

School board saves taxpayers $144,858 by doing nothing

By JULIA CLARK
Staff Writer

The Pampa Independent School Board of Trustees decided not to spend $144,858 over the next five years on a new computer system at the regular meeting of the board Tuesday.

Because IBM has come out with a new system since the bids were closed and because the district wants to be sure what kind of system will best suit its needs the board elected to reject all bids at this time.

The board did accept the bids submitted to purchase volleyball and basketball equipment for next year.

In order to take advantage of cooperative purchasing, thereby saving the district money, the board approved spending $75 a year to join the are Council of Governments (Panhandle Regional Planning Commission).

Board of Trustees President Wallace Birkes presented certificates of appreciation to seven retiring teachers. Retiring at the end of this school year are: Stella Kiser after 40 years; Myrle Norman, 32 years; Gilliland, 27 years; Marvin Bowman, 25 years; Beth Bowman, 24 years; and Mary Nelle Gunter, 24 years.

Resignations were accepted and employment of other new teachers were approved at the meeting.

After a short discussion, the board decided to engage the services of Lewis Meers, Certified Public Accounts, to do the PISD audit for the fiscal year ending August 31, 1983.

In other business the board approved a request by the Pampa Middle School Student Council to erect a marble sign on the school's front lawn designating PMS as the "Home of the Patriots" and "In memory of our Coach and Friend - Pete Erwin."

The high school band was granted permission to participate in the University Interscholastic League State Marching Contest in Austin in November and permission to enter Texas Music Educators Association Honor Band Selection.

The budget report and due bills and invoices were reviewed and accepted.

McLean teens still listed as critical

By LORI-ANN D'ANTONIO
Staff Writer

Two McLean teenagers who were injured in separate accidents on Sunday and Monday were reported to be in fair to critical condition this morning at area hospitals.

Sherry McLain, 16, of the Johnson Ranch west of McLean, was reported to be in critical condition in the Intensive Care Unit of Northwest Texas Hospital this morning.

She was transferred to NWTH Monday night after she was involved in a motorcycle accident with her cousin, Michelle Nobles, who also lives on the ranch. It was incorrectly reported in Tuesday's Pampa News that the passenger on the motorcycle was McLain's sister. Nobles suffered a dislocated knee in the accident.

McLain was wearing a helmet when the accident occurred. Details of the accident were unclear, but McLain and Nobles were thrown over the front of the cycle, rescue workers said. McLain suffered a closed head injury which necessitated her transfer to NWTH.

Billy Joe Skipper Jr., of McLean, who was injured in an accident early Sunday morning, was reported to be in fair condition this morning at Coronado Community Hospital. He suffered broken ribs and facial lacerations in the wreck, and was brought to the hospital at about 3 a.m. Sunday.

Skipper's passenger in the 1982 GMC, James W. Daniels, also of McLean, was treated and released at CCH. Daniels suffered a broken nose and multiple facial lacerations. The pickup apparently ran off the road and into a ditch two miles north of Alanreed.

Texans tell feds where to put their hot trash

'We don't want violence, but guns won the West' said Tulia resident

TULIA, Texas (AP) — The government's unpopular proposal to bury high-level nuclear wastes under fertile Panhandle farmland has met with threats of violence from the residents of this traditionally conservative region.

U.S. Department of Energy officials held hearings Monday in Hereford and here Tuesday and planned a third and final Texas meeting tonight in Austin. Gov. Mark White and Attorney General Jim Mattox were scheduled to testify.

"We don't want violence — but guns won the West," Wylie Byrd, a Swisher County manufacturer bitterly opposed to the proposal, told the federal officials Tuesday night. "You are 20 miles from the last Indian fight in America, which was only 80 years ago."

Byrd, owner of Roll-a-Cone, was referring to a sweep across the High Plains of Texas in 1874 by Col. Ranald Mackenzie, who led troops of the 4th Cavalry on a surprise raid of a Comanche Indian camp, burning their village and slaughtering most of their 1,400 horses.

In a similar hearing on Monday night in Hereford, a farmer warned the Energy Department representatives to be prepared for "guerrilla warfare" if they tried to take nuclear wastes to a proposed site in Deaf Smith County, 12 miles northeast of Hereford.

Tulia and Hereford, both in the Panhandle, are among nine sites the Energy Department is considering for an $8 billion project, in which almost 1.5 million pounds of nuclear waste each year would be buried in shafts drilled a half mile underground.

Opponents of the project are concerned that heat from the radioactive wastes would rise through the earth and eventually penetrate the Ogallala Aquifer, a large, underground water formation that is the main supplier of water — both for irrigation and drinking purposes — for the Panhandle and South Plains.

A resolution passed Monday by the Texas Senate called on Congress not to allow the Energy Department to authorize any high-level nuclear waste repositories in Texas.

Under a bill passed this spring by the Senate, any project such as the DOE's proposed drilling near Hereford must guarantee that no wastes be leaked into the aquifer, which supplies irrigation waters for farmers from Nebraska to New Mexico.

The bill, sponsored by Canyon Democrat Bill Sarpalius, requires the state Department of Water Resources to approve any plan to drill shafts through Texas' part of the aquifer. The measure is pending in the Texas House.

Otis Harman, president of the Texas Wheat Growers Association, said the group adopted a resolution opposing the storage of nuclear waste in the Panhandle, which produces 25 million bushels of wheat each year — much of it irrigated by water from the Ogallala Aquifer.

Swisher County Judge Jay Johnson objected what he said was the most toxic waste ever known to man having to be transported over Panhandle roads.

Delbert L. Devin, president of a Swisher County group known as Serious Texans Against Nuclear Dumping (STAND), urged that the project be put on hold until guidelines can be developed and then discussed at public hearings.

Five Texans in Congress are millionaires

By T. LEE HUGHES

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas has lived up to its reputation as a land of wealth and swagger by sending the U.S. House nearly a quarter of its millionaires.

Of the 435 House members, 21 reported minimum assets last year of more than $1 million. Five of the 21 were Texans, according to financial disclosure reports released Tuesday.

The reports also showed that at least six of the 27 Texas congressmen had income, not including congressional salaries, of $50,000 or more last year.

And ten received more than $5,000 each in honoraria — generally payments for speeches to interest or constituent groups.

The five Texans with more than $1 million in assets are all Democrats:

Sam B. Hall of Marshall; Ralph M. Hall of Rockwall; Jack Brooks of Beaumont; Marvin Leath of Marlin and Tom Vandergriff of Arlington.

Sam Hall reported assets of at least $1.56 million, Ralph Hall of $2.14 million, Brooks of $1.69 million, Leath of $1.16 million and Vandergriff of $1.52 million.

In each instance, the figure is a minimum tally of assets and the actual figure could range much higher.

Congressmen are not required to precisely disclose their financial resources, only to provide figures showing a minimum and maximum limit.

Assets of the five included stock in a wide range of companies, land holdings, oil and gas royalties, or partnerships in various firms.

The five also reported rather extensive liabilities, ranging from at least $165,000 for Leath to at least $1.27 million for Vandergriff.

Texas congressmen reporting liabilities of $500,000 or more were Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin, at least $605,000; Ralph Hall, $815,000, and Vandergriff.

At the other end of the scale, two Texas congressmen, Kika de la Garza, D-Mission, and Henry B. Gonzalez, D-San Antonio, listed no assets on their financial disclosure reports.

The reports do not require disclosure of assets such as a personal automobile or home, or of any asset with a fair market value of less than $1,000.

Texas reporting non-congressional income of $50,000 or more last year were John W. Bryant, D-Dallas, at least $309,000; Brooks, $132,000; Leath, $232,000; Kent Hance, D-Lubbock, $108,000; Mike Andrews, D-Houston, $112,000 and Vandergriff, $332,000.

As with the figures for assets, the income figures are a minimum and could range much higher. Bryant, Andrews and Vandergriff were first elected last November, and were not members of Congress for the period when their income was received.

The biggest recipient of honoraria was House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Fort Worth, who reported that he received $20,550 in speaking and writing fees, of which he contributed $1,350 to charity.

Others receiving more than $5,000 in honoraria were Wilson, $7,588; Phil Gramm, R-College Station, $17,650; Jake Pickle, D-Austin, $5,000; De La Garza, $10,500; Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford, $11,740; Mickey Leland, D-Houston, $6,500; Tom Loeffler, R-Hunt, $11,600; Ron Paul, R-Lake Jackson, $7,500 and Hance, $19,750, of which he contributed $1,560 to charity.

Texas Senate wants no nuclear dumps in state

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate has asked Congress not to authorize any nuclear waste dumps in Texas.

The resolution was sent to all Texas congressmen by a 24-6 vote Tuesday but only after a sharp argument over the effects of such resolutions.

"This is nothing but a vehicle for demagoguery," shouted Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur.

The resolution by Sen. Bill Sarpalius, D-Hereford, called on Congress not to allow the Department of Energy to authorize any high-level nuclear waste repositories in Texas. Two sites are being considered, in Swisher and Deaf Smith counties.

DOE public hearings were held in Hereford and Tulia Monday and Tuesday and one is scheduled in Austin Wednesday.

"We would just like for our congressmen to know that the Texas Senate is behind them in opposing any storage of nuclear wastes in Texas," Sarpalius said.

He said that Gov. Mark White, Attorney General Jim Mattox and he would testify at the Austin hearing.

"This is a fraud on the people you represent to pass something like this and then go home and tell them that you did something for them," Parker told Sarpalius.

"What you are doing is giving false hopes that the Texas Senate can do something about it."

"We feel like our congressmen will support this and we want to let them know the Texas Senate is behind them," Sarpalius said.

New assistant DA looks forward to the challenge of helping Hardin

By LORI-ANN D'ANTONIO
Staff Writer

New assistant district attorney Mark Baskett said he took the job in Pampa to broaden his experience in practicing law.

Baskett, 27, a native of Amarillo, has worked for the Potter County attorney's office for the last two years. When former Potter County attorney John Tull was replaced by Bill Baumann, Baskett was assigned less trial work. He took the job as assistant to 31st and 223rd District Attorney Guy Hardin so he could do more trial work of various types.

Since his graduation from the Texas Tech University Law School in 1980, Baskett said, he has done every kind of trial work. He has tried cases in j.p., municipal, county, constitutional county, district and federal courts. In addition, he has written briefs for the Seventh Court of Appeals in Amarillo.

Baskett is licensed to practice law in the State of Texas, the Northern Division of U.S. District Court, and the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals. He said he is looking forward to trying cases in his new district, and he's no stranger to Pampa and its lawyers.

"I've worked with several Pampa lawyers in Amarillo, including Harold Comer and Rowdy Bowers," he said. "Guy and I have discussed the job and the way he wants things done. I'll pretty much try whichever cases he wants me to do."

Baskett was born in Amarillo and graduated from Tascosa High School in 1974, and West Texas State University in 1977 before going to Texas Tech. He is the son of Glenn and Faye Baskett of Amarillo. His brother married a Pampa native, the former Kathy Huffines. Mark, however, is single.

Although he now lives in Amarillo and commutes daily, he is leasing his house in the city and considering a move to Pampa. He said he is looking forward to helping on the murder trials of Michael Anderson and Jaime Meza.

He has also done extensive work with the Texas Department of Human Resources on child abuse and juvenile court cases. He has also worked on murder cases in Amarillo as old as 12 years old. He started the job on May 12.

Square House shows rare paintings

PANHANDLE — Drive over to the Square House Museum in Panhandle and see the 16th and 17th-Century European paintings now on display, invites director Marvin T. Shickles.

"A Golden Age of Painting" displayed through June 13 is drawing school groups and others from across the Panhandle, Shickles said. The display features paintings by Flemish, German and Dutch artists of the 16th and 17th Centuries. The paintings are on loan to the museum from the Sarah Campbell Blaffer Foundation. Displayed are the works of such masters as Peter Paul Rubens, Hieronymus Bosch, Jan Steen and Anthony van Dyck.

"Children and adult groups are encouraged to schedule a tour of this special exhibit. Pre-tour packets are available free of charge to teachers, pastors, and church educators," Shickles said.

The museum's Summer Youth Arts Program this year offers classes in Panhandle, White Deer and Groom. At each town this summer, the museum volunteers will hold classes on pioneer life and Indian lore.

"The Pioneers class will learn about life in dugouts by learning some of the household chores of the early settlers, such as making butter, cooking over cow chips and making ice cream. Indian Lore students will learn to bead, make baskets and grind corn," the director said.

Other subjects offered during this summer's youth program include beginning ceramics, advanced ceramics, dog obedience, cooking, bike rodeo, toy workshop, tea party, kites, family genealogy, star gazing, archaeology, local lore, art-reach workshops, country and western dancing, folk-art acrylics and Polish egg decorating.

Also, a special summer youth class offers hands-on training in the television business for junior and senior high school students. In cooperation with KVII TV, Amarillo College, K-Mart and the Texas Commission on the Arts, students who take the July class will make a 30-second public-service television commercial about local history and the Texas Sesquicentennial. The "Sesquicentennial Minute" the students make will air on KVII in the fall and will be available to stations around the state through 1986.

The Square House Museum this year also hosts the Carson County Art Show, Museum Day, Docent Training, Family Film Night, a bluegrass concert, and a new spotlighted exhibit each month.

For more information about any of the museum's programs, call 537-3118.

Coronado to learn Medicare limits

Coronado Community Hospital officials will attend a seminar this week to learn about new Medicare cost-control rules.

The medical seminar in Houston was called to discuss changes in the way hospitals will be reimbursed by the government for treatment of Medicare patients.

The new rules put a cap on how much Medicare will pay for a particular treatment. The new system places a predetermined maximum pay ceiling on categories of treatment based on a doctor's diagnosis, regardless of the length of a hospital stay, according to CCH officials. The formula is based on diagnosis-related groups (DRG's) of illnesses.

Under the new system, Medicare officials would set a fixed payment for certain types of treatment, and any cost above the limit must be absorbed by the hospital.

CCH Administrator Norman Knox said the proposed changes are the biggest since Medicare was established.

weather

The forecast calls for partly cloudy and cooler weather today, with the high expected to be in the upper 60s and winds out of the north at 10 to 20 mph. Tonight will be fair and cold with the low in the low 40s and winds out of the north at 10 to 10 mph. Thursday will be partly cloudy with the high near 70 and northerly winds at 10 to 20 mph.

Climber who scales Houston building may be in tall trouble

HOUSTON (AP) — A 21-year-old man who scaled the glass exterior of Houston's second-tallest skyscraper and parachuted to the ground may have violated an 18-month probation sentence for a similar offense, a U.S. magistrate in California said.

David Adcock remained jailed today in lieu of $20,000 in bonds on one count of criminal trespassing and one of evading arrest, said Harris County Sheriff's Maj. C.W. Rust.

Nine months ago, Adcock was placed on 18 months' probation after he parachuted off a 3,000-foot peak in Yosemite National Park in northern California, U.S. Magistrate Donald Pitts said. Adcock could be reprimanded for violating his probation, Pitts said.

Adcock, wearing a mask, a blue jumpsuit and a blue flight wig, leaped from the 68th floor of the Allied Bank Tower in downtown Houston Monday night.

He used three suction cups in his 15-hour ascent and spiraled around the face of the 71-story, 970-foot building.

Adcock was the second such "urban mountaineer" here in less than three months. On March 14, Ron Broyles, a Hollywood stunt man, scaled the 75-story Texas Commerce Tower, the tallest skyscraper west of the Mississippi River.

Adcock, who called himself the "Blue Bandit," paused several minutes, unfurled the U.S. and Texas flags, donned a parasail and inserted a wooden platform in a slot in the building.

Finally he stood on the board, waved to the crowd below and jumped. He floated several blocks away and ran into a parking garage, where he was arrested.

Adcock said he climbed the skyscraper "purely for satisfaction" but admitted the jump was premature because the platform cracked.

"I'd like to say I jumped, but I kind of fell," he said.

"Just as I turned around, the board broke, so I just pushed as hard as I could," he said Tuesday. "I had to kick my legs around to keep my balance."

Adcock's mother, Carol Stanley of Houston, said her son refused to let her bail him out. She said Adcock was delighted with his newfound fame.

"I think it served the purpose," she said of the climb. "It was for notoriety. He was very happy about it."

Assistant District Attorney John Petrucci said Adcock faces up to six months in the Harris County jail and a $1,000 fine on each of the two charges.

But Adcock may have more to worry about than the charges filed in Houston.

He was arrested Aug. 23, 1982, after he parachuted off El Capitan, a 3,000-foot peak, Pitts said.

Adcock pleaded guilty to a federal charge of "air delivery by parachute without a permit," or cliff jumping, Pitts said. He fined Adcock $500 and gave him an 18-month probation sentence.

He said the climber also was allowed to pay the $500 fine in monthly installments of $50 and "our records indicate he's $250 behind in his fine payments."

"This court is issuing a summons for him to appear here for violation of probation," Pitts said. He said Adcock will have one month to appear.

Pitts said Adcock could be reprimanded or jailed for six months.

It's Nat'l Police Officers Week

National Police Week, established by a joint Congressional resolution in 1961, began Sunday. Sunday was also National Peace Officers Memorial Day.

Pampa Police Chief J. J. Ryzman said the department has several activities planned for the week.

"Without the understanding support of their wives police officers would have an even harder time functioning in their jobs," Ryzman said. The department honored Jo Laramore with a certificate of appreciation designed especially for police officers' wives Friday.

The department will present Certificates of Appreciation to the Crime Stoppers board of directors, and the three pilots who donated their time to bring the Dallas Cowboys basketball team to Pampa. The Junior Service League, a group of people from the community who volunteer their time to help in such special projects as Identi-Kid, and the police officers' association will also receive certificates of appreciation, the chief said.

Saturday will be the big day, Ryzman said. The police department will have a big display at the Pampa Mall. The display will feature a booth for finger-printing children.

Anyone in the community and out-lying areas who has not had his children fingerprinted can come to the mall Saturday and have it done, the chief said. The sheet containing the children's fingerprints will be given as a permanent record to the parents. There will be no other copy of the prints made, he said.

Also on display will be crime prevention information, drug displays and balloons for the children.

Having trouble with the boss? Try this

An employer-employee relations seminar will be held Thursday in the Hughes building penthouse-top floor - from 6-11 p.m.

Jim Finkenbinder and Dave Brummett, counselors, will teach the seminar dealing with employee-employer relations. They teach ways of dealing with inter-office conflict.

Usually this problem is a conflict between two or more people. This seminar is designed to stop the problem which bothers the whole office, said the counselors.

In Brief

WASHINGTON — A lopsided House vote to repeal withholding of taxes from interest and dividends throws the issue back to the Senate and fuels a debate over the influence of lobbyists in Congress. President Reagan, meanwhile, appears to be backing away from threats to veto the legislation.

PHILADELPHIA — Former mayor Frank L. Rizzo is defeated in his comeback bid as W. Wilson Goode captures the Democratic primary.

WASHINGTON — President Reagan says he is looking forward to prompt approval of the MX missile by Congress, which will "show the Soviets that we Americans stand united" in efforts to reduce nuclear arms.

WASHINGTON — With special envoy Philip Habib opening new talks on withdrawing foreign forces from Lebanon, President Reagan says he is confident Syria will overcome its reservations and join Israel in agreeing to a troop pullback.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — A year ago today, seven women began a fast that lasted 37 days, hoping to inspire ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment. They failed, but all say the experience of living on water and prayer deepened their commitment to feminism.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — Edith Johnson, who teaches third and fourth graders, knows all about Florida's controversial teacher licensing test. She flunked it twice. Florida has had standardized testing for teachers since 1980, but the exams have been overshadowed by the publicity given recently to the state's functional literacy tests for students.

House passes DWI bill, rejects amendment

AUSTIN (AP) — Attempts to amend a tough DWI measure with a ban on open alcohol containers in vehicles failed in the House, but did trigger belated committee action on a separate bill to outlaw drinking while driving.

A compromise DWI bill increasing penalties for all levels of the offense was tentatively approved by the House 142-3 Tuesday.

Rep. Carlyle Smith, D-Grand Prairie, tried to add the open container measure to the DWI bill, but Speaker Gib Lewis sustained a point of order that the amendment was not germane.

Open container legislation has been bottled up in the House Liquor Regulation Committee where a majority of the members oppose it.

Smith offered another amendment that would have increased DWI penalties if the offender had an open container in the vehicle, but it was rejected 65-78 after Rep. Wayne Peveto, D-Orange, surprised the House by saying his Criminal Jurisprudence Committee could report out an open container bill.

Peveto said the measure was hidden in one of the 21 DWI bills that were referred to his committee early in the session. He said the committee never acted on it, "because it was not our jurisdiction and I didn't think it was proper to take it up."

He said the full committee would consider the measure today. But the Senate sponsor of an open container ban, Sen. Bill Sarpalius, D-Hereford, has said he has been unable to find the Senate votes to even debate such a bill.

Opponents of Smith's amendment to the DWI bill said it would not have the same effect as an open container ban.

"This is like finding someone guilty of murder, and then, because they had a gun on them when they committed the murder, making it capital murder," argued Gerald Geistweid, R-Mason.

"I'm going to vote against this and look forward to voting against a real open container bill when it comes to the floor," said Rep. Al Granoff, D-Dallas.

The DWI bill is a compromise measure agreed to by Peveto's committee and Sarpalius, its Senate sponsor. The bill needs one more House vote before going back to the Senate, where the Senate version has already been approved.

Both measures eliminate "deferred adjudication," under which DWI offenders who successfully complete probation have their records cleared of the conviction. Backers of tougher DWI laws have complained that deferred adjudication keeps offenders from ever being treated as felony offenders since previous convictions don't show up on their records.

House members amended Sarpalius' bill to allow convicted DWI offenders to avoid jail time by going through alcohol counseling programs.

Rep. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin, successfully amended the bill Tuesday to increase mandatory jail time for someone who commits manslaughter in the course of DWI.

The bill would have required those convicted of manslaughter to spend 60 days in jail in order to get probation. Barrientos' amendment, which was accepted by voice vote, would increase the jail time to 120 days.

Barrientos cited the New Braunfels case in which a man was convicted of DWI manslaughter in a case involving four deaths.

Couple makes ends meet

By DAVID PLESA
Beaumont Enterprise
BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Take an old saw, a little stain and varnish and a few pieces of pine, and Ed and Marsha Sheppard have the makings for a second income.

It began as a hobby, but since Ed started working only on and off at his job as a machinist, the couple decided to try selling the toys, trinkets and home decorations they fashion out of wood.

"We can't make a living out of it, but it brings in a few extra dollars," says Marsha. "We're selling them to help make ends meet."

They call their make-shift business "Ed's Wood-N-Stuff." The overhead is low: a small room in the back of the house to put the "stuff" together and a front lawn to display their wares. Advertising is by word of mouth.

"Ed has always had an interest in wood work," said Marsha, a native of Oklahoma. "About three years ago he started dabbling in it, making toys for our oldest son, and it blossomed from there."

On any given day, their front yard is a woodpecker's dream come true. There are miniature trucks and cars of every shape and size, bird houses, planters, baby cribs, planes, boats and trains, puzzles in the shape of squirrels and cows and a rabbit on wheels.

A native of Buna, Ed, 37, has had no training in wood work and rarely uses patterns when he designs one of his pieces.

"I just sit down and see something in a magazine and try to reproduce it," said Ed, who works, when he can, at Oil City Brass Works Inc.

Once the finely detailed wood work is completed, Marsha does the staining and finishing.

Ed, who has two young boys, began the hobby using an old borrowed saw and packing crates for wood, but he has since graduated to better equipment and picks up pine at a nearby lumber yard.

In one 2½-month period last year, the couple pulled in about $500 from sales of their wood work. The business, said Ed, does well some times and slacks off other times.

"It helps us hold on," said Marsha.

Bill to withhold wages for child support given approval by Senate

AUSTIN (AP) — Two proposals that would authorize the withholding of wages from an employee's paycheck to make child support payments have cleared the Senate.

A proposed constitutional amendment, which was approved 27-3, and a bill that would implement the amendment, approved 28-2, were returned to the House with several amendments Tuesday.

Sen. Ray Farabee, the sponsor, said Texas and South Carolina are the only states with constitutional prohibitions against garnishment of wages.

"Texas has one of the sorriest records in the nation" in enforcing court-ordered child support payments, "and we hope to remedy that," said Farabee, D-Wichita Falls.

If the House accepts the Senate changes, the proposed constitutional amendment would go on a statewide ballot in November.

Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, said framers of the Texas Constitution of 1876 recognized "the need to protect the common man from skillful high-pressure manipulations of profiteering creditors" when they included a constitutional prohibition against wage garnishment.

"Bankruptcy rates have been shown closely related to wage garnishment," Mauzy said. He added that a former U.S. Secretary of Labor estimated that in 1967 approximately 200,000 jobs were lost due to the effects of garnishment.

Farabee said he had been approached by a representative of Texas hospitals to be included in the proposal, but he refused the request.

The bill would restrict garnishment to one-third of an employee's net income.

The Legislative Budget Board estimated the proposals would save the state nearly $3.2 million the first full year they were in effect, with that savings going up each year.

Nursing home plans to reopen Thursday

GREENVILLE, Texas (AP) — Officials of the Greencrest Manor Nursing Home have agreed to several administrative and personnel changes and the facility will reopen Thursday, state health officials said.

Attorney General Jim Mattox ordered a 10-day shutdown of the nursing home on May 6 after an eight-day health department investigation into the quality of health care.

State Health Commissioner Robert Bernstein said Tuesday that officials of the home agreed to several changes, including the hiring of a new nursing director.

"We made several recommendations, and they have agreed to them," Bernstein said.

Officials of Greencrest Manor, seeking to reopen this week, submitted a series of proposed changes to the health department on Monday. After studying the list, state officials recommended additional changes, which were accepted on Tuesday.

"We have submitted a specific plan of action, and the health department concurs with our action," said Frank Ruffo, a vice president of Hill Haven Corp., which owns the nursing home.

Transplants more attractive with cyclosporine

HOUSTON (AP) — The anti-rejection drug cyclosporine has dramatically improved success rates in organ transplants, even though doctors are using the medication differently, a researcher says.

Heart transplants show a two-year survival rate of 80 percent with the use of cyclosporine, compared to 56 percent without the drug, David Winter, director of medical research for the First International Congress on Cyclosporine, said Tuesday.

The use of cyclosporine in kidney transplants has boosted the one-year survival rate from 50 to 75 percent to 70 to 90 percent, he said.

"This is what is so interesting to me is that different centers use cyclosporine in different ways but they all are showing impressive results," Winter said.

T.E. Starzl of the University of Pittsburgh had improved the one-year survival rate for liver transplants from 32 percent without the drug to 70 percent with its use, Winter said.

"No one will even attempt a liver transplant without using cyclosporine," Winter said.

J.F. Borel, who discovered the drug and developed it over a 12-year period, said the use of cyclosporine made transplants a more acceptable alternative to dialysis.

"Dialysis really affects a person's life, some patients are psychologically affected by it," said Borel, who is attending the conference. "The success rate in kidney transplants has made it preferable to dialysis."

"If the organ fails, you can still have dialysis to go back to," Doctors are attending the four-day conference to learn about the drug, which currently is being used in controlled centers but is currently under consideration by the Food and Drug Administration for widespread use.

House approves 'lemon' bill

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas House has tentatively approved a bill that would give a forum to car buyers who think they were sold a "lemon."

The measure allows unhappy car buyers to seek a hearing before the Texas Motor Vehicle Commission, which could order the manufacturer to pay the consumer for the car or replace it.

The Senate-passed bill was before the House, which substituted its own version of the measure. The bill needs one more House vote before going back to the Senate for approval of differences between the two versions.

Opponents of the bill argued that it would protect dealers instead of consumers.

"It's a lemon of a bill," said Clint Hackney, D-Houston.

Hackney tried to amend the bill to include automobile dealers along with manufacturers and distributors for liability for defective cars.

"This bill is not a consumer-oriented bill, it's a dealer-oriented bill," said Rep. Al Price, D-Beaumont, who co-sponsored the substitute measure offered by Hackney.

Although cyclosporine is more expensive than the drugs it replaces, it is less expensive than dialysis, Borel said.

Sandoz sells the drug at a fixed price but its cost to the patient varies, Borel said.

Winter said the average cost to a patient would range between $5,000 and $7,000 according to the patient's weight.

Barry D. Kahan of the University of Texas Medical School is president of the conference. Kahan has used cyclosporine during the past two years in some 150 kidney transplants.

Last summer, he initiated a heart transplant program with the drug in collaboration with Denton Cooley at the Texas Heart Institute.

Cooley has performed six heart transplant operations using cyclosporine and five have survived.

Happy Birthday, Darling

Now's the time to start thinking about saving on this year's taxes.

Think you paid too much income tax last year? You're probably right — hardly anybody takes full advantage of the tax laws. This year, the shifting economy and the new tax law have created a wealth of opportunities for you to save on taxes. And now is the time for you to start taking advantage of them.

To help you decide what's best for you and to find out more about paying less tax this year, attend our informative Seminar featuring a Kidder, Peabody tax shelter specialist.

I don't know art, but I know monkeys

We've heard of cases where paintings created by turning a chimpanzee loose with a brush and palette have been entered in art shows and won blue ribbons from unsuspecting critics. Now we know what such works of art are worth.

A value of $25,000 has been placed on a set of 200 drawings in crayon and felt-tipped pen executed by Nim Chimpsy, a chimp used in a Columbia University experiment comparing his artistic abilities with those of children. That works out to $125 per drawing, which is more than many a human artist can command for the kind of squiggly abstractions that were Nim's specialty.

The valuation was set during a long-running court battle over possession of the drawings. William J. Tynan, who worked with Nim as a graduate student when the research was conducted between 1974 and 1976, thinks the drawings belong to him. Columbia University thinks otherwise, and sued Tynan for $25,000 to cover the value of the drawings plus $250,000 in punitive damages. Tynan in turn sued Columbia for $250,000.

A judge has denied the damage claims of both parties and hopes to settle the matter by ruling that Tynan can keep the drawings if he makes them available to Columbia to be reproduced. The cost of four years of litigation is not known, but it is likely that Tynan, or Columbia would have to hock quite a few of Nim's drawings to pay it.

Nim has not been represented by an agent or an attorney in this episode in the history of modern art. He is in a research laboratory in Oklahoma making further contributions to science. Like other chimpanzees, Nim from time to time makes chuckling sounds. Scientists say this is not laughter, because apes are not intelligent enough to appreciate what is ludicrous. But are they really sure?

"Just think of yourself as one of the 'Surround-ed Islands.'"

Public schools worth more than a tax break

By PAUL GREENBERG

Every time Ronald Reagan gives his spiel for tuition tax credits, he ought to be told to knock it off. Not because it might do him any good; lots of folks have tried to tell him how wrong-headed, how divisive and dangerous and surely unconstitutional tuition tax credits are, but he keeps repeating the same lines. When the President goes into his act, the public needs to be reminded of what is at stake - namely, its schools, the public schools, and to a great extent the country's future.

All that seems lost on Ronald Reagan. He wants to use public tax breaks to subsidize private and parochial schools because, he says, "Any time we settle for a monopoly in education, we settle for the evils that go with a monopoly." With the new profusion of private schools both old-time and brand-new, seg and Bible academies, and parochial schools of all persuasions... with all that going on, is there any danger of confusing the public schools with a monopoly? If the President means that only the public schools now are entitled to the public's money, that's just the way it ought to be. Nobody ought to have to subsidize somebody else's private school with his tax money. And everybody ought to support the schools that undertake to educate everybody's children.

Yet Mr. Reagan is back talking up tuition tax credits, that not very subtle way of subsidizing private schools with public funds. It's an obvious subterfuge: The parent makes out the check to the private school, then deducts an amount from his taxes, rather than having the government send the dough to the school directly. That's a difference without much of a distinction - as various courts have pointed out from time to time. But it still hasn't dawned on Ronald Reagan.

The President says he's ready to make still another push for tuition tax credits in Congress: "Like Teddy Roosevelt at San Juan, I'm going to charge up that hill." And attack the little red schoolhouse at the top. That's the target. Because with less tax money coming in, there will be less to spend on the public schools - unless the Reagan Administration proposes to enlarge a federal deficit that already approaches the $200-billion range.

Mr. Reagan denies that tuition tax credits would benefit only "exclusive finishing or prep schools." He's right: They would benefit private schools of all classes, religions, and races, probably doing a lot to separate each from the other in the process. See what happens in other societies that use public funds to support sectarian schools - like Northern Ireland. See and shudder. Let's not start that here.

"The overwhelming majority of private schools are church-supported," the President noted - as if that were a defense of tuition tax credits. But it only raises another problem: Such tax credits endanger the separation of church and state. They make the state a patron of church schools, and make church schools dependent on state funds. If, by some stretch of pettifoggery, that's not unconstitutional, then it is certainly bad policy - divisive and dangerous policy. Hasn't it been challenged enough to overcome racial segregation in the schools? Why install a system of education divided by religion and class as well?

Then there are the other ways private schools could be organized to take advantage of tuition tax credits - by gender or language or educational ability or some other special category. Until a society emerges in which products of Montessori schools can't communicate with John Dewey's disciples, the classically educated don't speak to the vocationally trained, and students of gurus meditate while graduates of computerized schools input - with the whole, new Babel financed by the tax system. Only those families that stuck with the public schools would be denied a tuition tax credit. That's one way to encourage the dissolution of one of the great unifying institutions of the country.

But no compilation of the essentially fraudulent arguments for tuition tax credits would be complete without that old soft-shoe about how unjust it is to make families as well. Or as Mr. Reagan taps it out, "They pay their full share of taxes to fund the public schools as well, and I just don't think that's fair." But so do childless couples, and singles, and people whose children no longer go to school, and corporations that support the public schools. Only if they wish to benefit by a society that is educated, and that can thrive socially, economically, culturally, and ethically as only an educated society can. When everyone's stake in the public schools is recognized, it becomes more evident why everyone should support them.

Taxes to support the public schools are not assessed in lieu of tuition; they are an investment in the future of society as a whole. That's why it's not only fair but prudent for everybody to come to the aid of their public schools - whether they have children in attendance or not. There are some things that are worth more than a tax break; public education is one of them.

Somebody really ought to try explaining all this to the President one more time. It may not help. But it couldn't hurt to think on how valuable and important the public schools are to the future of the Republic, and how slowly and painstakingly the system of public education has been developed in this country, and how foolish it would be to endanger it all for some fleeting ideological fancy.

Gas bills

Has your gas bill gone up as the weather warms up? Have you called the nice lady at the gas company complaining about your bill? Well the lady in the gas company office just has a job to do. She can only try to explain. Bless her. There is nothing she can do.

A man told me just this morning that his gas bill was about $137.00 for the month of April, a lot higher than it was for the month of March, over 50 dollars higher. The gas company checked and there were no leaks.

I moved in January from a big old house on Francis St., using two heaters and a couple of burners from the cookstove to keep the place warm, to a house across town. I then used only one heater to keep the house warm, but my gas bill jumped $30.00 more for the first month. The windows were all caulked, it was also a smaller house that took a lot less heat. It doesn't take an engineer to figure out which house would take the most heat to keep warm.

If I had the money to hire an engineer, I think I would now. Common sense would tell you which house would use the most gas.

It would be safe to say that some of the meters around Pampa are 50 years old. Do you think that maybe the wear and tear on the meter could cause it to register 2MCF's when only 1MCF was used? I know that a warmer month means less gas used, not more. I know that the month of April, my gas bill was $74.34 net, the month of March it was $68.85 gross. I would like someone to explain the difference to me.

I know the previous governor of the state of Texas being a stockholder in the utilities company got the bills up 100 percent, but that doesn't explain why the gas bills go up when the weather warms up. I think instead of just grumbling about it or calling the nice lady in the office, it should be taken to the Texas Utilities Commission. Why not complain where it will do the most good? There is something wrong when we live in one of the biggest gas fields in the world and have to pay the most for our gas.

I would like to hear some comments on this issue. We should start complaining where it will do the most good.

Child Development

I would like to take the time to express my appreciation for the Child Development Center (CDC) at the First Baptist Church. I have had a child in the CDC since the month after they opened and have seen the growth that they have had in the two and one half years. Being a mother with small children I have a natural concern for their well-being during the time that I am at work; I would like to think that I am the only that is qualified enough to care for my children, but the teachers are exceptional. It is very obvious that my four year old is advanced for his years and I believe that a lot of it is contributed to his teacher and schooling at the CDC. Our infant also "goes to school" there and receives the best of care and love. Leaving our kids at the CDC gives me the peace of mind I need to be able to continue working and enjoy it. Thank you to everyone at the center.

Supports Jews

It is time to call a spade a spade. President Reagan is pledging all of America, its land and its people, to support Jews against Middle East nations, the Soviet Union, and other nations around the world. His buildup of more weapons is designed to serve this purpose. There is no other need for more arms.

American voters have never had a party that would give them a chance to vote against U.S. Support of Jews in other nations.

This party is therefore necessary.

Fraser listens

UAW prepares to elect new president

DALLAS (AP) — The United Auto Workers union prepared for a historic changing of the guard today as delegates gathered here to elect a new president and five other top officials.

President Douglas A. Fraser, 66, and the others are retiring because of union rules prohibiting re-election of officers after they are 65 years old.

They are the last leaders to have worked directly with the late former UAW President Walter Reuther in the union's earliest days. Reuther is credited with forming the 47-year-old UAW's policies.

Fraser's designated successor, selected late last year by the UAW's 26-member executive board, is Owen Bieber, 53, vice president in charge of the UAW's General Motors Corp. department.

Bieber said earlier this week he was looking forward to today and was confident he would be elected.

Traditionally, the board's nominee for president has had no trouble in being formally elected by convention delegates since Reuther consolidated the leadership power at the UAW's 1949 convention.

There are no other formal candidates, though traditionally dissidents nominate one or a few candidates on the convention floor the day of the vote.

Bieber's new role comes at a time of uncertainty in the union.

The UAW faces dwindling membership — from 1.5 million in 1969 to below 1.1 million now, dissatisfaction among autoworkers on concession contracts, an auto industry whose sales still are not back at normal levels after a four-year sales slump and competition from imported Japanese autos, to name a few major issues.

"It's not that Owen bowled anybody over with his charisma," said a member of the union's top leadership who asked not to be identified. "He isn't charismatic. But he also didn't offend anybody. I think we'd all agree that he's a good Christian gentleman who has integrity and can be trusted."

A convention delegate from Local 867 in Boston added: "He's not going to be a Fraser. (Fraser) was just a natural leader. I'm sorry to see him go."

Nevertheless, Bieber, and Fraser as well, say the union's goals will remain unchanged — seeking better conditions for workers it represents and social justice for everyone. Other retirees besides Fraser are: Martin Gerber, 67, vice president heading the organizing department; Robert "Buddy" Battle III, 65, director of Region 1A in Detroit; Bard Young, 67, director of Region 1E in Taylor, Mich.; Ken Morris, 67, director of Region 1B in Madison Heights, Mich.; Donald Ellis, 65, director of Region 1C in Flint, Mich.; and Ed Gray, 66, director of Region 9 in Cranford, N.J.

Because of the union's smaller constituency now, Gerber's seat will not be filled and his responsibilities will go to another vice president. Five new regional directors will be chosen to replace the regional retirees.

Meanwhile, the president of the confederation of Japan Automobile Workers' unions told delegates at the convention Tuesday his group supports Japanese automakers moving plants to North America and the UAW organizing those plants.

"We are strongly hoping that these Japanese constructions will continue and help alleviate unemployment problems that face the UAW," Ichiro Shioji said, noting that Nissan has a plant in Smyrna, Tenn., and Honda has a Marysville, Ohio, plant.

Two counties sprayed to eliminate fire ants

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — For the next few weeks, twelve planes from the Texas Department of Agriculture will be spraying thousands of Hill Country acres with a non-poisonous chemical aimed at eradicating the pesky fire ant.

The planes began dumping the chemical Pro-Drone across Kerr and Kendall counties Monday, said Carl Rost, the department's airport supervisor.

About 26,000 of the targeted 500,000 acres were sprayed the first day, but Tuesday's drizzly, cloudy weather hampered the spraying from the 12 Cessnas, he said.

The fire ant, a South American insect, has become a nuisance to farmers and ranchers throughout the Southwest and has a painful, stinging bite.

Some landowners and environmentalists have protested the use of Pro-Drone, saying not enough information has been made available about it, but the chemical has been tentatively approved by the Environmental Protection Agency.

"There has been some opposition because some say they don't have all the information on the testing," Rost said.

Some Hill Country landowners have forbidden the agriculture department to spray the Pro-Drone on their land, and marked the forbidden areas with weather balloons.

Incorporated areas in the two counties will not be sprayed.

The Sierra Club released a statement in Austin that expressed concern about "important unanswered questions" surrounding the spraying operation and the chemical itself.

"Many biologists" are concerned that wide use of the any pesticide not specifically meant for imported fire ants may actually increase the pest's numbers, said spokeswoman J.J. Jacobson.

"Pro-Drone affects a variety of insects," Ms. Jacobson said, "and whatever picks up the bait might be affected."

Man's hobby results in some unusual finds

By JOHN TOTH
The Brazosport Facts
CLUTE, Texas (AP) — Anyone lose Fido's old rabies tag, a complete set of keys, pocket knives or the key to Room 128 of the Brazosport Holiday Inn?

Is there a Brazoria County Sheriff's deputy out there without a tie clip, a state trooper without his official cuff link, or a Ford, AMC, Chrysler or GM car without an ignition key?

These are only a few of the items that Ray Pflieger of Clute has picked up over the years at area beaches and parks.

He didn't look for any of the above, nor for the canful of bullets or the cigarette box filled with religious paraphernalia.

He didn't even look for the copper letter opener with the inscription: The 'OK' Poultry Journal. "All that the name implies," Mounds, Oklahoma.

Pflieger has picked up these items over the years while scanning the ground with his metal detector. What he was looking for — old coins, rings and jewelry — he keeps in a safe deposit box.

Whenever conditions are right, usually a week or so after it rains, Pflieger takes his metal detector to a nearby beach and listens to the ground.

When the detector sounds the right pitched signal, he begins to dig. He'll come up with something useful 80 percent of the time, now that he's an experienced metal detector operator.

He'll spend the other 20 percent digging up junk. Whatever it is, he'll keep it. In the 12 years Pflieger has been treasure hunting, he has yet to throw anything away.

"I can't believe it myself sometimes," he said on a rainy morning when the weather and feeling under kept him indoors. "I can't believe all the junk and coins I've dug up."

Pflieger, 62, is retired. His wife, Leota, is employed at the Brazoria County tax office in Angleton. The couple has lived in the Brazosport area for more than 30 years.

He was a construction worker temporarily relocated near Lincoln Park in Langleyville, Ill., in 1971 when he first became interested in metal detecting. "Every once in a while I saw someone fooling around with these things. I got to talking with this guy and he told me of a place in Indianapolis that sells metal detectors," Pflieger said.

"So I went up there and bought me one."

He set out the next day to find his fortune.

"That thing was squeaking away. I finally found two pennies, and they were right there on the ground," he recalled.

"I talked to that guy again and found out that every sound means something."

Metal detectors are only as good as the people who hold them, Pflieger explained.

Advertisements promising the moon if you buy a particular model don't help still the notion that "if you wuve this around, all the stuff jumps right in your pocket," he said.

"A lot of people don't spend the time and take the effort to use a metal detector," he said. "It's not the machine's fault if you don't know how to use it."

Find a bracelet, ring or charm is only half the job. The find may be soiled and gummed beyond recognition. A little cleaning and scrubbing, and ... would you look at that — a tie clip with a red fire truck between the initials 'J' and 'S'.

Or a sterling silver perfume container with a screw-on top.

"My aunt used to have one like it. She used to unscrew it and make a big deal by putting a little perfume behind her ears," Pflieger said.

Or a 1932 Texas Licensed Chauffeur's badge that Pflieger found in a Clute yard.

Or a motel key buried three inches deep.

"If I had something like this back in the 1940s, I probably could have made a living at it," he said.

But formerly bountiful areas are beginning to be combed out as more people buy metal detectors. Making a living looking for valuables beneath the ground would be hard these days.

Pflieger doesn't mind. His findings are not for sale.

"It's an interesting hobby," he said while digging through a box labeled miscellaneous. "I don't do it for the money."

Look at this, he instructed, holding up a brass clip in the shape of a nude woman. "I didn't know what this was until a friend of mine told me it was a roach clip."

He found a porcelain-faced watch buried in an inch underground in Illinois. A jeweler told him they quit making such watches at the turn of the century.

Small business thinking big

NEW YORK (AP) — Small business is thinking big again.

After a recession that sapped confidence and caused thousands of failures, a record-high percentage of companies now expect better business conditions, the National Federation of Independent Business said today.

The federation's April survey revealed among other things a surge in plans to increase employment, an increase in plans to spend on plant and equipment and the likelihood of price stability well into the summer.

The findings, based on 2,176 of the federation's more than 500,000 members, showed a substantial increase in the number of companies willing to borrow at today's rates, and an increase also in plans to build inventories.

Professors William Dunkelberg of Purdue University and Johnathan Scott of Southern Methodist University, who analyzed the results, commented that "the order books, empty six months ago, are filling up."

The results appear to have significance for the economy in general rather than for just the small-business sector, said the professors, who maintain that their findings accurately forecast changes in real gross national product.

The January survey predicted a first-quarter GNP increase that was close to the actual 3.1 percent gain. The April survey, said Dunkelberg, anticipates an even stronger growth for the second quarter.

Specific findings of the April survey include:

- Although interest rates remained relatively high in the first quarter — 13.5 percent on short-term loans — only 18 percent of all companies felt that financing problems are their main problem.
- Thirty percent of respondents plan to make capital outlays in the next 12 months, the highest second-quarter figure since 1979.

Dear Abby

May-September romance may help youth grow up

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: This is regarding "Heartsick Mother," whose good-looking, intelligent, 18-year-old son admitted that he was having an affair with the mother of one of his friends. (She was 41 and divorced.)

You told the mother to point out the pitfalls of such an affair — or ask his older brothers to. What pitfalls? That arrangement can be the best thing that ever happened to her son.

I'm a happily married middle-aged man. I was a painfully shy 18-year-old boy when I went away to college. A buxom little widow in her 50s — the landlady in the rooming house where I stayed — helped me overcome my shyness. She also taught me how to be a lover and a gentleman.

I have no regrets. She filled my needs and I filled hers. Every 18-year-old boy should have the kind of deal I had.

IT HAPPENED IN CAMBRIDGE

DEAR IT HAPPENED: The mail is running 10-to-1 in your favor. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: "Heartsick Mother" doesn't know when she's well off. That 41-year-old woman has probably taught her son a lot. But there's something every man should learn, and apparently her kid hasn't learned it yet: how to keep his mouth shut.

TIGHT-LIPPED IN LOUISVILLE

DEAR ABBY: What's wrong with a 41-year-old woman keeping company with an 18-year-old boy?

Any single woman over 40 knows that most single men over 40 are eccentric, selfish, cheap and intimidated by a contemporary woman.

Eighteen-year-old men are delightful companions. They are open, honest, warm and unaffected. And they're wonderful lovers!

I am a 40-year-old widow, but you may sign me...

LIKES 'EM YOUNG IN L.A.

Now let's hear it from a Parisian:

DEAR ABBY: As a Frenchwoman I belong to a culture where a love affair between a young man and an older woman doesn't shock anybody. In fact, it is the best way for a young man to learn about sex and life. It is also understood that such an affair is not intended to last forever.

The older woman is more mature, more sensitive and more realistic than a teen-age girl. Such an experience can be enriching without leading to one of those silly marriages between two inexperienced, immature teen-agers. (Of course, there are exceptions.)

My advice to "Heartsick Mother" would be: Try not to identify with the woman your son is having the affair with, and examine your rather natural but ambiguous jealousy. Of course, that means facing real feelings instead of responding only to puritanical ethics imposed upon society and cultural environment.

I am 43 and do not especially wish to have an affair with an 18-year-old boy. But this is a matter of taste and circumstances.

MADAME M. IN BERKELEY

CONFIDENTIAL TO INNOCENT AND MISJUDGED IN B.C.: Tell your "best friend," who carried the tale to you that destroyed the friendship between you and "Mary," the following: "I want to clear the air, so I hope you will give me permission to tell Mary that her assumption was wrong and I did not intentionally snub her. P.S. A "best friend" who causes trouble qualifies as "no friend."

This recipe works!

Indian Fry Bread

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Last summer, when my friend Jonathan Dudley told me he was going to spend a couple of months in New Mexico, I said, "Bring me back a recipe for Indian fry bread that really works." I'm happy to say he fulfilled the commission. His recipe worked beautifully when we made it in my kitchen. Here is his report of his fry-bread adventure:

I first tasted Indian fry bread at a Pueblo Festival. Even as I watched the large disc puff and brown as an Indian woman turned it in the hot oil, I knew I would love it — and I did. Friends suggested that Lyn Haganan Ortega might be able to teach me how to make it. Mrs. Ortega, a native New Mexican, lives with her family in the village of Corrales, near Albuquerque, in a large, comfortable adobe house that she designed herself. She teaches cooking at the University of New Mexico.

She invited me for a lunch of posole, a hefty stew of pork, hominy and chilies. To accompany it, we made fry bread. As we made it, Lyn talked about it. "The Indians probably didn't use dry milk until Fabiola C. deBaca Gilbert, the famous New Mexican extension home economist, taught them to. In addition to adding nutrients, it gives the bread a copper-like color as it fries." Indeed, we tried a batch without the dry milk, it was pale in comparison.

Fry bread is versatile. It can be eaten plain, straight from the fryer; as an open-faced sandwich, or 'Navajo Taco', using guacamole, chili con carne, refried beans, enchilada meat sauce and green chili sauce in any combination; it is also a favorite dessert served with ice cream and a topping. But it must be eaten hot.

2 c. all-purpose flour

INDIAN FRY BREAD — Serve it as soon as it is made.

1-3rd cup nonfat dry milk
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon shortening
¾ cup (about) warm water (105 to 115 degrees)
Add enough oil to a 10- or 12-inch electric skillet to have it 1-3rd full.

In a large bowl, stir together flour, dry milk, baking powder and salt. With your fingers, work in shortening until it is not visible. With a fork, gradually stir in enough water to form a soft dough.

On a lightly floured surface, knead until smooth and springy — about 5 minutes. Form into a 6-inch roll. Let rest uncovered for 45 to 60 minutes. Slice crosswise into six 1-inch pieces; form each into a ball.

On a lightly floured surface, with a floured rolling pin, roll each ball to a thin 6-inch round — less than ¼-inch thick.

Pick up a round of dough; holding it close to the edge, start pressing and rotating the round between thumbs and fingers, keeping thumbs moving close together. First press close to edges of the dough; then move thumbs down slightly and continue pressing to stretch and rotate until round is 7 or 8 inches in diameter — returning to press near edges if necessary. The round will have uneven spots of thickness. Repeat with remaining rounds.

Meanwhile, heat the oil in the skillet to 375 degrees. Add one round; with tongs push down often into oil to submerge; fry, turning once, until puffed and golden brown. Keep warm in a low oven. Repeat with remaining rounds. Makes 6.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Forty years ago, airline flight service started when a flight attendant brought passengers sandwiches purchased at a grocery store before takeoff. Now airline meals are taken for granted. About half the meals served are beef dishes, 35 percent are poultry and the rest are pasta, Mexican food or seafood, reports a supplier to the airlines.

Homes sought for French students

Nacel Cultural Exchanges (NCE), a non-profit organization now in its third year in Texas and Arkansas, is seeking host families for 120 French students, ages 13-19, in its annual exchange program July 5 - Aug. 3. Interested families should contact Sue Kimbro, 2105 Wood St., Texarkana, Tex., 75501, or call (214) 794-8273.

"Families are especially needed for boys," Kimbro said. She explained that most of the applications she has received are requests for girls and that 60 percent of the French students are for boys. Students are matched to families according to preferences expressed by families and mutual interests.

For the past 26 years, NCE has fostered international understanding by arranging four-week, summer homestays in France and the United States. This July, 5,300 French students will experience our culture by living with American families at the same time that 1,200 American students will be living with French families. Students from this summer's host families will be offered the opportunity to take part in the 1984 reciprocal French Homestay Program.

Already, 70 families in northern Texas and Arkansas have applied to host these French teens coming to this area; but 50 additional families are still needed.

"Being part of a family is the best way to experience a country's culture and language," said Kimbro, a high school French teacher who has coordinated NCE for the past two years. "Hosting gives us a chance to show people the best of our country... our families."

French students, who have studied English for 4 to 8 years, provide their own airfare, insurance and spending money; and the American families provide welcome and include them in their daily lives for the month of July.

Grant awarded for summer programs

PANHANDLE — The Carson County Square House Museum has been awarded a grant from the Texas Commission on the Arts to support the expansion of the museum's Summer Youth Program to White Deer and Groom and to initiate a television production class for youth.

Summer Youth Program sites were added in White Deer and Groom to make classes available to more county youngsters. The community centers in White Deer and Groom and the Rock House Gallery in Groom will be the location for classes in pioneer life, Indian lore, cooking, Polish Easter egg decoration and folk art. An expanded list of courses and special events will be offered at the museum and other locations in Panhandle.

Teamed with KVII-TV

(Amarillo) and Amarillo College's Department of Mass Communications, the museum is offering a television project for junior high and senior high students in the Summer Youth Program.

Students will research, write and produce 60-second public service announcements on the Texas Sesquicentennial, the 150th anniversary of the Texas Republic. The PSA's will air on KVII and distributed to other television stations in the state through the sesquicentennial year, 1986. Other donors for the program include K-Mart Corporation and local individuals and civic groups.

For a complete schedule of classes and events in the Summer Youth Program, or to register, call the museum at (806) 537-3118.

Family mini-seminar offered Friday

AMARILLO — Helping people achieve happiness in marriage and family relationships is the goal of the Family Life Mini-Seminar in Amarillo Friday, May 20 at the Tristate Fairground Sports Arena, 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

Dr. Tim and Beverly LaHaye, of the weekly "LaHayes on Family Life" television program, use practical and biblical principles to enrich good marriages, salvage weak ones, prepare single people for marriage and generally improve the quality of relationships. Some of the areas to be dealt with will be: the importance of home life, how to raise your children biblically, and how to win the battle for your family.

Dr. and Mrs. LaHaye, parents of four children, have conducted more than 350 of these seminars world-wide. They have both authored many best-selling books, including "How to Win Over Depression," "The Act of Marriage," and "How to be Happy Though Married." Dr. LaHaye is founder of Christian Heritage College and the Christian Unified School District of San Diego.

The mini-seminar is free, but reservations are required. For more information or to make reservations, call Patty Woodward at (806) 355-4142, Jan Mackowiak at (806) 352-8406 or Jeanne Owen at (806) 355-6226.

Develop thrifty habits this coming year so that you will always have a little tucked away to deal with any unexpected expenses.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be very careful today about becoming involved in ventures which are speculative or risky. Outward appearances could be extremely deceptive. Order now. The NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet which reveals romantic combinations, compatibilities for all signs, tells how to get along with others, finds rising signs, hidden qualities, plus more. Mail $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Send an additional $1 for your Taurus Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead. Be sure to give your Zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Family problems should be kept within the confines of your household today. Input from in-laws or outsiders will create additional disturbances.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Keep pace with your work and responsibilities today, or you might fall so far behind you'd be unable to catch up. Maintain a schedule.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Indifference or carelessness could cost you in your pocketbook today. Manage your resources as carefully as your friendly banker would.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Limit the number of irons you have in the fire today. If you attempt too much at one time, you aren't apt to make your deadlines.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be optimistic today, but be sure to base your hopes upon realistic premises. Counting on blue sky where you shouldn't might prove disappointing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Financial commitments should not be made impulsively today. You might be asking for trouble if you dive in without first testing the water.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be on your best behavior today, particularly if you're around persons who could either help or hurt your career. Your actions will be closely observed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't leave important matters to chance today. Luck could be a trifle fickle, while killing you into a false sense of security. Be watchful.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Separate yourself from situations today where you could be penalized by the mistakes of others. Make sure the boundaries are clearly defined.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Treat all of your business contacts equally today. The ones you think will help you, may not, while those you least count on may.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Rather than ask others to do things for you today, it will be best to fend for yourself. Even if they help, you may still have to redo their work.

Growing pains for nation's lawyers

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Ethically and financially, from sex discrimination to high technology, the nation's lawyers face new trials and tribulations in court, on campus and in their own offices.

Many of those problems are due to the growth of the legal profession, according to participants in a wide-ranging American Bar Association seminar here Thursday.

That growth prompted criticism last month from Harvard University President Derek Bok, himself a lawyer and former dean of the Harvard Law School. He said too many gifted students are going into law instead of other fields.

"Far too many of these rare individuals are becoming lawyers at a time when the country cries out for more talented business executives, more enlightened public servants, more inventive engineers, more able high school principals and teachers," Bok said.

There are 612,593 lawyers practicing in the United States at last count, up from 465,000 five years ago. American law schools turn out about 30,000 new lawyers every year.

"Are we supposed to say bright people are not supposed to come into the legal profession?" Harry J. Haynsworth IV, a University of South Carolina law professor, said. Other participants at the ABA seminar said society must pay higher salaries for those other professions.

"The problem is not the legal profession," Richard Allen of Chicago, the editor of the ABA Journal, said. "The problem is how society wants to reward and use the best and the brightest."

A new survey by the ABA Journal, the monthly for the association's 350,000 members, said their median income is about $57,000 a year.

William R. Hudson, whose 200-year-old Philadelphia firm of Rawle & Henderson is the oldest in the country, said inflation and increased reliance on computerization have raised the average lawyer's annual break-even point to $70,000 a year in legal fees.

He warned of ethical dangers as more lawyers use public relations and advertising to compete for business.

For instance, Hudson said, Pennsylvania's ethics code prohibits lawyers from claiming legal specialties. Yet in a news release, Rawle & Henderson's New York public relations firm described him as a specialist in corporate and securities law — a possible violation of the ethics code. "And I told them not to do that," he said.

Lawyer advertising was rare until six years ago, when the U.S. Supreme Court said states could not flatly ban it. Since then, legal ads have become WADIO AND TELEVISION. Hyatt Legal Services alone spent more than $2 million on television commercials last year.

One of every seven lawyers in the ABA survey buys advertising, and a similar number said they use public relations firms. Hudson warned that the new business techniques may make lawyers forget that quality, prompt legal work and reasonable fees are the most important things to clients.

"One thing people are constantly asking is who's going to do the work, a $125 an hour lawyer or a $75 an hour lawyer," Hudson said. He said many legal consumers do not realize they can save money by hiring a more expensive, more experienced lawyer who can do the work in half the time it takes a less experienced, less expensive attorney.

Larry Bodine, associate editor of the ABA Journal, said there are three pending U.S. Supreme Court tests for the legal profession.

In one case before the Supreme Court, the Justice Department has joined a woman lawyer in a sex discrimination suit against the Atlanta firm which refused to make her a partner in 1979.

Bodine said a ruling against the firm could affect employment policies among 29,000 law firms and thousands of other partnerships among accountants, doctors and stock brokers. Women make up 35 percent of the current law students, 16 percent of the lawyers now in practice and 8 percent of the partners in law firms, Bodine said.

In another case, two men are challenging the rule in the District of Columbia and 40 states that requires graduation from an ABA-approved law school before admission to the bar. One man learned the law by serving as a clerk for a law firm and a judge, while the other graduated from a non-accredited law school. There are 172 ABA-accredited law schools in the country, and at least 42 others that are not accredited.

Pampa High athletes competing in tennis, cross-country, baseball, track, swimming and golf this year were honored Tuesday night with the Spring Sports Banquet in M.K. Brown Auditorium.

Selected by the coaching staffs as most valuable participants were:

- Boys Tennis—Mike Spence.
- Girls Tennis—Leslie Eddins and Treca Hawkins.
- Boys Cross Country—David Whitson.
- Girls Cross Country—Sandy Jones and Vicki Green.
- Boys Track—Chris Kupcunas.
- Girls Track—Joan Burns, Whitney Kidwell, Sheila Grays, Vicki Green, Sandy Jones and Cynthia Powell.
- Boys Swimming—Clay

Douglas. Girls Swimming—Amy Raymond.

Boys Golf—Paul McIntire. Girls Golf—Tracy Waters.

Baseball—Bryan Bowen. Miss Raymond, a sophomore, was the only Harvester athlete to reach state level competition. She placed 15th in the 100 freestyle event.

Douglas won both the 100 butterfly and 200 IM at the boys' district swim meet, breaking his own record in the latter event.

In tennis, Mike Spence became the first Harvester since 1939 to qualify for the regional tournament. Spence, a senior, was runnerup in the District 1-4A Tournament. The Lady Harvesters had their most successful season in girls' track in several years, advancing five to the regional meet. They were Whitney Kidwell, Stacey Brown, Joan Burns, Sandee Greenway and Kristi Hughes. Pampa boys' golf team, led by Paul McIntire, finished second in the district race to qualify for the regional tournament. McIntire placed third in the medalist standings at regionals. Other regional qualifiers for Pampa were Cliff Baker, David Fatheree, Reid Sidwell and Ryan Crosier.

The special awards were presented by Bill Balcom, PHS athletic director.

Cowboys to give rugby star a tryout

DALLAS (AP) — A South African rugby star will give up playing the sport in his homeland for the chance to replace Danny White as the punter for the Dallas Cowboys.

But Naas Botha fully expects to become a big star in Dallas as he has been in his own country.

Botha simply appeared in Cowboy Vice President Gil Brandt's office recently after placing a phone call the day before and flying all night from Johannesburg. Brandt said he was so surprised that Botha had paid the $2,200 for the flight that he offered a private tryout.

"I thought the guy was kidding at first when he called," Brandt said. "And the next thing I know he's standing in my office. And he wants a tryout. He told me he'd seen some Cowboy games on TV and he wanted to play for us."

Botha consistently punted 55 to 60 yards during the tryout before Brandt and Coach Tom Landry.

After Botha reports to training camp July 10, he never again will be allowed to play rugby in South Africa, where rugby players are considered amateurs.

"We are losing our super god," journalist Franz Kemp told the Dallas Times Herald. "In my country we believe in two things — the rugby and the Bible. And Naas Botha is one of our gods."

Since South Africans know about as much about American football as Americans know about rugby, editors of the newspaper The Rapport weren't concerned about running a photograph of Botha wearing a San Francisco 49ers helmet, a jersey with JETS stitched across the front and baseball pants. Botha was pretending to punt a soccer ball.

"You have to remember that all my people know of Dallas is from the TV series," said Kemp.

Botha, who recently signed a free-agent contract with the Cowboys, has only a 50 percent chance of making the club. As a punter, he would make $50,000 his first year, including a $5,000 bonus, said Brandt.

Yet one South African newspaper headline had him preparing for a million-dollar payday.

"I will make millions as a commercialized product in America," predicted Botha, who also is a policeman in the Johannesburg homicide division.

"They think big over there," Botha added. "The Texas Stadium is a huge complex. It takes you all over two hours to go through it. They have even a drive-in to entertain the public before match play."

As a punter and penalty kicker for the Springbok and Northern Transvaal rugby teams, the 25-year-old Botha is called the "Golden Boy" of South African rugby. A 5-foot-8, 160-pound flyhalf, he completed a six-year career as the first Northern Transvaal player to gain 1,000 points. He also broke every rugby kicking record.

The flyhalf is comparable to football's quarterback, although Botha was also responsible for tackling and making all kicks in the 90-minute game. He led the league every year in kicking distance and accuracy.

Kemp says his country will "be in mourning" when Botha leaves for Dallas next month. One Johannesburg businessman even offered $80,000 for him to stay and play rugby, Kemp said.

Cowboys officials said they were concerned about how South Africa's apartheid policies would affect Botha.

"We made sure to ask him how he would feel about living with black athletes and playing with black athletes," Brandt said. "From our talks, I don't think he shares the policies of his country."

Leaving work costs employers

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The coffee truck doesn't stop at Pepper Construction Co. job sites, at least during working hours. Richard Pepper, the president, banned them.

"If you have 100 men and the coffee truck comes around and they leave their jobs you lose $1,000 every morning, $1,000 in the afternoon, and $500,000 in a year," he said.

"Our policy is you don't leave the job. We don't mind if you take a thermos to work, but the truck can't come around during working hours," said Pepper.

Richard Pepper, 52, is the newly elected president of the Associated General Contractors of America, which numbers among its members 8,400 general contractors, and 24,000 subcontractors, suppliers, dealers and others.

His goals are big: to encourage contractors to become more cost-effective, a matter that eludes many of them, and to fundamentally change the contractor-worker relationship, which is usually adversarial rather than one of mutuality.

There is an urgency to his mission, because construction is a shrinking market, having declined to $228 billion in 1982 from $236 billion in 1981 and $240 billion in 1980.

He insists that contractors must develop financial expertise, be able to analyze their markets, assess the labor supply, manage their cash flows and make better business decisions. Union workers, he contends, must have more of a stake and responsibility in the survival of jobs. They're pricing themselves out of work, he says, noting that less than 20 years ago 85 percent of projects were union and 15 percent open shop, but that the percentages are now 55 percent open, 45 percent union.

How do you save jobs? To begin with, he says, you eliminate feather-bedding. Some operating engineers now get $20 an hour for starting and turning off the compressor, he said. Or for running an elevator. You have, he observes, an extra man on each power shovel, an oiler, who has an hour of real work a day but who gets paid for an entire day's work.

"Labor and management have to get the game plan together," he says. He seeks wage freezes.

Storm dumps two feet of snow in Rockies

By The Associated Press

A "freak" spring storm brought rain and hail to the Great Plains today after dumping up to two feet of snow on Wyoming and Colorado, closing roads, leaving thousands of people without power and forcing some voters in Denver to cast ballots by flashlight.

The mid-May blizzard sent 86 mph winds whistling Tuesday through Fort Carson, near Colorado Springs, Colo., making travel impossible in some areas because of reduced visibility.

As much as 24 inches of snow fell near Wheatland, in southeastern Wyoming, and Interstate 80 between Cheyenne and Laramie remained closed early today because of heavy buildups.

The blizzard deposited 23 inches of snow on Buckhorn Mountain, 11 miles northwest of Fort Collins, Colo.

"It was a freak storm, an unusual storm for the amount of snow if brought at this time of year, but the worst is over," Hugh Crowther, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service's Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo., said today. "It's moving in an easterly direction, turning to rain as it gets into the lower elevations."

The cold front was centered over central Kansas today, bringing heavy rain, wind and hail to south-central Oklahoma. Stockmen's warnings were posted today in western Nebraska and northwest Kansas.

Panel accuses FDA of dragging its feet

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal agency is guilty of "an astounding lack of action" in protecting the public health through regulation of medical devices, a congressional panel charged today.

The Food and Drug Administration has had authority since 1976 to regulate medical devices ranging from adhesive bandages and tongue depressors to such life-support systems as dialysis machines and pacemakers.

In all, there are more than 1,700 different types of medical devices and more than 41,000 separate products.

"Through negligence or by intention, the FDA has failed to implement major provisions of the medical device amendments to the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act," a subcommittee of the House Energy and Commerce Committee said.

The subcommittee on oversight and investigations held a hearing last July on the FDA's enforcement of the law, and the report is largely based on what it learned.

The report said the hearing and other information developed by the subcommittee staff "paint a picture of bureaucratic neglect for public health and safety that shocks the conscience."

Chairman John D. Dingell, D-Mich., said in a statement in the report that the hearing will not be the last time the panel will look into the enforcement of the law on medical device regulation.

"The American people, who rely upon their health officials for the protection to which the public are entitled, will not accept less," Dingell said.

FDA spokesman Bill Grigg said Tuesday evening, "We don't have the report yet and so we don't have any comment."

The report said the absence of congressional oversight until recently permitted the FDA to drag its feet or avoid altogether regulating medical devices.

It said the FDA has used its authority to notify professionals and consumers of risks of harm only three times. It has used its authority to order repair, replacement or refund only once, the report said.

In one case the agency failed to recommend prosecution for the intentional submission of false information in a report required to be filed with the government, the subcommittee said.

"The FDA is not equipped and, therefore, is unable to assure the American public that many medical devices currently on the market — and relied upon to treat disease and to sustain life — are safe and effective," it said.

The FDA has separated medical devices into three groups with the least rigorous controls reserved for the least risky devices and so forth.

Third team's assault on Mt. Everest fails

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — An attempt by a Dallas man and five other climbers to reach the top of Mt. Everest, the world's highest peak, has failed.

Heavy snow blowing forced Dick Bass, 53, and the rest of his expedition to turn back. The six reached 27,500 feet before they were forced to abandon their assault on the 29,028-foot summit.

His expedition reported by radio Tuesday that the group left their attack camp at 26,200 feet in the early morning. But Bass indicated he planned another assault aimed at reaching the top.

Bass is on a "seven-summit odyssey" which aims to scale the highest peak in each of the seven continents in one year.

The expedition's climbing doctor, Ed Hixson, 42, of Saranac Lake, N.Y., Inspector Yogendra Thapa of the Nepalese Police Force, and three Sherpa guides are joining Bass in the journey.

Tuesday's assault was the third made by a U.S.-West German expedition now on Everest. The first two attempts, on May 7 and May 14, were successful, putting eight men, including six Americans, on the summit.

Larry Nielson, 35, of Olympia, Wash., became the first American to scale the mountain without an oxygen mask during the first assault.
