROUS ADVENTURE

by Jean Seivwright © 1936 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

GAIL EVERETT, winner of a gold for costume design offered by a large silk manufacturing company, comes to New York to work. She is hired—due to stroke of luck—by MADAME LIZETTE, proprietor of an exclusive shop. Madame proves tempestuous and difficult to work with.

DEREK HARGREAVES, young man, is interested in Gail, and is very friendly adviser. Gail's friend DICK SEARLES, same sister, ROSEMARY, was roommate at school.

FRANKLIN, in Arizona, MARK LIPMAN, long a wanderer, returns to find his old home in the hands of the Traverses. Miss Gail, who suspects the death is crooked, does not know the whereabouts of the niece, Gail, rightful owner of the property.

MR. HALL, Madame Lizette's man, is representing the Traverses.

Gail spends the week-end at the hotel home. Dick asks her to go with him and again she refuses. As the days pass Gail finds herself thinking more and more of Derek. He asks her to give a reception at the home of the FERRARA GALLERY.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XV

"So you thought I'd forgotten you?" Derek said, handing her the waiting cab.

"Well, that would be easy, wouldn't it?" she countered lightly.

"Think so?" Blue eyes held a while he sought her hand in the waiting cab.

Gail flashed him a swift glance. "You really meant it! 'Maybe I need you a little bit too,' she said. 'Didn't you promise to go to the little country girl around the big town?'"

"And so I will. Tonight I'm going to introduce you to Mrs. Morton and a lot of worthwhile people."

"But if this is an invitation for me, Derek, it's no place for me! Never be a piker!"

"Of course not, Honey. I've a special invitation for you."

"I drew out a folded sheet and said: 'I didn't send you a formal invitation because I had had to ask you to come to meet me before this. Then it occurred to me that there might be people you'd like to meet at the reception, and it would be a pity for you to miss them when you're anxious to do more portraits. Won't you bring that girl who is with you at Ivan's the other evening? I'd like to know her. I hope she needn't be afraid of me.'"

"Oh, Derek, what can she think of me?"

"Think of you, dearest? She'll love you! Yes—even though she is a rather hard-boiled she has

Students will Hear Of Plans to Decrease Living Costs at A & M

All school superintendents in Eastland county have been requested by County Agent Elmo V. Cook to send him names of graduates who may be interested in the formation of an Eastland county project group at A. & M. college at College Station next semester.

Under the project plan, 10 or more boys from one county rent a house, hire a housekeeper and prorate expenses.

Agent Cook stated the plan usually saves students half the average expenses and they make higher grades.

Superintendents at Eastland, Rising Star and Gorman had complied with Cook's request.

News From 4-H Clubs of County

"Distance from 4-H club meeting places does not discourage Eastland county 4-H club boys attending their club meetings."

Hugh F. Barnhart, assistant county agent, said Thursday, after visiting that Almus Fannin, member of the Scranton club, walked miles to attend the meeting. The school was out and there was no school bus.

Roy Lee O'Brien of the same club walked six miles. W. H. Bonnan, Jr. and his sister, members of the Carbon Boys and Girls 4-H club, walked eight miles to attend the Carbon 4-H Club meeting.

A message from a last year's bride

Texas Electric Service Company
City
Gentlemen:

Attached is a copy of the advertisement you published last year, suggesting Electrical Gifts for the June Bride.

I am one of last year's brides who profited from this hint, and after a year of housekeeping I'd like to repeat your suggestion for the benefit of this year's June brides. Our electrical appliances, given us by thoughtful friends and relatives, have made my housework easier and our home more comfortable.

And what amazes me is how little it costs to use electric appliances every day of the year. I'll agree with you when you say, "Electricity is Your Biggest Bargain."

Sincerely,
A June Bride of 1935

P. S. We observe our first anniversary next week and I hope our friends remember that Electrical Gifts always are appreciated.

AND AGAIN WE SAY...

Electrical Gifts Are Practical

If you are wondering what to give for a wedding present or anniversary gift, visit our store or your electrical dealer and you will have no trouble in picking out something practical and useful for years to come. Convenient monthly terms can be arranged on all purchases.

Just a Pair of Sandlot Veterans

President Roosevelt returned to scenes of his boyhood triumphs when he watched the Robin Hood sandlot team, on which he played nearly 30 years ago, battle with the Columbiaville baseball team at Hyde Park, N. Y. He is pictured chatting with Arthur Groff, now manager of the nine, one of his old teammates.

Sport Glances.By Grayson

BASEBALL'S blundering bosses have given the all-star game back to the fans, but with reservations.

The major leagues broke faith with the public and press in previous inter-league all-star games, and they won't be given an opportunity to do it again in a hurry.

Commissioner Landis and Presidents Harridge and Fick of the American and National Leagues continue to deny the customers one day and one contest in the season that they can call their own.

They have decided that the patrons can elect 16 of the 21 members of each of the clubs which are to collide in the Boston Bee Hive on July 7. Managers Mickey Cochrane and Grimm each is to pick five athletes for the array he leads.

The short-sighted directors of the big leagues evidently consider this a great concession on their part, although just why they refuse to let those who pay the freight have their fun is a mystery to showmen in every other line.

Why not let the fans select all the players and the managers, too? And again the bigwigs have failed to make it mandatory for the managers to play the players named by the fans. This has been the customers' biggest complaint since the all-star game's inception in 1933.

THE baseball moguls made the concession only because they realize that perhaps it isn't such a bad idea to have 125 newspapers and other agencies gather 800,000 votes, as was the case when the contest was played at the Polo Grounds in 1934.

Because the managers paid little or no attention to the voice of the trade the two previous summers, newspapers last year were less interested in conducting campaigns and the fan lost his verve for balloting.

In effect, baseball put the chill on for its following, and its following didn't care to butt in where it wasn't wanted. It was plain that all baseball wanted from its patrons was what they paid at the gate.

Its refusal to let the fans have a hand in the pie resulted in the loss to professional baseball of advertising and an incomputable amount of good will.

JUST how much of this professional baseball can regain by its current half-hearted gesture is problematical.

Certainly, the same newspapers which used to be helpful before scarcely can be expected to steam up another of the polls, when the results of previous ones have been meaningless. Surely, the fans hardly can be expected to rush to ballot boxes with votes for favorites when experience has taught them that election is no assurance that they will have places in the lineup.

The all-star game was suggested by the publisher of a baseball magazine and the first one in 1933 was sponsored by a Chicago newspaper as an added attraction for the Century of Progress Exposition.

The newspaper, wishing to make it a fan's game, conducted an elaborate poll at considerable expense. The managers paid little attention to the results of this poll. They paid less attention to a poll that became nation-wide in 1934 and none at all last July.
