A. P. Barrett of Fort Worth, state chairman of the Citizens' Reconstruction Organization, in his war against pessimism and the hoarding of money, will bring his message to the people of this section of Texas in an address at an open mass meeting at the ballroom of the Settles hotel Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, it was announced by the Chamber of Commerce here Monday afternoon.

The public is urged to attend the meeting. Mr. Barrett is a forceful speaker and well-informed upon many phases of the national economic situation. He and members of his party will be guests at a session with the local Chamber of Commerce directors at 6 p. m.

Mr. Barrett and party will make their first night stop here, being scheduled to arrive at 5:30 p. m. Tuesday from Lubbock. They will visit Wichita Falls Tuesday morning, Amarillo at noon and are due to reach Lubbock at 2:45 p. m. for a mass meeting at the Texas Technological college auditorium.

It is urged that as many Big Spring people as possible meet the Barrett party at the airport Tuesday evening.

The second day's flight, Wednesday, will carry the party to San Angelo, Abilene, Waco and Dallas, Thursday's itinerary will include San Antonio, Corpus Christi and Houston and Friday's program calls for stops at Corsicana, Tyler, Greenville and Bonham.

"I hope that the many towns in reach of the cities where stops will be made will send large delegations to the gatherings and that where chairmen for anti-hoarding campaigns have not been named such appointments will be made at once," Mr. Barrett said in Fort Worth.

Barrett, widely-known for his many important business enterprises, including large interests in the aviation industry, has visited here a number of times in the past three years, since the company he founded started operating an air passenger line between Dallas and El Paso with Big Spring as the chief stopping point between those cities.

N. O. Exchange Head Testifies Before House

Declares Abolition of Short Selling Would Be Disturbing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Russell Clark, president of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange, told the federal restriction of short selling would increase the unsettlement of the financial structure. There is a bill pending to authorize the secretary of agriculture to limit or entirely prohibit short selling on the commodity markets.

After Eye Operation

Ramsay MacDonald, British prime minister, is shown here as he was well on the way to recovery after a delicate eye operation.

One of the largest political gatherings in the county for many months will be held in the district court room here Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock when Howard county friends and supporters of John N. Garner for the Democratic presidential nomination will meet to organize the county in his behalf.

Like many other counties in the country, Howard is showing keen interest in the rapidly growing sentiment for Speaker Garner. Although he is not as yet an avowed candidate for the nomination and is attending strictly to his business of presiding over the lower house of congress, Garner-for-President clubs are being formed in all parts of the county.

Led by C. P. Rogers, who started the petition, seventy local citizens last week signed an official call for the Wednesday night meeting, expressing the sentiment that inasmuch as a Texan, for the first time in history is very seriously a contender for the nomination, his fellow Texans owe him the honor of their support, regardless of whether he becomes a candidate or whether he receives the nomination.

Lines Drawn For Battle To Obtain Jobs

All Residents Asked To Be Ready To Offer Employment

In session early Monday afternoon the American Legion's central committee, in charge of the city-wide unemployment relief campaign, was making further plans for a thorough canvass to be made of the city Wednesday for the purpose of obtaining employment for more than 400 local men whose families are in real need.

The appeal for jobs will be made on two bases. All residents will be asked to provide employment by (1) having work done on their own premises or (2) donating cash to finance work in parks and other public places.

Headquarters for the campaign are being opened in the building back of the First Methodist church, with H. L. Bohannon of the Legion in charge. The telephone number will be 201.

On the eve of the drive to end the local unemployment crisis a list of 100 ways in which work may be provided with benefit to both employer and employee were released. A few of these suggestions follow:

- Reroof with wood, asphalt, asbestos or metal shingles, slate, clay tile or metal roofing.
- Develop recreation room in home basements.
- Install cedar lining in one or more existing closets.
- Repair or replace roof; restain or apply preservative to wood shingles; repaint canvas deck roofs; stop all leaks.
- Repair or replace hardware; correct sagging doors or defective windows.
- Reconstruct and straighten warped chimneys, add chimney pots, point up old masonry to improve draft.
- Install an incinerator.
- Modernize exterior of house by applying shingles, clapboards, brick facing or stucco over present exterior.

U. S. MARINES NEAR SHANGHAI BATTLE FRONT

Here is one of the first pictures to reach this country showing United States marines guarding the boundaries of the international settlement during the fighting in Shanghai. Both Japanese and Chinese shells have dropped in the area. The picture shows marines facing Soochow creek which is so crowded with Chinese boats that it is impossible to see the water.

Shanghai Where East And West Meet And Mingle But Never Amalgamate

Warships And Merchant Craft Of Every Nation Anchor In Waters Of Whangpoo; Streets Have Foreign Characteristics

Chinese junks mingling in the waters of the Whangpoo river with the warships and merchant craft of about every other nation in the world; Americans and other foreigners swimming in marble pools as Chinese, ever imperturbable, drive their water buffalo along wheelbarrow roads nearby; rickshaws scurrying about to avoid foreign-made motor cars—

Buildings of distinctly Chinese architecture overshadowed by what we might term the more modern structures of America, England or Europe; Chinese girls riding in red chairs to unknown bridegrooms while American girls, tiny cameras in hand, vend their free way about in sightseeing; shops, large and small, everywhere and selling about everything there is to sell in the world.

Shanghai! Probably Kipling was right when he said something about the East being the East and the West being the West "and never the twain shall meet." But he was not far within the bounds of accuracy when one considers this melting pot that is Shanghai, where East and West have met, although always maintaining a rather uncertain relationship.

Of all eastern ports, or, for that matter, of all the world ports, Shanghai probably is the greatest melting pot of all. The city is neither Chinese, Japanese, Russian, French, English, American nor any thing else. Rather it is a combination of each, an intermingling of all.

Along the waterfront are the great docks and warehouses, with here an American touch; there a name distinctly English; somewhere else a sign denoting distinctly Japanese ownership or possession, and still another, which, by its "Sing," "Chang," or "Wong," is undoubtedly Chinese. Chinese coolies, Filipinos, Hawaiians; seamen and stevedores; white, brown and yellow brk elbows and make themselves understood among others by their polyglot pidgin.

Under Many Flags The flags of many nations fly over the city, denoting both consulates and business institutions of every sort. In that part of Shanghai known as the international settlement, a section made possible by a Chinese government concession of many years ago, the predominance of the British is evidenced by the presence of Sikh policemen, swarthy, lowering fellows in varicolored tunics.

The International Settlement comprises only about one-third of the city. Only across the street from the boundary is France, which, if not true geographically, is correct in the sense that the French concession is usually referred to merely as France. The Shanghai which is Chinese is indicated by a few streets further on by a sudden transition to narrow streets and a vastly different collection of aromas, which seem to hang suspended in the atmosphere.

Yes, and not alone are the streets narrow, but, like all good Chinese streets, they are crooked. Else what would there be to stop the straight-line tours about the city of evil spirits? Such undesirable and invisible creations of the Chinese mind long since determined these spirits traveled only in straight lines. Therefore what better means of checking their travels could be hit upon than that of deliberately making crooked streets? Although these spirits are not flesh and blood, it generally is accepted that their jaunts are terminated when they run smack dab into a brick wall.

Like all cities in the orient, Shanghai begins, or, if one prefers, it ends at the waterfront in the Bund. Along the Bund in the International Settlement are the buildings which stand as monuments for the nation.

League Sends Agreement To Governments

China Decides To Send An Army Against New Manchurian State

GENEVA (AP)—Representative of both China and Japan accepted the League of Nations proposal for an armistice at Shanghai, with simultaneous withdrawal of both armies and a conference of belligerents, with the principal neutral powers to restore peace.

Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, said the United States would work with the League in this conference.

GENEVA (AP)—Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, informed the League of Nations council that Chinese and Japanese commanders at Shanghai had agreed to withdraw from present battle lines and establish an armistice.

The agreement has been submitted to the Nanking and Tokyo governments for confirmation.

NANKING (AP) Tuesday—The Chinese government decided to send an expedition against the newly created independent state in Manchuria, which was sponsored by Japan.

Russia Mobilizes TOKYO (AP)—Consul Yamaguchi at Vladivostok telegraphed the foreign office that he was reliably informed that 100,000 Russian soldiers were stationed at Vladivostok and along the Ussuri railway near the northern Manchurian border.

Most of them arrived recently from European Russia. New heavy artillery and anti-aircraft defenses have been placed at Vladivostok harbor and food and military supplies are being transported there day and night.

It was said the Russians believed trouble with Japan was inevitable, either over Manchuria or the Szechuan question, which has been causing friction for several years.

Chinese Retreat SHANGHAI (AP)—A terrific artillery bombardment forced the Chinese lines about Chupai last night, the battle having started there after the Japanese finally captured Kiangwan Sunday.

The big guns of warships were again used against Chupai. During the day Admiral Sir Zouhair Kelly, commander of the British fleet, presided over a Japanese-Chinese peace conference aboard his flagship, which adjourned without announcement but planned to meet again.

ing that the Chinese retire twenty kilometers from Shanghai and permanently destroy their Wusong and Paoshan forts.

Later the Japanese Consul General Kuramatsu Moral warned Mayor Yu Teh Chen unless Chinese reinforcements came, Japan would extend operations fifty miles across the city on the most extensive scale yet and destroy the railways.

LIBRARY OPEN The Public Library will be open every day from now on in the afternoon from the hours of 3 to 5, announces Mrs. B. T. Cardwell, chairman of the committee.

The public is invited to take advantage of the six-months' rate at 50 cents and to drop by and note how attractive the new arrangement is.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Blount and R. E. Jr., had a narrow escape when their automobile turned over on Johnson street Sunday afternoon. None of the three was hurt.

The machine turned over when Mr. Blount made a sharp turn to avoid hitting a car standing in the center of an intersection.

He strongly criticized present laws in bankruptcy laws. His recommendations included: creation of additional judgeships to relieve congestion in U. S. courts; allowing defendants to waive the requirement of grand jury indictment; authorizing the supreme court to prescribe rules expediting appeals; providing that if 12 eligible grand jurors vote for an indictment it could be validated by presence of intelligible on the jury panel.

Prisoners Of Habit

An incident riot among prisoners in the state penitentiary at Joliet, Ill., was quelled last Wednesday by guards, who used their night-sticks freely. The prisoners objected to being transferred to a new building because it was lacking in hot water facilities.

In an English prison recently several men were killed in a riot which started when the prisoners resented failure of the warden to furnish sugar for their porridge, or something of the sort.

Inmates of a federal prison not long ago staged a riotous demonstration when their favorite radio feature was denied to them.

Similar incidents are reported every few days in prisons throughout the world.

Don't make the mistake of blaming it on the natural cussedness of felons. They are merely humans, after all. Put any group of law-abiding citizens under a similar strain, take away from them their morning coffee, their favorite newspaper or their pet rocking chair—and you'll have a riot on your hands. Man is a creature of habits. Anything that interferes with the orderly routine of his habitual practices arouses his anger, whether he be felon or minister. Countless domestic quarrels are precipitated by failure of some member of the family to respect the habits or prerogatives of another member. Choking a bear cub off a pan of warm sweet milk is easy beside the task of convincing man that he should use one-sided court in one of his usual two-sided variety.

We are all prisoners of our habits.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsion of cod liver oil. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

BOY CRAZY
by GRACE PERKINS

SYNOPSIS: Parties are a regular part of Hope Ross' schedule, but the climax of the season is the one at Lake Placid. Her father gives it for her, as he fulfills all her other wishes. As a result, Hope is thoroughly spoiled, but nobody realizes this but her mother. Hope is an acknowledged leader in the younger set, and at 17 has behind her an enviable career of good times. School is an unpleasant necessity. She expects a free hand in the running of her party, for she has persuaded her prudish sister, Goody, to stay at home in the hope of annexing Charlie Rand, and Mrs. Ross has stayed with Goody. The twelve members of the party include Rusty Crandall, who is in love with Hope, and Angel Thorn.

Chapter 6
ONCE IN A BLUE MOON
Angel had the disposition her name implied, without being over-assertive or narrow-minded as Goody was, for instance.

Angel could be a D.A.R. if she desired; and the fact that she didn't was soothing. Angel was the sister of a dead crack aviator, and the daughter of a drunken father.

Angel's father could have put his family in heretofore in Westchester, with a penthouse on Park Avenue just as an overnight hang-out, so great was his talent as an artist. But instead of working and making his, his wife's and daughter's way, Mr. Thorn would lock himself in a room of a good New York hotel, and having had all the furniture moved out except the bed, the phone disconnected, he would stay for weeks in solitude—drinking.

Editors, art directors, presidents of advertising agencies, newspaper proprietors themselves in person, would beat upon the locked door pleading and begging Mr. Thorn to come out and do a cover for magazine, or a sketch for a silk-stocking contract—just work for half a day and then go back! But Angel's father would have none of them.

A month, and Angel's father would be dutifully back at work; doing a cover of pretty maidens faces, and painting a landscape background.

Meanwhile Angel's mother would be going without apparatus or bacon so she might buy a few yards of chiffon; and herself, stitch by stitch, fashion it into an excuse for an evening-gown for her daughter.

As a result, Angel had enormous talents for both drinking and art. In five minutes Angel could hand you a slick poster-like drawing of yourself. But the poor child was inhibited on the two subjects as far as she herself was concerned. With her mother's New England determination, Angel refused to consider art as a career, and was bent upon educating herself to earn money in a sane and staid way, but depending upon the side, and not (which made Hope like her instantly, and give her dresses to be dyed and disguised) "just for the fun of it."

If the truth were known, and it would become gradually obvious as truths will, Angel would have been a Latin with an eye to being one of the Ross set for a purpose. And that purpose never even guessed how much he meant in her life. Rusty Crandall, even when he learned to like Angel, never dreamed how much his every word and smile meant to her.

These comprised the five couples that Hope had finally chosen for her nine-day party in the glistening snowy peaks of Lake Placid.

The entourage, however, did not stop there. Bessie, Mrs. Ross's personal maid, accompanied Hope to watch over the Pekinese, the five young ladies and their wardrobes.

Mr. John Howard Ross, and one of his favored business associates, were aboard the same train, puffing at cigars and playing chess in the compartment.

Finally, there were five horses from the Ross stables, including Hope's white darling, Robin Hood. These, however, had been shipped three days ahead, along with Nick the groom, and Mister Fallows who was Papa's secretary, and would always be called Mister Fallows.

Mister Fallows would have been a charming chap were he not so all-fired efficient. At the moment he was sulking feverishly because his mild and well-mannered administration of Miss Sarah (alias Goody Ross) was miserably threatened by the appearance of one blond embryonic lawyer named Charlie Rand. As a matter of witness statistics, Mister Fallows, with his hundred and a quarter a far better chance of supporting Miss Sarah than any boy who had two more years to go before he was admitted to the bar. Mister Fallows could boast to the bar of some twenty-six speakasies in New York City as it was! He could not, however, boast of Charlie Rand's family—and there, if you please, was the rub!

Shanghai

It is along the litter that the visitor discovers the most superstitious Chinese. The fortune tellers of the street employ all methods of foretelling the sex of children; the success of business ventures; or what leave you. Phrenology, tea leaves, cards—these and more enter into the ways and means used by the dozens of self-advertising tellers of fortune.

One might go on and on, describing particularly the Chinese part of the great melting pot. Its virtues and sins would readily fill volumes. Chinese dwellings and the houses of foreigners exist side by side. Chinese artisans and coolies work, in many cases, alongside the residents of Shanghai who have come from other lands. The traffic of the world, and of the many sorts in the world, all intermingle in Shanghai, doing their respective jobs in their respective ways, but nevertheless, doing them.

The great communities of our own country, of London and of Europe, have their own polyglot districts and their foreign settlements, but Shanghai is Shanghai. There is no other, and truly, it comes nearer than any other to up-setting Mr. Kipling's statement to the effect that "never the twain shall meet." R.S.K.—(From Kansas City Star.)

Meeting Place Of Gamblers
Foochow is the road that holds much of the city's night life so far as the Chinese are concerned. In fact, it also concerns, for one cause or another, many foreigners.

"Thieves' Market," just off this street, which, incidentally, holds many unadvertised gambling establishments, is the meeting place of those Chinese gentry who admittedly belong to a union of pickpockets and other criminal activities.

Avenue Edward VII, still farther removed from Nanking road, a broad, winding highway, marks the beginning of France. The aspect of that section of Shanghai has changed greatly with the passage of the years. For it once was the home of gambling houses, saloons and kindred establishments, maintained for the "benefit" of the sailors of all nations.

It probably is the strictly Chinese part of Shanghai that the greatest interest abounds for the tourist. For it is here that the true picture of a Chinese city, crammed with humanity, is seen and encountered. Native guides through every entrance, clinging regardless of dismissals to every visitor entering the section.

Even the sun has a hard time of it in getting its searching rays up on the streets of the section, a fact due to the extreme narrowness of every thoroughfare therein. The shops form a jumbled mass of display places for the sale of thousands of articles. The whole amounts to a most disorderly array and one whose sometimes terrific odors could not be overcome by any perfume.

Street For Each Craft
The street of the ivory carvers, with piles upon piles of finely carved ivory awaiting the inspection of prospective purchasers; jewelry street, filled with junks what the unofficial title implies as well as a motley horde of beggars, who stop at nothing to win the sympathy of the visitor. The street of the portrait painters; the lane of the fortune tellers and soothsayers.

Slaughter's Ox Teams Hitched To Buffalo Shown in Early Picture

One of the earliest pictures ever taken in Big Spring was brought into the Herald office by H. R. Wood, Monday morning. It apparently dates farther back than the splendid Alec Mitchell Collection of Mrs. Gray's.

Two teams of oxen occupy the foreground, each of them seven yoke teams. The head one is driven by W. McWhirter, who is shown on his horse. The other team was W. W. Nevin, an uncle of Mr. Wood, who left this picture to his sister, Mr. Wood's mother, now of Abilene.

The second team has a buffalo hitched with the oxen. The teams are hauling posts for the hundreds of miles of fences which C. C. Slaughter was just then beginning to erect around his extensive sections.

The oxen are lined up in front of a two-story house that H. Clay Read said occupied the corner where Hokus-Pokus now is. No business houses are in sight.

City Teams Enter Last Week's Play

The First Methodist Church had practically a clinch to win the city league-cage title as the four teams entered upon the final week of play with the leaders holding a two game advantage over their nearest rivals, the East Fourth Baptists, who defeated the Christians 23 to 13 Saturday night.

This evening the 1st Baptists meet the Methodists in the curtain-raiser and the 4th Baptists play the Christians in the nightcap. Tuesday the Fourth and First Baptists meet, and the Methodists play the Christians in the second game. The First Baptists and the Christians are booked for Wednesday's contest and the season will come to a close.

SPORTS ON PARADE

Friday and Saturday there will be a basketball tournament in Austin. There'll be thirteen teams entered. Big Spring, however, won't be among the number. Out here where men are men and the women make them ashamed of the fact we'll be divvling our interest between spring football, track, tennis, and maybe checkers for a few of the higher intellectual types.
Aw, well, basketball, come to think of it, isn't that a hot sport anyhow! Water polo is lots more fun.

"Nig" Spain, the black-haired giant who captained the Breckenridge basketballers, qualified as the best forward in West Texas during the playoff series between the Stears and the Buckaroos for the bi-district title. Spain, you will remember, was the stalwart that was high point man of all three games. He was the gentleman that turned the tide in favor of the Greenies in the deciding game.
When Shotwell's brigade came on to the courts at the beginning of the second half Saturday night they were trailing 10 to 7. Then Spain began to shoot. When he wasn't shooting he was faking and passing to Todd, which was just as thorough if not as spectacular.
When Spain and Todd became tired it wasn't a basketball game
any longer.

Four of the regulars of this year's team have scampared over a court for the last time in the trium, black uniforms of the Big Spring Steers. They are David Hopper, J. C. Morgan, Bill Flowers, and Lloyd Forrester, the nucleus of the team this year and veterans of the 1931 championship squad. Of the probable letterman only Cecil Reid, Lillian Harris, and Elmer Dyer remain to guarantee a winning team in 1932.
Coming up from the reserves will be Roger Franklin, Henry Richbourg, Orville Hildreth, Richard Lefever and Jack Deat. Ben Daniels' roster will probably be stripped of such players as Bob Flowers, Freddie Townsend, Vandell
Woods, Olie Cordell, and Hiram Little.

We predict a winner again next season. Harris has come forward with a rush this year to develop into an excellent forward, and with a year of seasoning should be an excellent player. Dyer is already an good a guard as any of 'em. Dean is an elongated youth that has promises of being a top-notch and Reid should improve over this season's form, and when in good health he was the best center outside of Coppinger of Abilene that we saw in action this year. The Devils offer two of the most polished players around this neck of the woods in Freddie Townsend and Vandell Woods, but both may find their lack of height a handicap. Franklin is a neat guard, and Little, Flowers, and Cordell are prospective giants with plenty of promise.

It looks as if Big Spring High is due for a winning team in every branch of sport this season. Football, of course, was a success with the Bovines chalking up 398 points to their opponents' 7. Basketball was even better with a district championship as the result of their efforts and a small fortune in trophies. And in track there is a raft of candidates, led by Itasca
Dennis, Henry Richbourg, Cecil
Reid, and Carleton Coburn. Dennis was tossing the shot the other afternoon in excess of forty feet,
and it is said that it takes telephone connections to determine just how far he can hurl the javelin, while Reid is due to repeat in the mile at the district this year and better his mark of third place in the state. Coburn is a nice high jumper who can clear the bar at around five eleven, and Richbourg has been known to better twenty feet in the broad jump.
Forrester, Hopper, Denton, Flowers, and Heblsen are other promising men. Flowers should be a better hurdler than he was in 1931,
while Heblsen is depended upon

14 Dead In Northwest After Heavy Rainfall Following Deep Snows

SEATTLE (UP)—Fourteen persons were dead and railroad and motor traffic was blocked at many points, with numerous towns isolated and others abandoned because of record rains and warm weather for February, followed closely by a record
snowfall in Washington and Idaho.
Unconfirmed reports were that six persons had drowned in an automobile near Cedar Falls and another man is believed dying as the result of being caught in an av-arance in Cascades, which carried away four homes at Edgewick and killed outright seven persons.
The Skagit river canyon still held the bodies of four Seattle light and power workmen, three of whom were drowned in floods.
