6 Ackerly Stores Burn

Stores Razed But Stocks Of Goods Saved

Blazes Stop At Street After Entire Town Is Threatened

Six business structures at Ackerly, near the Dawson-Howard county line, were destroyed by fire which originated about 9 o'clock Thursday morning in a hamburger stand located near the north end of the row of buildings along the west side of the state highway No. 9.

Cause of the fire was not learned here. Most of the stocks of the Pet Campbell drug store and the Ingram grocery store were saved, it was reported here.

Seeing that efforts to combat the blaze with buckets and the water available would be useless calls for aid were sent here and to Lamesa. No fire trucks went from here, as it was reported water for pumping would not be available. The fire was reported under control soon.

Buildings burned were that occupied by the hamburger stand, and the Campbell drug store, Ingram grocery, a barber shop operated by Marcus Smith, a tailor shop owned by Shorty White and an empty structure. The fire burned itself out after consuming the empty building which is separated by a street from another row of buildings southward.

The fire spread through all these structures in 30 minutes. At 9:30 p. m. Mrs. Katie Lonie, telephone operator, reported that the entire district appeared doomed. At 10:00 p. m. the fire was just one building between the telephone exchange and her post.

Home Town Talk by Betty

Several unusually good opportunities for acquiring better knowledge of Christianity are being afforded in Big Spring churches this week.

None of us ever went to church services or took part in church activities too much. It can't be done.

We understand that the Legion which is studying the unemployment situation seriously and faithfully, has decided not to press the petition it has started to ask the board of city commissioners to hold an election in which all water department customers would vote on whether a one dollar per month added charge would be made for six months to create a fund to provide employment.

This decision appears wise at this time. Not that we are not very anxious to see something done to provide more jobs hereabouts. The principal weakness of the suggested plan was that families who now are barely able to pay their water bills would have to contribute as much each month as those who are well able to pay the bill.

It is surprising that in times like these some people feel it is unwise to comment upon or discuss unemployment. There is no doubt that some individuals take advantage of the campaign and the publicity of the Legion. Some of them inherited money and never learned to like work. Others never had any money because they didn't like work.

But the great majority of the families in Big Spring today who are in need are not afraid to work.

Whether it is possible to solve the unemployment problem is just what the Legion is trying to find out. And it seems to us that the last people in town who ought to be criticized because others are out of jobs are the members of the American Legion, the city manager and the commissioners and the county commissioners. Because they have done practically all that has been done in a community-wide manner to help those who are in need but who want to work.

There are always a few individuals, in good times as well as bad, who are natural-born agitators. When you read of trouble or violence purportedly caused by unemployment you can just put it down that two or three agitators, who wouldn't do much work if they had the chance, caused the whole trouble. The great mass of people, both employed and unemployed, do not listen usually to such people because their advice is just the sort that will make the condition of the unemployed worse if followed.

The only way unemployment can be solved is for every person with a job or an income to give all that he possibly can without placing himself in the ranks of the unemployed.

Federal Road Measure Not For Park Use

Text of Bill Sent City Manager By Congressman Thomason

In reply to a letter, City Manager E. V. Spence has been informed by Congressman R. E. Thomason of this district that the emergency highway construction measure now before the senate will not make possible use of federal funds for improvement of the state park here, which is known as scenic drive.

The funds are available, in the event the bill passes the senate, and is approved by the president, only for certain designated classes of projects, he wrote.

Mr. Thomason enclosed a copy of the measure as follows: House Resolution 7612: A bill to authorize supplemental appropriations for emergency highway construction, with a view to increasing employment. Be it enacted by the house of representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That there is hereby authorized to be appropriated the sum of $120,000,000 to be immediately available for expenditure in emergency construction on the Federal aid highway system, with a view to increasing employment.

Such sum shall be apportioned to the several states by the method provided in section 21 of the Federal Highway Act, as amended and supplemented. The sum apportioned to any state under this section may be used to match the regular federal-aid apportionments made to such state, including the one for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1933, and when so used such sum shall be available for expenditure in paying the share of such state in the cost of federal-aid projects. No sums apportioned under this act shall be advanced except for work on the federal-aid highway system performed before June 30, 1933. Provided, That the sums so advanced shall be reimbursed to the federal government over a period of ten years, commencing with the fiscal year 1938 by making deductions from regular apportionments made from future authorizations for carrying out the provisions of such act as amended and supplemented.

Section 2. There are hereby authorized to be appropriated, to be immediately available, for expenditure in emergency construction on public roads (other than federal-aid highway system) during the period ending June 30, 1933, with a view to increasing employment, the following sums to be expended for the purposes specified:

- (1) For the construction and improvement of national-forest high ways, $5,000,000.
- (2) For the construction and maintenance of roads, trails, bridges, fire lines, and so forth, including the same objects, specified under the heading, "Improvement of National Forests" in the Agricultural Appropriation Act for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1932, approved February 23, 1931, $3,000,000.
- (3) For the construction, reconstruction, and improvement of roads and trails, inclusive of necessary bridges, in the national parks and national monuments under the jurisdiction of the Department of the Interior, $1,500,000.
- (4) For construction and improvement of Indian reservations.

Blankenship Before Club

Visiting Ministers Are Speakers; Contest Is Started

An address by Supt. W. C. Blankenship of the Big Spring school, outlining graphically financial condition of the schools, and talks by Rev. J. W. Watson, Lubbock; Rev. W. R. White, Fort Worth, and Rev. O. P. Clark, Methodist, presiding elder of Sweetwater, featured the Thursday meeting of the Kiwanis club.

Johnny Cohen, evangelistic singer, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Bruce Frazier, won the earnest applause of members with two solos and a musical reading.

The meeting marked the beginning of a 30-weeks' attendance contest, for which the club membership has been divided into three teams, the Reds, the Whites and the Blues.

The Reds and Whites reported every man present. The Blues had one member, I. B. Caudle, absent. However, he was too ill to attend and his attendance was to be made up by a visit from fellow kiwanians.

There are 55 members in the club. Guests of the day were Mrs. J. Richard Spann, Rev. White, Rev. Clark, Rev. Watson, Mrs. Frazier, Mr. Cohen, Jack Rich of Sweetwater, Rev. R. E. Day, Superintendent Hurley of the Continental Oil company and Prof. Blankenship.

The inter-club relations committee, through the chairman, Wendell Edichek, had charge of the meeting.

The club voted to accept on March 31 the invitation of the Lomax Parent-Teacher Association to hold the club meeting here, as its guests.

(Editor's Note—A detailed report of the address of Prof. Blankenship will be published in a later edition.)

Another Report Says Baby Be Returned Safe; No Verification

HOPEWELL, N. J. (AP)—Two statements made Thursday said the Lindbergh baby was alive and well. Neither of these statements were capable of verification.

Governor Moore said it was his personal opinion that the baby would be returned safe. He refused to divulge what information he based the statement.

The New York Daily News said it had learned from unimpeachable sources close to the Lindbergh family that contact with the kidnapers had been established and negotiations for the baby's return were in the final stages.

It was said one Morris Rosner, with wide connections in the underworld, was at the Lindbergh home directing negotiations and had been there since March 3rd. It was said kidnapers were holding back because they feared capture if they made a deal now.

officials who compiled it failed to include over 500 national lawmakers whose annual salary is over $5,000,000 . . . and as a guess probably failed to include several thousand legislative employees paid other millions.

Texas may be rather progressive after all . . . Dr. S. E. Leland, University of Chicago authority on public finance, has drawn a national survey for the real estate business of the country, as to tax reform and relief. Two of his 30 recommendations have a familiar sound . . . One is that city, county and district governing agencies must be combined and only one set of local officers govern an area.

Every time a bootlegger gets in with a 2500-gallon tank of gasoline, he defrauds the state out of $100 in taxes . . . The state is losing at least $2,000,000 a year in criminal evasion of the gas tax law. . . Mr. Sheppard, as is his custom, has stepped forward to do something about it, and with investigators and enforcement officers of Attorney General James V. Alford's office, is holding courts of inquiry to begin stopping up the leaks of tax evasion.

The lamented death of Pres. R. E. Cousins, Sr., of the College of Arts and Industries at Kingsville, calls sharply to the public attention of the anomalous condition of the school which is to be put under a new executive . . . Not satisfied as a teacher college, the institution was expanded into a general college and so spread out and weakened a work that it has actually lost its affiliation with the national body of colleges and secondary schools.

Its sponsors were probably right in feeling the state has enough or too many teacher colleges; but Texas people now would hardly agree that they needed another college, duplicating in a small and inefficient way what many others already are doing.

Year's Holiday In Construction of Highways Expected to be Next Proposal by Taxpayers' League

Texas Entries Lead In Honors At Stock Show
AUSTIN—A year's holiday in highway building, it may now exclusively be announced, will be the next major proposal as a Texas taxpayers' relief move.
Just who will bring it out or sponsor the plan has not been made known. Nor just how it will be translated into various possible alternatives, into financial relief.
Gov. Sterling has made some distant and indirect references to such a holiday or a partial holiday, but he distinctly has not broached the plan as one of his policies.

Gas Fund for Other Aid
The plan would not withdraw the 4-cent per gallon gasoline tax. It would leave the tax fund to accrue and undoubtedly would call for applying such fund to other government needs.
One of the proposals would be similar to the Brooks bill to assume the interest and sinking fund on county bonds for highway purposes . . . Gov. Sterling has said such a law that would be unconstitutional, but the gasoline tax could be shifted from an occupation levy on the business or refining or wholesaling gasoline into some other form of levy, at the same rate. Or another cent of tax could be added for the purpose of absorbing the local highway bond issues.

Texas has heard the modern demand that the state share its highway revenues with cities for street improvements, thus relieving city taxpayers of one of the heaviest of their local levies. Such plan has been favored in the Leland national tax reform survey for the real estate industry of the nation.

May Enlarge Loan Idea
The state last year began the policy of tiding over other operations by the loan of highway funds . . . That may be carried much further under the spending holiday.

Power to Divert Funds?
Whether or not the legislature would have the power to divert the gasoline tax revenues and license fees wholly to general revenue or to other purposes than highway construction, the present law authorizing the highway fund to cash general warrants is precedent for the ability to divert it temporarily.

Many to Take Part In Scout Jamboree Here

Twenty Troops To Camp at City Park April 22 and 23

Plans for the Boy Scout "Jamboree" to be held in Big Spring April 22 and 23 at the city park by the Buffalo Trail Council of the Boy Scouts of America, are progressing rapidly, according to Peyton H. Smith, chairman of the committee in charge of the arrangements. Full attendance from almost all of the troops in this area is expected.

As now planned the Jamboree will begin Friday afternoon and will continue throughout Saturday. Troops will move into camp at any time after 4:00 o'clock Friday afternoon and will set up individual camps on sites which will be assigned. Each troop will provide its own camping equipment, cooking utensils, and food for two meals—supper and breakfast. Dinner Saturday noon will be furnished free to all Scouts and visitors by the Scout Officials and citizens of Big Spring.

Saturday will be devoted to competition in various Scouting events similar to the rally of last year, all competition of course to be on a troop basis. Friday night a big campfire program will be held in which all troops will participate.

Suggested events for the Jamboree are first aid, signaling, water boiling, fire building by friction, knot tying, Scout pace, dressing race, tug-of-war and bugling.

A comprehensive system of scoring will be worked out which will include not only the competitive events, but also camp layout and arrangement, sanitation, cooking, patrol organization, discipline, uniforms—in fact each troop will be graded from the time it enters camp until it leaves. A committee of camp inspectors will be on the job continuously.

Only registered Troops and Scouts may take part. Troops whose charters are lapsed are welcome to come to the Jamboree but may not compete for prizes, as only Scouts who are registered in the Council Office on April 1 may participate in the events.

The Jamboree was expected to be the biggest event of its kind ever held in the Council, according to a statement received from A. C. Williamson, Scout Executive for this area, who will be here during the two day affair.

Big Spring will be represented by six troops during the Jamboree, Troops 2, 7, 4, 1 and 3.

SPORTS ON PARADE

By CURTIS HISSOP

Grover Alexander, so the tale is to be on the roster of the House of David team for another year. Alexander, you remember, hurled the last inning of the exhibition night game between the Bearded clan and the city league all-stars last spring and allowed one single before retiring two relief hitters to walk out the side. During the game we talked frequently to "Alex" as he wandered around the first base coaching line. He is a humorous sort of fellow, full of fun, and perfectly willing to discuss the major league experiences that branded him as one of the greatest pitchers in baseball.

No doubt an offer will be made by the House of David club, whose roster contains numerous players whose ability might entitle them to a chance in the big time were they willing to desert their colony club, to appear in Big Spring this season, but we are afraid that no attention can be paid to such a proposal. To begin with there is no team of city league all-stars, although that would make little difference. This House of David club can play baseball when they so desire. To end up with the Bearded Beauties would discover that such a business arrangement would be very unprofitable here. Almost everything else is.

But perhaps a way may be found to induce the Benton Harbor team here. We for one would relish the opportunity of again seeing Alex in action. Melis Madison, however, would probably refuse to play against him. Madison is content to let his batting average against the former major league remain at a 1.000 per cent. He drove one of Alec's fast ones into deep center-field for a clean single last spring.

J. Gordon Bristolow, so we have learned from our San Angelo correspondent, whose gossip of tomorrow was the news of yesterday, has been in San Angelo inquiring about the dates for the San Angelo city golf tournament, in which Mr. Bristolow proceeded to the finals last summer and which he would have undoubtedly won had he been in the best of golfing condition, whatever state of mind or physical requirements that may be. But this does not as Mr. Cross presumes, indicate that Obie is forgetting football and gazing sadly over the fairways and the greens. Obie was in San Angelo, and knowing of nothing else to speak of but sports was duty bound to inquire about San Angelo athletics. Feeling that football as interpreted by the Conejo team, was hardly a subject of sufficient importance to dwell upon at length, and being sure that the San Angelo basketball team was not going to be the home town folk, had occasion to be proud of, he inquired of the only branch of athletic in which the Angelenos are proficient, unless it is polo. So you see it wasn't a desire to be roaming over the hills in pursuit of a little white ball that inspired the interrogatory, but merely politeness.

The West Texas Teachers' Association reported to be the tallest team in the world, fell in the third round of the national A. A. U. tournament last night by a score of 37 to 26, losing to the southern Kansas State Lines of Wichita, Kansas. The Kansas team thereby earned the distinction of eliminating the smallest team in the tournament in one round and the best in the other. The Fales Athletic club of Massachusetts, which it eliminated by a somewhat similar score the night before, average only five feet seven inches in height.

R. C. Campbell, of Breckenridge sometime ago made a false accusation against me and we have been intending to correct it for some time. Just after the first game of the Breck-Big Spring playoff series Campbell declared that "we bummed him out of cigarettes in less than an hour." Being as we never smoke cigarettes we resent the accusation. Especially is our anger aroused when we remember that Bobby's first question as we entered the gym was, "you ain't got no eating tobacco has you?" But the question did not arouse our resentment as much as the fact that Bobby made up for a meal he had missed by biting deep, very deep, into a new plug. Which we term rank ingratitude.

A recent Associated Press dispatch carried the news of a new sport that is becoming quite the rage around Albany. The new pastime, it seems, is rattlesnake hunting, using dynamite to destroy the reptiles. Which, we maintain, is a very mild form of sport. Several of the high school youths here go rattlesnake hunting with nothing but a few sticks and a piece of string and bring them in alive by the dozens. When Hank McDaniel filled the show window of the Big Spring Hardware with full grown reptiles that he had captured in such a manner.

BOY CRAZY

by GRACE PERKINS

Chapter 15
PANIC TRAILS HOPE

"I do see it," nodded Hope breathlessly over her coffee. "I want Dickey to finish college, too. I insist upon it. And it'll be lots of fun to live up in Harmonth."

This last Hickey dismissed as beyond him.

"So much for my end," he explained. "I'm very fond of Hope and proud of her. I'll do anything to make you two kids happy. As long as you're square with each other and with me.

"Now—don't thank me. We have other matters to consider. Hope's family. They are dreadfully upset. It's only natural. Half the night they've been searching for Hope. Some boy named Cran-fall came back with the story of how you were drunk, Dickey."

"I was not!" denied the bride-room hotly. "I had a couple of dried up oil painting."

Now there is a lot of sense in that; and it points to the rather surprising fact that the most memorable moments usually come to a traveler when he is least expecting them.

You can gaze at the glories of Versailles, trudge through the Louvre open-mouthed, follow an inquisitive nose through Westminster Abbey and view the Acropolis by moonlight; but when you get back home you are apt to find that your brightest, most valuable memories are of insignificant things you hardly noticed at the time—lengthening shadows across a green English meadow, sunlight on the waves in mid-ocean, and empty stretch of poplar-bordered French road, a hastily-glamped cottage by an English river.

Such things aren't in guide books, nor are they mentioned in travelers' diaries. But they are of the real essence of the joys of travel. You can go to Europe to find them, or you can find them on an afternoon motor trip in your own state. You need only open eyes and a receptive mind.

drinks—because I was mad with Hope, but I—"

"Well, I didn't think you were drunk," J. Hickson Dale shook his head and held up a restraining hand. "But the Crandall fellow evidently was in a fight with you, and this morning is suffering with a broken eardrum!"

"Oh, poor Rusty!" murmured Hope, nearly upsetting her coffee.

"That's only a minor issue. You're to do the manly thing there, Dickey, whatever it is. I don't know what your fight was about. At any rate, we'll foot his doctor's bills, if it comes to that."

Hope sneezed openly. Imagine the Crandalls letting anyone foot the doctor bills for Rusty! Imagine the supreme disgust, the outraged insult of listening to old Hickey offering to pay for a broken eardrum inflicted by his rowdy son.

"The really important matter is still more serious," continued Hickey. "You two have got to go and amend Mr. Ross. Right now, He's at home, waiting for you."

"Will you come with us?" asked Hope timidly.

"If you want me to, I think it would be better if you stood on your own, and didn't have me around to fight your battles. Besides, my Irish is not always capable. I might break into a rash and commit melodrama. After what I heard on the phone, I'm sure I would."

"You two had better go alone and do the square thing. After that come back to me. Because I'm for the care of everything. Try to make peace. Don't lose your temper, son. Remember, you had no right to do what you did. No right in the world. So it's up to you to make amends, and take your medicine. Take your medicine, and don't blame me. Only remember one thing: By God, you're not gutter pup, and you can make as fine a husband for Hope as the next one! Come back to me, and we'll show them. Eh, Goody? Why was the house so still and deathlike?"

In her room, she closed the door. Maybe Papa Ross considered this man-to-man stuff. Maybe after talking to Dickey, he would speak to her. Maybe he and Dickey would fight. . . . Oh, dear heaven, don't let them fight, because Dickey is much the stronger and wouldn't remember his strength. . . . Wouldn't it be awful if Dad had a broken ear-drum, jerk?

Voices jerked her out of her panic. Dropping Sassy to the floor, she hurried over to the window. Her room was at the back of the house for its eastern exposure. She couldn't see them. Not a thing. But she could hear. She could hear men's voices. Voices of the two men she loved.

"I want my wife!" she heard Dickey's wowl of anger.

She tried to make out the answer. Papa Ross's voice was too strained, too harshly pitched to understand. . . . Again Dickey's voice—getting savagely!

For some inexplicable reason, Hope found herself crying. Panting with great, choking sobs, as she fell to her knees by the window and called out to Dickey—stretching out her arms to the hills of Westchester. Where there was no Dickey to see or hear; for Dickey was on the front steps, doubling his fists and cursing with the desire to swing a swift and unarguable uppercut. . . .

"Through her own sobs and calls she heard—heard a strange and fearsome noise that made her heart stand still. Struggling to her feet, she flung open her door and stumbled down the staircase, almost tripping at the landing so blind she was with tears.

And then in the hall she came face to face with her father. Her father, who was closing the door behind him with an enormous and thudding slam!

"Where . . ." she stammered, and then suddenly went voiceless. The chug of a car answered her unfinished question.

For a moment, Hope stared through her eyes at the immovable figure of her father.

Her thoughts whirled around and around crazily. Where was Dickey going, and why had he left? Was he after the police? Was he hurt? Why was Papa Ross standing so stiffly, his arm limp at his side. . . ? (Copyright, Grace Perkins)

Ross estate, Hope and Dickey were sadly disappointed. The huge colonial house was frozen silent and quiet. Almost as if someone were dead—or seriously ill within. A breathless suspense seemed to hang over the May gardens.

The roadster chugged up the gravel-way, and stopped with a backing cough. Without a word, Hope and Dickey climbed out, and mounted the steps hand in hand. Rang the doorbell.

Hope—ringing her own doorbell, fear and tears in her throat. Standing, heart aching, before the same door, where but nineteen hours ago she had hurried gaily by, dressed for dinner at the Country Club. . . .

Not a sound from within. They rang again. And almost simultaneously the door opened!

John Howard Ross himself opened the door. Tall, white, fiercely silent. Both kids lost speech. Grasped Hope's arm and fairly yanked her inside the old hallway.

Slamming the door in Dickey's face!

"Stick together, will they? With Dickey on one side of the huge iron doorway, and Hope on the other?"

"Dad! Dad!" cried Hope frantically, almost dropping her kitten in her panic. "Let Dickey—"

"Not a word out of you!" roared her father. "Go upstairs to your room!"

"No!" wailed! I won't! Dad, you've got to listen to me! Dickey—"

"Go upstairs instantly!"

Hope caught her breath. She felt herself go weak. There was something close to insanity in the fury of her father's eyes! Where was good old Papa Ross—the big bluff who could always be kissed and trusted? In his place stood some mighty stranger—some grim, lowering creature who was the vice president of two banks and who was used to being obeyed!

Her eyes closed. To blot out the vision of a father who looked as if he might kill! She turned, frantically, and started up the stairs.

Made straight for her room, gasping with terror. Where was every body? Where was Mama and Goody? Why was the house so still and deathlike?

In her room, she closed the door. Maybe Papa Ross considered this man-to-man stuff. Maybe after talking to Dickey, he would speak to her. Maybe he and Dickey would fight. . . . Oh, dear heaven, don't let them fight, because Dickey is much the stronger and wouldn't remember his strength. . . . Wouldn't it be awful if Dad had a broken ear-drum, jerk?

CHICAGO—Martin Bernstein, 16, and Kempton Field, 18, will not become cowboys at Albuquerque, N. M., as they had planned. A message from the youths' mothers at Brookline, Mass., enabled police to intercept the runaways as they alighted from a train here, laden with rifles, revolvers and knives.

WASHINGTON—Heywood Brown, New York commentator, delivered a fiery speech at the Jewish community center advocating social revolution. It took firemen and a hose to put out the subsequent flames.

Brown was nearing the end of his address when fire broke out in the kitchen of the community center. He calmly brought his remarks to a close and the audience fled out. Firemen quickly extinguished the blaze.

Brown in his speech expressed fear that the great publicity given the Laddenberg case might result in passage of unfair or discriminatory legislation.

1,000 Dead Bodies Huddled In Ruins of War-Torn Shanghai After Retreat

Editors: The battlefield where Japanese and Chinese fought for control of Shanghai presented gruesome scenes of horror and tragedy as Randall Gould, United Press staff correspondent, visited the area in a tour of inspection. In the wake of the fighting he saw the price of victory and defeat, which he describes in the following article.

By RANDALL GOULD
United Press Staff Correspondent
(Copyright 1932 By United Press)

SHANGHAI (UP)—A thousand dead, soldiers and helpless non-combatants alike, lay huddled in the ruins of war-torn Shanghai today as a grim reminder of the bitter attack and defense of China's great seaport.

Hordes of sightseers like burghers on an afternoon's outing added the crowning touch to a panorama of smoking houses and fields where only a few hours before men were fighting to the death.

In this awful picture of carnage they realized possibly for the first time the true extent of the battle and the toll of Chinese and Japanese lives in the Kiangwan and Chapei districts. Most of the odds were of soldiers, but there were many farmers, women and children.

Avoid Enemy Bodies
Japanese soldiers, in control of the area since Chinese defenders evacuated to a point 12-13 miles beyond the International Settlement, were rapidly removing their dead. They scrupulously avoided Chinese bodies except in the main centers of the villages.

The trenches beyond Kiangwan gave mute and ghastly evidence of the havoc wrought by long range Japanese artillery aided by airplane spotters. The positions formerly held by the Chinese were a strategically located on high ground commanding open fields, practically impregnable to frontal attack. But high explosives had blasted every trench line into gaping ruins.

In some places bodies were placed in piles but for the most part they spaced at intervals of from five to 20 feet. Sometimes the presence of a rice bowl or cup showed the victim had died while eating. Many bodies were in a nearby canal, where enemy shells killed them as they drank.

Very Young
Even more pitiful, a majority of the Chinese soldiers were boys hardly beyond childhood. Several had their clothes burned off and lay gruesomely contorted where explosives had partly buried them. A soldier's foot and ankle protruded upward from a shell pit.

The Cantonese cemetery beyond Kiangwan was reached by an open field strewn with bodies of fallen soldiers. Many were flung across grave markers. One trumper had sought shelter behind two coffins awaiting internment. Gashes in the ends of the caskets showed how he met death from a flanking Japanese machine gunner, apparently after the capture of a trench.

The cemetery temple was riddled by shell fire. A burned body in crawling position indicated an occupant had sought the open with clothing afire. Near an unharmed gilded buddah lay the body of an aged peasant woman who had been bayoneted.

Music above the clouds at 120 miles an hour may sound both possible and ridiculous but it was an actuality today for passengers aboard ship number 9716 of American Airways which passed through here westbound for Los Angeles, since a long wave radio set with car phones at each seat has been installed to provide additional entertainment for passengers. The ship stopper here this week.

The ship is the first of those on the southern transcontinental route to be equipped with the long wave set and believed to be the first in the United States, although the radio has been an instrument of pleasure in homes since 1920. Heretofore, the rapid flight of the airplane increasing or decreasing the volume of local stations, the interferences of the 425 horse power engines and the two way radio telephones from the ship to the ground stations has prevented the long range sets from being satisfactory. Development of the automatic volume control on radio sets, by which the volume remains stationary despite the rapid flight of the ship, the shielding of the magneto and electrical devices to prevent interference, and the solving of numerous technical problems by the radio department of American Airways has resulted in perfect reception. The set, which is a 9 tube R.C.A. Victor automobile type, is located in the front cockpit with the controls in the passenger cabin and plugs at each seat where head phones are connected. The set has a day range of 500 miles and night range of 1500 miles, and does not interfere with the radio telephones. Better reception from the air than in the home was declared to be the result of the innovation by airline officials who said that lack of interference from telephone, high tension or other electrical wires eliminated static. The earphones, connected with the set by wires in the cabin walls, serve a purpose in addition to that of musical by shielding the ears from the roar of the motors. Other ships of the system will be equipped at each regular overhaul.

$1,096,000,000 Added Revenue By July 1 Is Object of New Bill

WASHINGTON, (UP)—The new $1,096,000,000 tax bill which will affect virtually everyone in the nation was formally introduced in the House this week.

Acting Chairman Crisp of the Ways and Means committee presented the measure, a 298 page document over which the committee had labored for weeks. It was officially titled "Revenue bill of 1932."

The measure provides for $1,096,000,000 in new taxes to be collected during the next year in an effort to balance the budget by July 1, 1932. The increased income taxes would not become effective until March 15, next year. Citizens will pay on March 15 this year at the present rates.

When Effective.
But within 15 or 30 days, respectively, after enactment, which will not be for several weeks, the special taxes and the manufactures sales tax would become effective.

These form the bulk of the taxes proposed under the new measure. It also would double estate taxes which affect the wealthy, levy a gift tax or prevent evasion of the estate tax, and make changes in administrative provisions aimed at stock market transactions.

Though the manufactures sales tax is designed to raise $595,000,000, the sections covering this tax principal new to the United States require only 27 pages of the voluminous document.

Only two pages were devoted to the few exemptions, principally foods, in this broad tax which would reach into every industry in the country for a contribution to the federal treasury; a total of 140,000 manufacturers of the country would be "licensed" under the act, but only those which produce the final finished product would be subject to the two and a quarter per cent tax.

Major Fight.
It is around this tax that the major fight in congress in the next few weeks will fight this tax, and the special excise taxes, were offered as emergency levies and would end automatically on July 1, 1934.

Under the new bill, exemptions of $2,500 instead of $3,500 income is allowed a married man. The new normal rate, 2 per cent on the first $4,000, four per cent on the next $4,000, and six per cent above that, do not apply, however, until next year.

The new and increased federal taxes in the new revenue bill follow, with the amounts they are estimated to yield:

Sales tax of 2-1/4 per cent on manufactured goods, $395,000,000.

Increased individual income tax, $112,000,000.

Increased corporation income tax, $21,000,000.

Increased estate and new gift tax, $35,000,000.

Changes in capital gains and losses and administrative provisions of income tax, $100,000,000.

Excise taxes of 35 cents a gallon on malt syrup, 5 cents a gallon on malt, and 40 per cent on grape concentrate, $50,000,000.

Tax of 10 per cent on amusement tickets over 25 cents, $90,000,000.

Tax of 4 cents a gallon lubricating oil, $25,000,000.

Tax of one per cent on imported oil, $5,000,000.

Taxes of 5 and 10 cents on long distance telephone, telegraph and radio messages, $35,000,000.

Increases from 2 cents to 4 cents a share in tax on stock transfers, $28,000,000.

Making a total of $1,096,000,000 expected to be collected from the new bill.

Bill Would Protect 28 Billion Savings Reserve Bankers Say

WASHINGTON (UP)—More than $28,000,000,000 of the nation's savings would be safeguarded through adoption of the Steagall bill, which provides that deposits in federal reserve member banks be guaranteed by a $517,000,000 fund, federal reserve officials estimated.

Under the Steagall bill the treasury, the federal reserve system surplus and member bank assessments would provide the money to guarantee depositors.

Treasury officials voiced their complete approval of the bill's recommendation that no new charter be granted national banks with capital less than $50,000. At present there are about 1,700 national banks with capital under $50,000.

A high percentage of failures during the past 10 years has been among banks with small capitalization—many of them under $25,000.

Stanton Youth Slowly Recovering From Hurts

STANTON—Marian (Buck) Henson, crack football and baseball player of the Stanton high school, is recovering slowly from injuries sustained Friday when he drove his car into a swiftly moving train in Stanton. He was hurled through the top of his car, and suffered from a dangerous scalp wound, a bad cut of the elbow, bruises over his body and possible internal injuries.

Henson was on his way home, about 7:20 in the afternoon, and the train, which was reported to have been running without lights struck his car, almost demolishing it.

He was picked up by Mexican laborers and carried to a section house nearby, where he was treated.

He is a son of Walter M. Henson, Martin county farmer who lives a mile and a half southeast of Stanton.

He is expected to be out of bed within a few days.
