CISCO, June 28.—The fall meeting of the Oil Belt Educational association will be held at Cisco, the birthplace of the organization five years ago, it was announced this week by W. A. Rose, Mineral Wells high school principal and association president, in a letter to Cisco Supt. R. N. Cluck.

An attendance of around 600 is usual at these fall sessions which are principally for school executives rather than for teachers generally. The spring meetings, of a more general nature, have drawn attendances as high as 4,000. However, some of the fall sessions have attracted more than 1,500 out of a total membership of around 8,000 teachers.

The session will occupy one day and night. During the day sectional meetings are held, with the main program reserved for the evening when a banquet is served. The program for the Cisco meeting is yet to be arranged. It will be held sometime in October, it is understood.

BAN ON GOLD CLAUSES SENT TO THE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, June 28.—An administration bill to put into effect President Roosevelt's request for a ban on further gold clause suits, was introduced in the house today by Chairman Henry Steagall of the house banking and currency committee.

The bill gives persons holding gold clause securities until Sept. 1, 1935, to exchange them for new ones without the gold payment provision.

The measure denies the right to sue for alleged damages due to dollar devaluation to holders of bonds, notes, certificates of indebtedness, treasury bills or any other form of government securities.

Elopers Failed In Connecticut

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Elopement in Connecticut—formerly from other states—was so commonplace that many justices of the peace earned a sizeable income each year in being called out of bed at all hours of the night to read the marriage service.

Several years ago the legislature passed a law requiring five days notice of intent to marry and the rush subsided, although for a good reason, the probate judge could waive the clause.

Now the legislature definitely has killed the elopement business by passing a eugenics law, compelling all couples to produce a certificate of good health when applying for a license.

"Hurry up" marriages consequently passed on to border line towns and many couples from Connecticut found it more convenient to take advantage of the more lenient laws in surrounding states.

Before the eugenics law went into effect, 600 Connecticut couples knocked on the door of Town Clerk F. C. Bain, of Millerton, N. Y. He reported 90 per cent of his business from this state and expects an increase now.

New York laws make it possible for the ceremony to be performed immediately after the license is issued. Parental consent is not required for girls 18 years or older.

Sinclair Men at Eastland Will Be Transferred Soon

Close of the production department of Sinclair Prairie company at Eastland is seen in the recent notification to transfer of R. M. Bass, district superintendent, to Troup and W. E. Storey, chief clerk, to Breckenridge.

Storey, who has been in Eastland since 1932 when he was transferred from Ranger, will continue in the same position at Breckenridge. Bass, who was transferred last fall from Troup, will continue in some department of the company in that town. Bass succeeded O. E. Randolph when the latter was sent to Kansas.

The production men now stationed in Eastland have surveillance over what is known as the West Central Texas district. It extends from Big Spring to Fort Worth and from Brownwood to Wichita Falls.

As far as is known, no others from the Eastland office of the company will be transferred. Two scouts make headquarters in the land department.

Storey, it is understood, will leave Eastland in one or two weeks.

DALLAS, June 28.—Police arrested a 35-year-old man today who gave his address as Socorro, New Mexico, and who, they said, resembled closely the man sought in connection with the disappearance of four Illinois tourists in New Mexico.

Lt. Douglas Walsh, head of the Dallas police identification bureau, said a thorough check of identification revealed damaging resemblance of the man to a suspect who left a trail of stolen and forged travelers checks to which the name of George Lorius had been forged.

Lorius and his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Heberer of East St. Louis, Ill., disappeared after they were last seen in Vaughn, N. M., May 22.

The man arrested is accused of attempting burglary of a store in Oak Cliff, Dallas residential district.

Hotels Uniting To Stop Frauds
 Major hotels, hotel associations and law enforcement agencies have been linked with a teletypewriter chain working 24 hours daily to flash alarms and warnings of fraud, theft and crime and full descriptions of persons who commit them.

The annual loss to the hotel industry through these crimes has been estimated at $11,000,000. To reduce this total, W. J. Gielen, president of the Hotel Men's Credit association of Chicago, promoted the teletypewriter system, enabling hotels to isolate and catch crooks.

Gielen enlisted hotels in New York, Denver, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Detroit, St. Louis, Chicago, and other cities to bear the cost. Additional outlets will be installed as soon as equipment and funds are available.

Credit information can be sent instantly over the country.

"Credit references can be verified almost instantly through the teletypewriter," Gielen said. "If we wish to check on a person's home town standing before giving him cash we can easily do so by a query on the teletypewriter to the member hotels in that city. This will eliminate many misunderstandings and time taken up checking by mail."

"The system will work both ways, in favor of the legitimate guest who wants a check cashed and who does not hold a credit card with the hotel at which he is staying, and against the fraud and confidence man, who has cost hotels millions of dollars."

Wooden Shoes Gain Much Popularity
 Beginning with five assisted by Van Tongeren now employ more than 100 men. The work is limited to wooden shoes. Some of every kind leave the factory daily for every city in United States. They range in ash trays to miniature wind. All are made of wood.

Van Tongeren views the success of his venture as not phenomenal.

Most of the output of his workshop, however, goes to tourists. A few persons of Dutch and Belgian descent still use the sabots to work around the barn or in other jobs.

Van Tongeren was a junior at Hope College when he entered the World War. In 1928 he opened his shoe factory on the second floor of his father's tobacco shop. Friends predicted the venture would fail.

TIRES SHOULD BE CHECKED BEFORE HOLIDAY DRIVING
 Automobiles, and especially tires, should be checked over before the car owner starts on an extended Fourth of July trip, in the opinion of C. T. Lucas, local dealer for the Goodyear Tire & Rubber company.

"If the car and tires haven't been checked over since the start of the summer driving season, the wise motorist will see that this important matter is attended to before starting on a holiday tour," Mr. Lucas declared. "Tires especially should be checked over, if they haven't had this attention since last summer. Smooth worn tires are likely to give the motorist trouble at a time when he is all set to enjoy himself."

"Heat is a natural enemy of tire life, and the hot roads of summer time will help cause an old tire to go bad about as quickly as any other means. Also, on a rainy day, when pavements are slippery, the danger of skids is increased immeasurably with old tires. New tires relieve the motorist from any worry or bother with tire trouble, and give him trouble free miles over the holidays."

"Goodyear G-3 tires, that are in the public eye a great deal just now as a result of the investigations on tire mileage conducted by Joseph A. Faurot, noted detective, have proved especially popular by reason of their long-wearing qualities. Persons coming in to have their tires checked up at our station have seen these tires and put them on in place of "smoothies" in order that their summer driving might be absolutely without worry," Mr. Lucas concluded.

HONEST AID!

IT WAS LINCOLN, wasn't it, who gave us that epigram about fooling some of the people all of the time and all of the people some of the time? Times have changed. Some people, today, can't be fooled at all.

They are the ones who buy thoughtfully and spend wisely. They are guided by the most up-to-the-minute news about products, prices and values. They read the advertisements in the daily paper.

Whether you're marketing for tonight's dinner, for a refrigerator or for a home—the most reliable guides are printed right here in this paper for you.

Make it a habit to shop at home, by newspaper, before you set out. It saves time . . . saves tiresome searching . . . and it saves real money.

min' Hole' are already in place and some improvements at the pier will be made.

"Toots" Gillian

"Toots" has promised to give some instruction in these two subjects to scouts and scouters attending camp, therefore scouts, bring your boats and canoes. Scoutmaster Hendrick and Assistant Scoutmaster Baker of San Saba, with the assistance of some scouts have built a dandy canoe.

Camp Fire Program
 Something different this year is being worked out in the way of a camp fire program. This will include a stunt night for each period. Scouts, bring your paraphernalia, so that you will be prepared to put on the best stunt.

Nature Study
 Scoutmaster O. E. Winebrenner has his nature study program worked out for camp, and it is a very interesting one.

PERSONAL LIBERTY AND LAW
 Temperance Lesson
 Romans 14:13-21; 1 Cor. 8:9-13

Paul wrote the letter to the Romans from Corinth during his three months' stay in Greece in the course of his third missionary tour A. D. 57. As he preached in the beautiful but wicked city he must have observed deeply into the lives of his converts.

He saw many go as a social courtesy and eat meat that had been offered to idols. They themselves said, "It is not evil to eat this meat because idols are only stone and wood," and took no thought for the new convert, who was still weak and abhorred the "tainted" meat.

He must have seen, studied and analyzed human nature until he knew that the demand for personal liberty was its chief attribute.

His picture of the convert swaggering off to the feast in the wicked heathen temples is also the picture of the disloyal Christian today who says, "I will have my personal liberty. I will answer to one but God," and fails to study God's word and falls into the clutches of the devil in ignorance.

But how different is the Christian who walks after God. Love for all humans is in his heart. His understanding is opened to the beauties of God's grace and the weakness of his companions whom he would help upward. His good deeds are not spoken evilly of but are "acceptable to God, and approved of men." He follows "after the things which make for peace, and things wherewith one may edify another" realizing that "For the Kingdom of God is not meat and drink; but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost."

The apostle exemplifies the solution of the disloyal Christian in 1 Cor. 8:9-13:

"But take heed by any means this liberty of yours becomes a stumbling block to the weak."

The indifferent Christian today says, "What difference does it make if there is a saloon on every corner? I can take a drink or leave it alone." Swaggering—he does not see that some day at the judgment seat he will have ruined and blasted lives perhaps with blood on his hands to answer for. He did not think of the weak or perhaps the reformed drunkard to whom one taste of the vile liquid would cause him to stumble and fall so hard that he would never arise in decency or right-mindedness again.

"For through thy knowledge he that is weak perisheth, the brother for whose sake Christ died."

And thus sinning against the brethren, and wounding their conscience when it is weak, ye sin against Christ."

Can any Christian claim God's protective power in his life and sin against Christ in his indifferent plunge after self in the search of personal liberty.

For there is no power but of God; and the powers that be are ordained of God (Rom. 13:1).

How puny self looks beside that statement. How protective it looks to the loyal Christian who looks to God and is "in subjection to the higher powers," and who "seek good, and not evil, that ye may live."

How pitiful it is to see a capable young man puffed up in his conceit of his knowledge that makes him successful, turn to strong drink. Perhaps he starts drinking as a social courtesy. He does not realize that it is a poison, running all the organs of the body and especially the brain. The word "intoxicate" comes from the Latin word "toxicum," which means poison.

When he deliberately takes this poison, his mind has forgotten that the body is the temple of the soul, and should be cared for religiously. "The Spartans denied intoxicating drinks to their sons, and compelled their slaves, the Helots, to get drunk in the presence of their young men, that they might witness the degradation of drunkenness. Their aim was to develop a superb physical manhood."

To betray a trust is an act of cowardice. Every Christian should remember first of all Christ, then the struggles of our forefathers who fought against hardship and danger untold to make this a land of the free and the home of the brave, with homes of comfort, peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost. Strong drink is the arch enemy of all that is good. It would destroy the home, church and schools, enslaving the men and women of the nation, baiting them with personal liberty.

The man who drinks may exercise his personal liberty but what of the wife and children who are denied the right of a decent home and perhaps the right to healthful food.

In the coming events of this summer all need to remember the Golden Text: It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor anything, whereby thy brother stumbleth, or is offended, or is made weak.—Romans 14:21.

Poem by Rev. C. H. Mead, D.D.:
 God give us men!—determined, brave, and strong—
 Who stand for right and dare to smite the wrong;
 Whole-hearted men—unselfish, fearless, bold—

Whose love of truth outweighs the greed for gold;
 Devoted men, who think and pray and plan
 How best to serve and help their fellow man.
 While selfishness misrules, and greed and lust
 Entice and drag their victim in the dust,
 Send up a prayer, again and yet again,
 With faith unflinching still—God give us men!"

Congress Enacts the Wagner Labor Measure

Senator Robert Wagner of New York is the unofficial leader of organized labor in the United States. He came to this land of the free an immigrant boy. He sold newspapers in the streets of New York.

As a little lad he did everything possible to turn an honest penny to his own advantage or profit. He attended night school. He studied law and he paid his own way with his own earnings. He became a state lawmaker where he represented the wage workers of his district. He won the majority of leadership of his party in the legislature of New York. He was sent to the state senate and there he became a state leader instead of a local advisor. He was nominated to the state supreme court bench and won recognition as a jurist of the highest caliber. He was elected to the United States senate and re-elected. He backed the Wagner victory. His measure was sent from the senate to the house where it received a huge majority and restored to labor the right of collective bargaining that supreme court swept away in the NRA decision. In other words, congress did not delegate its power to the President to frame a new act. Administration democrats declared the bill as "a new declaration of the rights of man." There was no record vote.

Many republican representatives gave the Wagner measure their support. In making the right to collective bargaining the law of the land, the Wagner measure sets up an independent board of three members to arbitrate disputes between employer and employe. In other words, the Wagner bill, in effect, is the new deal answer to the supreme court's duling in the famous chicken case which resulted in the complete smashup of the national recovery act and all its codes for the prevention of child labor in sweat shops and other protective acts or codes for the wage workers of the nation. Senator Wagner is sitting on the top of the world now but there is no telling where he will be after the campaign next year. As for organized labor and its sympathizers it backed the Wagner act to a successful finish and had the influence of the President ever behind the New York senator for his famous battling.

Dictator Mussolini May Defy All Nations

Dictator Mussolini, who speaks for all Italians in the homeland, at least, may tender his resignation to the League of Nations. He may attach himself to Japan and Germany "or lace the world alone." The pact between Great Britain and Germany infuriated the Italian dictator. He is making his plans to take over Abyssinia and he promises to go all the road with his army and navy and his air bombers. Italy has a vast surplus population. There are a few fertile spots left in Asia and Africa that haven't been taken over by the powerful nations of Europe and Mussolini has his eye on Abyssinia and its vast natural mineral and timber wealth. Why not? His European neighbors have huge colonies in Asia and Africa and the islands of the sea. Why should Great Britain object to the Mussolini plan? Why should France or Belgium object? Why should Holland and lastly why should Soviet Russia? The race appears to be to the powerful and for hundreds of years the great and grabbers of Europe have never hesitated to overawe weaker nations or people and strip them of their rights and territory.

Great Britain and Germany as Future Partners

Statesmen of Great Britain and Germany, speaking of two powerful nations represented by John Bull and Adolf Hitler, have signed a naval compact. A London cable carries the news that the statesmen of Great Britain "regard the program as being satisfactory to all parties concerned."

Well, Brother Jonathan was not consulted. He was not invited to sit in. Later along he may be given a bid. The fathers of America fought naval battles for the freedom of the sea. This was in the long ago. Regardless of this, Great Britain claims to be the mistress of all the seven seas and Brother Jonathan has taken it on the chin in all years known as the machine civilization. He demanded the freedom of the sea at the close of the World War.

He had furnished millions of soldiers to the Allies. He loaned billions of dollars to the allied governments. He mortgaged the American people for a hundred years to come to pay the loans. To date all loans have been repudiated. When Brother Jonathan sits in on invitation at another world conference he should carry the farewell address of George Washington, the first liberator, who advised his people to avoid entangling alliances with foreign nations and attend to their own business through the coming years. George Washington was a very wise man, a great soldier, a patriotic leader "and ever first in the hearts of his countrymen."

Man Dead 33 Years Traced For Kin

HOUSTON.—Postmaster J. S. Griffith recently traced a railroad conductor who had been dead for 33 years. Mrs. Mary Clark Older of Oak Park, Ill., said she last heard of her brother, George Clark, while he was a conductor on the Galveston, Houston & Henderson railroad more than 50 years ago. W. S. Hipp, Houston, who was acquainted with Clark, said he died in 1902 as a result of injuries received in the Galveston flood in 1900.

Summer Sweethearts

HERE TODAY... thing terrible. I'll never forget it. That's why I wish I could help now."

"It's all right," Dr. Kaye muttered. "It's my own fault. I was just a fool, I guess."

Much, much later, after he had gone, Zoe reviewed the scene, remembering the way he had looked—the hurt in his eyes. She had tucked the tell-tale document away in an envelope and had mailed it to Katharine at Silencia, Roanoke, New Mexico. With that out of her hands, she felt definitely safer.

It was a pity Dr. Kaye had had to learn the news thus. If it had not been for Gracia and her hateful shepherd dog it never would have happened. Gracia was definitely a trouble maker, but this time she had been an unwitting one.

Zoe went through the morning room. Gerda was picking up fallen flower petals; there were late chrysanthemums in all the vases. Gerda turned, holding something out to Zoe. "I guess the doctor dropped this."

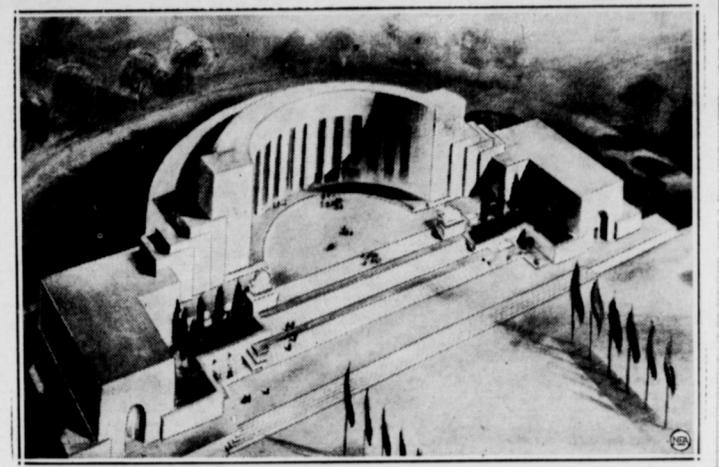

Zoe took it. John Kaye's pigskin glove. It was a special golfing glove, one of an old and beloved pair. She recognized it.

"Thanks, Gerda. I'll see he gets it."

She went upstairs. Her own beautiful room was in perfect order. Her dinner dress, an affair of delicate blue lace, was laid out on the bed. Her little buckled slippers and transparent stockings were there, too. Gerda flung herself down on the taffeta-covered chaise lounge and closed her eyes. She had John Kaye's glove in her hand. How he must have loved Kaye, to look so troubled when he learned of her deception!

Zoe shivered a little; there was a man any girl might love with an aching tenderness. She had all ways noticed him, growing up.

MAGNIFICENT $1,000,000 'HALL OF STATE' TO DOMINATE TEXAS CENTENNIAL EXPOSITION

This tentative sketch of the $1,000,000 hall of state which will dominate the entire Centennial Central Exposition at Dallas suggests the magnificence of the proposed structure. To be built of Texas buff stone, designed in semi-classic style influenced by Latin-American trends, the structure, 450 feet long and 250 feet deep, will feature a semi-circular Colonnade of Independence. The semi-circle bounded by the colonnade will be known as the court of states. At the left, a hall will exhibit Texas of 1836; on the right will be presented Texas of 1936. An underground amphitheater will seat 1000 people. Lights of changing color are to play upon the building at night. A 700-foot reflecting pool will center the esplanade. Varied exhibits and the federal building will flank the approach to the state building.

"OUTOUR WAY" - - - - - By Williams

Her tone was so dry that Mrs. Parker said, rather anxiously, "You don't like him, darling? Is that it?"

Zoe hastened to deny this. "Oh, I think he's an admirable person—but hardly in my age and weight class, do you think?"

"Darling, don't be flippant! And do promise to be courteous to him when we meet."

"I can promise that, well enough," Zoe said. "Dearest Mums, don't worry, I'll be lovely to him. Although I don't suppose we'll see him much. That's the way apartment house life is; you never see your next-door neighbor."

But in her heart she was hoping she was wrong.

John Kaye went back to the Strykhurst house with a heavy heart. That Katharine should be actually married to another man was a stunning blow. But that she hadn't confided the news to him was more crushing still.

Poor child—she had few people to confide in, the young physician mused, watching Bertine preside at her dinner table later. Bertine, massaged, corseted, groomed to the last inch of her healthy, middle-aged body, beamed at him, little suspecting the thoughts her young kinsman was directing at her.

"Gracia is coming over for bridge later, John. Can we count on your support?"

He answered as graciously as he could. His thoughts were far away. "I'll be glad to, although I may have a call from town. Miss Mearsham telephoned he just before dinner. She's to call later. Something about a consultation at the Medical Centre."

Bertine pouted. "Oh, you doctors! Always on the wing. I hope it doesn't go through. Gracia will be so disappointed. You knew her engagement to Captain Byrne was off, didn't you? Gracia decided they just weren't meant for each other."

John Kaye scarcely knew what she ate. The soufflé on his plate was delicious. He scarcely touched it. His office nurse telephoned just as coffee was being served in the drawing room, and as Gracia McIlvaine bustled in.

"Why, Dr. John, we meet again! Wasn't that dog fight too awful?"

That the woman, thought the man resentfully, making his excuses and plunging out to the telephone.

Miss Mearsham was properly apologetic. The doctor needn't come in tonight, after all. Dr. Abbott said tomorrow morning would do just as well.

John Kaye came back to the drawing room and lied manfully. He had to rush, he said. He would be back as quickly as he could. Perhaps they would not have finished the rubber.

Regretfully Gracia watched him go. John could hear Victor Strykhurst telephoning Mrs. Willetts, asking if Lucy wanted to make a fourth. He felt guilty, but escape was too tempting.

Driving past the Parker's gateway, he felt an unaccountable impulse to see Zoe again. Her warm and impulsive sympathy had been very sweet that afternoon. Perhaps he could talk to her about Katharine.

The girl who came toward him was fragrant in delicate blue lace. Her brown curls rioted about her small head. Her eyes were fringed with dark lashes.

"Why, Zoe's a beauty," thought John Kaye, surprised that he had not noticed it before. He had always counted her a mere child, frivolous and amusing. Today she had shown a sweeter, deeper, more womanly side. Some ancient scales seemed to have fallen from his eyes.

For a moment they stood, regarding each other. "I thought I dropped a glove here today..."

Zoe shook her head. "Don't believe so. Gerda would have given it to me, if you had."

That glove was in her childish treasure box, along with other hoarded mementoes.

"Some day, perhaps," thought the girl with sudden prescience, "I shall tell him about it."

"May I stay long enough to smoke a cigaret?" the man asked, glancing from the book she held to the glowing grate fire.

Zoe's heart cried, "Stay a long time, my darling."

But she was all demureness as she answered him.

Invisible Eye is Gold Brick Guard

By United Press

STOCKHOLM—A brick of pure gold from the Swedish Boliden gold mines, guarded by an invisible photo-electric eye, was one of the attractions of the Water Power Exposition in Stockholm, celebrating the 25th anniversary of the Swedish Water Power association.

The brick is valued at 50,000 kronor, ($22,690).

By means of the photo-cell arrangement, invisible electric rays guarded the treasure, so that if any one put a hand too close, alarm bells were set ringing.
