MOORE about ... EASTLAND

by Dirgil E. Moore

T. H. Landon, county surveyor, called our attention to the editorial in Friday afternoon's Abilene Reporter-News. The Abilene writer entitled the editorial, "Pulling Our Leg," but we actually think the California writer gave a very good refer-You judge for yourself. Here's an excerpt from the Reporter-News:

"All the way from Fresno, Calif., where he works for the resno Bace, our former sports itor, Prexy Anderson, pulls r managing editor's lef re-weding an AP dispatch describing this week's storm over Texas. The last paragraph said that Winds ripped into a residential area of Abilene, west of Eastland, damaging two homes.'
What exercised Prexy's risibles was that Eastland was used as a reference point to locate Abi-lene. The AP might have pinpointed our town by saving Abilene is east of Westbrook instead of west of Eastland, or southeast of Southland or southwest of South Bend. No use fooling around when locating an obscure village like Abilene Mr. AP. Be specific."

It's at this time of year when we realize the lucky fellow with all the beautiful oak trees in his yard isn't so lucky. All year long we envy you folks on Seaman Street, but not now. Rake your ed a rattlesnake with 10 ratlers. own leaves, buddy.

The Methodist women, just as always, served a wonderful meal Friday and if you didn't get some of that turkey and dress-ing we feel for you. About the only complaint we might have about the affair is that it isn't held often enough. Maybe we could talk them into serving twice a year!

-vem-Several people have told us that extra lines we had left over in the of 18 inches.

Quite a few folks from Eastland were in Brownwood Saturday night to see the Cisco Loboes represent District 7-AA in bi-district play. The Loboes did okay and this week they get a real test when they play Stamford for regional honors.

Fred Williams got himself one of the prettiest 10-point bucks you ever say last week. Killed near Strawn, the buck had a perfect rack. It also was marked on the ear and Williams reasoned it was one of the original transplants released 11 years ago.

-vem-In case you are wondering, today's Telegram reaches you a day early so that we can enjoy Thanksgiving. We will publish again Wednesday and then again Saturday.

"MON GENERALE"—Gen. Charles de Gaulle, shown in a recent photo, is the man many French affectionately call "Mon Generale." Leader of the Free French after the fall of his country to the Germans in the early stages of World War II, De Gaulle came back to assume leadership over the liberated country. Shortly after he quit in disgust at the bickering splinter parties in the National Assembly. Now, at 67, he's back, ready to take over control of the Republic, "if the people wish, as in the preceding great national crisis." But the man who once referred to himself as a "modern Joan of Arc" had many obstacles to overcome before he could attain this position.
