The Ranger Times put out last

Carl was once backshop foreman for The Times, and also was foreman for the Telegram. Garner had some fine compliats for the Times' edition pager) and we will have to agree with him, the Ranger crew did a fine job. (And you won't hear us admitting that very often.) Back when Garney worked for The Times things were a little rougher than they are now. He well remembers when the crew, with Carl in front, raced out the back door when a man came near who had written the editor a letter telling of plans to bomb the paper.

Fact is Carl thinks The Times printed quite a few stories in the special edition which were never published before. He said when he worked for the paper they, wouldn't dare print some of those stories for fear of getting their necks broken.

When The Face Of America Began To Change

In mid-afternoon of June 1, 1909, five primitive motorcars started out from New York City Hall headed for Seattle, Wash., in what was officially called the "Oceanto-Ocean Automobile Endurance Contest." Two of the five were Model T Fords, designated No. 1 and

No. 2. The others were a Shawmut, an Acme and an Italanames now long since forgotten in the automotive industry. Ford No. 2 reached Seattle at 12:55 p.m., June 23, nearly 17 hours ahead of its nearest competitor, the Shawmut, and was the first car ever to travel from New York to Seattle under its own power. Ford No. 1 came in third, the Acme fourth. The Itala broke down and was shipped in by freight. The historic contest is being re-enacted this month by a Ford Motor Company caravan which, as nearly as possible, is following the same route and same day-to-day schedule as the original contestants.

Included in the caravan are a duplicate of the victorious No. 2 Ford; Ford Motor Company's 50 millionth vehicle, a Galaxie four-door sedan; a 1908 Model K Ford which paced the competitors from New York to St. Louis, Mo.; and an exhibit van, the displays of which show a look into the past and a glance at the future of the automotive industry.

Plastics Make White Familyproof

Gold flecks and wheat shafts decorate the table top of stain and spill-proof white melamine plastic laminate. The chairs, upholstered in gold and white plastic, are prepared to take countless

White is smart and newly practical because of washable plastics in new furniture, floor and wall coverings scheduled for spring furnishings and recocrating. This new family proof white has greater refinement and more warmth, combines well with clear bright colors in decorating, and goes hand in hand with today's open planning. It gives a nice clean feeling without the cold glare characteristic of the hospital white in old-time

Geared for modern living, one fresh-styled white dinette set has a matte finished gold-flecked melamine laminate table surface with gold wheat shaft insets. It is meant to be washed instead of polished. Vinyl upholstered, the chairs wipe clean with a damp cloth. Their design is permanently sealed under crystal clear plastic. Other dining groups combine white and white background prints in vinyl upholstered chairs with tables decorated in woodgrain melamine plastic.

This trend is getting into the living room, too. One slim sofa has a tailored white reinforced vinyl cover and cranberry red, fabric covered seat and back cushions.

The fragile look of Oriental silk now appears in washable wall coverings made of vinyl. Available in white and a palette of pastel shades, these soft and flexible wall coverings can be applied like wallpaper.
