MOORE about... EASTLAND

by Virgil E. Moore

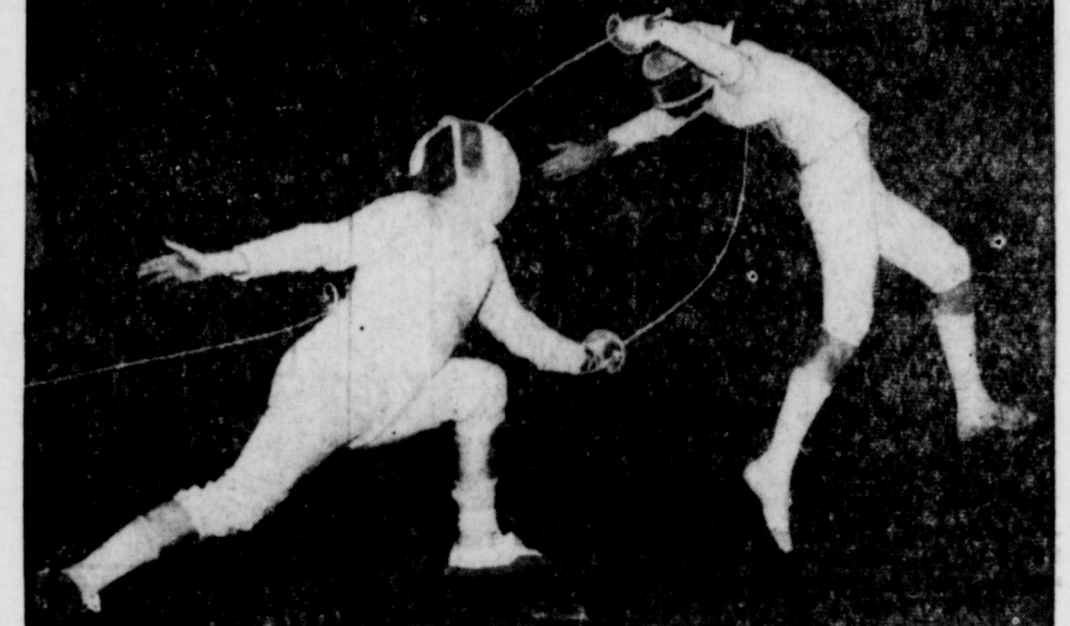

The talk around town again has centered around a proposed beer election. Latest reason for all the whispering is the petition presented the Brown County Commissioners Court to call a precinct beer election in Brownwood.

Our prediction is that Eastland County will have a beer election sometime in 1960. It will probably be a commissioner's precinct election, but could be even more localized than that.

The thing is, you will want to be ready to vote. You must your poll tax to do that, know, so don't fail to do so when the time comes.

—YEM—

One of the speakers at the press convention at Big Spring was talking of the old days when every town had two weekly newspapers. "One was dry and the other was wet," he stated. Eastland doesn't have but one newspaper, and it isn't going to accept a label. The Telegram does recognize that in America, where we have such great personal freedoms, a man can have his own opinions. We plan to let all of you do just that.

GRAY MATTER

Texas Growth Since '20 Amazes Writer

By Joe Gray

This State of Texas we live in is surely a wonderful place. Our state is one of the favored spots of nature. The boundaries of this state enclose some of the world's wonders and within its borders are some of the world's grandest sights and finest people.

This is one time I spent all of my vacation within Texas. It does a fellow good just to get out and talk to and mix with Texans he has never seen before. It's good for all of us in our state to spend more time among our neighbors and find out some of the things that make this state great.

The first time I ever took an extended trip in my life was to Galveston. At that time I must have been about five or six years old. The first elevator I ever rode on was in the Galvez Hotel in that city. This time I spent a little time in the South Texas port.

Galveston has changed very little over the years. Its downtown section looks just about like it did then and the seawall area is easily recognizable. Motels have sprung up on the shore front where rooming-houses used to flourish but that's about all. The years haven't rested lightly on Galveston's shoulders. She's an old town and she looks it. The monied interests in that town ought to do something about the looks of their downtown area. Some parts of Galveston look as if they hadn't been washed since the flood.

After the flood of 1900 the town did make some remarkable comebacks but since 1920 or thereabouts there isn't much one can say about progress in Galveston. Its population has stayed about what it was in 1920 too.

They have pulled out the old streetscars, but there is some argument on that point as to whether this was an improvement or not.

Galveston's plight, however, is not all her own fault. The town is limited in area in growing space and doesn't have the bedrock foundation under it New York has on which to build up in the air. Then too, Houston has a deep water port that now gives Galveston a run for its money.

At one time in Texas' history Galveston was the largest city in the state. Of course that isn't any longer.

Houston is getting to be a giant bursting out of its seams all over the coastal plains. The local chamber of commerce is now claiming a population of about a million in the metropolitan area. I guess they're all there too. After fighting some of the Houston downtown traffic I'm ready to agree that all of them are there and all of them are out in their automobiles at the same time. And on the weekends all of them jump in their cars and head for the beach at Galveston, creating a traffic jam on the island that backs up all the way to Houston.

The industrial development in Houston in the past 20 years or so is something to read about and add "believe it or not." Houston is growing so fast the people there can't keep up with some sections of town. It's hard to learn the names of the subdivisions that keep coming into town. The city all has to look them up to see if they're supposed to furnish police protection for new areas as they build up.

Houston is also a badly mixed up town. For example, the local NBC-TV station there is KPRC-TV. But every night after the news and weather report Jack Parr comes in over the CBS-TV station. I haven't the slightest idea why this mix-up, but the local CBS station seems to be happy to carry the NBC late-hour program and the NBC station is proud and happy to run off some two-decade old movies.

West of Galveston on the Texas coast Lake Jackson, Freeport and Clute are towns that have been bursting at their seams too. The Dow Chemical plant just outside of Freeport is something to behold. Its employees just about make cities of Lake Jackson and Clute, which without the plant probably would be nothing but a store or two in the thicket. As it is, though, they are two fine little cities nestled in the shade of the trees where a few years ago every kind of wild life found in the southern part of the state lived in the thicket. Now the thicket has been turned into beautiful kept lawns and residential streets bordered by middle-class homes supporting television antennas pointing skyward.

Also on the Gulf coast there are a couple of towns that would surprise most of us. Bay City is a nice thriving town and so is Port Lavaca.

Corpus Christi is the new giant of Southwest Texas. She is now claiming about 165,000 population. When I was a kid in school Corpus was a lot smaller than Galveston, but that is no longer true. Corpus Christi seems to still be growing and new industry seems to be moving into the area all the time.

I noticed that one of the radio stations there used as a slogan for its area the "Texas Gold Coast."

In 1920 Corpus had only about 10,000, or about the same population Abilene had at that time. Their chamber of commerce boosters claim their city will soon pass San Antonio in population and importance.

The way the Alamo city is growing, though, this will take a bit of doing. I spent six weeks there in ROTC camp in 1936 and the infrequent visits I've made to S. A. over the years show the steady growth of that town. Out this side of town where the WOAI transmitter stood for so long, which used to be several miles out of the city limits, is a large housing area now. One of Texas' largest shopping centers stands where a few years ago cows grazed and no one then thought the city would ever grow out that far.

It gives a Texan a good feeling to stand in front of the Alamo and think back on the things the heroes there did 123 years ago. From the wilderness those people knew as Texas has come an industrial giant that amazes mankind.

ROTARIANS HEAR WILLISTON

Socialized Medicine Lashed By State Medical Executive

The executive secretary of the Texas Medical Association told the Eastland Rotary Club on Monday that the doctors of the state recognize an obligation to provide "the best possible medical care at fair and reasonable fees."

Speaking before the civic group at its noon luncheon, C. L. Williston, Austin, presented comparisons of medical care costs with those of general living costs. He also emphasized some of the positive approaches which Texas doctors are undertaking in order to provide an even higher quality of medical service.

"The cost of all commodities and services in this country have risen much faster than medical care prices," Williston said. During the 20-year period from 1938 to 1958, the United States Government's Cost of Living Index shows that the price of men's haircuts increased by 206 per cent, shoe repairs went up 171 per cent, the cost of food 151 per cent, automobiles 125 per cent, and men's clothes 110 per cent. During the same period, the government reports that doctor's fees have increased by only 84 per cent.

Americans spend far more for both recreation and alcoholic beverages than they do for physicians' services and for hospitals. He also pointed out that the average individual now works 23 minutes each day to pay for his medical expenses. By comparison, the same individual must work two hours and 26 minutes each day—over six times as long—to earn enough to pay his taxes.

"Most importantly, the patient is getting much more for his medical dollar today than ever before," Williston said. The past half century has been marked by great advances—the increased life expectancy at birth from 47 years in 1900 to 70 years at present, declines in infant and maternal mortality, and the development of new drugs and treatments.

The executive secretary also outlined other positive programs which have been undertaken by medical societies to improve services by physicians. Public grievance committees have been appointed by county medical societies to clarify and adjust differences and misunderstandings between patients and doctors, such as fees and the quality of medical service. The Texas Medical Association also is endeavoring to provide a larger and a more equitable supply and distribution of physicians, particularly in rural areas of the state.

Commenting upon federal intervention, Williston reported that more than one-fourth of the total cost of civilian medical care in this country is being paid by the government with tax funds. Thirty six million Americans now are entitled to receive medical care from the federal government at the expense of the taxpayer. The list of eligibles include 22 1-2 million veterans of military service, six million dependents of military personnel; 370,000 Indians and Alaskans; and 300,000 employees of the United States Public Health Service.

"What's happening in medicine today also is engulfing business, industry, and agriculture," Williston said. "The trend is to spend more and more government money; and to build an even greater bureaucracy."

"There is greater need today than ever before for united, far-living costs. He also emphasized some of the positive approaches which Texas doctors are undertaking in order to provide an even higher quality of medical service.

During July the Highway Patrol in the above named counties made 318 arrests for the following violations: D.W.I. four, Speeding, 232, Improper Passing, 32, Wrong Side of Road, four, Defective equipment, 20, and all other violations, 26.

The Texas State Teachers Association is asking Governor Price Daniel to call a fourth special session of the Legislature to give all Texas teachers more than just a straight pay raise.

Here is what the teachers want: 1. An immediate base pay increase of $405 a year for teachers with a maximum of up to $5994 a year for master degree holders. 2. Double the present $54 annual raise granted teachers as a bonus for length of service. 3. An increase of $50 per classroom teacher unit in state funds for school operation each year. 4. A boost of $190 per year for each bus operated by a school system.

No estimate of the cost of the four-point program was given, nor was any suggestion given as to what taxes should be levied to meet the additional cost.

Miller, president of the association, said the teachers have no assurance the governor will call a special session to act on the proposed program.

Sgt. C. A. Cockrell Issues Warning for Scooter Owners

Many motor scooters and motorcycles are being operated on the streets and highways by operators who are not old enough to get a drivers license and by some who are old enough but do not possess a drivers license, said Sgt. C. A. Cockrell of the Texas Highway Patrol in Eastland.

The requirements of the law for the legal operation of a vehicle of this type for an operator between the ages of 14 to 16 are: 1. The scooter or cycle must be registered. 2. A Motor Vehicle Inspection Sticker is required to be carried on the person or exhibited on the vehicle. 3. The operator must possess a valid drivers license.

There is a provision in the drivers license law for a person between the ages of 14 and 16 to obtain a commercial operator's license restricting them to a motor scooter or motorcycle, provided that this motor scooter or motorcycle does not exceed 5 brake horsepower. This license is for the operation of a motor scooter or motorcycle only and any violation of the restriction on the license could result in the suspension of the license for a period of one year. The operation of a motor scooter or motorcycle by anyone under the age of 14 is a violation of the law, and a person must be at least 14 to obtain a license for this type vehicle.

Sgt. Cockrell stated "Many violations of this type have been observed and called to our attention." Regular checks will be made in all areas in an effort to stop this violation. This violation is a misdemeanor punishable upon conviction by a fine of not less than $1 nor more than $100 plus court costs which is $15.50 in most Justice of the Peace Courts in this area.

Contact local police officers to find out when the Drivers License Examiner will be in your area.

SPECIAL LEGAL REMEDIES
Sometimes you see newspaper stories telling how various courts have issued "injunctions" to protect the owner of a patent from infringement, to stop someone from putting up a building which would be a hazard to the neighborhood, or to prevent some other type of activity which might harm one or more persons. Occasionally you read where a "writ of mandamus" has been directed against some public official. This column will briefly explain both of these extraordinary legal remedies.

The injunction got its name because in the old days the English King commanded ("enjoined") special action when an ordinary court action could not solve a problem at hand. Today it is an order requiring a person (or corporation) to refrain from doing a particular act.

As a rule, one would first get a "Temporary Restraining Order" which would stop someone from doing something harmful—like polluting a stream or annoying the peace of your home. By granting it the judge preserves the status quo until a hearing has been held.

Traveling on the Highways—

... one has a chance to observe what's going on, here and there. It may be just a roadside collision or a modern farm home with every convenience. If within a city it may be the sight of a huge explosion that has wrecked a great building or a park with children playing everywhere. If one travels he cannot help but observe and back of these observations stands something that is strong and enduring which protects and preserves our way of life, for better living. That's Insurance.

USDA Publication On Lightning Now Available

ing still is listed as the causative agent in nearly one-third of all U. S. farm fires. Lightning damage is not confined to personal property for it is estimated that more than 1300 persons are injured and 500 killed by lightning every year. About 90 per cent of this accident toll occurs in rural areas, states the Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council.

Farm buildings and homes can be protected from lightning damage by the installation of an approved, complete lightning protection system. This means more than just the installation of rods, says the Council. Today's systems are engineered to collect static charges from the entire building and the things in it and dissipate the static into the air.

The USDA has released a bulletin which gives the principles of lightning protection systems and the materials used to build them, the Council says.

Although few farmers install their own lightning protection systems, the bulletin will enable them to determine whether installation work is being done properly, and to make periodic inspections of systems already installed.

For farm buildings as well as trees, a lightning protection system consists of three parts—a iron terminals (rods or points), conductors, and ground connections. The terminals are copper, aluminum, or galvanized steel rods or tubes, 10 to 24 inches long, installed at every projecting high point on a building. Conductors are the parts connecting the terminals with the ground and nowadays, usually are made of aluminum or copper cable, although rods also are satisfactory. A ground connection can be made in one of four ways: by driving a copper-clad or galvanized steel rod into the ground at least 10 feet, by stranding copper conductor cable and burying it in a trench, by clamping copper conductor cable to a buried sheet of metal plate, or by clamping it to an underground metal water pipe. Carefully made ground connections are vital to the operation of a lightning protection system, the Council adds.

You will be surprised how quickly one of the monthly savings accounts will some day add up to $1,000.00 or if you want to do not necessarily have to put in the same amount each month nor do you have to pay in every month. You could start with $5.00 or more and add to the account in any amount and it doesn't necessarily have to be the same amount each month or you can skip a month or two. On this kind of account your dividends at 4% per annum will be added to the principal each six months and remember you can always get your money at any time with no advance notice being necessary.

Drownings Increase In Rural Areas

COLLEGE STATION — The purpose of swimming and boating is to have fun and relaxation, not to drown yourself as over 1100 rural residents of the U. S. do every year.

The large majority of these drownings could be prevented by observing simple safety rules, say Edwin H. Cooper, extension wildlife specialist. When you are boating, observe ten simple precautions and come back alive—not much of a hindrance to your pleasure considering you have your life to lose.

Cooper lists ten rules for water safety. Always find out how many passengers a boat can safely carry, and never exceed this number. Always carry an extra paddle in the boat, in case one is broken or lost. Before leaving shore, be certain you ask an informed person about hazards in the lake or stream, such as location of swift water, whirlpools or hidden obstructions. Always wear shoes and clothing that can be removed easily in case the boat sinks or capsizes. Have a life preserver for each person in the boat, particularly non-swimmers.

When using a motor, make sure it is the proper size or horsepower for your particular boat. Be as cautious when steering a boat as you would when steering a car, and learn and observe the rules of the water such as speed limits, yielding right of way and forbidden zones. Don't stand in a boat unless necessary and then be careful of your balance. Always wear clothing that will protect you from sunburn, since sunlight is intensified by reflection off the water. And lastly, never go boating when warnings of high winds or severe weather have been issued, Cooper says.

These are simple rules, but their observance could save your life, Cooper concludes.

that spell peace

What is NATO? It stands for North Atlantic Treaty Organization, an alliance of 15 free nations, including the United States, which have banded together to protect themselves against aggression. These nations are Belgium, Canada, Denmark, France, Germany, Greece, Iceland, Italy, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Turkey, the United Kingdom and the United States.

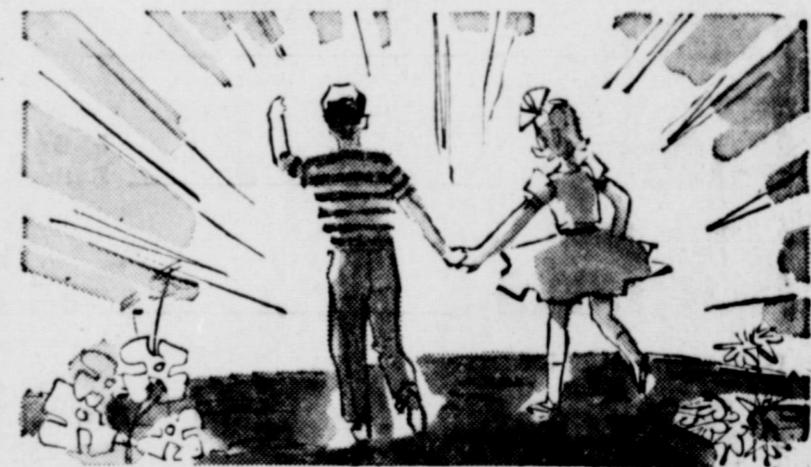

What is its purpose? Primarily, NATO is a military alliance, but its great purpose is peace, not war. The 15 members of NATO have pledged that they will regard an attack upon any one of them as an attack upon all. They have also pledged to work together politically and to increase their ability to defend themselves by self-help and mutual aid.

How does NATO function? Each of the 15 member nations is represented in important discussions held regularly. Their main function is to defend a line which stretches from the Aleutians to the Middle East. A line which is manned by Greek patrol boats, Norwegian ski troops, French engineers, Canadian jet pilots—strength to which every NATO country contributes.

What has it accomplished? Before NATO Russia had seized country after country—enslaved 90 million people. The Soviets threatened to engulf the whole of Europe... ultimately to dominate the world. Since NATO not an inch of territory has been lost in the Atlantic area. And by sharing our obligations this 10-year watch has cost us less than a few months of the cost of World War II.

What is its future? So long as there remains a threat to liberty, NATO has a job to do. Slowly a strong shield of freedom has emerged. Secure behind this shield, the peoples of the Atlantic community are working together toward greater political, economic and social well-being.

NATO needs your support

New challenges face NATO every day. It can meet them and grow even stronger... but only if all NATO nations continue to work together in that spirit of co-operation that first made NATO possible. NATO deserves your support to this end. For the full story on NATO write for the free booklet. Write:
