by DeMarquis Gordon

The pecans are falling. Several varieties of the earlier maturing pecans began falling last week. They are falling about two weeks earlier than usual. At this time the prospects for a heavy crop look good.

It seems the pecan weevil has caused much less damage this year than it did last year. This could be one of the best crops of improved pecans this county has ever produced. The native pecan trees do not have as many pecans as they have had in the past.

Pecan production in Texas, based on September 1 prospects, is forecast a record high of 70 million pounds by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. A crop of this size would be almost three times last year's production. The nation's pecan crop is forecast at 199.8 million pounds, 19 percent smaller than last year's crop. Production prospects are below or the same as last year in all states but Texas and New Mexico.

Pecan prices will likely remain as high as last year's prices because of the small nation-wide crop.

A.D. Ellington of Cisco not only grows pecans, but also walnuts and chestnuts. He has a young orchard near the Mitchell Church, Southwest of Cisco where he is testing several varieties of walnuts. He gave us nuts from two different kinds of Chestnut trees.

If you have pecans be sure to save an entry for the pecan show which will be held in December. It takes at least 40 nuts to make an entry. Store the entries in open containers so they can dry out.

We hope some of the rural pastors in Eastland County are planning to attend the twenty-seventh annual Town and Country Church Conference next month. The conference will be held at Texas A&M October 12 and 13. One of the highlights will be the naming of the Rural Minister of the Year. We have several programs to give anyone interested in attending.

Eastland County landowners will stock 150 farm and ranch ponds with fish Friday, September 29th. The Federal Fish Hatchery is delivering almost 50 thousand channel catfish and seven thousand sunfish. These landowners made applications to the fish during the past two years.

Livestockmen in Eastland County should be on the lookout for ticks on cattle.

Seasonal infestations are heavy in some coastal counties and are spreading into other areas of the state.

The insect pests irritate livestock and reduce production efficiency. Another major problem with ticks this year is that they can cause secondary infestations of screwworms which are so numerous. The screwworm fly is readily attracted to any minor wound so all tick infestations should be treated as soon as they are detected.

Numerous materials are available for use in controlling ticks. These include carbaryl (Sevin), coumaphos (Co-Ral), dioxathion (Deltav), lindane, malathion, ronnel (Korlan) and toxaphene.

All producers should follow closely the manufacturer's recommendations on the label of the particular insecticide. Special attention should be given to the waiting period, or number of days required from the time of application to the time of slaughter.

For more detailed information, we suggest a copy of the "Texas Guide for Controlling External Parasites of Livestock and Poultry." The guide is available at the county Extension office.

Actually the vine and its gourds are very attractive and add to the landscaping. This vine is called a dish rag gourd and gets its name from Olden times when they would let the vine dry and use it to wash dishes with.

Texas Fuels 7 Million Vehicles Over Best Highways

From crude oil at the well head to finished gasoline at the refinery, Texas is the major source of motor fuel for powering the state's 7 million vehicles over the nation's finest highway system.

But the growing transportation needs of Texans, like the needs of citizens in other states, have created an unprecedented demand for energy to continue the daily work of moving people and materials over roads and highways. For Texas, especially, the nation's energy gap has created a new look at the effort to supply adequate amounts of petroleum energy.

To meet the growing demand for fuel energy, Texas oil refineries are operating at virtually 100 percent of their daily capacity of 3.5 million barrels of crude oil, which is more than 26.5 percent of the nation's total capacity.

To further point up the growing demand for energy, Texas oil wells, chief sources of crude oil for the state's refineries, are operating at a 100 percent market demand factor. But, the current production rate of about 3.5 million barrels of oil per day and the slow pace of new discoveries is exceeding the rate of replacement, resulting in a steady decline in Texas' recoverable reserves.

For Texas motorists over the years, gasoline has been one of the best bargains among major commodity purchases. Nationwide, the average service station price of gasoline advanced only 18.4 percent from 1961 to 1971, compared with 35.4 percent price jump for all consumer items. By comparison, food costs for the same period went up nearly 33 percent, rent 24 percent, apparel and upkeep 32.5 percent and reading and recreational costs increased 33.6 percent.

However, developments in the U.S. and world energy picture point to rising costs for all energy uses, including motor fuel. Growing reliance on foreign oil, coupled with significant upward price demands by some foreign producing nations, will cost world oil consumers billions of additional dollars over the next few years. Americans no longer able to rely completely on their own resource, are expected to share a significant portion of this burden.

Obviously, this would be a situation with many ramifications. For auto-dependent Texans, the 16,000 gasoline service stations alongside the state's streets and highways figure prominently in any business or pleasure trip.

In providing fuels and services for Texas' 7 million vehicles - including 5.3 million automobiles - the volume of fuel dispensed by service stations makes Texas the nation's second largest gasoline market. Only populous California has more automobiles and a larger gasoline consumption.

But Texas motorists have a significant advantage over those in other states: They drive over the nation's finest highway system and pay from 1c to 5c less gasoline tax per gallon than most other states.

The gasoline tax is a major source of income for the states, but no other state has a lower state gasoline tax than Texas' nickel per gallon. Since Texas lawmakers levied a motor fuel tax in 1923, Texas motorists have paid a total of $5.2 billion, most of which has gone into the building of roads. In addition, motorists pay a 4c per gallon federal tax on motor fuel.

Under Texas law, three-fourths of the annual state collections - $333.8 million last year - is earmarked for construction and maintenance of highways and roads, with one-fourth channeled into financial support of the state's public schools.

Total highway user taxes in Texas - which includes motor fuel taxes, fees and drivers licenses - accounted for nearly 23 percent of the state's tax revenues in fiscal 1971, according to the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association. Highway user taxes accounted for $510 million of the $2.1 billion total collected by the state last year.

Although petroleum energy is the basis for significant support of state government through highway user taxes, it is only one measure of the impact the Texas oil and gas industry has on the ability of the state to provide public services.

Last year, state levies on the petroleum industry - not including motor fuel taxes - amounted to $359 million, or 18 percent of the state's total tax collections. Petroleum industry taxes paid 21.8 percent of the state cost of public education and 53.6 percent of teacher retirement costs. Industry levies also paid 53.6 percent of state aid to the aged, the blind, and to dependent children.

The Texas petroleum industry directly employs some 220,000 persons - about one out of every 17 Texas workers - and last year paid them $2 billion in wages. Further, the wages of some 36,000 refinery workers averaged about $4.91 per hour, one of the highest hourly wages in the state.

Over the years, Texas has derived $85.1 billion from crude oil sales; realized about $68 million last year alone from the sale of natural gas to other states. Likewise, in 1971, royalty owners received $700 million from oil and gas production in Texas. The state's treasury also collected more than $175.2 million in bonuses, rentals, and royalties from Texas' offshore oil and gas leases.

The point to be made is that it's difficult to overestimate the importance of the Texas oil and gas industry to the state's economy and the general welfare of its people.

Electricity that helps make products and jobs better.

No matter where you look in industry today, electric energy is there. It is powerful energy that stamps and molds, that pushes and pulls, that heats and cools. Or sensitive energy that sews and scrolls, calculates and controls.

Whether you build cars, or airplanes, or mobile homes, or make clothes, or process petroleum and petrochemical products - whatever your job, electricity helps you in a hundred ways to do it better, faster, easier.

Electricity is one of the things that has helped build America's great industrial capability, and helped raise our standard of living - by putting better products in everyone's reach, and by making better jobs available.

And it's clear that industrial uses of electricity will continue to increase in the years ahead.

When additional power is needed, we'll be ready to provide it to industry and to all our customers.

But getting ready and staying ready is an increasingly expensive, never-ending job at Texas Electric. Our construction expenditures are at a record high for facilities necessary to keep an adequate and reliable power supply at your service.

Elaine Moseley, Daniel Dunson Exchange Wedding Vows

Mary Elaine Moseley became the bride of Daniel Lee Dunson in vows exchanged in a double ring candlelight ceremony at six o'clock in the evening on Wednesday, September twentieth, nineteen hundred-seventy-two, at First Baptist Church.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Fred K. Moseley and Mr. and Mrs. Hale Dunson, all of Ranger.

Triple wrought iron seven-branch candelabrae entwined with greenery centered with white satin bows and flanked by potted palms formed the altar background where the Rev. Wallace Pierce, pastor of First Baptist Church of Olden, read the nuptial vows. White satin bows and greenery marked family pews.

Mrs. James Thackerson of Olden, pianist, presented traditional selections and accompanied Mrs. Wallace Pierce and Pam Pierce, also of Olden, who sang "I Do."

Mr. Moseley presented his daughter in marriage. Her formal empire gown of miramist was designed with sweetheart neckline and full length sleeves of Alencon lace, finished at wristline with wide cuffs. Matching lace medallions embellished the skirt and sheer detachable chapel train.

Her elbow length veil of illusion was held by a capelet of crepe edged with narrow lace and adorned with seed pearls. She carried a cascade arrangement of frenched and plam mums centered with a cymbidium orchid and surrounded with English ivy. Twin long-stemmed red roses were presented to her mother as she approached the altar and to the mother of the bridegroom at close of the ceremony.

Mrs. John Rutledge of Longview, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor; Patsy Moseley of Olden, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid and Julie Moseley of Ranger, sister of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. They were identically attired in formal gowns of gold double knit, designed with nehru necklines and short puffed sleeves. Gold braid outlined empire waistlines. Matching bows held blush veils of gold net. They carried single giant white mums encircled with gold net and white ribbon streamers.

David Dunson of Bedford attended his brother as best man Paul Ausburne of Ranger was groomsman. James Moseley, brother of the bride, was ring bearer; Bill Moseley, brother of the bride and Ricky Thompson seated guests; Kenny Moseley of Biloxi, Miss., and Jim Moseley of Olden, cousins of the bride, lighted candles.

For her daughter's wedding, the bride's mother chose a camel knit dress and brown accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a pink crepe frock and white accessories. Corsages were of white mums. Reception followed in the Ranger Room with Mimi Henderson presiding at the guest registry.

The bride's table was laid with an imported linen cloth. Appointments were crystal and silver. The three-tiered cake was adorned with confection flowers with double ring and dove arrangement crowning the anniversary tier. The cake was served with frosted punch, salted nuts and mints with Mrs. Ruth Moseley of Biloxi, Miss., and Miss Dollie Moseley of Olden, cousins of the bride, presiding at the table.

A "Top Hat" arrangement centered the bridegroom's table where Deann Coats of Dallas, cousin of the bridegroom, and Sandra Eaton served chocolate cake and coffee.

For a wedding trip to Fort Worth, the bride wore a brown crepe dress with matching accessories and the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

The bride is a graduate of Ranger High School and Ranger Junior College; the bridegroom is a graduate of Ranger High School and attended Ranger Junior College. Both are employed with the Texas Railway Tank Car Corp. of Ranger. They are at home, Rt. 1, Ranger.

Parents of the bridegroom hosted the rehearsal dinner at their home on Tuesday evening.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. S.E. Warford, Breckenridge; Dickie Harrell, Bobby Cagle, Mr. and Mrs. Pat Moseley, Mrs. J.F. Moseley, all of Olden; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ward, Lipan; Mr. and Mrs. Howard F. Wade, Desdemona; Bobby Maynard, Eastland; Leila Purcell, Palo Pinto; Darrell Coats, Dallas; Mr. and Mrs. Ken Moseley, Biloxi, Miss.; Patsy and Jim Moseley and Bobby Boyd, Stephenville and John Rutledge, Longview.

JUNGLE NATIVE - Clusters of fragrant white flowers are blooming on a tropical hoyia plant growing in Mrs. James Horton's garden in Eastland. It has bloomed all summer. The plant was introduced into the Western World in 1845. Mrs. Horton secured the plant from a sister in Kansas. But the tropical vine might be unknown to Mrs. Horton and the whole western world if plant hunters were faint-hearted men.

One such botanizing explorer, Sir Hugh Low, is given credit for discovering the trailing plant in Borneo in 1845 and taking it back to England.

He had gone to the East Indies specifically to collect plants for his father's nursery. He described the island as "so densely forested that an orangutan could swing from branch to branch from one end of the island to the other without touching the ground."

He penetrated deeper than any European ever had and found the natives "only moderately addicted to head-hunting."

Among the plants he collected was a glossy green vine with unusual blooms. Back in England the plant thrived in the elder Low's nursery and was found to be easily propagated by cuttings.

It was named Hoya in honor of the Duke of Northumberland's gardener, Thomas Hoy, who greatly admired the new plant. It was introduced into commerce and has become a popular plant for greenhouses, where its jungle origins can be simulated.

Several varieties have been discovered or developed during the past century.

Mrs. Horton grows her hoyia plant in a hanging pot.

"The blooms look like clusters of plastic flowers," she said. But they are quite real and drip a sweet sticky juice. "Because of this it's also called Honey Plant," she added.

Plant encyclopedias refer to it as waxplant.

In spite of its exotic origin, hoyia is kin to a common Texas wildflower, milkweed, which has similar fragrant flowers.

BAKKER FUNERAL HOME

306 W. PLUMMER PH. 817-629-1726
EASTLAND, TEXAS 76448

DALE C. BAKKER

Dear friends,

In time of need you would not hesitate to ask a good neighbor for certain favors. We want you to feel the same toward us. So many things crowd in upon a family when death comes to the home that a neighborly, personal-interest service is often needed. We try to meet such needs, not merely in a professional way, but just as a kindly neighbor would do.

Respectfully,

Dale C. Bakker

Let's pretend you're in the driver's seat of that car cruising down this road. See the blind curve ahead? Of course not. Neither did many others. Some landed in hospitals; a few were less lucky. You? If you make it past that curve, look out for the old narrow bridge...the falling rock area...and more dangerous curves. Your license fees, your gasoline taxes, are part of the funds available to upgrade old roads for the safety of today's cars and drivers. But threats are being made to divert this money to other than highway uses. Won't you do something...something to keep this road from remaining a killer? Contact your local highway officials. Remember: you're in the driver's seat.

Promotion Plans Recommended

The U. S. Department of Agriculture recommended adding advertising, research and promotion plans to 15 Federal milk marketing orders in the Southwest. They are the North Texas, Neosho Valley, Wichita, Memphis, Fort Smith, Red River Valley, Oklahoma Metropolitan, Central Arkansas, Lubbock-Plainview, San Antonio, Central West Texas, Austin-Waco, Corpus Christi, Texas Panhandle and Rio Grande Valley orders.

Marketing Service said the recommendations are based on evidence from a public hearing in Dallas, Texas, June 28-29. The hearing was requested by Associated Milk Producers, Inc., representing a majority of farmers supplying milk to the 15 markets.

AMS officials said advertising, research and promotion of milk under Federal milk orders was authorized by law in 1972. Since then, three Federal milk orders have been amended to establish such programs for milk and milk products - the Middle Atlantic, Chicago Regional and Indiana orders. Provisions proposed for the 15 orders are similar to those recently adopted in three orders.

The proposed program under each respective order would be financed by deductions of 5 cents a hundred weight on all milk that producers deliver to the market each month.

ULTRA SPECTACULAR

1973 FORD CARS & TRUCKS

Ford Division's new F-Series pickup trucks, including this F-100 Ranger XLT, feature the most extensive changes in six years. The F-100 250/350 light trucks include an all-new cab, new interiors, new exterior sheet metal, longer wheelbases and wider tracks. Cab length is increased two inches, permitting more leg room and a roomy storage area behind the seat in most models. New features include front disc brakes on all two-wheel-drive models, double wall construction of the cargo box and optional power steering and automatic transmission in four-wheel-drive models.

Most changed Ford Division car for 1973 is the full-sized Ford. Shown here is the LTD four-door hardtop. All-new sheet metal below the window line and a new segmented grille give the 1973 Ford a more formal look. All 1973 Fords have a new impact-absorbing bumper system, although the overall length of the car is increased only about one inch. Power front disc brakes, power steering, SelectShift Cruise-O-Matic transmission and a 351-2V eight-cylinder engine are standard in all new Fords.
