Drouth Cannot Daunt America's Hardy Farmers

A man from South Dakota wrote in recently to ask if something could be said to inspire courage and confidence in the hearts of people living in the drouth belt.

"We are going through the worst drouth in history," he remarked, "and the people generally are feeling pretty low."

Thumbing through the dispatches from the northwest, it is hard to blame them. Broad fields that should be deep with rippling grain are barren wastes.

The men and the women of the northwest have always had to fight for what they held. First of all, there was the climate itself—hot summers and cold winters, with wide plains exposed to the full fury of great winds.

Then there were Indians, in the early days, ready with gun and knife and fire brand to hold the land for their own. There were periodic drouths, plagues of grasshoppers, eras of "tight money" when the very richness of his acres seemed to the farmer to be an added curse.

But somehow none of this ever brought discouragement or surrender. The people dug in and stayed on, following the dream that has always hovered over our western horizon—the dream of a land which human effort could make as free and happy as its borders were wide, where people could work out a new way of life that would bring them appreciably nearer to the millenium that man has always foretold.

And it is just this trait which is the drouth belt's encouragement today. It has not been decreed by some inexorable law of fate that that part of the country must go back to prairie grass and the buffalo.

The people are not helpless. They can win their fight if they will.

Co-operative human effort, for instance, can restore the water tables and rob the recurring dry spells of the worst of their terrors. Erosion by wind and flood can be checked.

Such simple modern devices as good roads and electrical appliances can turn the northwestern farmer's isolation into a blessing, instead of a curse.

These things can be done, with the help of Washington, and the region now stricken by drouth can be redeemed for the dreams of the pioneers if the people themselves are sturdy enough to make the fight. And are they?

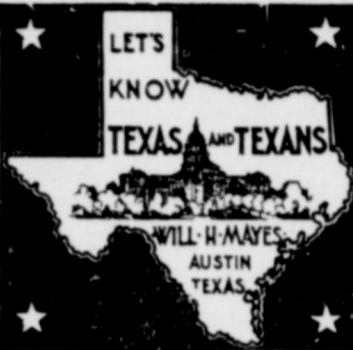

Well, a couple of years ago, after a bad dry spell, a discouraged eastern functionary remarked that the whole region ought to be abandoned, given up as a land too tough for human settlement. . . . and the northwest stood up with a growl of rage and almost bit his head off!

Give up? It isn't in their dictionary. They are equal to anything that can be demanded of them. And, because they are, they can face the future with full confidence.

The dream that has glittered over those magnificent plains will yet be made a reality.

An Ohio garageman-astronomer is agog over his discovery of a new comet. If he is absent-minded, some of his customers probably have been paying him the distance to it.

SOMETHING THAT GROWS ON BARREN SOIL

In this column answers will be given to inquiries as to Texas history and other matters pertaining to the State and its people.

Q. Give the correct words of the song, "The Eyes of Texas," R. R. Midland.

A. "The Eyes of Texas are upon you All the live-long day; The Eyes of Texas are upon you, You cannot get away; Do not think you can escape them, At night or early in the morn; The Eyes of Texas are upon you, Till Gabriel blows his horn."

Q. What schools did Southwest University at Georgetown succeed? C. C. E. Longview.

A. Rutersville, Wesleyan and McKenzie Colleges, and Soule University.

Q. In what years was cattle-trail driving most extensively done in Texas? E. H. Clarendon.

A. From 1867 to 1890, during which period some 10,000,000 Texas cattle were driven to northern markets, the business diminishing and finally dying with the advent of railroads in the section north of Texas.

Q. What is the estimated annual value of Texas cement products? T. O. Hutto.

A. Approximately $6,000,000 to $6,500,000.

Q. Has any other State than Texas a county named for David Crockett? R. L. T. Ozona.

A. Tennessee, Crockett's native State, has a county named for him in 1845.

Q. Where was the Texas town Turkey Creek? P. D., Belleville.

A. It was an important place about six miles east of Brenham in 1844, and in an election that year lacked only three votes becoming the county seat.

Life of the Saint Of the Day

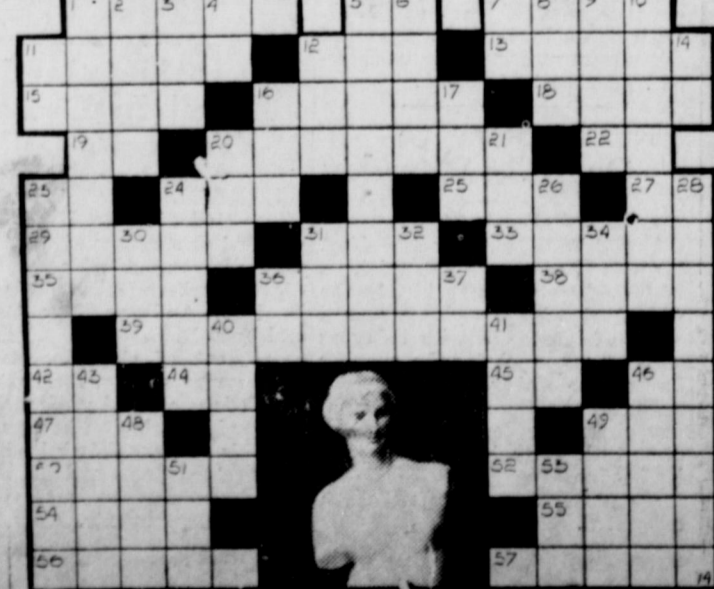

By REV. S. E. BYRNE

Sanctity and learning raised Bonaventure to the church's highest honors, and from a child he was the companion of saints. Yet at heart he was ever the poor Franciscan friar, and practiced and taught humility and mortification.

St. Thomas Aquinas, the friend of St. Thomas Aquinas, who asked him one day whence he drew his great learning. He replied by pointing to his crucifix. At another time St. Thomas found him in ecstasy while writing the life of St. Francis, and exclaimed, "Let us leave a saint to write of a saint."

Young America Is Finding Zest In Streamlined Trains

CHICAGO, July 13.—American youth's ideas are becoming streamlined. Young folks are becoming "fans" for modern railroading, its thrills and travel attractions.

Clearing streamline trains shattering speed records, unique luxuries, low rates and the general "zipppiness" of the new era of rail travel have convinced boys and girls, young men, and women, that going places on steel ribbons is "the thing to do."

How railroads, and everything pertaining to them, are taking long strides into the affections of modern youth was revealed here today by Harry G. Taylor, chairman of the Western Association of Railway Executives, while discussing plans for the second annual "Railroad Week" under the auspices of the Western Railroads, beginning July 13.

Among the barometer readings which show how up-to-date railroad innovations are catching on with the citizens and citizenesses of tomorrow are the following incidents:

During a recent showing of one of the new streamline trains in a southwestern city, school children inspected the string of shining metallic coaches at the rate of 2,100 an hour. The railroad's "literature" was virtually all taken home instead of being scattered about, as such reading matter is often dispensed with by children.

The next day classes at the public schools were turned into lectures on modern railroading, owing to the flood of intelligent questions on the subject asked by the pupils of their teachers.

Through their engineering instructors students at Ann Arbor, Mich., and again at Ruston, La., successfully petitioned railroad executives to change schedules of stops by new trains on special runs, so that they might have a chance to inspect the speed marvels. Like the youngsters, the engineering students showed a sound grasp of and an intense interest in the latest transportation developments.

Candies in "railroad lantern" containers are selling on station newsstands as they did when father was a boy.

An Oklahoma lad, motoring with his parents, heard via radio that one of the new trains was being exhibited at a certain point. He induced them to race 100 miles out of their way in order that he might see the train before it pulled away. As a reward for his eager interest, he was allowed to inspect the power car, containing the powerful Diesel motors.

An 18-year-old Chicago youth, when told by his father that the family planned a motor trip to the Pacific coast, pleaded to be allowed to make the whole trip by train. So the family did, riding westward in a time-slashing streamliner, taking other fast trains on their bargain-rate sight-seeing jaunt, which included the Grand Canyon of Colorado, great national parks in the Rocky Mountains, and the wonders of the far west, from San Diego, Calif., to Seattle, Wash. The family went home in another streamliner. When the young fel-

HOUSE OF SHADOWS

by Ida R. Gleason © 1936 NEA Service, Inc.

"You sure that's what he said, Susie?" gritted Dan Dallas. He suddenly rose from his chair and stalked over to her.

"Why Dan—" she began with a coquettish giggle. "Why, Dan, how rough you are all of a sudden!"

"FOR answer Dallas stretched out his hand, showing her the official badge he held. "Yes, Susie, maybe I am rough. That's my business. When your brother found that someone had been chipping at the stone foundation of the house—you know you found it when your clothes blew off the line—he got the law to step in. Figured things had got out of his control. Now you'd better come across with what you know, or—"

A blinding flash of lightning cracked through the room, followed almost simultaneously by a deafening clatter of thunder. Then, from outside, came another terrific, tearing noise. Everyone rushed to the window, just as the great twin-topped pine tree swayed violently once or twice, then toppled to the ground with a roar like a titanic shriek of despair.

For a stunned second no one moved or spoke. Then a voice broke in from the doorway. "There! I saw him coming in the library window!" Bob Steele swayed weakly and clutched the door for support.

"Bob!" Pat ran to his side and eased him into a chair. Dan Dallas did not wait, but snatched his gun from his pocket and ran along the hall and threw open the library door. The rest followed. The room was empty, but the window was wide open, letting in a blast of wind-driven rain which had created havoc in the usually immaculate room.

SUSIE gave one look at the place, then collapsed into the nearest chair. "Oh, what would Lyman say if he could see it now!" she sobbed. "His own room that he loved. And I promised always to keep it as it was."

Dan had succeeded in getting the window closed. Now he and Pat rushed into the hall to search for the intruder. Claire walked over to Susie and laid a firm hand on her shoulder.

"Susie, tell me, why did Uncle Lyman want this room kept so? He must have known that sometimes it would be changed."

"He said if it was and I disobeyed him, he'd find a way to punish me. That's why he always left me home."

"But why shouldn't he leave you home, Susie?" Claire's grip on the woman's shoulder tightened.

"For a minute Susie did not answer. Then she suddenly broke down. "I was his wife—his common-law wife, I guess you'd call it."

"low was asked what had happened most on the trip of which he replied enthusiastically. "The railroads, of course!"

Young ladies are designing tally at least, gray summer dresses which are appropriate to the less air-conditioned interiors of trains on the Western Pacific.

In many a community safe bet that in a good percentage of families where there is a basement workshop or home-made model of a streamliner.

And did you know that joins the track of a railroad? Midwest city classes are being suspended daily at least one so that all may see the stream-breeze past!

"The turning point in the tide of American youth's interest in Diesel motors comes at a time when 50 per cent of our young men and women have never heard of a train," said Mr. Taylor.

children nowadays are being trained away" by the next train travel, mentally alert. Later on their dreams of the trains that are making transportation history no longer come true. And the young girls approaching maturity coming more and more of that "smart" to see and on a modern fast train, when going places it's "the do."

"The clanging of the doorbell interrupted. Claire ran to the door, just as Nick Baum came hurrying toward her.

"Claire, dear, are you all right? What's happened? I was delay in the village, so I decided to come back here for the night. The tree held both her hands tenderly as she explained, apparently oblivious to anyone else in the room on account of his anxiety for her Dallas and Pat had returned from their search, and Pat halted in doorway at the ardent scene before him. The girl turned, with a slight tinge of embarrassment, her manner, and made the necessary introductions.

"I didn't know you had company, Claire, or I wouldn't intruded," Nick said coldly.

"Of course, Nick. I'd have badly if you hadn't," she answered. "Susie can get you something to eat."

HUGE INDUSTRY VISIONED FROM NEW PLANT TO DISTILL ALCOHOL FOR MOTOR FUEL

First of what is expected to become a chain of plants to produce power alcohol for automobile fuel from grain and other farm products, this factory is ready to begin production at Atchison, Kan. At left, workmen are installing the huge stills, and at right is shown the plant itself, with one of a battery of 100,000-gallon fermenting tanks. General use of such fuel is expected to relieve strain on the decreasing supply of oil in the ground and create a use for surplus farm products.

Church Lawn Party Wednesday Night Extensive preparations are in the making by the committees in charge of the entertainment, the lawn party of the Methodist Church, an event to honor the 50 new members who have affiliated with the church this year.

The side street will be roped off and floodlights will provide a brilliant setting for the many features in programs and games that will fill the evening.

The reception and invitation committee, representing the church on this occasion, presents: Judge and Mrs. W. P. Leslie, Mmes. C. C. Robey, Ed F. Willman, Earl Bender, Grady Pipkin, Neil A. Moore, A. L. Agate, and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Miller.

The Eastland High School Band will play under direction of G. W. Cullom, and other features in music are under the direction of a committee, including Wilda Drago, who directs the choir of the Methodist Church.

The order of the program will be arranged by Mr. and Mrs. V. T. Seabury, chairman, assisted by the pastor of the church and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. E. R. Stanford, and Dr. and Mrs. J. B. Curry of Cisco.

All those who attend the church or Sunday school, the members and their families, are extended a cordial invitation to attend this affair, honoring the new members. Hour, 8:15 p. m.

Presbyterian Women Plan for Picnic The Bethany Class of the Presbyterian Sunday School had their assembly presided over by Mrs. C. W. Estes, the class teacher, who brought a lesson on "The Vine and the Branches."

In the business session plans were matured for the class picnic luncheon, next Friday at 12:30 p. m., at the home of Mrs. Ben Hill. The class reported that in the Sunday School attendance that morning, Mrs. Hill's aide registered the largest number for that day. The attendance contest will close the last Sunday in July.

Lesson topics were brought by Mrs. James of Olden and Mmes.

Piggly Wiggly Team Blasted By Highway

Every team in the Eastland soft ball league has tried it, but it remained for the Highway group to do it Monday night.

It was the surprise game of the season when the Highwaymen busted the league-leading Piggly Wiggly, 11 to 5.

Two of the grocers' runs were made by B. Kellett, shortstop. Piggly Wiggly got 10 hits and Highway 11.

Carl Johnson, connected for eight runs out of eight hits, defeating Tesco, which scored two runs.

R. Taylor was the runner of the evening in the Johnson-Tesco game, getting two counters.

Approaching Marriage of Rev. J. A. Lovell Announced For July 19 To Take Place in Ranger Church The marriage of Rev. J. A. Lovell and Miss Vada Gray will take place Sunday evening, July 19th, at nine o'clock at Gospel Center building in Ranger.

Rev. Sam Morris, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Stamford, Texas, a friend of many years and fellow worker of the bridegroom, will read the ceremony. Rev. J. A. Lawdermilk, associate worker, will give the prayer, and Mr. and Mrs. Doc Lovell, brother and sister-in-law of the bridegroom, who was associated with Rev. Lovell in the work for two years, will be the only two attendants of the wedding.

Rev. J. A. Lovell was born in Wise County near Boyd, Texas, in 1907. On June 16th he observed his twenty ninth birthday. He was graduated from Paschal High School in Fort Worth in 1927 with high honors, and was president of his graduating class of over four hundred members. He also won outstanding State honors in the field of debate. In the spring of 1931 he was graduated with honors from Simmons University of Abilene, taking his A. B. degree.

While in Abilene, he became pastor of the Trinity Baptist Church of fourteen members, which reached a membership of nearly three thousand members before he resigned to take up the work of radio evangelism, centering in Dublin, Texas, over KFPL, where he has preached, also using the loudspeaker extensively, and doing evangelistic work going on three years.

Miss Vada Gray of Eastland, Texas, is twenty years of age. She was graduated with honors from the Eastland High School at the age of seventeen, and attended Simmons University at Abilene.

The building in which the couple will be married will accommodate approximately 1,500 people. Mr. A. Adams of Caddo has charge of the arrangements, and Mrs. J. C. Brimberry of Ranger has charge of decorations. Preceding the marriage, Rev. Lovell will bring a grief farewell message to the Ranger group, and on the following Monday at ten o'clock, a farewell service will be conducted from the radio at Dublin to his radio audience. Due to his having averaged about four sermons a day for nearly three years, his health has been impaired and his voice greatly damaged. Doctors have advised that he go away for rest and recuperation for six months, which he and his bride plan to do, leaving Monday the 20th for Long Beach, California, after which time Rev. Lovell will return to his labors in Dublin as radio evangelist.

The color motif to be carried out in the wedding will be white and blue.

Observe Tenth Wedding Date Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hibbert observed Sunday their tenth wedding anniversary.

Eastland Personal Mrs. Dick Murray of Monahan is visiting her parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Cato.

Mrs. Marvin Collie and daughter, Miss Doris, left Monday for Ranger to spend balance of week visiting between homes of Mrs. James Matthews and Mrs. C. D. Woods, and upon their return will resume their Eastland visit with Mrs. W. B. Collie.

Oscar F. Chastain of Kilgore has returned to Eastland to visit his family.

Merrith Little of Breckenridge was a week-end visitor in Eastland.

Emanuel Bender of Breckenridge was a visitor here Sunday.

Dr. and Mrs. W. S. Poe will leave Wednesday morning for a vacation to various points. They plan to return August 3.

Pretty Helena Derrik found this out in just one eventful week-end at a wealthy girl's country home.

THE MARCH OF TIME PRODUCED BY THE EDITORS OF TIME

Two Weeks With Pay Vacation time is here. The family car is piled high with baggage and you're off for two weeks... to the seashore, the mountains, the lakes... or maybe you'll play gypsy and wander the world with a road-map. But no matter what you do, or where you go, you'll need to stock up before you leave. There'll be many things to buy—sunburn lotion, bathing caps, a traveling bag, a new tire. There'll be many things to plan—places to see, and places to stop. Read the advertisements first—the travel advertisements which mention hotels and comfortable places to eat and sleep. Read the advertisements of Vacation Specials—equipment that you must have if you're going to enjoy every day away. It's surprising what a help the advertisements are. They tell you of savings... they post you on the newest improvements... they remind you of things you might have forgotten... and they make your two weeks with pay, pay MORE!
