

Three Soviet spies caught by FBI and expelled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three Soviet officials — a KGB officer, the acting defense attache, and a diplomat at the United Nations — have been expelled from the United States after the FBI caught them trying to obtain classified documents.

In two cases, the FBI used cooperating Americans acting as "double agents" to trap the Soviets. FBI agents surprised the attache, who is a military intelligence officer, as he picked up a green plastic garbage bag containing films of secret U.S. military documents from a "dead drop" at the base of a tree in a remote, wooded area outside Washington.

FBI officials said that no U.S. secrets fell into Soviet hands in the three unrelated incidents. The Soviets were seeking documents about U.S.-Soviet relations, military matters, the U.S. aerospace industry and weapons technology.

"It was coincidental they all came out at the same time," Assistant FBI Director Roger Young said. The cases are closed; no other people are being sought.

Young denied the expulsions were retaliation for the recent Soviet expulsion of a U.S. diplomat, Richard Osborn, for alleged spying. "I'm sure that case was in the minds of those who made the decision, but it was not the reason for the expulsions."

But the expulsion of diplomats for alleged spying has been mounting in recent months. In the most celebrated case, France sent 47 Soviet officials packing. Britain has expelled four Soviets in recent weeks, and the Soviet Union has thrown three Britons out in retaliation.

Canada and Spain also have expelled Soviet officials. FBI Director William H. Webster said Aleksandr N. Mikheyev, 44, an employee of the Soviet mission to the United Nations, tried to secure a highly classified document on Soviet-U.S. relations from a legislative aide to Rep.

Olympia J. Snowe, R-Maine. Soviet Army Lt. Col. Yevyeny N. Barmyantsev, 39, who was acting military attache at the Soviet Embassy in Washington, was picked up by the FBI while retrieving eight rolls of undeveloped 35mm film of classified military documents near a remote state park in Montgomery County, Maryland, last Saturday, Webster said.

On April 2, Oleg V. Konstantinov, 33, an officer in the KGB, the Soviet intelligence agency, was detained by FBI agents as he attempted to obtain classified U.S. aerospace industry and weapons technology information from a U.S. citizen.

Pampa crash claims life of Skellytown man

By JULIA CLARK
Staff Writer

A 67-year-old Skellytown man was killed this morning when his pickup truck and an 18-wheel semi-tractor-trailer collided at the intersection of Perryton Parkway and 23rd Street.

Roy Lee Henderson, 67, of Skellytown, was pronounced dead by Justice of the Peace Margie Prestidge at about 10 a.m. today.

Pampa firefighters had to use the "Jaws of Life," a hydraulic device, to free Henderson's body from the wreckage of his '74 Chevrolet pickup.

Larry Dean Hales, 22, of Amarillo was driving a tractor-trailer truck south on Highway 70 when the traffic light at the intersection of 23rd Street and Perryton Parkway turned red, according to Carol Berryhill of Pampa, who witnessed the accident. She said she was waiting at the stoplight before continuing west on 23rd Street. The police were still investigating the cause of the accident at press time.

Witnesses at the scene said Henderson's pickup truck was apparently struck on the driver's side door, and said Henderson was apparently killed almost instantly.

Hales was reportedly uninjured in the collision. "I thought I'd go, but I saw that he was not going to be able to stop, so I waited. Then I heard the crash and saw glass flying," she said. She said she didn't see the pickup until after it had been hit.

"I don't know where it came from," she said. According to Chief J. J. Ryzman of the Pampa police Henderson was east-bound on 23rd when the accident happened. The pickup traveled about 75 yards before coming to rest on the west side of the road, near the entrance to Western Grocery Outlet.

Rescue workers, using the "Jaws of Life", are removing the door of the '74 Chevrolet pickup in an attempt to remove Roy Lee Henderson from his pickup after it collided with a grain truck. (Staff photo by Julia Clark)

Pampa girl convicted on drug charge may get a second chance

By JEFF LANGLEY
Senior Writer

An 18-year-old Pampa college student, sentenced to 10 years in prison Wednesday after she sold the drug LSD to an undercover police officer, will get a second chance, her lawyer said Thursday.

Beverly Diane (Madison) Condo, a freshman at West Texas State University, was sentenced to 10 years in state prison by 251st District Judge Naomi Harney. Condo was charged with selling LSD or "acid" to a police officer working undercover in Condo's school dormitory.

Sale of LSD is a first-degree felony with a maximum sentence of life in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The freshman pleaded guilty Wednesday to the lesser charge of possession of LSD, a second-degree felony, and she received the 10-year term. However, in exchange for the guilty plea, Condo may be eligible for "shock probation," her Amarillo lawyer, Carol Habern, said.

Habern, the student's mother, Mrs. J. Harley Madison Jr. of Pampa, and the assistant district attorney who prosecuted Condo all say the student was never in trouble with the law prior to the drug bust.

Consequently, the young, first-time offender is eligible for the unique probation, Habern said. The lawyer said shock probation is an option a judge may grant to show first-time offenders what prison life is like. Habern said the college freshman will go to prison for 60 days, and then on the lawyer's motion, the student will be brought back to appear before Judge Harney. After the two months in prison, the judge may grant probation for the rest of the 10-year sentence. Habern said. "It's very effective for first-time offenders. It shows them what prison is like if they don't get straightened out," Habern said.

"She's never sold any drugs before

She just got them the day before and was pretty naive about it. The only person she sold it to was the narc," she said.

According to police, Condo had 91 "hits" or tablets of acid, a hallucinogen, when she was arrested on campus. She was selling the doses for $6 each, prosecutors said.

Assistant Randall County District Attorney Wes Clayton said the reason the prosecutor demanded a stiff sentence for the 18-year-old is because LSD is a powerful drug.

Clayton said the quantity of acid involved also influenced the penalty. "It's a hallucinatory drug. It's pretty strong," Clayton said.

Borger council to meet on Grandstaff lawsuit

By JEFF LANGLEY
Senior Writer

Borger City Council members will meet behind closed doors at 2 p.m. Tuesday to talk about the Grandstaff case.

The City of Borger and other local Panhandle governments and officers are being sued for $3 million by the family of cowboy Jim Grandstaff.

Grandstaff, a ranchhand, was shot and killed Aug. 11, 1981, in front of his north camp home on the 6666 Ranch, about six miles east of Borger. Grandstaff, 31, was shot down when he went outside to investigate gunshots.

Borger police chased and exchanged shots with a fleeing suspect from Borger onto the Grandstaffs' front-yard pasture. After the cowboy drove down to the commotion, he was shot down by police.

A Carson County officer was also present during the shooting, and others from Hutchinson County, Pampa and Gray County arrived on the scene later.

Police deny killing Grandstaff, but grand jurors who met two weeks after the shooting said police officers did it, though the jury returned no criminal indictments.

Grandstaff's widow, Sharon, and his family hired Racehorse Haynes' law firm, and, alleging violations of Grandstaff's civil rights, sued the various officers and local governments in federal court.

One of the first issues to be decided by Amarillo Federal Judge Mary Lou Robinson is whether or not Grandstaff's death involves federal issues and jurisdiction. Most of the defendants to the lawsuit contend the case doesn't belong in federal court.

Haynes' Houston associate, Jan Fox, said Robinson ordered lawyers in the case to end the process of discovery by March 16. That order brings the case closer to trial in Amarillo, Fox said. The Houston lawyer said she expects Robinson to rule soon about a host of pre-trial motions, including the issue of federal jurisdiction. Fox said Robinson will likely set a trial date soon after ruling on the pre-trial motions.

When it called the special closed meeting to talk about the lawsuit next week, the Borger City Council also agreed to pay its lawyers $5,125 for work on the case.

It is unknown what issues related to the case the council will discuss Tuesday.

Pending litigation is one item that Texas governmental bodies may legally discuss in executive session, but any action or vote must be made in public.

Weather

The forecast calls for variable cloudiness with a chance of showers and thunderstorms through tonight. The low tonight will be near 40 with winds out of the north at 10 to 20 mph. Saturday's high will be in the mid 60s.

It was a grand barn party at Grandview

By LORI-ANN D'ANTONIO
Staff Writer

A tradition that started with a community fund-raising idea ten years ago continued Thursday night at the Grandview-Hopkins School District, as the district's annual barn party and fundraiser was held in the school gym.

"It started as a community idea," said Jolynn Davis, school district secretary. "It seemed like a nice idea to raise money."

The barn party started in 1973, and is held every spring to help fund the fifth and sixth grade class trip to Carlsbad Caverns, N.M., according to Davis. The party is sponsored annually by the G-H P.T.A.

The 1983 Barn Party drew about 150 people from in and around the district. Although the school's 21 children come from only 16 families, Davis said people come from McLean, Lefors, Pampa and Amarillo as well.

"The barn party has become a tradition," said Linda Babcock. "People invite relatives and friends from all over."

Many of the students currently in the school are second or third generation G-H residents. While there is no actual township that makes up G-H, the farming community around the school district is closely knit and people care about their neighbors and family values.

"What makes the barn party unique is that it's entertainment for the whole family, a family can enjoy doing something together, and it's geared toward children," Babcock said.

The program begins with folk and square dances done by the children, who range from kindergarten to sixth grade. When they start, they're a little awkward, Davis, who coaches them said, but by the time they reach the sixth grade, they're more experienced and do better at their dancing, she said.

Babcock said it's important that the dances do not go out of style. And she feels the social event each year prepares children for social functions later on in life.

Most G-H students go to nearby cities for the rest of their schooling, with the Pampa Independent School District as the official receiving district.

Parents feel G-H is a good place to raise children, as many of them have stayed in the farming community for two or three generations. They love their school, and feel their children are getting a good education with the four teachers for 21 children.

The school is made up of about eight rooms, including a cafeteria, music room, and auditorium. Most of the children are in "combined grade" classrooms, with kindergarten and first grade together, second and third grade together, fourth and fifth together, and the sixth grade, the largest, in a room of its own.

In addition to the Barn Party, the other major fundraising event held each year by the P.T.A. is the barbecue held later each spring. Inez Weinheimer, president of the P.T.A. said.

The children don't mind dancing, either Susan Babcock, 10, a third generation resident of G-H, said it gets to be more fun and easier to dance each year. Floyd Wills, also 10, said he doesn't mind dancing with girls as long as they're not too tall. Most often, Davis tries to pair children by age and size, to avoid matching an extremely tall child with an extremely short one.

After the children's dancing, adults were treated to the sounds of two country and western bands, Dick Morton's Band, followed by the western band musicians, headed by Jimmy Carroll. Both groups donated their time and talent and played a variety of music for the audience's dancing pleasure.

You're never too young to take a turn around the floor at the barn party, and Christopher Stellman, 1½, and Kaeli Vanderburg, 2, were among the dozens who polka-ed the night away at Grandview-Hopkins School. Both youngsters live in the area south of Pampa. (Staff photo by Bruce Lee Smith)

House looking at credit card interest bill

AUSTIN (AP) — A bill lowering bank credit card interest rates that apparently pleases everyone but a few bankers has moved from the Senate to the House.

The measure, a compromise resulting from negotiations including legislators, lobbyists, bankers, consumer advocates and the governor, passed the Senate Thursday 31-0.

"The bankers don't like it that much but they have agreed to go along with it," said Sen. Ted Lyon, D-Rockwall, one of the Senate negotiators.

Rep. Bill Coody, D-Weatherford, said that "hopefully" his House Financial Institutions Committee will quickly approve the bill for House consideration.

The negotiated bill, approved in the Senate by Sen. Bob McFarland, R-Arlington, and Lyon, would change the maximum interest rate from 24 to 22 percent on credit cards issued by bank holding companies and the minimum rate from 18 to 14 percent.

"If this was to become effective today the effective interest rate on credit cards would be 16.5 percent, the lowest interest rate on bank credit cards in the nation," said Lyon.

The latest posting on credit card interest called for 21 percent interest.

Under the compromise the interest rates would be changed, if necessary, every three months according to the U.S. Treasury bill rate, not annually as at present.

Lyon said the rate on retail credit cards would be decreased from 24 percent for the maximum rate to 21 percent, and the minimum would remain at 18 percent.

The bill would become effective immediately upon being signed into law.

Technically, the compromise was offered as an amendment by Lyon to an original bill by McFarland to continue the operations of the Consumer Credit Commission.

"McFarland and I, as well as many other interests, including the Texas Consumers Association, have agreed to these new ceilings," Lyon told the Senate.

Gov. Mark White, who urged lower credit card interest rates during his campaign last year, entered the negotiations last week. Little progress was made until Tuesday when White made an unscheduled visit across the street from the Mansion to the Texas Bankers Association headquarters.

The accord came after a 30-minute private meeting among the governor, bankers, retailers, business lobbyists and consumer advocates.

"After we had been negotiating this for weeks and months, the governor got the bank holding companies to agree to a 14 percent minimum ceiling in one day. I was really shocked," said Lyon.

"I think it is a consumer victory," he said.

Horse race betting may return to Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — One Dallas Republican celebrated a horse race victory in the Senate by exclaiming "I'm happy as hell." Another said the race is not over.

The Senate on Thursday tentatively approved a bill on a 17-12 vote that would legalize pari-mutuel betting on horses in Texas for the first time in 46 years.

Texas has horse racing at 16 tracks, but pari-mutuel wagering — where money goes into a pool to be shared by the state, track, race winners and bettors — has been outlawed since 1937.

Sen. O.H. "Ike" Harris' bill would legalize pari-mutuel betting on a local-option basis if voters pass a November 1984 statewide referendum.

A major change from the bill that was defeated in the House late in the 1981 session is that Harris' proposal would dedicate pari-mutuel tax revenues to welfare payments to dependent children rather than the public school fund.

The Legislative Budget Board has estimated the pari-mutuel tax would generate $58.3 million in the first full year of operation — 1985. That figure would rise to $126.3 million by 1988. Other estimates vary widely.

Harris, R-Dallas, was asked after the Senate vote how he felt, and he replied, "I'm happy as hell about it, I can tell you. I've been messing with it for 10 years."

He was chairman of a special committee created by the 1971 Legislature that strongly recommended pari-mutuel betting, but a bill in the next session never even got a hearing.

Harris still needs a final Senate vote, probably on Monday, to send the bill to the House, where a similar measure is locked in a committee that has refused to budge.

Monday, to send the bill to the House, where a similar measure is locked in a committee that has refused to budge.

Asked what horse race betting would do for the state, Harris said, "I think it's just a brand new industry, the same thing I've been advocating all along."

On the other side of the issue was Sen. John Leedom, R-Dallas, who stilled a vote for 2½ hours, but sat down at 3:06 p.m., saying, "The only reason I'm stopping is because I love you. I could carry on for six or seven more hours."

Leedom, reading letters from his constituents on the evils of gambling, criticized "the cancer of pari-mutuel betting that threatens our state."

Sen. Ed Howard, D-Texarkana, also opposed the bill, stating:

"It's taking away the hard-earned money from the people least able to afford it. It's taking food off their tables and clothes off their children's backs."

After the Senate vote, Leedom said he had had 10 times as many letters opposing horse race betting as favoring it.

"I feel very comfortable that this state has a number of people that might express themselves" before Monday against betting.

Asked if he thought a majority of Texans opposed it, Leedom said, "I do."

Sen. Bill Sarpius, D-Hereford, tried to block the bill by raising a point of order that revenue-raising bills had to originate in the House, but Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby overruled the objection.

Hobby read from a three-page printed statement that said the fact the bill would produce revenue through license fees and sharing in pari-mutuel pools is "merely incidental" to the primary purpose of the bill, which is legalizing horse race wagering in Texas.

The referendum is viewed as critical to possible passage of the bill, and an amendment by Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, to eliminate it failed 25-6. "My people are tired of having elections," said Traeger.

Harris' bill would create an eight-member commission, with six appointed by the governor, plus the state comptroller and director of the Department of Public Safety, to administer the Texas Horse Racing Act.

The state would get 5 percent of the total money bet, the track 5 percent and the race winners 5 percent. The rest would go to bettors.

A city or town in which a horse race track is located would each have the option of levying an admissions tax of up to 5 percent.

Sen. Ted Lyon, D-Mesquite, added amendments with Harris' approval that would subject everyone associated with horse racing — "from the commissioners to the young people who sweep out the stables" — to extensive background checks.

Chemical tests on horses would be conducted by the Texas A&M Veterinary Medical Diagnosis Laboratory or a private lab OK'd by the commission and the A&M lab. Lyon said drugs offer the "highest potential for corruption."

If local voters rejected or approved horse race betting, another election to change the results could be held in five years.

Exxon hasn't heard from extortionist lately

DALLAS (AP) — A man trying to extort more than $112,000 in gold coins from Exxon U.S.A. by planting bombs at service stations has not been heard from in several days, officials of the oil company say.

"We're chasing a lot of rabbits. There have been a number of calls, and we're taking them all seriously and checking them out. But there has been absolutely nothing found in the last few days," Ron Eaton, an Exxon spokesman, said Thursday.

Federal officials say "a dangerous man" exploded two small bombs and planted at least one more at Exxon service stations in the Dallas-Fort Worth area in the past week.

Exxon denied a report Thursday by Dallas television station WFAA-TV that the oil firm tried unsuccessfully to deliver 250 gold Krugerrands to the extortionist.

WFAA-TV reported that "agents close to the case" said Exxon delivered the payment to a specified drop-off point, but that the extortionist never showed up to collect the coins.

The WFAA report also said Exxon officials believe all the bombs were planted over a two-day period.

Eaton said Thursday evening that Exxon was cooperating fully with federal and local authorities, but had not delivered the Krugerrands.

"There was no payoff made. We have cooperated with authorities throughout this and are following their instructions," Eaton said.

WFAA said the attempted payoff was made last week.

Eaton said Exxon had received many calls in connection with the extortion plot, but apparently none involved the first caller.

FBI spokesman Joe Hershey said the federal agency would have no comment on the investigation.

Seven businesses were evacuated Thursday near an Exxon station in Fort Worth after a gas station attendant in Fort Worth spotted something in his gasoline storage tank. However, authorities found nothing suspicious during a thorough examination.

"The dealer looked down into the tank and thought he saw something. We took a look and found out it was just a reflection," Eaton said. "People are understandably edgy right now."

Two bombs have exploded at local service stations without injury, officials said.

Pecos at-large election system under attack

PECOS, Texas (AP) — A suit filed here by two residents charges that the election of city councilmen and school trustees by citywide vote discriminates against minorities, who contend elections based on geographical areas are fairer.

But city officials are considering whether their charter, now in the process of formulation, should provide for single-member district elections. The attorney representing Frank Perea and Olga Ornelas in their suit said the action might cause the action against the city to be dropped.

"We would have to study the charter. But if the changes would resolve what we consider to be big problems we would prepared to drop the suit," said Jose Garza, a lawyer for the Mexican American Legal Defense and Education Fund.

Garza said a similar compromise could be reached with the school district. The suit by Perea and Ms. Ornelas was filed shortly after noon Thursday.

A similar suit was filed earlier this week in Victoria by MALDEF representatives.

Perea was elected to the school board in 1973, but was defeated in a 1976 reelection bid. He is president of the local United Mexican American Legal Council.

Until recently, Ms. Ornelas was secretary to a county commissioner.

Perea and Ms. Ornelas allege that the at-large election system discriminates against Hispanics.

In Pecos, 53 percent of the 5,571 voters have Hispanic surnames, according to Pecos city hall records. In Reeves County, 55 percent of the 8,082 registered voters have Hispanic surnames.

Appropriations committee completes no-tax raise budget

AUSTIN (AP) — A House committee has completed a lean budget without teacher raises but without estimated state revenues. Meanwhile, Gov. Mark White says voters should decide if they want a higher gas tax to pay for highways.

White's proposed $862 million, 24 percent teacher raise and the highway department's request for a doubled budget were the big losers after weeks of House Appropriations Committee work, completed Thursday.

The House committee's two-year spending proposal totals about $29 billion. That compares with White's proposed budget of $32.9 billion and the Legislative Budget Board spending plan of $33.1 billion.

Committee Chairman Bill Presnal, D-Bryan, said the committee measure is the no-tax bill, the proposal legislators will have to approve if they want to avoid raising taxes.

He said it would be voted on early next week.

The bill leaves teachers with the salary increases they would get anyway under current law. An "excellence fund" created by the Senate to give teachers merit raises would get $200 million under the House plan, "if there's that much available," Presnal said.

The $5.6 billion budget requested by the highway department would be pared to about $3 billion under the House plan. "The dollars are just not there," said Presnal. "We've squeezed about as much out of it as we can."

Comptroller Bob Bullock, who has reduced revenue estimates three times and $3 billion since the first of the year, has suggested he might revise his estimate again in May. If he reduces it substantially, Presnal said, "we go back to square one."

Lawmakers are bound by the Texas Constitution to spend only the estimated revenue or raise taxes to cover the difference.

Presnal said the committee cut no state agencies' budgets from the levels of the last two-year spending period, but he said few new expenditures made it into the committee bill.

White proposed in his March budget message that teacher pay raises be funded by an increase in "sin" taxes on cigarettes, liquor and arcade games. He said the tax would increase revenues about $800 million.

Legislators said White told them at a breakfast meeting Wednesday that he would go along with doubling the state's 5-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax.

Fort Worth orchestra winds up China concerts

PEKING (AP) — An audience here welcomed trumpet soloist Stephen Weger of the Fort Worth Chamber Orchestra with warm applause in its final Chinese concert in the city of Canton.

Conductor John Giordano said that the concert Thursday night before about 1,800 people followed "one of the best experiences of the whole tour," when each musician sat down separately with Chinese students to give master classes in their specialties.

Giordano said in Canton that some Chinese musicians came to the orchestra's hotel to give lessons to the Americans who had bought erhus, two-stringed Chinese violins.

Weger and nine other musicians in the 40-member orchestra who were ill with stomach trouble on Wednesday.

Giordano said that Weger played the Haydn trumpet concerto Thursday night, and "I don't think he ever played any better."

"He could have played two or three encores if he wanted to. He was called back several times, even after the girl announced intermission," Giordano said.

He said that after playing five encores at its opening concert in Peking on April 10, the orchestra limited its encores to two or three for the rest of the tour.

The orchestra had been a little concerned after some of its members attended a performance of "Swan Lake" by a Chinese ballet company in Canton Wednesday night and heard little applause, Giordano said.

But he said that the mostly young audience for the Fort Worth orchestra was very warm.

The orchestra arrived in China the day after China announced it was canceling a package of cultural exchanges in retaliation for the U.S. Grant of political asylum to Chinese tennis star Hu Na. Although the orchestra was not part of the package, Chinese musicians were not allowed to appear as planned in two of its concerts.

"We have had some of the most enthusiastic and attentive audiences we have played for anywhere. They obviously are listening very carefully," Giordano said of the whirlwind schedule of six concerts in four cities within 12 days.

The orchestra gave workshops at the music conservatories in Peking and Shanghai, playing with Chinese student soloists and under student conductors.

Small town facing massive cutbacks after tax rollback vote

SAN DIEGO, Texas (AP) — Officials of a South Texas school say they are considering ending free breakfasts for students, free school bus rides within the town limits and reducing the number of teachers by attrition to cope with a tax rollback measure approved by voters.

School officials in this Duval County town predict teacher salaries could also fall victim to the cutbacks.

"We may have to ask the Texas Education Agency for a different pay scale," said the school superintendent of San Diego, a town of 5,225.

Manuel Solis Jr. said he has sent a list of 14 recommendations to school trustees who must cut a $1.9 million budget in half.

Officials said the 1983-84 budget, according to the mandate approved at the polls last month, must be the same as it was in the 1981-82 fiscal year. The tax rate also must be reduced from $1.50 per $100 assessed property valuation to about $1.07.

Voters took advantage of a state law that allows rollback elections and approved the issue by a vote of 592-457. Petitions containing more than 800 signatures sought the election.

"It will effect every school district employee; every student; everyone in the school district," Solis said of the rollback measure.

"To receive accreditation from the Texas Education Agency for the school district, you must prove the community is behind the schools," he said. "This community is divided."

A closer look at REAL credentials

Another bogus professor has surfaced, this time in Pennsylvania. A man arrested as "John Doe" was apparently holding down two different teaching jobs (one in math and computer science, the other in business and economics) at two different state colleges. Documents removed from his apartment (rented under a third name) included identification and academic credentials under 13 different names.

What appears to be an elaborate and sustained pattern of fraudulent activity is deplorable and difficult to understand, of course. But there's an aspect to this case that's intriguing.

The fellow with the bogus credentials didn't run into trouble because of unhappiness with the way he was performing his two jobs, widely considered to be rather demanding. One of his assumed identities was that of a real person, and college authorities got suspicious when they saw an article by the real John Hext, who was living in Australia.

This fact might create some uneasiness about the extension use of credentials of different kinds - including experience - can be an important factor for employers deciding whom to hire. But there is a real danger that credentials can become more important than ability, serving to limit competition and confer bogus respectability rather than convey reliable information about a person's ability to do the job.

The tendency is most pronounced in professions like medicine, law and teaching, where extensive education and often irrelevant credentials are required before a person can even think about applying for a job that may actually be routine in nature. But government at all levels also requires licenses, applications and extensive and often expensive classes for such occupations as cutting hair, driving a cab or operating a pushcart.

Government is not the only offender. Many private businesses seem more interested in pieces of paper than whether a prospective employee can actually do the job in question.

Credentials and licenses are sometimes defended as a protection for consumers against bilking by "unqualified" people. It doesn't often work out that way. Sometimes a license, once granted, is a shield for the license holder rather than the consumer.

And, as the case of "John Doe" in Pennsylvania demonstrates, credentials and licenses can be faked.

It may be too much to ask governments and personnel departments across the country to quit asking for credentials and concentrate more on an applicant's abilities and potential. But a little reconsideration of the extent to which so many of us have come to rely on credentials rather than judgment might be in order.

Americans are understandably anxious about suspected "poisons" in food, water, atmosphere.

No source is closer to the pulse of America's people than the hometown newspaper. I scan scores of them. I note a significant recent change.

You really are worried - about spills, landfills and hot waste.

The EPA's recycled administrator, Bill Ruckelshaus, faces no greater challenge than taking the mystery out of chemistry.

American mothers are accustomed to natural hazards - falls from trees, skinned knees and broken glass in the sandbox.

But the intrusion of the "un-natural" is frightening. They cannot comprehend the formulas hiding behind such designations as PCB, DCB, dioxin and metal hydroxide sludge.

And what's un-understandable is frightening. The Lebanon, Indiana, REPORTER gives front - page importance to the urgent removal of drums of stuff vaguely identified as "hazardous waste" from Boone County.

The Jesup, Georgia, PRESS - SENTINEL published

The "volatile cargo" was cleaned up without incident. The Cullman, Alabama, TIMES bannered a chemical spill on I-65 which turned out to be harmless quicklime.

But the rained - on cargo, appearing to be "smoking," was scary to a population whose nerves have already been rubbed raw by every - hour - on - the - hour crises.

Bowling Green, Kentucky: the DAILY NEWS confirms that cooling water from Holley Carburetor has been discharged into city sewers and "there's heavy metal in it." Whatever that is, it sounds awful!

All these front - page alerts, mind you, within a period of one week.

It is the truth and nothing but the truth that eating fish from dioxin - polluted water can cause cancer. However, the whole truth is that you would have to eat 25 tons of fish per year for years!

Responding to public fears, President Carter loaded the EPA with so many Naderites that for whatever cleanup they accomplished they unreasonably throttled industrial expansion.

Hopefully, Bill Ruckelshaus can improve the balance while reestablishing the credibility of the watchdogs.

Blame it all on the media...

By ART BUCHWALD

Larry Speakes, President Reagan's press secretary, has blamed the media for the administration's disastrous defeat on military spending in the Senate Budget Committee. Speakes said Congress was responding to a public informed by a press that was not giving the administration's defense program a "fair shake."

Larry, for once, knows what he's talking about. As soon as the president announced he wouldn't budge from a 10 percent increase in military spending, a group of opinion makers met at The Class Reunion restaurant to discuss what action to take.

"Sam Donaldson, of ABC, said, 'I think the president has gone overboard on defense, and I am not prepared to give him a dime until he tells me how he's going to spend it.'"

Leslie Stahl, of CBS, agreed with Sam. "I oppose sticking a lot of MX missiles in the ground until the Joint Chiefs of Staff assure me that they are not vulnerable to Soviet attack."

"Is this your personal opinion?" I asked.

"It is not only mine, but Dan Rather's. Dan feels 'Dense Pack' basing is unfeasible and a waste of money."

"So do Tom Brokaw and Roger Mudd," Chris Wallace, of NBC, told us. "They're for cutting the president's military request in half."

Helen Thomas, of United Press, said, "I've read the defense budget from cover to cover and there is a lot of waste and fraud there. Why should I support Weinberger if the Pentagon won't clean up its act?"

Rowland Evans and Bob Novak, media hardliners, who speak with one voice, said together, "If we don't give the president what he's asking for, we will be sending a message to the Soviets that they can get anything they want in the Geneva disarmament talks. We say Reagan isn't asking enough. You ultra - liberals are tying the president's hands."

just at the time when the Soviets are starting to realize we mean business."

We all ignored Evans and Novak, as we usually do, when the question of national security comes up.

I said, "No one wants a stronger defense than my readers do. But I must know what our defense policy is. If the military will just tell me what they plan to do with the money, I would be the first to say, 'Go get 'em boys.' But as long as the president has his feet in concrete, I have to be a nay - sayer."

Tom Wicker, of the New York Times, said, "I couldn't agree with you more. I want to know if we are preparing to fight a limited nuclear war, a prolonged nuclear war, a two - ocean war, a one - ocean war, or a police action in space."

David Brinkley said, "What gets me is that the military will come to the media and tell us they only need $10 billion for a new weapon, and once they develop it, they're going to return next year and say it will cost us four times as much as they originally thought. I got badly burned on the F - 18 fighter plane, and I'm not going to get sucked in again."

Columnist James Kilpatrick said, "I think you're all talking a bunch of claptrap."

We waited for him to continue, but apparently that's all he wanted to say.

Sarah McClendon said, "I can't justify a $2 trillion military expenditure over five years when there isn't enough money to take care of the sick and the poor. I say cut."

"Then the consensus is," I said, "that the Reagan - Weinberger military budget is totally unacceptable, and they're going to have to go back to the drawing boards and come up with something the media can live with."

"What's our next step?" Mary McGrory asked.

"We start a steady drumbeat of negative thought about defense expenditures, and let Congress take it from there."

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, April 22, the 112th day of 1983. There are 253 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On April 22, 1889, thousands of homesteaders swarmed into the Oklahoma Territory to stake out claims at the beginning of what would be called the Oklahoma Land Rush.
On this date:

In 1864, Congress authorized the director of the Mint to use the motto "In God We Trust" on coins.

In 1898, the first shot of the Spanish-American War was fired when the USS Nashville captured a Spanish merchant ship off Key West, Fla.

In 1915, the German Army used poison gas for the first time in World War I.

In 1964, the second New York World's Fair opened.

Ten years ago: The Associated Press announced development of a new system of photo transmission by wire using laser beams.

Five years ago: An American airliner arrived in Helsinki, Finland, from Murmansk, U.S.S.R., after picking up the passengers and most of the crew of a South Korean airliner that went off course and was forced down in the Soviet Union.

One year ago: A right-wing coalition took control of the leadership of El Salvador's new Constituent Assembly.

Today's birthday: Actor Eddie Albert is 75 years old.

Thought for today: "Critics are the men who have failed in literature and art." - Benjamin Disraeli, English statesman (1804-1881).

A dangerous deja vu...

By PAUL GREENBERG

It was a time not unlike this one. The world's democracies, dwindling and divided, were unsure about which course to follow. The world's leading dictatorship had just got a new leader. Arms talks, while continually in process, made no progress. The West was assured by various of its statesmen that nothing was more important to its security than economic recovery, that the risk of war could be averted through international negotiations, that additional armaments made neither economic nor military sense, and that current defense efforts were quite sufficient. Time magazine reported that the French would soon "complete a program of fortifications designed to make their frontiers impregnable." The Maginot Line was to make aggression unthinkable. Pacifism was all the rage, followed closely by defense - on - the - cheap.

The mood of those years was captured by a student debate at Oxford February 9th, 1933 - ten days after Adolf Hitler had become Reichschancellor of a furiously rearming Germany. The question submitted to the Oxford Union was clear enough - "That this House will in no circumstances fight for its King and Country." In a nation haunted by the ghosts of the First World War, and dissatisfied with the uncertain peace it had brought, the decision was predictable. The students voted in the affirmative, 275 to 153.

At least one thing has changed over the past half century. This February 9th, when much the same proposition was debated at Oxford, a young student who had supported the Ayes a half century ago was back to speak for the Nays. "Yes, I and my friends were arrogant," Max Beloff, now Lord Beloff, told the students. "And I wish to apologize to the memory of those who died, and beseech this House not to make the same mistake, and vote against this motion."

His words were silently reinforced by a stone tablet in the chamber. It was dedicated to officers of the Oxford Union, including four of its presidents, who had died in a war the world had failed to deter.

"Those of us who voted for the original motion," Lord Beloff was saying, "have a duty to make atonement and to warn against the kind of foolish arrogance which led us to make statements which were factually and morally untrue." His voice carried like living history as he told the House of the follies that led to the greatest of the world's wars, and how it might have been prevented by greater vigilance.

There were other speakers at Oxford on this historic anniversary. Some of them brought home how little had changed since 1933. There was Helen John, speaking for a woman's disarmament movement which has been demonstrating at the American air force base where the new cruise missiles are to be deployed. After she referred to Britain as "an American occupied country," the next speaker asked all Americans in the chamber to rise. As the Rhodes scholars and other Americans at Oxford stood, he asked: "These are our occupiers?" When Lord Beloff's turn came to speak, he pointed out that the American people, "who saved us in two wars," had become a handy whipping boy for those who refuse to face the Soviet threat. He found that refusal untenable, intellectually and morally.

This time, better late than never, the resolution that this House would in no circumstances fight for Queen and Country was beaten - and by the surprising margin of 416 to 187, an astounding result given the mood of Britain today. Such a result would have been just as surprising in West Germany, where the Social Democrats and the Yippie - like Greens seem to believe that peace can be preserved largely by incantation.

Let it be noted that the Church of England has rejected a call for unilateral nuclear disarmament - by a vote of 3 to 1, reminiscent of the board that wished its chairman a speedy recuperation by a vote of 5 to 2 with one abstention. The West doesn't seem much more united and resolute today than in the dithering Thirties. That is not a happy augury for the peace of the world.

In this country, the old delusions remain as strong as ever, maybe stronger. The still indistinguishable Democratic candidates approach the general issue of war and peace in a murk, and the defense budget as though it were largely optional. One senator is heard to say that investing in new chemical weapons "does not make any economic or military sense whatsoever." This after the mounting evidence from Sverdlovsk, Afghanistan, and Southeast Asia of dangerous new Soviet weapons. A congressman from Iowa explains - "What is needed is chemical weapons arms control, not a new arms race that nobody can win." What he doesn't explain is how he will secure the cooperation of the Soviets in that effort. The senior senator and presidential possibility from Arkansas, Dale Bumpers, proclaims that nothing - nothing - "is more important to national security... than a vibrant economy." The more some things have changed over the past half century, the more some lines remain disturbingly the same.

Perhaps Lord Beloff might consent to visit this country, where a strong voice and a good memory would prove useful just now.

Year-long drug investigation culminates in 59 indictments

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Most of the 59 people indicted on narcotics charges in two states were in custody today, capping a year-long federal investigation that netted three alleged drug kingpins, authorities said.

The indictments paralyzed one of this country's "largest and most organized criminal organizations," according to Marion W. Hambrick, special agent-in-charge of the Drug Enforcement Administration office in Houston.

The arrests began Wednesday, and the indictments were unsealed the next day in San Antonio, Austin and New Orleans. A 20-count indictment naming 32 people was unsealed here Thursday as part of the investigation, dubbed Operation Bushmaster after a deadly South African snake.

Sixteen people also were indicted in Austin on related narcotics charges and 11 in New Orleans, according to Charles Carter, head of the DEA's office here.

Three Houston men were indicted here on charges of continuing criminal enterprise, accused of acting as kingpins for international drug operations.

The focus of the investigation, Hambrick said, was the Dempsey Merida organization of Houston, which the indictment said imported and distributed large quantities of heroin, cocaine and cocaine paste, marijuana and methamphetamines.

Merida, 55, attorney Charles T. Newlin, 36, and William Thomas "Red" Follis, 51, were jailed on bonds of $1 million each on the continuing criminal enterprise charges.

Thirty-one other people were in custody today on bonds ranging from $50,000 to $1 million.

The bulk of the indictments came out of San Antonio because the defendants traveled through the Western District as part of their drug dealings, according to Assistant U.S. Attorney Bill Blagg.

"A majority or good number of the criminal activities occurred in the Western District," he said.

The cases will be prosecuted by the Western District's drug task force recently established by the U.S. attorney general's office.

Merida, who operates a transmission repair business, and Follis, owner of a car dealership, were arrested at dawn Thursday at their Houston homes, which the federal government plans to confiscate along with other assets.

DEA agent Paul Herring said authorities who raided the houses found 40 shotguns and rifles, four fully automatic machine guns, 30 handguns, $30,000 in cash, a kilogram of cocaine and 38 pounds of methamphetamines.

Also found at Follis' house was a machine gun and silencer built into a briefcase, Herring said, which "was apparently designed just for killing."

Newlin, who often represented drug defendants, was accused of arranging and financing marijuana and cocaine deals and helping to establish hidden methamphetamine labs in several Texas cities.

Officials said the groups targeted in Operation Bushmaster had smuggled drugs into the United States by air, land and sea from Colombia, Panama, Mexico and Belize since 1975.

The narcotics then were distributed throughout California, Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado, Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee, Georgia and Ohio, Hambrick said.

He said 16 federal, state and local agencies participated in the investigation.

Attorney contends

Signals property of receivers

HOUSTON (AP) — A defense attorney says his clients, accused of illegally intercepting private TV signals, are guilty of nothing because the firm transmitting the microwave signals makes no effort to scramble them or prevent their reception.

"They are here in this courtroom," David Berg said of the signals in his opening statement Thursday. "They can be received with a simple device."

The Pirate Video operators made $250,000 before they were forced to close down, Kamin said.

He said the grand jury investigation began in June 1981 and, despite marshals' seizures of equipment and an October 1981 indictment, the men continued to sell the antennas and converters.

The continued operations, Kamin said, led to a reindictment in December 1981. "They went so far because it was so lucrative, and they were absolutely brazen" about reproducing pay TV programming guides, which led to the copyright infringement charges, Kamin said.

Local experts dispel rape myths

By Julia Clark
Staff Writer

"A rapist can be your husband's best friend." Rapists can be anyone, anywhere - in Pampa, Lefors, Skellytown. A rapist can be from the "wrong side of the tracks" or from the affluent neighborhood.

Travis Plumlee executive director of the Pampa Rape Crisis center, Detective Orin Potter and other members of the Pampa Police Department are trying to dispel the many myths held by the general public about who commits rape and what rape is. They say the three best ways for a person to avoid becoming a rape victim is through education, planning and training.

Read, study, find out what rape is and is not. Know what goes on in your community, Potter said Tuesday night at a self defense class.

The following is a discussion of the myths surrounding the crime, who the rapist is and what a person can do to defend oneself against the possibility of being attacked.

Potter and Plumlee both characterized rapists as three basic types of personalities: the power rapist, the anger rapist and the sadistic rapist.

For the power rapist, sexuality is an expression of conquest. He sees sexual assault as a means of gaining control over others; he sees sex as a symbol of power: the goal is to gain power over the victim. He usually talks a great deal during the assault. It is often planned out in advance and he probably knows there victim, who feels entirely powerless and vulnerable.

This person is very traditional in outlook about human sexuality: women are either virgins or whores; men are either macho or queer. He feels controlled by life events and he sees this a way of giving himself some control. The victim often has lingering fears and self-blame. Thus, myth number one: rape is a cooperative sexual act, is not true, Plumlee explained.

An anger rapist sees sex as a means of expressing contempt for women. He sees sex as degrading for women, so he rapes in order to degrade, Plumlee said. The attack is often explosive and severe with more force and brutality than is necessary, so the victim suffers from physical trauma.

Beating is part of the anger rapist's gratification. He is impulsive and operating in a blind rage to something that has happened to him in the past. He chooses all of his victims at random. Victims of rape suffer humiliation, guilt, anger, fear, and depression. These feelings can last a few months to a life time, depending on the individual, Plumlee said.

"It is certainly the epitome of human degradation. The absolute humiliation of human being to another," he said. "If there is anything a woman has in this society, it is herself and then this man takes it away from her and it takes a lot to come back."

Myth number two: women fantasize about being raped. Potter said no woman fantasizes true rape; they are thinking more in terms of having a sexual relationship with a movie star or handsome fellow, that is not rape, because rape is without consent. Likewise, Plumlee said there is no such thing as a woman asking to be raped, as in the old fashion idea that provocative clothing causes rape.

"If that were true, we wouldn't have six-month-old babies and 80-year-old women and boys being raped," Plumlee said.

Myth number three: women are the only victims of rape. Potter said men and boys have been raped. Often he said, when a man or boy is raped, it is by a gang of women filled with anger and the victim is castrated or killed following the assault.

Myth number four: rapists are strangers. Myth number five: a rapist is a scroungy, dirty pervert found in dark alleys, "bad" neighborhoods and parking lots.

Plumlee said most of the rape victims are from the affluent neighborhoods, and are committed by someone who also lives there and is known by the victim.

He said about 90 percent of the rapes go unreported. He said if a father rapes his daughter, the family is not going to report it for fear of publicity.

Most of the rapes are committed during daylight hours, Plumlee said there will likely be more rapes this summer than during the winter months, because the days are longer and women are out of doors more, making themselves more vulnerable.

Orin Potter demonstrates how to break the hold of an attacker at a rape prevention class Tuesday, sponsored by the Pampa Chamber of Commerce. Travis Plumlee of the Pampa Rape Crisis center and police officers talk to women's groups about rape prevention throughout the year. Any group wanting more information can call the center at the hospital or the police station to set up an appointment. (Staff photo by Julia Clark)

Baby shampoo recalled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration said Wednesday that 234,000 bottles of baby shampoo, sold widely under a variety of brand names, will be recalled because of bacterial contamination that can infect scratched or cut skin and eyes.

The shampoo was packaged by Pennex Products Company Inc. of Verona, Pa., and is sold under more than two dozen house brands. Pennex began the recall after FDA tests showed the bacteria in one isolated lot. But further tests by the company and by FDA showed the problem to be more widespread and led to the broad recall.

The company has stopped using equipment which it believes is the source of the contamination.

Pennex distributed the product nationally as Soothex and Mara Lynne brands or with a generic label saying simply "Baby Shampoo."

The product also is sold as the Treasury brand baby shampoo by the Treasury Drug Division of J.C. Penney Co., New York, and as the Army and Air Force Exchange Service's AAFES Baby Shampoo.

In addition, it was sold in the Northeast as Baby-Mate, distributed by Adams Drug Co. of Pawtucket, R.I.; Courtesy, distributed by Port Washington Distributor of Port Washington, N.Y.; Drug Guild by Drug Guild Dist. of Seacaucus, N.J.; Filene's distributed by Filene's and Sons Co. of Boston; Happy Harry's by Merchandisers Inc. of Newark, N.J.; Heck's by Tri-State Distributors Inc. of Nitro, W.Va.; LSA by L.S. Anster and Co. Inc. of Framingham, Mass.

In the South, the baby shampoo was sold as Kerr brand by Kerr Discount Drug Stores of Raleigh, N.C.; Our Brand by SAS Products of Jacksonville, Fla.; Rose's by Rose's Stores of Henderson, N.C.; and Shopper's Drug Mart of Shopper's Drug Mart Inc., Boca Raton, Fla.

In the Midwest, the affected baby shampoo brands are Baby Touch, distributed by B and E Sales Inc. of Detroit; Coop brand by Universal Cooperatives of Minneapolis, Minn.; Elder-Beerman, distributed by Elder-Beerman Stores of Dayton, Ohio; Gold Circle by Gold Circle Division of Federated Stores, Worthington, Ohio; Seaway by Seaway Foods, Cleveland, Ohio; and Sunfresh, distributed by Sunfresh Inc. of St. Paul, Minn.

In the West, the product was sold under the brand name F & D by a company of the same name in Benicia, Calif.

The lot numbers under recall can be differentiated by these codes: A13F, A17F, A28F, D20E2, F14E, F16E, G13E, G14E, G14E1, G22E, G29E, H12E, H13E, H16E, H18E, H19E, H24E, H24E1, I1E, J4E, J5E1, J5E2, J6E, J6E1, J8E, J8E1, J12E, J20E, J20E1, J21E, J22E, J25E, J25E1, K22E, K30E, L1E, L3E, L6E, L6E1, L7E, L13E, L20E.

Dear Abby Reader fires a shot in battle of sexes

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: You have contradicted yourself. "Nameless, Please," an 18-year-old female who became pregnant by a 14-year-old male, was advised (by you) to "leave bad enough alone."

Where is the equality between the sexes now? If the roles were reversed, you would have been all over the male like flies on a garbage truck.

Abby, that girl is guilty of statutory rape! I am not saying she should be sent to jail, but if the sexes are to be treated equally in other respects, then what's good for the gander is good for the goose here, too!

Most males are tired of one-sided equality.

ME, TOO

DEAR ME: The 18-year-old female could have been charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor. But statutory rape? Never! The definition of statutory rape: "Sexual intercourse with a female who is below the statutory age of consent." Case dismissed!

DEAR ABBY: I am a 29-year-old school teacher, living and working 1,500 miles from my hometown.

Last year I fell in love with a wonderful man, and we plan to marry this summer. My parents know of our plans, but they have never met him. (They have spoken on the phone.) He is 33, also in education, and, Abby, he's the kindest, sweetest, most wonderful man I've ever known!

I have put off introducing him to my parents because I know they would never accept him. You see, he is half-Indian and half-black. He's also a Southern Baptist. He looks like a cross between Wayne Newton and Sidney Poitier.

Should I wait until after we are married, then bring him to meet them? Or should I write and tell them so they won't be too shocked? I've been agonizing over this for the last three months. How should this be resolved?

WHITE AND CATHOLIC

DEAR WHITE: I suggest that you write and tell your parents that your fiancé is half-Indian and half-black. Also, that he's a Southern Baptist. (Send a picture along.) But more important, tell them that he's the kindest, sweetest, most wonderful man you've ever met and you love each other.

...

DEAR ABBY: A couple of years ago my husband and I separated for about six months because he got involved with another woman.

Brownie troop visits News office

Fourteen Brownies trooped into the Pampa News office Thursday on a field trip to learn how a newspaper is produced. Senior Reporter Jeff Langley led the youngsters on a grand tour of the news office, telling them about business, advertising, editorial, composing, press room and circulation departments.

Troop 99, led by Jan Parks, has also recently toured a photo developing store as part of their troop activities.

During our separation I fell in love with "Sonny," a con artist who sure knew how to take my mind off my troubles. Sonny picked up my spirits, so my mother loaned him $1,000 to buy a car.

After that, my husband and I got back together again. Meanwhile, Sonny never paid Mom a dime of the $1,000 he borrowed from her. Mom told my husband if he could collect the $1,000 he could have it, so he tried. He even went to a lawyer, but got nowhere because there was nothing in writing.

Now my husband keeps harping on how stupid I was for letting that con artist take advantage of my mother. He brings it up 20 times a day and won't let it die. Mom has told him to forget it — the $1,000 didn't break her and it was worth $1,000 to see me happy after being so down in the dumps.

How can I make my husband see that it was my mother's money, and if she isn't complaining, he should forget it?

SICK OF THE SITUATION

DEAR SICK: He sees it, he just has trouble accepting it. And if he doesn't forget it, tune him out.

You're never too old (or too young) to learn how to make friends and be popular. For Abby's booklet on Popularity, send $1, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to Abby, Popularity, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

After landing on this car in Stillwater, Okla., and seeing itself in the mirror, this mockingbird seemed to go crazy trying to rescue the bird trapped in the mirror. The bird tried from every angle to get to that other bird, but after almost an hour of wasted effort, he flew for a drink, then tried again. (AP Laserphoto)

Rainbow...

THE MACHINE OF TOMORROW... TODAY!

"The Unit That Washes the Air."

The Rainbow Cleaning Principle replaces old fashioned cleaning methods that are inefficient because they attempt to handle dust in a dry state. There is more dust in the air after even the most modern cleaning appliance is used. Then there was before because at least some of the dust picked up is sifted back into the room. Only the Rainbow is truly effective in curtailing this unwanted, unsightly, expensive and work-causing household.

The Secret is "WET DUST CANNOT FLY." Rainbow traps the dust in water. The water-trapped dust is then poured away, out of the home forever. Perfect for people suffering from allergies!

W.O. "Dub" Adkins, center, recently was presented the Good Shepherd Award from the Boy Scouts of America and the Southern Baptist Church for Outstanding Service to Boys and God. The award was presented to Adkins by Rev. Burl Hickerson, right, as his wife, Geneva Adkins, observed. Adkins, scoutmaster of Troop 416, has been involved in Scouting in Pampa for 16 years.

Groundbreaking set at First Baptist Church

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the new educational building of the First Baptist Church, 203 N. West, will be conducted at 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

The basement and three-story building will be erected north of the present auditorium. Rev. Claude Cone, pastor, said.

Participating in the groundbreaking ceremonies will be Rev. Cone; George Warren, minister of education; Charles Langen, chairman of deacons; and Jerry Wilson, chairman of the building committee.

"Rise and Shine, Give God the Glory," is the theme for the day with a goal of 1,725 for Sunday School.

Rev. Cone's sermon subject for the 11 a.m. service is "Our God Will Prosper Us" with a text taken from Nehemiah 2:17-20.

Following Sunday School and the morning worship there will be a barbecue dinner on the grounds, the pastor said. Special treats have been planned for bus riders.

The First Baptist Church is 76 years old with a total membership of 3,792. The pastor said a steady growth during recent years has necessitated the building of another facility.

Whitaker, McQueen, Jones and Associates of Lubbock are the architects of the $3 million building and Reid and Gary Strickland of Amarillo are the contractors.

In addition to construction of the 54,000 square foot building, plans call for remodeling of the north building and construction of off-street parking on Kingsmill Street and two parking lots, one at the corner of Francis and Ward streets and the other at Kingsmill and West streets.

The new facilities are expected to be ready for use by September 1984.

Revival at Mobeetie

MOBEETIE - A revival meeting, with Rev. T. Earl Ogg as the evangelist, will begin at the First Baptist Church of Mobeetie Sunday and continue through May 1.

Services will be at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. each weekday.

Ogg, for 30 years pastor of College Place Baptist Church in Monroe, La., has served on every board and committee in the Louisiana Baptist Convention. He is a trustee of Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth.

The public is invited to attend the services.

Services by satellite

Services live from satellite will be shown at Victory Faith Fellowship, 533 W. Foster, at 6:40 p.m. each evening Sunday through Wednesday.

Jerry Savelle, author, evangelist and bible teacher, will be presenting the messages which are to be broadcast from Dallas. Special singing will be by Happy Caldwell and Joe Bias.

Free Will Baptist to honor pastor, hold revival services

The Free Will Baptist Church, 326 N. Rider, will be honoring its pastor, Rev. L.C. Lynch, at 6:30 p.m. Saturday upon his retirement from Arthur Brothers.

The public is invited to attend the open house for Rev. Lynch which will be held in the Energas Flame Room.

The church will also be holding at revival, beginning Monday evening and continuing through Friday evening, with Rev. Billy Joe Gentry, pastor of the Chapel of the Ozarks at Rocky Comfort, Mo., the guest evangelist.

Services will be held at 7 p.m. each of the five evenings with Jack Griffin of Allen, Okla. directing the singing.

Local youth becomes minister

Mike Davis, son of Everett and Joanne Davis of 1105 Darby, was licensed to the gospel ministry Sunday by Central Baptist Church.

The certificate was presented to the Pampa High School senior by Rev. Norman Rushing, pastor. Davis plans to attend Wayland Baptist University, Plainview, this fall.

Breaking through faith barriers

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
 AP Religion Writer

In a heavily secularized world, churches are revitalizing a way to break through barriers to faith, says singer Jane Murphy. She says it's being done with song.

"Music can worm its way through armor," she says, adding that this subtle yet potent means is particularly necessary in a technologically obsessed age which tends to deaden the sense of spiritual realities.

A "numbness," she calls the effect. She says apt music can penetrate that crust and "touch those levels that we need but that we're out of touch with most of the time."

Those depths remain present, even when covered over, she says. "We're not really fooled down inside. There's a tremendous, deep-down yearning for the transcendent."

The evidence of it, and its rise to the surface, is something she has observed many times in parish "renewal" gatherings that she and a priest-evangelist have conducted in many communities.

After the priest, the Rev. Owen Lally of Chelsea, N.Y., gives a talk on some theological concept, such as God's constant love for every person, then she will gently reinforce the message in poignant song.

Softly strumming her guitar, her clear, wistful soprano appeals for that greater friendship. "Father, it's one of your children again," she sings, "asking that you would hear. I've only a few simple words to speak. I guess you might call it a prayer."

Typically, by the time she's finished, the eyes of listeners are wet with tears.

Touching that emotional chord is relative new for Roman Catholics and some liturgically formal Protestants, but it's essential in a mentally secularized time, Mrs. Murphy said in an interview.

"It brings into play one element of our spirituality that we haven't engaged before - our emotions," she said. That aspect, she said, must be integrated and balanced with the intellectual, devotional side.

Join Us In Worship

IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

THAT'S RIGHT, we said opportunity keeps knocking. It does so because there is no limit to God's love for man. Our Creator is not One who wound up this old world and then left it and its inhabitants abandoned like a forgotten toy. He is the One who cares most of all about us. He is the One who will leave the ninety-nine sheep in the fold and come searching for the one that is lost. As a poet once put it, "He pursues us down the days and down the years." He wants us for Himself because He loves us and He will never give up the pursuit. Most wonderful of all, His chase is that we may have life and have it more abundantly. Only when we stop running away and let Him into our lives can they be fulfilled. Go to Church Sunday and meet with God who has always loved you.

Is something wrong with your life—an inner restlessness dissatisfaction? The answer to every human problem comes only from God our Maker. He alone can forgive and restore.
 Through the church God has committed the provision and proclamation of His forgiveness and redeeming love. Without a church relation no one is securely related to God. Everyone should be in the Church and the Church is everyone!

Cowboy Hoopsters to meet police tonight

The Dallas Cowboys of National Football League fame will put on their basketball-playing uniforms tonight to meet the Pampa Police Department's Blue Knights in a benefit game, starting at 7:30 p.m. in Clifton McNeely Fieldhouse.

Proceeds will go to the Pampa Crime Stoppers program.

The Cowboys' star-studded roster includes Tony Dorsett, Tony Hill, Ron Springs, Ron Fellers, Doug Pearson, Dexter Clinkscales, Doug Donley, Drew Cosbie, Steve Wright and Howard Richards.

The Cowboys posted a 6-3 record in the strike-shortened 1982 season and clinched their 17th consecutive winning mark, a league record.

Dallas whipped Tampa Bay, 30-17, and Green Bay, 37-26, in the expanded 16-team Super Bowl Tournament before falling to eventual champions Washington, 31-17, in the NFC title game.

The Cowboys were ranked fifth in the NFL in scoring last season and were third in allowing the least points. The Cowboys have a consecutive scoring streak of 176, which is the third longest in NFL history behind Cleveland's 274 (1950-71) and Oakland's 217 (1966-80). Kansas City is currently third at 179 (1963-76). The Cowboys' only shutout loss was 38-0 to St. Louis on Nov. 16, 1970 at the Cotton Bowl.

Dallas has made five trips to the Super Bowl, winning twice.

Tonight, the police will counter the Hoopsters with Steve Chance, Oren Potter, Rod Bishop, Wayne Williams, Billy Baxter, James Laramore and Gary Boydston.

Tickets are $6 apiece and are available at the Pampa Police Station, Utelus and Archie's Aluminum Fab. Tickets also will be available at the door.

DOUG DONLEY, a wide receiver out of Ohio State, will be one of the Dallas Cowboy Hoopsters performing against the Pampa Police Department at 7:30 p.m. tonight in Clifton McNeely Fieldhouse.

Hawks battle Celtics, Trail Blazers take on SuperSonics in playoff games

The Atlanta Hawks, having played a confidence game the past couple of days, now have to play Boston again, knowing that a loss to the visiting Celtics will bring their 1982-83 National Basketball Association season to an end.

It's the second game of their best-of-three mini-series, with the eventual winner advancing to the Eastern Conference semifinals against the Milwaukee Bucks.

In tonight's other mini-series meeting, the Portland Trail Blazers can eliminate the visiting Seattle SuperSonics and head for Los Angeles and a meeting with the Lakers in the Western Conference semifinals.

On Thursday night, the New York Knicks completed their two-game sweep of New Jersey, beating the visiting Nets 105-99 to advance to the second round against Philadelphia. But the Denver Nuggets evened their best-of-three series against Phoenix by defeating the visiting Suns 113-99 to force a third game Sunday night in Portland.

Atlanta, which entered postseason play with the poorest record of any playoff team at 43-39 (13 games behind Boston in the conference standings) and which had lost five of six games to the Celtics during the season, rallied from eight points down to take a four-point lead early in the fourth period and appeared poised for an upset in Boston Garden last Tuesday night.

Then Larry Bird, taking a brief rest, returned to the lineup and the Celtics raced past the bewildered Hawks, winning 103-95.

"If we had to play Wednesday, we probably would have had an emotional letdown after playing so hard and getting nipped at the end," said Atlanta Coach Kevin Loughery. "Instead we got a couple of days off and a chance to look at the films of the game. It's got to help our confidence."

"We had a tremendous opportunity to win that game and if we play accordingly Friday, we'll have a good shot at beating them. We're going to be the underdog, but we're playing at home and hopefully we'll have a good crowd.

"We've got to make our shots to win. We missed 13 or 14 layups and we've just got to make a better percentage. But that's not going to be easy because Boston had 10 blocks and they are a shot-blocking team."

Portland Coach Jack Ramsay is downplaying the importance of the Blazers' upset in Seattle and their return to the Memorial Coliseum.

"Nothing's guaranteed," he said. "We've won one game. We need to win one more... Homecourt loses its significance in the playoffs."

Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens obviously agrees. "We've won down there (in Portland) before," he said, "but it's tough to play catch-up basketball in the playoffs."

The Nets entered the playoffs with a record five games better than New York, but they also entered it in disarray, having lost their coach, Larry Brown, to the collegiate ranks in the closing weeks. They won only two of eight games under Bill Blair, their assistant coach-turned-interim coach.

"It was a tough situation," said Blair. "It was tough on the players and hard for them to get stability. We've got to go on and get better next year and win in the playoffs." The Nets have lost all six of their playoff games since becoming part of the NBA.

"They're a great team," Knicks Coach Hubie Brown said of the Nets. "You don't win as many games as they did during the year without having what happened to them in the last two weeks affect them." New York blew lead and widened it to a 25-point bulge with the first basket of the third quarter. Then the Nets began a comeback that sliced the margin to six points in the opening minutes of the final quarter before the rally stalled.

Truck Robinson had 22 points and 13 rebounds and Bernard King 18 points for the Knicks. Albert King's 25 points paced New Jersey.

NL roundup

Little sparks Expos past Cardinals

MONTREAL (AP) — It may be a while before St. Louis outfielder George Hendrick believes the Cardinals' scouting reports.

The report on Bryan Little, the diminutive switch-hitting shortstop of the Montreal Expos, was not to play him as a pull-hitter batting left-handed dutifully. Hendrick, the Cardinals' right fielder, moved away from the line when Little came to bat in the first inning Thursday.

Little promptly doubled into the right-field corner, driving in Tim Lincecum and tying the score 1-1. The hit sparked a three-run first inning and the Expos went on to defeat St. Louis starter Joaquin Andujar, an old nemesis, 6-5.

In the only other National League game, the Houston Astros edged the Cincinnati Reds 4-3 on Phil Garner's two-run double in the bottom of the 10th inning.

Andujar had an 11-1 career record against Montreal and had won 12 consecutive games, including a victory in the 1982 NL playoffs, and two in the World Series.

Little delivered another run-scoring double to almost the identical spot in the second inning, which prompted a comment from Hendrick as he passed him on the field later in the game.

"Am I going to believe the scouting reports on you any more?" he asked.

Explaining his success, Little said: "The only thing I was trying to do was move Tim Lincecum over to third base because he was on second both times I came up. But I got something I could pull and it worked out to my advantage."

Al Oliver and Terry Francona added RBI singles in the first inning and Gary Carter belted a solo home run.

run, his second of the season, in the third to provide Montreal with a 5-1 lead against Andujar, 2-1, who left after four innings.

"He was rusty from a lack of work. He never had any rhythm out there," said St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog. The Cardinals, because of three postponements, had not played since Saturday.

The Cardinals came close to getting Andujar off the hook when they scored four runs in the eighth inning. By that time, the Expos led 6-1 after Francona produced a run with a bases-loaded groundout in the seventh.

Scott Sanderson, 3-0, the Expos' starter, had allowed only seven hits, one of them a home run by Lonnie Smith on the first pitch of the game, entering the eighth inning. But Smith doubled for his fourth straight hit and Ozzie Smith singled, chasing Sanderson.

Keith Hernandez greeted reliever Jeff Reardon with an RBI single and Darrell Porter walked to load the bases.

Grimsley's Sports World Jets' player forms caring foundation

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

The general public, reading newspapers and watching TV, cultivates a variety of images of the bigtime professional athlete. He is a playboy, a la Broadway Joe Namath, or a brute, a la Jack Tatum, the Oakland Raider defensive back who paralyzed a rival player with a crushing (but legal) hit and later wrote about it in a book entitled, "I Was A Paid Assassin."

The bigtime professional athlete is seen as overpaid, arrogant and uncaring. He broods and hides in his private shell, as does the Phillies' great pitcher, Steve Carlton, or he's always out on the town in the fashion of the real live characters portrayed in Jim Bouton's "Ball Four." He is a Super Brat, as tennis' John McEnroe, or a flake, as Sparky Lyle.

Then there is the athlete few people know and write about in depth, such as the New York Jets' massive defensive tackle, Marty Lyons.

Say "hello" to a guy who cares.

The 6-foot-5, 268-pound protege of the late Bear Bryant, hired a room in a New York steakhouse Thursday to announce the launching of his latest charity venture, the Marty Lyons Foundation, Inc.

The Foundation's primary purpose: To bring a ray of sunshine to people with a terminal illness. The accent will be on children.

"I've been involved with a lot of charitable organizations," the hulking tackle said. "This is a sort of consolidation. Our aim is to fulfill some special wish for some unfortunate kid who sees nothing but four dreary walls day in and day out."

When Lyons, a member of the Jets' dreaded "New York Sack Exchange," played on Bryant's championship teams in the late 1970s at Alabama, where he took two specialized classes to help the handicapped.

Why the dunk must be eliminated

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (NEA) — When Doc Naismith, inventor of basketball, first put a peach basket against the balcony of the YMCA gym in Springfield, Mass., in 1891 he meant for skill and finesse to be the premium elements of the sport.

That's why he put the basket at 10 feet (the balcony happened to be that high, too), out of the reach of mortal man, who at that point averaged 5 feet 7 inches in height. And that's why he ordained no body contact, which he felt was better left to the football field.

He did not envision the boys of the University of Houston's Phi Slama Jama dunk fraternity who play above the rim of the basket, making all else below look like the craggy abysses of the Grand Canyon.

He did not expect sheer physical superiority to be the dominant factor in the game of basketball.

So it must have made the old Doc, in the pantheon of the heavens, chortle when nimble, smart North Carolina State upset the PSJ's of Houston to win the national collegiate title and restore some balance to the philosophy of basketball. (The Wolfpack even outdunked them, two to one — the literal figures for the NCAA championship game.)

But the startling feat of North Carolina State's giant killers must be tempered by the realization that it was only a minor detour in the direction that the game of basketball has taken.

The objective now is to gather as many timber-topping student-athletes (as the NCAA euphemistically calls them) on one squad as possible, make sure they are also quick and agile, and then turn them loose.

Seattle rookie shuts out Minnesota, 2-0

By The Associated Press
 Mike Young is a Seattle rookie pitcher quickly learning that what got him to the major leagues will keep him there.
 After taking one look at the scouting reports for Thursday's Mariners-Minnesota game, Young promptly threw them away. And then he went out and threw the ball past the Twins.
 "I had been trying to follow the pitching charts on how to throw to each hitter's weakness. It wasn't doing me any good," said Young, who pitched 8 1/3 innings of two-hit ball in Seattle's 2-0 victory over the Twins.
 "I was pitching too fine, trying to hit spots. That's not me. Today, I decided I'd be me, let my natural stuff work for me. I went mainly with the fast ball, busted the slider on the right-handed hitters. No soft stuff."

 In other games on an abbreviated American League schedule, the Baltimore Orioles edged the Texas Rangers 3-2 in 14 innings and the California Angels swept a two-night doubleheader from the Oakland A's, winning the opener 6-2 and taking the nightcap 6-5.
 Young, now 2-2, struck out four and walked two. He gave up a single in the first inning to John Castino and a one-out single by Darrell Brown in the ninth, which brought Bill Caudill in from the bullpen.

Caudill retired the last two batters on grounders for his third save.
 Young, who got all the runs he needed on seventh-inning solo homer by Pat Putnam and Julio Cruz, said he wasn't overly disappointed about exiting the game so close to his first major league shutout.
 "I don't mind leaving for Caudill," the 24-year-old left-hander said. "I probably could have completed the game. But we are fortunate to have a strong relief pitcher like Caudill to come in and finish at the end. That's what he's being paid for."
 Castino said he was impressed by Young.
 "He was tough. He kept riding that fast ball or sinking it away off the outside corner from the right-handers. And he had the hard slider in tight."

 The rookie pitcher also made an impression on Minnesota's Kent Hrbek, named on the arm.
 Hrbek left the game in the second inning after being hit in the right forearm by a Young pitch. X-rays were negative, although Hrbek's arm will be in a plastic cast for the next few days.
Rangers 2
 John Shelby scored the winning run in the bottom of the 14th inning as Texas failed to complete an inning-ending double play. Shelby singled with one out off Odell Jones, 1-1, and cruised to third on Dan Ford's bloop single.

 Cal Ripken then hit a grounder to shortstop Bucky Dent, who bobbled the ball before throwing to second baseman Mike Richardt. Ford's hard slide into Richardt broke up the relay and allowed Shelby to score.
 Tim Stoddard won his first decision of the year by striking out four in the final two innings. Orioles starter Jim Palmer gave up two unearned runs in eight innings.
 Benny Ayala homered for Baltimore. Angels 6-4, A's 2-5.
 Fred Lynn drilled a two-run homer in the first game and triggered a six-run, sixth-inning rally with a leadoff homer in the

Ryan goes after strikeout record tonight

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston pitcher Nolan Ryan wants to revel in the roar of his fans and the silence of his critics tonight if he succeeds in breaking Walter Johnson's 55-year-old career strikeout record.
 "A lot of people can't find anything positive about my career," said Ryan, who needs eight strikeouts against Philadelphia to pass Johnson's 3,508 career total.
 "There are a lot of critics of mine that the first thing they want to talk about is me being a .500 pitcher and being wild."
 Despite a glittering career that includes five no-hitters and a major league record 383 strikeouts in one season — his two most cherished records — Ryan has been criticized as a .500 pitcher who concentrates on strikeouts more than victories.

Ryan's career record is 206-186, but his critics have remained unimpressed.
 Breaking Johnson's record, however, would prove that he deserves to be considered among the game's most durable pitchers, Ryan said.
 "I think it will make people realize after they study this record and see that I did it in 16 years and it took Johnson 21 years, that I have been durable and I have pitched a lot of innings and I have been consistent," Ryan said.
 Ryan started the season averaging 9.45 strikeouts per nine-inning performance, an all-time high. Ryan compiled that standard while striking out 3,494 batters over 3,326 innings. Philadelphia's Steve Carlton, by comparison, started the season with 3,434 strikeouts spaced over 4,275 innings pitched.

Being the first to break Johnson's record will satisfy Ryan, he said, because the 15-year veteran doesn't think he will be the last to set the career strikeout standard.
 The next pitcher to break the record likely will be Carlton, who will be watching intently from the Phillie dugout tonight.
 "He pitches every fourth day and we have a five-man rotation," Ryan said.
 "I've got to be realistic. If he's going to chalk up 290 innings and I'm going to get 230 or 240 and basically we strike out the same ratio, there's no way I can stay on the same level with him."
 Asked to choose the player he'd like to face to break the record, Ryan picked Pete Rose.
 "I think he's deserving of the honor," Ryan said.

Nicklaus leads Mony

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus had a quick, and possibly tongue-in-cheek, explanation for the 7-under-par 65 that staked him to a two-stroke lead in the $400,000 MONY-Tournament of Champions.
 "I didn't have an opportunity to have my Masters letdown this year," Nicklaus said Thursday after he had scattered eight birdies across his card in his lowest round of the year, an effort that erased any doubts about the lingering effects of his ailing back.
 "You found a way to end all that talk about your back, didn't you?" he was asked. Nicklaus responded with an elaborate wink.

Carla the waitress was a real one

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rhea Perlman, who plays cocktail waitress Carla Tortelli on NBC's "Cheers," once served spaghetti to friends of former Chase Manhattan Bank chairman David Rockefeller.

Well, more or less.

What actually happened was that she dropped the food all over them.

The petite actress was waiting tables in the Rainbow Grill at the top of the RCA building in New York — the corporate headquarters of NBC.

"It's a private club for hotshots," she said. "They had all kinds of rules. I was used to working in a regular place. One day I was serving some friends of David Rockefeller. The kitchen was three floors down and you had to carry the food up three flights of stairs on heavy silver trays."

"My arms were tired and I couldn't put the tray down on the little thing they had for it. I dumped spaghetti, fish and everything all over Mr. Rockefeller's friends. They had me out of there so fast. It was like the cartoon of the little dog being kicked out the back door."

It's an embarrassing experience Miss Perlman owns up to. On the other hand, Carla, earthy and acid-tongued, would probably regard it as a highlight.

Carla is the Greek chorus on "Cheers," a comedy series set in a sports-oriented bar in Boston. She keeps things in perspective and brings fellow waitress Diane Chambers down to earth when her ego threatens to lift her off the ground.

"I think Carla's a lot of things I'd like to be," Miss Perlman says. "I'm not like her, but she's a person who's always got a wisecrack. I always think of something two hours later."

"But we're both earthy and practical. We're survivors. The character is well written, but you always put a lot of yourself into it. The great thing about a TV series is that each week you get to develop the character a little bit more."

Carla, the divorced mother of four, did change during the show's first year. That change was due to the fact that Miss Perlman, who's married to Danny DeVito of "Taxi," got pregnant.

Their child, Lucy Chet DeVito, was born March 12. Miss Perlman said the writers on "Cheers" are probably cooking up a few stories about Carla's newborn baby.

At the movies: 'Lone Wolf McQuade'

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

"LONE WOLF MCQUADE" is another replay of the Saturday matinee serials, minus the sophistication of "Raiders of the Lost Ark." Chuck Norris makes his entrance atop a cliff, the sun's rays gleaming behind his head. He singlehandedly subdues a pack of modern, murderous horse rusters, and that's for openers. He continues from one adventure to another, besting foes with his hands and feet, sometimes his cannon-size gun. The plot is simplistic, but the film makes no pretense. It is aimed at the action fans, and it should immensely please them. Chuck Norris, who has developed into a superhero of the John Wayne-Clint Eastwood tradition, plays a maverick Texas ranger.

by Mary Ann Cooper

Larkin Malloy stars as Sky Whitney on "Edge of Night."

On April 2, 1956, a new daytime drama premiered with the then unconventional premise of suspense and political intrigue. Twenty-seven years later, "Edge of Night," television's longest running mystery serial, still entices with the same exciting plot twists that keep viewers riveted to their TV screens.

Long known for its double-barrelled plot machinations, "The Edge of Night" had a double-barrelled celebration in April. In addition to its 27th anniversary on April 2, the show taped its 7,000th episode on April 21.

Irving Vendig, who wrote "The Perry Mason Show" for radio, created "The Edge of Night," along with its leading man, Mike Karr. And from the first mysterious murder — that of Harry Lane, the uncle of Mike's first wife, Sarah, to the current "Who Killed Nora Fulton?" plotline, there's never been a dull moment for the residents of Monticello, the fictional midwestern city in which the action takes place.

Boston group learns from others

By JAMES SIMON
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — This city's reputation as a breeding ground for major rock 'n' roll groups suffered in recent years after a long line of bands failed to live up to the example set in the 1970s by the Cars, J. Geils Band and Aerosmith.

But members of the Jon Butcher Axis say they have learned from the failure of other local favorites to make a splash on the national scene. They point to the Rings, Private Lightning, Human Sexual Response, Nervous Eaters, New England, the Pools, Robin Lane and the Chartbusters.

"The bands that succeeded generally got the breaks and were talented as well. The less successful were short on breaks — and talent, too," says Jon

Butcher, lead singer and guitarist of the latest local group to get the "can't miss" tag.

The breaks have already begun for the Jon Butcher Axis. Peter Wolf of the J. Geils Band heard Butcher playing in a Boston club and invited the group to be the opening act on Geils' 43-city national tour last year.

The tour gave the band a chance to sharpen its collection of such power pop tunes as "Life Takes a Life" and "We Will Be As One," that feature Butcher's innovative use of a guitar synthesizer. The resulting album, released in early March, has quickly received national airplay and made Billboard's list of most added albums.

Now the band is off on another national tour, opening for Rush and hoping for a hit to propel it to stardom.

Butcher has a good ear for a commercial hook. His songwriting is varied and prevents the band from being easily pigeonholed.

During the band's last Boston show before the national tour, Butcher dominated the stage with his guitar synthesizer, producing a wide texture of sounds ranging from the dreamy to the screaming. He also played with feedback-like effects that the late Jimi Hendrix used so successfully.

Butcher, 27, was born in Pennsylvania and first picked up a guitar at age 12. He came to Boston to attend college, met drummer Derek Blevins while playing in a local band and later added bassist Chris Martin to complete the band's present lineup.

13-month-old undergoes second liver transplant

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Surgeons were transplanting a second liver into 13-month-old Brandon Hall early today as the world's second-youngest liver transplant patient continued his fight for life.

"What makes you so sick is that he wants to live so much," said Billie Hall, the boy's mother. "It seems that someone who wants to live that bad should be given a chance."

Doctors had removed the malfunctioning liver Brandon received just eight days ago by 3:30 a.m. and were replacing it with the organ of a 5-month-old Kentucky girl, said John Donica, spokesman at LeBonheur Children's Medical Center.

"Brandon is doing beautifully," Donica said. "He's breathing well. There's not very much bleeding."

The donor liver was flown in by charter jet at 1 a.m. after a surgical team from the University of Tennessee removed the organ in Bowling Green, Ky.

Brandon's first transplanted liver was not working properly. He received that one on April 13, only a few hours after he and his mother, Billie, appeared before a Congressional subcommittee with other families to plead for government help to pay for expensive transplant operations.

Some arteries leading to the liver became clogged, cutting off the flow of oxygen-carrying blood to the organ and making the second transplant necessary.

Surgeons from the University of Tennessee Center for the Health Sciences performed today's operation at LeBonheur because they did not want to move Brandon to the university's hospital.

A nationwide search for a new liver for Brandon was launched Thursday after the boy developed a lung infection and his new liver continued to fail, doctors said.

"Everything medically that can be done is being done," Mrs. Hall, of Walnut, Miss., said Thursday, when told that a new donor liver was found.

Brandon's first donor liver came from a 9-month-old Virginia girl who died from injuries suffered in a traffic accident.

His heart stopped beating twice during the first transplant, and doctors feared the subsequent loss of oxygen damaged the donor organ.

For the first few days after the first transplant, doctors were optimistic about the chances for success, but by the weekend, Brandon's kidneys had all but stopped producing urine.

Walesa to return to shipyard job

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity chief Lech Walesa said today he has received permission to resume his electrician's job at the Lenin Shipyard in Gdansk where he helped found the independent labor union in 1980.

"I am very happy," Walesa told reporters as he emerged from a morning meeting with shipyard administrators. "I will finally have contact with the people. My hands itch."

He said workers "met me with applause" in the shipyard. "They haven't forgotten me and I am happy."

Walesa led the August 1980 occupation strike at the shipyard which gave birth to Solidarity, the first independent union in the Soviet bloc. The union was suspended with the declaration of martial law on Dec. 13, 1981 and outlawed last October.

Walesa was interned with the imposition of martial law and released last November. He tried to get his shipyard job back in January, after exhausting his accumulated vacation and sick leave time.

He was returned to the payroll but not allowed back in the yard. Authorities said he had not followed the procedures required for former Solidarity members seeking to return to work.

The labor leader did not say why authorities decided to let him return to work.

Evans wins second death-row reprieve

ATMORE, Ala. (AP) — Convicted murderer John Louis Evans III won a last-minute reprieve from execution for the second time in four years, but was "ready for anything" today as his fate moved into the hands of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Evans, who shot and killed a Mobile pawnbroker during a robbery in 1977, downed a meal of steak and shrimp, received last rites from a priest late Thursday — then learned his midnight walk to the electric chair had been temporarily blocked.

Word of the stay reached the 33-year-old Evans in his cell at Holman Prison about 9 p.m. Thursday, three hours before he was to be executed.

Frantic legal maneuvering continued, and it was only 11 minutes before his scheduled 12:01 a.m. electrocution when prison officials received word that a federal appeals court in Atlanta upheld the temporary stay.

On April 6, 1979, Evans came within six hours of death in Alabama's electric chair before learning that a Supreme Court justice had blocked his execution.

Prison Commissioner Fred Smith said Evans was "joking and laughing with the officers" after learning Thursday that U.S. District Judge Emmett Cox of Mobile had temporarily stayed the execution.

Joe Ingle, a death penalty opponent from Tennessee who has befriended Evans, visited him Thursday night and said Evans remained "at peace with himself" and "ready for anything that comes down the pike."

Evans, once a cocky and unrepentant killer, had demanded the death penalty in 1979 and refused to appeal his case. He was spared then only on a motion filed by his mother, Betty Evans Dickson, against her son's wishes.

But Evans, who grew up in a white middle-class family of seven children in Beaumont, Texas, later decided to appeal. In recent months, he has been described as humbled, holding to newfound spiritual convictions.

"He has become a Christian," said the Rev. Kevin Duignan, a local Roman Catholic priest who ministered the premature last rites to Evans on Thursday night. "The arrogance is gone. The bravado is gone."

There are 56 other inmates on Alabama's death row. Evans' accomplice in the Jan. 5, 1977 murder, Wayne

U.S. to keep weapons

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal court jury says the U.S. government should keep 1,505 weapons seized by Customs agents in 1981, but the fate of a Boeing 707 used in an attempt to smuggle them to South Africa is up in the air.

Both a government lawyer and the attorney who represented the leasing company that owned the plane claimed victory after the jury verdict Thursday. U.S. District Judge George Cire did not comment.

The seizure of the plane and 1,146 automatic rifles, 259 pistols and 100 grenade launchers was the largest haul of illegal arms ever recorded at the time, Customs officials said.

The jury found that the aircraft's owner, Flugzeug Leasing of Frankfurt, West Germany, did not participate in the smuggling attempt, but that its operator, a now-defunct Austrian company called Montana-Austria, "consented to or participated in the illegal attempt to export arms."

Assistant U.S. Attorney Robert Herring said the plane must, therefore, be forfeited to the government. However, Mary Lou Andrews, attorney for Flugzeug Leasing, claimed the ruling is unclear.

"The jury found for us factually, but the judge must apply the law," she said.

Two Britons, Peter Thomas Towers, 52, and John Parks, 44, were arrested at Houston Intercontinental Airport on May 12, 1981, as the armaments were being loaded for South Africa, an embargoed country.

Walesa, 39, said he was not sure when he would begin work, but thought it would be in early May. He said he was told to report to the shipyard Monday for a medical examination and a refresher course on safety precautions.

"They may want to stall," he said. "but (I expect to start) no later than the early days of May."

Asked if he planned to continue his efforts to revive unions that are independent of government control, Walesa said, "I'm not excluding anything and I'm not rejecting anything. I'm going to work very hard, and at the same time I want to be at the birthplace of Solidarity."

Walesa remained largely out of public view for the first three months after his release, but in March began attending the trials of Solidarity figures charged with political offenses. Last Tuesday, he announced that he met April 9-11 with fugitive Solidarity leaders, and indicated he generally agreed with their strategy.

Two days later, the underground called for anti-government protest demonstrations on May 1, a holiday honoring workers celebrated in the Soviet bloc and Western Europe.

Authorities interrogated Walesa three times in a week, with the latest questioning on Tuesday. His friend and priest, the Rev. Henryk Jankowski, called the actions a campaign of "harassment."

Eugene Ritter, has been given a May 13 execution date by the Alabama Supreme Court, but still has routine avenues of appeal available.

Evans and Ritter, both Indiana prison parolees at the time, demanded the death penalty at their 1977 trial. Evans shot pawn shop owner Edward Nassar to death, but Ritter said he would have killed the pawnbroker if Evans had not.
