EASTLAND, TEXAS, SUNDAY MORNING, JULY 5, 1936

PRICE TWO CENTS

No. 210

That reminds me...

Eastland was just about as lively all day Saturday as if we were having a celebration all of our own. Yet it was just the usual normal routine day of business. To make it look like real patriotism the fire boys did a good job decorating the business houses and the main streets with flags and bunting. Only the bank and the cleaning shops observed the day from a closing angle. As this was written no fatalities to Eastland folks had been recorded, and here hoping that none will be by Sunday morning or any other day.

Keeping up with progress and to make things fit exactly with his fast growing business Frank Roy, owner and operator of the Eastland Steam Laundry and one of the best in this section, has added a complete water softening equipment to his plant. This newest modern addition keeps all the water that washes the clothes of folks in this community rain water soft. This assures whiter and cleaner clothes and saves them from any injury. Frank states that any woman who would like to have real soft water to wash their hair can bring their bucket or bottle and he will gladly give them all they want without charge.

Recently a new press was also added. Frank started his laundry on the proverbial shoe string. His fine work and strict attention to business has gradually increased to such an extent that where at first it was up to Frank and his good wife to get out the day's wash, eight people are now steadily employed every day in this one of Eastland's best industries. For several years Eastland was without a laundry just as they were without a bank, but Frank by hard work and faith in the community has answered the question of a long needed industry.

The Eastland National Bank shows a healthy gain in a called statement as made by the National Comptroller of Currency at the close of business June 30, 1935. The progress of the Eastland National Bank has been remarkable and beyond the expectations of the most critical. This reflects upon the able management of the bank by its directors and employees to the advantage of all concerned and shows conclusively that a bank at Eastland would be supported from every angle.

Father of Eastland Woman Dies Friday

Word was received in Eastland Saturday morning of the death of Will H. Akers of Plainview, father of Mrs. Joe Kraemer of Eastland, which occurred at 4:30 o'clock Friday afternoon.

CHAIN STORES WIN DECISION ON TAXATION

DALLAS, July 4.—Chain stores of Texas were victors today in the first round of their fight with the State of Texas over its chain store tax.

A decision last night by District Judge Royall R. Watkins, granting a permanent injunction against collection of the tax, was expected to mean an annual saving of $1,000,000 to the chain stores.

The chains attacked the law on grounds it was discriminatory and was enacted for the purpose of putting chain stores out of business, rather than to obtain revenue for the state.

Judge Watkins' decision was expected to be appealed, with ultimate submission to the supreme court of the United States, if necessary.

Helen Jacobs Wins After Eight Years

WIMBLETON, Eng., July 4.—Helen Jacobs of California successfully climaxed eight long years of trying today, when she defeated Mrs. Hilda Sperling of Denmark to win the all-English women's tennis singles championship. The victory, achieved before a capacity crowd of 20,000, established the stock California girl at the No. 1 woman player of the world, for she already holds the American singles championship.

Hint Aide Will Succeed Farley

The H. in the name of State Comptroller George H. Hartfield. The state commissioner of agriculture signs his name "J. E." The initials stand for James Eric. The full name of the state land commissioner is James Hemphill Walker.

In the governor's office are two secretaries with names spelled differently. One is Edward Aubrey Clark and the other George Mathew Clarke. A third secretary is Patrick Davus Moreland. He is a Methodist.

Head of the state banking department has an initial and a name that are the same. He is Zeta Gossett. The state auditor is Cernel Benson Sheffield. State Treasurer Lockhart's name is Charley, not Charles. His middle name is Robert.

Richard Green Waters, Raymond Snead Mauk and R. L. Daniel are the state insurance commissioners. Naturally, the K. L. is for Robert Lee.

Chairman Harry Hines of the state highway commission and member John Wood both are with-out middle names or initials while the third member has two initials and no name, so far as department employees know. He signs: "D. K. Martin." Sometimes he is called Dock.

ENDS IDENTITY OF NAMES TOLEDO

TOLEDO, Ohio, July 4.—For four years teachers at DeVilbiss High school confused Margaret Ramsey, a student, with Margaret Ramsey, another student. To avoid a mix-up of diplomas at commencement, one Margaret added the initial E. to her name.

Faces Difficult Diplomatic Task

One of the most delicate diplomatic assignments in recent U. S. history has been given to William Phillips, above, under-secretary of state. He will go to Rome as American ambassador to seek solution of the problem raised by Italy's conquest of Ethiopia as it affects future U. S. diplomatic relations with the seized country. Recent U. S. policy has been to refuse to recognize territorial gains made by force.

Full Names of State Officers Are Seldom Known

AUSTIN, July 4.—A quiet-spoken man inquired vainly at the state capitol for Mallory Blair, until some one recalled that Judge M. H. Blair of the third court of civil appeals might be named Mallory. He is.

Christening names of many state officials seldom are heard by the people. Titles, nick-names, or shortening of the names obscure the full name. These are peculiarities about some of them.

The V in Gov. James V. Allred's name is only an initial without representing any name. Technically, it should appear with a period. Some of the governor's early associates recall that he frequently was called Vee.

State School Supt. Littleton A. Woods is another whose middle initial stands for nothing. Attorney General William McCraw has neither middle name nor initial and likes to be called "Bill."

Chief Justice of the State Supreme Court is Calvin Maples Cureton—his associate justices, Richard Critz and John H. Sharp.

The presiding judge of the Court of Criminal Appeals, the supreme court for criminal appeals, is Wright Chalfont Morrow. Associate Justices are Offa Shivers Lattimore and Frank Lee Hawkins.

It's Ernest Othmer Thompson, chairman of the state railroad commission with Charles Vernon Terrell and Lon Abner Smith as members. The Lon is an apparent abbreviation from Alonzo—the name of Commissioner Smith's father.

Board of control members are Chairman Claud Duval Teer, John Forsyth Wallace and Henry Conrad Myer.

The H. in the name of State Comptroller George H. Hartfield. The state commissioner of agriculture signs his name "J. E." The initials stand for James Eric. The full name of the state land commissioner is James Hemphill Walker.

In the governor's office are two secretaries with names spelled differently. One is Edward Aubrey Clark and the other George Mathew Clarke. A third secretary is Patrick Davus Moreland. He is a Methodist.

ITALY PLANS BUILDING BIG AIR FORCES

ROME, July 4.—The cabinet at a meeting today, presided over by Premier Mussolini, approved a decree to increase the size of the formidable air force.

The expense of the increase was not announced, but it was reported building of about 1,000 new planes was planned.

The cabinet also approved a bill for regulation of economic activities in the Ethiopian territory annexed by Italy, including provisions that all private endeavors be disciplined and controlled by the state.

Councils for agriculture, industry, trade and transportation were set up under the ministry of colonies. These, it was announced, "will be considered the fundamental organ for approval of any private initiative in East Africa."

RECOGNITION OF ETHIOPIA IS DENIED

GENEVA, July 4.—The League of Nations steering committee met today to draw up a three-point resolution ending the Italian-Ethiopian dispute, so far as the league is concerned, establishing a policy of non-recognition of territory obtained by aggression, and setting forth principles for the reformation of the league.

The assembly recessed at noon, but immediately recessed until 6 p. m. to give delegations more time to consider the results of the steering committee's labors.

The committee of 52, drawing up the formula for the suspension of sanctions against Italy in such a way as to save as much of the league's face as possible, postponed the scheduled afternoon meeting indefinitely. It was expected to meet Monday.

Byrd Crew Gets Heroes' Medals

Three members of Admiral Richard E. Byrd's Antarctic Expedition, now appearing in the Admirals' Little America exhibit on the Midway of the Texas Centennial Exposition in Dallas, were notified this week they have been awarded Congressional Medals for their work in the polar expedition. They are, left to right, E. J. Dennis, 30, of Washington, D. C.; Joe Hill, 22, of Canyon, Texas, and T. G. Dustin, of Morrisville, Vermont. The fourth man in the picture is Major George Black, 40, of Dallas, already honored with a similar award.

McDonald Charges Half-Million Lost in Sabine River Bed Oil Leases at Houston

HOUSTON, July 4.—The State public school fund has lost nearly $500,000 already and is still losing $250,000 annually on Sabine river bed oil leases, yet the state land commissioner will not exercise the power which he possesses to stop this vast loss, declared W. H. (Bill) McDonald of Eastland county, candidate for state land commissioner here Saturday.

"Under the original contract, the school fund was to receive three-eighths of all the oil and, in addition, was to be paid 1-16th of the oil until $5,125 per well had been paid," McDonald said. "But a year later, the contract was modified so that the schools would get only one-fourth of the oil instead of three-eighths, and the $5,125 per well was to be paid with 1-64th of the oil instead of 1-16th—thus making the state wait four times as long for part of its money and running the risk that the wells would never pay out because they might play out first."

"Even in the new agreement, however, the land commissioner

Ginners to Get Extra Pay For Work Last Year

The county agent's office has requested ginners call at Eastland to secure application forms and instructions for compensation for additional expenses they incurred last year in connection with the operation of a gin under the Bankhead law.

The office stated the ginners will receive 25 cents per square bale provided the forms are made out and turned in immediately.

Judges of Higher Courts Overlook Contempt at Times

AUSTIN.—Dignified judges of the state's final courts sometimes overlook breaches about which lower courts might be severe, too such incidents occurred last week.

An application for rehearing of a case before the Court of Criminal appeals said: "to say he (a witness) is not an accomplice would be a reflection upon the intelligence of a jacksaw law student on the university campus."

Judge O. S. Lattimore to whom the motion came, granted the rehearing, held that the witness was not shown to be an accomplice but reversed the conviction other grounds.

"The language is plainly contemptuous," Judge Lattimore wrote, but he did not strike it from the record because "the party who filed same is of necessity either youthful or inexperienced, or else ignorant of the language in which such a motion should be couched, and we would not be inclined to punish appellant for the fault of another by depriving him of whatever benefit may arise from his request for rehearing."

In the supreme court a white haired lady litigant who had come to the court room to hear the ruling in a case in which she was interested, rose and started before the bench as though to protest, when the decision adverse to her was announced.

Ballot George Johnson interposed and bowed her courteously to a seat, while the judges ignored the incident.

Ten Killed In Houston Wrecks

By noon, the city's Fourth of July auto toll was the highest in history.

Four automobile crashes brought death to four white men, a woman and five negroes.

Engineer Students From County Rated High at University

Three Eastland county students enrolled in the University of Texas at Austin were on the honor roll of the college of engineering for the second semester of the recent long session.

W. M. Mullings of Eastland, who was recently graduated, was among the best 5 per cent group.

M. C. Coleman of Eastland and E. F. Patterson of Rising Star were among the best 10 per cent.

Students Vote No On Whiskey, They Preferred Spinach

EUGENE, Ore. — Spinach is preferred to beer, gin and whisky by 440 University of Oregon students. The three intoxicating beverages ranked third, fourth and fifth in a list of most disliked foods and drinks in a survey conducted by Dr. Calvin S. Hall, professor of psychology. Spinach did not place in the first 10 dislikes, and only 8 per cent recorded a dislike for it.

Buttermilk ranked as the most hated of 150 foods listed in the questionnaire, with half of the students checking it. Kidney ranking a close second. Calves' liver followed the beer-gin-whisky group in sixth and seventh place. Parsnips, hominy, and tongue completed the first 10 of the students' dietary "black list."

Ice cream, beefsteak and chocolate, near-unanimous favorites, were disliked by only two-tenths of one per cent of the group.

Helen Hayes Wins Balm Suit

Ex-wife and wife of Playwright Charles MacArthur warring in a Chicago court in the suit of Carol Frink, right, against Helen Hayes, stage star, left, in which Miss Frink, newspaper movie critic, asked $100,000 balm, charging "pirating" of her ex-husband's love by the actress. MacArthur and Miss Frink were fellow newspaper employees when they married. They were divorced in 1926 and MacArthur married Miss Hayes in 1928. The case was dismissed Friday afternoon.

FLOOD WATERS OF SOUTH TEXAS ARE RECEEDING

Muddy waters which established a new flood record at Victoria late Friday fell slowly Saturday as the Guadalupe river crest that took 28 lives and did millions in damage in crops, homes, highways, and railroads, moved to the Gulf of Mexico.

The Guadalupe rose to 31.4 feet at Victoria Friday afternoon, smashing all previous records. The stream was falling several inches an hour Saturday.

At Cuero, 30 miles up the Guadalupe, the river fell from 43 feet, two inches Wednesday night, to less than 35 feet Saturday.

The Victoria Red Cross had about 300 persons driven from their homes by high waters.

Highway and railway traffic through Victoria, east and west, was resumed.

Complete re-opening of roads from Cuero probably will take a week. Several small bridges have been washed out and water has ruined the highways in several places.

About 50 city blocks were inundated at Victoria. Rescue workers were dredging for the body of the flood's twenty-eighth victim, Jack Munford, negro tenant farmer, whose house was carried away Friday.

DROUGHT AID BEING RUSHED AT WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, July 4.—Government officials rushed plans for programs to relieve drought-stricken farmers today as scattered rains partially relieved conditions in eastern and southern portions of the farm belt.

Latest concrete relief steps were establishment of the federal livestock feed agency, to act as a clearing house for information concerning feed supplies and to inform cattle raisers where supplies are available.

In the Northwest, grain statistical experts predicted the spring wheat crop would be shortened by at least 100,000,000 bushels because of drought and insect damage.

Farmers in the Ohio valley and through the cotton belt took heart when showers fell over most of the area.

The rain was not sufficient to end the drought but nevertheless gave life and stamina to millions of acres of budding crops, which had been near the line of complete failure.

JEFFERSONIAN SPIRIT URGED BY ROOSEVELT

By United Press
MONTICELLO, Va., July 4.—President Roosevelt called upon the nation today at the home of Thomas Jefferson to "re-light that sacred fire of freedom" which the author of the Declaration of Independence kindled.

Speaking to several thousand persons gathered on the lawn of Jefferson's Monticello home and to a national radio audience, Mr. Roosevelt shied away from politics and confined his Fourth of July remarks mainly to a eulogy to the "great commoner's" abilities.

He pointed the form of government established as the system under which America has lived and grown and appealed for continuation of the Jeffersonian spirit as a necessity in a modern democracy.

"Democracy needs now, as it found then, men developed to the limit of their capacity, through education, for ultimate responsibility," he said. "Emergencies and decisions in our individual and community and national lives are the stuff out of which national character is made."

The president, accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, Postmaster General James Farley, Secretary Marvin McIntyre and others, motored to nearby Monticello from the Farmington Country Club at Charlottesville, where they spent the night. He was introduced to his audience by Senator Carter Glass of Virginia.

In opening his address, the president remarked that "it was symbolic that Thomas Jefferson should live on this mountain top. On a mountain top all paths unite, and Jefferson was a meeting point of all the vital forces of his day."

Recalling the greatness of the patriot of 1776 he observed that the source of their greatness was the stirring of a new sense of freedom.

"They were the first group of self government and freedom of conscience. They had broken away from a system of peasantry, from indentured servitude," he said. "They could build for themselves a new economic independence. There was not the gods of things as they were, but the gods of things as they ought to be. They used new means and new models to build new structures."

From this point the president traced the various qualities of Jefferson and then summed him up in these words:

"He was a great gentleman. He was a great commoner. The two are not incompatible."

LOUISIANA OIL TAX REPEAL IS APPROVED

BATON ROUGE, La., July 4.—The Louisiana senate today repealed Huey Long's five-cent-a-barrel oil refining tax, in an explosive Fourth of July session, capped by the arrest of the recalcitrant state senator and former governor, James A. Noe.

The prohibitive oil tax was passed under Long's dictatorship as a club to be held over the Standard Oil Company. It had never been collected.

Noe appeared on the floor of the senate and demanded a one-day vacation. He charged he had been arrested by five men and dragged to the senate.

The balloon was competing in the national balloon races and took off from Denver at 9:45 o'clock last night.

Captain McCormick reported the balloon was caught in a low-pressure area, and in an attempt to land the craft caught in a tree, ripping a large hole in it. The occupants were able to climb to safety.

HOUSE OF SHADOWS

by Ida R. Gleason
© 1936 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
CLAIRE FOSDICK sets out to drive to the lonely mountain home left her by her eccentric uncle, LYMAN FOSDICK. Claire is trying to decide whether to marry NICK BAUM, to whom she owes money. She also hopes to find a valuable and mysterious jewel owned by her uncle and believed to be hidden in the house.

Her car is wrecked by a log across the road. PAT MAGAN, an old friend, and BOB STEELE, young engineer, arrive on the scene and take Claire to the manor in a house where HIL SPRATT and his sister, SUSIE, are the caretakers.

DAN DALLAS, the hired man, reports that the watchdog has been shot.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER III

A MENACING chill seemed to grip the room, focusing upon Dan Dallas who held the dead dog in his arms.

Bob Steele looked at Claire anxiously and then said, "I think we'd better give things the once over, and the sooner we start the better."

Susie was sobbing softly. "Poor Trigger! The poor old dog!" Then she wiped her eyes. "Come on, Dan. Get a lantern and help me bury him. We'll dig a grave down in the aspen grove."

"If you don't mind, Miss Spratt, I think you'd better not do anything about the dog tonight. It might be just as well for you to stay inside until tomorrow," suggested Pat.

The woman turned with a surprised expression. "What do you mean? Of course it was an accident, just like the fog falling down on the road. Probably some hunter took the dog for a wild animal."

"We're not so sure of that, Susie," answered Claire. "Just as you say, Claire."

Susie's tone showed she was still unconvinced. "But that fog just happened to fall down and it must have been a mistake about Trigger. I'm sure of that."

As the door closed behind Susie and the man, Bob Steele turned to Claire. "This dame with the compelling eyes—you don't figure she'd lie to you, do you, Claire?"

"I've never known her to lie," Claire answered. "Susie's inclined to be flighty at times, but her brother keeps a firm hand on her. She's been with the family ever since she was a very young girl, except three years when she worked in the city."

Pat laughed. "Pull up, Bob. Faithful family retainers and all that stuff. No good trying to work up any case against them. Come on, let's shove off."

THE next hour was spent in going over every inch of the old house, much to Bob Steele's disgust. In his opinion, night was the time for sleeping, not prowling up and down stairs.

The tall old clock in the library was striking midnight when finally the three young people decided to call a halt in the unsuccessful search.

Pat threw himself into a big chair and wiped his forehead. "Whew! I'll begin to sprout sideburns myself if I stay here long."

"Probably it's dark to make it worth while looking around

Illustrated by E. H. Guder

The light fell on the baseboard and Claire saw a sign, in the shape of an arrow, pointing toward the hall outside the room.

Outside tonight, isn't it?" asked Bob.

"Goodness yes," answered Claire. "We'd better call it a day and get a fresh start in the morning."

Accordingly, rooms were assigned to the young men and, after bidding them goodnight, Claire lighted a glass lamp and made her way up the gloomy stairway to the bedroom directly under the cupola. This was a large room and had been Lyman Fosdick's. Everything in it remained as he had left it.

Wearily pulling off her riding boots, the girl climbed up on the high four-poster bed and threw herself down. Tired as she was, the thought of the mysterious shot that had found its mark in the dog, still persisted, carrying with it a subtle warning.

What was this unseen force that seemed to be closing about her? She stirred restlessly, Nick Baum and his hold on her father. These two young men whose paths had crossed hers so curiously. What did she really know about them, anyway? Pat had said the dog was alive when they went around to the barn—but was it still alive when they came back into the house? Susie and Eb. And where did Dan Dallas fit into the picture?

CLAIRE'S mind swung back to Pat Magan, and she smiled in the darkness. Again came the remembrance of strong arms lifting her in the darkness. Had it been Pat? She hoped so, though she did not ask herself why. A rolllicking, care-free newspaper man with an impish smile and Irish blue eyes shaded by very black lashes—well, what of it? Bob Steele had blue eyes, too, very nice eyes, and he had looked at her with the same admiration that many men had given her.

Claire shivered a little as the coolness of the mountains crept about her. Resolutely she closed her eyes and determined to go to sleep.

But the next instant she was bolt upright in bed, every nerve straining to hear something—she was not sure what. Had some spirit of the long ago come into the room? Or had it been merely the sound of the night wind in the old pine tree? Could it be that she had been aroused by fancy of her own?

She listened intently and finally lay down again, feeling a little foolish. Then it came again. This time the tapping noise from the wall near the head of her bed could not be explained away. Gently, regularly, the muffled sound pierced the stillness. Once—twice. She caught herself numbering the beats as though she were counting a pulse. All power of movement seemed drained from her, except the ability to mark the sounds.

With an effort she got out of bed and, fumbling for the lamp, her fingers shaking, she touched a light to the wick. The feeble yellow gleam that cut an arc in the shadows brought a feeling of relief. The noise had stopped now. She pulled on her boots, wondering if after all there wasn't some commonplace explanation. Anyway, she would look behind the bed—that is, if she could budge it out from the wall. She eyed its majestic bulk doubtfully. Putting her shoulder to the nearest post, she exerted all her healthy young strength. After one or two attempts, she managed to widen a space from the wall through which to squeeze her slender body. Carrying the lamp, she carefully investigated everything within the circle of light. The ornately figured paper was less faded than on the other walls, but there was no mark of any kind or any sign that the wall was not of the same solidity as the rest of the room.

FEELING somewhat disappointed, Claire backed out of the narrow space and set the lamp on the floor so that she could move the bed back. The light fell on the baseboard and she saw a sign in the shape of a broken arrow, a facsimile of the carving on the mantel in the library. The arrow pointed toward the hall outside the room. Here a narrow stairway led to the cupola above. It must mean those stairs, Claire reasoned, since nothing else broke the expanse of that wall except a small bookcase.

Excitedly she put on her coat, and, lamp in hand, climbed the creaky steps to the cold, drafty cupola. It was a round, open structure with a conical roof, boasting an imposing weather vane.

The wind whipped sharply about her and a bat swooped past her in the darkness. With a shiver, Claire began to look along the wall and floor for another sign.

Her search was unrewarded and she decided to go back to bed. But first she walked to the railing that edged the lookout. As she stood peering down into the darkness suddenly, without warning, the glass lamp in her hand was shattered into bits, putting out the light. The girl stood, stunned in frozen terror. The menace that hung over the place had struck again—this time at her.

She fumbled her way to the door and raced down the stairs, one thought only in her mind. Someone had tried to shoot her, just as Trigger had been shot.

Panic-stricken, Claire ran down the hall. The door behind her closed and he rushed to her. Afterward she remembered he, too, was fully dressed.

"What is it, Claire? What's happened?" He caught her and held her close with one arm when she stumbled against him, while he struck a match with the other hand and lighted a lamp that was on a table.

Gasping, she told him, clinging to him like a frightened child. "Shot at you!" His mouth set in a hard line.

"Yes, and there wasn't any sound."

"Probably a gun with a silencer. We didn't hear the shot that got the dog either. I'm going to get that devil or know the reason why! Claire, if anything had happened to you, he'd be looking down at her in a way that sent a warm thrill through her. For an instant she forgot her danger.

By this time the rest of the household had been aroused and Susie came running toward them, her face pale.

"Claire—your hand!" she screamed, pointing to an ugly dripping gash on the girl's wrist.

T. L. Cooper Asks County Judge Job

To the citizens of Eastland county:

My friends, you, the voters of Eastland county, have, by your votes and the confidence and trust you have manifested in me, given me the inspiration and courage to seek greater and higher ideals; and

In announcing my candidacy for the office of county judge, subject to the action of the Democratic primaries, I wish to express my most sincere thanks and appreciation for the honors you have conferred on me in the past.

I was born and reared on a farm near Gorman and have resided in Eastland county more than 30 years. I have lived in several different communities and engaged in various lines of business, having served you as county treasurer and tax collector, during which time I attended courses of law lectures and devoted considerable time to the study of our laws; not with the intention of becoming a lawyer, but in order to become familiar with county affairs and render you better service.

From this source of study, I secured much valuable information concerning the affairs of our county and the problems that confront your commissioners' court; which in addition to the knowledge and experience acquired in performing the duties of the offices referred to, I feel fully qualifies me for the office of county judge.

I realize that the duties and responsibilities of this office are very great, but the years of depression have taught us that the needs and opportunities for rendering service to the people are greater than ever before and my eager and sincere desire to serve you is one of the prime motives that led me to seek this important office.

I shall always feel deeply indebted and duly grateful to you for your favors of the past, and am therefore interested in the welfare of every citizen in the county, and would welcome each and every opportunity to aid and assist you in solving your many vexing problems and where possible reduce your tax burdens, which I know are very great.

We have spent millions of dollars on our roads and highways which are rapidly depreciating in value and which should be maintained, but I believe that we should also spend some to preserve and promote the health of our people, and I would like to see Eastland county employ a good trained nurse in order that the boys and girls, who have defects or ailments and whose parents are not financially able to provide the necessary aid and assistance, may have fair and equal opportunities to arrive at manhood and womanhood in the bloom of health, which is most essential in the pursuit of happiness and every success in this life.

I believe in a fair and square deal to each and every person, with special favors to none but justice to all.

You are entitled to a fair, honest and efficient administration of the affairs of your county, and I pledge you my word and honor that if you elect me, I shall conduct the affairs of this office on that basis.

Sincerely yours,
T. L. COOPER.

A Hunter Fan In Governor's Office

AUSTIN, July 3.—There is a Hunter fan in the governor's office. The executive staff looked dubious when so informed. They could not imagine who of the force could be for an opponent of the governor's re-election. After enjoying their puzzlement for a time, a newsman offered to prove the statement. Silently he pointed to a fan in the corner of the office. It bore the maker's name—Hunter.

Elementary School Library Assured for Douglass School Through the efforts of Mrs. W. K. Jackson, chairman for Eastland of Better Homes committee, and Mrs. Bert McGlamery, her appointed chairman of the Frank Evans Library, the funds necessary to secure the Elementary School Library for the Douglass School, assisted by the Rosenwald fund, have been contributed by several public spirited men, and added to the free-will offering for the library, given on the occasion of the Better Homes concert held in Methodist Church, during Better Homes Week.

The Rosenwald fund is assisting negro schools in purchasing libraries for elementary and high school departments. These books cost $36, and of this the Rosenwald fund pays $12, plus transportation charges on the order, and in addition contributes free, with each library, a wooden bookcase, and a set of library supplies.

Mrs. McGlamery has been in active correspondence with B. B. Taylor, special supervisor of division of negro education in state department of education at Austin in connection with this project.

The elementary library list includes a wide range of study, covering a multitude of subjects, among these the modern encyclopedia; Ready Reference Atlas; Thorndike dictionary; Childs Geography of the World; and Childs History of the World.

The original library for the Douglass School was collected under supervision of Better Homes committee, four years ago. These were listed by the teacher of the school showing 272 on hand in May. Additional books received, 78 at Better Homes concert, and 18 sent Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. Mc-

Glamery making a total to date of 368 books, of miscellaneous character, which include a set of encyclopedia, presented by Mrs. Lola Mitchell and daughter, Mrs. Garner Kinard, and a five volume set of reference works, donated by Mrs. J. M. Perkins.

The library will be established as the Frank Evans Memorial Library, honoring the memory of the negro educator of Eastland, who worked faithfully for years to help his people and who passed away in April. Contributions to Elementary School Library Fund: Received at concert, 39.16; W. H. Taylor, $5; John M. Burke, $2; J. M. Weaver, $4; and J. E. Lewis, $4. Total, $24.16; Rosenwald fund, $12; grand total, $36.16.

The order for the library was sent to Austin by Mrs. McGlamery on Saturday, July 4. A brass plate, engraved, will be placed in the wall of the little room in the Douglass School that houses the book collection; the inscription will read: "This library founded by Better Homes Committee in memory of Frank Evans, May, 1936."

This may not be true with the case of every individual or correct in every section of the country, but this is the amount set aside by the majority of the American people to take care of these needs, as shown by statistics compiled on the subject by the government.
