If it is accepted, the baby is considered to have a mental age of six months.

French Strike Action Is A Lesson To Us

The wrestling match of workers and employers in France is casting a long black shadow squarely across our own scene. What has been happening over there is about as direct an object lesson for our own instruction as could well be devised.

These French strikes were political rather than industrial; that is, they sought primarily to put the heat on government rather than on capitalism.

Like all political strikes which attain any size, they headed in the general direction of revolution; only the fact that the new government of Leon Blum moved quickly to give the workers the legislative program they wanted headed off some extremely serious trouble.

So the government is putting through a program establishing the 40-hour week in industry, collective bargaining, vacations with pay, reform of the Bank of France, and nationalization of munitions industries.

Now there is no remotest sign that American labor has any notion of following the course of French labor. But we can learn something by studying the French situation, just the same.

Conservative and radical alike would probably agree that the principal problem facing any industrial society today is that of working out stable and orderly relations between capital and labor.

Russia, Italy, and Germany can testify that failure to solve this problem leads to the most disastrous kind of trouble. The great democracies of the western world must find the answer to this problem if they are to endure.

Suppose, now, that the laws of France had been such that the French government had no power to act in the recent crisis.

Suppose that with these nation-wide strikes at their height, Premier Blum had been obliged to confess: "The government is powerless. There are abuses that need remedying, and you cannot remedy them unaided; but we cannot help you. Our hands are tied. You must work out your own salvation."

Can anyone doubt that the French republic itself would have been in danger?

If you insist that the whole problem of employer-employee relations belongs in a no-man's land which no government can enter, you are paving the way for infinite trouble, if and when those relations get strained beyond the point at which the two sides are willing and able to work out a peaceful adjustment.

There is room, of course for wide difference of opinion as to the precise spot where the power to handle such troubles should be located. It may belong in the state capitals; it may belong in Washington.

But what has happened in France shows pretty clearly that if that power is not lodged somewhere, an industrial society has no safety valve.

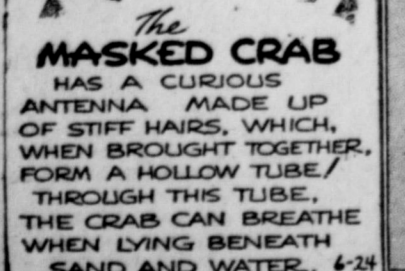

Historian reveals that a son of Eric the Red was one of the first men to reach this continent, but there seems to be little that Representative Hamilton Fish can do about it now.

These birds are seed eaters, and of great value to farmers of many countries. All members of the finch family have twelve feathers in their tails.

VICTOR HUGO'S IN LOS ANGELES. The world of fashion calls Victor Hugo's charming Garden Room "Paris in Los Angeles"! And, as the diners pause to enjoy their Camels, Hugo says: "Our guests know fine tobacco. They have made Camels the outstanding favorite here."

ON THE RYDER CUP TEAM. Henry Picard (right) is rated the best golfer at full iron shots. "I know that 'Camels set you right!'" he says. "Smoking Camels aids my digestion. And Camels never get on my nerves."

"YOU KNOW WHAT nervousness and eating fast can do to digestion," says Claire Huntington, public stenographer. "I find that smoking Camels makes food taste better and helps digestion."

During and after meals, Camels bring a sense of well-being and good feeling. That's why people say: "—for Digestion's sake... smoke Camels"

Camels stimulate digestion in a pleasant, natural way... increase alkalinity. The human digestion responds unfavorably to nervousness and strain. It is definitely encouraged by smoking Camels. Scientific studies show clearly the manner in which Camels aid digestion. Using sensitive apparatus, it is possible to measure accurately the increase in digestive fluids—alkaline digestive fluids—that follows the enjoyment of Camel's costlier tobaccos. For a cheery "lift" and for digestion's sake, enjoy Camels. They never get on your nerves. They are gentle on your throat. You'll like the firmness of Camels too—no loose shreds annoy you.

GOLD-CUP WINNER! George Reis won the trophy three times! "I'm a Camel smoker," says this outstanding speed-boat driver. "I eat heartily, smoke Camels, and enjoy that feeling of well-being that goes with good digestion. Camels set me right!"

MRS. WM. I. HOLLINGSWORTH, JR., popular Californian, well-known in New York and London society, says: "Camels are so mild. They please my taste and aid digestion."

COSTLIER TOBACCOS! Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand.

A Friend Passes Away
In the passing of Mrs. Thomas Butler at the family residence of her son, Samuel Butler, on Saturday afternoon at almost half past four, Eastland friends have lost a fine and wonderful woman, broad in her outlook, Christian in her attitude, and a companion in the true sense.

She was one of those women who, despite her 80-odd years, was young in outlook, spirit and contact.

Perhaps there was no woman who ever lived in this city, who, approximating her age, had such a large circle of friends among young women, and even younger circles among the girls and boys.

Actively engaged in looking after the household of her son and mothering her two grandchildren, Miss Helen Butler and Samuel Butler Jr., brought her into close relationship with youthful interests, which she not only enjoyed, but they enjoyed with her.

A fine woman, "nobly planned," and who, despite her eight weeks of illness remained patient and uncomplaining in her brave but losing fight.

This sincere and simple tribute is paid her by one, who has "broken her bread and eaten her salt."—(Elvia H. Jackson.)

Baptist Church Service Holds Special Significance
Rev. Fred C. Eastham, pastor of First Baptist Church, conducted a fine observance of Father's Day at the 11 o'clock morning service, held this Sunday in honor of the members of the Sub Deb Club and their fathers.

The church was handsomely decorated with two large floor baskets filled with galdoli and daisies that stood either side of the altar.

Miss Roberta Kinnaird was presented in a special number, vocal solo, "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," with Mrs. D. L. Kinnaird at piano.

The theme of Rev. Eastham's sermon, that honored fathers, presented "The Real Father Must Know the Word of God."

Sub Deb members and their fathers present, named Miss Edith Rosenquest and N. N. Rosenquest; Miss Frances Lane and W. I. Lane; Miss Olivette Killough and I. J. Killough; Miss Ouida Sanderson and Ed Sanderson; Miss Gladys Davis and J. S. Davis; Miss Katherine Utz and George Utz;

Miss Doris Lawrence and her uncle, Harry Lawrence; Miss Katherine Garrett and father, Judge Clyde L. Garrett.

Other members present, whose fathers were out of town, Misses Farline Pitzer, Ina Ruth Hale, Maxine Coleman, and the club's sponsor, Miss Ila Mae Coleman.

Hearts turned to the absent member, the president of the Sub Deb Club, Miss Helen Butler, who was on the sad mission of accompanying her father, Samuel Butler, to Westchester, Pa., the cortege in charge of the body of her late grandmother, Mrs. Thomas Butler.

Former Eastland Family Has News of Interest
Eastland remembers well Rev. and Mrs. Roy A. Langston, now of Fort Worth, who several years ago were located in Eastland, when Rev. Langston was pastor of Methodist Church, with services at that time held in the building formerly known as the Coca-Cola building.

Since then, his daughter, Miss Alene, has grown into a most charming young woman, who has been teaching in the Hubbard elementary school in Fort Worth.

She holds a bachelor of music degree from Texas Wesleyan College.

Miss Langston was married Sunday to Dr. Ernest Elworth Lowery of Dallas.

The bride's brother, Hal Langston, gave her in marriage, which was solemnized by her father, Rev. Langston.

After the ceremony at 6:30 a. m., a wedding breakfast for members of the party and their families, followed at the home of her parents.

The bridegroom, who has one more year in Baylor Medical School, is a son of Dr. and Mrs. Lowery of Gatesville, who attended the wedding.

To Honor Bride-to-Be
Mrs. E. R. Townsend, cousin of Miss Elizabeth Day and Mrs. Milton Lawrence, her aunt, will honor Miss Day with a pre-nuptial breakfast Tuesday morning at 9:30 at the home of Mrs. Townsend.

Miss Day will be married to Charles Terrell Dean of Ranger, next Thursday night, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Day.

Father's Day Honored in Eastland
The Mens 9:49 classroom of the Eastland Methodist Church held an audience of 120 people, numbering men and women, present for the Fathers' Day program, sponsored by the Martha Dorcas Class of the Sunday school of the church.

The classroom was beautifully and appropriately decorated for the occasion, and the program was presided over by Mrs. W. A. Hart.

The 9:49 Class was the guest of the sponsoring class on this occasion.

Ensemble singing, that opened the service, was led by W. E. Trimble, president of the 9:49 Class.

Lorene Stahr gave a clever reading, "Dad," and "The Vacation."

There Are Sails And Sales!

A friend of ours is the wife of a seafaring man. She knows what "charting a course" means. She believes in it.

Her charts are the advertising pages of this paper. Before she starts a shopping trip, she plots her course. Here's a bargain in canned goods. There's a good buy in kitchen utensils. Here's a sale of shoes. Thus the fog of haphazard shopping lifts, and the course is clear. Time is saved. Money is saved.

"Certainly," she tells us, "I would no sooner start on a shopping tour without having read the advertisements than my husband would try to navigate without his charts and compass."

Even if you have never set foot aboard a ship, you can chart your shopping course. Read the advertisements on these pages every day. Follow them as a mariner follows the weather report and see how much simpler and easier shopping becomes. Remember, an advertised product is a reliable product—it has to be!
