MOORE about... EASTLAND

by Virgil E. Moore

Eastland High School's top two honor students in the Senior Class, Larry Hollis and Judy Inzer, have something of mutual interest besides their books. They are what the modern generation calls "steadies," Larry and Judy have been going steady for at least a year, and it would seem they have been excellent ones for one another.

Personally were pleased to see that the man of the pair came out on top scholastically, even if it was just by a mere bit. Judy never would have let Larry hear the end of it had she turned out to be the smartest.

It had just been announced at Rotary Club that a member of the Russian Embassy in Washington, D. C. would speak to the club this month when Dr. James Whittington rose to introduce the visitors for the day.

"Fellow comrades," Whittington began.

We kept hearing about all those big fish they have been catching at Lake Leon, so went out that way the other day. Didn't get much fishing done, however, Onous Dick and I and yours truly were getting the boat in the water when for reasons unknown we jumped up and knocked a good sized hole in our head on a crank which jumped in front of us.

Dr. M. A. Treadwell's sewing machine was out of order so he had to hand stitch us back up. Somewhere between stitches the good doctor commented that we would have something to write about now. Then he apologized for not using pink thread "so that everyone could see."

We don't know for sure, but from the way the old head feels, we think the Doc must have dropped a stitch somewhere!

Understand Joseph M. Perkins ended up with a broken ankle himself the other day. Dr. Treadwell said Perkins was greatly interested in the project of putting the cast on his leg, and commented that he might even write a book about the episode. Mr. Perkins fell through a hole in the floor caused by the absence of a floor furnace he just had helped take out, we were told.

We've made a great conversation piece out of our injury. The wife isn't happy about all the talk though. We never have had an operation, however, so this is the nearest thing we've ever had to one which we could do anything complaining about. If you don't get the breaks, you have to make them, we believe.

Horton was telling about his time around Africa, and mentioned the fact that about 100 widows were on board the luxury ship.

"You see guys," he stated, "they're going to spend it, and look where you all will be."

That's it for today.

New Library Books

By MRS. A. E. CUSHMAN Eastland Librarian

The Eastland Public Library has a good report to send to National Headquarters at the close of National Library Week. The Library sponsored by the Thursday Afternoon Study Club, wishes to thank all who helped to make Library Week a success. They feel that the results are gratifying though renewed interest in the Library and more people using the Library.

These new books were added during April.

"Dear and Glorious Physician" by Taylor Caldwell is the splendidly written novel about St. Luke the lovable physician who traveled through the hills of Judea asking "What manner of man was my Lord?" The author's own travels thru the Holy Land and her meticulous research make this a fine study of this brilliant man and a colorful re-creation of ancient Roman life. This is a memorial book, given in memory of Mrs. Asa Hoskin, mother of Ferne Green, by Mrs. A. E. Cushman.

"Anne Frank by Ernst Schnabel" is a portrait in courage taken from a little German girl's diary. Little did she dream that her story would live after her untimely death when she wrote down the unbelievable thing that happened to her people during the war. For lovers of courage, freedom and humanity, this book is an experience.

"The Land Beyond the Mountains" by Janice Holt Giles is the fourth novel of the Kentucky frontier. Devotees of early Americana will be fascinated by it. The Library also has the other three novels.

"Lady L" by Romain Gary is a $10,000 prize novel by the author of Roots of Heaven and is a best seller. Lady L. is a lovable, intricate, eccentric, aristocrat, but locked in her heart are secrets of an altogether different life and a love that she can never tell. The High School classic, "Laughing Boy" by Oliver LaFarge and the Business Research of Austin set as a free copy of "The History of Savings and Loan in Texas."

"We take this opportunity," said Colonel Inskip, "once a year to invite each member of the community to visit his nearest military installation and to take a firsthand look at his defense team."

Prayers Answered: County Gets Rain

Prayers were answered in Eastland County this morning: it rained.

Suffering under the driest four month period in the county's history, this area welcomed .67 of moisture which fell here in the early hours Tuesday. It was still raining when the measurement was taken, and the forecast called for continued thundershowers. Heavy overcast skies looked far better than sunshine to county farmers and ranchers.

The .67 brought the total rainfall for the year to just 2.58 inches. That amount of rainfall would not even meet the April average, let alone January, February and March.

New Varieties Of Pecans To Be Discussed

Characteristics of the Choctaw and Wichita, new varieties of pecans, will be discussed by the originator, L. D. Romberg, Brownwood, at the annual Eastland County Pecan Field Day at Cisco, May 15.

The new varieties of nuts were developed at the U. S. Pecan Field Station at Brownwood by Romberg where the Comanche and the Barton Varieties also were developed and released a few years ago. The Choctaw is a cross between Success and the Mahan varieties. The Wichita is a cross between the Halbert and the Mahan.

The morning session of the all day affair will be held in the Victor Hotel. It is being sponsored by the Eastland County Pecan Growers Association and the Cisco Chamber of Commerce. The group will be guests of the Cisco Chamber of Commerce there in the hotel for lunch if they so wish.

The afternoon session will be at the F. O. Hilburn orchard, five miles southeast of Cisco.

Oscar Schaefer, Cook Community, president of the Pecan Growers Association is extending invitation to all pecan growers and those interested in the development of the pecan industry in the area to attend.

"We are happy to help in the field day and toward the development of the pecan industry in the area," Sam Kimmel, Cisco, Chairman of the Agricultural Committee said in commenting on the coming event.

Rev. Surface Is Named As Church Commissioner

Rev. Eugene H. Surface, 305 East Sadosa, has been elected a commissioner to the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., which will meet in Indianapolis, May 20 to 27.

The General Assembly is the supreme governing body of the 3,102,572 member church. Matters of general interest that the Assembly may consider include spiritual healing and capital punishment.

Last May, two historic denominations—the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. and the United Presbyterian Church of North America—merged to form the United Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. Since then, the merger has been followed through on the local level, and there will be reports on how well it is proceeding.

While the rain was welcomed, everyone agreed it wasn't enough. Hopes continued high, however, because of the overcast skies. The rainfall was fairly general throughout the area.

Doing What... Comes Naturally

On the hottest afternoon, last week, Donna Horton, age 9, decided that she would like to do something to help build the new hospital wing. She told her secret to her little friend, Belinda Loring, and their first community work started. They built a stand for lemonade on the Horton's front lawn and after three hours, tired and blistered from the sun, they came gleefully to Donna's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Horton, and said: "We have sold $1.10 worth of lemonade and want to donate it to The Eastland Memorial Hospital."

The Hortons, not strangers to the hospital donations, knew that C. W. Hoffmann was making donated dollars count in the construction of the new hospital wing, so they sent Donna and Belinda to the Hoffmann home where they presented their money.

"Truly, the spirit of volunteer workers spring up naturally, as from fallen seed," Hoffmann said.

At this same time a year ago, the county had recorded 7.69 inches of rain. Average rainfall for the first four months is 7.31.

Not since rain records have been kept in the county (1911) has so little rainfall been recorded in the first four months of the year. Not even in the drought years was it so dry.

Farmers, ranchers and businessmen agree, however, that good moisture the rest of the year could still make this a good crop year. The area started off the year with good sub-moisture, and rain during the summer months would mean far more to the area than early months moisture.

Horton Shows Colored Slides Of Africa Trip

Eastland Rotarians insisting on seeing more films Monday when Jim Horton took them on a quick tour of Africa.

Horton, who has just returned from a voyage which began Jan. 26 and ended April 8, showed colored slides taken during the trip. Mrs. Horton accompanied him on the cruise.

Rotarians stayed 25 minutes past their usual time, urging Horton to show more of the slides.

Most interest was shown in pictures of wild animals taken with a telescopic lens.

Gray Matter

By JOE GRAY

Radio has had to step aside in some respects in the last few years to television, but radio is far from being dead. Some of us almost popped a socket when WFAA killed off the Early Bird Show but the demise of that show had little effect on radio as a media of communication and entertainment. About all killing the Early Birds did to radio was to cause a lot of listeners who had for years made habit to listen to the local station at the old Early Bird hour.

If a fellow is going to listen to phonograph records over a radio station he might as well listen to those played by his local station as listen to those played by a radio announcer in Dallas. After all, the local station has access to exactly the same records the city station has.

But it is interesting to me to notice that this week marks WFAA's 37th anniversary of broadcasting. That's a long time that's longer than a fellow would think radio has been an active industry until he stops to think a little about the passage of time.

WBAP was the first radio station I ever heard on the air. But I didn't quite hear it 37 years ago, only almost that far ago.

The first radio set I ever saw was owned by William Sewell. He's the same fellow who is the Midland banker, but then he was just a kid living at home with his parents. He and Charles Fagg and Gene Harrison must have had the first radio sets in Eastland. At least they had the first I remember. And in those days a radio set was a little differently engineered than it is now. Then the loud speaker was not as successful as it is and most radio listening was done by means of head-sets. These were ear-clamps that completely wrapped about the head and firmly fixed a earpiece in each ear.

Bill Sewell had one of the best of the early-day radios. He had some sort of extension or what the phone people nowadays call a jack, on his radio that allowed four or five people to listen at the same time. It used to be quite a treat for Bill to invite the neighbors over to his house for an evening of radioing. There we would sit huddled around the set, each with earphones on our ears and smiles on our faces, listening to the latest offering of the radio artists.

For good reception in those days an outside aerial, the higher and longer the better was a necessity. Bill had one on top of his house, the same house, by the way, that Dr. Ferguson now lives in, that was as high as South Ward schoolhouse and at least 100 feet long. The radio fever soon struck my father and he had to get himself a set. I don't know what make the first one he owned was but I do remember that he had at one time or other in the early days of listening an Atwater-Kent, at another time he had a Kennedy, and at another time he had a Griebel. All of these were well-known brands of superheterodyne sets. All of these sets my father owned were battery powered and there lies a story in itself.

The average radio in those days took a wet battery like the common automobile battery and a host of dry cells, depending on how powerful and how many tubes the radio set had. And it took quite a cabinet to hold all of the batteries and other pieces of equipment necessary to operate a radio. My mother wouldn't allow Dad to put all of the stuff in the house so he had to set his radio out in the shack in the backyard. And for several months, or it might have been years, when we wanted to listen to anything on the radio we had to go to the radio shack to listen. There was none of this sitting in the house and listening to the radio business then.

Among the stations we used to listen to of course was WBAP. I don't know whether this was the first station on the air in Texas or not. The other day Jack Gordon in the Fort Worth Press said that it wasn't the first station on the air in Fort Worth. He said that the old Fort Worth Record got on the air first by a few days with its old station WJR. That was news to me to read of this. Because that WJR was fast as it went on as WJR are the call letters of one of the nation's pioneer stations, but it's WJR in Detroit. The Detroit WJR is one of the stations we used to sit up late to listen to back in the battery-powered days.

Other stations on the air then were WFAA at Dallas which sometimes shared time with WBAP as it does now, but for a brief spell in the 20's. WFAA shared with KRLD at Dallas. And for a short time, if I remember this correctly, WBAP shared with some other station that I can't think of now, unless it was with KTHS, Hot Springs, Arkansas. The KTHS—Come to Hot Springs—began as a sort of odd operation. Nearly all its early announcers came from WBAP and in those days announcers didn't identify themselves by complete name, only their initials. Then after WFAA and WBAP were assigned the same wave length by the old Federal Radio Commission, KTHS shared time with KRLD of Dallas. This sort of thing went on up into the 30's.

Today WBAP and WFAA actually broadcast from the same transmitter. But this was not always the case. For a long time in the early days of radio WBAP actually had more power than (Continued on Page Two) was located in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram building and I haven't the faintest idea what the real power of that transmitter was. I doubt if it was over 250 or 500 watts at the most. Later as WBAP grew in power and wisdom and in listener appreciation the Star-Telegram people moved the transmitter out to the shores of Lake Worth and installed a powerful 2,500 watt. That was real broadcasting. And when WBAP signed off then for WFAA to come on the air one had to wait a few minutes for the other station to warm up and it took a mighty good radio in this part of the country to get WFAA. This is the sort of thing that went on until the WFAA and WBAP combination got the super-power transmitter and a cleared channel. A cleared channel means that that station is the only station on the air in the United States, Canada, and Mexico after dark. Actually a look through White's Radio Log of American, Canadian and Mexican stations, I find that there are two frequencies that have only one station on that frequency at any time. These two frequencies are WGN, Chicago, and WOAI, San Antonio. In other words there are no other stations on the air at any time, day or night, on the frequencies assigned to these two

But isn't that complete in the stations. case of WFAA and WBAP. Some time during the days since the establishment of cleared-channel frequencies the Federal Communication Commission has assigned daytime stations to frequencies that the later-assigned stations can't use at night, because radio waves travel farther in the nighttime than they do in the daytime. Thus we find that Ohio State University now has a station on 820, WOSU, Columbus. Also is a Chicago station on 820, but both of these stations have to sign off the air at legal sundown. Thus WBAP and WFAA do have a cleared channel on the 820 frequency. At the time WBAP got its 50,000-watt permit WFAA, which also shares the same frequency and naturally ought to be the same power, the Dallas News station agreed to use the same transmitter and the old Lake Worth transmitter went the way of old radio stations. These two stations were the first super-powered newspaper-owned radio stations in the United States and they were eight, I think it was, in the whole list of super-power (50,000 watt of power) in the country. WBAP was also one of the charter members of the National Broadcasting Company when that chair broadcasting outfit went on the air with its programs, bringing programs direct from Chicago and New York to our local broadcasting point. About that time my father got his Majestic radio, which had a battery converter and we moved into the living room with radio and ever since then we've had a radio or two around the house. With the converter we didn't have to worry about recharging the batteries, which was always a problem in the early day of radio, and got about the same service out of radio as you get out of the all-electric sets of today. By the way, there was something about the old battery-powered sets that I personally liked. When you turned the set on it immediately started playing. There was no warm-up period with those old battery sets, and that I think was one advantage over the modern set. Some of my favorite programs then were the A and P Gypsies. I think these people were on every morning, but I'm not sure. Also I liked to listen to Billy Jones and Ernie Hare, the Interwoven Pair. The were a couple of male songbirds who did singing bits for the Interwoven Sock people. That's where they got their name of Interwoven Pair. Another good program that was on the air every day for a full hour was the National Farm and Home Hour. There is a remnant of that program still on the air today. It's heard each Saturday on NBC at 12:30 noon and is sponsored by the International Harvester Company and it's still called the National Farm and Home Hour although it only lasts a half hour. Thirty-seven years WBAP has been on the air. Many a person has listened to the old Hired Hand broadcast a Fort Worth Cat baseball game or announce the Sunflower Girl from Kansas on old WBAP. Of all the announcers I've heard in my day the standard I use to measure their worth to the public by is, "How do they compare with the Hired Hand?" And the Hired Hand is still around. I don't know why he called himself the Hired Hand. It must be that almost everyone associated with radio then was somewhat ashamed of what they were doing and didn't want to brag about it too much as some of their better and more influential friends might find out what they were doing.

ODDS: 7 TO 1—There's one chance in seven that Navy Lt. Malcolm Scott Carpenter, 37, above, will become the first man to be placed in orbit around the earth two or more years hence. Scott, of Garden Grove, Calif., is one of the seven Mercury Astronauts chosen for special space flight training. He's shown at Wright Air Development Center, Dayton, Ohio, undergoing tests at a temperature of 130 degrees Fahrenheit.

But the Hired Hand is still radioing. He is now the boss, as he was then, of WBAP. His name is listed in the Star-Telegram among its officers every time the paper has to publish its statement of ownership, circulation and it officers. I think he is a vice president of the company. His name is Harold Hough and I strongly suspect he knows about as much about radio broadcasting as an industry as any man in the country. If he doesn't, he knows more about crystal-set days than any man alive. It's good to know WBAP has been of such good service to the public for 37 years.

Who's on Who's Back-

... is a timely question in insurance circles. Every insurance buyer should know that he is helping to carry the load inflicted by the careless driver... the homeowner who allows hazards to exist on his premises... the person who abuses the broken glass privilege... the householder who overloads electrical circuits... the juror who allows himself to be swayed by emotional pleas for sympathy... to name only a few which cause premiums to rise. When an insured loss occurs, the cost must be reflected in the premiums you pay in the future. So do your part to help prevent careless claims. Join the drive to keep needless insurance costs down... not to run them up.

EARL BENDER & COMPANY
 Eastland, (Insurance since 1924) Texas

Dear Mr. Dick:

A picture, recently taken by you and published in The Houston Post, April 28, 1959, showing the deer with unborn fawns killed by outlaw, or illegal, hunters, has been brought to the attention of many game and wildlife conservation groups.

We are constantly working to prevent such acts and are respectfully recommending to our legislature that more adequate laws be enacted to conserve our wildlife resources. One such recommendation is embodied in House Bill 235 (Richardson), which amends our present trespass law. The enclosed copy of the bill (with committee amendments) is forwarded for your information. The background for this amendment, and the comparison between our present law and the proposed amendment, is also enclosed. "Dogs", as used in the original bill, were deleted by one of the committee amendments.

The bill is now on the suspension calendar, and it is hoped Mr. Waggoner Carr, the Speaker of the House, will call for the bill on Monday, May 4, 1959. If not, we will try to have it considered in a special session, which will be a difficult thing to do.

If you feel as we do that the bill is fair and absolutely necessary, I would appreciate your support and any good word which might be sent from your area to Mr. Carr, on, or before, Monday, May 4th.

Am also enclosing a progress report which our Regional committee made to district committees concerning our program for 1958 and 1959.

We admire anyone who is as interested as you in exposing such law violations and hope, through our combined efforts, we can reduce these illegal acts, and thereby conserve the wildlife resources of the State.

Yours, for better wildlife conservation,
 Geo. T. Jambers, Jr.

IT'S THE LAW
 in Texas
 A public service feature of the State Bar of Texas

LAW NOT AN EXACT SCIENCE
 Many people have the impression that a lawyer can tell them with finality what the law is in any and every fact situation. Few realize that in many instances the lawyer, like the doctor, can only give his expert opinion on the state of the law as applied to a particular set of facts.

There are some fact situations, which arise repeatedly, where the law is well settled, and the lawyer can state with considerable conviction the exact rule of law applicable. However, in many situations, the lawyer, after studying the statutes and the court decisions that are applicable, can only give his best judgement as to what a court would hold the law to be as applied to the particular set of facts presented to him.

How does a lawyer learn how to advise clients on legal questions? First, he must have had six or seven years of academic education. In Texas this means at least three years of college work and three years in a recognized law school. Because the community at large has an interest in the qualifications and conduct of members of the bar, these minimum educational requirements must be met before examination for admission to the bar may be taken.

During the three years of formal legal education, the law student attempts to read, digest, reconcile and understand from 10,000 to 20,000 separate cases, students, and monographs. He must draw from these an understanding of basic legal principles, of processes of legal reasoning, of methods of fact and legal investigation, and of court procedures which bring relief to clients.

In both counselling and litigation, a lawyer must draw upon a wealth of precedent which he has attempted to store in his memory in order to apply one or more principles of law to the fact situation presented by his client. Ordinarily, any legal principles and rules of statute or decision are involved in even the simplest situation. Too, the problems raised by various clients, like fingerprints, are never exactly the same.

After searching his memory, the lawyer will usually check the pertinent rules and precedents. These are found in an ever-increasing volume of statutes with which modern legislation seeks to regulate many aspects of our life, and in the decisions of the courts, boards and bureaus.

Almost every problem presented to a lawyer requires in the statutes and law books before a proper answer can be given.

Therefore, you will not receive an immediate answer to your problem from your lawyer, unless it is of the most elemental type. Your lawyer should, and you should give him time to, form his opinions from the authoritative statutes and decisions. You should also understand that, due to the constant fluctuations in our laws, he will sometimes be able to give you only an informal opinion rather than an absolute statement of the law

Pecan Trees Need Protection In Early Spring

College Station, April—The pecan tree must be protected from attack by the many destructive diseases and insects that affect it to produce a bountiful crop.

Pecans are attacked by more than 20 species of insects that cause damage to leaves, nuts, twigs, bugs, branches and even the bark.

Diseases that affect the pecan, especially those caused by fungi, are rapidly spread throughout an orchard in the early spring. During this season of frequent rains, spores of the disease fungi germinate and invade young, tender tissues of the shoots, leaves and nuts.

The many destructive insects applicable to your situation.

(This column, prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

and diseases must be controlled for successful pecan production. The grower must understand the nature and habits of the various disease and insect pests that threaten his crop and use certain cultural practices which help to reduce damage. The Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and Texas Agricultural Extension Service have joined to publish a bulletin which can be very helpful to growers faced with this problem. It is entitled

"Pecan Diseases and Insects and Their Control." This 19-page bulletin contains discussions of characteristics, type of damage and control of almost all the major diseases and insects which damage pecan trees.

Mail-Order Obscenity Business Can Be Destroyed If Public Wants Action

(Ed. Note: This is the second of two articles published in the public interest on the growing threat of obscene mail and what can be done about it. This article explains how the American public can drive the dealers in obscenity out of business.)

The American public, if it wants to, can destroy the half billion dollar a year mail-order business in obscenity which is having such disastrous effects on teen-age youngsters, Postmaster Marene Johnson stated today.

The judgment as to what is obscene is actually in the hands of the citizens of Eastland and other communities throughout the nation, the Postmaster emphasized; and the final judge in these matters is the conscience of these awakened communities.

"We can clean up the mails in our county if enough citizens become aware of the seriousness of this problem and use their influence to do so," Postmaster Johnson said. "We must do so to protect our homes, curb juvenile delinquency, and prevent the poisoning of the minds of our children."

All the average citizen needs do if his home is invaded by unorderly and unwanted mail soliciting the sale of filthy, lewd and lascivious films, slides, pictures or other obscene and pornographic material is to complain to the Post Office Department. This is done by mailing the objectionable material itself, and the envelope it came in, with a signed note of protest to the local Postmaster. An investigation is then made by the Post Office Department's Inspection Service. If their findings justify action to ban the material from the mails, the Department's General Counsel then issues such an order. If the sender of the obscene literature protests the Department's ruling, the matter may then be taken to the nearest United States District Court for decision.

Where the material in question is clearly pornographic, criminal action is usually taken by the local prosecuting authorities with the cooperation of the Post Office Department. Convictions in such cases provide for both jail and dollar fines for the dealers in obscenity.

Testimony given recently in Washington by Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield before the Subcommittee of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee indicates that no longer do dealers in smut and dirty pictures serve only a few adults. Instead, they are increasingly soliciting youngsters, sending their unwanted and unsorted material indiscriminately and without conscience, into the homes of the nation.

The postmaster emphasized that the Post Office Department is intensifying its efforts to clean up the mails. Its chief opposition in doing so comes from those who reap huge profits from unrestricted mailings, and from some misguided individuals who confuse liberty with license, and in so doing, unwittingly give aid to these dealers in obscenity.

Congressman Kathryn E. Granahan, Chairman of the House Post Office and Civil Service Subcommittee on Obscene Literature, aptly summed up this apparent confusion in the minds of some recently by stating "There are those who express concern about their constitutional right of free speech and free press. I would like to point out in this connection that there are many situations where a certain freedom might apply to adults but will not apply to children. For example, the selling of alcoholic beverages to minors is prohibited; children under a certain age are not permitted to drive an automobile; and they are not admitted to see certain movies if they are minors. However, experience clearly demonstrates that the wholesale circulation and uncontrolled dissemination of obscene material always brings a good deal of it into the hands of children and teen-age youth."

Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield, in discussing the scope of this social menace, has publicly stated that "It is my deep conviction — frequently expressed to individual members of this Congressional Committee, religious and educational leaders, newspaper editors and citizen groups that one of the most serious moral and social problems in the United States today is the multi-million dollar mail order traffic in obscenity."

"In spite of the frustrations and the legal complications, and even the court decisions, I feel a responsibility to the public to attempt to prevent the use of the mails for indecent material, and to seek indictments and prosecutions for such offenses, even though it may be argued that it falls in the category of material concerning which there have been previous rulings favorable to the promoters. It seems to me that only by this method can the dimensions of this problem become clearly established before the courts and the Congress and the American public."

Grain Loss In 1957-58 Over 20 Million Bushels

COLLEGE STATION — Small grain losses due to diseases in the excessively wet seasons of 1957 and 1958 were estimated to be more than 20,000,000 bushels.

Damage to the crop may result in reduced stands, reduction in amount or quality of forage or in reduced yields and quality of the grain produced.

Diseases which caused these losses are discussed in a bulletin released by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station titled, "Diseases of Small Grain in Texas".

The control or reduction of losses from many small grain diseases in Texas is not only of local importance, but has national and international significance. The fall infection, winter survival and spring increase in South Texas of airborne pathogens, such as the cereal rusts, may endanger the small grain crops throughout Texas and other states.

Disease of wheat, which consistently cause losses or are potentially dangerous to the crop, include leaf rust, stem rust, speckled leaf blotch and loose and covered smut or bunt. These and diseases less frequently found are discussed and control measures are suggested where known.

The two most serious diseases of oats in Texas are crown rust and the Helminthosporium blights. These are described along with stem rust, smuts, Septoria diseases, powdery mildew and yellow dwarf. The control measures for reducing losses are given.

Net blotch, leaf rust, mildew and the smuts which cause some damage to barley nearly every year are discussed. Bacterial blight, false stripe, scald and yellow dwarf which are less frequent in Texas are also discussed. The suggested means for controlling or reducing these losses are given.

For a copy of the bulletin write the Agricultural Information Office, College Station. Ask for B-921.

4 letters that spell peace

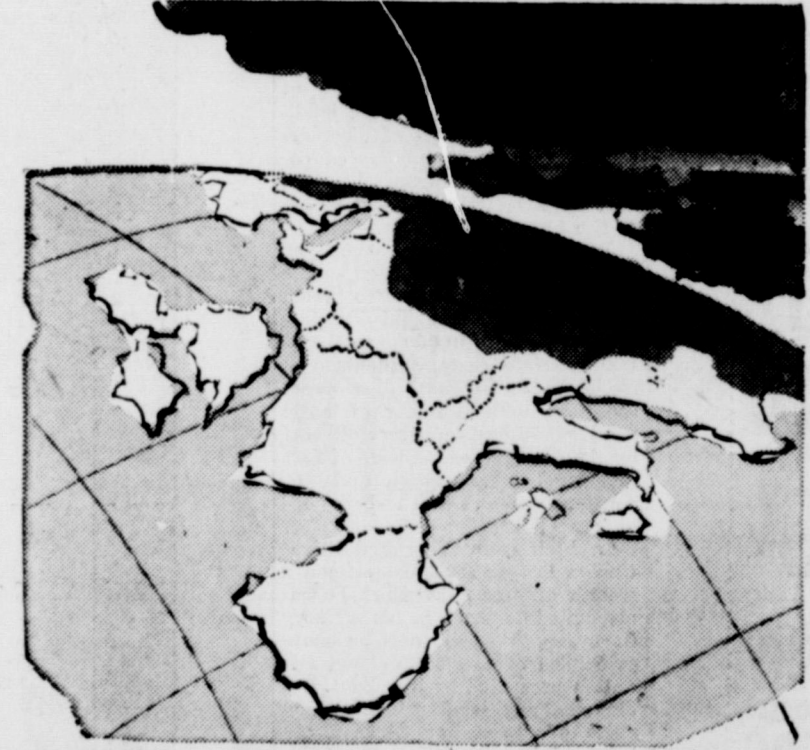

What is NATO? It stands for North Atlantic Treaty Organization, an alliance of 15 free nations, including the United States, which have banded together to protect themselves against aggression. These nations are Belgium, Canada, Denmark, France, Germany, Greece, Iceland, Italy, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Turkey, the United Kingdom and the United States.

What is its purpose? Primarily, NATO is a military alliance, but its great purpose is peace, not war. The 15 members of NATO have pledged that they will regard an attack upon any one of them as an attack upon all. They have also pledged to work together politically and to increase their ability to defend themselves by self-help and mutual aid.

How does NATO function? Each of the 15 member nations is represented in important discussions held regularly. Their main function is to defend a line which stretches from the Aleutians to the Middle East. A line which is manned by Greek patrol boats, Norwegian ski troops, French engineers, Canadian jet pilots—strength to which every NATO country contributes.

What has it accomplished? Before NATO Russia had seized country after country—enslaved 90 million people. The Soviets threatened to engulf the whole of Europe... ultimately to dominate the world. Since NATO not an inch of territory has been lost in the Atlantic area. And by sharing our obligations this 10-year watch has cost us less than a few months of the cost of World War II.

What is its future? So long as there remains a threat to liberty, NATO has a job to do. Slowly a strong shield of freedom has emerged. Secure behind this shield, the peoples of the Atlantic community are working together toward greater political, economic and social well-being.

NATO needs your support

New challenges face NATO every day. It can meet them and grow even stronger... but only if all NATO nations continue to work together in that spirit of co-operation that first made NATO possible. NATO deserves your support to this end. For the full story on NATO write for the free booklet. Write: NATO Information Box 88, New York 21, N.Y.

WHAT MAKES AN OLDS RIDE SO WELL?

It all starts with a 9-inch wider frame . . . Oldsmobile's exclusive Wide-Stance Chassis!

When it comes to designing an automobile for superior riding qualities, the key engineering word is balance.

That's why Oldsmobile brings you the Wide-Stance Chassis—plus an exclusive frame construction with the best stability and security factors of both "X" and cross-member construction. There are stabilizer bars front and rear.

Big, smooth-acting front coil springs team up with wide, play-mounted rear springs that automatically damp road shock. And the springing system is further assisted by direct-action, outboard shock absorbers.

But for you, the important thing is the result! You've heard of smooth, road-hugging rides before . . . but you actually have to drive a '59 Olds to experience the marvelous difference in its ride. Now that it's Spring . . . why not join us and take that ride?
