Two wheels are slicker than four for catching burglars in the act, so the Pampa Police Department is adding officers on mopeds to its midnight patrol. Patrolman Dwayne Fresh tries out one of the two motor scooters given the police by the Pampa Mall merchants and Rheams Diamond Shop in exchange for promotional appearances this spring by two Dallas Cowboys athletes.

Fresh said the mopeds will join the officers' silent two-bicycle patrol in residential and commercial neighborhoods and all patrolmen will be required to have motorcycle drivers' licenses.

Who do you call when it's the fire station in flames...?

AUSTIN (AP) — Austin Fire Department Battalion Chief Gary Schriber figured the address of an alarm Tuesday was about the last place to look for a fire.

But when the call came that flames were sighted in the department's Fire Prevention Building, Schriber's men responded as they would to any other structural blaze — five units and 15 firefighters.

The blaze started in a fluorescent light fixture in an office next to that of Fire Chief Bill Roberts.

"I heard a loud popping sound, and when I went out to see what was going on, I saw smoke billowing out of the ceiling," said Helen Campbell, an administrative aide to Roberts.

"I just called 911 and got outside."

The flames were confined to the light fixture. The building was not evacuated.

Investigators said they thought there was a malfunction in the light fixture.

Judge McIlhany will consider moving trial of murder suspect

By JEFF LANGLEY
Senior Writer

WHEELER — 31st District Judge Grainger McIlhany will consider a motion for a change of venue in the trial of murder suspect Michael Anderson during a pre-trial hearing here June 2.

Assistant District Attorney Mark Baskett said defense lawyer Harold Comer of Pampa wants to move the trial from Wheeler to Hemphill or Lipscomb Counties. District Attorney Guy Hardin previously said he won't oppose a motion to move Anderson's trial.

Anderson, 26, is charged with the execution-style slaying of Sayre, Okla., resident Robert Hall, 28. Hall's decomposing body was found buried in a shallow grave behind Anderson's isolated Wheeler house March 2. The victim was shot four times in the back of the head at close range with a large-caliber weapon.

After Anderson surrendered to police in Lake Charles, La., about 24 hours after the murder victim was discovered, a battle for jurisdiction began between Texas and Oklahoma authorities.

Anderson was indicted for the murder by a Wheeler grand jury March 9. Oklahoma officials charged Anderson with first-degree murder for Hall's death March 14.

Texas Governor Mark White denied the Oklahoma effort to extradite Anderson April 19. A spokesman for the governor said Texas would not extradite Anderson until the Hardin tries him for Hall's murder.

Oklahoma authorities said they wanted to question Anderson about three unsolved murders committed in Beckham County, Okla., during 1982.

Hardin and the Oklahoma officials said Hall's murder may be linked to the three previous killings near Sayre and said the murders may connected with "The Family," a well organized and financed drug syndicate.

Hardin previously said Hall's murder was ordered by an Oklahoma drug suspect from his jail cell.

Anderson remains in the Wheeler County Jail in lieu of $25,000 bond. Hardin previously said the murder suspect doesn't want to make bond before trial, as he fears for his own life.

Baskett said Wednesday that the case may be moved to Hemphill or Lipscomb Counties due to pre-trial publicity about the case. But he said any decision to move the case will be "up to the judge."

U.S. Navy officer is slain in El Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — An American Navy commander was shot in the head four times and killed while he sat in his car near a San Salvador university, the first U.S. military adviser slain during this nation's civil war.

Navy Cmdr. Albert A. Schaufelberger, deputy commander of the 55 military advisers assigned to assist the Salvadoran military in its fight against leftist rebels, was killed Wednesday evening, U.S. Embassy spokesman Don Hamilton said.

Neither Hamilton nor government spokesman Francisco Jose Guerrero, who announced the slaying, would speculate on who the killer or killers were.

Schaufelberger is the first American adviser slain in El Salvador. Another adviser, Special Forces Sgt. J. Stanley

Thomas, was wounded by rebel fire while flying in a helicopter above Usulután province in early February.

Thomas was shot in the leg, but his wound was not serious. Hamilton said Schaufelberger was killed when he went to the Central American University in a western suburb of the capital about 6:30 p.m. to pick up a friend.

As he was waiting for the friend in the university parking lot, a car pulled up behind his automobile and four shots were fired from the vehicle, striking Schaufelberger in the head, Hamilton said.

He said a passerby placed the officer in his car and rushed him to the Military Hospital, but he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Reverend Ricky and Ed Nall at last agree...on a trial date

By JEFF LANGLEY
Senior Writer

WHEELER — The Wheeler preacher who protests 'R'-rated movies here, and the local theater owner who shows the movies, finally have something in common — a day in court over a $500,000 lawsuit.

31st District Judge Grainger McIlhany set a July 18 trial date for the lawsuit filed by Rogue Theater owner Ed Nall against the Rev. Ricky Pfeil and his Wheeler Christian Center. McIlhany set the trial date during a pre-trial hearing Wednesday at Wheeler.

The preacher and his followers say they hate 'R'-rated movies and have protested them on the sidewalk in front of the Rogue.

The theater owner says he hates the protests and says they caused $500,000 in damages to his business, health and reputation.

Nall, a former Oklahoma school teacher who bought the Rogue about six years ago, claims Pfeil and his church members' protests and tactics over the past two years have hurt his movie business; sent his high blood pressure soaring and landed him in the hospital; and libeled him in paid ads in the Wheeler Times.

Pfeil says he is only exercising his constitutional right to protest films he has variously described as "debauchery, obscenity, pornography, nastiness, raw filth, corruption, vulgarity, profanity, outpouring of sewage, lasciviousness, perversion, and pollution."

After a hearing in Wheeler court October 27 last year, McIlhany granted a temporary injunction against the preacher, ordering him to stay away from Nall and his family until the case is settled. The judge said Pfeil can continue to protest in front of the theater, as long as he limits the total number of protestors to four.

During testimony at the October hearing, Pfeil said his protests at the theater have included taking down customers' car licenses, preaching to customers and handing out religious tracts as they go inside the theater, and singing gospel songs and speaking in "tongues" out on the sidewalk.

According to Nall's testimony in October, the spirit speaking scared him so badly one night, the 60-year-old businessman stepped outside the theater and slugged the babbling preacher several times.

Also named as a defendant to the amended lawsuit is Canadian rancher David Young, brother of Wheeler Christian Center director Frank Young. According to previous testimony, Young twice joined Pfeil's public protests and went inside the theater lobby. Inside, he dropped to the floor for some vigorous praying, according to the testimony. Young was removed from the theater by Wheeler deputies.

McIlhany recently set aside a $91,500 default judgment he ordered against Young for failing to answer the lawsuit, when Young hired a lawyer and appealed. The judgment was set aside pending the July trial.

Pfeil defended himself and the church during the hearing in October. He has since hired lawyers who will defend the preacher and church during the Wheeler trial.

Hispanics urge veto of desegregation plan

By T. LEE HUGHES

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund is urging the federal government to force Texas to desegregate its college and universities, claiming the state's plan for doing so is inadequate.

"It becomes apparent that Texas has chosen the course most convenient and least disruptive to its higher education system," the fund said in a letter delivered Wednesday to the Department of Education, which will decide whether to accept the Texas plan.

In its letter the fund said that the plan, among other things, establishes no statewide enforcement mechanism, provides insufficient financial detail and would not upgrade colleges with large Hispanic enrollments.

The letter offered a wide range of suggestions for improving the plan, among them a stepped-up timetable for equalizing enrollments, and a citizens advisory committee to monitor progress.

The Texas plan "is still inadequate and does not desegregate the Texas post-secondary institutions," Antonia Hernandez, a MALDEF associate counsel, told a House subcommittee hearing earlier in the day.

As a result, the plan should be rejected by the department, which should begin proceedings to force Texas to comply with federal anti-discrimination laws, said Ms. Hernandez.

Such proceedings could ultimately result in a cutoff of federal aid to the Texas system.

weather

After receiving less than an inch of moisture yesterday, the temperature in Pampa dropped to 56 degrees at 6:01 this morning. Today the high should reach the 70s under partly cloudy skies. There is a chance of thunderstorms this evening and Friday. The low should be in the upper 50s tonight and in the mid 80s Friday. Winds will be westerly at 10-20 mph today, decreasing to 5-15 mph tonight and Friday.

Dead Indians won't stop bikes

By SHERILL McLEAREN
Special Correspondent

PERRYTON — Ochiltree County Commissioners decided to leave open a dirt bike trail at Lake Fryer Park, despite testimony during their Monday meeting that bikers are riding over the last remains of an ancient Indian tribe.

The court asked commissioner Myron McCarty to check with Austin officials to find out what portion of the lake park has been dedicated as a state historical site.

According to the state's antiquities law read to commissioners by County Attorney Bruce Roberson, public policy demands that archaeological sites anywhere in the state be preserved. Violation of the antiquities act is a misdemeanor punishable by a fine and jail term.

Commissioners had two sides to consider when they talked about what the dirt bikes may be doing to the buried Indian "city" at the county park: a petition from the dirt bikers asked to keep the trail open and the testimony of Dr. James Kitchens of Texas Tech University, who said the riding is destroying artifacts.

Kitchens presented a slide show about the site and told commissioners the Indian city must be preserved. He said the City of Lubbock presently has a court battle over a water project running smack over an archaeological site.

But at least 121 people want to keep the trail open. That number of motorcycle riders signed the petition for continued access to the park. Besides county residents, the petition was signed by a Potter County deputy sheriff and residents of Spearman and Booker.

Commissioners took no action to close the bike trail at Lake Fryer, pending McCarty's check with state officials.

The buried "city" was first discovered in 1907 and has been only partially excavated. Archeologists say the remains were left by Indians who lived in the Canadian River Valley about 1400 A.D. Mounds presently above the surface indicate what were once the tribe's dwellings, but they are used today as motorcycle ramps, according to people who want the bikes excluded from the park.

Commissioners are also considering overall improvements at Lake Fryer, including a thorough dredging. The panel heard a report Monday about the proposed project.

In other action, commissioners approved District Judge J.E. Blackburn's request to send in a state application for money for an administrative assistant; voted to hear Plains Builders' detailed floor plans for the county ag barn at 7:30 p.m. June 6; adopted a budget amendment submitted by County Auditor Bob Bond; and called a public hearing at 9:30 a.m. June 18 to consider changing precinct boundary lines.

Hamilton said his account was based on reports from witnesses and information gathered by other embassy officials.

A night watchman at the university gave a somewhat different version. The watchman, who identified himself as Robert Alfaro, said the officer apparently had parked along the one-way street that runs through the university.

After he was shot, he drove his automobile about 20 feet before the vehicle jumped the curb and smashed into a parked car, Alfaro said, showing an Associated Press reporter broken glass and the tire marks he said were made by the victim's car.

The shooting occurred after dark when hundreds of students at the university were leaving class and heading home. At that hour the street was congested with vehicles and pedestrians, Alfaro said.

Hamilton would not comment on whether security procedures would be increased.

"We try to be careful all the time," he said.

Hamilton said Schaufelberger usually did not wear his uniform after working hours.

He also said authorities have not determined what kind of gun was used to kill Schaufelberger.

A department spokeswoman said the agency would not reach a decision on whether to accept the plan before Friday or Tuesday.

The plan was also sharply criticized last week by the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, which said it was long on commitments but short on funding and specific programs.

In a letter to the department, Elliott C. Lichtman, an attorney acting on behalf of the NAACP Fund, said the plan was "in fact not a desegregation plan at all" but often "merely reconstituted" the programs that are already in place in Texas institutions.

at the subcommittee hearing, Lichtman criticized the Department of Education's Office for Civil Rights for not initiating enforcement proceedings against states such as Texas.

"No one wants federal funds to be cut off, but the statutory and constitutional rights of minority students will continue to be violated as long as violations may occur with impunity," he said.

The 175-page Texas plan was submitted to the Department of Education earlier this month, after U.S. District Court Judge John H. Pratt gave the state 45 days to produce an acceptable desegregation plan.

Pampa youths get math awards

Eleven Pampa Middle School sixth graders won the Texas State Mathematics League Contest recently. The school was awarded a plaque by the League.

The seventh and eighth grade students placed second in their regions.

Elizabeth Popejoy, Abby Wood, Adrienne Willingham, Benjamin Green, Jessica Patton, Jason Garren, Wesley Karber, Susanna Holt, Steve McBride, John Cooley and Jeff Jones made up the team of sixth graders who won the elementary contest for this year.

The Pampa Middle School sixth, seventh and eighth grade students, as well as the gifted and talented students in the fifth grade entered the Texas State Mathematics League Contest.

For a school to win a plaque, the five highest scoring students make up a school team score. The region includes all the schools from Deaf Smith, Gray, Hemphill, Hutchinson, Moore, Potter and Randall Counties, all of which entered the Texas State Mathematics League Contest.

If more than one student makes the same score, only five names may be submitted to the League for a school's team score.

The sixth grade mathematics teachers are Sharon Balcom, Rhonda Sudbrink and Cheryl Free.

City will hold hearing on annexing and rezoning proposed mobile park

By JULIA CLARK Staff Writer

The Pampa City Commissioners will hold a public hearing on annexing and changing the zone on two acres on the north side of McCullough on June 14.

The on-site hearing will held at 8:30 a.m. to consider changes requested by J.D. Barnard, owner of the property, who wants to put in a mobile home park. He wants Pampa to annex the property and change the zoning from agriculture to commercial. The just under two acres is located on the north side of McCullough Street, just east of Hobart Street.

Then at the regular commissioners meeting June 14, they will hold a public hearing for a zoning change from office district to retail the property on the southeast corner of Kentucky and Hobart N.B.C. Plaza, Inc. has requested the zoning change so they can put a private club on the top floor of the old hospital building.

In other business at the Tuesday meeting the commissioners:

--passed by final readings amendments to two ordinances, one setting fees for curb and gutter permits and the other, setting a variance filing fee.

--tabled a proposed ordinance regulating mobile home parks and subdivisions.

--accepted the construction of the water and sanitary sewer improvements at Meadow Lark North addition as done by Kelley Engineering.

--appointed Dr. Edward S. Williams, M.D. as the City Health Officer of Pampa.

--passed a resolution commending the late Dr. R. Malcolm Brown, M.D. for his services as city health officer for Pampa for over 44 years.

--and tabled until the next meeting passage of a resolution approving and authorizing the purchase of land from the Catholic Church for street improvements and providing payment of the purchase price with Certificates of Obligation.

Texas veterans may get new loans

Texas veterans will now have the opportunity to purchase a home through the Veterans Housing Assistance Program if it is approved by voters as a constitutional amendment in November. Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro announced. The legislature completed action Tuesday on a measure which will provide a loan of up to $20,000 for eligible Texas veterans to purchase a house.

"The Texas Legislature, Governor Mark White, Lieutenant Governor Bill Hobby and Speaker of the House Gib Lewis have shown the veterans and the people of this state that we need a modern housing program which will not cost the taxpayers of this state one cent," Mauro stated.

The proposed constitutional amendment will allow for the sale of $500 million in bonds for the Texas Veterans Housing Assistance Program and $300 million for continuation of the Veterans Land Program. The election is set for November 8, 1983. The measure was sponsored by Senator Lindon Williams (D - Houston) and Representative Frank Tejada (D - San Antonio). The program passed in the Senate unanimously and overwhelmingly in the House of Representatives.

"We will finance this program through the sale of general obligation bonds with the veterans themselves covering the costs through their payments. Taxpayers will not have housing or the land program. Over 80,000 Texas veterans have participated in the Veterans Land Program since 1949. We want every eligible Texas veteran to have the opportunity to purchase land or a home," Mauro stated.

Mauro said private businesses and the entire state economy will benefit from the establishment of the Texas Veterans Housing Assistance Program. "Existing lending institutions will administer the housing program so we will not have to create another state agency or bureaucracy. We also will stimulate construction of 25,000 new homes and provide another 45,000 jobs for people in Texas. This program is the best example of the cooperation between government and private enterprise which can work to the benefit of all people," Mauro stated. Mauro noted Texas currently has more than 1.6 million veterans including 525,000 Vietnam era veterans.

"The Texas Veterans Housing Assistance Program has the support of our state leaders, veterans organizations, lending institutions and thousands of other Texans. I am hopeful Texans will agree with me in November in voting for the Texas Veterans Housing Assistance Program and the continuation of the Veterans Land Program," Mauro said.

"As I stated during the campaign and continue to state while in office, we don't need to do the veterans a favor, just repay on," Mauro concluded.

Nurse charged with murdering child, harming others with injections of drugs

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — A licensed vocational nurse was jailed today on charges that she murdered a toddler and injured six other children when she administered injections of a powerful drug at a pediatric clinic here.

Gene Jones, 32, was named Wednesday in indictments handed down by a Kerr County grand jury. A Texas Ranger arrested her Wednesday night at an Ector County home, Kerr County District Attorney Ron Sutton said.

She was being held today in the Ector County Jail in Odessa on bonds totaling $225,000, said Sheriff's Capt. Carl Watters.

Ms. Jones is charged with murder in the Sept. 17 death of Chelsea Ann McClellan, who died of respiratory arrest.

All seven children, ranging in age from a month to seven years, suffered severe seizures from the muscle relaxant, but only one died, according to the indictments.

Sutton said his nine-month investigation was hampered by the unusual nature of the "bizarre-type crimes" alleged in the indictment.

"You try to understand why someone would try to injure a child," he said. "You don't expect to find that in a medical environment."

Ms. Jones also has appeared before a San Antonio grand jury looking into a string of suspicious infant deaths at the pediatric intensive care unit at Medical Center Hospital from 1978 to early 1982. She was employed at the county-operated hospital during the period under investigation, but has denied any wrongdoing.

"I didn't kill any children," she told reporters in March before going into seclusion.

Her attorney, William Chenault of San Antonio, could not be reached for comment. A woman who answered the phone at his home said he would be out of town until Sunday.

A subpoena had been prepared ordering Ms. Jones to appear again before grand jurors here Wednesday, but she could not be located to serve it, Sutton said.

Ms. Jones was arrested at a home belonging to a relative of a man she married recently, Sutton said. According to county records in San Angelo, Ms. Jones married Garron Ray Turk, 19, on April 22. She lived in a San Angelo mobile home park until about two weeks ago, until she "just flat disappeared," a neighbor at the park told the San Angelo Standard-Times.

Bexar County Assistant District Attorney Nick Rothe, who is coordinating the San Antonio probe, said here Wednesday that the indictments would have a "beneficial effect" on his investigation.

"Gene Jones certainly is someone we see in very close connection with the Bexar County pediatric intensive care unit," Rothe said.

"If that's what a person is accused of doing here, we certainly have to take a close look at her," he said.

Chelsea Ann's parents have filed a $7 million wrongful death suit against Ms. Jones and her former employer, Dr. Kathleen Holland, contending the infant died after two "immunizations" from Ms. Jones.

"We don't care about the money," William Reid McClellan said late Wednesday, after learning of the indictments. "No amount of money is going to replace that child."

The indictments were filed Wednesday evening, after an all-day session in which grand jurors heard from Ms. Holland, licensed vocational nurse Deborah Sultenfuss and Ms. Holland's former office receptionist.

Ms. Jones worked with Ms. Holland and Ms. Sultenfuss at Medical Center Hospital, but moved 50 miles away to Kerrville with the pediatrician. She most recently worked in a San Angelo nursing home with Ms. Sultenfuss.

Ms. Holland spent about 3 1/2 hours with the panel behind closed doors Wednesday, but refused any comment to the cluster of reporters at the courthouse.

Chelsea Ann's body was exhumed May 7 and tissue samples sent to Dr. Bo Holmstedt of Sweden, supposedly the only one in the world able to detect the muscle relaxant — succinyl choline — in embalmed body tissue.

Sutton refused to reveal the results of Holmstedt's analysis, but said he was "satisfied enough" with the report to indict Ms. Jones.

Plan would create $100 million-a-year college fund

AUSTIN (AP) — The Legislature has approved a $100-million-a-year fund for 26 colleges to live on, but it will be 18 months before lawmakers find out what voters think of their proposal.

The Senate sponsor, Carl Parker, predicted that one effect of the proposed constitutional amendment would be to stop the creation of new colleges.

Senators on Wednesday approved a House-Senate committee report on the college funding proposal 29-2. The House approved it 128-12.

The measure will be submitted to the voters on Nov. 6, 1984.

If it is approved, $100 million a year in tax money would be dedicated to 26 institutions outside the University of Texas and Texas A&M systems, beginning in September 1985.

"What we're saying," said Parker, "is that we're setting aside this money for you to live on, but we're going to hold you to it except in dire emergencies."

UT and A&M are excluded from the proposed fund, because they share in the Permanent University Fund, which derives most of its income from oil and gas leases on university land. The proposal setting up the special Higher Education Fund would open up the PUF to all institutions in the UT and A&M systems.

Parker, D-Port Arthur, said the Legislature could by two-thirds vote of each house adjust the $100 million figure at the end of five years and each five years thereafter.

The money could be used for land, construction, repairs and acquisition of books and other research materials. It could not be used for student housing or college athletics.

Salaries would be paid separately from legislative appropriations.

A two-thirds vote also would be required for any new college or branch to share in the fund. "This, effectively, will do away with any more institutions of higher learning," Parker said.

The Legislature would establish a formula to allocate the money among the colleges.

The proposal also would channel $6 million a year for 10 years — or $60 million — out of UT's share of the PUF to A&M, which would appropriate the money to Prairie View A&M, a predominantly black school that is in the A&M system.

Parker said this provision could help settle a lawsuit on discrimination in higher education that the U.S. Department of Justice has filed against several states, including Texas.

If the fund should reach $2 billion, the dedication of general revenue, or tax money, would cease, according to the proposal.

Sen. Ray Farabee said, "The problem is ... this is not going to solve the problem" of college funding.

Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, said when the state dedicates $100 million a year to higher education, it automatically dedicates money for utilities, maintenance, repairs and other costs.

He said utilities alone for colleges in the current two-year period will cost $280 million.

"When you do these things, to hope and pray that money is going to fall out of the sky is unrealistic ... If you are willing to dedicate funds, you should be willing to adopt taxes to pay for it," Farabee said.

Parker, the chairman of the Senate Education Committee, said the proposal on a statewide ballot amounts to a "referendum of the people about how strongly they feel about higher education."

"I believe it to be in the best interests of all Texans and certainly in the interest of higher education for years to come," he said.

Only Farabee and Houston Sen. Craig Washington, a graduate of Prairie View, voted against the proposal in the Senate.

Texas insects may aid Australian agriculture

TEMPLE, Texas (AP) — Paper cups and flower pots in a south Temple garage hold the future of Australian agriculture.

Australian entomologist Dr. Bill Palmer runs a field station in Temple of the Alan Fletcher Research Station based in Sherwood, Queensland, Australia.

Palmer collects hundreds of North American insects — most of them from Texas — and feeds them to Australian weeds to see if the bugs will kill the pesky plants. Australia operates similar stations in Brazil, India and Mexico.

"Temple is our main effort in North America," Palmer said.

His enclosed garage serves as his research station and laboratory while his backyard contains his greenhouse.

Australia supports his project with $150,000, and the station will remain in Temple until at least 1985. Palmer said he hopes the station will be funded for longer, maybe up to 12 years.

Another researcher, Bill Woods working with the Queensland, West Australian and Northern Territory Department of Agriculture, arrived in Temple this month to assist Palmer.

"There were several other places we could have gone, College Station and Mississippi, for instance. But Temple seemed just the right place," Palmer said.

He needed to be near the Blackland Research Center with its quarantine station and researchers. Temple is centrally located and a good place to live while he collects and raises specimens, he said.

Australia has received the best and worst from North America. Weeds, whether imported intentionally as ornamental flowering plants or accidentally shipped with seeds and grains, have flourished in Australia's moderate climate.

So now Australians are returning to North America to see if any insects are natural enemies of these weeds.

Rantana, probably exported to Australia accidentally with south Louisiana cottonseed, has taken over the eastern Australian states and has become a major problem.

"It grows along water courses and dams so that cattle can't get to the water," Woods said. "When ranchers try to round up cattle, it cuts the horses' legs to pieces. The only way to get cattle out of a field with Rantana is to round them up by helicopter."

Animals won't graze on Rantana; farmers can't harvest it. Palmer and Woods are looking for an insect that will chew the stem, root or seed and kill the plant.

The idea searching for answers on another continent has proven successful. Millions of acres once were infested with prickly pears that wreaked havoc on the Australian cattle business. Field stations in the 1930s were set up in Uvalde and in South America. After much experimentation, Cactoblastis larvae, discovered in Argentina, was found to control the prickly pear.

"The prickly pear was reduced to a small amount. After the prickly pear was reduced, the Cactoblastis also reduced its number, so that we have a low number of each," Woods said. "That's what we're looking for. We don't expect to eradicate the problem totally, but we do hope reduce the numbers greatly."

Palmer and Woods hope they can repeat another success like the prickly pear and the Cactoblastis: After the cacti were gone, the Cactoblastis numbers were reduced.

But for every success story, there is the cane toad to remind them of the importance of their work.

Years ago the cane toad was introduced into Australia to devour cane grubs that were destroying sugar cane crops. When the cane grubs were reduced, the cane toads started munching bees and other beneficial insects, which caused more problems.

"Things can go wrong," Palmer said. "We don't want things going that way again."

Whatever he discovers will have an impact on his country for the next 200 to 300 years. "That's why we have to be so very careful to get to the problem. Some insects we introduce could have worse effects than spraying with DDT."

Lack of good research on some of the weeds and insects causes Palmer to be doubly cautious. "Insects are difficult to identify because they don't harm crop plants. There's not much work done with them. If they don't attack crops, researchers don't bother with them," Palmer said.

Grant Critchfield of Salado, third-generation Texas, has been hired as a technician to assist the Australians. They must go into fields and carefully watch insects on plants. Then they collect the insects to bring back to Temple. The bugs are stored in paper cups with plants and food.

The first insect samples are sent to the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the National Science Museum for identification. Once identified, Palmer and Woods try to raise several generations of insects for their plant experiments.

"That can be difficult sometimes because some species produce many generations a year, some just once a year. I had a friend in South America who waited six years to produce a second generation of wood borers," Palmer said.

Palmer's research revolves around the groundsel, a close relative of what Texans call New Deal weed.

Change in DWI bill rejected

AUSTIN (AP) — The House has rejected a move to change a provision of a DWI bill making a person automatically guilty if he scores a certain level on a blood alcohol test — despite warnings the provision may be unconstitutional.

The resolution failed 45-99 Wednesday night.

The Senate passed 16-14 the resolution directing a House-Senate conference committee on the DWI bill to change the section covering intoxilyzer tests, but the House's rejection means that the panel cannot change the provision in either version of the bill.

Sen. Bob Glasgow, D-Stephenville, who is a former prosecutor, said the bill, sponsored in the Senate by Bill Sarpalius, D-Herford, changes current law to make a person automatically guilty if he scores 0.1 percent on an intoxilyzer test, which measures blood alcohol content.

Glasgow said under current law, a person is presumed to have been drunk if he scores 0.1 percent, but he can still present witnesses to rebut the test results when his case goes to trial.

The bill's House sponsor, Rep. Terral Smith, successfully argued that the resolution would weaken the measure.

But Glasgow said in the Senate that the proposed change would mean the accused is determined to be guilty before a trial.

"I think DWI penalties need to be raised," said Glasgow, "but I think this provision is abusive and I can't morally support it."

Glasgow said he would vote for the DWI bill even if the provision is not changed, however. Former policeman Ted Lyon, D-Mesquite, said the bill would "take the right to determine guilt or innocence away from a jury and give it to a machine."

Sen. Bob McFarland, R-Arlington, also a former prosecutor, said if the conference committee does not take out the "per se" guilt provision, the whole law could be thrown out by an appeals court.

Sarpalius argued that his bill is no different from DWI laws in 34 other states and that "per se" guilt has been upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court.

"Whether or not it is constitutional, I don't think is the question," said Sarpalius. Glasgow said because the "per se" guilt provision was in both the House and Senate measures, the conference committee cannot change it. He said a concurrent resolution was the only way to amend the bill now.

Youth gets 25 years in mother's killing

BELTON, Texas (AP) — A Temple teen-ager who said he fatally shot his mother after she became angry over his school report card has been assessed a 25-year prison sentence.

Quint Reed, 17, testified he was only trying to wound his mother, Mary Jane Schlorman, when he fired a .22-caliber rifle at her Jan. 31.

The jury returned the punishment verdict Wednesday. Reed pleaded guilty to a murder charge Monday after the trial started.

Mrs. Schlorman, 39, was shot in the back three times and pronounced dead within 30 minutes of her arrival at Temple's Scott & White Memorial Hospital.

Reed said his mother was angry at him because of his poor grades and because of speeding tickets he received. When he skipped school Jan. 31, his mother called him at work and told him she wanted to see his report card as soon as he got home.

"When she called me that night ... at the Whataburger, she just seemed so mad that night and I didn't want her taking my job, my truck, my hunting away," Reed testified Tuesday.

Later that evening, Mrs. Schlorman "came into my room and she asked to see my report card," Reed said. "She kind of yelled at me to see my grades."

Reed said he only was trying "to get across that I was real scared of her" and did not intend to kill his mother.

Cutting defense is not easy...

The most common prescription among lawmakers in Washington for lowering the federal deficit is a simple phrase. "Cut defense."

A few courageous whacks at the bloated military, they proclaim, would trim the deficit, lower interest rates and engender prosperity.

Unless members of Congress are willing to cut the effectiveness of our fighting forces, no significant savings of tax money can be made from defense cuts.

A recent article in Fortune magazine, entitled "Defense: Why cuts will be hard to come by," spells out why promises of prosperity through cuts in defense are just hollow. For example:

If Congress were to cut from this year's budget both planned nuclear aircraft carriers, the B-1B bomber, the MX missile, the Trident submarine, and the M-1 tank, they would save about $5 billion. That's only two percent of the total defense budget.

A return to the draft so that military pay can be cut won't work, either. A major problem for the armed forces, especially the Navy, has been the retention of skilled personnel. The armed forces don't need new recruits as much as they need the reenlistment of current personnel who possess important skills. The substantial pay increases under President Reagan have largely solved the problem. With the economy recovering, cuts in military pay will make it even more difficult to retain skilled personnel.

Delaying the building of a weapons system, or "stretching out," while saving money in the short-term, can often result in tremendous increases in the final cost of the project. For example, building two nuclear carriers side by side in Newport News saves around $500 million and delivers them to the Navy 22 months earlier than if they had built them separately and one after another.

We are not arguing against any cuts in the defense budget. Like all government spending, it is rife with waste and inefficiency. But to claim the budget deficit can be lowered to any significant degree by cutting tens of billions of dollars from defense simply won't work, unless members of Congress are willing to jeopardize national security.

Chances for more energy a dam site better now

By ROBERT WALTERS

HAYDENVILLE, Mass. (NEA) - The small dam spanning the Mill River here hasn't been used for at least three decades, but by the end of this year it will be generating 200,000 kilowatt hours of electricity annually.

Most of that power will be used in providing electricity to an adjacent building constructed in 1975 as a factory to manufacture brass plumbing fixtures. The factory is now virtually abandoned and has been in disrepair for many years.

When Marken Properties, Inc., a Massachusetts real estate development firm, decide last year to purchase and renovate the sprawling factory as an office and light manufacturing complex, it included the dam and its rehabilitation plans.

Similar decisions are being made all across the nation by both private developers and utility companies specializing in the production of electricity, thus marking a dramatic revival of hydropower as a significant source of energy.

Hydro last year edged out nuclear as the country's third largest source of electric energy. (Coal is used to generate 82 percent of all electricity, while natural gas, hydro and nuclear are responsible for about 15 to 14 percent apiece. Other forms of renewable energy and oil account for a total of 9 percent.)

The key to the resurgence of small-scale hydropower (as well as windmills, cogeneration systems and other alternative energy sources) was the passage of the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978, a federal law which requires utility companies to sell power to small producers when they are unable to generate adequate electricity and to buy power from them when they have excess production.

When PURPA was enacted into law, there were only 18 applications on file with regulatory agencies to build or revive small hydro facilities throughout the country. Today, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission has more than 2,000 license and permit requests pending.

A FERC study predicts that the law will encourage the production of approximately 12,000 megawatts of additional electric capacity annually by 1985, with hydropower responsible for about 3,500 megawatts per year.

Hydropower has been a source of energy in this country for more than a century, dating back to 1882 when the first hydropower facility (generating only 200 watts of electricity) went into operation in Appleton, Wis.

In the ensuing decades, thousands of small hydroelectric facilities were built, especially here in New England, to provide power to mills, factories and towns. Massive dams and generating stations were built in other regions of the country, notably the Pacific Northwest.

Those large facilities remain an integral part of the nation's power supply, but virtually all of the smaller dams were abandoned with the 20th century in centralized power plants which used coal or as a boiler fuel.

The federal government's efforts to survey the existing dam sites have produced optimistic yet conflicting inventories. In 1960, for example, the White House said it had identified "more than 5,000 existing dams, both public and private, (which) can be converted to power production."

Only a few months later, however, a FERC staff report cited "some 3,000 retired hydroelectric power plant sites... (which) could be redeveloped to resume power production."

Are we going back to the days of radical 60s?

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

Where are the liberals who profess to set great store by the First Amendment, the free speech amendment?

They certainly aren't at the University of California at Berkeley, at Smith College in Massachusetts or Barnard College in New York City.

U.N. Ambassador Jean Kirkpatrick was either shouted down or told that her free speech or security could not be assured. Faculty joined with ostentatious students in opposing a talk by one of the most senior U.S. officials.

You may rightly say: Shades of the 1960s! Yes, there are disturbing signs that leftists on college campuses - on college faculties - plan a return to the political guerrilla warfare which threatened so many institutions during the Vietnam War. Having got away with it recently at Berkeley, Smith and Barnard, it is very likely that the radicals will extend their campaigns to other campuses.

They have a good chance of doing this because many university administrations are either spineless or sympathize with the radicalized faculty members and students. Many University officials are specialists at a kind of political blather that seeks to make vicious militants appear as defenders of democratic values. This was the case at Smith College where many a wealthy daddy spends thousands of dollars to have his daughter educated. How many of these daddies know what kind of political education their daughters are receiving, what kind of hypocrisy they are learning?

Many a university official and radicalized professor would hit the ceiling if a college allowed Andrew Young or a socialist theorist to be shouted down or denied protection. These same types readily find excuses for denying free speech to a leading official of our democratically elected government. Thus we see the double standard in action. These are the types in the academic world that want American companies to disinvest in South Africa while establishing a dialogue with Nicaragua's Marxist regime.

The unpleasant fact is that many of the sixties radicals are now entrenched in university faculties. Indeed many avowed Marxists are faculty members at leading institutions. In Florida, a university education faculty at Tampa recently sponsored a 100th anniversary commemoration of the death of Karl Marx.

These facts suggest that the U.S. is in for a new burst of radical protest on college campuses, especially as we move towards the 1984 presidential election. The radicals apparently have the idea that the campuses provide a useful staging zone for political war against President Reagan, precisely as they warred against a democratic government in Vietnam from the privileged sanctuary of the campus in the 1960s. Responsible citizens should be alert to trouble ahead.

The British consider us paranoid

By PAUL HARVEY

The British think we are paranoid. They see our EPA emptying the whole town of Times Beach, Mo., because of dioxin in the soil there... though the EPA still allows dioxin to be sprayed as a herbicide on rangelands and on rice crops.

Indeed, dioxin has been sprayed for years on forests and crops and roadsides and home gardens and on the lawn of the White House.

Then why the panic over Times Beach? British toxicologists believe that too many of Washington, D.C.'s decisions are made by politicians to show they are doing something to protect the public - whether the public needs protecting or not.

In fairness to the bureaucrats, because in the '60s we were not warned in time about Thalidomide, babies died and others were born malformed and bureaucrats lost their jobs. Since then, in such government agencies as EPA and FDA and OSHA and CPSC, officials have tended to cover themselves with a public warning, however flimsy the evidence.

The result is that Americans are bombarded with warnings and whole industries go broke trying to prove themselves innocent.

The CPSC ban on the use of urea - formaldehyde in home insulation is being challenged in court. Here again, British scientists think we are overrunning our headlights. The British Industrial Biological Research Association notes that formaldehyde can cause nasal cancers in lab animals after prolonged breathing of high concentrations - concentrations so pungent that no human could stand even brief exposure.

Quote: "No reasonable person could conclude that formaldehyde constitutes a serious cancer hazard to humans..."

The association says our CPSC has "debased toxicological science," "has done a terrible disservice to the public it purports to serve."

Yet Americans continue on an almost daily basis to be unsettled by controversies over farm chemicals, saccharin, nitrites, red dye, Love Canal and the Valley of the Drums - whatever that is.

The American Industrial Health Council has urged for years the establishment of a Central Science Panel to advise our government's regulatory agencies on alleged public health hazards. Such a panel could provide sound scientific judgment in such matters and relieve from responsibility the political regulators...

And shush the inept headline seekers. Scientific knowledge is changing so rapidly that the best judgment we can muster on health hazards will be imperfect. Certainly we cannot risk relying on less than the best.

Editor's note: In this feature we excerpt material that has appeared on The Pampa News' editorial pages in previous years, whether from the editorials, the column written for many years by former editor and publisher R. C. Hollis.

Many people seem to think that freedom is some form of license that we have to limit. But if freedom has to be limited, then there are about as many ideas of freedom as there are individuals. If freedom is properly defined, it need not be limited.

Rose Wilder Lane says that freedom is self-control, no more, no less. And it seems the less a man is able to control himself, the more he wants to control somebody else. And yet such people think they believe in freedom.

Another definition of freedom that should mean about the same thing is getting things done on a voluntary basis rather than an involuntary basis.

Man guilty of murdering elderly woman who died month after rape

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill. (AP) — A man who raped an 86-year-old woman guilty of murder for her death a month later because the attack weakened the woman and left her unable to expel food lodged in her windpipe, a judge has ruled.

However, Madison County Chief Criminal Court Judge Philip J. Rarick, hearing the case without a jury, rejected prosecution claims of "psychological murder" based on testimony that Elizabeth Winslow had "lost the will to live."

The claims had "no basis in law," the judge ruled Wednesday.

The verdict against Randy Brackett, 23, was "a very important step forward in the protection of the elderly," said State's Attorney Don W. Weber. "It recognizes the frailties of old people. A younger person would not have died in the case."

Weber said the judge "took emotional and psychological factors into account, and our research shows that this is the first case where these factors were considered."

The judge set sentencing for June 6. Brackett, already serving a 60-year term for the attack in October 1981, could be sentenced to life in prison for her murder.

Mrs. Winslow died Nov. 24 when she choked on food while being spoon-fed her lunch at a Godfrey nursing home.

Rarick said he based his ruling on prosecution evidence that a broken rib suffered by Mrs. Winslow, a widow, during the attack at her Alt home would have made it difficult for her to expel food lodged in her windpipe.

Brackett "may not have anticipated the sequence of events following his acts which resulted in the death of Elizabeth Winslow," Rarick said in his ruling.

But, the judge continued, "his unlawful acts in the commission of the forcible felonies of rape and aggravated battery precipitated those events, and he is responsible for the consequence."

The fracture, discovered when she was hospitalized after the attack, was so minor it was missed by the pathologist who did an autopsy. She also suffered a broken arm in the incident. According to the autopsy report, Mrs. Winslow died after a large volume of food entered her esophagus.

"She was being spoon-fed ice cream at the nursing home when her jaw dropped and she went into a fixed stare," said Dallas M. Burke, the Madison County coroner. "She did not choke or even try to cough up the food. I'd say it's rare, but it does happen to people in a weakened condition."

Mrs. Winslow's doctor reported that she had slipped into a "deep depression" when she was released from the hospital two weeks after the attack, said the coroner, adding, "He said she had just lost the will to live."

Legislature prepares to thwart quarantine threat

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas senators say they will try again to pass a bill that could thwart threats of a federal quarantine of the state's cattle trade with other states, and a congressman is asking President Reagan to intervene on Texas' behalf.

"Probably Friday," Sen. Bob Glasgow, D-Stephenville, said Wednesday when asked when the Senate would act.

Glasgow's bill, already approved in the House, is aimed at voiding the U.S. Department of Agriculture's announcement of a ban on interstate cattle shipments, effective June 1, because Texas does not have adequate controls for the cattle disease brucellosis.

severe economic blow to the Texas cattle industry and therefore to the already depressed state economy."

In Washington, U.S. Rep. Bill Patman, D-Texas, wrote to President Reagan Wednesday requesting that the quarantine be postponed from June 1 until Jan. 1 so that the issue can be more fully examined, a spokesman said.

Glasgow blamed former Gov. Dolph Briscoe and "some other big ranchers in South Texas" for bringing on the crisis.

"They just have stocker cattle that they round up once a year and send to market," Glasgow said. "They don't want to go to the trouble and cost of inspecting them for brucellosis once a year."

"What is an inconvenience to him (Briscoe) can kill the rest of the industry in Texas," Glasgow said.

Briscoe was not available Wednesday by telephone.

Last week Briscoe told reporters in Austin that he thought the USDA quarantine threat was just a bluff.

"The president would not sit by, with an election coming up next year, and put a quarantine on the state of Texas," Briscoe said last week.

Brucellosis causes reduced calf crops and lower milk production, although it causes no danger to consumers of meat and pasteurized dairy products.

In his letter, Patman said the question of a brucellosis control program "is a particularly divisive question in Texas" because the disease virtually does not exist in the western and much of the southern part of the state, while it has been a continuing problem in the east and southeast parts.

Patman said a statewide quarantine "would impose a

Enough excuses, White contends

AUSTIN (AP) — Lawmakers can complain about not having enough time, or enough information, but they are only making poor excuses for not raising taxes to fund a pay hike for teachers, Gov. Mark White says.

"They have the time if they had the inclination. They will give you a whole list of excuses — we were too late, it was too difficult — but those are merely excuses for their failure to take action," White said at his regular weekly news conference Wednesday.

White's proposals died in a House committee Monday night, and now there are only five days left in the session. But White, who hinted Tuesday at the possibility of a special session, said he has still not given up hope to get his plan passed during the regular session.

"I think there's still time available. If they want to, they can," White said.

In the House, Speaker Gib Lewis said, "I guess I'll have to say again — there isn't (time). My stand has been from the first — I'm opposed to any tax bill."

Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen, chairman of the committee that voted against the tax package, has said he was willing to work with White on a tax bill if the governor calls a special session.

"I'm delighted to have his support," White said. "I don't know why we have to wait. Now is the time to act."

White said he had met with House leaders Monday before revealing his latest plan to hike taxes, and tried to mold his plan to their desires, only to see the plan fail a few hours later in Schlueter's committee.

"I think it's important that they be in full faith with the people they're dealing with and not come up here and say, 'We're against any taxes' in the daytime and talk about sending us new proposals in the evening," White said.

Schlueter said previously he thought he had support for some of White's package Monday, but said some members of his committee switched their votes before the panel met that night, resulting in defeat for the tax bills.

Schlueter said Tuesday there was not enough time for a tax bill to make it through the legislative process by the Monday night deadline.

Earthquake damage

Severe quake strikes Japan

AKITA, Japan (AP) — A severe earthquake and huge waves which followed it killed at least 20 people and left 75 missing along a 180-mile stretch of coastline in northwest Japan today, police reported.

Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone declared an emergency to coordinate relief efforts in the rural fishing and farming area as reports came in on what appeared to be the worst quake to hit the region in 44 years.

Most of the dead were swallowed up in the tsunamis, similar to tidal waves, which were triggered by the tremor. The Central Meteorological Agency said the quake registered 7.7 on the Richter scale and occurred off the shore of an area about 280 miles north of Tokyo.

The National Police Agency said a group of 50 people, including more than 40 children on a school excursion, were caught in a wave that struck the coast of the Oga Peninsula, near this prefectural capital of 200,000.

Police in Akita said one of the students in the group, which reportedly was having a picnic on the beach, was killed. The others were rescued, according to news reports.

The national daily Asahi Shimbun quoted Tsuyoshi Tsuruga, an agricultural cooperative worker in Oga, as saying a wave "rising to a height I have never before seen crashed down on the group. All the children screamed and most of them were swept away."

Toshiharu Hosoi, an official at a coastal Oga aquarium, said a Swiss woman, unofficially identified as Magdalena Brandenberger, 38, from Zurich, was found dead after failing to reach the safety of a rock as the waves "of five or six meters approached at a speed much faster than we expected."

Japan Broadcasting Corp. (NHK) reported fires burning at an oil refinery and a thermal power plant in Akita, and other fires in Hirosaki city, north of Akita.

Kyodo News Service said three oil storage tanks had been ruptured at Niigata, another major city 160 miles south of Akita. Some structural damage and broken roads and sidewalks were reported in many parts of the area.

Nakasone appointed State Minister Mitsuki Kato to head a committee to coordinate relief efforts. The quake struck hours before Nakasone's scheduled departure for the seven-nation economic summit in Williamsburg, Va.

The meteorological agency said the tremor was centered in the Japan Sea off Akita. Akita has 200,000 people.

In Tokyo the quake was felt as a long rolling vibration. The upper stories of office buildings swayed

Change in school board selection okayed

AUSTIN (AP) — Dallas Rep. Paul Ragsdale has won preliminary House approval for a measure allowing some school districts to get rid of at-large school board elections.

Under the Senate-approved measure, local option elections could be called to decide whether to pick school trustees from single-member districts. A House amendment restricts the option to school districts with more than 5,000 students.

House members from mostly white suburbs argued Wednesday there's no need for single-member districts, now used in some big city districts.

But Ragsdale said single-member districts are needed for purposes other than ensuring minority representation on school boards. He said "racially homogenous doesn't mean political homogenous."

"I've seen white people fight, just like black people fight and Mexican-Americans fight," said Ragsdale.

The House voted 87-58 Wednesday for tentative approval of the bill, which faces another vote and Senate review of the House amendment.

Rep. Bill Blanton, R-Farmers Branch, complained Ragsdale's bill would allow single-member districts in "very homogenous" suburban districts that have no problems with the at-large selections.

Blanton said the threat of a local option election could "tear the whole community apart."

"I believe the local people should have control of it themselves," he said, despite colleagues' arguments that the local option provision ensures local control.

The bill could be "the first step toward making (single-member districts) mandatory next time," said Blanton, who tried to gut the bill with an amendment allowing local option elections for single-member districts only in school districts with more than 15,000 students.

His amendment was killed 78-61. Duncanville Rep. Ray Keller, who, like Blanton, represents a "homogenous" area, said the choice of switching to at-large districts would be an "onerous burden to place on the smaller school districts."

Rep. Milton Fox, R-Houston, said there's no need for single-member districts in mostly white suburban school districts. He said single-member districts would lead to "geographic factionalism."

The measure faces another House vote before going back to the Senate for consideration of a House amendment allowing single-member districts in school districts with more than 5,000 students. The Senate version set the floor at 2,500 students.

Man spends nights in iron lung, days running his own business

HOUSTON (AP) — Ed Rosenwasser, who spends his nights in an iron lung, uses his days running a successful business — a service to locate financial aid for college students.

Using a rubber-tipped stick which he holds between his teeth, Rosenwasser operates computer keys, makes telephone calls and records messages. He receives about 1,000 calls monthly from high school students across the country.

Rosenwasser has been unable to move his arms or legs since 1950, when he was stricken with polio. During the day, he uses a respirator. At night, he sleeps in an iron lung.

For a $45 fee, Rosenwasser will locate five to 12 funding sources for which the student qualifies. If he cannot identify at least five realistic possibilities from his data bank containing over 250,000 scholarships, Rosenwasser said, he returns the money.

"There is about a half-billion dollars available each year for private scholarships," Rosenwasser said. "A fourth of that — more than $100 million — goes unused. But if students know where to look for scholarship funds, many of them will be successful."

Rosenwasser retains an optimistic outlook despite his disabilities.

"Happiness is not in your left hand or your right leg, it's in your head," he said. "If most of us are persistent enough, we can succeed at something."

Rosenwasser was stricken with polio in 1950 after completing a year at the University of Texas Medical School at Galveston. He was vacationing in Europe when he became violently ill and within a day was paralyzed from the neck down.

"Now I had to figure out what to do with the rest of my life," Rosenwasser recalled. "I had always wanted to be a doctor, but I didn't think it was practical for me to return to medical school."

So Rosenwasser embarked on a series of businesses including a magazine subscription service and a trading stamp exchange. He also imported sweaters from Hong Kong, and operated a retail clothing store.

Rosenwasser received a masters degree in biostatistics from the UT School of Public Health but was unable to find work in that field because of his handicap, he said. He said he conceived the idea for his present business, Student College Aid, in the early 1970s.

Conference group gets insurance bill

AUSTIN (AP) — Senators have refused on a 24-7 vote to accept what one called the "biggest piece of self-interest legislation" he had ever seen.

The same vote Wednesday called for a House-Conference conference committee on the proposal to regulate title insurance companies.

Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, had asked his colleagues to accept House amendments to a bill that would extend the life of the State Insurance Board.

People Express flies

LONDON (AP) — People Express, the no-frills U.S. airline, received a permit from the British government today to begin its new $149 trans-Atlantic service between Newark, N.J., and London.

The decision was announced by the British Trade Department.

The inaugural flight is scheduled to leave from Newark for London at 7:15 p.m.

U.S. officials have approved the new service, and tickets went on sale Monday.

All coach seats at the one-way fare of $149 to London were sold through Sept. 12, said Liese Wenz, a floor coordinator in the reservations department in Newark. She said some first-class seats, with a one-way fare of $439, were available.

The airline had reported that about a fourth of the 34,000 seats available to London and back through Sept. 12 had been booked as of Monday. The first flight can carry 430 passengers, 390 in coach seats, Miss Wenz said.

Before People Express announced its fare, the lowest available trans-Atlantic rate was $275 for standby bookings.

It pays to shop for the best car loan prices

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — In a survey of car loan costs in two states without rate ceilings, the Credit Research Center at Purdue University found a 10-point spread between the best and the worst.

The incredible range, which could amount to several hundred dollars a year, contains several lessons for consumers, the most important of which seems to be that now it pays to shop. In the past you could find only small differences. But there's a new factor: Savings banks and savings and loans now can make consumer loans.

The new competition has resulted in a fight for business, with the newer entries cutting rates in order to get a foot in the door, and others seeking to match them in order to keep the business.

The Purdue researchers found car loan rates of 8 percent to 18 percent in Illinois, and 10 percent to 20 percent in Arizona, and the suspicion that many Americans are unaware that bargains exist.

"There are very reasonable rates out there," said A. Charlene Sullivan of the credit center. In fact, she says, some of the rates surprised her, and she feels they might surprise others too.

The evidence of at least some low rates comes amid complaints about what is seen as a failure of consumer rates to fall simultaneously with rates on larier, commercial loans.

Often cited by these critics are bank card rates of close to 20 percent, and automobile and unsecured personal loan rates only slightly less. But, Mrs. Sullivan points out, low rates might exist side by side with them.

Mrs. Sullivan and Robert W. Johnson, the center's executive director, sought to explain why the upper range of rates have failed to correlate with declines (to 10.5 percent) in the prime loan rate.

Operating costs, they conclude, are a major factor. Such costs made up one-fourth of total installment loan costs at larger banks, those generally associated with the prime rate. For smaller banks, operations amounted to one-third of all costs.

They found that operating costs amounted to 45.8 percent of the costs of large banks issuing credit cards, and 59 percent of total credit card costs for small banks.

In contrast, such costs made up 13 percent of the costs of providing commercial loans, such as those associated with the prime rate.

Credit losses add to the upward pressure on consumer rates.

The authors cite a study that showed commercial bank net losses amounted to only 4.9 percent of the total costs of installment loans and 10.7 percent (21) the costs of credit card functions.

But for retailers who offer credit cards, bad debt losses amounted to 12.4 percent of total costs.

And there is a difference also in the costs of funds used for commercial loans and those for consumer credit.

Problems could follow Reagan to summit

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — As he heads for 18th-century Williamsburg, Va., to talk about the world's 20th century economic problems, President Reagan leaves behind dilemmas and seeming policy contradictions. But each could follow him to the summit conference there.

While he is planning to focus on exchange rates, inflation, interest rates, and unemployment, Reagan will be forced by the six other heads of state to also discuss the United States' deficit problem, which he said at the last summit a year ago would be licked in coming years.

But the deficit has grown to $200 billion, by some estimates, and could go higher during the period he said it would be in balance.

Dilemma No. 1: Reagan said last week that "deficit-spending represents one of the most alarming dangers to our republic and to the prosperity of our people."

However, Reagan has shown no interest in giving ground on two areas in which he could tackle this threat to the nation: by raising taxes or limiting the scope of pending tax cuts — or by cutting the defense budget increase below the approximately 7.5 percent raise he has accepted after originally seeking a 10 percent increase.

Reagan's advisers believe the allies will want to talk about the deficit, because they feel it is responsible for high interest rates and the strength of the dollar at the expense of their currencies.

Dilemma No. 2: Reagan is ready to release for shipment to Israel 75 F-16 jet fighters. He held up the shipment last year in the wake of the Israeli invasion of Lebanon. The announcement of their release was seen as a signal of U.S. support after Israel signed an agreement with Lebanon, although the Israeli troops will remain there until Syrian and Palestine Liberation Organization forces are withdrawn.

The dilemma is this: In a March 31 speech Reagan said that while the Israeli forces "are in the position of occupying another country that now has asked them to leave, we are forbidden by law to release those planes. It's as simple as the other forces returning to their own countries and letting Lebanon be Lebanon."

While the Middle East is not on the agenda for the three formal summits Sunday and Monday, it is a likely topic at informal talks.

Dilemma No. 3: One of the steps Reagan took after the imposition of martial law in Poland was to limit U.S. trade with the Soviet Union. In December 1981, he suspended talks for a long-term grain sale agreement. But on April 22, he offered to resume the negotiations. The U.S. Agriculture Department announced last week that the Soviets said they would return to the bargaining table.

But, although he was asked, Reagan did not deal with the subject of the overall situation in Poland, and it was that situation that prompted him to cut off the grain negotiations 17 months ago as a gesture of protest against the martial law regime.

Dr. Pepper seeks to cork 7Up adds

DALLAS (AP) — Dr Pepper Co. has asked the television networks to reject a new ad campaign by 7Up that claims the soft drink is the only one that uses no artificial coloring or flavors.

Spokesmen for ABC and NBC said they planned to show the first ads as scheduled today while they review Dr Pepper's complaint that they are misleading. A CBS executive said network policy did not allow her to comment.

Coca-Cola also has taken offense at the campaign, and sent a letter to its bottlers that describes the ads as "false, misleading and detrimental to the soft-drink industry." The company promised a new campaign for Sprite, its lemon-lime drink that is 7Up's chief competitor.

Edward W. Frantel, president and chief executive officer of the Seven-Up Co., said the company's research shows that consumers are "concerned that soft drinks might contain too much" artificial coloring and flavoring.

But Dr Pepper president Richard Armstrong countered that "our laboratory people as well as outside consultants have confirmed that 7Up does in fact contain artificial ingredients."

Dr Pepper claims the citric acid and sodium citrate used in 7Up are artificial, and while Seven-Up executives acknowledged that they do use synthetic forms of those substances, they said they are not classified as artificial by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

An FDA spokesman explained that the substances can be derived from natural sources, too.

Armstrong labeled the ads "patently misleading," accused Seven-Up of "attacking the competition through innuendo" and pledged to "pursue every legitimate avenue open to us to ensure that this form of advertising receives the most careful scrutiny before its use is approved."

New safety shoes protect with style

NEW YORK (AP) — Every morning, nearly 6 million Americans go off to work with secret defensive weapons hidden in their shoes — in men's shoes, women's shoes, black wing-tips, cowboy boots, laced high-tops, loafers, oxfords and sneakers.

Concealed daggers? No. James Bond devices? Wrong again. They're steel safety toes.

Better than anything "007" could invent, these invisible steel shields built into dressy, casual and rugged footwear are "weapons" to defend people against on-the-job foot injuries.

Since 1970, the use of safety shoes in the United States has increased over 250 percent, according to The Footwear Council. The rise is partly due to requirements of the U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA), founded in 1970. OSHA has mandated safety shoes in more industries than before.

As an example of safety gains, the New York State Workmen's Compensation Board reports that in 1979 (the latest available data year) leg-injury cases involving feet were 8 percent lower than in 1970.

Foot injuries actually have declined far more, believes Dr. Samuel Heller, the Board's Chairman of Podiatry Practices, because "With safety shoes, accidents that might have seriously injured feet now result only in minor bruises, which may not even be reported."

Besides OSHA rules, another major factor in increased safety shoe usage is the great progress in styling. The Footwear Council points out.

At one time, all safety shoes were clunky high-tops with rigid soles, weighing a ton and looking it. Now manufacturing innovations have made possible more flexible soles, and uppers in current fashions. Workers prefer safety shoes that are styled like footwear they wear off the job.

This is confirmed by Republic Steel Safety Director Patrick J. O'Neal. "Our steel operations still require the heaviest-duty models," he notes, "but in the fabrication divisions and for guards and health workers, we approve safety shoes in many modern styles, and they're very popular, particularly with the fashion-conscious young people."

It's not only men who've begun protecting their feet in style. Women moving into OSHA-regulated jobs are spurring demand for oxford, moccasin, and sneaker-style safety shoes, the Council notes.

People also are increasingly wearing safety shoes while doing home chores such as mowing lawns, chopping wood, or do-it-yourself construction projects.

"We encourage our employees to wear safety shoes for such jobs," says O'Neal, "because we believe safety is a 24-hour concern. I always wear safety shoes myself when cutting grass."

The extra protection can keep a tool malfunction or a toppling pile of bricks from causing injury, and the price and styling of the footwear are comparable to other casual shoes. The usual price range is from $25 to $60, and has remained stable in the past several years, the Council reports.

During manufacture, the protection is built not only into the toe-box, but the sole and other areas. Specialized safeguards are provided in shoes tailored for every industry from lumbering to oil. However, popular choices for home wear are styled like cowboy boots, hiking shoes, oxfords and other leisure looks.

Availability of safety shoes also has improved markedly. In the past, such footwear often was sold mainly by mobile trucks serving industrial plants. Now, regular shoe stores commonly carry a range of styles.

If a shopper cannot find a safety shoe selection at a local store, a phone call to the safety director of any major industrial firm in the area will produce the name of a nearby retailer. The Footwear Council advises.

Dear Abby Diploma may open doors for jailed teen

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: A friend whose family is divided on this asked me to write. It seems that her nephew was scheduled to graduate from high school, but he got into trouble with the law (an old habit of his) and was sentenced to six months in the county jail. However, he is being allowed to do his homework in jail in order to complete the needed credits and get his diploma.

His mother went ahead and mailed his graduation invitations and announcements to family and friends knowing he wouldn't be able to attend his own graduation. My friend thought this was a tacky thing for the mother to do. Of course, those who received graduation invitations and announcements felt obligated to send a gift.

What do you think about this?

NO TOWN OR NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO TOWN: I think it's to the boy's credit that he chose to graduate instead of dropping out. Having that diploma will make it easier for him to shape up and stay out of trouble. Don't assume that relatives and friends sent gifts because they felt obligated. It could be their way of saying, "Congratulations for graduating anyway. Now we expect better things from you. Don't let us down."

DEAR ABBY: My wife is physically handicapped and needs help in the bathroom. When we go out, which is often, I assist her in the ladies' room.

Should I take her to the men's or ladies' restroom? We won't cut back on our outings regardless of what people say or think.

MINNESOTAN

DEAR MINNESOTAN: I posed that question to "June," at the Westside Community for Independent Living in Los Angeles. Her reply: "No problem. The man should ask a woman to please go into the ladies' room first and tell whoever is occupying it (if indeed someone is) that a woman who needs assistance from her husband will be coming in. Most people are very understanding and cooperative."

DEAR ABBY: A mother-in-law was upset because her daughter-in-law never made a home-cooked meal for her — instead she always entertained in a restaurant. You said: "Some people just can't handle entertaining at home. The very thought of it is so upsetting, they don't even want to make the effort, so accept the restaurant dinners with good grace, and don't let it bother you."

Thanks, Abby. No one else understood. But you did. I, too, am petrified at the thought of entertaining at home. Even when my married children are coming for dinner, I can't sleep for three days ahead of time; I wake up at 4 a.m. in a panic, simply terrified!

Books, courses, friends or family can't help me. I can't help being this way. I've fought it for 40 years, and I'm only 60.

Thank you for understanding.

MRS. B., ALABASTER, ALA.

DEAR MRS. B.: If misery loves company, take comfort in the knowledge that you have a lot of company.

DEAR ABBY: Is there anything "improper" about having the mother of the bride escort her daughter down the aisle?

My father will be a guest at my wedding, but he and my mother have been divorced since I was a small child and my mother raised me alone.

SENTIMENTAL

DEAR SENTIMENTAL: Improper? No way. Discuss this with the clergyman who will perform the ceremony, and good luck.

Sporty summerwear for girls

NEW YORK (NEA) — Summer wear for little girls no longer has to mean only shorts or jeans. Sportswear cotton knits inspire designers to bring the dress revival to the youngest fashionables. Bright with color, these dresses also please mothers with their durable, easy-care fabrics.

Stripes stand out as a leading theme. Garanimals uses bold navy stripes horizontally on the long torso bodice of a cotton blend knit dress with white-bound scoop neck, vertical stripes on the short sleeves and gathered miniskirt. At Tulip Tops, it's a striped red and white camisole top with a coin-dot ruffle and gathered yoked miniskirt in solid red, both of knit Trevira/cotton blend.

Among new colors for youngsters, purple and turquoise are used in the Our Girl collection at Health-Tex for asymmetrical striping on white cotton knit. White bateau neck-band is buttoned on the shoulder, and a wide white band divides bodice from gathered miniskirt.

For older girls, fashion's current black and white theme appeals as a touch of sophistication. At Dorina Sport, Doree Selevan adds to a white culotte dress a big, pointed detachable collar in black and white that reverses to hot pink. Carole Francis of Youngland uses black for the long torso and hem of her mini sundress, with a wide white band.

Sundresses lend themselves to all kinds of little-girl summer moods. Romance themes Sylvia White's yellow and white seersucker with full, mid-calf skirt, ribbon straps and eyelet trim. Harold Square uses colorfully embroidered white linen, with eyelet pinafore wings over the shoulders.

Summer dresses for little girls cover a wide style range. They can be as simple as Florence Eiseman's classic green and white gingham check sundress with white cardigan sweater, or pick up on the "retro" '50s look, as in Lila Goodman's dress for Seibel & Stern, with its bandstand skirt and sweetheart-shaped neckline, all in yellow and red heart print.

Summer party dresses can take spilled ice cream because they're in cotton/poly blends. Nannette does a crisp white dress falling in box pleats from a big square collar yoke, with dentelle lace edging it and the short puffed sleeves. Even frilly dresses come in such fabrics.

At Martha's Miniatures, a lavender party dress is ruffled and lace-frosted at hem and in pinafore wings, with an embroidered satin sash. Yves St. Laurent for Seibel & Stern uses easy-care Quana for a charmer with ruffled peplum over a full skirt, ruffled yoke and satin bow.

This is about as far from sports influence as little girls' summer dresses get. More common is the two-piece, in which an easy, gathered knit miniskirt can be paired with everything from T-shirts to matching or coordinated tops.

Turquoise-new accent for white

NEW YORK (NEA) — Get out the turquoise necklace you bought on that Western trip. Turquoise is the big summer jewelry color, because it looks great with the many white summer fashions. Whether in beads or bold glass looks, turquoise gives life to white.

Refined summer jewelry styles are done in polished turquoise beads or mixes of turquoise and pearl beads. In Avon's turquoise collection, pearl and turquoise beads mingle in a twisted, multi-strand necklace, while polished turquoise beads separated with tiny golden rondels make up another necklace.

Avon adds earrings and ring in pearl and turquoise, plus a pair of earrings in polished turquoise round beads for another accent. Other collections mingle turquoise with such accents as silver, seen at Randall Carnes, or black, as Donatella Pellini does with a turquoise plastic bracelet.

Astro-Graph by bernice bede osol

The times ahead look very promising for you, provided you establish definite objectives. Going off on tangents could deprive you of a victory.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There's a possibility today that you might be overly influenced by someone who does not have your best interests at heart. Think for yourself. Gemini predictions for the year ahead are now ready. Romance, career, luck, earnings, travel and much more are discussed. Send $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign. Send an additional $2 for the NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet. Reveals romantic combinations and compatibilities for all signs.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If your policy is to put off until tomorrow things which should be done today, you'll be asking for complications. Sweep nothing under the rug.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Social contacts who promise to do big things for you today could be better talkers than deliverers. Placing your hopes on them may be disappointing.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It's important that you and your mate aim for the same objectives today. If not, you could be in for a frustrating tug-and-pull session.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Ideas and concepts must be kept in proper perspective today, or they could become distorted or blown out of proportion and fall flat.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Avoid deficit spending today. Unless you have the funds in hand it may prove unwise to make large purchases, hoping you'll be able to cover them later.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A close associate could be difficult to get along with today. Excuse yourself from his or her presence when you see the storm signals.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Play things down the middle in career matters today. Problems could result from behavior that is either too negative or unrealistically optimistic.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Guard against overindulgence today. If you've been watching your waistline, recall: Obesity is the fine we pay for exceeding the feed limit.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your image could suffer today if you don't handle yourself well in competitive situations. If you win, be humble. If you lose, do so with grace.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Unless you have the poker face to carry it off, don't try to bluff your way through sticky situations today. Others will be able to read you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Skillful maneuvering will be required today to come out in the plus column in your business dealings. Don't let your guard down for even a second.

Poverty gap is narrowing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The movement of jobs and Americans south and west in the 1970s narrowed the poverty gaps among the regions, Census Bureau figures indicate.

The Northeastern and North Central states saw increases in the percentage of poor among their residents between 1970 and 1980. At the same time the rate fell in the South and West.

This change followed declines in regional differences in wages and changes in the industrial base in various areas, said Daniel H. Garnick of the federal Bureau of Economic Analysis.

Job opportunities, especially in high technology, expanded in the Western states during the decade, and other firms moved south to take advantage of lower labor costs. Census analyses have reported.

Nationwide the share of Americans living in poverty dropped from 13.3 percent in 1970 to 12.5 percent in the 1980 report. The recession, which began in 1981, has caused the rate to begin rising again, however.

The 12.5 percent rate represents 27.5 million people living on income below the poverty level.

The North Central states boasted the nation's lowest poverty rate at 10.7 percent, up from 10.5 percent a decade earlier.

The Northeast had previously held the lowest rate at 9.8 percent, but that climbed to 11.3 percent by the time the 1980 figures were collected.

In the same decade poverty in the South dropped from 19.7 percent to 15.3 percent. And in the West it edged down from 11.4 percent to 11.3 percent.

Man prefers horses to people, highways

ARIVACA, Ariz. (AP) — John Frye is a man on horseback heading for Montana and a dream of building a new home in a new town without a name.

The 44-year-old miner and saloon keeper says he's had more than enough of people and highways.

Gathering his two sons, a friend and a string of pack animals, Frye mounted up Monday for the long, hot ride. He expects to reach Montana in something under three months.

"It was time to do something else," he said of his decision to leave this hamlet on the northern edge of the Coronado National Forest about 10 miles from Arizona's border with Mexico.

Making the move on horseback is a matter of "just the challenge of the thing," he said during his first trail break — the Cow Palace Saloon in Amado, about 20 miles further north but next door to bustling Interstate 19.

"My Dad and I were going to take a trip to South America on horses, but I was always too busy," Frye said. "Next thing you know, he dies, and we can't go. So I'm taking my boys and we're going."

Frye's destination is Livingston, Mont. — a ride of about 1,200 miles.

"This trip on the horses is going to clear our heads," he said. "Then, when we get to Montana, me and the boys are going to build a town, build it from scratch."

"We've got a little money, and we've got some land there. We're going to start felling timber and building this fall. We're going to build cabins. But the first thing we're going to build is a church where everybody can come in and be comfortable. It's going to be a church with a pool table and a dance floor."

Frye and his sons, Rick, 24, and Rocky, 16, and family friend Scott McKenzie, 24, said they were well prepared for the journey.

"We'll have three pack horses and two pack mules," he said. "We'll carry ice and beer and whiskey and Yukon Jack (Canadian whiskey liqueur). We've got our bedrolls. We've got food and pots and pans. We're going to be real comfortable."

The town, he said, won't be called anything. "It'll just be where we're going to live. ... A place to hunt and fish and just live our lives."

Children cover school news on own show

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The newscast's theme music blares through the studio and the producer cues anchorwoman Maria Barron, who smiles confidently at the camera and launches into one of today's top stories.

"The librarian has asked that all students return their overdue library books," she reads, "before school lets out for summer."

Maria is the 11-year-old co-anchor of TPC News, a bilingual weekday morning show broadcast live to students at Gardendale Elementary School.

The theme music is "It's a Small World." The studio, the school library.

The anchors, weather girl, requisite sports guy and camerawoman all are fifth-graders, directed by 11-year-old production manager Jessica Gonzalez. And Jessica means business.

She and co-anchor Sonia Rodriguez, 11, went to Kelly Air Force Base to cover President Reagan's May visit after school district officials spent two days wrangling for White House credentials. "We met a lot of the media out there, including Sam Donaldson of ABC, and they were just shocked," Jessica said. "We take the news very seriously."

"They always think of kids just as kids," Sonia said, shaking her head in agreement.

TPC News has it all — "news, weather, sports and much more," as a frequent promo promises the 800 pre-kindergarten through sixth-grade students.

A typical 15-minute color newscast mixes school, city, state, national and international news, ranging from the Tylenol poisonings to the teachers' softball team, with weather and sports tossed in.

The students arrive well before school and stay after each day for production meetings and newscast critiques — all for no credit.

TPC News, or Tamez Production Co., is supervised by teacher Elia Tamez, who has donated hundreds of hours to the show.

"Doing this has greatly improved their articulation, their vocabulary and their comprehension," she said. "They also are much more poised."

Principal Anna Maria Vega said TPC News helped her at the beginning of the year by broadcasting school rules and using its camera to show students around the cafeteria and other areas.

The program began last year and, before budget cuts, was funded through the gifted and talented program at the Edgewood Independent School District, Ms. Vega said.

On a typical morning, moments before airtime, Jessica barks out staccato instructions to her team.

"Maria," she said, "you have just 52 seconds to do that story. Sonia, then you'll be on. Okay. Test the mike. Stand by. Quiet on the set. Lights, action."

A practiced snap of her fingers starts the newscast to every classroom at Gardendale.

There's a minor crisis. The first-graders who do a mini-newscast twice a week tell Jessica their show no longer is called, heaven forbid, "Kiddie News." The name now, they tell her, is "Super-Duper News."

Malone hungry for championship ring as 76ers, Lakers square off tonight

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Moses Malone doesn't want to spend any more of his considerable salary in a jewelry store.

"It's time to win it," the Philadelphia 76ers center said Wednesday after practice for tonight's second game of the National Basketball Association championship series. "I'm tired of having to go to a store to buy a ring. I want to win one."

Malone, who earned more than $2 million in the first season of his six-year, $13.2 million contract, is itching to beat the Los Angeles Lakers in the best-of-seven title series, which the 76ers lead 1-0 after winning the opener 113-107 last Sunday.

"Those 65 games we won in the regular season won't mean anything if we don't win the championship," Malone said.

The two-time NBA Most Valuable Player, who is considered likely to win that award again after this season, had 27 points and 18 rebounds in 41 minutes of action in Sunday's victory. But reserve center Clemon Johnson is sidelined with a urinary tract infection, so Malone could see even more playing time tonight.

"I've played 48-minute games a few times," Malone said. "It's no big deal. I was ready to go Tuesday night. I didn't see any reason to wait four days between games."

In the playoffs, Malone said, "you don't worry about getting tired."

With Johnson out, Earl Cureton, who has played in only three of Philadelphia's 10 playoff games for a total of six minutes, is Malone's primary reserve.

"We don't expect him to be a dominant force, we just hope he will play up to his capabilities," Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham said of Cureton. "Moses could play more. We have three additional TV timeouts and we can spread our own timeouts to give him more rest."

Cunningham said he expects both teams to be mentally tougher tonight.

"The effort always intensifies when a team gets behind," said Lakers center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

The Lakers, who beat the 76ers in the opener of the championship series in 1980 and last year and went on to win the title in six games both times, will go into Game 2 at less than full strength again.

In addition to the loss for the entire playoffs of rookie star James Worthy, Bob McAdoo still is slowed by a bruised thigh. But McAdoo said he possibly could play some tonight.

Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley said the Lakers could win the series without McAdoo's help, "but our margin of error shrinks a little bit. We can't afford to make as many mistakes as we could if we had McAdoo and Worthy."

Stadler hopes to break out of slump as Memorial tourney tees off today

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — A year ago at this time, en route to pro golf's annual money-winning title, Craig Stadler had won twice, finished second twice and earned more than $286,000.

In 1983, prior to today's start of the $400,000 Memorial Tournament, Stadler is still searching for his first victory of the season and is not among the top 10 money-winners.

"I had a slow start. It's starting to come together. I'm not down on myself," Stadler said over lunch in the Muirfield Village locker room.

"Let's see. I'm $330,000 short of last year. It will be tough reaching that figure because I'm not sure how much I'm going to play the rest of the year," said the 29-year-old, who won four titles last year.

So why the big difference between 1982 and 1983?

"The only difference is putting," he answered. "I haven't had the tremendous amount of confidence I had last year. If it's possible, I was close to having too much confidence then. I putted so well day in, day out, it didn't matter how I hit the ball."

The 1973 U.S. Amateur champion, seven times a winner in eight tour seasons, believes a two-week layoff before last week's Atlanta stop will benefit him mentally. Even missing the cut at Atlanta has not dampened his enthusiasm.

Stadler, in six Memorial attempts, finished third once. Otherwise, he's been no higher than 27th. He shot 84 in one round over Jack Nicklaus' 7,116-yard layout and had 80 another time.

"I still love this course and these greens. I just haven't putted well here. One or two bad holes have killed me. Like Hilton Head, I know someday I'm going to win here. I just don't know when," he said.

If Stadler is to win the $72,000 first prize here this year, he must beat such rivals as defending champion Ray Floyd, Tom Watson, leading money-winner Lanny Portions of the final rounds Saturday and Sunday are being carried by CBS.

Martin, Anaheim man involved in fight

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Billy Martin, the fiery manager of the New York Yankees, is embroiled in yet another controversy. He maintains he's done nothing to deserve it.

A man who said he just wanted to buy Martin a beer claims that he was struck by the Yankee skipper and roughed up by Dom Scala, New York's bullpen catcher.

But the versions of what happened early Wednesday morning, a couple of hours after the Yankees suffered a 7-4, 10-inning loss to the California Angels, differ.

Police said Wednesday that no charges have been filed, but that they are continuing their investigation of the incident that occurred at the Anaheim Hyatt Hotel bar.

Robin Olson, 27, of El Toro, Calif., filed a report with police alleging that he was hit in the face by Martin.

Olson also claimed that Scala banged his head to the floor several times in rapid succession while holding him by the hair.

"I told the police I didn't even touch the guy," Martin said after the Yankees' 7-1 loss to California Wednesday night. "The guy came up four or five times and wouldn't leave us alone and one of the coaches (Scala) collared him."

"Nothing happened as far as I'm concerned. The guy was just looking for publicity. He came behind me and it seemed like he threw something at me. We called the security guards and they threw the guy out of the place."

Scala said, "In a nutshell, I was trying to prevent an altercation. I would have done it for anybody on the team. The guy was hassling him (Martin) for about 20 minutes and he (Olson) was shouting obscenities. I didn't hit him or anything."

Jack Jewell, 62, the security chief of the hotel, said "All I know is that I got the call on it about 1:35 a.m. and that there was a fight, so I went into the bar to take care of it."

Jewell said "One guy was getting dragged off another guy when I got in there."

"I think it was Scala. I made sure he was neutral in a corner. The guy he was tangling with took a seat behind Billy Martin and started jawing at Martin."

"It was just a normal eviction, things like that happen in bars."

During the 1979 off-season, Martin was involved in a scrape in a Bloomington, Minn., hotel bar with a marshmallow salesman.

Martin was fired as manager of the Yankees four days later. It was the second time he had been dismissed by George Steinbrenner.

Clubs to host bike races

Flatlanders Bicycle Club and the Panhandle Red Peddlers will sponsor a 10-speed race Sunday at Westgate Mall in Amarillo.

The first annual Memorial Day Criterium and Fun Ride will be held around a 1.4 mile loop on the outer perimeter of Westgate. The flat course will be smooth with no sharp corners.

The Fun Ride, consisting of five laps (7 miles) will start at 1 p.m. at the mall's north side while the criterium (15 laps or 21 miles) starts at 1:30 p.m. at the same location.

Pampa cagers to play in all-star contests

Phil Jeffrey and Debi Young will represent Pampa in the seventh annual Texas vs. Kansas all-star basketball games Saturday, June 4 at the Seward County Community College Activity Center in Liberal, Kans.

The teams consist of some of the top senior boys and girls in the Texas Panhandle and in Southwest Kansas.

Jeffrey, a 6-6 frontcourt man, averaged 10.5 points and 9.7 rebounds per game for the Harvesters this season. Jeffrey hit 54 percent of his shots from the floor and 65 percent from the foul line. He was named to the all-tournament team at the Bi-State Classic, which the Harvesters won.

Jeffrey is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Mathis.

Miss Young averaged 7.6 points and 9.1 rebounds per game for the Lady Harvesters. She was all-district honorable mention, all-tournament at Clovis and a district player of the week. She hit 52 percent of her field goal attempts.

Miss Young, who was in the upper half of her graduating class, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Kaddatz.

Mary Alice Parnell of Canadian is also a member of the Texas girls' squad.

Miss Parnell, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sid Parnell, averaged 11.7 points and 4.2 rebounds per game. The 5-5 guard was an all-district pick.

The girls' game is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. with the boys' game to follow at 8:45 p.m.

Admission will be $3.50 for adults and $2 for students.

Clear your backyard of flying pests with a John Deere Insect Killer

Rid areas of troublesome night-flying pests with a John Deere electronic insect killer. Choose from four models - 100-watt for indoor use; 45, 70 or 175-watt for use outside. All models use ultraviolet light to draw insects into the electrically charged, self-cleaning grid.

Outdoor units handle areas of ¼ of an acre, one acre, or two acres, respectively. The indoor unit is effective in an area of approximately 1000 square feet.

Plated protective screen keeps birds, butterflies and animals away from charged grid surface.

Heavy-duty transformer provides plenty of power.

Take care of flying insect problems the easy way, with an electronic insect killer from John Deere.

Twins reverse tables on Baltimore

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

When the Minnesota Twins come to Baltimore, they usually turn into birds for the Orioles. This time, however, they only added to the Birds' recent attack of indigestion.

Kent Hrbek drove in four of Minnesota's six runs in the first two innings as the Twins defeated Baltimore 7-4 Wednesday night to complete a three-game sweep and pin the Orioles with their sixth straight defeat. Except for a one-game stop in 1968, it was the Twins' first sweep in 51 series in Memorial Stadium since the Minnesota franchise started in 1961.

"The sweep has usually been the other way around," said John Castino, who has been with the Twins longer than any other player. "Any time you win three straight you get excited, especially against the Orioles. They're a great team."

Elsewhere in the American League, the California Angels completed a three-game sweep of the New York Yankees 7-1, the Detroit Tigers ended the Toronto Blue Jays' five-game winning streak 6-2, the Boston Red Sox blanked the Chicago White Sox 2-0, the Milwaukee Brewers edged the Oakland A's 7-6, the Kansas City Royals downed the Texas Rangers 5-2 and the Seattle Mariners nipped the Cleveland Indians 2-1.

Hrbek laced a two-run single in the first inning following a single by Bobby Mitchell and a double by Castino and his two-run double finished Dennis Martinez, 3-8, in the Twins' four-run second, which also included an RBI single by Bobby Mitchell and a run-scoring double by Gary Gaetti, who had three hits and extended his hitting streak to 17 games. Ken Schrom, 3-0, allowed seven hits before being relieved in the eighth by Ron Davis, who recorded his seventh save.

When the Twins recorded the final out, pitcher Bobby Castillo rushed from the clubhouse with a broom.

"I'm glad to be a part of it," said Castillo, "so I just went out and cleaned a path in the runway. When you win, you have fun."

Before this series, the Orioles had won 13 of their last 14 home games against the Twins and were 20-4 overall since July 21, 1980.

Angels 7, Yankees 1

At Anaheim, Tommy John scattered nine hits against his former team and Ellis Valentine and Bobby Grich homered. It was John's first appearance as an Angel against the team that traded him to California last Aug. 31.

The veteran left-hander, who turned 40 on Sunday, struck out two and walked one in recording the 241st triumph of his career. Loser Shane Rawley allowed all the California runs.

Tigers 6, Blue Jays 2

At Toronto, Kirk Gibson hit his first home run of the season, a two-run inside-the-park shot in the first inning, and Detroit went on to snap the Blue Jays' five-game winning streak. The loss dropped Toronto into a first-place tie with Boston in the AL East.

Loser Jim Gott opened the game by walking Lou Whitaker on four pitches before Gibson, batting only .185, rapped his first home run of the season that ticked off the glove of right fielder Jesse Barfield and rolled to the wall. Detroit added a run in the second inning when Alan Trammell tripped and scored on a single by Whitaker. Gibson also singled and scored in the Tigers' two-run ninth. Jorge Orta and Willie Upshaw homered off winner Dan Petry for Toronto's runs.

Red Sox 2, White Sox 0

At Chicago, Reid Nichols rapped a two-run single with two out in the ninth inning and Bruce Hurst pitched a three-hitter for his first major league shutout. Hurst walked two, struck out six and retired the final 13 White Sox batters.

Dennis Lamp was the loser after taking over for starter Britt Burns in the ninth.

Dwight Evans opened the Boston ninth with a single. Two outs later, Dave Stapleton beat out an infield hit and Wade Boggs walked to fill the bases before Nichols lined a single to right.

"Everything worked good," said Hurst. "I kept my fastball in and my breaking ball and change were over. When Nichols got that hit, I jumped up and down and said 'Yippee!' After five or six innings I knew it would be a close game so I told myself to stay aggressive and challenge the hitters."

Brewers 7, A's 6

At Oakland, Cecil Cooper smacked a two-run homer and Robin Yount slammed a two-run triple. Cooper capped a three-run third inning with his seventh homer after Jim Gantner tripled and Ned Yost singled. The A's eventually tied the score 4-4, but scored three times in the seventh. Cooper drove in the go-ahead run with a bases-loaded grounder before Yount's triple, which offset a two-run homer by Oakland's Wayne Gross in the bottom of the ninth.

Royals 5, Rangers 2

At Kansas City, Bud Black, just up from the minors, blanked Texas on four hits for seven innings and Joe Simpson belted a two-run triple. Black allowed two more hits in the eighth before giving way to Dan Quisenberry, who posted his 10th save.

Proud Graduate

Kevin Ross, former Creighton University basketball player, displays his graduation diploma from Marva Collins' Westside Preparatory School Wednesday in Chicago. Graduation ceremonies were held for Ross and 21 fellow graduates aged 11-14 years. Ross, 24, returned to grammar school to learn to read and write and was privately tutored by Collins, right. Pirates edge Dumas in opener

Joe Zillmer, head coach of the newly-former Pampa Pirates, couldn't have been more pleased with his club's opening game win over the Dumas Eagles last Sunday.

"It was a good start," Zillmer said. "We beat the league's defending champions."

The Pirates won a 4-3 squeaker over the Eagles in extra innings when Robbie Harris scored from third on a passed ball in the bottom of the eighth.

Pampa jumped on Dumas pitching for two runs in the first inning only to see the Eagles score two unearned runs on a Pirate error in the third to tie the score.

Both teams scored once in the seventh to send the game into extra innings.

Jeff Skinner and pitcher Alan Stuart stroked two hits each to pace the Pirate hitting attack while Keith Fisher contributed two RBIs.

Stuart went the distance, allowing four hits and fanning eight to pick up the win at Pampa's Harvester Field.

The Pirates take their 1-0 record to Amarillo's Memorial Stadium Sunday to face the Amarillo Hawks at 2 p.m. The Pirates will be returning home Sunday, June 4 to face the Potter-Randall A's at 2:30 p.m. The game will be free to the public.

All games will be played on Sundays, so not to interfere with working days.

The Pirates are members of the Amarillo Adult Amateur Men's Baseball League, which consists of ten teams. There be a league tournament Aug. 20-21 in Amarillo, with the winner advancing to the State Amateur Baseball Congress Tournament in Lubbock.

The Pirates' schedule is listed below:

May
29-Amarillo Hawks, 2 p.m.

Memorial Field.

June

5-Potter-Randall A's, 2:30 p.m. Pampa; 12-Amarillo Rojas, 4 p.m. Memorial Field; 19-Plainview Astros, 2:30 p.m. Pampa; 26-Dumas Colts, 2 p.m. Dumas Park.

July

10-Amarillo Doll House, 2 p.m. Memorial Field; 17-Amarillo Diablos, Pampa; 24-Amarillo Squeeze Players, 2:30 p.m. Pampa; 31-Dumas Eagles, 2:30 p.m. Pampa.

Aug.

7-Amarillo Hawks, 2 p.m. Memorial Field; 14-Potter-Randall A's, 12 noon Memorial Field.

Royals down Rangers

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A utilityman hitting less than his weight and a pitcher making a third stab at the big leagues proved the difference in Kansas City's 5-2 conquest of the Texas Rangers Wednesday night.

It was enough to make Kansas City Manager Dick Howser predict, cautiously, better things to come. But Ranger boss Doug Rader was reflecting on baseball's unpredictability.

Bud Black, a righthander with a live fastball, gave up only six hits through seven and two-thirds innings in his first start after being called up from Omaha to replace the slumping Vida Blue. Black outdueled Texas starter Danny Darwin, 3-4, who surrendered only seven hits in going the distance.

And Joe Simpson, who has played both first base and the outfield this season, snapped an 0-for-22 skid with a two-run blast into right field in the seventh inning. Simpson kept coming and slid across home plate after rightfielder Larry Parrish bobbed the ball.

"I'm used to making right turns at first base. Those three quick left-hand turns got to me," said Simpson, who was hitting only .140 when the game began.

"I hope that's the first of many big hits to come," added Simpson. "I don't know if I've ever been through a stretch as prolonged and frustrating as this before."

Simpson continued to play the sharp defense he's been flashing while filling in for injured first baseman Willie Aikens.

Black, who was up with the Royals for parts of 1981 and 1982, blanked the Rangers on four hits for seven innings and allowed two more hits in the eighth before giving way to his 10th save.

"We knew Black's stuff was good when we got him," said Howser. "He's just more mature and more poised right now, and he's staying ahead of the hitters. He's got four pitches and when he can get them over, he can have success. It's just good to see us doing the two things better — pitching and defense. We're a much better club in those areas than we've shown."

George Brett gave the Royals a 1-0 lead in the first inning with a home run, his 11th, tying him with California's Doug DeCinces for the American League lead.

Final vb standings

College athlete who couldn't read graduates from prep school

CHICAGO (AP) — A former college basketball star who couldn't read a menu a year ago received a standing ovation after he urged his fellow grade school graduates to "learn, learn, learn and learn some more."

Kevin Ross, 24, graduated Wednesday night from Marva Collins' acclaimed Westside Preparatory School along with 21 youngsters aged 11 through 14.

He said he is ready to spend the rest of his life learning — and the teacher who helped him beat illiteracy said Ross "was brilliant all the time."

"How I really felt about coming to a grammar school is a private and painful story," Ross said in a graduation speech interrupted by applause and followed by a standing ovation. "But what really matters to me tonight is the picture that each of you helped me to perceive of myself."

Ross said his initial ambivalence about sitting in with younger kids was wiped away by fear of the alternative: joining the nation's 23 million illiterates.

"Learn, learn, learn and learn some more," he exhorted his classmates in an address which included quotes from Plato, Shakespeare and Alexander Pushkin.

Mrs. Collins said she now is getting inquiries on behalf of other students who may share Ross' plight.

Ross said he hopes to finish his education at Roosevelt College or the University of Illinois-Chicago and possibly go on to teach. In the meantime, he is writing a book about his experiences and living on money from the sale of movie rights to his life story.

Name in the news

NEW YORK (AP) — Impressionist Rich Little says his favorite candidate for president will always be one with a good voice, because "I live in fear of the country having a president I can't do."

The Ottawa-born comedian joked Wednesday by the Canadian Club of New York. As Little stepped behind the podium, he couldn't resist "doing" a familiar voice.

"It's impossible to stand behind a podium without doing Reagan," he said. "Before I start speaking, I'd like to say something," he said in a voice sounding like the president's.

The 44-year-old entertainer, who was known for his impressions of former President Nixon, said the pinnacle of his career will be when someone imitates his own voice.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Thomas Reilly, star of television's "CHiPs" series, was ordered to participate in a drug education program after pleading no contest to driving under the influence of alcohol and drugs, a city attorney says.

Charges of driving without a license and possessing a controlled drug without a prescription were dropped.

against the 23-year-old Reilly in exchange for his plea to the driving charge, said Deputy City Attorney Eileen Sarmiento. She would not identify the drug.

Reilly played California Highway Patrol Officer Bobby "Hot Dog" Nelson, replacing Larry Wilcox as Erik Estrada's partner on "CHiPs" last fall. He also was fined $390 by Municipal Court Judge Elva Soper. Ms. Sarmiento said Wednesday, and his driver's license was restricted for 90 days.

Ms. Sarmiento said Reilly was stopped by Los Angeles police last Dec. 21 for driving erratically. "CHiPs" was canceled by NBC this month after six seasons.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II of England and her husband Prince Philip were greeted with pomp and circumstance as they arrived on the royan sacht Britannia for a four-day state visit.

The 5,000-ton vessel, escorted by the frigate HMS Minerva and four Swedish torpedo boats, was met with a 21-gun salute as a score of jetfighters thundered overhead.

Senate's only black eyes statewide office

AUSTIN (AP) — Craig Washington, only the second black senator in Texas in 100 years, wants more than a footnote in history. He'd like a full page, thank you, perhaps as Texas' next attorney general or lieutenant governor.

To quote Washington: "I think that we as Texans have to face up to the question of, is there a minority person who can be elected statewide? And I'm not saying I'm the only viable candidate around, but I think I'm viable."

This "viable" candidate is 41, lives in Houston, has a wife and two children, goes to an Episcopal church, practices criminal defense law for a living and has moonlighted for a decade as a legislator.

Washington was called the best natural politician in the House, but he describes himself as an introvert who doesn't like to campaign or hustle votes for bills.

"I am not easy to meet, or to know," Washington said in an interview. "I get out and campaign when necessary, but it's a lot easier for me to ask for something for you than it would be to ask for something for myself."

He admits, however, he loves the legislative soapbox so much he hates to step down — except to practice law.

"I like practicing law better, because I only have to rely on myself — my own instincts, my own intuition, my own judgment and what little intelligence I have," Washington said. "If I win, I win — by myself. If I lose, I lose."

Washington was a campus rebel who thought it a "badge of courage" to make "F's" at Prairie View A&M rather than attend classes he considered a waste of time. He became an honor student in law who, by the time he graduated from Texas Southern University, was made assistant dean.

A friend, Mickey Leland — now Congressman Leland of Houston — talked Washington into running for the Texas House. In 1981, he was appointed assistant presiding officer, but gave up a "fair" chance at becoming House speaker this session to run unopposed for the state Senate, becoming the first black senator since Barbara Jordan in 1972 and the second since 1883.

He is 6-foot-1, slender, bespectacled, and heads turn at the sight of his stylish clothes, bright bow ties, shoulder bag and English-made Bentley automobile.

"I own three Bentleys — a 1936, 1956 and 1966. They're made by Rolls-Royce. I love cars," he said, rummaging in his briefcase for a photograph of the older model. "I bought the '36 first as a birthday gift for myself. It's a beautiful car. It's my pride and joy."

His presence alone, as the only black senator, attracts close attention from black youths visiting in the gallery, but Washington dismisses the suggestion that he might be a role model for them.

"I like to see people aim higher," said Washington. "I talk to a lot of kids. I tell them to aim higher than just being a state senator."

Nevertheless, Washington's happy for the moment being "just" a state senator. "The beauty of it is that the people have given me the opportunity to say what I want to say. I have a platform out there. I can say anything I want to say. It's a powerful thing. It can be used for good, it can be used for evil. I try to use it for good."

Being a good legislator, in Washington's mind, is never saying no to someone who wants a bill introduced — "I can't turn anybody down" — concentrating on issues that affect the poor and refusing to accept the idea that a black in Texas has political limitations.

"I'm going to run (for statewide office)," he states matter-of-factly.

What for?

"Oh, Attorney General (Jim) Mattox is not fond of me saying this, but I'll run for attorney general, or I kind of like the office of lieutenant governor. I think that's a powerful opportunity."

His tentative target date is 1986, and he renounces the theory that he would run as a sacrificial lamb to make another minority candidate more acceptable in the future.

"I don't run to lose," said Washington. "I've never lost an election in my life, from high school student council on."

"I've got a bunch of chits to call in," he said. "I've been saving my chits since 1973."
