Convenience store's zoning change rejected after area residents object

Strong opposition Thursday afternoon from residents in the area of a proposed convenience store resulted in the Pampa Zoning Commission denying a request by Roy Sparkman for commercial zoning east of Evergreen, on the south side of 23rd Avenue. The area residents said they feared locating a Walmart store near the Calvary Baptist Church on East 23rd Avenue would present hazards to the peace and tranquility of their neighborhood. They cited objections to the storage of gasoline and additional traffic as well as the litter they said is inevitable around a convenience store. Bill Cox said a convenience store would devalue the surrounding property, disturb the sight and view cause a lack of privacy and objected to the gathering of teenagers and their noise. He said teenagers would park at the store and play their loud music which would disturb the tranquility of the neighborhood. Neva Weeks, a realtor, said much the same thing, adding the dangers of additional traffic would present to the children of the neighborhood. After listening to the voices of the people, the commission voted to deny the application for a zoning change. A request to change zoning from agriculture to two family dwellings a 10 - lot parcel of land east of the Calvary Baptist Church on the south side of 23rd Avenue was approved. Roy Sparkman told commission members he plans to put in duplex - type two - family dwellings, each side being a minimum of 1,500 square feet per family. There will be paved alleys and cul - de - sacs with underground utility installations around the single story duplexes. A request by Herman Jeter for a zoning change from single family, SF-2, residential to office district classification of a three acre parcel of land south of Crane Road and north of North Crest Road was approved. All of the zoning changes were referred to the City Commission for final approval. The commission tabled for further study a proposed ordinance regulating carports. The amendment to a present building ordinance would provide for building regulations and inspection of completed carports. The next zoning board meeting will be August 18.

Senators reach agreement on way to stop the filibuster on MX funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican leaders and senators opposed to the MX missile agreed today on a plan to end a filibuster over the nuclear weapon and pass a $200 billion defense bill next Tuesday. Announcement of the accord by Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., came less than an hour before a scheduled vote to force a limitation on debate that has occupied the Senate nearly full time for 10 days. The vote was canceled. Under the agreement, the MX opponents will bring up their amendments Monday to ban production of or place conditions on the missile, with two hours of debate allotted for each. A final vote on the bill will be made no later than 9 p.m. EDT Tuesday. But, he warned, "there are still a lot of stones to be turned, a lot of clearances to be made" before the agreement could be sealed. About 15 liberal senators, led by Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., have held up completion of the 1984 military authorization bill by demanding prolonged debate on the Reagan administration's plan to place 100 MXs in underground silos that now house Minuteman 3 missiles. Baker tried Thursday morning to force an end to the debate by invoking cloture, a parliamentary rule under which each senator would have only one hour to speak. But the 55-41 vote fell short of the 60 votes needed for approval. Baker was said to believe he had a good chance of obtaining the 60 votes on a second attempt today, if the negotiators were unable to reach agreement beforehand. The negotiations among Baker, Hart, Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd Jr., D-W.Va., and others focused on Hart's insistence that pro-MX senators answer arguments against the 10-warhead missiles. MX supporters, confident they will prevail when the issue finally comes to a Senate vote, have largely ignored the debate. Among the critics oft-repeated contentions has been that placing the weapons in silos already believed to be targeted by the Soviet Union could require that the missiles be launched merely on warning of an impending attack. Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., also said that in proceeding with the MX, the administration was embarking on a new phase of the arms race that could end with missiles being based in space. And, he said in a speech that reached a shout at times, its arms control policies are controlled by officials who have shown a "demonstrated instinct for nuclear madness. In one sharp exchange Thursday night, Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., challenged Sen. John Warner, R-Va., to dispute an estimate that 85 percent to 95 percent of the MXs would be wiped out in their silos. Warner chose to respond that Hart, who is seeking the Democratic presidential nomination, had attended only one of the 15 hearings held this year by the Senate Armed Services nuclear forces subcommittee — and then for only 18 minutes. The committee chairman, Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, also has pointedly noted Hart's absence from the panel's drafting sessions on the bill. MX supporters say Congress must approve producing the missiles so the Soviet Union will negotiate seriously on a treaty to trim the superpowers' arsenals of land-based, intercontinental weapons. Administration lobbyists, led by President Reagan, emphasized that argument in letters and telephone calls before the House endorsed MX production in a 220-207 vote Wednesday night.

Pampa's young students get longer school days

By JULIA CLARK
Staff Writer

Pampa school children in grades one through five will be in school fifteen minutes longer each day starting this fall. Assistant Superintendent John English said Thursday at the school board meeting. English said elementary school children (not including kindergarten) will begin their school days at 8:15 each morning starting with classes this fall. Pampa Independent School District Board of Trustees discussed the lengthened school day during their regular meeting Thursday afternoon, awarded bids and conducted other business. It has been the general practice for primary grade children to have a shorter day because they become tired and have a shorter attention span, English said earlier this spring. Pampa's problem started when PISD officials heard earlier this year about the possibility of a Dallas school district being in noncompliance with a Texas law governing education. Section 21.004 of the Texas Education Code says, "A school day shall be taught for not less than seven hours each day, including intermissions and recesses." After state education commissioner Raymon Bynum studied the problem involving several other districts in the state, he issued an interpretation of the law and instructions on how it should be implemented. For Pampa elementary school children all this means they will start their school day at 8:15 each morning. According to English it won't make "that much difference in the length of the day for teachers or students. The teachers are already required to be at the school at 8 a.m., so the only difference, he said, is the students will hear the first bell at 8:10 and the tardy bell at 8:15. Previously the first bell was at 8:15 a.m. and the tardy bell at 8:30. At this time, English said there are no plans to lengthen the secondary level school day. School hours for grades six through 12 will remain the same. The Pampa High School marching band drummers will be keeping time to the beat of new drums this fall. The board members awarded the following bids band instruments and food stuffs: Four snare drums, one marching bass drum and five marching snare drums and protectors will be purchased from Lone Star Percussion Company in Dallas for a total of $3,859.59. PISD will purchase bread, hamburger buns and hotdog buns from Mrs. Baird's bakery, and nonfat white and nonfat chocolate flavored milk from Borden's dairy. The board members approved advertising for bids for a second 15-passenger van for the school district. The Pampa High School Concert Choir received permission to participate in the Six Flags Over Texas Choral Festival in Arlington next spring. The trip will be paid for with funds earned by the students through their regular fund-raising activities a magazine subscription renewal program, a car wash and a cheese and sausage sale. In other business the board accepted the due bills and invoices, and budget report, and localized policy update. The following resignations were accepted by the board of trustees: Susan B. Boyd, Baker fourth grade teacher; Ed Lehnick, physical education coordinator teacher; Emmarie Lehnick, Pampa Middle School English teacher; Sharon Balcom, Pampa Middle School math teacher; Angel Cook, Pampa Middle School special education teacher; Miles Strieber Jr., Pampa High School physical science teacher; Frankie Jarrell, Pampa High School CVAE homemaking advisor; Roxanne Johnson, Pampa High School volleyball coach and Baker P.E. teacher; Jerry Johnson, Pampa High School P.E. teacher; and Jema Allen, Pampa High School swimming coach and Pampa Middle School science teacher. The following recommendations for employment were accepted by the board: Melodie J. McGinnis, Baker fourth grade teacher; Kelli J. Lancaster, Baker second grade teacher; Billie "Gail" Cole, Pampa High School history - sociology teacher; Barbara M. Nichols, Baker third grade teacher; Kimberly L. Van Kirk, Baker first grade teacher; Melvin L. Morris, Pampa Middle School coach and P.E. teacher; Lynn D. Pappo, Pampa Middle School English and history teacher; Joan M. Perry, Baker music teacher; Cindy B. Kelly, Pampa Middle School reading teacher; Sheila B. Cheatwood, Pampa Middle School science teacher; and Euleen M. Doss, Pampa Middle School special education teacher.

Poland lifts martial law but warns dissenters to stay off public streets

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — After enduring 19 months of martial law, Poles awoke today with civilian government reinstated but with tough new laws in place to suppress dissent. Premier Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, the Communist Party chief, told a nationwide television audience Thursday that he was rescinding martial law today because of what he called a return to tranquility after months of unrest. But Jaruzelski's speech came after the Communist-controlled Parliament granted the civilian government emergency power to suspend civil liberties and passed legislation to strengthen the police and tighten restrictions on workers, students and academics. "Anarchy will not return to Poland," said Jaruzelski, dressed in military uniform. "Any attempts at anti-state activity will be curbed no less unwaveringly than during martial law." Jaruzelski decreed martial law Dec. 13, 1981, to crush 16 months of strikes and political challenges by the independent Solidarity union. Solidarity was suspended and formally outlawed last October, although the union and its leader, Lech Walesa, remain popular. Today's return to civilian government coincides with Poland's national day, and was accompanied by a limited amnesty freeing about 800 martial-law violators. But the amnesty does not extend to seven fugitive members of Solidarity. "Organizers of counter-revolution should harbor no illusions whatsoever," Jaruzelski said. "The lifting of martial law is not tantamount to the cessation of struggling with evil and crime. Law enforcement organs should hit hard at this dangerous fringe." Jaruzelski's warning came less than a month before the third anniversary of Solidarity, formed during Gdansk shipyard strikes. Walesa and underground Solidarity leaders have hinted there will be anniversary protests. Walesa said by telephone from his Gdansk home that the end of martial law presented a "new situation, so it will be necessary to talk it over, take a closer look at it and adjust and finally find methods of implementing the August accords." Those accords briefly allowed Solidarity to function independently of the government. Lifting the military decree will have little noticeable effect on the daily lives of Poles. Indifference appeared to be the general reaction among Polish citizens at first.

Red Adair crew studying well blowout

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Experts were studying possible ways of containing a gas well blowout in the Gulf of Mexico that forced the evacuation of 38 crewmen and devastated a rig near Port Aransas. No one was injured when the well blew out about 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, but the rig, owned by Penrod Drilling Co. of Dallas, was heavily damaged and tipped on its side, said Jim Flatt, manager of Exxon's South Texas production division. Experts from Red Adair's Houston-based company that specializes in containing well fires and blowouts were summoned to study ways of tapping the leaking gas. The crewmen, who were employees of Exxon, Penrod and other contractors, evacuated the rig "by lifeboat according to established evacuation procedures," Flatt said. Glen Coker, manager of North Bank Terminal, an offshore drilling base in Ingleside, said the rig "was almost lying in a 45-degree angle and 75-percent submerged" when he flew over it Thursday. Penrod's rig had been at the site, 15 miles offshore from Port Aransas, about a week to drill for gas under contract to Exxon, Flatt said. Lt. Jim Watson, a Coast Guard spokesman, said the drillers hit a natural gas pocket that blew off the top of the 147-foot-tall derrick and one of the rig's three legs. "We're evaluating right now the cause of the incident," said Flatt. He said the well was venting dry gas to the surface. Such gas is "basically what you and I burn in our furnace at home," Flatt said. "It has no liquids associated with it." A news release distributed by Exxon Thursday said there was no pollution and no fire.

West German peace movement prepares for a 'hot autumn'

BONN, West Germany (AP) — West Germany's growing peace movement is flexing its muscles for a final push this fall to try and stop deployment of new U.S.-built medium-range nuclear missiles here. Bigger and more popular than ever, the movement hopes to make it "politically unbearable" for Chancellor Helmut Kohl to stick by the planned NATO deployment, its leaders say. "I don't think it is possible to stop the weapons physically. But they can be stopped politically, by creating a political climate in which deployment cannot be carried out," said Jo Leinen, a member of the movement's steering committee in Bonn. The key element of this strategy is to pour millions of people onto the streets Oct. 15-22 for what leaders claim will be "the largest protests in the history of West Germany." The Kohl government has repeatedly assured its allies in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization it will cooperate with the planned deployment of 572 new Pershing 2 and cruise missiles if there is no progress in arms talks with the Soviets.

West Germany is to receive 204 of the missiles, more than any other country, including all of the Pershing 2s, which the Soviets have labeled "first-strike" weapons. But growing public support and new polls showing 72 percent of the population against the NATO plan are fueling the movement's hopes to stop, reduce or delay the deployment. The peace movement now has 1.5 million to 3 million active members, according to Interior Ministry estimates. Support for the movement has greatly widened in the past year. What began in the late 1970s as several religious, pacifist and ecological groups is now a movement attracting support from Christians, union members and professional organizations. Leaders of the powerful German Trade Union Federation have called on the union's 8 million member to join the anti-missile demonstrations this fall. The nation's largest political party, the opposition Social Democrats, has also given the green light to its 940,000 members to participate in the demonstrations. Two years ago, when one of its own, Helmut Schmidt, was chancellor, the party forbade its members to participate in an anti-missile demonstration that drew 300,000 people to Bonn. In June, 20,000 Protestants marched through the streets of Hannover to underscore demands that their church take a stronger stand for disarmament. The same week, some 500 lawyers and state attorneys from around the country gathered in Munich to issue a declaration urging the government to back out of its deployment plans. Organizations of scientists, doctors, mayors and artists have made similar declarations. Some 150 members of the Christian Democratic Union — Kohl's own party — announced they were also against deployment and would be joining the peace movement's street protests. One of CDU missile opponents, Franz Alt, called on Kohl to reconsider deployment from a moral and Christian standpoint. Alt, a devout Roman Catholic, said the "spiritual sickness of our time" is that "we believe only in the bomb."

All of this leads people like Joschka Fischer, a member of the anti-NATO Greens party, to claim that the political price of deployment is "incalculable" for Kohl. On Thursday, the Greens released a nine-page list of peace movement activities planned between now and Nov. 1, including fasts, marches, blockades and camps outside NATO military installations. But the conservatives in the Kohl government are not remaining passive in the face of what is being called the coming "hot autumn" of protests. This week, Christian Democrat General Secretary Heiner Geissler announced his party would have its own street demonstrations this fall in support of the NATO deployment decision. The CDU also will publish thousands of leaflets explaining the government's position, Geissler said. Peace movement leaders said this move shows the CDU is getting worried. "They are afraid their own base is going away," said Eva Michels, a member of the Berlin-based religious group Aktion Suehnezeichen and a staffer at the anti-missile movement's office in Bonn.

Shelling closes Beirut airport

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Militiamen shelled Beirut international airport from nearby mountains today, killing a Lebanese worker and wounding at least five people including a Marine in the first attack on the facility since it was reopened 10 months ago.

Government soldiers sealed off the airport after the barrage from the Druse-Christian militia battleground in the mountains east of Beirut. Police said the shells wrecked 16 cars and ignited fires.

Ambulances and fire brigades rushed to the airport, which Public Works Minister Pierre Khoury ordered closed. Incoming planes were diverted to other Middle East cities.

In the mountain town of Aley, a roadside bomb exploded as an Israeli patrol passed this morning, wounding 11 soldiers, 10 of them slightly, the military command in Tel Aviv reported. Troops searched for suspects, the command said.

The intensifying violence underscored the deterioration of security conditions since Israel announced Wednesday it would pull its forces out of the turbulent mountain region.

It was not clear which militia fired at the airport from the hills overlooking Beirut where Christian and Druse gunners have been battling. But Christian-run radio stations claimed the shells claimed from Druse and Syrian mountaintop positions in central Lebanon.

A spokesman for the British peacekeeping force patrolling Beirut said at least 10 rounds fell on the airport area, base of the 1,200 U.S. Marines serving with the four-nation 5,400-man force. The British are deployed across from the Marine zone in view of the airport.

State radio said one Lebanese airport employee was killed and four others wounded in the bombardment. Lebanese military sources said the shelling wounded six government soldiers.

No U.S. positions were reported hit. But Marine spokesman Warrant Officer Charles Rowe of San Francisco said a Marine lance corporal was slightly wounded in the shoulder by flying shrapnel.

Rowe said the barrage lasted "no more than 15 minutes."

State radio said the Lebanese army's air base in the airport compound was the target of the mid-morning shelling and that pilots immediately flew the aircraft away so shells would not hit them.

The shelling came only hours after stray shells from a Christian-Druse shootout hit the coastal Christian areas north of Beirut and the Christian populated mountain resort of Beit Merri.

Police said the overnight militia fire killed two civilians in the mountains, downed power lines to Beirut and knocked out a satellite station in Syrian-controlled central Lebanon, blacking out nationwide television coverage of President Amin Gemayel's visit to Washington. The downed lines forced Beirut officials to ration power in the capital, police said.

The Christians and Druse have been warring for months in the Chouf and Aley mountains overlooking the Lebanese capital. Hundreds have been killed and abducted.

Today's airport shelling coincided with Gemayel's meeting with President Reagan today at the White House to seek more aid, peacekeeping soldiers and diplomatic pressure aimed at getting 28,000 Israeli troops, 50,000 Syrians and 12,000 Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas out of his country.

Israel invaded Lebanon 13 months ago to destroy PLO guerrilla bases and has refused to withdraw from Lebanon unless Syria and the PLO do likewise. Syrian troops have been in Lebanon since the 1975-76 civil war.

Also in Washington, the Reagan administration announced Thursday that David Dodge, acting president of the American University in Beirut, was freed in good health one year after pro-Iranians seized him in Lebanon.

U.S. officials in Washington and Beirut said Dodge was secretly flown home Thursday, and Syria helped gain his release. They said no ransom was paid but refused to reveal more details. Dodge's U.S. whereabouts were not disclosed.

Dodge, 61, was seized on campus July 19, 1982 by two armed men who shouted they belonged to Amal, Lebanon's pro-Iranian Shiite Muslim militia. The New York Times in today's editions quoted unidentified administration officials as saying he had been held in Iran for at least the past six months.

Board approves lakes sewage ban

AUSTIN (AP) — Despite complaints that the action could triple sewage rates in the area, the Texas Water Development Board has protected lakes Austin and Travis with the state's stiffest anti-pollution rules.

The 5-1 vote on Thursday set a two-year ban on wastewater discharge into the lake. The ban also covers 10 miles out on tributaries that pour into the two Colorado River lakes.

The ban will remain in force until the completion of a two-year study of the effects of increased sewage discharges into the lakes, which are popular recreation areas. Both lakes are attracting rapid growth.

Lake Austin supplies 85 percent of Austin's water supply.

The lakes are in the center of the city's struggle with growth. Austin state Rep. Terral Smith said the stringent rule will "save the future generations money."

But opponents said the ban would hit the current generation in its checkbook.

"I'm swimming upstream in a rather fast current," attorney Robert Lloyd said as he looked around the crowded room. Most of the people were there to support the rule, and applauded the vote.

Lloyd, representing a municipal utility district, said the rule would drive up the cost of wastewater plans.

"We shouldn't be put in the position of spending money to try to save the world," he testified.

Paul Phyl, representing the Lakeway MUD, said the rule should not have been adopted before the two-year study is completed.

"Otherwise, no one is playing with a full deck," he said, calling the action "a little bit like a hip-shooting arrangement."

Phyl predicted the rule could mean monthly sewage bills of $150.

But Tom Buckle, representing the Protect Lake Travis Association, said:

"We're not trying to squeeze off growth."

The new rule won strong backing from political leaders, including Gov. Mark White, whose letter to the board said: "The areas in the watersheds of both of these lakes are rapidly being developed. Now is the time to ensure that this development occurs in a manner whereby the quality of the waters in these two lakes are preserved."

Also supporting the new rule was the Austin Home Builders Association.

Board member Bo Pilgrim of Pittsburg failed to persuade colleagues to reject the staff recommendation, and do nothing until the completion of the study, scheduled for fall 1985.

"We haven't seen any technical data that says damage has been done under the present rules," he said, charging that the new rule could triple the cost of treating sewage.

Fire marshall disagrees with salesmen on number of smoke detectors needed in homes

People who are selling heat and smoke detectors here came into the newspaper office Thursday to object to a warning issued by Pampa Fire Marshal L.V. Bruce and printed in The Pampa News Wednesday.

Bruce had received some inquiries about the salesmen for Masterguard, based in Dallas, and he called The Pampa News to say that local citizens should think twice before buying the firm's products.

The fire marshal questioned the price of the heat and smoke detectors sold by Masterguard and the tactics and information the local salesmen are using.

Masterguard salesmen Jon Holmes and Ed Wette objected to Bruce's statement and the report in the newspaper, headlined "Beware of this salesman."

They said the local fire marshal is entitled to his opinion, but said their company is reputable and their products first-rate.

The men concede Masterguard heat and smoke detectors are much more expensive than other types of equipment sold in retail stores, but said their products are superior and worth the difference in price when lives are at stake.

Holmes and Wette also said Masterguard's parent firm is one of the largest manufacturers of all types of fire - protection and fire - fighting equipment in the country.

When asked Thursday about the salesman's objection to his report, Bruce said: "I'm not saying they're not good. What I'm saying is if people want to pay the price, let them pay it. But I'm still saying they're getting ripped off. What I'm saying is that they're too high."

When he first reported the firm's operation here, Bruce implied that Masterguard's sales presentation, which is given in homes, is hard-sell. The fire marshal said one woman told him the men tried to sell her eight smoke and heat detectors for a small two - bedroom house. She said she agreed to buy four heat detectors and one smoke detector for a total of $892.34.

After talking to the fire marshal, the woman asked Masterguard representatives to remove the smoke and heat detectors.

Holmes said he doesn't understand his customer's present dissatisfaction with her installed equipment.

"Her husband was there. When I left, I thought we were friends," the salesman said.

When he issued his report Tuesday, Bruce said he hadn't met the salesman in question.

After the Masterguard salesman talked to Bruce Thursday in his office at city hall, the fire marshal softened his opinion about the men's sales pitch.

"They seemed all right. I don't know if they pressured anybody or not," the fire marshal said.

Bruce also said there may be another group of smoke and heat - detector salesmen, who are not connected with Masterguard, operating in town now.

The fire marshal said adequate smoke detectors are available in retail stores for $30 or less, and he said he disagrees with the salesmen about the number of detectors needed in a home.

Holmes and Wette said their fire - protection system sells for "$300 and up," depending on the home.

The salesmen said their products use a superior process of detection than the less expensive smoke detectors sold in retail stores, that their detectors are guaranteed for up to 25 years, and are worth the difference in price for the lives they can save.

Holmes and Wette said they both live in Nebraska now but will move to the Panhandle soon and plan to sell Masterguard detectors in the entire area.

"They told me that they would try to do a good job, and if they got any complaints, to call them and they and they would take care of it," Bruce said Thursday.

Passengers thwart plane's hijacker

MIAMI (AP) — After a quick exchange of hand signals when an unwary air pirate put his knife down, a bedsheet salesman and a middle-aged executive foiled a hijacking by grabbing the man's arms and holding him until he could be tied down.

The attempted hijacking of the Northwest Orient Airlines jet, which was on a Tampa-to-Miami flight Thursday, came a day after the Federal Aviation Administration announced new steps to combat a rash of hijackings to Cuba. There were two successful hijackings earlier this week, and eight since May 1.

The man suspected of trying to divert Flight 714 to Cuba was identified as Rodolfo Bueno Cruz, 42, the FBI said.

Cruz was arrested when the Boeing 727 landed in Miami and will be charged with air piracy, said FBI spokesman Chris Mazzella. A preliminary hearing was scheduled before a U.S. magistrate today.

Passenger Dewey Parker, a Miami steamship executive, said the incident began when Cruz, seated across the aisle, asked for help in calling a stewardess.

"When the stewardess arrived, he wrestled her into the seat" and pulled a five-inch knife, said Parker, 45. "At that point we just stayed calm. The stewardess told him, 'I'd like to get up and serve drinks.' But he said, 'No, you're my insurance policy.'"

Cruz then sent another stewardess to the cockpit to tell the captain to fly to Cuba, Parker said.

About 20 minutes later Parker noticed that Cruz had put the knife on the seat under his legs, so he "signaled silently" to Blake Bell, 29, a sales representative from Miami, who was sitting in the window seat next to the stewardess.

Unemployment levels continuing to drop

That's still a long, long way from what economists speak of as "full employment" — a jobless rate of about 6 percent. To get there, notes Morgan Guaranty Trust of New York, the number of people without jobs would have to shrink to about 6.75 million.

"In short," the bank's economists said, "more than 4 million new jobs need to be created — in addition, of course, to job creation to take care of normal growth in the labor force. Obviously, such a major task cannot be accomplished quickly."

Yet some economists maintain that the raw statistics don't fully reflect some positive developments. In a recent report, Paul J. Groncki of New York's Citibank said the slight decline in June was "more than the continuation of a downtrend that began after the rate peaked in December."

In previous months, Groncki said, the gains were due mainly to the departure from the labor force of discouraged workers. Through May, he said, there was a net decline of 400,000 in the labor force.

"But with June's report comes the news that 1.2 million additional people reported they had jobs, resulting in the first rate decline clearly driven by employment gains in this recovery." It was, he said, "the best indication we have so far that the rate is dropping because employment, not pessimism, is on the rise."

"Moreover, the job count has improved across a wide spectrum of industries. All major industrial sectors except services and finance, insurance and real estate suffered employment losses during the downturn. But by June, employment was above December's level in all but a handful of sectors — the exceptions including oil and coal production, mining and transportation and public utilities."

Congressmen seek early 1984 feed grains program announcement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Grain Belt congressmen, uncertain over the economic ramifications of the administration's surplus reduction program, are trying to force Agriculture Secretary John Block to announce the 1984 feed grains program two months early.

They also want to force the same kind of early announcement for the 1985 crops of both feed grains and wheat, claiming their farmers need the information earlier than they've been getting it to effectively plan for a new crop.

One of the things contributing to farmers' problems in recent past, argues Rep. Berkley Bedell, D-Iowa, is that they haven't found out until too late what the rules for federal price support protection will be for the coming crop.

This year, in fact, the farm program was not completely announced until January, four months after winter wheat farmers planted their crop and less than two months before producers of spring crops headed into the fields.

But Block's top economist, Assistant Agriculture Secretary William Lesher, says the early announcements like Bedell and others want are likely to result in mistaken program decisions that will affect farmers even more adversely.

"The errors made with too early of an announcement are too great and the risks too high," Lesher told Bedell and other members of the House Agriculture grains subcommittee Thursday.

He said the administration would do everything possible to announce the 1984 feed grains program by the end of September, six weeks early.

But the panel ignored Lesher's advice and voted 12-1 for legislation setting the earlier program dates. Under the bill, Block must announce the 1984 corn and feed grains program by Sept. 16. Current law requires the announcement by Nov. 15.

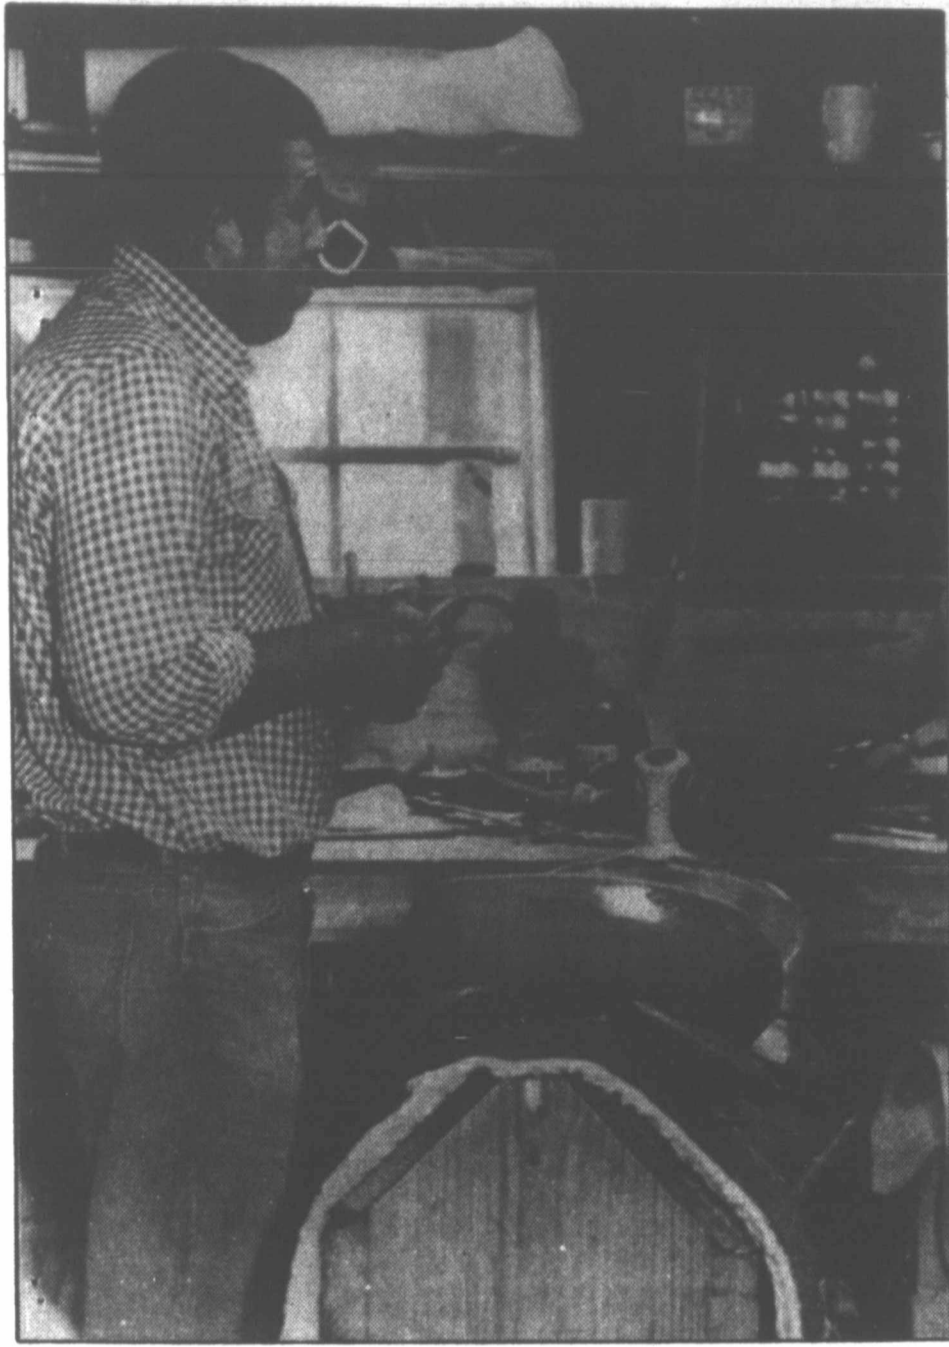

Next year he would have until Sept. 21 to announce the program for the 1985 crop, but he would have to accelerate the announcement of the program for 1985 wheat from the current deadline of Aug. 15 to July 1.

The federal crop program is crucial to many farmers. It includes the government's policy on how much land they must idle to remain eligible for price support protection and to a certain extent what the level of price support protection will be. For this year's crops, it also included the optional payment-in-kind, or PIK, program.

If farmers don't abide by the program — which mainly means idling the required acreage — then they forfeit any price support protection. During the recent seasons of depressed commodity markets that protection has been critical to the economic survival of many producers.

Lesher acknowledged that farmers need a lot of lead time to plan for seed, fuel, machinery and fertilizer needs.

Saddle shop carries visitors back a century

SULPHUR SPRINGS, Texas (AP) — On a side street near the railroad tracks just off Oak Avenue, there's a small shop in a sheet metal building set among tanks and brick buildings of the last century.

Step inside and the smell of leather, oil, horses and men takes the visitor into the 1880s.

The Frontier Saddlery is a saddle shop and the work place of two craftsmen, or rather, craftspersons — Inez Garcia and Faye Geiger. It is also a place where an item for everyday use is made lovingly by hand.

Garcia is a saddlemaker and Ms. Geiger is a leather-tooler. The only piece of powered machinery in the place is a sewing machine.

Garcia and Geiger pooled their resources — which consisted mostly of their talents, experience and a shared dream — just over a year ago.

"We didn't have any money, either one of us, but we had thought about it for a long time, and the time came when we had to do it," Garcia said.

They had worked for a well-known saddlery for a number of years — Garcia for 16 years and Ms. Geiger for 10.

Garcia said he kept thinking about making something that carried his stamp and his ideas. He

Board gets report on nursing shortage

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas College and University System Coordinating Board was scheduled to get a report today saying the recent improvements in state and nationwide nursing shortages may only be temporary.

Texas nursing schools must be ready to deal with unexpected shortages in the future," said an 18-month study of nursing education presented the board at its quarterly meeting.

The report added that economic difficulties have eased the nursing shortage temporarily by forcing nurses back into the work force and by reducing demands for medical services.

The study committee recommended mechanisms to ensure an adequate nursing supply in the state despite economic fluctuations.

The report said the current need for additional nurses in Texas hospitals has dropped from 9,700 to 7,300 since 1981.

'Rational thinking' after murder key to Robinson's death sentence, juror reports

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The key factor that led to a death sentence for Larry Keith Robinson was the "rational thinking" the 25-year-old former mental patient displayed after five people were killed last August, a juror said.

Robinson was convicted Wednesday of capital murder for stabbing and shooting Bruce M. Gardner, 33, one of five victims found shot and stabbed in two adjacent Lake Worth cottages.

The jury, choosing between life in prison or death by lethal injection, opted for the death penalty Thursday.

Prosecutors said they would evaluate Robinson's automatic appeal before deciding whether to try him in the slayings of the other victims — Georgia Ann Reed, 34; her son, Scott Reed, 11; her mother, Earline H. Barker, 55; and Rickey Lee Bryant, 31.

Bryant, who shared his home with Robinson and who was portrayed by witnesses as Robinson's lover, was decapitated and sexually mutilated.

The question of whether Robinson would continue to be a threat to society was the question "that posed the most problem to the jurors," the Fort Worth Star-Telegram quoted a juror, who was not identified, as saying.

To assess the death penalty, a jury must conclude that a murder was committed deliberately and that there is a probability the defendant will continue to pose a threat to society.

"It does somewhat make you a seer. None of us can do that. We all had to be sure in our minds that we felt there was a probability," the juror said.

The jury answered the question of whether Robinson was insane by concentrating on the Gardner murder, the juror said.

"We were looking at only one case ... There was evidence of rational thinking."

In seeking the death sentence, prosecutors argued Thursday that Robinson indicated he would kill again when he bought three boxes of .22-caliber bullets at a Fort Worth store before fleeing in Gardner's car to Wichita, Kan., last Aug. 10.

Defense attorneys speculated that Robinson planned to kill himself with the gun.

"With 150 bullets?" prosecutor Larry Moore asked the jury in his closing arguments.

The jury's verdict in the punishment phase came at 5:30 p.m. Thursday after four hours of deliberation.

Just before the verdict was read, Robinson smiled at his former wife and kissed a picture of their daughter. But he showed no emotion as the decision was announced, although members of his family began sobbing a few minutes later as State District Judge Charles Dickens pronounced the death sentence.

Moore said he felt pity for Robinson's family. "They have suffered just as much as the families of Bruce Gardner or Rickey Lee Bryant. This tragedy has touched all of their lives," he said.

According to Moore, District Attorney Tim Curry twice rejected offers by defense attorneys to plead Robinson guilty to five life sentences rather than face the capital murder trial.

"I'm disappointed about the verdict, but certainly, under the facts, it was not totally unexpected," said defense attorney Charles Roach.

Witness says sheriff not drunk at party

DALLAS (AP) — Eight defense witnesses, including the wife of a federal prosecutor, testified that Dallas County Sheriff Don Byrd was not drunk at a party he attended just hours before he wrecked his car.

Susan Rolfe, wife of U.S. Attorney James A. Rolfe, said she and her husband shared a table with Byrd during a dinner theater party April 16. "He was not intoxicated," she said.

During a theater presentation in which the audience was invited to take sides and hiss or boo the villains, Byrd ascended the stage twice to interact with actors while the play was in progress. Two members of the cast testified on Tuesday.

Mrs. Rolfe's testimony Thursday came as the defense began presenting its case on the third day of Byrd's non-jury trial on a misdemeanor driving while intoxicated charge.

Besides Mrs. Rolfe, seven other of Byrd's friends, subordinates, and social and professional acquaintances testified Thursday that the sheriff did not appear intoxicated in the hours before the accident, which took place early April 17 in suburban University Park.

No witnesses have testified about Byrd's activities between the party and the accident, in which Byrd's 1983 Lincoln Continental struck a concrete base of a traffic signal.

Morgan Robinette, Byrd's assistant chief deputy, said he photographed Byrd's car after the accident, inspected the scene of the accident, and concluded that Byrd's car was traveling about 30 mph when it struck the light pole.

A prosecution witness, Andrew Hunt, had estimated the car's speed at 50 to 60 mph.

University Park Police Capt. Ray Fletcher said, "according to what my officers told me," there was insufficient evidence to charge Byrd with driving while intoxicated.

But Police Chief David Beideman said he reopened the investigation in May after learning of the possible existence of a hospital test of Byrd's blood.

Mercy killing defendant arrested on marijuana charge

HOUSTON (AP) — Billy Ray Clore, given probation this week for shooting his comatose father in an attempted "mercy killing," was arrested after police received a complaint of a man driving his pickup on a sidewalk and harassing prostitutes, authorities said.

Officers said they found 3 grams — less than half an ounce — of marijuana in the Clore's truck when they arrested the 26-year-old man at 4 a.m. Thursday, police spokeswoman Phymeeon Jackson said.

Clore was charged with possession of marijuana and jailed under $1,500 bond. Miss Jackson said.

Dick Bax, who assisted in Clore's prosecution for attempted murder, said the new charge will not affect his three-year probation sentence. Bax said that Clore has not started serving his probation, so it cannot be revoked.

"The marijuana case will be handled on its own with its own merits," Bax said.

State District Judge Ted Poe, who presided over Clore's 2½-week trial, revoked Clore's personal recognizance bond in the attempted murder conviction. New bond in that case was set at $7,500.

Conviction on a charge of possessing less than 2 ounces of marijuana ranges from one day of probation to a six-month jail term and a $1,000 fine.

Clore's attorney, Jack Zimmermann, reached in Washington where he was giving a speech, said he was "surprised, but I don't know if it happened."

"I don't want to sound trite but we operate on the presumption of innocence," he said. He said he would be returning to Houston by the weekend and will investigate the case Monday.

Zimmermann's assistant, Michael Essmyer, said he was aware of the arrest but not familiar with the details.

"The only thing I can say is that the jury's verdict was still right," Essmyer said.

A jury on Monday decided on the probation. Clore could have received 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The same jury last Friday found Clore guilty of a reduced charge of attempted murder for the death of his 62-year-old father, Robert.

The elder Clore, who lapsed into a coma in November following a heart attack, was shot in the head March 21 at a nursing home. He died two weeks later.

Clore, who said wanted to end his father's suffering, originally was charged with murder. The charge was reduced to attempted murder after doctors disagreed over whether the gunshot had killed the elder Clore.

Meanwhile, the Harris County assistant medical examiner who prepared the autopsy report on Robert Clore, Dr. Martha Mattioli, submitted her resignation on Wednesday, citing personal reasons.

Ms. Mattioli was supposed to testify as a prosecution witness but was ill. Medical Examiner Joseph Jachimczyk, testifying in her place, concluded from her report that Clore's death was due to the shooting.

But a neurosurgeon, Dr. Floyd Haar, contacted prosecutors, saying he believed the bullet wound did not cause Clore's death. His opinions, as well as those of a doctor who treated the elder Clore, provided the basis for reduction of the charge against Billy Ray Clore.

The barriers to women

The Equal Rights Amendment has been introduced in Congress once again. It is difficult to predict whether it will pass this time around. It is rather easy to predict that it will once again be the occasion for a great deal of political wrangling. The danger is that concentration on the ERA may deflect the attention of those seeking to dismantle the barriers that prevent women from seeking and achieving their aspirations, whether in the home, the professions, the marketplace or in public life, from potentially more constructive endeavors.

It remains an anomaly that many strong, independent and mature women look to a law passed by government to validate their independence. Those who really want to facilitate feminine independence, especially for those who prefer a life somewhat different from suburban normalcy, might be better advised to turn their attention to the ways government holds them back.

Perhaps the most important disincentive government creates for the married woman who wishes to work is the "marriage penalty" in the federal tax code. The Joint Committee on Taxation has reported that if a second income amounts to 20 percent of total family income, a couple's total income tax liability will be larger if they are married.

Two proposals would eliminate this inequity (short of the ideal reform of abolishing income taxes). The first would be to permit a two-income married couple the option of filing as individuals. That would necessitate additional decisions by couples, but not much more complex than deciding whether to itemize deductions or take a standard deduction. It would eliminate the tax code's bias against marriage, which serves rather one-sidedly to reduce the take-home pay of married working women.

The second remedy for the "marriage penalty" would be to enact a truly flat-rate tax.

Government has severely limited the options and income of women in at least two ways when it comes to day care.

Most states, including Texas, have, with the best of intentions, enacted extraordinarily complex regulations regarding day care, especially day care in private homes (which many parents prefer to more institutional settings). These regulations, which may require extensive (and absurd) architectural modifications, make it difficult for women who would like to go into day care as a business to make it pay while keeping costs reasonable. They also artificially inflate the cost of day care for working women who need a place for their children to stay during the day, effectively reducing women's take-home pay.

Everybody would benefit, but especially women, if day care were deregulated and the responsibility for oversight were shifted from the state to parents.

Day care is not the only profession now subjected to unreasonable state licensing requirements, which generally serve to limit the number of practitioners and protect them from competition. State licensing permits professions in which existing practitioners have a prejudice against female practitioners to effectively exclude women without appearing to discriminate. State-enforced entry barriers to various professions fall most heavily on women (and certain ethnic minorities) seeking to go into professions which have traditionally been male-dominated.

The anti-women impact of state licensing (whether intentional or not) can be seen clearly in the medical profession. Some nurse practitioners, midwives, dental hygienists, etc., most of whom are now women, have sought to establish practices separate from physicians, offering routine, lower-priced care to patients who may not need the specialized expertise of physicians. Most state licensing boards (generally dominated by male physicians) have resisted this movement, which would provide healthy competition to doctors and dentists.

Zoning laws that prohibit even inoffensive commercial activities in private homes and union-inspired federal laws prohibiting people (almost universally women) from working at home and selling their handiwork in at least six industries, should also be reviewed and repealed.

Government regulations and paperwork that discourage small businesses with little capital fall disproportionately on women. According to the Internal Revenue Service, there are almost 3 million small businesses owned by women. Any deduction of paperwork, regulatory and tax requirements on small businesses would be more assistance to women seeking economic independence than to men, though many men would benefit as well.

Almost two-thirds of women business owners are married, and most firms owned by women are sole proprietorships, partnerships, or closely held, paying personal rather than corporate income taxes. Thus the marriage tax penalty places a further handicap on women entrepreneurs by limiting the funds available for their businesses.

Eliminating these government barriers will not guarantee success for women independence. There is no doubt that many forms of overt and subtle discrimination will still exist, and will yield only to years of persuasion, example and education, if at all. But, as Catherine England, a policy analyst for the Heritage Foundation, has put it, "Women would find the road to economic equity far smoother if they spent less time campaigning for government to help them, and more time campaigning for government to stop hindering them."

Parents basic right

Down in Matthews, S. C., a family court judge has ruled that a man and wife may continue to teach their children at home. The judgement will stand unless challenged by the state. The state would be wise to leave the verdict where it is.

Susan and Scott Page withdrew their two children from private school last fall but were ordered to explain their action to the court. The court listened and agreed that they could teach their own children that at least one judge in South Carolina holds to that opinion.

GOSH! WHEN THAT FELLA SAID HE HAD A TAPE WITH OUR OLD HOLLYWOOD FRIENDS I THOUGHT HE MEANT "BEDTIME FOR BONZO..."

A danger to the United States

By PAUL GREENBERG

Of course the opinion would be written by William D. Rehnquist, the most intellectual and least sensible justice of the U.S. Supreme Court. It represents pettifoggery at its most dangerous. For the first time, the Supreme Court has approved public aid for private schools through the device of a deduction for parents of students. By the most narrow of votes (5-to-4), the court has opened a breach in the wall of separation between church and state, and soon enough the forces of divisiveness should begin to pour through.

This decision applies to Minnesota, where parents may now receive a $500 - $700 tax deduction for every child in private or parochial schools. But the Reagan administration has been pushing a tax credit of up to $300 for every child enrolled in a non-public school. This decision gives that proposal, national in scope, a green light. It puts the American taxpayer in the position not only of subsidizing parochial education but of offering a monetary incentive for families to enroll their children in non-public schools. It is a formula for producing division in a country that needs unity as much as it ever did. And this road to disunity is to be paved by state and federal tax breaks.

But how can the Supreme Court approve such a mixture of church and state in the face of the First Amendment? Doesn't it prohibit an establishment of religion? Mr. Justice Rehnquist's reasoning is as slippery as his conclusion is dangerous: He does not find financing parochial education an "excessive" entanglement of church and state. Presumably, it is only a moderate entanglement. One can't help wondering: What entanglement with religion would be excessive if paying for church schools is not?

Justice Rehnquist, the Torquemada of the court, also finds that a tax break for religious education has a secular purpose. That's an interesting judgment not only on the tax break on religious schools in this country. Come to think, the justice may have a point. Where federal financing is involved, federal control has a way of following. Church schools that are the "beneficiaries" of such support may find themselves obliged to be secular soon enough.

What is to be done now? First, this decision should be criticized roundly, sharply, and every other way. This court may have just approved the Dred Scott decision of American education. More attention should be paid to the quality of those doing the appointing. Courts do change their minds, and this one needs to.

In the meantime, any attempt to get tax credits for private schools through Congress should be fought with renewed determination, and the energy of desperation. Not only the public schools but the cohesion of the country in future generations may be at stake. The public schools should be improved and made as competitive as possible; certainly no program that aids private and parochial schools should be passed without increasing aid to public schools.

Experience indicates that whenever William H. Rehnquist winds up expressing the views of the majority of the Supreme Court of the U.S., it is the time for those who cherish free institutions to tremble. This time the institution endangered is public education, and with it the social, cultural, and intellectual fabric that holds this diverse people together.

Mr. Justice Rehnquist's species of reasoning is to be feared even when he comes bearing gifts, but on this occasion he has handed down a time bomb, the full effects of which may not be seen for generations. His opinion points the way to remaking the American educational system in the style of Northern Ireland.

Anyone for another presidential race debate?

By ART BUCHWALD

Washington is still in shock. It's hard for any of us to believe that someone in the Reagan political camp would have resorted to stealing President Carter's black briefing book during the 1980 campaign - the one which was prepared for the Carter-Reagan debate.

Berry's World

President Reagan first called it, "Much ado about nothing." Then when the briefing book hit the fan he turned it over to his Justice Department to see what the fuss was all about.

We pundits are keeping an open mind on the purloined book. Most American journalists refuse to believe that one of the major political parties in our country would stoop to dirty tricks to win an election.

At the same time we are troubled by what we know so far. The people who seem to have been involved in some way or another are James Baker, the president's chief of staff; David Gergen, his communications chief; David Stockman; and William Casey, the former Reagan campaign manager, who is now director of the CIA.

Baker recalls getting it from Mr. Casey, who was supposed to have gotten it from someone in the Carter camp - a mole, as we say in the Central Intelligence Agency.

Mr. Casey does not recall ever having seen such a book. His memory on it is a complete blank. But if we believe him, this raises a question of national security. If Mr. Casey can't remember being the receiver of filched goods from the opposition party's safe, what is he doing as director of the CIA, where memory is everything? How can he provide the president concise information on Central America, the Middle East and Soviet missiles without forgetting the best details? Do we want someone to head up our intelligence service who knows the names of every company on the Dow Jones Index, but can't recall whether a mole gave him an American president's game plan?

Moving along we now come to the most important part of the effects of the theft, if there was one.

In 1980 we all agreed to await the results of the debate between the two presidential candidates before deciding which man should have his finger on the button.

Then we saw what everyone else did. A Ronald Reagan who was sure of himself and of his answers. Reagan was a completely different candidate from the one who, up until then, was constantly making misstatements which his staff had to correct a few hours later. But during the debate

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, July 22, the 203rd day of 1983. There are 162 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On July 22, 1934, federal agents in Chicago shot and killed gangster John Dillinger.

Reagan was as sure of his lines as he was in any of his motion pictures. It was a convincing performance and the pundits walked away from their TV sets convinced Reagan was a candidate who did his homework. He not only had a game plan, but he also knew the other guy's as well.

To this day we don't know if he used the script his people wrote for him for the debate or the script President Carter's people wrote for their candidate.

That is why Washington is concerned. All of us lived through Watergate and it would be a terrible thing if President Reagan's staff did for him what the "Committee to Re-Elect the President" did for Nixon.

Fortunately the president has asked his Justice Department to find out what really happened. Otherwise we may never know.

We'll just have to wait and see.

As one pundit said to me the other day, "This would have never happened if John Dean was alive."

Police injure more than 150

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Riot police on motorcycles and fire trucks charged thousands of screaming demonstrators, breaking bones with billy clubs and bowling bodies over with water hoses in Mexico's worst police-civilian clash in more than a decade. Hundreds of club-swinging foot patrolmen also waded into the crowd in the demonstration Thursday night in downtown Mexico City, where thousands of people jammed a busy intersection and blocked traffic to protest government plans to close a teachers college. More than 150 were reported injured. Demonstration leaders told a news conference 83 protesters were arrested. Police did not mention arrests. Police and city officials placed the number of demonstrators at 3,000, but protest organizers said the crowd numbered at least 7,000 when police charged. The march of students and teachers of the Normal School, the city's state-run teachers college, blocked traffic for almost four hours at the corners of Reforma and Insurgentes avenues, a busy intersection. A police traffic controller said more than 100,000 vehicles backed up on the two thoroughfares and sidestreets when police finally cordoned off the area and officers started passing out riot-squad billy clubs. Five minutes later, a negotiator from the mayor's office turned away from spokesmen for the demonstrators saying no settlement was in sight. Scores of police mounted motorcycles and fire trucks with sirens screaming. Accompanied by hundreds of foot patrolmen in riot gear they charged the crowd, swinging clubs. Water blasts from the fire trucks bowled people over. Red Cross Capt. Enrique Mejia Guadarrama said more than 150 students and teachers were injured, many suffering cracked ribs and broken limbs. high-rises hurled papers, garbage cans and chairs from windows, apparently trying to hit policemen below. Joint committee to study farmworker insurance

AUSTIN (AP) — A Joint Committee on Farmworker Insurance has been named by Gov. Mark White, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Gib Lewis to make recommendations to the next Legislature. The issue of workmens compensation for some farmworkers was submitted to the recent special legislative session but never came to a vote because of differences between House and Senate supporters. Tony Koriath, an Austin attorney, former state representative and a member of the Texas Industrial Accident Board, was named chairman. "The issue of insurance for farmworkers is complex and far-reaching," said Hobby in a statement. "It affects not only farmworkers and farmers, but also insurance companies, the legal system, hospitals and the taxpayers in general. Texas has an opportunity to formulate a model piece of legislation in the area of insurance for farmworkers." He said the committee would study legislation passed by other states, address problems that may be unique to Texas, and make recommendations to the Legislature.

Consumer prices unlikely to rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite recent increases, consumer prices are unlikely to rise sharply in the coming months, say economists, who predict as good a price performance this year as last. "There is really nothing on the horizon to get inflation moving rapidly again in the next few months," says Kathleen Cooper, senior financial economist at Security Pacific National Bank in Los Angeles. Adds Evelina Tainer, economist at First National Bank of Chicago. "I just don't think there's anyplace for inflation to go."

And that means "consumers' pocketbooks will continue to swell," says Michael Evans, president of Evans Economics Inc. in Washington.

The economists spoke in advance of today's release of June figures for the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index. They were expecting the fresh report to show prices rose in the range of 0.3 percent to 0.5 percent, after seasonal adjustment, last month.

Prices advanced 0.6 percent in April and 0.5 percent in May. They had risen much more slowly — or not at all — earlier in the year.

For the first five months of the year, those prices climbed at an annual rate of only 3 percent, compared with 3.9 percent for all of last year, which was the best reading in a decade.

Even with the dramatic rebound of the economy, economists see little chance for a resurgence in inflation in the coming months and most are predicting the 1983 rate will be about the same as last year's, if not a bit less.

Martin Feldstein, the president's chief economic adviser, told the Senate Banking Committee on Thursday that the inflation rate has "often been relatively low during the first year of an economic recovery."

But he cautioned that inflation has sometimes flared up in the following years and urged continued government policies to keep it in check.

The Commerce Department, meanwhile, reported Thursday that the economy grew at an 8.7 percent annual rate in the second quarter, more than triple the 2.6 percent pace of the January-March period.

President Reagan said the report indicated that "the economy is growing with more vigor than most economists predicted and this heartens us."

He has lifelong fascination with president

DENTON, Texas (AP) — For Dr. Max E. Shively, a boyhood theme-writing assignment was the prelude to a lifetime fascination with Abraham Lincoln.

Shively, a Texas Woman's University visiting professor who has been honored by four governors and a U.S. senator for his Lincolniana collection, became a serious collector 15 years ago.

He already had many clippings and "little knicky-knacky things" that his mother, grandmother and great aunt had been saving for him ever since he won first place in a theme-writing contest in junior high school.

Today, Shively is recognized as a leading historian on the martyred 16th president. His articles, reviews and commentaries on Lincoln have appeared in more than 300 publications.

He has discussed aspects of Lincoln's life and work on radio and television, before educational, professional and civic groups and has had over 60 book reviews relating to Lincoln published.

Shively channels all the honorariums from his talks and articles back into his Lincoln fund. His home has become a showplace for his valuable and growing collection.

Dominating a corner of the Lincoln Room at Shively's home is an authentic Victorian reproduction of the chair in which Lincoln was sitting when he was assassinated. The room also contains a Victorian loveseat and other furniture of the period. Barrister bookcases house Shively's collection of 900 books, many of them autographed first editions.

A lighted corner credenza displays Shively's china collection. This includes a place setting of Haviland china which was personally selected by Mary Todd Lincoln for use in the White House. The most valued piece in the collection is a Staffordshire napkin plate from the Lincoln home in Springfield, Ill.

Shively's bathroom walls are lined with framed cartoons — an idea he borrowed from the private chambers of the Supreme Court. His collection includes original cartoons by Pulitzer Prize winners Mike Peters, Dick Locher and Jeff MacNeilly. His latest acquisition is an autographed work by Fort Worth Star-Telegram cartoonist Etta Hulme on Lincoln and the ERA.

Shively believes Lincoln should be remembered in September, when the nation observes the Year of the Bible as proclaimed by Ronald Reagan.

"Lincoln was not a member of any church but was going to make a public profession of his faith on Easter Sunday," Shively said. "He was assassinated on Good Friday."

New York Times columnist Herbert Mitgang hailed Lincoln as the greatest writer ever to occupy the White House, and more has been written about him than any other president.

Yet, only two major newspapers published any reaction to Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, and both criticized the address as too short. They said Lincoln had let down the families of the Civil War dead.

Today the address is recognized "as one of the greatest ever written. Union with democracy was never more eloquently expressed," Shively said.

Even more remarkable is that Lincoln had no political writers or ghostwriters and wrote everything himself.

Shively has degrees from Ball State University and Ohio University. In the fall he will be joining the Towson State University faculty in suburban Baltimore.

The Vatican's dee-jay

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
 AP Special Correspondent
 VATICAN CITY (AP) — Even the Swiss Guard on duty at the Gate of the Bells didn't bat an eye, smother a smile or flick his halberd when told my appointment was with Vatican radio's disc jockey.

He saluted smartly and passed me through as if record spinners and platter chatters were as common behind the Vatican walls as cardinals in their crimson robes and pilgrims greedy for a gawk at the Sistine Chapel's incomparable ceiling.

Well, why shouldn't Vatican radio, which broadcasts to just about every country on earth in almost any known language, have a disc jockey conversant in the musical language of youth, housewives, truck drivers and who knows what or where?

Father John St. George, an ex-tap dancer turned Jesuit from Meriden, Conn., has presided over the turntable at Vatican radio for nearly a decade. His "Studio A" program of light music — everything from operettas and jazz to gospel and hard rock — is on the air nearly eight hours a day, it winds up in the wee hours with a late night show that seems to be the favorite of all Roman taxi drivers and makes their driving even more off the wall — or the walls, as sometimes happens.

Studio "A," broadcast on FM during the day and on medium range for the late show, is aimed mainly at the several million listeners in the Rome-Naples area, but the miracle of sun spots, skip waves and other phenomena have carried the music and the message much farther afield.

"We don't worry about the Top 10 here," volunteered the padre of the platters, "but I spend a good deal of time listening to the latest releases to keep up to date."

Film on psychic deception at Barrett Baptist Sunday

The filmed confession of a psychic, "Psychic Confession," will be shown at 7 p.m. Sunday at Barrett Baptist Church, 903 E. Beryl.

The film deals with the story of how Danny Korem, a magician and expert on deception, unmasked a man heralded as the world's leading psychic, James Hydrick.

As a result of the exposure, Hydrick revealed the methods he used in his deception.

The public is invited to attend the film's showing. Rev. Berry Sherwood, pastor, said.

Protestants give backing to Catholic peace letter

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

In an extraordinary way, Protestant leaders and assemblies are sounding a swelling "Amen" to U.S. Roman Catholic bishops for their recent pastoral letter condemning nuclear warfare and the arms race.

The explicit nature and scope of the Protestant response to a particular stand of Catholic bishops is considered unprecedented.

"There's been nothing quite like it in its extent and breadth," says the Rev. J. Bryan Hehir, director of the office of international justice and peace of the U.S. Catholic Conference in Washington, D.C.

While Protestants and Catholics often have shared positions on issues, the unusual aspect in this instance is that a succession of Protestant bodies have expressly endorsed a teaching document of Catholic bishops and commended it to members.

That, so far as several church officials could recall, has never happened so widely before. It also has ecumenical overtones reflecting bolstered links and trust between once aloof branches of Christianity.

"It's new, a first," says the Rev. John Hotchkiss, ecumenical officer for Catholic bishops. "It's a good sign for the possibilities of teaching in a common voice."

That won't keep differences from being frankly faced where they exist, he adds, but it indicates "people have reached a level of understanding and maturity that they're not afraid to state their agreements."

Some officials noted that they knew of no case in which Catholic bishops had specifically and formally endorsed a Protestant declaration by, say, United Methodist bishops.

But the sequence of Protestant endorsements of the Catholic bishops' letter, issued in May, has grown ever since — by United Methodist bishops, the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), the United Church of Christ and others.

Backing for the bishops letter also came from the National Council of Churches, made up of 32 Eastern Orthodox and Protestant denominations — among them various Baptist, Lutheran, Methodist, Reformed and other bodies totaling 40 million members.

More Protestant endorsements were in prospect. The phenomenon developed as numerous Protestant denominations took their own peace-making stands, with one major denomination, the Lutheran Church in America, engaged in a two-year process of refining its position.

THE LIGHT

"Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path."

The bible, God's word, has often been compared to a light, for it penetrates the darkness and reveals God to man. It is the light that leads man down life's pathway. For those who study it, it reveals not only the past, but also the future.

"The entrance of thy words giveth light; it giveth understanding..."

Attend church and hear God's leaders expound on His word.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Religious Roundup

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Most clergy and laity of the Lutheran Church in America who responded to a survey approve abortion in so-called "hard" cases but not when a married couple feels it could not adequately support more children.

Findings from a wide-ranging "Lutheran Listening Post" survey found that most members say abortion is acceptable in case of rape or a pregnancy endangering the mother's life but not because of economic considerations.

Dear Abby
All couples profit from marriage tips
 By Abigail Van Buren
© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: After you published 10 tips for brides on how to have a successful marriage, a man requested 10 tips on how to be a good husband, and you accommodated him.

A few years ago, I clipped the enclosed "Five Tips for a Happy Marriage" — author unknown. I hope you think they're worth sharing.

JULIE IN LONG BEACH

DEAR JULIE: I do. And here they are:

1. Look not for perfection in your mate. You will not find it and it's just as well. Living with a saint could be very tiresome.

2. Let your love be stronger than your hate or anger.

3. Learn the wisdom of compromise, for it is better to bend a little than to break.

4. Believe the best rather than the worst. People have a way of living up or down to your opinion of them.

5. Remember that true friendship is the basis of any lasting relationship. The person you choose to marry is deserving of the courtesies and kindnesses you bestow on your friends.

DEAR ABBY: It's surprising how few people know that infants cry during airplane take-offs and landings because they are in severe pain due to the change in air pressure.

Adults know enough to swallow to clear the passage of the eustachian tube, but infants do not.

If mothers would encourage infants to nurse (or suck on something — even a finger), it would alleviate the pain. Some flight attendants suggest this to passengers when they board with infants. I wish all would.

CONCERNED M.D.

DEAR CONCERNED: Thanks for a helpful tip.

DEAR ABBY: My sister and I want to know if our brother is "James David Collins, the third." Our grandfather's name was James Edward Collins, and his grandfather was James Andrew Collins. Our father is Dennis James Collins.

Is our brother correct in thinking that he is a "third"? Or is our mother correct in thinking he is not? Abby, please spell out in your column when a man is a second and third. We are all in disagreement here.

PERPLEXED APLENTY

DEAR PERPLEXED: If John Charles Jones is named after his father, who is John Charles Jones Jr., he would be John Charles Jones III.

A child named after his cousin, uncle or grandfather would be "the second." Again, the identical name must be used. Your mother is correct. Your brother is not "the third." Neither is he the first to be confused by this rule.

Accent on Health

An increasing number of cases of aseptic meningitis, a non-fatal viral infection, are being reported to the Texas Department of Health this summer.

Aseptic meningitis should not be confused with the far more serious bacterial (spinal) meningitis and encephalitis. While early symptoms of these illnesses are sometimes similar, they are not the same.

Contract problems keep vets out of NFL training camps

Contract problems are keeping several National Football League veterans, including Cincinnati's Pete Johnson and Anthony Munoz, out of Philadelphia and Everson's camp in Dallas, out of training camps.

Veterans have been arriving for preseason drills last week, joining rookies and other hopefuls who came to camp early.

Johnson, Cincinnati's 40-pound fullback, and star offensive tackle Munoz, both of whom want the Bengals to negotiate their contracts, missed the team's training camp check-in deadline at Wilmington, Ohio, Thursday.

"I don't want to be made a bad guy," Munoz had said Wednesday in announcing he could be a holdout. "I just want to do what's fair."

Johnson's agent said the former Ohio State star would report with a new contract but Mike Brown, the team's assistant general manager, ruled out that possibility for the two missing players.

Neither Carmichael nor the other 10-year veteran for the Eagles, center Guy Morriss, reported to Philadelphia's training site at West Chester. Carmichael, the Eagles' leading receiver, reportedly wants a raise from $250,000 to $375,000 per year, while Morriss wants a $75,000 raise to $200,000.

The Eagles' offers were not disclosed, but team player representative Lynn Stiles said they would make the two players among the highest-paid at their positions in the NFL.

Walls, who led the NFL in interceptions the last two years, has told the Cowboys he is retiring rather than accept a five-year contract for $1.25 million. Another Dallas defensive back, Dexter Clinkscales, also did not report to the Thousand Oaks, Calif., training site because of a contract dispute with the Cowboys.

Elsewhere, three Atlanta starters — offensive linemen Mike Kenn and R.C. Thieleman and linebacker Joel Williams — were missing when veterans reported to the Falcons' training camp.

All three reportedly want to renegotiate their current contracts, a team statement said.

Detroit Lions Coach Monte Clark threatened to suspend tight end David Hill after he refused to report to training camp in Rochester, Mich. Hill reportedly wants to be traded to a California team.

Another unhappy Lion, star running back Billy Sims, arrived in camp although his contract dispute remained unresolved. Sims said he probably would continue to negotiate during training camp.

San Francisco tight end Charlie Young, reduced to a backup role after three years as a starter for the 49ers, failed to show up for camp in Rocklin, Calif. Young has indicated he would not accept a backup role behind Russ Francis and would rather play for another team.

Four veteran free agents of the Kansas City Chiefs failed to agree to terms. They are safety Gary Barbaro, wide receiver Henry Marshall, tight end Al Dixon and defensive end David Lindstrom.

Barbaro, who missed the start of training camp last year in a contract dispute and later claimed the Chiefs are interested only in fielding "an economic football team," said the four-year, $2.1-million contract given to first-round draft choice Todd Blackledge, changed his perspective.

Safety John Harris, linebacker Michael Jackson and wide receiver Roger Carr were missing from the Seattle Seahawks' camp.

Jackson, Seattle's leading tackler the last three seasons, wants to renegotiate his contract although he has three years left on a five-year pact. Carr wants part of his contract guaranteed, while Harris is an unsigned free agent.

Meanwhile, wide receiver Willie Gault of Tennessee, Chicago's No. 1 draft choice, told the Bears Thursday that he is committed to trying to make next summer's Olympic team as a sprinter even if it means delaying his football career.

At the Denver Broncos camp in Greeley, Colo., veteran linebacker Randy Gradishar announced he would retire at the end of the 1983 season. And wide receiver Rick Upchurch had a urinalysis test and was told by the team's management that he could remain with the club if he refrained from using marijuana.

Mets' pitcher sets walk record

By KEN RAPPOPORT
 AP Sports Writer

On a night when Mike Torrez couldn't find the plate, the New York Mets' pitcher was appropriately hurt by a layer named Walker.

"I've been through a few of those games in (Class A) all," said Cincinnati's rookie pitcher after he walked 10 batters in 3 1/3 innings Thursday night in the Reds' 6-1 victory over the Mets. "That's the most I've seen here (in the major leagues). Usually pitchers are pretty consistent."

Torrez's total broke a single-game club record established by Nolan Ryan and Harry Parker, both of whom once walked nine batters in a game. Two of Torrez's walks, coupled with a double by Cesar Cedeno, loaded the bases for Duane Walker in the third inning, and the Cincinnati outfielder slugged a two-run double to key a three-run rally that sewed up the game for the Reds.

"It looked like those walks were not going to hurt him," Bilaljeljo said. "He was pitching out of the jams. But if you keep walking that number of people, eventually somebody is going to hurt you."

Elsewhere in the National League, it was Pittsburgh 5, Los Angeles 4, Chicago 3, San Francisco 2, Montreal 9, Houston 4, Philadelphia 10, Atlanta 6 and San Diego 4, St. Louis 2.

Torrez, 5-12, and Cincinnati starter Charlie Puelo, 4-5, a former Met, combined for 15 walks in the first four innings. There were 19 walks in the game, seven shy of the National League record for nine innings.

Puelo scattered four hits and six walks over 6 1/3 innings. Ben Hayes, the third Cincinnati pitcher, came on in the eighth to pick up his fourth save.

"He struggled from pitch one," said Mets Manager Frank Howard. "It was a rough night for him. But Michael is the type of guy who has to punish his arm. The more he throws, the better command of his stuff he has." Pirates 5, Dodgers 4.

In Pittsburgh, Jim Morrison hit a two-run, two-out single in the ninth inning as the surging Pirates rallied to defeat Los Angeles and win their 11th game in the last 12.

Lee Mazzilli reached on an error by shortstop Bill Russell to open the inning, but Steve Howe, 3-5, got Lee Lacy to pop out and struck out pinch-hitter Gene Tenace.

Kent Tekulve, the fourth Pirate pitcher, worked 1 2/3 innings for his fifth victory in seven decisions.

Tanana hurls Rangers past Blue Jays

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Frank Tanana probably can't throw a fastball by anybody anymore, but after more than two years of recovery from arm injuries, he finally is getting batters out.

Tanana relied on his curveball and changeup to keep Toronto off balance as he picked up his first complete-game victory of the season — a 3-2 decision over the Blue Jays Thursday night.

"This is probably the most satisfying (outing of the season) because of the way the team has been going."

Tanana said.

The Rangers have won only four games in 16 since the All-Star break but remain only percentage points behind Chicago in the American League West.

"The win is the big thing. The complete game is icing on the cake," said Tanana, who set the American League on fire in 1974 with California and won Rookie of the Year honors.

Three years later, after 14 consecutive complete games for the Angels, he developed an inflamed tendon in his pitching arm.

In his last two years, Tanana was 11-28 with Boston and Texas.

"They (the Blue Jays) hit some balls hard but it was my night," he said.

It was also Larry Parrish's night. The Texas rightfielder, who entered the game fifth in slugging percentage (.542) in the A.L., went 4-for-4 and drove in the game-winning run.

Parrish now has 11 game-winning RBIs, one behind league-leader Dave Winfield of New York.

"They were rolling through there tonight," Parrish said of his three singles and one double — his third four-hit game of the year. "Anytime you get four hits you're going to get a break or two."

The Blue Jays lost their third consecutive game — only the second time this year they have lost three straight.

"I hate to lose games like this. We gave it away," Toronto Manager Bobby Cox said. "I didn't even realize we lost three straight. I don't read the newspapers and I don't even know what the other teams did last night. All I care about is what goes on on the field."

"And I wasn't happy about losing tonight."

Toronto scored two runs in the sixth after loading the bases without hitting a ball past second base.

Buck Martinez walked to lead off the inning. Alfredo Griffin beat out a bunt single and Damaso Garcia bunted and was safe on Tanana's throwing error. Lloyd Moseby then slapped an infield single to score Martinez and, one out later, Cliff Johnson rapped a single to score Griffin.

Soccer clinic scheduled for July 25-29 in Pampa

Professional soccer player Hank Liotart will conduct a soccer clinic July 25-29 at the Austin Elementary School field in Pampa.

Two camps will be held daily for boys and girls ages 6 to 16, from 9 a.m. to noon or 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Entry fee is $30 apiece for 15 hours of total instruction. The fee also includes a camp t-shirt and refreshments.

Interested youngsters can call Keith Teague at 669-3846 or 665-0037 to register and receive more information.

Clinic for football officials set

A clinic for football officials will be held next month at the Clarendon College-Pampa Center.

Harold Reid of the Southwest Officials Association, Pampa-Borger Chapter, will conduct the clinic, beginning at 7 p.m. the first four Mondays of August.

Reid said new rule changes will also be discussed during the clinic.

Reid can be contacted at 848-2537 for more information.

Pirates take command in Amarillo league

The Pampa Pirates are now on top in the Amarillo Adult Baseball League.

With four games to go in the regular season, the Pirates claimed first place last Sunday with a narrow 4-3 win over the Flores Concrete Diablos.

Pirate pitchers Kevin Brown and Robbie Harris combined to limit the Diablos to four hits and seven strikeouts. Harris relieved Brown in the fourth inning to pick up his first mound win.

George Valingo and Steve Stokes proved to be the hitting power for the Pirates, who are now 7-1 in league play.

Valingo had a two-run double and Stokes had a hit and a sacrifice fly, each driving in a run.

Pampa's lineup consisted mainly of reserves who played a solid defensive game.

The Pirates will play their two remaining home games at Optimist Park instead of Harvester Field. Pampa hosts the VFW Squeeze Players at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Pampa closes its home season July 31 against the Dumas Hawks, starting at 2:30 p.m.

The league tournament will be held Aug. 20-21 in Amarillo with the winner advancing to the state tournament in Lubbock.

Cowboys cut eight

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys released eight more free agents Thursday, reducing the rookie roster to 60.

Cut were linebacker Larry Alleyne of Northern Illinois, quarterback Steve Duddy of Cal-Northridge, fullback Billy Hite of Virginia Tech, linebacker Yogi Jones of Pittsburgh, linebacker Art Lowery of Pittsburgh, punter David Meyer of San Diego State, safety Cecil Newton of Savannah State and runningback Don Robert of San Diego State.

Meanwhile, Dallas Coach Tom Landry indicated rookie free agent John Warren of Tennessee may make the Cowboys roster as a punter, releasing Danny White to devote fulltime duty to quarterback.

"If Warren can keep this up under the pressure of NFL football, he'll make the team," Landry said Thursday, referring to punts of 54 and 53 yards by Warren in a rookie scrimmage Wednesday against Los Angeles Rams rookies.

Warren, 6-0, 205, was used last year at Tennessee only in situations from the 50-yard line in, with the assignment of aiming for the corner.

"I punted only 11 times last year and put the ball inside the 5 five times. My average was 38 yards, which is deceptive because I never kicked outside the 50," Warren said.

Several unusual business proposals will be presented to you this coming year by persons you barely know. They could have potential but be sure to check out the promoters.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Conditions may necessitate your taking on responsibilities today which are not of your own making. Do your duty with a smile. Order now. The NEW Matchmaker wheel and booklet which reveals romantic compatibilities for all signs, tells how to get along with others, finds rising signs, hidden qualities, plus more. Mail $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Send an additional $1 for your Leo Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead. Be sure to give your zodiac sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Instead of being your own person today, there's a possibility you might yield to peer pressure and do things which you would rather not.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Size up conditions very carefully today so that you don't become involved in competitive situations where the odds are stacked against you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) An idea you feel strongly about might not be held in equal esteem by someone you hoped it would. Don't let this arouse your anger.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you are involved in a joint venture today, have a clear-cut understanding initially that each will have to pay for his own mistakes if any are made.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Keep a cool head at all times today. If you make decisions out of spite or anger they will only cause additional problems.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You are not apt to work well under pressure today, so if you have tasks which have to be performed, don't let them pile up.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There's a chance you could encounter someone at a social gathering today, who awakens your animosity. Don't say anything you'll later regret.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Try not to set rigid rules for the family to abide by today. They're not apt to be obeyed, but they could get everyone uptight.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Give acquaintances the benefit of the doubt today. If you come on too strong and act like you know it all, it could provoke a dispute.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It may be best to do without today, rather than to commit yourself to debit spending or long-term loans. Buy only what you can afford.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Making concessions may prove difficult for you today, but it will be to your advantage. Be reasonable if you expect others to behave likewise.

"STAYING ALIVE" as a film is a satisfactory sequel to "Saturday Night Fever," though its only relation to the original is its dancing star. What we have here might be called "Tony Manero Goes to Broadway." The skimpy plot is little different from those 1930s musicals in which the chorus girl went on for the ailing star. John Travolta plays an aspiring dancer and parttime waiter who wins a chorus job. The story also concerns his tangled relations with two dance-and-bed partners: Cynthia Rhodes, the sweet-faced dancer he uses as a doormat and Finola Hughes, the haughty star who uses him. As director, co-writer and co-producer,

Sylvester Stallone has created one of the busiest films in recent memory, with lasers, sunbursts and other bedazzlements, backed by ever-present rock singles. He also photographs the rebuilt Travolta physique as lovingly as he did Rocky Balboa's. Both leading ladies are excellent, but the success of "Staying Alive" depends on Travolta, who is present in every scene. Though it is hard to accept him as premier dancer of a Broadway rock ballet, he delivers star quality throughout. The choreography by Dennon Rawles and Saybher Rawles fits the material, though it lacks a single show-stopping number, such as Travolta's disco dance in "Saturday Night Fever." The opening audition scene borrows heavily from Bob Fosse's "All That Jazz." The finale is less dancing than an explosion of visual effects. Rated PG for language. —By BOB THOMAS.

artists, was the largest-grossing album in history and, for better or worse, helped spawn the disco craze of the late '70s. Unfortunately, the best thing on "Staying Alive" is the title track, lifted from "Fever." "The Woman in You" is by far the best of the new Bee Gees tunes; there's a sense of deja vu about the rest. Even worse are the contributions by Frank Stallone, brother of the film's director, writer and co-producer Sylvester Stallone. In the film, he sings his songs — sometimes with co-star Cynthia Rhodes — in a divey bar, and they fit right in, an anonymous and uninteresting. The album is rounded out by two Tommy Faragher songs, which you can at least dance to.

Songs are like fingerprints

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — It was a Saturday night in 1957 in a Nashville bar. Buddy Killen, who worked for a song publisher, was playing pinball when a down-and-out songwriter introduced himself.

Killen gave the writer $5 to help sustain him for a few days and told him to see him that Monday. The writer did, and Killen signed him to write songs for the Tree International publishing company. The writer, Roger Miller, became a superstar with such hits as "King of the Road." And Tree International, which Killen has headed since 1975 and worked for since 1953, is now celebrating 10 years as the No. 1 publisher of country music.

Signing Miller was one in a litany of accomplishments for Killen, who has become one of the most influential people in the Nashville music industry. In the mid-1950s, he found the song, "Heartbreak Hotel," which became Elvis Presley's first record to sell a million copies. In the early 1960s, he produced "It May Not Kill Me But It's Sure Gonna Hurt," the first single record by a teen-ager named Dolly Parton. Killen wrote "Forever," a hit for Pete Drake, Mercy and the Little Dippers. Moving out of the country field, he co-wrote with Joe Tex "I Ain't Gonna Bump No More With No Big Fat Woman," which was a hit on the rhythm and blues and pop charts. He now concentrates on running Tree International, which has branch offices in 66 countries. He produces records for T.G. Sheppard, Billy "Crash" Craddock, Buck Owens, Ronnie McDowell and others.

"Songs are like fingerprints," the soft-spoken, boyishly handsome Killen says in his third floor office on Nashville's Music Row. "There are so many kinds." Tree International writers compose songs and then Tree officials "pitch" them to producers and record companies to get them recorded on albums. The best of the album cuts are released as singles.

Tree's catalog includes "Heartbreak Hotel," written by Mae Axton, Tommy Durden and Presley; "King of the Road," by Miller; "Make the World Go Away," by Hank Cochran; "Mamas Don't Let Your Babies Grow Up to Be Cowboys," by Ed and Patsy Bruce; "Another Somebody Done Somebody Wrong Song," by Larry Butler and Chips Moman; and "Green Grass of Home," by Curly Putman.
