DEMOCRATS GO TO SENATE FOR SESSION HEADS

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The New Deal will draw on its lieutenant in the senate to rule the Democratic National convention at Philadelphia which will renominate President Roosevelt.

Lesser members of the convention organization will not be definitely decided on until the convention meets June 23, but according to present plans two other senators will fill the all-important posts of rules and resolutions chairman.

Senator Robert F. Wagner, New York, liberal, friend of Alfred E. Smith as well as of Mr. Roosevelt, a legislator with a distinguished record as friend of labor is expected to head the resolutions committee which will have the important task of formulating the party's platform.

Senator Bennett Champ Clark, Missouri, one-time house parliamentarian and son of a former speaker, is slated for the rules chairmanship, a post that will carry the responsibility of deciding any disputes over the seating of delegates such as that likely to ensue in Minnesota, where two factions have named delegates.

Robinson Replaces Walsh. Robinson, senate majority leader, as permanent chairman will replace the late Senator Thomas J. Walsh, Montana. Walsh, after the election, was given the post of attorney general in the new cabinet, but died just before the inauguration.

Virtually all the important business of the Democratic convention will take place in night sessions. Judge John E. Mack of New York probably will renominate Mr. Roosevelt, and since there will be no protracted balloting between rival candidates as in past Democratic conventions, leaders are considering permitting up to 48 seconding speeches, one from each state.

Mr. Roosevelt and Vice President John Nance Garner will accept the renominations Saturday, June 27, in the Philadelphia Stadium.

Rehabilitation Supervisor Explains How Texas Crippled Children Aided

How crippled children receive hospitalization through co-operation of the state department of rehabilitation with the Texas Crippled Children's Society was explained this week at Eastland by B. E. McGlamery, supervisor of the northwest district of Texas.

The rehabilitation department, which receives funds from the state and national governments, until recently was primarily concerned in the physical restoration of children and their placement in positions. The crippled society's funds are obtained from memberships.

Through the crippled children's society, the rehabilitation department finds and places children under 21 in hospitals for treatment. The crippled children work is also aided in funds from the state and national governments.

McGlamery is supervisor for 73 counties in the rehabilitation work and has charge of 43 counties in the crippled children division. The supervisor stated this work is constantly expanding, citing the recent addition of three supervisors who will devote their time to crippled children work.

Types of cases which the department handles through 26 approved hospitals and 31 orthopedic and plastic surgeons are as follows: Infantile paralysis, club feet, hare-lips, cleft palates, bone diseases, old fractures, bad fresh burns, spinal curvatures, deformities of joints, bones and muscles, and after effects of meningitis.

McGlamery emphasized the aid is only offered children of families not able to pay for the treatment. Since Sept. 1, 1935, 1,100 children in Texas have received treatment. Ten children in this county have received aid since December, 1935.

J. J. Brown of Austin, state director of vocational rehabilitation, is also executive secretary of the Texas Crippled Children's Society. McGlamery is located in the courthouse at Eastland.

That reminds me... "I do order and declare that all persons held as slaves, within said designated States and parts of States, are and henceforth shall be free; and that the Executive Government of the United States, including the military and navy authorities thereof, will recognize and maintain the freedom of said persons. And I hereby enjoin upon the people so declared to be free to abstain from all violence; and I recommend to them in all cases, when allowed, they labor faithfully for reasonable wages."

Bank deposits will no doubt take a big jump when the next quarterly call comes sometime next month from the national comptroller of currency. Over a billion dollars turned loose overnight from the government in the hands of its people is bound to have a circulatory reaction.

MOTHER AND TWO CHILDREN ARE STRANGLER. PITTSBURG, Pa., June 19.—Strangulation caused the death of Eleanor Feely, 28, wife of a Pittsburgh University professor and their two children, Robert, 5, and Janice, 3, the autopsy revealed today.

Wounds about the temples of the three victims ostensibly inflicted by an ice pick found on the floor of their home near the bodies, were not enough to cause death, the report of the autopsy said.

A stab wound in Mrs. Feely's left breast just above the heart would not prove fatal, but might account for bloodstains on the ice pick, the doctors said.

Robert suffered a skull fracture, however, which might have been inflicted before the strangulation. He was clad in a play suit, where his sister wore pajamas, and might have been struck while awake to prevent an outcry.

COURT DENIES ADVANCEMENT OF BEER SUIT

The Eleventh Court of Civil Appeals overruled a motion for the advancement of a suit by which drys seek a court order restraining County Judge Clyde L. Garrett from hearing applications for permits to retail beer.

The court's ruling, in an opinion written by all justices, was based on the lack of statutory authorizing the court to advance the case.

The case, an appeal from 91st district court which dissolved a temporary order restraining Judge Garrett from issuing licenses, was filed after commissioners court declared resolutions favoring the sale of 14 per cent alcoholic beverages.

The opinion of the court was as follows: "On this the 19th day of June, A. D. 1936, came on to be heard the motion of appellants, Joe J. Mickle and others, to advance the date of submission of the above entitled and numbered cause and set same for submission on July 3, 1936, and the motion having carefully considered by this court, the same is overruled for the following reason:

"It appears from the motion and the record that the same is an appeal from a judgment refusing a permanent injunction after trial on the merits, and it is therefore not subject to advancement. If, however, the appeal is properly to be construed as one from the refusal of the district judge to grant a temporary injunction, or dissolving one, the allegations of the motion to advance clearly show that the subject matter of the appeal or question involved insofar as the temporary injunction feature is concerned has become moot. In either event, there is no statutory authority authorizing this court to advance the case over other causes filed prior thereto. The motion is overruled.

Marcia sat quietly while Phil read the message. The only friend she had at sea was being drawn gently but surely into the world on shore.

Marcia became aware of the plural pronoun when it was too late. The woman sat down in the next chair. "It's the last place anyone would have looked for you, Marcia Cunningham. But they might have known! Nobody believed you were in the conservatory with the pink eye!"

"Neither," he answered, and she saw that his voice and smile were sure and slow. "I happen to know Mrs. Jameson!"

There were acres and acres in which to stroll on the deck. They were squash courts and there was a swimming pool; there were lounges and salons, and the sun shone on bright blue water all the way.

She was dancing with Phil when he said, "Let's go on deck. I need to breathe. Tomorrow I'm going to see Camilla!"

Bette Davis, Academy award winner for 1935, above with George Brent (center) and Hobart Cavanaugh, tops even the triumphant performance that won her the highest tribute the motion picture industry could pay to an actress in the First National production, "The Golden Arrow," which comes to the Connellee Theatre midnight matinee Saturday night and Sunday only.

When Is A Smoking-Jacket Romantic?

For the answer to the question above this picture, one is referred to a certain scene in "The Ex-Mrs. Bradford," the RKO Radio picture in which Jean Arthur and William Powell are co-starred. For although this is, to be sure, a murder-mystery photodrama, in which William Powell again demonstrates his prowess as an amateur sleuth—it is, quite as happily, a merry, sparkling romance, in which an ex-wife proceeds to stalk the mate she has divorced, but still loves. And the smoking-jacket has a place in it!

SAN AUGUSTINE.—"Carrots which are cut in pieces lengthwise have a better flavor than those which are cut in rings," says Mrs. Fred Thompson of the Chapel Hill home demonstration club in San Augustine county.

She said, "In this way, less of the cut surface is exposed to the water and less of the food value and flavor is lost. Carrots should be cooked in a small amount of water in a covered vessel soon after being gathered so as to retain their flavor."

CORRIZO SPRINGS.—"There are some people who think that Sudan grass is only good for cow feed," commented Ben Wheeler of Carrizo Springs, "but I have found it to be exceptionally good as a green manure crop."

"Last fall, I plowed under a crop of Sudan and in November planted onions on the same piece of ground," he said.

As a result, 600 bushels of U. S. No. 1 onions to the acre were produced, according to A. L. Sebasta, Dimmit county agricultural agent.

EASTLAND.—Ben F. Wood, farmer in the Kokomo community in Eastland county, recently stated that terracing pays on his farm, according to a report of Hugh F. Barnhart, assistant county agricultural agent.

Wood said, "I had a 25-acre field which I terraced several years ago. I farmed this field for five or six years, and then decided that terracing was not doing my land any good, besides the trouble I came up against on the point rows in the field."

"I tore my terraces down, and started running my rows lengthwise of the field. After the first hard rain, I was fully convinced that my terraces had paid on my farm, for this field was washed in at least 15 or 20 small gullies, which increased in size before I could get my crop off and run terraces."

"Besides the washing of my land, I found that I had about a 25 per cent less corn yield that year."

"At the present time, I have all of my fields terraced with the exception of a 12-acre field, which I intend to terrace this fall."

Texas Oil Industry Loses Heavily On Drilling New Wells

By H. J. STRUTH
Petroleum Economist

Headlines in the daily newspapers make much of new oil strikes and so-called "Gushers," but seldom, if ever, does the drilling in of a dry hole make headlines in the news. This is natural, since human interest reacts more readily to the successful side of life. Yet, figures prepared by the Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association of Texas show that one-third of all the wells drilled in Texas result in failures.

The oil business is far from being all "milk and honey" for it is fact that last year the Texas oil industry spent $100,000,000 for drilling about 3,000 wells which failed to be productive of oil or gas. This is a lot of money and it naturally must come out of surplus funds of the oil companies. Still, when financial statements of the oil companies show substantial surpluses, there are individuals who immediately seize upon such information as a talking point in support of their contention that increased tax revenue may readily be obtained by further assessments upon the Texas oil industry. Such reasoning apparently omits consideration of the fact that the Texas oil industry already pays sixty cents of every dollar derived from taxation, and that twenty seven cents out of every dollar the oil industry spends for drilling is necessarily lost through the drilling of dry holes.

While there has been remarkable scientific progress in recent years in exploration methods of finding new sources of oil supply in Texas, the fact remains that the companies engaged in this extremely hazardous business, must of necessity maintain adequate reserve funds to provide for the contingency of dry holes. Even in the ordinary routine of oil field development, where every precaution is taken to reduce the dry hole hazard to the minimum, it is utterly impossible to avoid this costly toll. Thus, for every three "gushers" you read about, there is a fourth dry hole, costing just as much as a producing well, which you don't find in your newspaper headlines.

One out of every four dry, is the experience of drilling for oil and gas in Texas. In "Wildcat" developments, such as are pursued in the territory surrounding the famous East Texas field, nine out of every ten wells drilled are dry holes. In the prolific East Texas field, itself, however, only three wells in every hundred are dry holes. In North Texas, the oil industry brings in a dry hole for every producing well completed. In West Central Texas, the experience is fifty-four dry holes in every producing well completed. In Texas, one out of every five wells drilled is dry. In the Gulf Coast every third well drilled is a dry hole.

These are facts which the oil industry must face in its day to day operations. While every method known to science is employed, and no effort nor money is spared to obtain accurate information concerning sub-surface structures, the dry hole hazard continues to be one of the many burdensome tolls exacted from the oil companies. Exploration, by geological and geophysical methods, drilling for oil and gas and building a new pipe line are all risks which carry no guaranteed return on the heavy investments of capital involved. Costly exploration of leased land may not reveal an oil field; drilling results in a definite percentage of failures; building a pipe line to a new oil field hinges upon the productive life of its wells. Thus, it is evident that the oil companies which are building permanency in Texas must, of necessity, maintain adequate financial reserves in order to survive these and many other hazards of the oil business.

Foul Ball Nabbed In Legal Catch Is Still In Play

By Joe Hughes

Many softball fans, and players too, do not realize that when a foul hit ball has been legally caught before it touches the ground, the ball is still in play. Base runners may advance at their own risk. They need not wait until the fielder has gained full possession of the ball, but may advance the instant the ball touches the hands of the fielder.

The base runner is not required to hold his base while the ball is being juggled. The rule is stated as follows: Rule 27, section 8: The base runner is out if, when a fair or foul hit ball (other than a foul tip) is legally caught by a fielder, such ball is legally held by a fielder on the base occupied by the base runner when the ball is batted, or the base runner is touched with the ball in the hand of a fielder, before he retouches such base after such fair or foul hit ball is so caught; provided that the base runner shall not be out in such case, if, after the ball is legally caught, it is delivered to the bat by the pitcher before the fielder holds it on said base, or touches the base runner out with it; but if the base runner, in attempting to reach a base, detaches it from the fastenings before being put out, he shall be declared safe. A base runner who holds his base on a fly ball shall have the right to advance the moment the ball touches the hands of a fielder. (This is an appeal play and the umpire should not make any decision until his attention has been called to it and the play actually made at the base in question).

This rule should bring to the player's attention the opportunity of a fast double play starting from a foul fly.

Texas Centennial Year To Have A Round of Sports

DALLAS. "Texas" Centennial year sports calendar presents one of the longest and most varied programs in the 100-year history of the Lone Star state athletics.
The program includes a dozen or more rodeos, an egg-laying derby, bull fight, a 184-mile cowboy horse race, a tarpon rodeo, and scores of orthodox events—an inter-sectional football game, boxing tournaments, etc.
Rodeos, exemplifying the Texas of yesterday, will be given in almost every city in the Western part of the state. The chief wild-west show will be at Fort Worth and Dallas, but the annual cowmen's reunion at Stamford is noted far and wide for its authenticity. This year's Stamford rodeo July 4 will give visitors a chance to see real range-riding cowhands in action. Most other rodeos will employ professional performers.
First event on the Dallas program was an "egg-laying derby" began June 1 with 300 prize-winning hens from all parts of the United States entered. The hens will be confined for three months. A 184-mile horse race from Lampasas to Dallas featured the program June 6, date the central exposition commemorating 100 years of progress in Texas opened. Two hundred cowboys entire route.

An authentic reproduction of a Mexican bull fight will be given at Galveston, July 4. The only deviation from the original bull fights will be that the animals will not be killed. Texas law prohibits bull fights, and plans for a real match with Sidney Franklin of Brooklyn as matador were abandoned by Dallas promoters.

The tarpon rodeo, a fishing carnival, is an annual event at Port Aransas, Gulf of Mexico City.

Champions in a series of city tournaments will be presented Aug. 17-24 at Dallas when the Texas Amateur Athletic Federation holds its Golden Gloves boxing elimination. Boxing in Texas has been legal only since 1932. It was prohibited nearly two decades ago after Jack Johnson, Galvestonian, had given the state its first heavyweight championship.

Other events have combined to give Texas her greatest year in sports. The University of Texas' flying sprint relay team set new meet records in quarter and half-mile relays in their own relays at Austin, at the Kansas Relays and Penn Relays.

Southern Methodist University and Texas Christian found glory in football Jan. 1 in inter-sectional games against Stanford and Louisiana State. The Methodist lost their tilt at Pasadena, but the Christians nosed out L. S. U. in New Orleans.

Texas had its share of champions in other fields.

Ed White, University of Texas, won the national intercollegiate golf title last season and is on the current Walker Cup team. Wilbur Hess, Rice star, won the intercollegiate tennis singles championship. Wilmer Allison, Austin, Texas, was ranked No. 1 amateur tennis player of the nation again this year. He was unable to regain his form in time for the interzone matches with Australia.

Two Texans—White and Reynolds Smith, Dallas—are members of the American Walker Cup squad that will meet the English golf team at Clementon, N. J., in September. It is the first time in history for two Texans to play on the same Walker Cup team.
Texas' final candidate for sports glory during the Centennial year is Tom Beaupre, Dallas butcher boy, who is the present "white hope" of the Southwest in heavyweight mousing circles.

A machine gauges strength of the glare of the human eye, but it will probably snap under that of a man whose wife has just trumped his ace.

Brandy Auctioned To Fulfill Will

By United Press
ANGOLEME, France. — The first annual brandy auction for charity will be held when some of the fine old brandies from the famous cellars of the late Jean Fougerat will be sold to the highest bidder. This auction will be patterned after the annual sales at the Hospice de Beaune, free hospital established in Middle Ages by Burgundy and entirely supported by sales of wine made from its vineyards.

Two years ago Jean Fougerat, cognac magnate, died and his fortune of old brandies, charity, naming as administrator his native town of Angouleme. The charity bureau of this town now administrator of the Fougerat cellars as well as the vineyards which supply the grapes for the brandy.
Fougerat is buried in the churchyard and over his grave erected, according to his wishes, a stone monument in form of a cognac still. This monument, he explained before death, would remind posterity "not that one Jean Fougerat a great man, but that cognac grand drink."

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MARY E. DAGUE
NEA Service Staff Writer

THE sun may be scorching, the air sultry, but don't be deceived by the complaint that it's "too hot to eat." Hot weather months are the time when wise housewives plan most carefully the meals to set before their families.

The first rule is that caloric consumption should be low. The heat, that much-talked-of humidity, and the general tendency to avoid physical activity whenever possible make it unnecessary to provide a diet rich in heat-producing foods.

Eating to Keep Cool
But meals must be nourishing. If the family is to keep healthy and even-tempered during June, July and August, the foods served should be easily digested. The stomach is as sensitive to heat as the rest of the body and resents being overtaxed and overworked. Fresh fruits, vegetables in quantity, meat or a meat substitute once a day, and plenty of milk to drink will supply the elements of a well-balanced diet.

Don't depend on iced beverages to keep your temperature down. Sudden chilling of the stomach may create discomfort. If you must have iced drinks, sip them slowly. Eat frozen desserts the same way, for this will create more lasting coolness. Ices and sherbets are more cooling than ice cream, since they have a lower fat content and caloric count.

Avoid fried foods, rich cakes and desserts, hot breads, rich sauces and gravies. Eliminate these dishes altogether or serve them only in combination with other foods that do not have a heating effect on the body. All fats are heat producers, and some

Tomorrow's Menu

LUNCHEON: Cream of mushroom soup, croutons, lettuce sandwiches, filled cookies, fruit punch.
DINNER: Veal and ham pie, chard with lemon butter, cucumber salad, peach pudding, milk, coffee.

are difficult to digest as well. Liquids Are Important
See that the children drink plenty of milk, fruit juices and water. The body must have liquids, whether the weather is hot or cold, but heat causes more rapid evaporation from the surface of the body and a larger amount is required in warm weather.

When a luncheon is planned with salad or sandwiches as the chief dish, see that something hot is served also—soup, a soufflé or a hot drink.

The diet in summer should be well-balanced, just as at other times of the year. It should include proteins, carbohydrates and fats, but it is desirable to reduce the carbohydrates and fats to the minimum amount. Proteins are always needed to take care of wear and tear on the body. However, since protein foods increase energy production in the system, it is advisable to cut down on the amount of proteins, also.

The familiar phrase, "Cool as a cucumber," is more than a graphic description. Cucumbers, owing to their lack of calories, are utterly incapable of producing heat. Lettuce, endive and the other salad greens are all extremely low in calories.

England Takes Huxley to Task

By Clived Press
LONDON.—Prof. Julian Huxley, plain-spoken British scientist whose grandfather helped Darwin link man and monkey, is being lampooned because he dared to suggest that a dictator might be a godsend for England.

The 48-year-old professor, who announced a few years ago that the supermen of the future may become fathers by mail, made his suggestion before the National Institute of Industrial Psychology.

"A benevolent dictator—granting that a dictator can be benevolent—could with relatively small expense add perhaps two inches to the average stature of the population, six or eight pounds to the average weight and an enormous amount of disease resistance," he said.

He was arguing in support of his claim that Great Britain is "a nation of lop-sided scientists" and that scientific research is being directed toward war and destruction while sociological and psychological research is ignored.

His speech was barely reported in the press before the "voice of the people" columns were filled with angry replies. Editorial atacks upon the free-thinking professor followed, not only because of his reference to a dictator but because of what he said about Britain's educational system.

"Our system of education," he had remarked in the address, "is breeding a race of people to swallow facts, enjoy their prejudices and dislike the prejudices of others."

The London Evening News, referring to Huxley as a "dry-as-dust professor," retorted editorially that civilized man swallows facts because "if he tried to masticate a thousandth part of them he never would be able to get on with his business."

"It is intellectual arrogance for Professor Huxley to look down on people who swallow biological facts," the Evening News said, "when he himself swallows the assertion of his fishmonger that kippers are worth sixpence a pair, and about a million other such facts that he has not had time to investigate."

In his speech before the Psychology Institute Huxley said: "We pride ourselves on living in a scientific age yet we are miserably content to exist contentedly, enduring a situation of economic artificial shortage in the plentiful production.

"We are half scientific, extremely unscientific, of ignorance and prejudice. In an effort to show head is paid to opportunity improving mankind, headed to the British system milk is provided for and children in public schools."

"That is not done in the interests of man nearly so much as the is in the interest of the milk producer," he said. "It was done so the ing board could find a surplus milk."

BETTE DAVIS IN "GOLDEN ARROW" AT CONNELLEE
Bette Davis, with George Brent playing opposite her in the masculine lead, comes to the Connellee theatre Saturday night in the fast moving drama, "The Golden Arrow."

Miss Davis appears in a role quite different from those which won her the award of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences as the best film actress of 1935. In "The Golden Arrow" she gives a light comedy portrayal with a romantic twist, which involves also some dramatic moments.

Brent's role is also largely comedy, he being a shy young reporter, whose chief interest is a book he is writing but who finds time to fall in love with the blonde Bette after a series of misunderstandings and flirtations entanglements which nearly break the course of true love.

Other hilarious complications are caused by the attempt of a newly rich oil heiress to break up the love affair and steal her rival's lover after her retinue of foreign princes, nobles and other fortune seekers have deserted her for the lovely blonde, who also is presumed to be fabulously wealthy.

The picture moves in swift tempo to the hilarious and surprising climax in which the young blonde beauty proves not to be wealthy at all, but a simple American girl whose whole yearning is for a real romance and the love of the one man in the world to her.

The picture is set in the lavish background of luxurious yachts and hotels patronized by millionaires and the rollicking fun is carried on to the tune of popping champagne corks. Michael Arlen, the famous English dramatist, wrote the play.

In the cast besides Miss Davis and Brent are included Eugene Pallette, Dick Foran, Carol Hughes, Catherine Doucet, Craig Reynolds, Ivan Lebedeff, G. P. Huntley, Jr., Hobart Cavanaugh, Henry O'Neill and Eddie Acuff. Alfred E. Green directed.

WILLIAM POWELL IN BEST FORM IN RACING MYSTERY
Whether he's doctor, lawyer or merchant chief in his screen characterizations, William Powell turns naturally to the business of solving murder mysteries.

As Hollywood's number one gentleman sleuth, Powell has lifted the cinematic business of crime detection far above the "flatfoot" and police inspector plane. Starting from Philo Vance he has carried his polished sleuthing into numerous other professions.

Just now, he is playing a doctor in his RKO-Radio picture, "The Ex-Mrs. Bradford," co-star-
