Watergate Defendant Says Claims Correct Hunt Pleads Guilty To Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Watergate defendant E. Howard Hunt Jr. pleaded guilty today to all of the charges against him and said the prosecution's claim of a wide-scale political espionage operation ordered by top officials of President Nixon's re-election campaign was essentially correct.

U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica, who earlier had refused to accept a guilty plea to a reduced number of charges, accepted the second plea covering all six counts of conspiracy, burglary, bugging and wiretapping against Hunt in connection with last summer's break-in at the Democratic Party's national headquarters here.

In refusing to accept the first plea, Sirica said the government had a strong case on all six counts and that the interest of justice demanded that they all be prosecuted.

Sirica accepted the second plea after Hunt admitted guilt to all of the counts.

This leaves six men, including a former White House consultant and another man who held positions at the White House, the Treasury Department, and in the Nixon campaign, on trial in the Watergate case, which was a major issue in the 1972 presidential campaign.

Hunt, a former CIA agent, was also a former White House consultant for the Nixon administration.

Before the second guilty plea was accepted, Hunt said under questioning from the bench that the prosecution's opening statement outlining a broad operation of political espionage allegedly ordered by top members of President Nixon's re-election campaign was essentially correct.

After accepting the plea, Sirica immediately placed Hunt under $100,000 security bond and he was taken into custody by U.S. marshals while his attorneys tried to raise it.

After a recess the trial resumed without Hunt at the defense table, and testimony began with police photographer Coleman Alpert the first witness.

Sirica gave the jurors no explanation of Hunt's absence except to advise them that they were "no longer to be concerned with the case of the United States against E. Howard Hunt."

Earlier, Hunt had pleaded guilty to three of the six counts against him in the government's indictment, in an understanding with the prosecution that three other counts would be dropped.

However, Sirica refused to accept the first guilty plea, saying the interest of justice demanded that all six counts be pressed.

Flanked by his attorneys, Hunt stood stony-faced before the bench and answered, "Yes, your honor," or "No, your honor," to a series of questions aimed at determining whether the second plea was voluntary.

A request of U.S. Attorney Earl J. Silbert, Sirica added a question as to whether Hunt "accepts the essential accuracy of the facts" in Silbert's opening statement to the jury Wednesday.

"Yes, your honor," Hunt answered in barely audible tones.

The Watergate case gets its name from the fact that the Democratic headquarters were located in the Watergate building complex.

In his questioning, Sirica pressed for more background on the motives and instigation of the alleged conspiracy against the Democrats, asking Hunt "how you got into this."

But defense attorney William O. Bittman said he feared an answer might prejudice the rights of the other defendants still on trial, and Sirica, who has previously expressed concern for getting to the source of the operation.

EXCEPT FOOD, HEALTH

President Abolishes Wage, Price Control

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today abolished mandatory wage-price controls except for the food and health industries and established a self-administering system keyed to government economic standards.

The surprise move—far more sweeping than had been expected—came as Nixon asked Congress for a one year extension of his authority to control wages and prices.

The President abolished the Pay Board and the Price Commission but retained the Cost of Living Council to manage his Phase 3 economic system.

The new program, which immediately replaces the Phase 2 system established in November 1971, "is self-administering and based on voluntary compliance," the White House said. No longer will large businesses and labor unions have to get prior government approval for wage or price hikes—except in "special problem areas" which Nixon listed as food processing and retailing, and the health industry.

The President also continued the present system of looser mandatory controls over construction wage increases and said the present voluntary effort to keep interest rates down would stay in effect.

But for those industries and unions freed today from mandatory controls, the government retains the right to move in with stiff action to roll back unreasonable increases.

Nixon said in a message to Congress that his goal is to reduce the inflation rate to 2.5 per cent or less by the end of 1973. He said his 90-day Phase 1 wage-price freeze and his Phase 2 mandatory controls had cut the inflation rate by nearly half—to about 3.5 per cent.

Nixon's new program abolishes rent controls and is intended to "allow reasonable flexibility" in wage and price increases. Secretary of the Treasury George Shultz told newsmen.

Under Phase 3, a new labor-management advisory committee—with members including top industrialists and such labor leaders as the AFL-CIO's George Meany—will decide whether the current 5.5 per cent ceiling on wages increases should be modified.

That standard remains in effect until the panel meets and the Cost of Living Council decides whether to accept its recommendations.

As a general guide for Phase 3, the White House said price increases should not exceed increases in costs. "Even where costs have increased," a White House summary said, "prices should not be increased if the firm's profit margin exceeds the firm's base-period profit margin."

"Alternatively," the summary added, "a firm may increase prices to reflect increased cost without regard to its profit margin if the firm's average price increases would not exceed 1.5 per cent in a year."

Nixon told Congress the mandatory wage and price control system would be continued "with special vigor for firms involved in food processing and food retailing."

He said he was establishing a government committee to review federal policies affecting food prices and a nongovernment advisory group to examine other ways of stabilizing food prices.

These steps will be coupled, he said, with concentrated efforts to hold down food prices by increasing food supply.

Price Seeks Help For Loss Of Cattle

Rep. Bob Price of Pampa has conferred individually with Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz regarding crop and livestock conditions in the Panhandle in addition to the house agriculture committee meetings with Butz.

The congressman's Washington office said Price alerted the secretary to the possibility of feed shortages in the Texas Panhandle and the need for possible emergency feed and assistance following the heavy snows and freezing temperatures.

Price said he felt the personal conference drew immediate results because the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation

Smith Urges Revision

AUSTIN (AP) — Outgoing Gov. Preston Smith urged the new legislature today to start work immediately on constitutional revision, but he suggested a special session later on public school financing.

Smith made the recommendations in his final speech to the Texas Legislature—a final report on a stewardship of four years which has had its ups and downs, but one which I have confidence will be remembered in future years for the positive accomplishments.

Smith said in summary that he may not have been able to do everything he wanted to do as governor "but I assure you of one thing: I surely did try."

The governor, who will be replaced Jan. 16 when Gov. elect Dolph Briscoe takes the oath of office, said the new legislature "must promptly create a constitutional revision commission (as authorized by voters last November), provide it with ample funds and guide its direction" in preparation for the 1974 Constitutional Convention.

Service assigned personnel late Wednesday to begin a survey of cattle losses in the area.

Price pointed out that current weather conditions have caused heavy death losses to livestock raisers and heavy financial losses to farmers, ranchers and feedlot operators.

"I have alerted the secretary to the very severe problems facing our area and have asked that all necessary assistance be extended," Price assured.

Butz is appearing before the house agriculture committee, of which Price is a member, to discuss curtailment and cutbacks of certain farm programs that vitally affect this area.

vote, but denied his party control in either branch of Congress, and increased by two votes the Democratic margin in the Senate.

The President reads his message in the national returns; predictably, the Democrats read theirs in the congressional outcome.

"If there is one mandate to us above all others, it is to exercise our separate and distinct constitutional role in the operation of the federal government," says Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield.

Despite complaints on Capitol Hill, Nixon is acting to exercise his own mandate in three areas: the war, the budget and the President Releases Idle Land

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stunned by the sharpest rise in farm wholesale prices in 26 years, the Nixon administration has canceled a requirement that farmers must take land from production of wheat in hopes of boosting grain and livestock production this year.

The Agriculture Department announced the move late Wednesday, including a removal of a ban against allowing livestock to graze on idled acres "set aside" under government control programs for wheat and feed grain.

The decision to permit grazing on set-aside acreage was made in order to prevent or alleviate a shortage in the supply of livestock feed, the department said.

Officials disclosed the move after the disclosure on Tuesday by the government that wholesale farm products, including meat and other food products, jumped 6.8 per cent in December.

But the American National Cattlemen's Association, which has been opposed to full-season grazing on idled crop acres, said the action was shortsighted and would not solve the meat situation.

C. W. McMillan, ANCA executive vice president, said in Indianapolis Wednesday night that the announcement was a "stunning surprise" to him.

"It absolutely throws confusion into the whole picture," McMillan said in a telephone interview. "I'm sure it was a reaction to the wholesale price announcement on Tuesday."

McMillan said such action was an attempt at "artificial creation" of more beef and that it would hurt more than help in the long run.

Cancellation of the wheat set-aside requirement means that farmers will not have to idle part of their acreage to qualify for price supports and payments on their 1973 crop. It also could mean that farmers who produce spring-planted wheat will increase their acreage substantially.

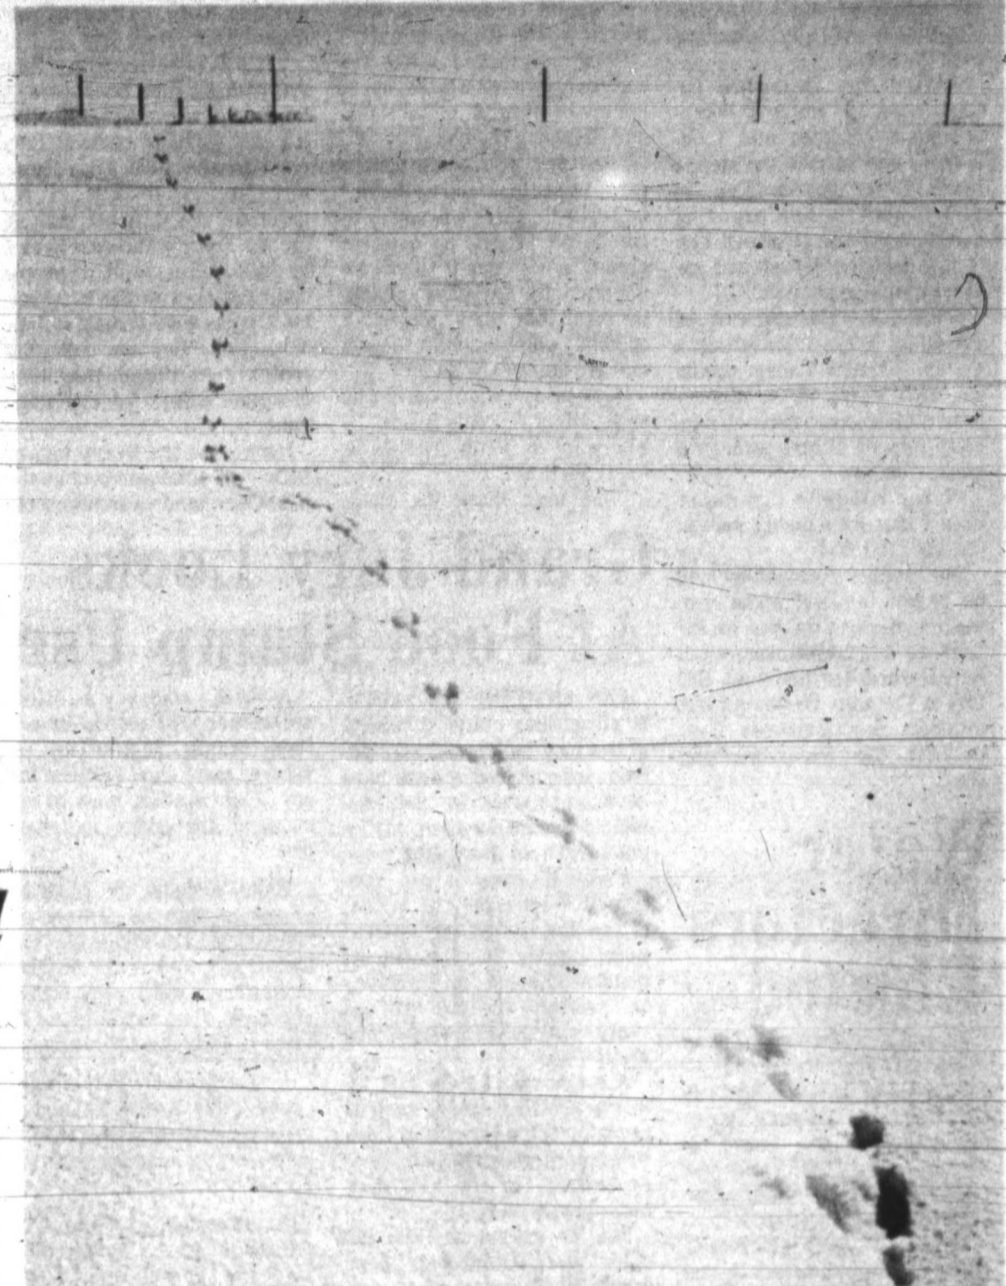

For winter wheat farmers, who planted their crop last fall for harvest next summer, the cancellation means they can plant spring crops such as sorghum, corn, soybeans and oats on their newly activated fields and still qualify for basic benefits under the wheat program.

"I can say to you with complete confidence tonight that we will soon reach agreement on all the issues and bring this long and difficult war to an end."

Fulbright said that while the voters on Nov. 7 "gave the President a decisive mandate for peace along the lines that he had promised it, they also gave a decisive vote of confidence to the Democratic party in Congress and in the stateshouses."

He said the voters clearly intended Congress to exercise its responsibility, in foreign policy and elsewhere.

"This is not the President's war, it is the Congress' war," says Sen. Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon, long a Republican dis-

KEEP ON TRACKIN'—The snow which fell over the past few days left a white blanket covering the area. Rabbits were not the only ones making tracks in the snow. Motorists around town were having problems making tracks to work in the aftermath of the storm which left over five inches of snow in Pampa. But sunshine came out today for the first time in several days, creating its own patterns of beauty.

Shiny Sun Gives Glow To Pampa Area Again

By RAY BAXTER
"Somebody up there likes us."

That was the comment of one local man on the sunshine in the face of the continued snow forecast yesterday and the coffee cup consensus this morning agreed with him.

What was supposed to be a night of gusty winds and large snowflakes drifting deeply turned out to be crisp, cold and starlit.

And the outlook at press time was for continued fair skies and moderating temperatures through Saturday. It is expected to warm up to a high of 22 degrees today.

As Pampans basked in the sunshine, after a low of 3, it was snowing in Houston with freezing rain falling on a number of cities just north of this city.

The Pampa police station had a teletype request from the Houston department requesting weather conditions here.

"People in Houston must be afraid of the snow. Everybody wants to leave town," said the cryptic message from a department swamped by calls.

Snow fell in Corpus Christi this morning—the first significant fall there since 1967.

A wet snow started in Beaumont during the forenoon, and power lines in the Golden Triangle area of Beaumont, Port Arthur and Orange began to snap under the weight of ice or from falling, ice-laden tree limbs. A two-inch snow accumulation was expected in the area.

The first real snow in 13 years fell on Galveston Island. It was mixed with sleet in near freezing temperatures, which were dropping.

San Antonio officially recorded an inch of snow—the first since Feb. 2, 1966, when 3½ inches fell. The National Weather Service's Bob Lindsey commented, "We have a little problem in getting our staff together this morning." In other parts of San Antonio, up to two inches fell.

Many private schools and school systems closed where the snow was heaviest.

The snowfall, hitting hardest at the already white-coated area around Abilene and Sweetwater where unofficial measurements ranged up to 10 inches, added to the accumulations on the ground from Midland to Lubbock and extended all the way across the state.

There was even some snow around Lufkin and Houston, where it is rare.

Mixtures of freezing rain or drizzle, sleet and snow put more ice on roadways and added to travel hazards in most sections south of the snow belt.

One trouble spot early today was on U.S. 90 between Killeen and Lampasas Highway patrolmen estimated 100 cars were stalled near a bridge too slick for use.

League Invitations Mailed

Invitations were mailed out yesterday to mayors, city managers and other Texas Panhandle city officials urging attendance at the Region II Texas Municipal quarterly League meeting in Pampa one week from today.

More than 150 municipal officers and their wives are expected to attend the affair to be hosted by Pampa in the M.K. Brown Memorial Auditorium Heritage Room next Thursday.

A social hour is scheduled at 6:30 p.m. with dinner at 7 p.m. State Senator Max Sherman of Amarillo will be the banquet speaker. He will discuss matters affecting cities in the current session of the Texas Legislature.

Visitors will be taken on a tour of the new auditorium and civic center building and there will be a slide presentation on Pampa's system of city parks.

Mayor John Colquitt of Dalhart, Region II TML president, will preside at the meeting.

Argentine Tornado Kills At Least 46

SAN JUSTO, Argentina (AP) — Rescue teams continued their search today for more victims of the tornado that cut like a giant scythe through this placid farm city.

Forty-six bodies had been found and at least 300 persons were injured. But the death toll was expected to rise.

The twister struck Wednesday afternoon and raged for 15 to 20 minutes, leaving in its wake a path of destruction 200 yards wide across the city of 50,000.

Communications and electricity were cut off and a heavy rain followed the tornado. Rescue teams had to bring in emergency generators and flood lamps.

Police headquarters became a temporary morgue. A dozen bodies of men, women and children were placed on the floor under blankets.

Cars were bowled over like temples as the tornado roared in at 120 miles an hour. One auto was swept down a main avenue and flung through the wall of a downtown hotel.

An estimated 30 per cent of the buildings, mainly one and two-story homes and shops, were damaged or destroyed.

San Justo, a grain belt city 300 miles north of Buenos Aires, was isolated from the rest of the country for nearly two hours.

In one of the first reports that got out a ham radio operator said the storm "struck very hard and fast."

"Many people ran into the street just as the wind hit, trying to find some place secure," he said.

Once word was received and the scope of the tragedy was known, radio and television stations in Santa Fe, the provincial capital 60 miles away, began broadcasting appeals for blood donors, aid teams, doctors and nurses.

The San Justo Hospital was among the buildings hit hard. Ambulances, buses and cars transferred the more seriously injured to Santa Fe.

Chamber Group To Discuss Goals

A meeting of the Civic Improvements Committee of the Chamber of Commerce has been called for 10 a.m., Jan. 18, by Roy Sparkman, chairman.

Sparkman said the 24-man committee will review and discuss goals for 1973.

The committee chairman also urged that committee members give advance thought to both short and long range projects which the committee might sponsor for a better Pampa.

Members of the committee include Milo Carlson, Arthur Aftergut, Crawford Atkinson, Harold Barrett, D.W. Bond Jr., Don Cain, Bob Carmichael, Charles B. Cook, G.B. Cree Jr., Tex DeWeese.

Clinton Evans, E.L. Green Jr., Don R. Lane, James F. Malone, Jim Nation, Hugh Peoples, Vic Raymond, Price Smith, Gene Steel, I.W. Tinney, Floyd Watson, R.D. Wilkerson and Mack Wofford.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reduced to basic terms, the mandate of a man who wins an election is what he says it is—for as long as he can make it stick.

And that is a key to the dispute now building between President Nixon and the Democratic Congress.

The controversy is cast in constitutional terms by the leaders of Congress, who contend that the White House is usurping legislative powers.

But the backdrop is political. The question is what the voters were saying when they re-elected a Republican president with nearly 61 per cent of the

Bomber Balks At Mass Destruction

SAIGON (AP) — The B52 commander who balked at bombing North Vietnam after his 17th mission said today he refused because "the goals do not justify the mass destruction and killing."

"It was not specifically the bombing of the North," said Capt. Michael J. Heck, 30, of Chula Vista, Calif., in an interview. "There is enough suffering just in South Vietnam to warrant a discontinuation of the war. But the massive bombing of the North might have been the last straw and I think the step that specifically pushed me over the brink."

"After the cease-fire for Christmas, the massive bombardments resumed and I decided I had to take the step. I reached the decision Dec. 26 and I went to see my wing commander and informed him of my decision. He advised me to seek legal assistance."

Heck, a 1964 alumnus of President Nixon's Quaker alma mater, Whittier College, could get two years in a military prison if a court-martial convicts him of failure to obey a general order.

"I can live with that easier than I can with taking part in the war," he said.

"I came to the decision," he said, "that any war creates an evil far greater than anything it is trying to prevent, whatever the reasons, even for the self-determination of South Vietnam. The goals do not justify the mass destruction and killing. It's torn our own country apart."

Heck said he has applied for noncombat status as a conscientious objector. Meanwhile, he is assigned to administrative duties at his base in southern Thailand while undergoing investigation to determine whether he will be brought to trial.

Heck was asked about the controversy over whether civilian areas were hit in the Hanoi and Haiphong regions.

"Anytime you bomb on the massive scale we did up there," he replied, "there's bound to be bombs off target, no question about it. I don't think we intentionally targeted civilian targets, but they inevitably become unintentional targets that are going to be hit."

Heck said he was disturbed by those pilots — "only a few" — who want to bomb civilians in North Vietnam.

"One man made the statement that he wanted to hit civilian targets in the North because it made him feel good to hurt them," Heck said. "That's the quote. But this is not typical. Most people here don't like what they are doing, but they follow orders."

A spokesman for the Strategic Air Command in Omaha, Neb., said Heck is "the first and only" B52 crew member to face a charge of "alleged failure to obey an order to fly a combat mission in Southeast Asia."

Asked if other pilots had called him "chicken" or shunned him, Heck said: "It's very surprising how sympathetic most people are. A lot don't agree with me. A lot do, but for various reasons they can't do what I did. I don't have any family (outside of my parents) and I'm not making the Air Force a career. I have a lot less to lose. A lot of people don't agree with the bombing, but they honestly feel it is their duty, and they are following orders even though they may disagree. Even I did it for some time."

Heck said the heavy loss of B52s — 16 acknowledged by the U.S. Command with more than 100 airmen killed, captured or missing — "made a lot of people think whether it was worthwhile." Prior to the start of the blitz against Hanoi and Haiphong Dec. 18, only one B52 had been shot down in seven and one-half years.

Flying over the less well defended areas prior to the shift in targets last month, there was not much feeling about what they were doing, Heck went on.

"No matter how you felt then, pro or antiwar, there was a numbness about it. You'd go through the motions of a mission. There was no emotional involvement, no feeling on the part of anyone when the bombs were released. It was like training missions."

"You walk by the trailers now and you see them putting the personal effects into a box. Almost everyone had somebody they knew missing. Nobody wants to go up there. There may be a very few who do, but I don't know them."

"I can't really say it caused a morale problem but it made people think more. It brought a sense of emotion into the mission."

Asked if he had become afraid of flying, Heck replied, "Not really." He said that if he had, he could have applied to be grounded under "fear of flying" provisions and thus avoided facing a court-martial.

Heck said he has written his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Heck of Chula Vista, and his brother, Tim, a high school teacher in Maxwell, Calif., about the step he had taken. He said he had not heard from his parents but his brother had written fully supporting him.

His decorations include the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Air Medal with 10 Oak Leaf Clusters and two Presidential Unit Citations.

DISPLEASES SOCIALISTS Brandt Appeases Nixon, Pompidou

BONN, Germany (AP) — In two recent decisions Chancellor Willy Brandt apparently put the U.S. and French governments ahead of his fellow Socialists.

The decisions were to say nothing about the U.S. bombing of Hanoi and Haiphong and to stay away from the international Socialist congress in Paris this weekend.

Both decisions by the vacationing Brandt, due back from the Canary Islands on Friday, stirred some protests at home.

Both decisions were seen in Bonn as an attempt to avoid friction with the United States and France. Brandt needs their continued support for his foreign policies, observers agree.

Some commentators said Brandt feared criticism by him of the bombing would add momentum to pressure in the U.S. Congress for the withdrawal of American troops from Germany, something Brandt opposes.

And going to the Socialist meeting in Paris would undoubtedly have hurt Brandt's ties with President Georges Pompidou, who on Tuesday charged that the meeting was a leftist attempt to influence the French National Assembly election in March.

Brandt attended the Socialist International meeting in Vienna last year. The Paris meeting is to be attended by Premier Golda Meir and the Socialist Premiers of Sweden, Denmark, Norway and Austria. The French leftists are already running ahead of Pompidou's Gaullists in public opinion polls, and the president fears the presence of such Socialist stars

Land Bank Association Announces Record Year

J.E. Gunn, manager of the Spearman-Pampa Federal Land Bank Association of Pampa, announced today that the Federal Land Bank of Houston closed 3,701 loans for more than $184 million during 1972.

"This has been a record year for new loan business and represents an increase of more than 60 per cent over 1971, which was the largest year in the bank's 54-year history," Gunn stated.

"A number of factors account for this substantial increase in volume of new loans," he added. "Probably the greatest factor was the new lending authorities made possible by the Farm Credit Act of 1971, which was implemented this year," he added.

Gunn also reported that the interest in buying farm and ranch land sharply increased during the year.

"This interest covered all facets of Texas agriculture, the part-time farm and the farm and ranch units, both large and small," he said.

The Spearman-Pampa Federal Land Bank Association, which serves Hansford, Hutchinson, Gray, Roberts and Hemphill Counties, closed 32 loans for $1,949,966.

Tyler Decides To Hire Guards

TYLER, Tex. (AP) — With the threat of a $1,000 a day fine hanging over their heads, the Tyler city commissioners reluctantly voted Wednesday to hire security guards for Pounds Field, the city's airport.

Last Friday, the commission voted not to hire a guard as stipulated in new national anti-skyjack rules. The field has five airline flights daily. Commissioners contended at the time that it was an airline function to supply guards, not the city's.

The Federal Aviation Administration announced Tuesday it was fining Tyler and three other cities $1,000 a day retroactive to last Sunday for failure to provide guards.

City Manager Ed Wagener called an emergency meeting Wednesday in which the commissioners voted 4-0 to hire a security man at an estimated cost of about $1,000 a month.

City Atty. Jack Skeen Jr. said the city will seek to reduce fines already assessed.

Also fined were Aspen, Colo.; Prescott, Ariz.; and Marquette, Mich.

Grand Jury Looks At Food Stamp Use

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — If allegations made in federal grand jury indictments here are true, federal food stamps have been negotiable in San Antonio's barrios for cash, car repairs and even marijuana.

Federal prosecutors confirmed Wednesday the arrests of the last three persons who were among 18 San Antonio residents named last Thursday in sealed indictments on charges of violating food stamp regulations.

A spokesman for the U.S. attorney's office said a pattern revealed in the indictments was that food stamps allegedly were exchanged for one-half their face value in cash.

But the indictments claimed other interesting deals were made.

Ramiro Mata, identified as the owner of Rams Paint and Body Shop, is alleged in a four-count indictment to have accepted $300 in food stamps for repairing and painting a car, another $300 in food stamps for a used car, $250 in food stamps for a minibike and an additional $300 in food stamps for $150 in cash.

At the time of the first arrests, Sessions said the number of violations uncovered by the investigations "indicates that illegal exchanges of food stamps had become widespread in the San Antonio area."

Water Directors Elected

Fred S. Vanderburg of Gray County, and Raymond C. Blodgett and James B. McCray of Carson County were reelected to the board of directors of the Panhandle Ground Water Conservation District in balloting Jan. 9.

McCray is from precinct 2, Blodgett from precinct 3 and Vanderburg from precinct 4. All ran unopposed.

Vanderburg, who is president of the board, will start his 17th year with the district. He has served on the board since its organization in 1956.

Article 7880-29 states the following in regard to Declaring the Results of the Election:

"The directors shall meet and canvass the returns on an election at any time not less than five full days thereafter nor more than seven days thereafter, provided if same cannot be canvassed within seven days same shall be done as soon thereafter as possible."

Article 7880-42 states:

"The directors shall hold regular meetings at the office of the district on the first Monday in February, May, August and November of each year at 10 a.m., and may meet at such other times as the business of the district may require."

Social Seminar Planned

Don Loshier, chairman of the board of Suicide Prevention Crisis Information of Pampa, Inc., and Rev. Martin Hager, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Pampa, will teach an adult education series entitled "Social Seminar: Parent-Child Relations."

The course will be taught in three terms of six hours each at a cost of $4 per term. The first term will be held successive Monday, Jan. 15-29 from 7 to 9 p.m. at Pampa High School. The second term will be from Feb. 5-19, and the third, March 5-19.

The course concerns itself with ways in which constructive communication can be opened up between parent and child. Through the use of special films available from the National Mental Health Institute, class members will be able to "workthrough" specific case histories involving drug abuse, the loss of family structure, and the isolation of a teenager from his family and friends.

The social seminar will begin Monday, Jan. 15, by considering the factors involved in alienation of youth through the use of discussion and the film "Brian at Seventeen," a case history.

Hughes Pleased With Decision

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An aide to Howard Hughes says the industrialist is pleased about a Supreme Court ruling dismissing Trans World Airlines' $145.4 million judgment against his company in a lawsuit filed 12 years ago.

Hughes is in London, where he has been living since leaving Managua in the wake of the Nicaraguan earthquake.

In a 6-2 decision Wednesday, the court upset the judgment, which had grown to almost $175 million with interest.

Writing for the majority, Justice William O. Douglas said the Hughes Tool Co. transactions challenged by TWA as antitrust violations were immune from antitrust action since they were approved by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Hughes Tool had been accused of using its control illegally while owning 78 per cent of TWA to establish itself as a supplier to other airlines and failing to acquire an adequate jet fleet for TWA.

The suit was never tried in court since TWA was granted a default judgment in May 1963 after Hughes refused to appear for a pretrial deposition.

Police Holding Theft Suspect

Pampa police have a 59-year old New Mexico man in custody as a suspect in the theft of a car at Gallup, N. M. They are awaiting word from authorities in that city.

Officers on patrol found the vehicle parked on West Brown St. Tuesday night and followed tracks to a West Wilks St. address. Checking the address later, officers contacted the suspect, who accompanied them to the police station.

Police said he told them the owner loaned him the car to go into downtown Gallup and he came to Pampa instead.

Police Holding Theft Suspect

Pampa police have a 59-year old New Mexico man in custody as a suspect in the theft of a car at Gallup, N. M. They are awaiting word from authorities in that city.

Officers on patrol found the vehicle parked on West Brown St. Tuesday night and followed tracks to a West Wilks St. address. Checking the address later, officers contacted the suspect, who accompanied them to the police station.

Police said he told them the owner loaned him the car to go into downtown Gallup and he came to Pampa instead.

Council Sets Attack On Organized Crime

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Criminal Justice Council said Wednesday it will spend more than $1 million in 1973 to ferret out organized criminal activities, ranging from bookie joints to corrupt public officials.

The anti-organized crime program was part of the council's "Criminal Justice Plan for Texas" issued by Gov. Preston Smith and council director Joe Frazier Brown.

Smith said the plan, if carried out, would cut Texas' crime rate by 10 per cent over the next five years.

The funds come largely from federal money allocated to Texas under the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968.

"Intelligence reports from local law enforcement agencies, the Department of Public Safety and out of state sources indicate that organized crime exists to some degree in all major communities in Texas," the report said.

Organized criminal activities operating in Texas communities were identified as illegal gambling, illegal drug traffic, loan sharking, labor racketeering, auto theft, prostitution and pornography.

"The perpetrators of these activities have been identified as members of organized criminal groups with at least part of their activities being directed by a national crime confederation," the report said.

"The inability of the components of the criminal justice system to deal effectively with organized crime has permitted these racketeers to derive millions of dollars each year from the sale of illegal goods and services to a large minority of the minority of the citizens of this state."

Lack of awareness of organized crime was scored as one of the major problems in attacking it.

"The general lack of public information concerning the extent and significance of organized crime in Texas is exemplified by the fact that thousands of otherwise good citizens patronize bookies who are known to be extensions of the national crime confederation," the report said.

The council also called for creation of a statewide investigative agency with subpoena authority, such as a state grand jury, and for statewide prosecution authority for the attorney general.

Prosecuting power and subpoena authority now is vested in local grand juries and district attorneys.

Company Denies Violation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Securities and Exchange Commission says a company headed by President Nixon's nominee to be deputy secretary of defense did not violate SEC rules by failing to report involvement in a civil suit alleging conspiracy and fraud.

The SEC finding issued Wednesday apparently opened the way for Senate Armed Services Committee consideration today of the nomination of Dallas oilman William P. Clements Jr. for the No. 2 Pentagon job.

SEC Chairman William J. Casey said Wednesday that, although the suit seeks $5 million in damages from Clements and three business associates, the company itself, Sedco, Inc., of Dallas, Tex., is being sued for about $1 million.

Casey said this is less than 15 per cent of Sedco's assets at the time the suit was filed and thus the oil-drilling concern is not required to mention it in periodic reports filed with the SEC.

Casey reported the agency's findings in a letter to Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who last month asked the SEC to learn whether Sedco reported the pending litigation as required by SEC rules.

Wombat Bounty

The wombat, an Australian creature that butts like a goat, shuffles like a bear and cuddles like a kitten, has a price on its head. Some estimates place the wombat population at 2,000,000.

Rodeo Directors To Make Plans

Directors of the Top O' Texas Rodeo Association will meet at 7:30 p.m. today in the Chamber of Commerce office.

The purpose of the meeting is to discuss details for the 1973 rodeo, slated for Aug. 1 through Aug. 4, Bill McIntire, president, said.

At tonight's meeting, the directors will set up committees and make assignments in preparation for the annual event.

All directors are urged to attend this meeting, McIntire said.

New Filing Requirement For Dependents

By RAY DE CRANE
(Third in a Series.)

Several million students and others under the age of 19 who will be claimed as dependents on their parents' tax return will be compelled to file their own tax return this year.

They will meet this filing requirement if they had $750 or more in gross income for 1972 which included any interest, taxable dividends or any other form of unearned income. This must be done despite the fact that the tax tables for single people show no tax is due until income passes the $2,050 mark.

In closing a tax loophole for a few million, here is the background of the situation:

The Tax Reform Act of 1969 introduced the concept of low income allowance, a device which was designed to lighten the tax burden of those at or below the poverty level.

It helped the needy. But it also created a tax-saving device for the wealthy.

In 1971 a low income allowance of $1,050 combined with a personal exemption of $675 made it possible for a single person to have total income from any source of as much as $1,725 without owing any tax.

If these single persons were under 19 or were students receiving their chief support from their parents, they not only paid no tax on this income, they were not even required to file a tax return. And their parents received a dependency exemption for them.

What started out as a relief measure for the needy became a bonanza for the rich.

Changes in the tax law last year opened this loophole even wider—until Congress slammed it shut. The low income allowance was raised last year to $1,300. The personal exemption was hiked to $750. These two facts added together would have made it possible for well-heeled youngsters to receive as much as $2,050 in dividends and interest without paying a tax.

Plugging this loophole for the wealthy requires the filing of returns by all the others who have any dividend, interest or other unearned income even though for most of them no tax will be due. In filing their return they must use Form 1040, they can't use the Short Form, and they cannot use the tax tables. They must compute their tax in a special way explained below.

Here is how a college student, 20 years old, with $1,400 in summertime and after-school earnings and with $20 in interest credited to his savings account will complete Page 2 of his Form 1040, if his parents are claiming him as a dependent on their tax return. He will turn to this page immediately after making his entry on Line 17 of Form 1040, the all-important adjusted gross income figure.

If he does not itemize his deductions (most young people do not) he must ignore the printed instructions on Line 52b and take as his standard deduction on Line 52 either: (1) 15 per cent of the earned income as shown on Line 17, but not more than $2,000; or, (2) his earned income or $1,300, whichever is smaller. (Note that the $2,000 and $1,300 maximums cited above are halved if this is a separate return of a married couple.)

In our student's case he elects Option 2 and enters on Line 52 the $1,300 low income allowance. This leaves a balance of $120 on Line 53 which is immediately wiped out on Line 54 by his personal exemption of $750. He has no taxable income remaining on Line 55 and, of course, owes no tax.

Now let's see how the same rules work for the wealthy student who reports the same income of $1,420, but who earned only $20 and had $1,400 in taxable dividends and interest.

His best option for Line 52 is also No. 2, but in his case it permits a standard deduction of only $20—his earned income. Now after taking his personal exemption of $750, he still has a taxable income of $650.

The tax on that is $70 plus 15 per cent on the amount over $500, for a total tax of $92.50.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Sam is wise in steering the thoughts of his class toward Heaven. For most young folks never think about dying! Nor have they evolved a dynamic concept of the Hereafter! Discuss the ideas below. And use that "Bible Booklet" to whet their interest!

CASE V-906: Sam S., aged 24, teaches a Sunday School class. "Dr. Crane," he began, "I've read your dynamic concept of heaven, as printed in your farewell to your oldest son, who died in his jet plane. 'So I decided to let my class of high school boys study it. 'And they seemed delighted. 'For most young people never expect to die! 'So they seldom think ahead to consider what may occur after this life. 'Dr. Crane, don't you think it helps young people to have at least a rough idea of what to expect in the Hereafter?'"

BLUEPRINT OF HEAVEN

Yes; I am sure boys and girls with a questioning type of mind, will enjoy peering into the future. The American Indians thus evolved their concept of heaven as being a "Happy Hunting Grounds."

The Japanese likewise figured that they would be rewarded in the next world.

Many Christians, as evidenced in church hymns, seem to feel there will be no work nor sorrow nor disease nor unhappiness in Heaven.

"But all sunshine makes a desert!" runs an old adage. So my personal belief is that we will face a continuity of problems, maybe at a little higher plane than those we leave back here on Earth.

Indeed, I believe that the residents of Heaven will enjoy eating and fishing and other wholesome recreation, to balance their new workaday duties in the Great Beyond.

For Jesus seemed to relish dinner parties, as at the home of Mary, Martha and Lazarus. And given after his resurrection from the grave, you Bible scholars will recall that when Christ couldn't convince his despondent 11 Apostles, as to his identity, what was the clincher strategy that did it?

"Have ye anything to eat?" he asked. The Bible says they gave Jesus a fish and a honeycomb.

After which he did eat in their sight; then they knew him! If Christ would thus eat food down here on Earth, following his resurrection, then it seems plausible that he would relish food in the Hereafter, doesn't it? But Jesus warned that we must have a visa to get into Heaven. In Matthew 10:32, he thus tells us:

"Whoever therefore shall confess me before men, him will I confess also before my Father which is in heaven."

And that was such a vital rule, that Christ stated it a second time, but in the negative, for Verse 33 says:

"But whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father which is in heaven."

Apparently good works and even a tacit assent to Christ's Divinity are not enough.

It requires an active confession BEFORE MEN, to get past the Pearly Gates!

Even in politics, otherwise good citizens cannot vote unless they REGISTER.

And fraternal orders, like the Masonic and Knights of Columbus, do not admit members until they stand up before their peers.

So warn young people that we can't drift into Heaven!

So send for my booklet, "How To Stimulate Bible Reading," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

It contains 120 dramatic + answer problems and other interesting Bible tests!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Soviets Lock Up Jewish Activists

MOSCOW (AP) — Whenever the Soviet Union stages a big political celebration, a major summit conference or a Communist party congress, many of the country's Jewish activists can expect to be locked up for the occasion.

Jews say they are often kept in provincial jails, forced to sleep on concrete floors without blankets and denied toilet articles, medical attention, legal consultation or even access to a telephone.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Thursday, Jan. 11, the 11th day of 1973. There are 354 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1943, during World War II, the United States and Britain relinquished extraterritorial rights in China.

On this date: In 1569, the first lottery in England was drawn in St. Paul's Cathedral under the patronage of Queen Elizabeth I.

In 1962, an avalanche buried a village in the Andes in Peru, and 3,000 persons were reported killed.

Ten years ago: The United States and the Soviet Union began a round of talks in New York on a possible treaty limiting nuclear tests.

Five years ago: Israel and Egypt reached an accord to exchange prisoners of war under auspices of the International Red Cross.

One year ago: The new state of Bangladesh was recognized by East Germany.

Today's birthday: Writer Alan Paton is 70.

Thought for today: I like work. It fascinates me. I can sit and look at it for hours.—Jerome K. Jerome: English humorist, 1859-1927.

Sometimes police or court records don't show the Jews were locked up. Detention for more than 10 days without charges is illegal in the Soviet Union, so the secret police do not record the detentions.

The latest roundup of dissident Jews occurred shortly before the Dec. 21-30 celebrations marking the 50th anniversary of the formation of the Soviet Union.

Russian leaders repeatedly stressed during those days that the Soviet Union is one big happy "multinational family."

They apparently feared a group of Jews agitating to emigrate to Israel might dampen the festivities and give visiting dignitaries a bad impression.

About 60 Jews from seven cities were rounded up in Moscow and put away until the celebration was over. After their release a few days ago, they issued a typewritten account of the detentions.

Agents of the KGB, the Soviet secret police, roused 11 Moscow Jews from bed one morning, the report said, took them to a police station and later farmed them out to cities as much as 80 miles away.

When they protested, the Jews said, officials at one jail told them: "You can lodge your complaints when you get out," or, "Yes, we're breaking the law, but we've got our orders."

After 10 days with no charges brought, some of the Jews protested, the account said, they were put into separate "punishment cells"—some of them one yard by one yard.

More than 40 Jews from other cities were rounded up Dec. 18 when they went to the reception bureau of the Supreme Soviet to appeal for exit visas to Israel. A few others were taken into custody on the street or at work.

Most of this group appeared before magistrates' courts and were sentenced to 15 days detention on charges of "petty hooliganism" or "violation of public order." Their detentions were legal, but the Jews say the charges were trumped up.

Out-of-town Jews arrested at the Supreme Soviet were escorted back to their home towns under armed guard, and most were sentenced to 15 days' detention there, Jewish sources reported.

Some Moscow Jews who served their time at a city jail said they were denied bedding and such toilet articles as soap and toothpaste, and got warm food only once every other day.

Similar conditions prevailed in jails in Leningrad and the Ukrainian cities of Kiev and Kharkov. Jews who were sentenced there, Jewish sources reported.

Police Officials Look At Drug Handling

Associated Press Writer
The recently reported disappearance of several hundred pounds of illicit narcotics from police storage areas in New York City has caused officials in other areas to take a fresh look at their own methods of handling confiscated drugs.

An Associated Press survey of half a dozen major cities showed that authorities rely on sealed envelopes and complex reporting procedures to make sure that drugs seized by police do not vanish.

The situation in Newark, N.J. is typical.

A patrolman who makes a drug seizure brings the evidence to his precinct post and fills out a form — with four carbons — reporting the details. The form goes in a special mailbox at the precinct.

The next day, a representative of the police property department picks up the evidence and examines it in the presence of the desk lieutenant to make sure it conforms to the written report. The desk lieutenant gets a carbon of the patrolman's report.

Next the confiscated narcotics are analyzed by police chemists, put in a wax-sealed package and stored in the police property room adjacent to headquarters.

The drugs are held until requested by the court for use as evidence. The police property clerk personally takes the drugs to court and returns them to the storage room where they are held until a convicted defendant has served his sentence or until a superior court judge decides they are no longer needed.

About twice a year drugs are burned in a special incinerator under the supervision of representatives of the police property department, the prosecutor's office and the judge.

"It's as fine a set-up as you can find," said Capt. John Gavarny, who is in charge of the property room. He estimated that drugs with a street value of $2.5 million were seized last year. There were no reports of any thefts from the storage places.

Police in Detroit are investigating reports of possible drug trafficking by officers. One patrolman was suspended when a small amount of marijuana was found in his possession when police raided the inventory property room at the city's 10th precinct on Dec. 8.

Narcotics contraband is stored at six locations in New York City. Police are still investigating the disappearance of 131 pounds of cocaine and 168 pounds of heroin — including 80 pounds seized in the 1967 "French Connection" case.

The New York reports prompted a thorough review of storage procedures in Los Angeles, a spokesman there said. He said there was no evidence that any narcotics had disappeared and described the city's system for keeping contraband drugs as "almost fool-proof."

San Francisco police store drugs in a walk-in vault with an alarm in the Hall of Justice. Access is limited to the head criminologist and police chemists.

The Gateway Arch in St. Louis, Mo., is 630 feet high.

SHIPPER SAYS

US Needs To Build Ports To Accommodate Tankers

HOUSTON (AP) — Despite environmental hazards, the United States must build ports to accommodate giant supertankers or pay a heavy price for foreign oil, a shipping executive told an environmental group here this week.

J. W. Hershey, board chairman of American Commercial Line, said without such supertankers calling at U.S. ports, the nation will be forced to pay $1.86 billion a year in extra transportation costs by 1985.

He told the Citizens Environmental Coalition that by 1985 it is estimated the United States will be importing 1.7 million tons of oil a day from the Persian Gulf. Supertankers can carry oil for $3 less per ton than the smaller tankers which can call at existing U.S. ports, he said.

Damaging oil spills are possible from the giant tankers, which now approach 500,000 tons in size, Hershey conceded. He also said they are less maneuverable than smaller tankers, adding that a 16,000-ton tanker can stop in half a mile while a 200,000-ton ship needs 2.5 miles.

An offsetting

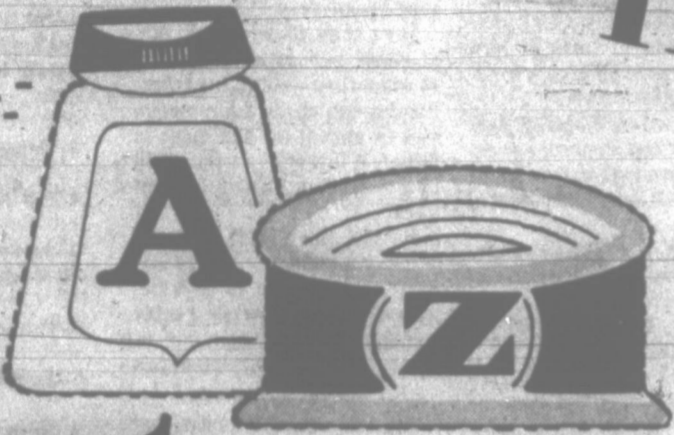

consideration, he said, "is the harbor and channel congestion resulting from the movement of such a vast quantity of petroleum in smaller ships with many more opportunities for spills in overfilling tanks, connecting hoses, berthing and so on."

It's That Old Abominable Snowman Coming Out Again

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — An American expedition camped at 12,500 feet in the snow of a Himalayan valley discovered ape-like footprints close to one of the tents, and Sherpa guides identified them as those of the Abominable Snowman.

The prints, almost nine inches long and nearly five inches wide with a rounded heel, were found Dec. 20 by Dr. Howard Emery, 34, a Los Angeles physician and zoologist, and Ted Cronin, 27, an ornithologist from Wilmington, Del.

Zoologist Jeffrey A. McNeely, 28, of Los Angeles, a Peace Corps volunteer based in Thailand, made three plaster casts of the prints and deposited them with the American Embassy in Katmandu.

McNeely said he and the others followed the tracks in six inches of fresh snow for just over half a mile before they disappeared in a thicket.

"The first toe was the largest one, positioned somewhat lower on the foot than the other four," he reported. He said the prints resembled those of a mountain gorilla found among the peaks of central Africa.

McNeely said in a report to the Nepalese Foreign Ministry: "They seem to be the tracks of a primate. However, the footprints are considerably larger than those of any monkey and are much wider in relation to the length than are tracks of monkeys.

"It seems quite clear that the tracks belong to an animal which is still unknown to science."

However, McNeely said he didn't think there was anything new about the footprints.

"Many others had already discovered them," he said, "so it does not give any new evidence for the discovery of Yeti," the name given to the creature by the Sherpas.

Killed Sniper Left Navy Hating 'White Folks'

EMPORIA, Kan. (AP) — Mark J. Essex's hometown minister says the young black identified as a sniper killed in New Orleans hated whites. But the local police chief says there's no evidence here that Essex was connected with militant racial groups.

The Rev. W. A. Chambers, pastor of St. James Baptist Church who baptized Essex, says "he always got along fine as a boy. But something happened when he went into the Navy."

When Essex left the Navy nearly three years ago after serving 13 months he came home "hating white folks," the Rev. Mr. Chambers added.

Essex, 23, was identified as the young sniper killed by police Sunday in the bizarre New Orleans hotel shooting spree which left six other persons dead and 17 injured.

Authorities in New Orleans are not certain whether Essex acted alone or if more than one sniper was involved.

Merle Hayes, the police chief in this city of 19,000, said Tuesday that "we have no evidence to support" speculation that Essex was associated with militant groups.

John Collier, one of Essex's friends who went with him to New Orleans about six months ago, agreed. Asked if Essex was a member of the Black Muslims, Collier said: "No. I know he wasn't associated with them. He didn't believe in them."

Collier said he returned to Kansas City, but Essex found a job and remained in New Orleans.

Chief Hayes said Essex had only two minor traffic violations on his record in Emporia. He had another speeding violation in Pittsburg, where he attended Kansas State Teachers College for one semester before entering the Navy.

The Rev. Mr. Chambers, speaking from a Topeka hospital where he is a patient, said he tried to work with Essex on his new-found hatred for whites when he returned home from the Navy.

The Rev. Mr. Chambers said "His mother tried to talk to him, too, but he just wouldn't listen. He just hated white folks."

The Essex family — the parents, a daughter and three other sons — were reported in seclusion.

The minister's wife said Essex "came home from the Navy and he couldn't keep a job. He couldn't stand taking orders from white people."

Essex enlisted in the Navy here Jan. 13, 1969. A Navy spokesman in Washington said he was given a general discharge for unsuitability Feb. 10, 1970. "A discharge of this type"

the spokesman said, involves "character and behavior disorders."

Chief Hayes said the family had "reacted like any family would in a similar situation. Of course they were shocked and I think the community has a responsibility to help them recover from this."

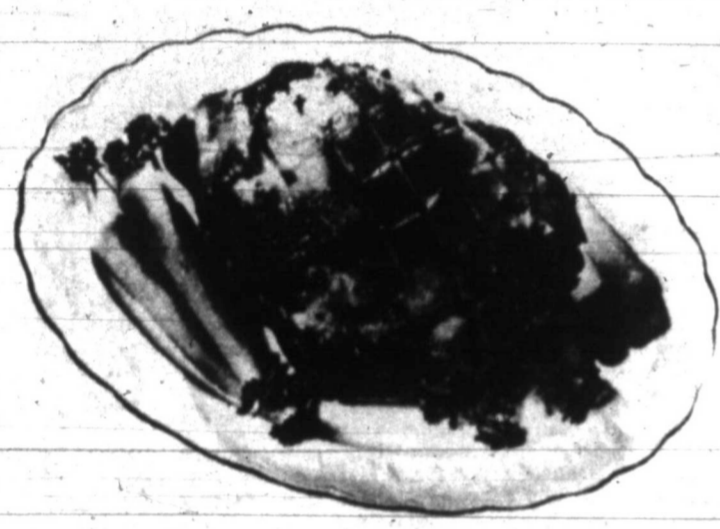

Friends describe the youth's father as a hard worker all his life — much of that as a foreman at Fanestil Packing Co., where his son worked twice for brief periods.

First and only child of a president to be born in the White House was Esther Cleveland, daughter of Grover Cleveland, born in 1893.

Patton-Clark Vows Said In Double-Ring Ceremony

Nuptial vows were exchanged by Teresa Jan Patton and Johnnie Ray Clark, 1200 E. Foster, Thursday, Dec. 21, at 7 p.m. in Lamar Full Gospel Church of Pampa.

The bride is the niece of Mr. and Mrs. Loe D. Box, 721 E. Francis and the bridegroom is the son of Carlton A. Clark and the late Mrs. Clark of Wichita Falls.

THE CEREMONY

Rev. Gene Allen, pastor, officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Mrs. Jean Allen, organist, played the processional and recessional and pianist, Mark Box, cousin of the bride, accompanied Miss Kathy Gray as she sang, "I Do," and "We've Only Just Begun." He also played, "More," "The Shadow of Your Smile," and the theme from "Skyjacked."

The church was decorated with two brass candelabra entwined with holly, greenery and two baskets of white gladioli and red carnations. Family pews were marked with aisle candles, clusters of white pom poms and red and white streamers.

THE BRIDE

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, with the "her aunt and I avowal." She was attired in a formal gown of nylon over soft bridal tulle, fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and empire waistline. The neckline and long full sleeves were accented with tiny seed pearls and an over lay of bridal lace. The floor-length skirt, highlighted with front panels, trimmed with tiny white satin bows and seed pearls, extended to a cathedral train.

Her three-tiered mandilla of bridal illusion fell from a cluster of baby's breath and tiny seed pearls. She carried a cascade of white pixie carnations, red sweetheart roses, holly leaves and white streamers.

The bride wore the traditional blue garter, a penny in her shoe and carried a handkerchief belonging to her maternal grandmother. She wore diamond earrings, a gift of the bridegroom. The bride presented a red rose to her aunt and to the bridegroom's aunt.

ATTENDANTS

Miss Mary Anne Greene was maid of honor and Miss Lecresia Howard, McLean, and Miss Tammy Chumley, cousin of the bride, Roswell, N.M., served as bridesmaids. They wore identical floor-length, empire gowns of red crepe styled with long sleeves ending in wide cuffs and red pearl buttons. Deep red velvet bows were tied at the front waistlines and fell to the hemlines of the gowns. Each carried a cascade of white chrysanthemums with holly leaves.

Jimmie Don Clark, Pampa, served his twin brother as best man. Groomsman were David Carruth, of Oklahoma City, and Dwayne Glover of Norman, Okla. Kurt Kurfman and Frank Skidmore, both of Pampa were ushers.

Doretta Bruce was flower girl wearing a white crepe empire dress accented with red velvet ribbon which fell to the hemline. She carried a red and white basket holding red and white petals. Michael Andrew Arnett, brother of the bride, served as ringbearer, carrying a dove shaped handmade pillow, belonging to Mrs. Charles Rithaler of Pampa.

AUNTS

The aunt of the bride wore a formal-length gown of burgundy chiffon and a corsage of tiny pink roses. The bridegroom's aunt wore a beige, double knit dress with matching accessories. Her corsage was tiny yellow roses. Grandmothers of the couple were honored with white carnation corsages.

RECEPTION

For the reception in the church youth chapel, the bride's table was covered with a red linen cloth and centered with a five-tiered candelabra with white mums, red carnations and Christmas holly. White milk-glass appointments completed the setting.

The three-tiered divided Italian Riviera cake, marbled with white and red, was decorated with white roses and clusters of sweetpeas trimmed with red satin leaves and topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom.

Mrs. June Thurman assisted at the punch bowl and coffee service, and Mrs. Patsy Schmitta, cousin of the bride, served the cake. Guests were registered by Mrs. Carol Clark, sister-in-law of the bridegroom.

For the wedding trip to Lubbock, the bride wore an old-fashioned black and white dotted palazzo pantsuit. She lifted the rose corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will reside at 1200 E. Foster, Pampa.

AFFILIATIONS

The bride is a senior student at Pampa High School and will graduate in May. She attends Pampa College of Hairdressing in the summer.

The bridegroom is a 1971 graduate of PHS and is employed by Cabot Corp.

PRE-NUPTIAL EVENTS

The bride was honored with a wedding shower hosted by members of Lamar Full Gospel.

She was guest of honor at a lingerie shower hosted by Mary Anna Greene, Kathy Gray, Susan Rice and Pat Slocot.

Your Horoscope

By Jean Dixon

FRIDAY, JAN. 22

Your birthday today: Relationships either become much closer, or dissipate abruptly. You may not have much choice in this area. Today's natives tend toward mysticism, serious attitudes, and the impracticality of being ahead of their time.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Workmates are unlikely to be eager to close the week's routines completely. Romantic urges grindle into passing pleasures.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Being serious is not the most popular approach, although what you do is being taken that way.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Put your community's welfare above casual matters of convenience. Much is to be gained by courtesy.

Cancer [June 21-July 21]: Check your calendar and schedule, extend invitations for social doings, catch up with correspondence.

Leo [July 22-Aug. 22]: Progress is the order of the day. Your energy is up and people are accessible for active cooperation, planning more.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Divert routine work to concentrate on one-of-a-kind projects. A hobby brings to your attention factors you've never considered.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Now the other fellow comes to you and it's your chance to meet fairly, halfway to work things out.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Aside from a special need for self-discipline in the morning, it's a day for fun and games rather than hard work.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: You're almost bound to do some expensive [perhaps expensive] thing just to finish up the weekend with a flourish.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: If you cannot intercede an argument, take yourself out of it altogether. You have many things to investigate, organize.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Your intuition speaks up—listen and act accordingly, particularly if there is any indication that you would change course.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: An inclination to seek pleasure today is normal. Romantic and sentimental projects draw people to favorite spots.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Women's Jeans Need That 'Hippy' Look

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—My Pet Peeve is with the makers of women's jeans. When will they learn that many women's hips are larger in proportion to their waists than are men's? I love wearing jeans but hate to have to wear a belt to cinch them in to fit my waist.—E. B.

Polly's Problem
DEAR POLLY—Can anyone tell me a fairly simple way to keep my house plants watered for a week or two so I will not have to bother my neighbors with this while we are away on a trip? Thank you.—HELEN

DEAR POLLY—I have just made a knit dress with a roll collar that zips down the neck. When making such a dress I usually tack the two points of the back of the collar to the dress so they lie flat, but I could not do that this time as my dress was a matching jacket. I sewed the tops of tiny snaps under the collar points and then bottom halves of the snaps to both dress and the jacket so I can always snap the collar down and it will stay in place. When cutting out a garment as you remove each section of the pattern from the fabric, pin it to the nearest curtain where you can see and refer to it and save a lot of looking and unfolding. This also keeps the pieces together.—MRS. J. R.

DEAR POLLY—I want to tell Sally that we have found many uses for gallon-size plastic bottles. We fill them with water and freeze for our ice chest. We also freeze a fruit-flavored powdered drink the children like as well as iced tea. When they melt, we drink the contents. Cut such bottles in half and use the tops for funnels. The bottoms can hold nails, bolts, clothespins, onions and other small items. We also use these bottles for buoys in the water. We do a lot of camping and find their uses are almost unlimited.—S. S.

DEAR POLLY and SALLY—I have a great way to recycle used, empty gallon-sized plastic bottles. My son wanted a basket for his tricycle so I cut the top off a bleach bottle just below the handle. I scalloped the top of the bottom half and decorated it with plastic cowboys and Indians that were fastened on with those plastic-coated, wire bag closers after I had punctured the plastic with a sharp instrument. Plastic flowers would look nice on such a basket for a little girl. To attach the basket to the tricycle I cut two one-inch strips from the top part of the bottle and fastened them around the handle bars with a small nut and bolt.—MRS. G. B.

Dear Abby

Just advising, not drumming up business

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A woman who was married for 46 years wrote a long story about how hard her husband was to live with. She asked you whether she should choose divorce or suicide, and she signed herself "Suffered Enough."

You told her divorce was preferable. Are you married to a divorce lawyer, Abby?

DEAR ABBY: No. Are you married to an undertaker?

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for nearly a year to a nice guy who has lots to offer, but I want out. Buddy and I were married because we thought I was pregnant. It turned out I wasn't.

At first I was happy. Then I started to miss going out with other guys and having fun. Before I got married I had lots of boy-friends and now I miss all that.

Buddy hasn't mistreated me, and I really do like him, but I don't love him, and I can't see staying married to someone I don't love for the rest of my life.

I talked to my pastor and he told me to "grow up," which was no help at all. What I really want is a divorce, but on what grounds? And how should I break the news to Buddy? I hate to just walk out.

DEAR ABBY: If Buddy doesn't know what's on your mind, level with him — and right now! No "nice guy with lots to offer" would want to stay married to a girl who doesn't love him and wants out. This is a matter for both of you to decide. He may be as glad to get rid of you as you are to get rid of him.

DEAR ABBY: Because you appear to be an intelligent woman who has managed to combine a successful marriage and family with a career, I am hoping you can offer me some encouragement.

I am a 24-year-old, reasonably intelligent woman. My husband is a young professional man who is presently establishing himself in business. We have a beautiful baby, 6 months old.

I have two years of college credits and want to return to get my degree. When the baby is a year old I plan to take a light course to begin with, and will be away from home only three mornings a week. My husband is 100 per cent for it, but my parents think I am crazy.

My mother tells me if I go back to college it will be the ruin of my marriage. My father feels a woman should be allowed to go to college only in order to find a rich husband, after which she should stay home and have a baby every year.

I don't feel that I am in any way jeopardizing my marriage. In fact, I think I'm "protecting" it. After all, how many husbands who are getting ahead in the world want to come home to wives who can't talk about anything except toilet training and the price of ground chuck?

I know I'm doing the right thing. All I need is some encouragement from you.

DEAR ABBY: You have it. Your parents may mean well, but they're off the beam.

The final session of the Camelot mixed pairs had just started. Lancelot sat South at table one with Elaine the Fair in the North. La Belle Isolde was West with the great Tristram in the East. The peerless knight quickly reached four hearts after Elaine's single raise and Isolde opened the jack of clubs.

Lancelot called for the three from dummy and it was up to Tristram to play. Tristram studied and studied. Finally he turned to Lancelot and said, "Methinks thou hast a subtle reason for thy play of a low club. Haven't I?"

Then Tristram rose with his ace and returned the

If Tristram had ducked the first club he would never have gained the lead. Eventually Lancelot would have discarded one of dummy's spades on his fourth diamond and made his contract.

Like other meetings between the two greatest knights of the round table this turned out to be a no-decision contest. At the other table the jack of clubs was always covered. East would play his ace automatically and declarer would be down that same one trick.

Peanut-Shaped Cookies

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

Active youngsters during winter months need added protein. One way to see that they get it is in a dessert snack filled with peanut butter. For example, peanut-shaped cookies entice snackers and when served with milk add to their nutritional well-being.

PEANUT-SHAPED COOKIES

- 1/2 cup (1 stick) margarine
- 3/4 cup peanut butter
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 egg
- 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- Grated rind of 1 orange or 1 teaspoon dried orange rind

Cream margarine and peanut butter. Stir in sugar and egg. Beat in remaining ingredients. Knead dough a few times on floured board. Cut dough into 40 pieces. Shape each piece with the hands into a roll 2 1/2 inches long. Pinch in the center of the roll and place on a cookie sheet. Flatten top of cookie and round one end. Pinch the other end to resemble the shape of the peanut in the shell. With the back of a knife cut shallow Peanut-shaped cookies carry a nutritional wallop for snackers.

crisscross line on top of cookie. Cookies should be at least 2 inches apart since they spread during baking.

Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven for 10 to 12 minutes. Makes 40 cookies.

If you truly and sincerely commit yourself into His trust and care, then you, my dear friend, will no longer be lost but you will be found.

Have you ever wondered how anyone could read and understand the Bible? In 2 Corinthians 4:3 we read, "But if our gospel be hid, it is hid to them that are lost." One of the surest signs that a person is lost is his or her failure to understand the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ. May God give you insight into His blessed Word is our prayer. Dusty Rhoades

Eggplant dish with ground meat and Spanish olives merits stars.

Eggplant Is Also For Eating

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

Eggplant remains a decorative rather than edible table item in many regions of North America, even among those who enjoy growing this succulent vegetable. However, it is the culinary heart of much Spanish and Mediterranean cookery and can be eaten with much pleasure in hot or cold dishes. Eggplant actually is native to the East Indies and was introduced into Spain during the Middle Ages by the conquering Moors. A favored dish is similar to the Greek Moussaka in which the ingredients are mixed and baked in the eggplant shell.

MEDITERRANEAN EGGPLANT

- 2 medium eggplants
- 6 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 1/2 pounds ground beef chuck
- 3/4 cup chopped onion
- 1/2 cup diced green pepper
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1/2 cup pine nuts or blanched slivered almonds, toasted
- 1/2 cup dark seedless raisins
- 1 tablespoon capers
- 1/2 cup sliced pimiento-stuffed olives
- 1 cup chopped parsley
- 1 can (6 ounces) tomato paste

Cut eggplants in half lengthwise. Carefully remove the pulp with a small sharp knife, leaving a 1/4-inch thick shell. Chop eggplant pulp (There should be about 4 cups.) Melt 2 tablespoons of the butter in large skillet. Add beef and saute until browned, stirring frequently. Remove beef with slotted spoon to large bowl. Sauté onion in drippings in same skillet until golden. Add remaining butter to skillet. Stir in green pepper and chopped eggplant. Sauté 1 minute, stirring constantly. (If necessary, add more butter to prevent sticking.) Cover and cook eggplant mixture 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add sauteed vegetable mixture with all remaining ingredients to beef toss until well combined. Fill eggplant shells with meat mixture. Bake in 350-degree oven 30 minutes in large shallow baking pan. Garnish eggplants with additional olive slices and parsley sprigs. (Makes 4 main dish servings.)

(NOTE: Eggplant may be frozen at this point. To serve, thaw in refrigerator for 24 hours. Bake in 375-degree oven for 40 to 45 minutes or until hot throughout.)

Americans Consume Over 60 Billion Eggs A Year

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Americans love eggs with such ardor that they devour more than 60 billion of them a year; a good deal more than any other nation.

This mammoth consumption is all the more surprising when you consider that, whereas the average American starts off his day with a couple of eggs, he rarely touches them at other meals, except as ingredients in other dishes or garnish for a salad.

The egg need not be limited to such mundane dishes as fried over with bacon or scrambled with sausage. With proper inspiration, it can reach the heights of culinary elegance. Take the omelet. The basic ingredients are simplicity itself, but properly made, this dish has brought fame to chefs and made restaurant owners wealthy.

A plain omelet consists of nothing more than eggs, water, salt and pepper. But just about anything can be folded into an omelet, from caviar to cream cheese; from jelly to creamed chicken.

The Chinese have a fondness for eggs and treat them with a good deal more imagination than we do. One of their specialties is the "thousand-year-old" egg, aged in much the same manner that we age cheese. It is not a thousand years old, of course, but closer to seven weeks. These unique eggs, their whites turned black and the yolks a greenish-orange, can be bought in many Chinese stores.

A delectable egg dish that has been growing in popularity in this country is Eggs Benedict, a combination of poached eggs, fried Virginia ham, English muffins and hollandaise sauce.

When making this dish it should be kept in mind that freshness is a key factor in poaching eggs. In cooking an omelet one should use eggs that are nearly a week old since newly-laid eggs tend to curdle in the pan when prepared in this manner.

But poaching is something else. Eggs more than a day or so old are still perfectly edible. But they develop thin, watery whites which float free of the yolks when brought into contact with hot water.

One of the most delightful egg dishes we have sampled was served at The Leopard, a restaurant operating in a brownstone house in midtown New York. Called Eggs Leopard, it is made in much the same manner as Eggs Benedict, with hollandaise sauce used instead of hollandaise and with bits of truffle sprinkled over the eggs to give the effect of leopard spots.

Owner of The Leopard is Mrs. Donald Cook, widow of the actor. The restaurant is so named because she is the niece of Giuseppe di Lampona who wrote the novel, The Leopard. Here is her recipe for Eggs Leopard.

- 4 fresh eggs
- 1/2 cup cold water
- 1 tablespoon distilled white vinegar per quart water
- 2 English muffins split in half
- 1 tablespoon butter softened
- 1/4 cup sliced green onions
- Virginia ham cut into rounds
- Hollandaise sauce
- Black truffle bits, 2 tablespoons

The sea is accepted by most scientists as the birthplace of all forms of life.

Cook eggs either in swirling hot water or in an egg poacher. Toast English muffin halves and place heated ham rounds atop each half. Set one egg in middle of each round of ham. Spoon warm hollandaise sauce over each serving and sprinkle with truffle bits.

Bearnaise Sauce
1/4 cup dry white wine
1/2 cup tarragon vinegar
2 chopped shallots
2 sprigs fresh tarragon
4 peppercorns crushed

3 egg yolks
1/2 tablespoon cream
1 cup clarified butter
Heat wine, vinegar, shallots, tarragon and peppercorns in saucepan and boil till reduced to a tablespoon. Add mix to egg yolks and cream and combine in top double boiler. Cook over hot water (but not boiling) stirring with wire whisk till mixture is thick. Gradually beat in melted butter until absorbed. Strain sauce, season with salt and cayenne pepper.

Artichokes Are Adventure

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

The first time one approaches the eating of an artichoke it is with a sense of adventure. After nibbling away at the leaves dipped in a tasty sauce and savoring the delicate flavor, more and more eaters find themselves hooked on this unusual vegetable. Artichokes are high in vitamins and minerals. And without a fattening dip, one large bud contains only 58 calories. We now are in the season of the "winter-kissed" artichokes with supply abundant and the prices reasonable.

ARTICHOKES WITH AL PESTO MAYONNAISE
1 cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons finely chopped pine nuts
1/2 clove garlic, pressed
1 teaspoon basil leaves
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon thyme leaves
1/2 cup finely chopped parsley
1/2 cup milk
6 medium artichokes, prepared as directed and chilled

Blend all ingredients except artichokes. Chill. Garnish with parsley sprig and serve as dip with chilled artichokes. Makes 6 servings.

BASIC DIRECTIONS FOR COOKING ARTICHOKES

Wash artichokes. Cut off stems at base and remove small bottom leaves. If desired, trim tips of leaves and cut off about 1 inch from top of artichokes. Stand artichokes upright in deep saucepan large enough to hold snugly. Add 1/4 teaspoon salt for each artichoke and 2 to 3 inches boiling water. Cover and boil gently 35 to 45 minutes or until base can be pierced easily with fork. (Add a little more boiling water if needed.) Turn artichokes upside down to drain. If artichokes are to be stuffed, gently spread leaves and remove choke (thistle portion) from center of artichokes with metal spoon.

Artichokes with caper-mayonnaise dip makes ideal cool weather vegetable.

Baked Beef Sandwich For Quick Meals

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

In this era of snacks, it is nice to have a few items on hand for quick meals that do not involve spending money at the hamburger joints. A hearty sandwich with nutritional bite in it combines broccoli spears, corned beef spread and Swiss cheese. It's good for lunch or as a mid-night snack.

CORNERED BEEF BAKED SANDWICH

- 1 10-ounce package frozen broccolli spears
- 4 slices white bread, toasted
- 1 4 1/2-ounce can corned beef spread
- 1/2 teaspoon horseradish
- 4 slices Swiss cheese

According to package directions, cook broccolli until tender. Meanwhile, combine corned beef spread and horseradish and spread on toast. Place well-drained broccolli spears on top of corned beef spread. Top with slices of cheese. Bake sandwiches in 350-degree oven for 5 minutes or until cheese melts. Makes 4 sandwiches.

POLLUTION PROTECTED PLANES
LONDON (AP) — London's clean air means death to hundreds of the city's plane trees. They're dying of sunstroke. Said David Burdakin of the Forestry Commission research laboratory: "For some reason the plane is particularly susceptible to early morning sunlight after a night of hard frost. Until recently, because of air pollution, it never saw any early sun. But now we are getting both hard frost and strong morning sunlight. The effect is to kill off the planes."

Spend Those Food Dollars Realistically

By GAYNOR MADDOX

1972 was the year of continuing upward food prices. 1973, unfortunately, looks about the same. So what new ways of feeding the family has the American homemaker discovered to offset this trend?

Let's question two women, highly placed in business and with families to feed. Anita Fial, graduate of Cornell's prestigious school of home economics and now director for Lewis Weale, a large food public relations concern, has a family of four and they like to eat well.

"I buy every meat possible in gigantic lots - the largest turkey, the largest brisket, for example. You would be surprised at the cost savings on large quantities," she says. "I paid $1.99 for half a brisket. But for a whole brisket the cost runs between $1.29 and $1.39 a pound."

When she arrives home with the purchase she cooks the entire turkey or entire piece of meat she has purchased. She serves some for dinner and what is left she freezes in portions and serves another time. Actually she also cuts down on work time in this way and, of course, on money spent.

There are five or six ways I know of to serve frozen turkey. Also, my family loves meat sauces. So the butcher gives me a good buy on five pounds of ground meat. Then I make the meat sauce all at once, divide it into meal-size portions and freeze in the individual containers so only the needed amount must be thawed. It is remarkably good," Anita Fial states.

1972 was a big year for label reading too. "I have always been a label reader. Now I am more so. I look at the list of ingredients carefully and avoid

NCAA Places Four Violators On Probation

Associated Press Sports Writer CHICAGO (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association launched today one of the most important annual conventions in its 67 year history after punishing four members for infractions of the NCAA code.

The group's governing council Wednesday placed Centenary College of Shreveport, La. on indefinite probation and Western Kentucky and New Mexico State on two-year probation—all three for basketball program violations—and meted a one-year probation to Howard University while automatically vacating the Washington, D.C. school's 1971 NCAA soccer championship.

The sanctions barred the basketball teams of Western Kentucky, New Mexico State and Centenary from all post-season tournament play and NCAA-governed TV appearances for their probation duration.

Howard is banned one year from competing in the National Collegiate Soccer Championship.

Centenary was charged with allowing some players financial aid, even though the players are not expected to attain the 1.6 academic grade average NCAA rules require. Highly recruited basketball star Bob Parish falls into this category, the council noted.

The council sidestepped expected punishment of Southwestern Louisiana, charged with numerous infractions in recruiting its basketball team currently ranked number 13 in the AP's national poll.

The southern school obtained a federal-court order restraining any NCAA probe until next Monday and the council, by then adjourned, may forestall action until its next regular meeting in April.

The New Mexico State case included charges that John Williamson, currently among the nation's basketball scoring leaders, and teammate Roland Grant, during 1970-71 received "improper compensation and financial benefits."

Western Kentucky's infractions, mainly noted in 1970-71, were cited as "provided or promised improper inducements" to as many as six basketball prospects at various times; tryouts and out-of-season drills in basketball; unauthorized transportation of prospects and improper pre-enrollment testing of one prospect in 1969.

Howard University's troubles centered on use of two Trinidad soccer stars on its 1971 NCAA championship team after each had the maximum five varsity seasons, including a year of foreign competition.

Alan Bannister Goes 1st In Baseball Draft

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's annual winter draft of free agent prospects was about halfway through its opening round Wednesday when the conference telephone call connection linking the 24 major league clubs broke down in Oakland.

When the man from the A's rejoined the conversation, he asked for a rundown of the half dozen or so selections he had missed. As Johnny Johnson, administrative assistant to Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, recited off the names, the Oakland man interrupted him with a puzzled question: "How come," he asked, "I don't have any of these guys on my list?"

One guy on just about everybody's list was Arizona State shortstop Alan Bannister and Philadelphia, drafting first, claimed him in a hurry and then signed the youngster for "a substantial bonus."

Was it as substantial as the reported $100,000 the young shortstop turned down from California a few drafts ago?

"You can assume it's close to that," said Bannister.

Merrill Combs, who scouted Bannister for the Phillies, claims he's worth whatever he cost. "He can run, hit and field," said Combs.

Pitchers and infielders dominated the draft's opening round. Of the 24 first round selections, 13 were pitchers and seven were infielders including Wayne Benson of Del Rio, Tex., chosen by the Chicago Cubs and listed as an infielder-outfielder.

A total of 250 players were selected with 148 picked in the regular phase and 102 in the secondary phase.

Nate "Tiny" Archibald Heads West All-Stars

NEW YORK (AP) — Nate "Tiny" Archibald, Kansas City-Omaha's speedy little guard who leads the National Basketball Association in scoring and playmaking, heads the list of players chosen Wednesday for the West team for the 23rd annual NBA All-Star Game in Chicago Jan. 23.

The 6-foot-1, 155-pounder received a near-unanimous vote from the writers and broadcasters who selected the first eight players for the squad, which was announced by NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy.

Archibald, averaging 33.2 points and 11.7 assists per game, will be joined in the starting lineup by center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of Milwaukee, forwards Spencer Haywood of Seattle and Rick Barry of Golden State and guard Jerry West of Los Angeles.

Also chosen for the team were Portland forward Lew Wicks, Los Angeles center Walt Chamberlain and Phoenix guard Charlie Scott.

For West and Chamberlain, it was the 13th time they have been tabbed for the All-Star team, tying them with Bob Cousy for the all-time high in that respect.

The final six players for the 14-man squad will be chosen by the Western Conference's nine coaches.

Rentzel Booked For Grass

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lance Rentzel, the wide receiver of the Los Angeles Rams, has been booked for investigation of possession of marijuana for sale after police found a half-pound of the drug at his Hollywood home, authorities said.

The 29-year-old former Oklahoma star was taken into custody at his home Wednesday afternoon after police armed with a search warrant found the drug and what they said were "narcotics paraphernalia." He was released four hours later from the West Los Angeles police station on $5,000 bail.

It was the second scuffle with the law for Rentzel in 20 months. In April 1971, while with the Dallas Cowboys, Rentzel pleaded guilty to a charge of exposing himself to a 10-year-old girl. He was given a five-year probation sentence, under the condition that he receive regular medical and psychiatric care.

When Sandy Koufax was inducted into baseball's Hall of Fame he paid a glowing tribute to ex-Dodger pitching coach Joe Becker. "I pushed me and embarrassed me, but he made me a pitcher," said the ex-southpaw. Koufax set seven records.

Seattle, whose coach, Tom Nissakke, was fired Wednesday and replaced on a temporary basis by assistant coach Morris "Bucky" Buckwalter, rallied from a 17-point deficit in the final period before being beaten by Baltimore.

The Sonics drew even at 78-78 with 5:34 to play, but were outscored by the Bullets 16-

Basketball Roundup

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Nate "Tiny" Archibald got some help from the grand old man of the National Basketball Association, 39-year-old Johnny Green, and the combination proved too much for the Chicago Bulls Wednesday night.

Archibald, the NBA leader in scoring and assists, scored 37 points for Kansas City-Omaha—including two twisting layups in the final two minutes—as the Kings nipped the Chicago Bulls 102-100.

But it took a key defensive play by Green to preserve the victory.

With the Kings leading 102-98, Garfield Heard of Chicago hit a jumper from the corner with 29 seconds to go. The Kings couldn't score and, following a time-out, Chicago put the ball in play with five seconds to go.

But Green foiled the Bulls' try for a game-tying basket by knocking the ball away from Bulls guard Norm Van Lier just before the final buzzer.

Bob Love was high scorer for Chicago with 36 points, but he got just two of those in the final period.

In other NBA games, Boston beat Houston 128-107, Los Angeles defeated Philadelphia 120-96, Phoenix edged Detroit 123-121 and Baltimore downed Seattle 98-86.

In the American Basketball Association, New York beat Carolina 105-93, Dallas defeated San Diego 104-111 and Denver edged Indiana 106-105.

Boston raced out to a 37-18 first quarter lead, then coasted home as Coach Tom Heinsohn gave his reserves considerable playing time. Center Dave Cowens hit all nine of his field goal attempts in the first half and finished with 20 points, while John Havlicek led the club with 22.

The Lakers snapped a three-game losing streak behind Gail Goodrich's 26 points. They outscored the 76ers 76-40 in the two middle periods to break the game open.

Charlie Scott scored 37 points, including 20 in the first period, and Phoenix withstood a 37-point fourth quarter by Detroit for their victory. Dave Bing scored 29 points and Curtis Rowe 25 for the Pistons.

Seattle, whose coach, Tom Nissakke, was fired Wednesday and replaced on a temporary basis by assistant coach Morris "Bucky" Buckwalter, rallied from a 17-point deficit in the final period before being beaten by Baltimore.

The Sonics drew even at 78-78 with 5:34 to play, but were outscored by the Bullets 16-

Robinson Injured

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Linebacker Aroutis Simpson was Class B schoolboy football champion Chilton's lone representative on the Texas Sportswriters Association All-State first team, it was announced Wednesday.

Runnerup Windhorst, which lost 6-0 to Chilton in the state championship finals—first ever played in the Class B classification—put three players on the first offense team.

They included end Dale Hoff, the only junior picked on the first team offense, quarterback Gerald Scriber, and running back Mike Hoff.

The only juniors on the first team defense were backs Darrold Cuba of Big Sandy and Larry Barbee of Rule.

Chilton placed junior defensive lineman Joe Parsons on the second team.

Happily had two players on offense and one on defense on the first strings.

They were offensive tackle Don Lee, running back Chris Pearson and defensive lineman Jim Hand.

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas faces Saturday's Southwest Conference basketball opener against Baylor without the services of 1972 SWC Player of the Year Larry Robinson, who is out for the season with a broken kneecap.

The 6-foot-6 Hobbs, N.M. forward, averaging 18.1 points per game, suffered a non-displaced fracture of the patella of the left knee in Texas' game last Thursday with Oklahoma.

Robinson, a junior, will not undergo surgery. A cast will be placed on the knee for five to six weeks and total rehabilitation will require 8-10 weeks.

Coach Leon Black said "There is simply no way to describe his value to our basketball team. We have to look at several options to fill the gap, but we're talking about trying to replace an outstanding all-around basketball player."

The youngster responded with his best game by far as a pro, scoring 24 points—his first effort in double figures—and leading the Nets to a 105-93 victory over Carolina. That ended the Cougars' 11-game winning streak, longest in the American Basketball Association this year.

"I'm always ready to play," said a tired but happy Lackey after the game. "I was just waiting to get my chance. Tonight when I went in I told myself I have to play an even game, not try to do it all by myself. I took some good shots tonight."

He made them, too. Lackey sank six of 10 field goal attempts and added nine of 11 from the free throw line for his team-high 21 points. Taylor, center Billy Paultz and forward George Carter backed him up with 18 points apiece, offsetting a 36-point outburst by Carolina's Billy Cunningham.

In the only other ABA games, Dallas defeated San Diego 124-111 and Denver edged Indiana 106-105 in a doubleheader at Denver.

In the National Basketball Association, Boston whipped Houston 128-128-107, Kansas City-Omaha nipped Chicago 102-100, Los Angeles beat Philadelphia 120-96, Phoenix edged Detroit 123-121 and Baltimore topped Seattle 98-86.

In the first game of the doubleheader, Rich Jones and Bob Netolicky were the key men for the Chaps. Jones scored 24 points, pulled down 11 rebounds and handed out seven assists, while Netolicky tallied 23 points and garnered 16 rebounds.

MURRAY OLDERMAN

Sees Over-the-Hill Gang Edge

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

LOS ANGELES, Calif. — (NEA) — From a personality standpoint, the lineup for Super Bowl VII, to decide the champion of Pete Rozelle's world, is about the most exciting prospect since the first Apollo astronaut said, "Golly gee!"

It matches the No-Name Defense of the Miami Dolphins, the only big league enterprise south of the 26th parallel, against the Over-the-Hill Gang of the Washington Redskins, the only big league enterprise between Silver Spring, Md., and Alexandria, Va.

I remember the good old days when Joe Namath guaranteed victory, when Joe Kapp swore vengeance on the gringo, when Lenny Dawson pleaded innocent, when the late Vince Lombardi dominated the scene with his malevolent, gnashing smile.

What have you got now? Two spectacularly nameless teams — with the possible exception of Wild Willie Kilmer throwing tomahawks for the Skins — led by two grindingly efficient coaches.

There's George Allen with the squirt of a coal mine paymaster. And about the same amount of humor: There's Don Shula, who measures his words as carefully as an income tax accountant. With concurrent publicity value.

Actually, the story of Super Bowl VII is their opportunity for personal redemption.

Despite the fact that neither has ever had a losing season as a pro head coach — Shula in 10 years with Baltimore and Miami, Allen in seven years with Los Angeles and Washington — both have been ranked by innuendo about their failure to win championships.

George Allen

Shula, the only NFL coach ever to top 100 victories in his first decade, has also the following record in title games: his Colts, heavily favored, were shut out by the Cleveland Browns for the NFL title in 1964; his Colts, again heavily favored, lost Super Bowl III to the New York Jets on Jan. 12, 1969; his Miami Dolphins were decisively beaten in Super Bowl VI last January in New Orleans.

So he has never won "the big one."

George Allen has a different type of problem. He is supposed to drive his teams so hard they never get to the ultimate championship game because they fade in the stretch. So, his Los Angeles Rams, defeated only once in the 1967 schedule, lost the Western Conference title to Green Bay.

They lost the conference title game again in 1969, to Minnesota. And switching over to the Washington Redskins in the Eastern Conference last year, George dropped the first round playoff to the San Francisco 49ers.

Both are aggressive, tight-lipped, win-channeled men who shut out the rest of the world during football season.

Allen favors ice cream because, it's said, he doesn't have to take the trouble and time to chew it. Shula, who had a legendary temper as a player, keeps a tight grip on himself by devotion to detail and organization. He will, occasionally, smile.

Give them credit though. They each have stepped twice into losing situations and produced dramatic, instant success. Maybe because both long ago recognized the key to winning football lies in defense.

Shula, a tenacious defensive back in pro ball for seven years, got his start as a defensive coach with Detroit before moving up.

Allen was saluted nationally with a risqué ditty by the Chicago Bears for his contribution to their 1963 NFL championship as the defensive coach.

Give Shula and Allen credit, too, for being able to produce high emotional levels in the teams they coach. The stress on winning piques all pros. It means first of all a lucrative payoff — $15,000 apiece to the winners of the Super Bowl. Plus identification. Over-the-Hill — No-Name — they aren't grabbers.

There is an extra element of suspense in the game coming up in the Los Angeles Coliseum on Jan. 14. The Dolphins could become the first team in more than half a century of recorded National Football League history to go through an entire season unbeaten and untied. Their 16 straight victories—14 during the regular season and two so far in the playoffs — represent an epic achievement. The last team to get close was the Chicago Bears, who took an 11-0 record into the 1942 championship and were upset by the Washington Redskins.

(It should be noted that NFL historians don't include the annals of the defunct All-America Conference, which lasted four years right after World War II — the 1948 Cleveland Browns won 14 straight games and then defeated Buffalo for the AAC championship.)

My feeling is that the Redskins will again, 30 years later, abort a record attempt. They're a looser gang of veterans who haven't had the pressure of a winning streak. They should become the Top-of-the-Hill Gang by a 24-20 margin.

Saving Historic Values

At what point does your land cease to be your land? At what point must you yield to overall planning? These are questions that we've got to decide, according to James Biddle, president of the National Trust for Historic Preservation. The aim of Biddle's organization is to aid local groups in preservation work. It was established in 1949. We can certainly agree with the goal, and we believe that Mr. Biddle has put the correct questions. So let us proceed to decide as he says that we must. Immediately, a number of other questions arise, including the following: Do we wish to preserve the material evidences of our history only, or do we also value the ideals of its founders? If we cherish the tradition as well as the architecture, shall we sacrifice the tradition in order to preserve the architecture? What were the essential ideals developed at this country's founding? What part does architecture play in relationship to those ideals? Conceivably, we would not need old buildings to remind us of our total heritage. Ideals are indestructible. We might continue to hold onto them long after national monuments have crumbled. Yet monuments are useful. For they serve to instruct us that our illustrious forebears were humans such as ourselves, facing material challenges, tests and terrors, yet holding to a central conviction. That belief was this: As the individual is given life, so from the same Source he is given latitude to make his own decisions as to what he considers to be the direction of happiness for himself, in the fulfillment of that latitude he

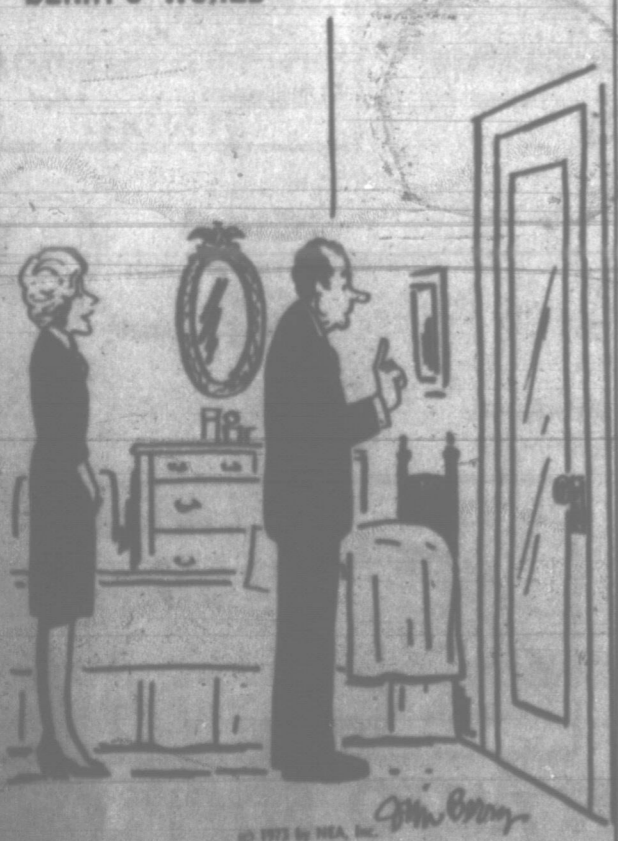

Boardwalk Still Bargain

Some things are still a bargain. Take the Boardwalk, for instance. It still costs just $400 to purchase that valuable property on the old Monopoly board, while at the opposite extreme, the price of lowly Mediterranean Avenue is still $60—exactly what they were in the Depression year of 1935 when the game was introduced. Furthermore, the cost of erecting houses and hotels is precisely the same, as are the rents charged for landing on owned properties. "We respectfully submit that this is perhaps the greatest example of holding the line against inflation to be found anywhere in the world today," respectively submits Edward F. Parker, president of the company that makes the game. Perhaps it is. On the other hand, take a walk on the Boardwalk. (Do not pass Go, do not collect $200.) Getting socked $50 for a harmless stroll on an unimproved Boardwalk, and all the way up to $2,000 if there happens to be a hotel, was outrageous in 1935 and still is, inflation or no inflation.

Physical Ed To Take On New Look?

By PAUL HARVEY
You laughed when Princeton and Rutgers fielded intercollegiate athletes to compete at Frisbee. It was no stunt. It's a forerunner of a new look in physical education.

Team sports will continue but the new emphasis will be on athletic skills you can develop in school and use throughout your life—school sports "to take out." The President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports got its biggest boost from health-conscious President John F. Kennedy. The council's efforts continue under this President with a de-emphasis on team sports and greater concentration on athletic activities which can survive the academic years.

Football and basketball will likely continue indefinitely; they serve other purposes. But the President's council and several state boards of education are concentrating on individual athletic activities. Robert Leake, specialist in health, phys. ed. and recreation for the Utah Board of Education, says, "The new PE is on its way."

He says Utah's schools are offering more instruction in bowling, skating, skiing, tennis and swimming.

Traditional physical education in school has been the stand-around-and-wait kind of games. Now we're going to try to develop a generation which will prefer regular activity to the sedentary life—but we enjoy most that which we do best so schools must provide the necessary basic training. Only those athletic activities which require neither team participation nor elaborate equipment are likely to be included permanently in the life pattern.

Former University of Illinois swimming champion, now a physician, Dr. Herbert Lakin, says, "It is as important to be taught how to play as to be taught how to work." The American Medical Assn. says the evidence is irrefutable that "proper, regular exercise helps keep healthy hearts healthy, helps prevent the onset of cardiovascular disease."

Or as Hippocrates, as long long ago as four centuries B.C., said, "That which is used develops, and that which is not used wastes away." The President's council has judged that few individuals can sustain interest in a regimen of calisthenics. Physical fitness, to remain interesting, requires fun and games.

That brings us back to the intercollegiate Frisbee game between Rutgers and Princeton. Those schools, which played the first intercollegiate football game 103 years ago, again have started something. It is another competitive sport, playable either as a team member or individually. They expect it, like tennis, handball, skiing, dancing, bowling, swimming, archery, golf, badminton, to be a game you can play "after school."

BRUCE BIOSSAT Boredom You Must Bear in this Life

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA)—What the well-adjusted citizen needs in modern industrial society is a considerable capacity to endure boredom. The blunt fact is that it is a built-in aspect not simply of work but of life itself. Do you find it exciting to shave or brush your teeth or wash your face? To take out the garbage or mow the lawn? The routines of life make a long list. Perhaps it is a sad fact, but it is really an inescapable fact that most work practices today add immeasurably to that list. No amount of high-frown, romantic baldersdash about the alleged obsolescence of the "work ethic" is going to wash this away. Most of these "scholarly" slaps at work as an "old-fashioned" idea are purely juvenile. Of course, these silly dreamers get a good deal of help from the very industries whose work practices are under assault. For once the product is ready for the market, the manufacturers hire people called advertisers to spread the word. Many of these do a simple, sold job of informing the public. But some seem to regard themselves as walking tranquilizers. They spend much of their time telling us how easy life can be. Everything useful and enjoyable is to be had at the mere flick of a finger—for pennies a week in effect, they are telling the family breadwinner that, having no hard challenge at work, they'll fix it so he'll have none at home, either.

No wonder some of the young folk are badly confused, and come up with responses that range from the one extreme of drugs, violence, and similar manufactured excitements to the other of total lassitude, and symbolized by the unkempt figure draped horizontally on a ledge or sidewalk in a bustling business area (for pointed contrast).

These responses are exalted by some Americans as perceptive comment and highly intelligent, idealistic rebellion against the shortcomings of this society. Actually, they are gross confessions of ignorance and defeat. The earth is spinning away their precious days, and for all they're getting out of the ride, they might as well be lounging in the gray dust of the vacant moon, staring absent-mindedly at an abandoned moon-rover.

We all want romance and drama and excitement and challenge in life. But to get it we have to pay our dues. And, notwithstanding the absurd fancies of those who scorn the "work ethic," that means doing a great many things that are boring, repetitive, and painfully unimaginative. Just as you can't expect to make an attractive, respectable appearance in public without going through the routines of washing, dressing, etc., so you can't hope to derive enduring satisfactions from pleasurable endeavors if they are divorced from conscientious work effort. The two things are inter-connected.

There never will be excitement in driving a city bus or hammering a windshield into place, even if a "democratic" work committee discusses these things beforehand. You have to invest them with importance as a means, a steppingstone, toward more imaginative enterprises. And you, you alone, have to find within yourself—without artificial aids—the special touch that gives your life its sense of wholeness and truly individual style.

Wit & Whimsy

A few less premiums and a little more cereal in the boxes would be appreciated by most of us. Basketball is a son never ends; it just dribbles away. The individual is but an atom; he is born, he acts, he dies; but principles are eternal.—William Jennings Bryan, American statesman and orator. The Russian bear is always most dangerous when its arms are outstretched in a gesture of seeming friendship.—Richard Nixon, 1963.

Question Box

QUESTION: Nearly everyone agrees that the collection of Social Security taxes is unfair. Some pay in more than they will receive in benefits. Some pay much less. How can it be made fair to everyone? ANSWER: We do not know of any way that a tax can be made fair to everyone. As we have said in Freedom Newspapers many times, there is no such thing as a fair tax. Every tax that we know of is levied inequitably on someone, and any "benefits" disbursed by government also are distributed inequitably.

There have been proposals to make the Social Security tax levied graduated as with income taxes. This theoretically would tend to make the load more equitable. However, the income tax is not fair either, and it is questionable that it can ever be made so.

Another proposal, that apparently is being considered seriously by some government officials is to exempt the first several hundred dollars of earnings from taxation as with income tax. This would help those in the lowest earnings bracket, but would do nothing for the middle income group who pay the most taxes. Possibly the least unfair system of taxation for Social Security would be a flat rate on all income, regardless of earnings. However, those in the higher income brackets would be less likely to benefit from payments after retirement than those in the lower earnings brackets. The payments would be more unfair than they are now.

John A. Brittain, in a study for the Brookings Institution, proposed the payroll tax be restructured through exemptions and deductions such as in income tax, or through the gradual replacement of the payroll tax by the income tax. We doubt if this would make it less unfair than at present.

However, it might be that if deductions were allowed to those who provide for their own future well-being, it could be made less unfair. If the entire income and Social Security tax were restructured, so that a flat tax would be applied on every person, after a specific personal exemption; with all other exemptions eliminated, but with a credit for those who provide their own future security, it would be less injurious to more people.

The only fair solution that we can see would be to make the system voluntary. Those who want government-provided Social Security could make their contributions. Those who do not want it and who are willing to invest in their own pension or retirement investment programs should not be forced to support a program they do not want. As has been suggested several times, if Social Security is good, why is it mandatory?

Unyielding Advocacy Killed Reconciliation Bill
By Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON—Advocates of recomputation of military retired pay are partly to blame for that unfavorable report of the special House Armed Services subcommittee.

They rejected any compromise; adamantly stood pat on all or nothing. That's the harsh accusation buried in the subcommittee's report and unrecorded in press accounts about it. But careful reading of the published document makes clear that the five-member panel (3 Democrats, 2 Republicans) put much of the onus for barring recomputation on its partisans.

This unpublicized factor is listed as one of the subcommittee's major critical finds, as follows: "There is no consensus among those supporting recomputation on what would constitute a feasible compromise. None of the military organizations which supplied testimony viewed the administration's proposal (HR 14524) or the Hartke amendment as an acceptable permanent compromise. The minimum acceptable legislation for those groups was generally permanent recomputation for all those in service prior to 1956."

This charge is reiterated in other sections of the report, as follows: Page 17654—"One of the findings (No. 10) of the subcommittee study is that there is no consensus on what would be a feasible compromise on the issue of recomputation." Page 17655—"The subcommittee found that the organizations and individuals advocating recomputation did not agree on any of the proposed one-time compromises as a satisfactory solution to the problem. They generally did not agree among themselves as to what formula would be most desirable if a one-time recomputation were tried."

"When asked to state what legislation would be the minimal acceptable compromise to their organization, most of them stated that it would have to be permanent recomputation for everyone on active duty before June 1, 1956. Most of them characterized the administration's proposal as only a 'step in the right direction'."

Unquestionably adding weight to the subcommittee's charge (as well as its report as a whole) is the bipartisan panel's unanimity. There was no dissenting report—nor comments. The five committees were in complete accord in flaily turning thumbs down on recomputation as unwarranted and too costly, and also in finger a severely censorious recomputation at supporters of the bill.

The emphasis placed on this criticism is highly significant. The panel went out of its way to bear down heavily on this point—the alleged intransigence of the advocates in insisting on all or nothing. The extent to which the subcommittee went to hammer this home is shown by the singling out of a leading recomputation champion as a graphic example of this charge. Says the report: "The spokesman for the Retired Officers Association, one of the principal lobbyists for the legislation, engaged in the following colloquy with the chairman of the subcommittee (Rep. Samuel Stratton, D.-N.Y., decorated World War II Navy veteran):

"Stratton: 'So from your point of view, the recommendation of this committee that we accept the Hartke amendment, for example, or the recommendation of this committee that we accept the administration's view (HR 14524) would not really settle this problem. It would only be, as you say, a step in the right direction?'

"Col. Chapman: 'That is correct, sir.' 'Stratton: 'And we would have the same arguments you presented here so eloquently today before us again, would we not?'

"Col. Chapman: 'I would expect that you would, yes, sir.' 'Stratton: 'From your organization, as well as others, I would suppose—in other words, that we have not kept the faith.' 'Col. Chapman: 'Yes, I think that is correct.'"

Slamming The Door The report implies the subcommittee might have been favorable to a "feasible" compromise—without giving any clue as to what would have been deemed "feasible."

This intimation is just left hanging in the air. The whole burden of the report is that recomputation partisans firmly opposed any compromise, offered none for consideration, and as a consequence the subcommittee did nothing.

Under the subtitle "Congressional Yearning for Permanent Solution," the report says: "Many members of Congress expressed to the subcommittee their earnest hope that an economically feasible solution could be found that would solve the recomputation argument once and for all so that it would not continue to plague the Congress. Some members of Congress who testified urged the subcommittee to solve the problem permanently, although they were unable themselves to suggest or recommend such a solution."

The subcommittee believes that the only one-time solution to the problem is the one passed in 1963 which provided a one-time recomputation and then instituted a new and equitable formula. The hearings demonstrated that a so-called compromise such as the administration bill (HR 14524) or the Hartke amendment would be unacceptable to recomputation proponents as a permanent solution and would only increase pressure for later increases.

Returns To Court
WASHINGTON (AP) — Demoted and under pressure to quit, Navy coast-cutter Gordon Rule today returns to the congressional witness table from which he opened fire last month on a key Nixon administration appointment and the powers of the so-called military-industrial complex.
But Adm. Isaac Kidd, who demoted Rule and sought his retirement within 24 hours of his testimony, will not appear. Kidd's reasons were called "absurd," and "unacceptable" Tuesday by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., head of the priorities subcommittee of the Joint Economic Committee.
Proxmire demanded the four-star admiral who heads the Navy Materiel Command change his mind.
Proxmire said if Kidd is permitted to avoid testifying, "all witnesses before committees will be nothing more than censored recordings of whatever the Executive Department wants Congress to know."
