Only By World Peace Can We Allay Fears

If a good dose of fright can persuade the people of England to rush down the paths of militarism...

Mr. Duff Cooper has been having trouble getting enough men to enlist in the army under the expansion program recently adopted by the British government...

"It is difficult to persuade our own people of the dangers that lie ahead. We are told we should never frighten people. But it is the duty of those in authority to frighten the people of this country out of their wits."

It is strange thing, the way the mind of man sometimes works.

Here we have a member of the British cabinet proclaiming that the nation is in greater danger now than it was on the eve of the World War...

Mr. Duff Cooper speaks of "facing facts." The most notable fact about 1914 would seem to be that the nations of the world, having followed selfishly nationalistic policies with a blind disregard of the dangers involved...

How the human race, with the dreadful object lesson of 1914 so fresh in its memory, can even dream of repeating that experience is one of the greatest mysteries of all history.

It may be, as Mr. Duff Cooper says, that what people need is to be frightened out of their wits. But the result might not be what he expects.

For if the plain people of the world could once understand the holocaust that seems to be in preparation for them, and could fear it as they ought to fear it, they might take their assorted statesmen by the scruff of their assorted necks and tell them:

"Here—we want no more of that, at any price. Get together and settle things, somehow, anyhow—no matter what it costs you or us. The world has lived under the law of the jungle long enough. Find a new way—or get out of the way for someone who can."

"Dizzy Dean has been broadcasting regularly." Come to think of it, he must have been the speaker we thought was an eye specialist.

"Government Lifts Ban on Reindeer Killing." It's a handy item for Mr. MacTavish to display to the bairns next Christmas, if Santa fails to show up.

"Dionne quintuplets are learning to speak French." It must be heard for them to understand why the little pig cried "Yes, yes, yes," all the way home.

New York state conservation department reports that squirrels are attacking homes all over Buffalo. We were not aware that it was a Black Legion center.

"Find cure for X-ray sickness." That must be the ailment which youngsters frequently get on school days, the one it is so easy to see through.

LANDON TO SPEND VACATION IN VALLEY OF RARE BEAUTY, TROUT ANGLER'S PARADISE

Towering Peaks on Every Side of Ranch

By GEORGE HOFFMAN NEA Service Special Correspondent

Denver.—You could easily jump across Cow Creek, even with just a half-hearted running start. But narrow as it is, it's home, to thousands of hungry trout which are just so many suckers when it comes to fish hooks.

That's why Cow Creek, which runs through the McGraw ranch, leased by Alfred M. Landon for his Colorado vacation, is expected to get most of the governor's attention when he leaves behind him his political cares and the Kansas prairie.

The 1200-acre ranch lies on the edge of Rocky Mountain National Park, 5 1/2 miles from Estes Park Village and some 70 miles from Denver. It is about 8,000 feet above the sea.

Besides the comfortable, unpainted, but strictly modern ranch house where Governor Landon will stay, there are other buildings and miles of dense forest wherever the steep mountainsides are not too rocky for trees.

Setting is Beautiful The valley in which the ranch house stands is west of Devil's Gulch Road in a region where mountains and minor ranges are so numerous that nobody has ever bothered to name them.

Around the ranch house everything is trees and mountains and streams and snow-topped peaks and bits of green fields—as beautiful a spot in which to relax as even a potential president could hope to see. Governor Landon has never seen it—he just heard about it and leased it.

Game is plentiful on the ranch, and herds of deer are often seen grazing right in the McGraw "front yard," the little sloping piece of grass between the ranch-house and Cow Creek.

Real Comfort in House Mrs. John J. McGraw, widow of a wealthy Philadelphia construction engineer, who owns the ranch lives in Estes Park Village, a busy little resort town. Originally staked and plotted 35 years ago by Hugo Miller, pioneer Colo-radio rancher, the ranch was extended and improved by McGraw. The house has central heating, two bathrooms, six bedrooms, a living room, dining room, sun porch, kitchen and library. It is furnished in the comfortable style of a decade ago, with large, well-upholstered chairs and couches, mahogany reading lamps and tables.

There is a grand piano in the living room, and a radio and telephone furnish communication with the outside world. A one-way private road gives the only physical access.

Incidentally, one-way road in these remote Colorado mountain regions really means one-way road. When a motorist meets a car headed in the opposite direction, custom compels the car on the least-rugged side to pull off to one side until the other car passes.

Rose crystal ware used throughout the service, sparkled against the snowy linen table spread. Trays of a variety of sandwiches, sliced tomatoes, potato flakes, pickles, and a unique tray, a big flower composed entirely of onions formed a delectable menu partaken with iced soda pop, and topped off with ice cream.

Those attending were received by the committee in charge, Mrs. Aubrey Yeager and Mrs. Noble Harkrider.

High Plains Gets Behind New Soil Saving Program

By United Press

DALHART, Texas.—Additional momentum gathered behind soil conservation work on the High Plains this week when a delegation of Meade, Kans., farmers and business men conferred with Soil Conservation Service Authorities and inspected the Dalhart SCS project with the expressed view of getting an emergency erosion control program upon which a permanent plan of land conservation can be built.

E. E. Innis, president of the Meade Chamber of Commerce, with four committee men, C. A. Marrs and Alex R. Wilson, Meade, Farmer J. H. Hiatt, of near Plains, president of the Meade County Farm Bureau and A. E. Earhart, Meade, directing State cooperative Experiment work in 11 Southwest Kansas counties, headed the delegation.

The CCC camp 13 miles southwest of Meade will finish its park project and be moved by Sept. 30 unless it can be transformed into an Emergency Conservation Work Camp, Innis said. He hopes to get a camp similar to the ECW units in the Texas Panhandle — about 150 CCC boys, Ten SCS technicians, two army officers.

The 60 farmers were a cross-section, he said, of the Meade area. The aim is to make the Meade territory soil-conservation-conscious "that we will get that ECW camp."

"I feel like the SCS program generally is O. K. We have been working all spring to get farmers interested and I want to see that camp established," Hiatt stated. Earhart declared that "soil erosion is one of the major problems the southwest must meet."

W. L. Cowan, Amarillo, director of EWC work in Texas, explained that ECW camps can cooperate with farmers or ranchers, who wish aid, within a 25-mile radius—virtually a million acres. The ECW camp furnishes labor for everything except terrace building. On other work cooperators must furnish mechanized power—the camp furnishing hand labor.

Cowan accompanied the Meade delegation over the Dalhart SCS project—first wind erosion control demonstration attempted in the U. S.—set up Aug. 1, 1934. The visitors were shown how moisture is conserved by terracing and contouring to gain a vegetative cover which protects land from blowing and whe plowed under enriches soil.

Operation of demonstration areas (like the Dalhart project) and ECW camp areas is similar, varying a little in aid given co-operation. WPA laborers, paid security wage scales by the relief ad-

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

By William Ferguson

MT. LASSEN is the first volcano to erupt within the borders of continental United States since prehistoric times. It went into action in 1914 and continued until 1918. Since that time there have been small steam outpourings from time to time, but of late there are strong signs of a new eruption.

In a manner, the CCC boys in the field forces, and those farmers and rancher, who are not cooperators but are taking their cue from the project or ECW camp area near which they live. In that five-state area there are nine demonstration and five ECW camp areas.

H. H. Fennell, Amarillo, conservator of the five-state erosion program—on the High Plains of Kansas, Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Colorado — estimates some 8,000,000 men are working directly or indirectly toward soil conservation in that area. This includes farmer-rancher cooperators, CCC boys, SCS office and

Inactive Players Should Sit Upon Benches-Hughes

By JOE HUGHES

There has been quite an effort made on the part of the umpires to keep the ball in the game, between the foul lines and the fences, free of all players or people not actively engaged in the game.

The bench was installed for the players and the rules specify the players not playing must remain on the bench.

Section 19, Rule 27 specifies that "the base runner is out if one or more members of the team at bat stand or collect at or around a base for which a base runner is trying, thereby confusing the fielding side and adding to the difficulty of making such a play, or if a member of the team at bat, but abstract or interfere with any player being made upon a base runner, the base runner shall be called out for interference of his team mate or team-mates."

Conches or players who occupy the bench are just as obligated to avoid a fielder who is attempting to catch a foul fly, as the base runner who must avoid a batted ball or the fielder attempting to field a batted ball.

It is also essential that other obstructions, such as bats and balls should be kept cleared in this area to avoid injury to the players.

There Are Sails And Sales!

A friend of ours is the wife of a seafaring man. She knows what "charting a course" means. She believes in it.

Her charts are the advertising pages of this paper. Before she starts a shopping trip, she plots her course. Here's a bargain in canned goods. There's a good buy in kitchen utensils. Here's a sale of shoes. Thus the fog of haphazard shopping lifts, and the course is clear. Time is saved. Money is saved.

"Certainly," she tells us, "I would no sooner start on a shopping tour without having read the advertisements than my husband would try to navigate without his charts and compass."

Even if you have never set foot aboard a ship, you can chart your shopping course. Read the advertisements on these pages every day. Follow them as a mariner follows the weather report and see how much simpler and easier shopping becomes. Remember, an advertised product is a reliable product—it has to be!

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MARY E. DAGUE
MY Great Aunt Nancy used to say, "Never save one egg and waste two, as well as butter and sugar, by baking a cake that will go begging after the first taste."

Aunt Nancy followed a precept of her own that poorly prepared food is really wasted food, and that skimping on quality is an extravagance, since dishes thus prepared are almost sure to go unheeded. She followed this rule implicitly and became a famous cook. When Aunt Nancy took a dish from the oven every crumb was sure to be eaten!

Most of us enjoy new recipes—real treats with which to surprise the family and guests. Just recently, with my great aunt's maxims in mind, I came across a salad so especially good that I think you will want to serve it soon.

"Salad Wagon" Attractive
The recipe was given to me by Mrs. M. L. McGucken of Columbus, Ohio, whose tearoom, the Maramor, is one of the places I always enjoy visiting. Mrs. McGucken has worked out the proportions in the recipe for the average homemaker's use.

Before I tell you how to make "grape cheese salad," I want to describe another of Mrs. McGucken's ideas that you might like to follow. Salads are served from a salad wagon in this tearoom. If your tea wagon can be furnished up a bit this would be a grand way to serve a small group of people on the porch. Use the lower shelf of the tea wagon for sandwiches, rolls and the beverages, and on the top arrange the bowls of salad and dressing.

Now for the salad recipe: Grape Cheese Salad
For cheese layer: One pound cream cheese, 1 tablespoon gela-

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Chilled apple sauce, cereal, cream, cucumber, toast, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON: Grape cheese salad, bread and butter sandwiches, hot chocolate, tea.
DINNER: Cream of celery soup, broiled ham and tomato sandwiches with Hollandaise sauce, cucumber salad, cherry upside-down cake, milk, coffee.

tin, 1-2 cup cold water, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 6 drops tabasco sauce, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, 1 cup whipped cream.

For grape layer: 11-2 table-spoons gelatin, 2 cups bottled grape juice, 1-2 cup sugar, 1-2 cup orange juice, 1 teaspoon lemon juice.

Place cream cheese in double boiler and heat until soft and creamy, stirring constantly. Combine gelatin and cold water and let stand five minutes. Add slowly to cheese, stirring well. Add salt, tabasco and lemon juice and blend. Fold in whipped cream lightly, but do not heat. Pour into an oblong quart mold and place in refrigerator to become firm and very cold.

For the grape layer, soak the gelatin in one-fourth of the grape juice for five minutes. Heat mixture over hot water, stirring constantly until gelatin is dissolved and mixture is smooth. Mix remaining grape juice, sugar, orange and lemon juice, and add the hot gelatin solution, stirring until the sugar dissolves. Let stand until cool and pour over the cheese layer when the latter has become firm. Return to refrigerator to chill and set. Unmold and cut in slices to serve.

This will serve eight or ten persons.
