

Police, News to meet this week to end dispute

By JEFF LANGLEY
Senior Writer

Pampa Police Chief J.J. Ryzman said police will comply with Attorney General Jim Mattox's decision ordering them to release police records to the public, and Ryzman agreed to meet with Pampa News Managing Editor Anthony "Slim" Randles this week to try and work out an agreement for the newspaper's renewed coverage of the police beat.

"We're already changing things up," Ryzman said Friday.

The chief said a new policy about releasing police information to the public went into effect at midnight today.

Ryzman said the department had its offense-report forms re-printed to help officers release the information about people they arrest to the newspaper and public. The chief said police will make the first page of the new offense-report forms available to the public and news media.

"Everything will have to be typed," Ryzman said.

He said the department may have to hire an additional clerk in order to comply with the attorney general's ruling, which was announced Friday morning.

"We're ready. No problem. We're going to comply. There was no intent to deprive anybody of anything," Ryzman said.

He said a police department clerk will also be available to release information from the police department's radio log and the city jail roster between 8 and 9:30 a.m. each day.

Ryzman said after City Attorney Don Lane gets a copy of the ruling this week, he will meet with Randles to work out any past disagreements about the police records.

Mattox ruled Thursday that the police must release the records that the newspaper formally requested June 10. The newspaper asked for "routine, daily access" to the police department's arrest, radio and jail records. The city officially had denied the request June 17 and sought the attorney general's ruling as to whether the records must be made available to the public.

Lane said Friday that the attorney general's office had given him the "gist" of the ruling over the phone earlier that day.

"They said they were putting it in the mail. I will probably read it Monday. We'll look at it, and what it says, we'll abide by it," Lane said.

"If it's legal, I'm all for it," said Pampa Mayor Calvin Whatley.

When he was called Friday afternoon, City Manager Mack Wofford said he wasn't aware of the attorney general's ruling to the city.

"I haven't heard a word from him (Lane)," Wofford said.

"I'm sure we'll comply when we get the information. I'm sure we'll make every effort to do what the law tells us to do," he said.

"If the police comply with the law, that's all we've ever asked. All we want is what the public is entitled to. If we get that, I'll be as happy as a clam," Randles said after the ruling.

In his ruling, Mattox said he is reaffirming the Open Records Decision about police records made by former Attorney John Hill in 1976. He expanded that decision about arrest records specifically to include radio and jail records. The ruling sets a precedent for the public and news organizations across the state.

Mattox's ruling, Open Records Decision No. 394, which is to be printed in the Texas Register this week, says specific information in arrest reports that police must release to the public includes an arrestee's "social security number, name, alias, sex, race, age, occupation, address, police department identification number, and physical condition, the name of the arresting officer, the date and time of the arrest, booking information, charge, and notation of any release or transfer."

"We conclude this information is not excepted from disclosure. We therefore reaffirm Open Records Decision No. 127," Mattox ruled about the arrest reports.

"We see no qualitative difference between the information contained in the radio cards and that which was expressly ruled public record in Open Records Decision No. 127," Mattox said about the radio records, which list all calls dispatched by police.

Nation's middle broils as heat wave kills 187

By KIM MILLS

A broiling heat wave blamed for 187 deaths nationwide forced officials to reopen shelters for the elderly and poor, and one golfer said the temperatures have turned the U.S. Women's Open into a "fight for survival."

Oklahoma Gov. George Nigh declared a statewide heat emergency Friday as temperatures zoomed into the 100s. Nigh directed state Health Commissioner Joan Leavitt to make daily inspections of all nursing homes and room and board facilities, checking for excessively hot conditions.

Nigh also appealed to city officials to keep all public facilities open seven days a week for the duration of the heat wave so people will have somewhere to escape the heat.

The heat took its toll on participants and spectators at the 31st U.S. Women's Open golf tournament at Cedar Ridge Country Club in Tulsa, Okla.

"I feel like I'm in a girl's camp where they set you out with a canteen of water and tell you to survive somehow," said golfer Patty Sheehan, who was the early leader. "This is a grueling tournament. It's a fight for survival."

Red Cross officials said at least a half-dozen spectators were treated for heat prostration.

In St. Louis, where the high Friday was 100 degrees at 41 percent humidity, health officials declared a heat alert and began reopening about 20 cooling centers for the elderly and poor.

The heat continued early today across Texas and Oklahoma, said Hugh Crowther, a meteorologist with the National Severe Storms Center in Kansas City, Mo., predicting some cooling in the next few days.

Some relief came from thunderstorms Friday across the Midwest, into the Great Lakes region and in parts of the Eastern Seaboard.

But the same storms ripped the roofs off buildings in parts of Kansas with 100-mph winds and 22,000 homes and businesses in southeastern Michigan, including Detroit, were without power today.

Temperatures were in the 90s from California to New York, with some cities in the Southwest and mid-Mississippi Valley reporting triple-digit readings. High temperature records for the date were broken in parts of Michigan and Ohio. The high at Wichita Falls, Texas, was 105 degrees, but with only 20 percent humidity.

Except for Monday and Tuesday, temperatures in St. Louis have been above 90 degrees every day since July 9. For five straight days last week, high temperatures exceeded 100 degrees.

"It's getting real serious out there and people are going to have to make sure to take care of themselves and check up on their neighbors," said Sister Patricia Kelley at the city's disaster headquarters.

Here is a state-by-state breakdown of the July heat wave deaths:

Kentucky 43, Missouri 41, Illinois 32, Georgia 23, Tennessee 10, North Carolina nine, Indiana six, Oklahoma and Iowa five, South Carolina four, Ohio three, Alabama three, and one each in Arkansas, Maryland and New York.

Readings above 100 again were predicted for the desert Southwest today. Temperatures in the 90s were expected from the Southern and mid-Atlantic Coast to the Southern and Central Plains and over much of the nation west of the Rockies.

This morning, thunderstorms with high winds hit South Dakota, and rain fell in parts of New Mexico, Arizona and southern Colorado.

Thunderstorms were expected to continue later today from Missouri and northern Arkansas to lower Michigan and the northern Atlantic Coast states. Storms also were predicted over Florida and the central Gulf Coast region.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 a.m. EDT ranged from 53 degrees at Kalispell, Mont., to 95 at Yuma, Ariz.

Nicaragua accuses US of picking a fight

By The Associated Press

Nicaragua accused a U.S. warship of lurking provocatively close to its shore and claimed an unidentified plane strafed one of its islands as nine Latin ministers urgently conferred to reduce Central American tensions.

In El Salvador, President Alvaro Magana said late Friday that elections scheduled for later this year at the Reagan administration's urging must be delayed until 1984 because the drafting of a new constitution and election law have not been finished. Magana said he was disappointed by the delay.

Colombian Foreign Minister Rodrigo Lloreda Caicedo said he did not expect the ministerial conference in Panama City to produce major results, but told reporters there Friday night: "There are agreements. I think that there is an improvement."

As the meeting of foreign ministers drew toward a close, U.S. warships deployed for maneuvers off Nicaragua's Atlantic and Pacific coasts and American troops prepared for a big exercise in neighboring Honduras.

A Nicaraguan Foreign Ministry communique late Friday claimed the U.S. frigate Clifton Sprague was less than 15 miles off Nicaragua's Pacific coast in "an attitude that is clearly provocative and offensive to the national sovereignty."

The communique also claimed an unidentified plane fired three rockets at El Cardon island Thursday night without hitting anything before fleeing towards Honduras. It also claimed four T-33 Honduran Air Force planes buzzed two Nicaraguan border towns Tuesday night.

El Cardon is two miles south of Corinto, Nicaragua's main Pacific port, where the Soviet freighter Timbuk was unloading 15,000 tons of wheat. The communique called the alleged strafing a "criminal action."

Corinto, 94 miles northwest of Managua, is where five communist bloc ships have unloaded and three Soviet freighters are expected soon. But Nicaraguan officials say the ships are bringing general cargo, not weapons as the United States claims.

"These events confirm once again the serious threats closing in on Nicaragua as a result of the militarist and warlike policies advocated by the Reagan administration and its allies in the region, constituting the most serious and direct threat to peace in the Central American region," the communique said.

Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government has threatened war with Honduras if attacks by Honduras-based rightist-led Nicaraguan rebels do not cease. The Sandinistas claim the rebels are financed and trained by the United States in an effort to overthrow the Nicaraguan government.

Controversial millionaire is selling Texas mansion

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A close friend of multimillionaire industrialist T. Cullen Davis says he is selling his 16,000-square-foot mansion because of the bad memories it has brought him.

The mansion was the focal point of Davis' highly publicized murder trials and a bitter issue in his divorce from the woman for whom he built it.

A spokesman for Davis and Chuck Wilson, president of Cambridge Companies of Dallas, says that the development company is buying the mansion and the 181-acre estate that surrounds it, the Dallas Morning News reported Saturday.

Wilson would not disclose the price to be paid by the Cambridge Companies.

The high will be in the mid 90s.

New bank has grand opening tomorrow

By JULIA CLARK
Staff Writer

The first new bank to open in Pampa in more than 40 years received deposits in excess of $3 million in the first three weeks of business, said Larry Ables, president of the National Bank of Commerce on north Hobart.

The bank, located in the remodeled south wing of the old Highland General Hospital at Kentucky and Hobart Streets, opened its doors for business July 1. Open house, to show the public what the bank has to offer, will be held all this week, August 1 through 5.

Although the drive-in facilities on the inside of the bank are ready, some construction remains on the outside. Ables said the drive-in area should be complete within the next 30 days.

The new bank bears little resemblance to the old hospital. Both the exterior and interior have a completely new look. Inside, the bank looks both business-like and friendly. The atmosphere is relaxed.

"We're pleased with the reception we've had, considering the difficulties people have had getting into the bank" due to the construction work in adjacent areas still going on, Ables said recently.

The bank was organized by local men, interested in and "committed to the growth and development of Pampa," Ables said.

In addition to Ables, Joe Cree, Jim Gardner and Leonard Hudson, all local men, and Ransom Galloway, Dr. Royce Lewis Jr. and E. W. Williams Jr., organized Pampa's third bank. While the bank has some out-of-town investors, Ables pointed out 79 percent of the stock of the National Bank of Commerce is locally owned.

While all the organizers see the bank as a commitment to the community, Ables said establishing the bank has special significance to him.

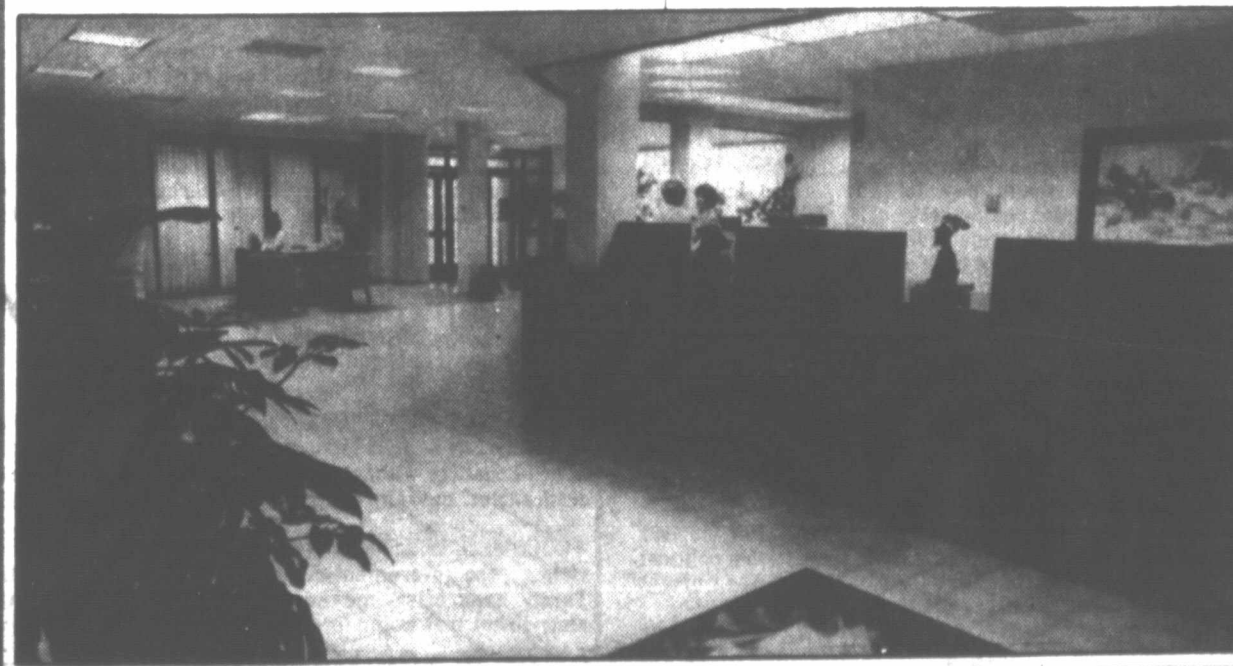

Ables grew up in Lefors, graduating from high school there. Although he has worked in the banking profession in other areas of the state, he said he has had a desire for many years to give the people of Pampa a third bank.

He said putting a bank on the north side of town is part of his effort to provide a complete banking facility where it will meet the needs of the people of the area.

According to Ables, The National Bank of Commerce is a self-contained bank. It has its own data processing center, which means all of the customers' records are processed within the bank's own walls, rather than being sent to a data processing center which handles more than one bank's accounts, he said.

The staff of 14 people, including an expert in bank data processing, have a total of 115 years banking experience.

Ables has more than 20 years experience, the most recent being as executive vice president and director of Texas Bank and Trust in Lubbock.

Police...

 The attorney general said the radio reports should include the time a call is dispatched, its location, and a brief description of the nature of the call (robbery, assault, suspicious person or prowler, theft, etc.)
 Mattox said the police may withhold from the radio records the name of the person who makes the call to police. He ruled that that exception to the releasing information from radio records may protect the caller's right to privacy.
 Lane had argued that the information on the police radio log is fed into computers to show police patterns, frequencies, and locations of different types of crimes. He said the computer printouts showing crime patterns are a police investigative tool and excepted from disclosure. The city attorney argued that release of the computer sheets derived from the radio calls might benefit criminals.

 But Mattox ruled the city's argument is "no basis for withholding the cards themselves."
 "We therefore conclude the information on radio logs and cards is not excepted from public disclosure," the opinion says.
 In ordering the release of the roster of prisoners in the Pampa City Jail,

Mattox said police must release the "name of the arrestee, the offense, booking information, the location of any release or transfer, the details for the arrest and bonding information."
 "You may therefore make this information available to the requester," the attorney general said.
 "Juveniles, however, must be treated differently. The Family Code requires law enforcement files and records pertaining to juveniles may be released only to specified parties. We conclude, therefore, the names of juveniles and any information which might identify juveniles may be withheld from disclosure when contained on the jail register log," Mattox concluded.

Mattox turned down secret meet

AUSTIN (AP) — Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle says he has refused to meet privately with Attorney General Jim Mattox to discuss Mattox's 1982 campaign finances and allegations under investigation by a grand jury.
 "I didn't think it was in the public interest," Earle told the Austin American-Statesman. "We're not at that stage of our investigation yet."
 Instead, Earle said, he and his staff met with representatives of Mattox — defense lawyer Bob Jones and Assistant Attorney General Arthur Mitchell — for slightly more than an hour late Friday.
 "They just wanted to discuss their side of some of the allegations that have been publicized in the media," Earle told the Austin American-Statesman.
 "We did not discuss any agreements."
 The meeting resulted from the third overture made by Mattox and his attorneys in the past several weeks to discuss the investigation.
 The American-Statesman said Mattox first tried to talk with Earle in late June after Earle announced that he would investigate Mattox's campaign contributions. The second offer came 10 days ago when an accusation was made that Mattox threatened to use his authority as attorney general to put a Houston law firm out of the bond business.

The closed-door conference Friday night came after the Texas AFL-CIO convention meeting in Austin failed to endorse Mattox's call for a boycott of Mobil Oil.
 The convention did approve a resolution approving Mattox's legal battle with Mobil for alleged irregularities in paying royalties on state-owned oil interests.
 Mattox represents the state in joining in a $1.7 million lawsuit filed by South Texas rancher Clinton Manges, owner of the land, against Mobil.
 Thomas McDade of the Houston law firm of Fulbright & Jaworski testified before the grand jury earlier in the week concerning the reported threats. He told reporters that Mattox threatened to use his authority as attorney general to cut off Fulbright & Jaworski's bond business if McDade insisted on questioning Mattox's sister in the Mobil suit.
 Court records show McDade wants to ask Janice Mattox of Dallas about her possible business connections with Manges and loans made by the Seattle First National Bank.
 The grand jury is studying reports regarding a $125,000 loan from Seattle First to Ms. Mattox and her brother, Jerry Mattox, and Jim Mattox's loan of $125,000 to his own political campaign. Both transactions were made within a week.

The actor who brought Lincoln to life now belongs to the ages

By JAY ARNOLD

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Raymond Massey, a gaunt-faced, courtly actor who brought Abraham Lincoln to life on screen and later won over TV audiences as no-nonsense Dr. Gillespie on "Dr. Kildare," has died at the age of 86.

The Canadian-born actor, who appeared in more than 70 movies and 80 stage productions, died at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center at 8:30 p.m. Friday. He had been hospitalized for 3 1/2 weeks suffering complications of pneumonia, his son Geoffrey said Saturday.
 Massey, once described as "the man who took Abraham Lincoln off the penny" and made him a living image for millions, retired from acting more than a decade ago and lived in Beverly Hills. He had just completed filming an autobiographical television program to be shown in Canada.

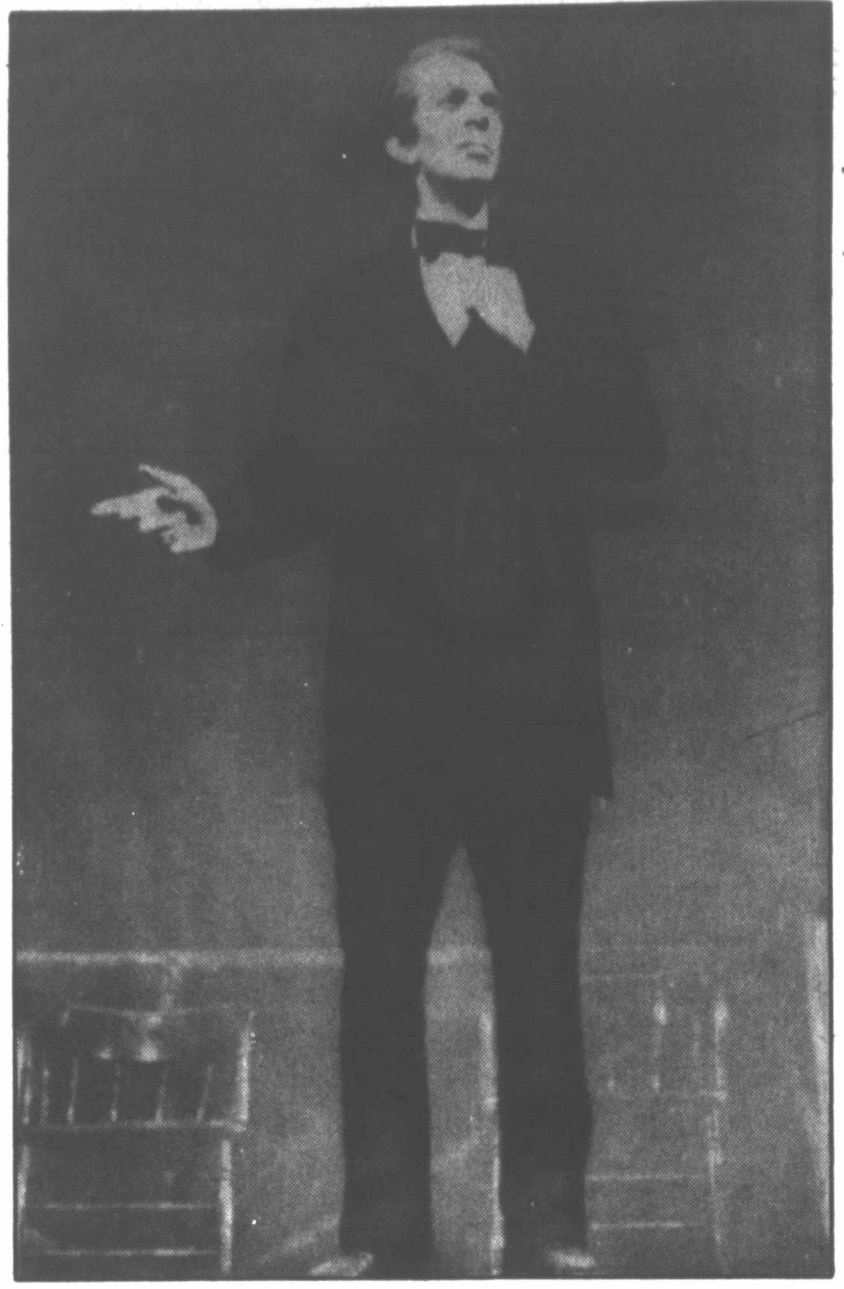

Among his most noted films were "The Prisoner of Zenda," with David Niven, who also died Friday, "Arsenic and Old Lace," "East of Eden," "Dangerously They Live," "Seven Angry Men" and "The Naked and the Dead."
 Massey, who directed 35 of his stage productions, made his final stage appearance in 1970 in London, saying he lacked stamina and was disenchanted with modern theater.

"To me theater should be enchantment, make-believe, pretend," he once told an interviewer. "Today it's sex, obscenity and squalor."
 Massey once described himself as "so Republican it makes my skin crack."

He played Lincoln in Robert Sherwood's Pulitzer Prize-winning Broadway play, "Abraham Lincoln in Illinois" for two years, then took the show on national tour. The 6-foot-2 actor later portrayed the lanky president in three movies.

To a later generation, Massey was Dr. Gillespie, the crusty old physician of NBC's "Dr. Kildare" series (1961-65) that starred Richard Chamberlain.
 Born Raymond Hart Massey on Aug. 30, 1886, in Toronto, Massey was the grandson of the founder of the Massey farm machinery empire. His brother, the late Vincent Massey, was Canada's first Canadian-born governor general.

Massey's acting career began during World War I when he served with a small Canadian expeditionary force in Siberia after being wounded at Ypres in 1916. Out of boredom, he organized a minstrel troupe.

Raymond Massey as Abe Lincoln

Massey never was typecast, playing roles from cowboys to army officers to villains.

As an author he wrote a play, "The Hanging Judge" (1952), an autobiography, "When I Was Young" (1976), and another book, "A Hundred Different Lives" (1979).
 Married three times — the last to Dorothy Ludington in 1939 — he is survived by his sons Geoffrey of Vancouver, British Columbia, and Daniel of London and a daughter, Anna, also of London. Daniel and Anna both are actors. Miss Ludington died about a year ago.

 Funeral services for Massey were pending.

Food stamp benefits to be paid

By DAVID ESPO

WASHINGTON (AP) — An estimated 22 million food stamp recipients will get their benefits on time next month, and members of the Senate will receive a pay raise of $9,138 following congressional approval of a catch-all spending bill.

Congress sent the measure to President Reagan late Friday, several hours in advance of the deadline that administration officials set to assure smooth continuation of the food stamp program. Congressional leaders said they expected Reagan will sign the measure, despite misgivings over several provisions.

Final passage came after the Senate gave in to the House and agreed to delete an $8.4 billion contribution to the International Monetary Fund.
 The Senate approved the overall $7 billion spending bill on a vote of 49-25. The House vote on the overall measure was 257-133.

The measure included money for dozens of federal programs and projects, but the funds needed most urgently were $1.2 billion to prevent disruptions in the food stamp program.

Administration officials said recipients faced delays in receiving their stamps if Congress didn't replenish the food supply funds in time for the issuance of August benefits.
 The $1.2 billion brings the total food stamp budget for the year to $12 billion.

The pay raise — which survived the House on a vote of 225-106 — would bring the salary of senators to the same $69,800 that House members receive. In exchange for the raise, senators would face restrictions on their honoraria income to 30 percent of their salary, or more than $20,000 a year, beginning next Jan. 1.

That provision was fashioned after several senators reported large outside earnings last year from speaking engagements.

The dispute over the IMF contribution threatened for a time to hold up final passage of the bill, but the issue was resolved after the administration informed the Senate Republican leadership it would wait until later in the year to seek the $8.4 billion, sources said.

The administration is expected to renew its push for the money next week, according to one aide, who asked not to be identified by name.

The House voted 213-165 against spending the money, which is the United States' share of the increased financing the IMF needs for developing countries to meet their borrowing costs.

In addition to the setback on the IMF, Reagan also had to settle for only half of the $50 million he originally sought in military assistance to El Salvador.

In all, the bill provided financing for a grab bag of programs and projects, including money for highways and bridges, a study of Interior Secretary James Watt's policy of coal leases on federal property, and approval for the Air Force to purchase armored sedans to help protect high-ranking officials from terrorist acts overseas.

Salvador elections postponed until 1984 despite American efforts

By ARTHUR ALLEN

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — El Salvador's nationwide elections have been postponed until 1984 despite U.S. pressure for a vote this year.

President Alvaro Magana told reporters Friday night that he was disappointed in the postponement of the elections. But he said the Constituent Assembly will not finish a constitutional draft until October, four months behind schedule.

The constitution and an electoral law must be adopted before an election can be called, Magana said. A presidential aide, Luis Lagos, said the elections may be held in February.

The delay was announced as President Reagan's special envoy in Central America, Richard Stone, sought a meeting with Salvadoran leftists to ask that they take part in the election process.

The Reagan administration believes early elections will help stabilize this nation of 4.5 million, torn by a 3 1/2-year-old civil war between the U.S.-backed government and a coalition of leftist rebels.

Members of the Central Elections Council blame the delay on U.S. congressional hearings that were blocking a $3.4 million appropriation to finance the balloting.

The hearings, scheduled this week in Washington, were sought by congressional Democrats who questioned the funding, which would pay for computers and other sophisticated election equipment.

But Washington congressional sources said Friday the hearings are expected to be brief and approval is expected in August, in time for elections at the end of the year.

Salvadoran politicians, expressing some resentment at being pressured to set early elections, also have been seeking an elaborate revision of the nation's electoral rolls. The outdated rolls have not been updated in 10 years and the government seeks a new registration of voters.

Leftist parties refused to take part in March 1982 elections, saying the safety of their candidates could not be guaranteed. So far, they have rebuffed overtures that they participate in the new round of balloting.

Magana took office as caretaker president after the 1982 elections, under an agreement among the nation's political parties. The agreement called for a caretaker government while a new constitution was written.

But the government has fallen behind in a projected June 1983 deadline for completing the constitution. The parties have set a March deadline for the new elections.

The interim president has pledged to return to private life as soon as new elections are held. During a papal visit in March, he told Pope John Paul II the elections would be held before the end of 1983.

One killed, three hurt as roller coaster jumps tracks

By SHARON HERBAUGH

HOUSTON (AP) — A 22-year-old man was killed and three people injured late Friday night after two of four cars being installed on an Astroworld amusement ride plummeted from their tracks during a safety check, officials said.

The dead man was trapped under one car after the apparent accident at 11:15 p.m., said a Houston Fire Department spokesman. The three injured, all employees of Astroworld, were hospitalized in stable condition.

Rescue workers and firefighters freed the dead man, who has not yet been identified, from the wreckage of one car, said fire department spokesman John Volentine.

An Astroworld spokeswoman said the four, all employees of the amusement park, were part of a crew working to install the four cars on the Texas Cyclone, the largest ride at the park.

Employees adding a second train to the roller coaster moved the group of cars into a loading area and were trying to conduct a safety check when the accident occurred, said Astroworld spokeswoman Sarah Hampton.

She said two ride supervisors gave the "clear to dispatch" signal, and the train was put into the run position.

But the track had not been returned to the "run" position, she said, and when the train was dispatched, it rolled backward into a storage shed and off the track.

Astroworld general manager Lamar Parker said that a safety mechanism designed to "act as a backup to prevent human error" failed to perform correctly because a small board had been jammed into the mechanism.

Parker said that the two-inch square board sent a false signal that the track was in its correct position.

"The board had to have been put there," he said. "There's no way it could have fallen."

Volentine said that the accident occurred 45 minutes before the park was to close and no paying passengers were on the Cyclone at that time.

The injured were in stable condition at Hermann Hospital, said a spokesman who declined to be identified. Volentine said that one person suffered a broken collarbone and another sustained a broken leg.

"From what I understand, the brakeman — the one who was supposed to stop the ride — didn't stop it on time and it went off the track," Volentine said. "The brake either wasn't applied in time or it was not holding."

He said ambulance crews on the scene told him the cars on the ride were connected in groups of four, and all four cars went off the track, "presumably with one person in each car."

Astroworld officials "had shut down the ride, and were shutting the place down" when the death and injuries occurred, Volentine said.

Volentine said that an ambulance was originally sent, but then a pumper truck and a rescue truck were called to the scene.

Ms. Hampton said that the second train was being added to the Cyclone ride because of demand caused by additional passengers.

"Nothing went wrong with the Cyclone — nothing was the matter with it," she said. "It was just a very unfortunate accident."

Ms. Hampton said that the cars fell 14 feet from the back of the storage shed to the ground. She said 15 Astroworld employees initially boarded the train for the safety check before the accident.

"Of course, there is an investigation going on," said Ms. Hampton. "It was very obviously an error on the part of the crew."

She said that two cars left the tracks while a third car was left dangling in midair after the mishap.

Parker said that the accident was "a violent, blatant violation of procedure. People do this every single day, at least once a day. There are written procedures that are to be followed strictly."

He said that he doubted the ride was sabotaged. But he added that engineers from the amusement park's owner, Six Flags Corp. of Los Angeles, would probably arrive today to conduct an investigation.

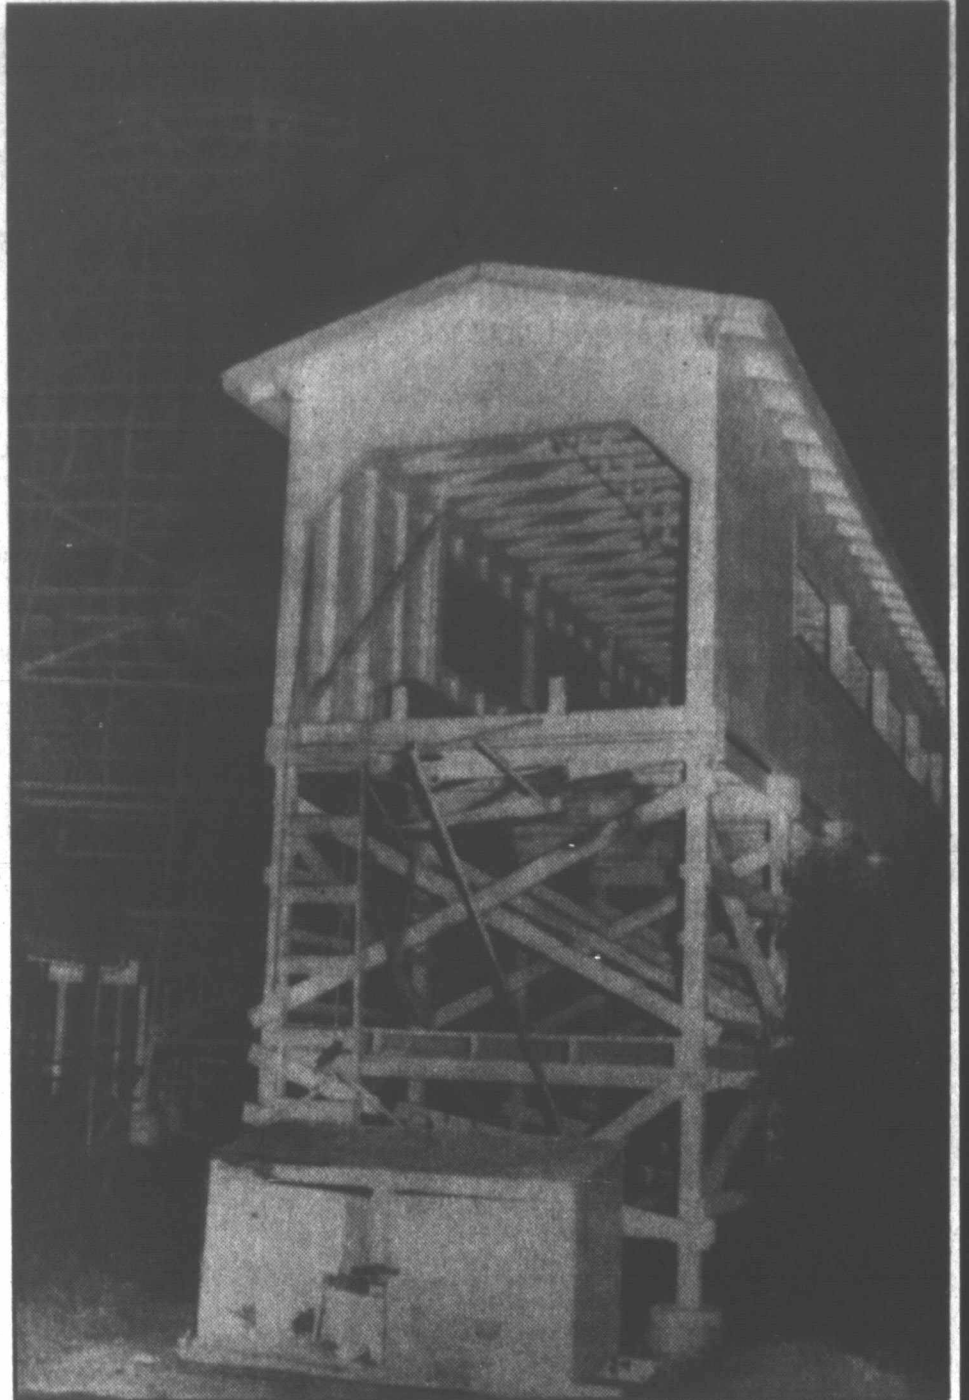

"It is standard procedure to close the ride until an investigation is completed," said Ms. Hampton. "It will remain closed until then."

Parker said all employees aboard the cars wore seatbelts and were locked inside by lap bars.

"Once you're in there, you're in there," he said.

Security officers at the park refused to allow employees or witnesses to talk with reporters following the mishap. Some said they were threatened with arrest.

The Astroworld complex, covering 75 acres in South Houston, employs about 1,800 people.

Guards report 'ghosts' screaming

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Reports by "terrified" security guards of a mysterious woman in a white dress and blood-curdling "ghost" screams in the night at a south Bexar County industrial plant have left investigators baffled.

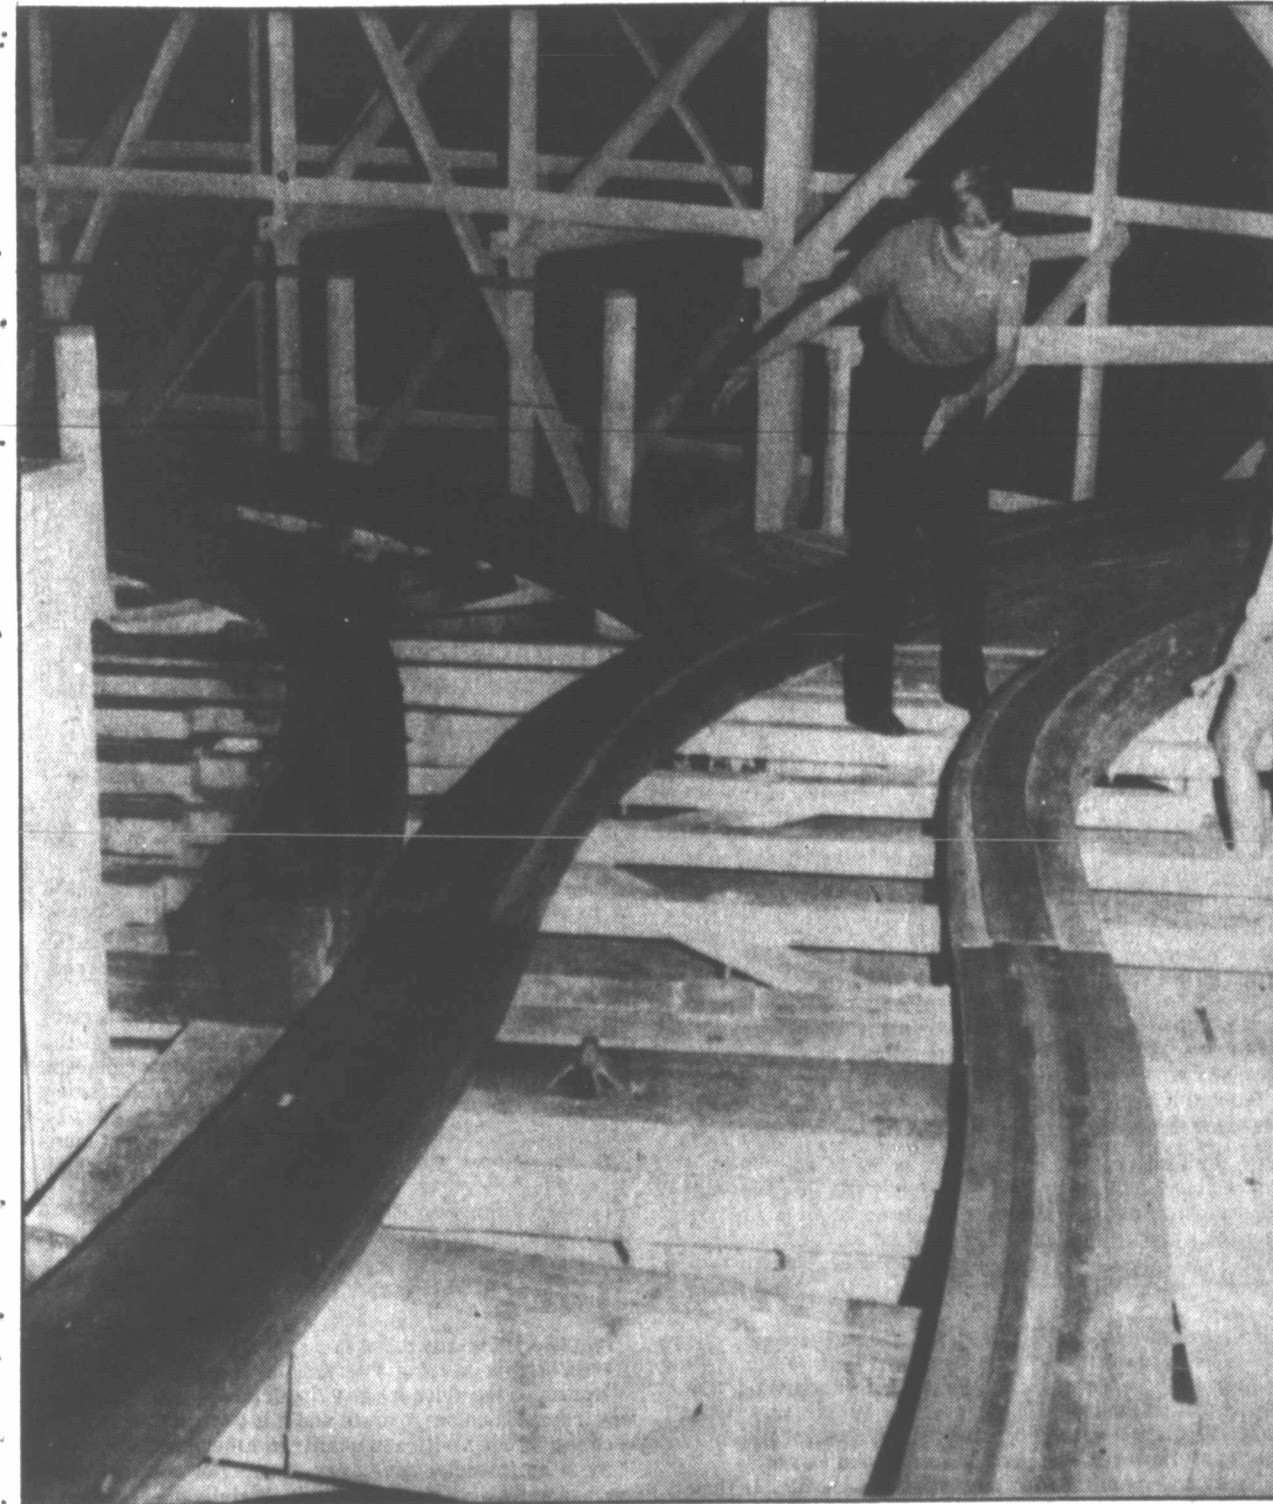

The two guards reported separate incidents on Thursday and Friday, said investigators.

One of the guards reported seeing a mysterious young woman in a white dress walking in the bushes near Ellis Industries as he sat in his car, deputy Bill Stanley said.

Stanley said Ray Agosto refused to return to his car even though Stanley "checked the area for any suspicious spirits" and found none.

On Friday night, a second security guard called in an officer-in-trouble report after hearing a scream, said deputy Eddie Tierina.

Lamar Parker, vice president of Astroworld, tells news reporters apparently how the accident at the Texas Cyclone roller coaster ride Friday night in Houston.

Parker shows how the tracks were when the train started its test run. Tracks were closed making the train go to the shed and out the back to the ground. One person was killed with three others injured. (AP Laserphoto)

Legislator is guilty of cattle rustling

SULPHUR SPRINGS, Texas (AP) — Jurors deliberated just 25 minutes Saturday before convicting former state Rep. David London Saturday on cattle theft charges.

London sat quietly and showed no emotion when State District Judge Lanny Ramsey read the verdict, but said later that he was "shocked" at the decision.

The jury will return to the courtroom at 9 a.m. Monday to deliberate London's punishment. He could be sentenced to as many as ten years in prison and fined as much as $5,000.

"I'm shocked," London said as the courtroom began to clear Saturday of spectators who had gathered to hear the final arguments of District Attorney Jim Chapman and London's lawyer, state Rep. Clint Hackney.

"I may have made a big mistake when I didn't take the stand in my own defense," London said. "My lawyers talked me out of taking the stand. They said it would end up being a character assassination rather than cross examination."

Prosecutors said London, who says he will appeal the conviction, turned to cattle rustling to pay off a gambling debt.

He was accused of stealing five cattle from a Van Zandt County ranch on June 1, 1982, and selling them the next day at Sulphur Springs, 45 miles to the northeast in Hopkins County.

Witnesses said London made out a money order from some proceeds of the cattle sale and paid off a $900 bet on the Super Bowl.

But London denied that he stole cattle from anyone and said the charges against him were "politically motivated."

"I guess there were some unanswered questions in the jurors' minds about the checks, where I got them and why I cashed them," London said Saturday.

Rape victim gets $20 million

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A lawyer for a Japanese exchange student called a jury's $20 million award a symbolic victory for the woman who sued two men acquitted of her rape because she was devastated by the criminal court verdict.

U.S. District Judge Hayden W. Head Jr. immediately reduced the jury's award Friday to the $7.5 million Miki Akano requested in her suit.

But her attorney, George Brin, said it did not matter because the award could not be collected from the two men, who are both unemployed.

"Miss Akano was devastated by the verdict in the criminal trial and was unable to accept it," said Brin. "To her, it was a matter of honor not of money in bringing this lawsuit. What we asked for was symbolic. What the jury gave us was even more symbolic."

Miss Akano filed the suit Aug. 10, 1982, after a jury in Beeville acquitted the two men of aggravated rape charges. The suit was tried in federal court because Miss Akano, who was since graduated from Bee County Community College, is a Japanese citizen.

After four days of testimony, the five-woman, one-man jury found that Melivanel Cantu Jr., 23, and Richard Lewis Garcia, 22, assaulted the 20-year-old student at knife-point after a party in Beeville in June 1982.

The jury awarded Miss Akano $10 million in physical and punitive damages from each defendant before Head reduced the amount.

Miss Akano sobbed and hugged her attorney and six members of the jury. Brin said with a minimum of effort they could keep the judgment viable and collectible should the men's financial situation improve.

"But collection of the judgment is not a terribly important matter to us," Brin said. "Obtaining the judgment accomplishes what we set out to do."

Manuel Escobar of San Antonio, the lawyer for Cantu and Garcia, could not be reached for comment on whether he would appeal the jury's decision.

Garcia and Cantu had filed a countersuit against Miss Akano, alleging defamation of character. The jury Friday also ruled in favor of Miss Akano on the countersuit.

THE SOURCE OF TRUTH

"Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth" (John 17:17). The Son of God certainly recognized God as the source of truth. In fact, it is impossible for God to lie (Hebrews 6:18; Titus 1:2).

Men, in the past, have determined certain things to be true, only to find out later that they were untrue. For instance, years ago, men concluded that the world was flat. Later, they found it was round. Yet, the Bible declared it to be round all the time (Isaiah 40:22). Men of medicine used to think the way to make people healthy was to bleed them. Actually, they were bleeding the life out of them. God's word records that the life is in the blood and this thousands of years before men believed the falsehood of bleeding in order to better health (Leviticus 17:11). The Bible also declares the earth to be suspended in space (Job 26:7), a fact men were a long time in learning for themselves. We could go on and on noting the many scientific and other truths recorded in God's word, the Bible. But the point is, God is true and He knows all things (1 John 3:20). Therefore, we can rest assured that whatever he says is true and undeniable.

But, even as we accept that all the scientific data contained in the Bible is true, we must also accept that all the information of a Spiritual nature is also true. In fact, all the truths of the Bible are related. The scientific truths recorded therein are there to convince us of the power, wisdom and truthfulness of God. And so, if God's word declares there is just one church, we must believe that because it is the truth even though men may deny it (Ephesians 4:4; Colossians 1:18). If God's word tells us we must be baptized in order to be saved, we must believe that because God is the source of all truth (Mark 16:16). We have the guarantee of Jesus Christ that God's word is truth.

How farmers might have sold more abroad

By OSCAR COOLEY

A half century ago, the U.S. government began buying farm products to support the market. It is still doing so, in a big way, and instead of "supporting" it is reducing the market - the world market.

Government buying of billions of dollars' worth of staple farm products each year has stepped up the prices, causing farmers to grow more of such crops than the consumer market calls for. If the government had not bought these products, the demand for them would have been less, their prices would have been correspondingly lower, and the farmers would have planted fewer acres. There would have been a natural equilibrium between demand and supply, at lower price levels than at present.

Consider the foreign market. Many foreign nations have made economic progress in the last half century. Their people are eating better, wearing better clothes, and living in better homes. Therefore, they are better customers for our goods, especially for foods and fibers grown on our farms. If the prices had been lower, these would have been bought in greater volume. Our exports of farm products, now substantial, would have been even more so.

Today, foreigners complain because the dollar is so valuable when compared to their currencies. They cannot get all the dollars they want. The U.S. dollar is "too high," they say.

The fact is they have only themselves and their governments to blame. Their governing officials have run the printing press - have inflated their currency by over-producing it. They do not have a "Federal Reserve Bank" to curb the growth of their money supply. The U.S., too, has inflated, but far less than most other countries.

Foreigners tell us they would buy more of our goods - more farm products, more industrial goods - if it were not so hard for them to get dollars to pay with. Some Americans, too, deplore the fact that the dollar is comparatively high abroad. There is no good reason for either foreigners or Americans to deplore it. It is a natural result of demand and supply of money.

Our large banks have loaned billions abroad. Will it be repaid? That remains to be seen. Thus far, the foreign debtors have done well. That is one way for the foreign governments, firms and people to get dollars: borrow them. But the dollars have to be repaid - with interest.

A thrifter way for foreigners to get dollars is to sell us more goods and services. That is one reason Mexico is glad to have her people cross the Rio Grande, in some cases illegally, and get jobs in the fields of Texas and the Campbell's soup factory in Ohio: they are paid in dollars and bring many of these dollars back to Mexico.

The dollars earned by exporting goods and labor to us, by carrying our goods in their ships, etc., help greatly to balance the account. But the dollar will always be "too high" in the eyes of the foreigners whose governments continue to grind out surplus paper money.

Just as money can be depreciated in value by producing too much of it, so can goods - farm products, for example. The price support program has caused production of farm products. We have "inflated" these products. If we had not done so, we would be selling more of them abroad today than we are doing.

Putting the pin to air bags

The Reagan administration struck a blow for deregulation two years ago when it revoked a 1977 Department of Transportation edict that would have required new cars to be equipped with air bags or automatic seat belts beginning in 1982. Recently, a unanimous U.S. Supreme Court found that revocation "arbitrary and capricious" and ordered the DOT to implement the 1977 regulation or explain precisely why it should be voided.

We hope the Department of Transportation's new director, Elizabeth Dole, chooses the latter alternative. Certainly she should have no difficulty in finding sufficient justification for doing so.

Let's start with air bags. Despite propaganda to the contrary from Ralph Nader types and self-styled consumer groups, the air bag is the Edsel of automobile safety devices. The DOT's own tests over a 10-year period show conclusively that using the conventional lap and shoulder belts already required on all new cars offer far more protection than air bags.

Better yet, lap and shoulder belts cost the consumer a fraction of the price for planting an exploding bag in the steering column and dashboard of every new car.

The automatic seat belt, a cumbersome mechanism that engages when the driver's and front passenger's doors are shut, also provides more protection than the air bag. But precisely because the automatic seat belts are so cumbersome, many new car buyers are sure to disconnect the device or even have it removed altogether.

Air bags legislation could also be an economic deathblow to Detroit. At an estimated additional cost of $800 per car, the compulsory air bag would discourage new car buyers just as the domestic car industry begins to recover.

There would be no case at all for the dubious, expensive air bag or the awkward automatic seat belt if more drivers and passengers would simply use the lap and shoulder belts already installed in their cars.

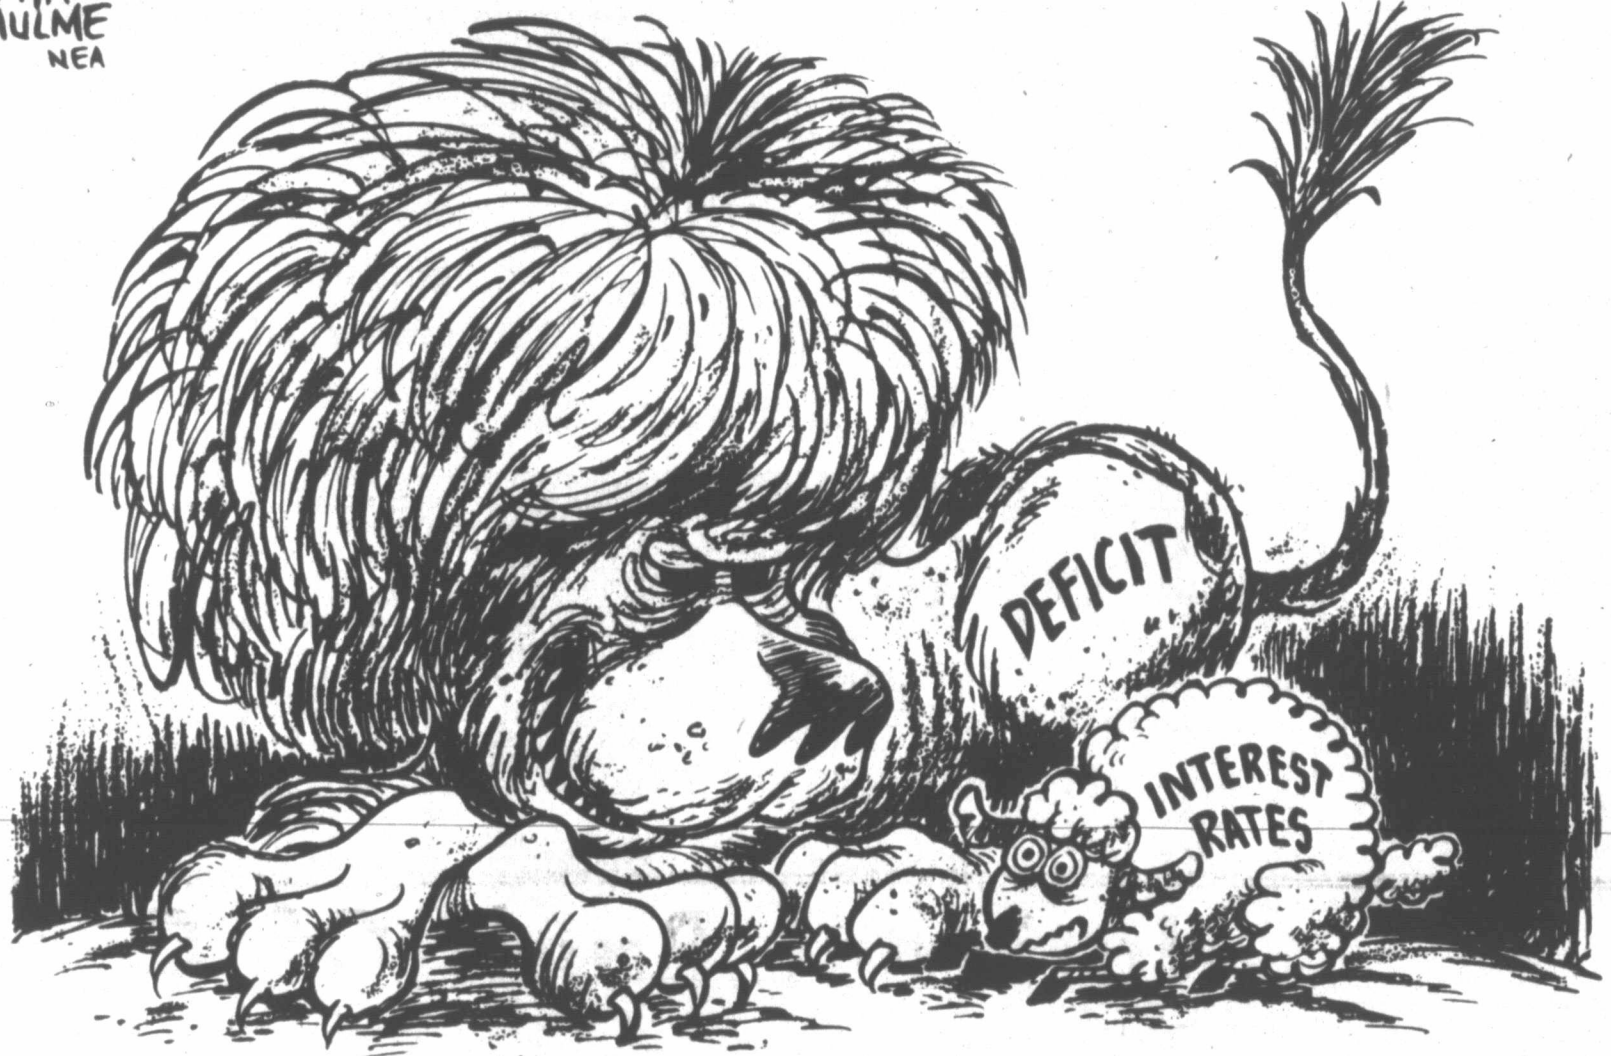

The air bag is but another insulting attempt by bureaucrats and "public interest" groups to tell the common person what is "best" for him or her (because, of course, most of us lack the common sense to look out for ourselves in this risky world, right, Mr. Nader?).

A large body of information demonstrates that conventional safety belts, when used, dramatically reduce highway deaths and sever injury.

If a driver refused to heed the warnings about the danger of seat-belt-less driving, he or she have only themselves to blame. Big Brother cannot force feed common sense to a fool.

The Supreme Court may have been justified in ruling that the Reagan administration offered too few justifications for revoking the air bag - automatic seat belt edict. But there are, nonetheless, plenty of good reasons for doing just that.

"NONSENSE - I DIDN'T ROAR AT YOU - THAT WAS JUST MY STOMACH GROWLING"

Perish the thought

A recent report from the staff of the International Monetary Fund indicates that if you have a certain understanding of economic and a certain amount of knowledge, it's difficult to avoid saying a few sensible things about world economic prospects.

Unfortunately, some institutions have a mandate to do things that violate sound economic policy, and the IMF falls into this category. Thus not all the observations contained in its report are equally sound, especially when they touch on the institutional interests of the IMF itself.

The IMF staff urged the governments of the world to maintain "adequate control" over their budgets to keep interest rates under control, and urged all and sundry to avoid the lure of protectionism. It expressed concern about the long-term effects of continuing high government deficits in the U.S. without quite converting this concern into a call for higher taxes. It urged governments in industrialized nations to exercise some restraint in putting more paper money into circulation. Sound recommendations all.

The IMF recommendations on debt-ridden developing countries were a little vaguer and a little shakier. That's not surprising, since the IMF has a strong institutional interest here, and is not inclined to encourage independent inquiry into its dual role as villain and would-be savior in the current crisis.

The IMF's function, after all, is to use money extracted by force from taxpayers in the U.S. and other "developed" countries to make, guarantee or subsidize loans to governments in less-developed countries. It would hardly do (at least in public) for the IMF to entertain questions about whether that's a function that ought to be performed at all.

Of late, the IMF has been putting together "rescue packages" for debt-plagued developing countries, and in some instances has imposed sensible conditions (less government spending, better fiscal discipline, less paper money, fewer showcase projects of dubious economic value) on these packages. It remains true, however, that some of the countries most troubled by debt were led down the primrose path by the IMF and other quasi-governmental international lending bodies.

It's charitable to want to help countries in debt trouble. In the long run, however, it might just be salutary to have a few resounding defaults or even bankruptcies. Such events might help to focus the attention of government leaders and bankers on the effects of profligacy, carelessness and reliance on quasi-governmental "guarantees" in international borrowing and lending. They might even raise questions about whether the best way to get out of debt is to borrow more money.

Such second thoughts would hardly serve the institutional interests of the IMF. It might be out of business if government leaders throughout the world were presiding over economies so prosperous that the thought of borrowing money except in the private sector for private purposes never arose.

By PAUL HARVEY

You can live longer, starting right now, if you want to. Sixteen weeks have been added to the average human life span within the last five years, reflecting improved medication, nutrition and sanitation.

Presently there are 32,000 Americans who have lived longer than 100 years.

You may - if you want to.

Most of the ills which flesh is heir to are self-inflicted. We sicken ourselves and abbreviate our lives with excesses - drugs, drink, smoking, sexual promiscuity and malnutrition. Present average life expectancy is 74 years.

Dr. Roy Walford, professor of pathology, University of California, has been honored by the American Geriatrics Society, has written a book called "Maximum Life Span," in which he says that before the end of this century - that's just 17 more years - we will have the option of living 150 years - if we want to.

As we get older it's mostly the immune system which gets out of whack; with genetic manipulation we are learning to

Live longer if you want to control that.

We are learning more about inhibiting free radicals, regulating thymus hormone, effecting DNA repair.

With medical science at long last recognizing and cooperating with nutritional science, the aging process is already being measurably delayed.

Our knowledge of nutrition, long neglected, is barely emerging. We began to accumulate real knowledge about the fundamentals of aging only within the past 15 years.

Now we know that an adequate supply of 32 essential nutrients will keep the immune system younger longer.

But will it be "fun"? What's the use adding years if they are inactive, boring, impotent, dependent, uncomfortable?

Dr. Walford says when people are living to age 150, they will be young and middle-aged until they are 130. Many will enjoy multiple careers, as some already do.

This will contribute to solving the problems which Social Security faces.

Dr. Walford expects many will choose re-education in middle years to keep up with technological change. "With 20-year-olds and 70-year-olds and 100-year-olds in the same classroom, the opportunity for intergenerational interaction is invaluable."

The Associate Dean of Fordham University's Business School, Professor Louis Kaufman, says the aging of the American population is already upon us; the marketplace is adjusting to it. He says, "Airlines, buslines and proprietors or resorts prospered even through the recent recession by shifting gears to accommodate Americans (30 percent more than ever before) who are emancipated from the rocking chair, going everywhere, having fun!"

"Whaddya say we have a little dinnergate, then catch a showgate at the Kennedy Centergate?"

Merit pay

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

According to the National Education Association, the highest political union of public school teachers, one of the worst disasters that could strike the public school system is merit pay. However, that position simply won't wash.

Every college in the land pays faculty according to their skills and credentials. The same system prevails in private schools, which offer truly superior elementary and high school education. If merit pay works for colleges and prep schools, why won't it work in public schools? The answer, one may be sure, is that merit pay would work very well.

Indeed merit pay is the rule in almost every area of the workplace, except where government has a dread hand on operations. Merit pay isn't the system in force in the Post Office, which may be one good reason why increasing numbers of Americans use United Parcel Service, Federal Express or similar private organizations to send high priority letters and packages that they want to arrive on time.

We would have incredibly bad performance in private business if merit pay weren't in effect. Suppose all doctors received the same income? Americans would receive the poor medical care that is characteristic of the nationalized Health Service in Great Britain.

To operate a business without merit pay is to abandon incentives. Without financial incentives, people won't strive to get ahead. They won't make an extra effort to produce or add new qualifications. Public schools are no different than any other institution in this respect.

The NEA is like any other union in opposing merit pay. Its interest lies in keeping everyone at the same level and dependent on the union for new financial benefits. This is the way industrial unions operate and it is a major factor in the decline of productivity and quality in American industry. If there is no financial advantage in superior workmanship, one man won't work harder or more carefully than another.

Happily, President Reagan is stressing the importance of merit pay. On the state level, Gov. Lamar Alexander of Tennessee is insisting that the state is essential to the upgrading of schools in his state and to better job opportunities for young people.

A final thumb's up

Veteran actor David Niven goes out in style after long illness

CHATEAU D'OEX, Switzerland (AP) — Plucky to the end, David Niven gave the thumbs-up sign just before he died at his chalet from a rare muscle disease that had wasted his body for more than a year, his nephew said.

Friends, fellow movie stars and fans were stunned and saddened by the Friday death of the Oscar-winning actor who symbolized the perfect English gentleman. He was 73.

"My uncle died peacefully and without pain," Swedish nephew Michael Wrangdahl told reporters. "His last gesture a few minutes before he died was to give the thumbs-up sign."

The charm, wit and quiet courage of Niven's screen characters made him one of Hollywood's most enduring leading men. Friends said it was a reflection of his real personality.

The body remained at the chalet and funeral arrangements will be announced Monday, a family source said.

Niven had suffered for more than a year from amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, a neuro-muscular ailment also known as Lou Gehrig's disease, named after the baseball star who also succumbed to it. The disease crippled Niven and caused a drastic loss of weight.

Ironically, the nephew said, Niven's health had shown signs of improvement after he arrived in Chateau D'Oex from his main home at Cap Ferrat, in southern France.

"He had been very cheerful and happy. He had put on some weight," Wrangdahl said.

Among the first to react to Niven's death was British director Bryan Forbes, who said: "We thought the end was near but not as close as this."

Trim, dashing and with a pencil-thin mustache, Scots-born Niven broke into films after a meeting with movie mogul Samuel Goldwyn. He had gone to America in the early 1930s and worked as a waiter, liquor salesman and partner in a pony racing company.

Goldwyn signed him for $60 a week. Niven's first movie parts, as an extra, were registered by the central casting bureau as "English type No. 2008."

The debonair actor's career would span four decades and earn him starring roles in nearly 100 movies. He was at home in spy thrillers, comedy and adventure films and once described himself as a "displaced Cary Grant."

He always modestly insisted that his success was a matter of luck, and in 1977 told an interviewer:

"I was in the right place at the right time and happened to have acquired some very influential chums (Clark Gable, Cary Grant, Errol Flynn, Humphrey Bogart, to name a few), who for some inexplicable reason took an interest in my career."

During World War II, he suspended his career to distinguish himself as a lieutenant colonel in the British army. He was awarded the Legion of Merit by the U.S. Army. Some of his best-known film performances involved military roles.

He won an Oscar for the 1958 film "Separate Tables," in which he played a masquerading British major, opposite Deborah Kerr.

His other major films included "Around the World in 80 Days," "Wuthering Heights," "The Moon Is Blue," "The Guns of Navarone," "Death on the Nile" and three "Pink Panther" movies.

Movie producer Lee Vance said Niven's death had "brought Hollywood to a stop," and its best known stars had lavish words of tribute.

Elizabeth Taylor: "He was one of my best friends and I loved him for all the qualities he had—his friendship, his relish for life, his humor, his consideration and intelligence."

Marlon Brando: "David was one of the most compulsively charming men I ever knew."

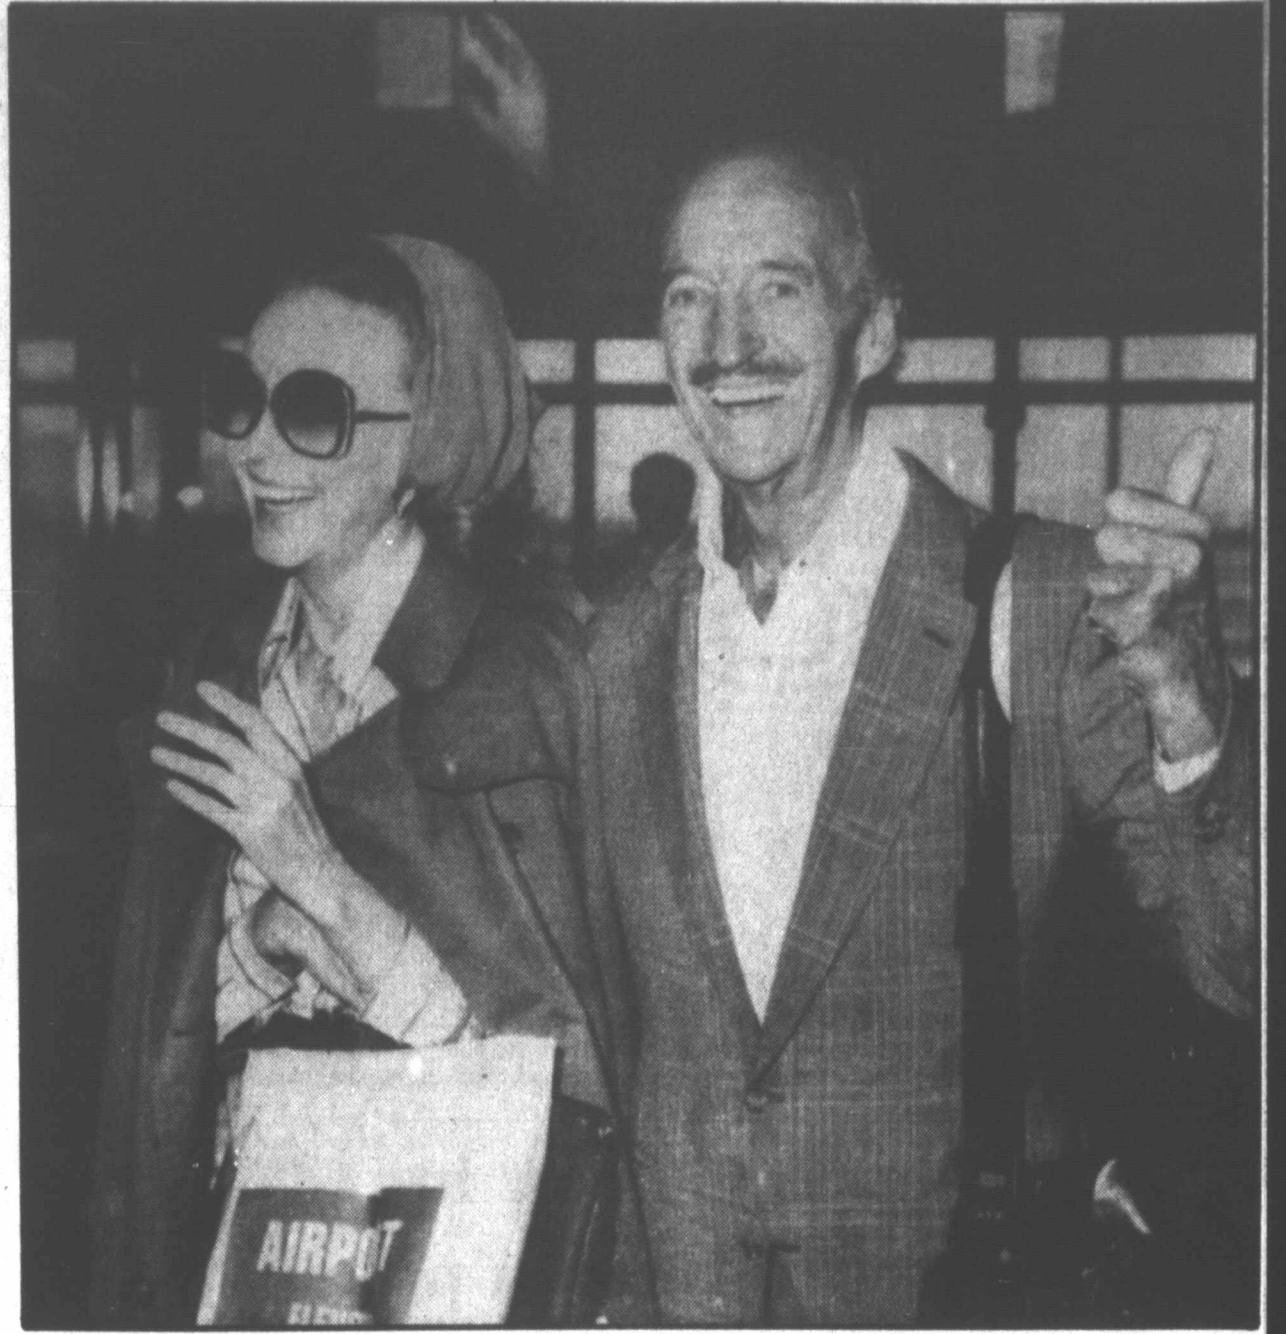

Zsa Zsa Gabor: "We all loved him in Hollywood. He was a lovely man, a real British gentleman."

Niven's second wife, Swedish model Hjordis Tersmeden, whom he married in 1948, reportedly flew to Switzerland from Cap Ferrat. The couple had two adopted daughters.

Niven's first wife, Primula Rollo, died in 1946 after a freak fall down a flight of stairs. They were married 10 years and she bore him two sons.

In his final years, Niven turned to writing. He authored two best-selling autobiographical books and two novels.

The books "The Moon's A Balloon" and "Bring On The Empty Horses" recalled his Hollywood experiences in hilarious detail and together sold more than 11 million copies worldwide.

Actor David Niven arrives at Heathrow Airport with his wife, Hjordis, after a vacation in Nice. The debonair Englishman, who was one of the most enduring of leading men, died Friday of Lou Gehrig's disease. (AP Laserphoto)

Educator expects boost in book sales with Reagan plug

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — An iconoclastic Oklahoma educator says that an enthusiastic plug from President Reagan is likely to produce a spurt in sales of his algebra textbooks.

President Reagan claimed Friday that John Saxon's textbooks "can do wonders with increasing math skills."

Reagan put his imprimatur on the book at a White House reception for 220 school principals.

Saxon, 59, a retired soldier who teaches math at Oscar Rose Junior College in Midwest City, Okla., a suburb of Oklahoma City, was not present, but he had learned on Thursday from the White House that the president planned to put in a good word for his work.

"I am elated," Saxon said in a telephone interview from Oklahoma City. He added that it "certainly will" increase sales. Reagan learned of the textbook from a recent article in Human Events, the weekly conservative newspaper, Saxon said.

Reagan said that in experiments in Oklahoma schools and elsewhere, "it has average-IQ students scoring above high-IQ students and has Algebra I students who use this textbook doing better on tests than Algebra II students who use the traditional text."

Reagan, who urged the principals to seek ways of raising school standards without boosting costs, said, "Here's another area we could look into: all we'd have to do is simply replace the old books as they wear out with new books of this kind."

Saxon, a retired Air Force major and one-time combat pilot who formerly taught electrical engineering at the U.S. Air Force Academy, said his text was used by 500 schools this past year in Oklahoma City, Denver, Ontario, Calif., and elsewhere, and will be used in 1,000 schools this fall.

Saxon, who wrote his algebra text in 1976 for junior college students, said he gets better results than the standard texts by stressing constant reinforcement of algebra concepts instead of jumping from one abstract concept to the next, with students quickly forgetting their earlier lessons.

"You learn algebra the same way you learn to play the piano, by doing it again and again and again," said Saxon, who believes the mathematics "establishment" feels "rather threatened" by his successful method.

In an Associated Press story last Sept. 26 on Saxon's textbook, a Virginia educator, Dan Yates, academic supervisor of the Math and Science Center in Richmond, Va., expressed skepticism. Yates said he had read all he could find on Saxon's work and observed, "We would like to see more evidence and a little less rhetoric."

Dream fulfilled

Partners in Grandys enjoying success

By SYDNEY RUBIN
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) — The day after Walter E. (Ed) Johnson and Rex Sanders made about $30 million dollars each, they were together on the beach at Padre Island.

For the Dallas-born entrepreneurs, owners and founders of Grandy's Inc., the trip was typical in many ways.

"If we were real swinging dudes, we'd be in Nassau right now rubbing elbows with bluebloods, but instead we're here with our wives and kids, together," said Sanders, 42, in a telephone interview from his resort hotel room.

The two have been together for a long time. At 13 and 14 years old, they worked as busboys in a Dallas cafeteria, dreaming up restaurant ideas they shared in long conversations after work. But both now say they never imagined things would work out as well as they have.

On Wednesday, Johnson, Sanders and four minority investors exchanged their Grandy's Inc. for 1.6 million shares of Saga Corp. common stock worth $66 million. Both men will own about 5 percent of the 10.8 million shares of the California-based food service company's stock.

Grandy's, a chain of 63 fast-food, family-style restaurants specializing in fried chicken and chicken-fried steaks, is now a wholly owned subsidiary of Saga. The chain will continue to be based in Lewisville, near Dallas, with Johnson as chairman and Sanders as executive vice president.

It's a long way from busboy to chairman of the board, but being together has made the road a pleasure, the two men say.

"From the beginning Rex and I had a lot in common, shared values and goals," says Johnson, 40, who remembers pouring over a map of Texas as a boy, pinpointing good locations for restaurants.

"We think the Lord had a hand in our lives and we were destined to be together."

After graduating from high school the two enlisted in the Marine Corps Reserves, attending basic training together in California.

For a short period when they got back to Dallas, the two worked apart. Johnson worked for one cafeteria chain while Sanders worked for another. Neither attended college.

"I remember Ed telling me that we'd always be five years ahead of everybody else our age, knowing what we wanted to do in life," Sanders said. "Sure enough, it really happened that way, but Ed is usually right."

In 1963, they opened their first business, a barbecue restaurant on Dallas' south side. Sanders managed the place. Johnson's mother mortgaged her home to raise $4,000 to get the business started.

After the business "got rolling real good," it was sold. Johnson quit his job and the two used the profits from the barbecue venture to open their first "chicken joint," Private Sanders' Chicken A-Go-Go, near the state fair grounds.

Three years later, they owned 14 stores.

"We had the money to open the store because we lived so conservatively," Sanders said. "I lived in a one-room garage apartment for 10 years and paid $7 a month, didn't owe on a car and all I owned was an old $25 TV."

"Ed was married and had daughters by then, but they lived very conservatively, too. He said, 'Just hang in there with me and one day we'll be telling stories about all this.'"

The two ran the chicken stores themselves, working until 4 or 5 a.m. each day. The hard work paid off. In 1969, the chain was bought by Host International. Host changed the store names to Jim Dandy, altered the recipes and sales dropped 60 percent.

Sanders said part of the Host acquisition involved an interview with a psychologist sent from Los Angeles.

"When he got through with us he said, 'What you guys did was strictly accidental. You'll never repeat it.' I had forgotten that, but Ed reminded me a few months back," Sanders said.

A year after Host took over the two quit to begin again and "show these clowns what we're made of."

They began Grandy's originally named Granny's after the woman who rents the garage apartment to Sanders for 10 years.

Walter Johnson, left, and his partner Rex Sanders sold their Grandy's Inc. to Saga Corp. for about $66 million in stock.

Grandy's is a chain of sit-down fast-food restaurants which features fried chicken and chicken fried steak. (AP Laserphoto)

Immediate announcement of 1984 farm program sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert J. Dole is pressing Agriculture Secretary John Block for details on the administration's 1984 farm program for wheat.

The Kansas Republican, a longtime backer of a strong support program for his farmers, told his colleagues Block should announce his intentions in the "next day or so" when he debates this matter we might have all the facts.

Dole's plea came Wednesday as grain-state senators launched a campaign of delaying maneuvers to thwart Block's proposal to halt a scheduled increase in the target price for the 1984 and 1985 grain and cotton crops.

Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, the No. 2 Republican leader in the Senate, said an attempt would be made to choke off the delaying efforts and force a vote on the target price question before the end of the week.

Block says even the general outline he also provided for the 1984 wheat program is contingent on congressional approval of the freeze legislation. Without approval, he has said he'll announce a completely revamped program by the Aug. 15 deadline.

"It's a backward step in what we should be doing for agriculture," said Sen. John Melcher, D-Mont., in promising a prolonged debate on the freeze question. "It's a bill that's reprehensible to a vast number of our agricultural producers."

Officials both in and out of government say the outcome of the congressional fight could determine the fate of future price support protection for the nation's commodity producers.

The Grain Belt filibuster comes on the heels of an unsuccessful campaign by opponents of the MX missile that tied up the Senate for almost two weeks.

Block, struggling to slash the estimated $21.2 billion price tag for this season's farm price support program, says the freeze alone will cut federal spending over the next three years by $3.8 billion. The Senate bill earmarks $300 million a year of that savings for promotion of U.S. exports.

The secretary is also considering up to a 10 percent administrative reduction in another price support component and is seeking congressional approval of major cost-cutting changes in both the dairy and tobacco support programs. The dairy and tobacco plans could be added to the target price measure.

Under the target-price concept, farmers receive direct federal payments when the national average market price for their crop falls below the set target price. The program was worth hundreds of millions of dollars to farmers in 1982.

Melcher and others claim the freeze erodes income support guarantees they won for farmers in the long-debated Food and Agriculture Act of 1981.

But a number of senators, including some from key grain states, are backing Block's position and have warned that unless the cost of federal farm programs is drastically reduced, the entire price support system could be in jeopardy when Congress rewrites farm program legislation in 1985.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Timber buyers in the Pacific Northwest will have additional time — up to five years — to fulfill high-priced purchase contracts made when timber prices were high several years ago.

The extensions, announced Thursday by Agriculture Secretary John R. Block, can be made for up to five years without requiring interest payments, and apply to national forest timber sold before Jan. 1, 1982.

"Many of those sales were bid at prices which cannot be profitably harvested at today's prices," Block said.

The department's Forest Service will begin processing applications immediately.

"Even though markets have begun to climb, it is apparent that prices may never reach the highs of the late 1970s when the high contracts were bid," Block said.

CHANGES IN BRUCELLOSIS PROGRAM

Some changes in the Texas brucellosis program which will allow for more freedom of movement of cattle, along with changes in procedure for establishing a certified free herd, have been approved by Commissioners of the Texas Animal Health Commission.

The changes were approved at a recent commission meeting in Austin.

Present for the commission session were newly-appointed commissioners Mrs. Mary Nan West of Batesville, Laurence Bostick of Brookshire and Robert Bartlett of Canton.

Three changes relate to movement of cattle and include:

1. In a consignment in which there is a vaccinated animal that is a suspect on the brucellosis test will now proceed in this manner: In such a situation, negative cattle in a consignment in which there is a vaccinated card test positive but rivanol or complement fixation negative suspect, may move.

2. In a non-infected herd of cattle which has been adult vaccinated, those animals that are card test negative at the time of movement may move without restriction.

3. A change was made relating to testing requirements from a C state or area or within the Texas C area. This change would allow movement of non-vaccinated cattle if they are tested negative within 30 days prior to movement and either be from a herd in which all test eligible cattle have been together for at least 120 days and have been subjected to one negative test as a herd within the previous 365 days, or be from a non-quarantined herd and have been subjected to a negative test not less than 60 or more than 365 days before the test for movement.

Changes in procedures for establishing a certified free herd concern both dairy and beef cattle operators.

For dairy herds, the Commissioners made the change to require a minimum of four consecutive, negative milk ring tests conducted at not less than 9-day intervals. Previously, three negative tests were required.

Regulations also were changed to make it easier to establish a certified free herd of cattle originating from a certified herd as follows: All or part of a certified free herd purchased and moved directly to premises without other cattle may qualify without a test.

A proposed change yet to be approved by Commissioners relates to movement of cattle to slaughter from an exclusively for slaughter. This regulation, however, must conform to federal rules - and at present federal rules require that all cattle from a quarantined herd be tested.

A Big Tractor Conference will be held in Amarillo, Thursday, August 11, at the Ag Research and Extension Center, 6500 Amarillo Blvd., West.

HOW DO I STORE IRISH POTATOES?

"Last year I harvested my potatoes, and before I could consume them, they had decayed." This is often a problem with home grown potatoes because they may have a low rate of scab infection or other diseases present in the soil which causes decay.

The best way to prevent this is to avoid washing the potatoes after harvest. In washing, if a disease is present, the organism will be spread. A number of abrasions may occur which will result in areas where disease organisms can enter.

In years when the lenticels (pores) are enlarged due to a high rate of water (rainfall or irrigation) at harvest time, disease will be greater due to the lenticels acting as infection sites.

Avoid heavy watering near harvest time to prevent the enlarged lenticels. Never store potatoes that are diseased. These will only continue to decay, causing additional losses. Potatoes which were bruised in harvesting should be consumed first as they will have a greater rate of water loss. It is best to dig potatoes and store them in a warm area (55 - 60) for 15 days and then reduce the temperature to 40. Prior to using, the potatoes should be warmed to improve quality. Potatoes can be stored for five days to six months if handled properly.

SQUASH BUGS

The squash bug is found throughout the state of Texas and is one of the most injurious pests of pumpkins. It will also attack cucumbers and melons.

Adult squash bugs are greyish-black in color and about one inch in length. Immature bugs are lighter in color than the adults and lack wings. Both adult and immature squash bugs cause damage by sucking juices from the plant. Infested plants begin to wilt and soon turn yellow. If heavy populations persist, plants can be killed. Even light infestations can cause severe yield losses.

The bugs can be found throughout the plant but they usually occur on the vines, near the soil. Their eggs are laid in masses, usually on the underside of the leaves. The eggs are bronze to brown in color and there are usually a dozen or more in a cluster.

In small gardens control can be achieved by hand picking and destroying the bugs and egg masses. The removal or turning under of old plants help to keep the population down.

Chemical control of this pest may be achieved with Sevin or Thiodan. Thorough coverage is necessary for control.

TIME FOR GRUB CONTROL

The white grub is our most troublesome pest in lawns, and it is the time of year when insecticide treatments need to be applied.

Lawns suspected of harboring grubs should be examined during late July and early August. Take plugs of grass 3 - 4 inches in diameter and 4 inches in depth. Tear plugs apart and thoroughly examine for small white grubs. Examine a total area of 1 - 2 square feet by taking plugs from all parts of the lawn. Treatment is justified when more than 4 grubs are found per square foot.

The key to effective control is getting the insecticide to the root zone of the grass where the grubs are feeding. If granular materials are used, follow the treatment immediately with 1/2 - 1 inch of water. If a liquid spray is to be used, prewater the lawn with a 1/4 inch followed by the treatment and then water as described for granular materials. A surfactant added to the liquid sprays enhances control.

Diazinon and Dursban remain the standard insecticides for white grub control in lawns. A new insecticide containing a 2 percent isofenphos formulation has received a special registration for use and is available. It too should be applied when grub worms are found in damaging numbers.

Mexican babies born in the U.S. are 'best possible gift'

By RANDALL HACKLEY
Associated Press Writer

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — It's really no surprise that every day in 1982, an average of 37 expectant mothers traveled from their Juarez home to El Paso to give birth to their babies.

"It's a Mexican parent's best possible gift — to give that child the chance to be an American citizen," Reproductive Services social worker Eva Moya said. Regardless of parentage, every child born in the United States is an American citizen until age 21, when it must choose between its American nationality and that of its parents.

The Texas Bureau of Vital Statistics estimates that 1,334 of the 13,337 babies born in El Paso County last year were children of Mexican parents — 10 percent of this far West Texas county's total births.

In 1981, 1,316 of the 12,943 babies born in this border county were of Mexican parents — 10.1 percent of the total births.

El Paso City-County Health Unit director Laurence Nicky isn't surprised by such numbers. "It's happened for years — (El Paso is) intertwined in more ways than one with Juarez."

Sixty-two percent of El Paso's 480,000 residents are Hispanic, and many have relatives across the Rio Grande in Juarez, Mexico's fourth largest city.

Marianna Gutierrez said the opportunity to have her child gain U.S. citizenship was the force behind her coming to El Paso for the birth. So last month when her labor pains started, she traveled directly from Juarez to El Paso's Thomason General Hospital, and gave birth three hours later.

The cost? About $200, which Mrs. Gutierrez said was "the best investment I could make." The hospital couldn't legally deny her medical care once she went into labor, and she had sufficient cash, she explained.

Thomason, where Antonio Gutierrez was born, is one of three area hospitals that handle births by Mexican mothers. There are also two midwifery centers here.

There is no law to prevent Mexicans from entering the United States to have their babies. Mexicans routinely shop in U.S. border towns such as El Paso or obtain three-day border crossing cards, and there is no such thing as stopping a pregnant woman at the bridge, immigration officials say.

In addition to citizenship, educational and medical benefits are reasons so many Mexican babies are born in El Paso each year, Mrs. Gutierrez said.

A U.S.-born child of Mexican parents has more chances to survive "the economic struggle. The benefits that a U.S. citizen baby gets gives it a better opportunity in life (than Mexico)," Ms. Moya said.

Mexico is in the midst of its most severe economic crisis since the 1910-20 Mexican revolution. An $83 billion foreign debt and three devaluations of the peso during 1982 sliced the value of the Mexican currency by one-sixth, to its current 148 to the dollar.

A baby born to Mexican parents in the United States also has the opportunity later in life to work in America, where current hourly minimum wages roughly equal the $3.48 per day wages in Juarez, Ms. Moya said.

Parents wanting their child to gain dual citizenship risk "disintegration of the family," she said. Most who choose to be an American citizen instead of Mexican will live in the United States, away from their family.

"It can break up the families, which traditionally are very close in Mexico," Ms. Moya said.

El Paso is the second most common area for Mexican births. In 1981, 2,201 babies of Mexican parents were born in Hidalgo and Cameron counties in the Brownsville-McAllen area — 47 percent of the 4,658 babies of Mexican parentage born that year in Texas.

"It's simple ... the mother stays only for the delivery, and goes back to Mexico," Ms. Moya said.

Ms. Gutierrez agreed: "Juarez is my home. But maybe El Paso will be my baby's home."

"How You Live May Save Your Life"

Most people are very careful about writing their Will. But many forget that funeral planning should be part of their Will.

IS YOUR WILL FORGETTING SOMETHING?

Specific funeral plans should also be filed with your funeral director to protect your family from having to make many decisions at a time when decisions can be confusing and difficult. Pre-planning is important.

Titanic search may be resumed

DARTMOUTH, Nova Scotia (AP) — Jack Grimm displayed a picture of the Titanic on Thursday, but it was only an artist's speculative drawing.

After a $500,000 expedition fraught with problems, the Texas oilman had nothing conclusive to show for his third effort to find the wreck of the luxury liner, but his appetite for adventure remained unsated.

Grimm, who has looked for things both real and presumed mythical, may continue his Titanic search in October and plans to try in February or March to locate the legendary lost island of Atlantis.

"There's a void in my ambitions," he said of his preoccupation with the Titanic. "I think it's a great story to tell and we're still trying to tell it."

The American research ship Robert D. Conrad docked in Halifax harbor Thursday after bucking the rough North Atlantic sea for the better part of its six-day voyage.

"It was a few days ago that the ocean was heaving, the ship was heaving and all hands were heaving and I said, 'Let's get the hell out of here and get back to Nova Scotia,'" Grimm said. "So we're glad to be back on good, solid ground."

The Titanic hit an iceberg and sank on April 15, 1912, with the loss of more than 1,500 lives.

The crew's artist on the Conrad, using sonar readings and theories of how the wounded Titanic might have drifted before sinking, sketched a conception of the wreck leaning on its port side at the bottom of a canyon about 380 nautical miles southeast of Cape Race, Newfoundland.

Grimm said his trip was not a complete failure because the crew got some intriguing sonar readings, though efforts to back them up with film or videotape failed.

One sonar image shows a shape similar to that of a ship's bow and sides, apparently jammed into the side or bottom of the canyon.

Search spokesman Mike Harris acknowledged it could be a number of things but said rock outcroppings tend to have a smudgy image on sonar instead of the more distinct lines in the reading.

Grimm said he hopes to get the true picture if he goes again in October. He said that after getting the reading, a film system malfunctioned and a sled carrying underwater video cameras broke loose and was lost.

About 2,000 still pictures of the ocean floor held no clues, he said.

Grimm's last Titanic search produced murky pictures that he said might show a propeller or propeller blade from the liner. Working in the harsh weather, the crew could not find the object this time.

The crew tried unsuccessfully on the return voyage to find shipwrecks off Sable Island.

Besides three Titanic expeditions, Grimm has financed searches for the Abominable Snowman and Noah's ark.

Grimm believes Atlantis is worth looking for despite the fact the existence of an ancient island kingdom ultimately overwhelmed by the Atlantic Ocean has not been proved and is largely regarded as myth.

Former bankruptcy trustee sentenced

AN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The difference between the actions and reputation of a former bankruptcy trustee convicted of embezzlement was "like hot side and cold side of the moon," a federal judge said.

James R. Adkins, 72, was sentenced to 15 years in prison last week after admitting he embezzled $492,000 from the accounts he was entrusted to oversee.

U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions gave Adkins, who received the maximum sentence, until Sept. 5 to report to a federal prison after Adkins said he needed extra time to finish an accounting job.

Sessions said the difference between Adkins' actions and his reputation was "like the hot side and cold side of the moon."

Assistant U.S. Attorney Joseph Casseb had asked the judge to "send a signal to the community" by imposing the maximum sentence.

Adkins has declared bankruptcy and placed $200,000 in assets into bankruptcy court.

Pulse is coming to First National Bank

Many financial institutions already allow customers to make transactions around the clock, seven days a week. But we like to do things in a big way. Before we installed just any automatic teller machine, we did some careful planning and waited until we could offer the best.

And the best is coming. We are pleased to announce that very shortly we will become part of the Pulse Automatic Teller Machine system. This system allows all the conveniences you'd expect, and more. The Pulse card will work at hundreds of Pulse locations throughout the Southwest. And that number is continually growing.

If you've wanted the convenience of an automatic teller machine, you'll see why First National Bank thinks Pulse was worth the wait. Come by our new accounts desk today for more information.

Texans reject tax increase to raise teachers pay

A plurality of Texans are opposed to increasing taxes for a 24 percent across-the-board teachers' pay hike, according to results of a recent survey conducted by the Texas Foundation for Conservative Studies, Dick Collins, foundation president reports.

The survey was commissioned by the Texas Foundation for Conservative Studies (TFCS), a policy research and education organization. The TFCS seeks to define critical problems facing Texas and develop practical and conservative solutions to these problems.

The survey was conducted by Arthur J. Finkelstein and Associates. They interviewed 686 adult Texans. The survey is accurate within four percent at a confidence level of 95 percent.

When asked whether they would favor an increase in taxes to give teachers an across-the-board 24 percent pay increase, 62 percent of those surveyed were opposed. Only 33.3 percent favor a tax increase.

Collins noted that opposition for a tax increase rises among conservatives, with 67.7 percent of the Texans surveyed who call themselves conservatives opposed to a tax increase to give teachers a 24 percent pay hike.

Opposition to a tax increase cut across party lines with 66.5 percent of the Texans who called themselves Republicans opposed, 61.6 percent of the Democrats and 63.6 percent of the Independents.

According to Collins, the survey also showed that the "overwhelming majority feels that public school education should be the responsibility of the state and local government."

"The survey results show that 45.2 percent believe the state government should be most responsible for public education, 35.3 percent said local government, and only 12.5 percent said the federal government."

"Support for local control increases among conservatives, with 46.3 percent answering local control, 38 percent answering state government, while only 9.6 percent said federal government."

By party affiliation, 41.8 percent of the Texans who called themselves Republicans answered state government and 44.3 percent answered local government. Texas Democrats answered 46.6 percent for state government and 31.5 percent for local government, while Texas Independents favored state government by 49.1 percent and local government by 33.6 percent.

Collins said the survey "clearly indicated that Texans believe the state and local government should be responsible for public education, but clearly reject a tax increase to fund Mark White's call for a 24 percent increase in teacher's pay across-the-board."

Another question in the survey dealt with Texans' attitudes about teachers' union and how they affect education. About one-third of the Texans interviewed believe that teachers' unions are good for education, while 44.4 percent felt that teachers' unions have an adverse effect on education.

Of the conservative Texans, 49.3 percent felt that teachers' unions were bad for education.

Up trees and down banks

CATAHOULA, La. (AP) — Hordes of crawfish in the Atchafalaya Basin came out of the tepid, sun-warmed water and clung to the cypress trees during the long hot spell.

It looked like they were trying to cool off. Actually, they were after more oxygen in a struggle to survive in the unexpectedly clear water.

The basin is 75 miles long, 16 miles wide — most of it along the Atchafalaya River in southern Louisiana. Normally it has a nice muddy environment, an excellent oxygenated habitat for crawfish.

Crawfish are spelled crayfish in less civilized areas. They also are regarded with repugnance in some benighted portions of the nation as a mudbug, a funny-looking mini-lobster. But in South Louisiana's Cajun cuisine they are a table delicacy, and therefore a cash crop for fishermen.

Many basin crawfishmen have packed in their traps, tired of dragging up traps which were either empty or full of dead crawfish. A crawfish is supposed to be still kicking and complaining when it is thrown into the boiling pot. Dead ones are worthless.

This problem began when clear water from Henderson Bay overflowed basin locks and began cleaning out the murk.

Don Gooch, director of the University of Southwestern Louisiana's Crawfish Research Center, said clear water came earlier than usual and pushed the muddy water south.

The natural river is speeded up by flooding to the north and melting snows, Gooch said.

"This is the worst it has ever been," said one commercial fisherman who had pulled 1,900 pounds of vigorous crawfish last week but then came up empty for three days running.

"I've pulled up my traps and won't be coming back until next season."

"This is going to hurt a lot of people," said Police Jury President Lloyd Higginbotham. "The catfish fisherman will be caught in this, too, and area retail seafood prices will certainly increase as the crawfish and catfish harvests decrease."

At the Corps of Engineers office in Lafayette, Larry Hayes said higher gates would solve the problem.

"If they were larger, we could have a little Toledo Bend out there," he said, referring to a river area along the Texas border where fishing thrives.

"When the water backs up into Henderson Lake it clears up, and when the rivers start dropping fast, like they are

Why do I feel Sam Mayo's sixth-place prediction for the Pampa Harvesters in 1983 is a bad omen?

I guess maybe it's because his predictions are right on the money or close most of the time.

In Mayo's Top O Texas Football Magazine now at the news stands, he picks Lubbock Estacado to win the District 1-4A title. Next in order are Canyon, Lubbock Dunbar, Berger, Dumas, Pampa, Levelland and Brownfield.

Top O Texas does pick punter Devin Cross on its second-team super squad.

Several Pampa area players were named to the pre-season all-star team. First-team defenders include Wheeler tackle Manson Porter, Canadian linebacker Larry Longhofer and Panhandle halfback Stacy Rusk.

There were no first-team offensive picks from the eight area towns the Pampa sports department covers, but there were three second-team choices. They were quarterback Todd Lamberson of Panhandle, center Lewis Leven of Groom and running back Austin Lafferty of White Deer. Lafferty was the only second-team defensive pick.

Wheeler and Panhandle are picked to win their respective districts.

Mayo did pull a boner last season when he picked White Deer to finish last in the six-team District 1-AA standings.

White Deer tied Stratford for the district title and Bucks' coach Paul Wilson was named the league's coach of the year.

Mayo picks White Deer to finish fourth and Stratford first this season. Can the Bucks prove Mayo wrong again?

Naming of Pampa's "Fighting Heart" football award winner is the season's highlight. Winning a district championship is the only thing that would have more importance.

Who will win the prestigious award in 1983?

There's plenty of candidates, among them are Devin Cross, Danny Sebastian, Ricky Poole and Ricky Baird. Then there's Dennis Kuempel, Jeff Steward, Steve Seely and Bill Fritz. Other candidates will emerge before the season is over.

Last year's winner was Maury Willis.

Dr. John Perry has been fooling people all these years. The 83-year-old medical doctor from Kingston, Okla. is actually a research scientist who has discovered the fountain of youth. He looks and acts more like his 62-year-old son, Jack, who is also a doctor.

The elder Dr. Perry was honored Wednesday night as being the oldest golfer entered in the Tri-State Seniors Golf Tournament. The two Perrys are also the only father-son combination playing in this year's tournament.

"If I can do it, you can do it," Dr. Perry Sr. told his fellow seniors at Wednesday's hamburger fry. "Just keep walking and keep swinging."

Both Perrys still have a thriving medical practice in the small Oklahoma community.

Pat Massey walked away, or rather, flew away with top honors at the Jumbo Fly-In earlier this month in Fort Worth.

Massey, a member of the Props (Pampa Radio Operated Plane Society), won a 31-inch high trophy for having the most impressive model airplane and the overall winner at the nationwide event.

Massey won out over 81 entrants and 100 planes from as far away as Minnesota and Kentucky. Only the top six entries received trophies in the tough competition.

It was Massey's first time to ever enter the Fort Worth contest.

Witnessing Massey's triumph were Mr. and Mrs. Babe Hill of Lefors.

Pampa will have its own fly-in Sept. 17-18 at the PROPS field east of town.

Giese...a good sport.

Bob Giese of Amarillo, medalist of this year's Tri-State Seniors Golf Association Tournament, offered some advice on playing the Pampa Country Club course.

"You have to keep the ball in the fairway and hit your iron shots crisp," Giese said. "If a man does that, there's no reason why he shouldn't score well at the Pampa course."

Giese, a two-time winner of the tournament, failed to follow his own advice during Friday's final round. After leading for three rounds, he shot an eight-over-par 79 and finished third at 292.

Giese, always a good sport, laughed at his own misfortune.

"It didn't rain long enough," he said, following the match.

It had rained Thursday night in Pampa, but the skies had cleared Friday morning.

Parents of the t-ball league for youngsters seven through 12 years of age are uphappy with their sponsors, the Optimist Club.

McCarty-Hull, the t-ball champions this summer, did not receive any trophies for their efforts. Since other league champions received trophies, that raised the ire of several t-ball mothers and fathers.

"Our t-ball league raised $4,000 for the Optimist Club," one parent said. "They (Optimist Club officials) act like we just don't count."

Marvin Elam, a past president of the Optimist Club, said the club's board of directors voted to cut expenses this summer since the youth membership jumped from 600 to over 1,000. "Trophies are a touchy situation right now," Elam said. "The board of directors had voted no trophies this year and some teams had to buy their own."

"We bought trophies for all the queen candidates because they raised most of the money."

Elam said new equipment and disposable uniforms will be purchased next year for the players. Players will be able to keep the disposable caps and shirts, but will have to turn the pants in.

Elam said directors would probably set some new policies on the purchase of trophies and several other items at their next meeting.

Mike Nelson made North coach Frank Bice a quick believer during practice sessions prior to the Texas High School Coaches Association All-Star Basketball Game.

Bice placed the Pampa all-stater on the second team during opening drills at Fort Worth, but Nelson was on the starting five at tip-off.

"I guess the coach didn't know anything about me when I first got there, but I kept working hard and worked myself up to the first team," Nelson said.

Nelson played 30 minutes, more than anybody else on the North squad, scored 21 points, and was named the game's Most Valuable Player.

"I was pleased with my outside shooting," Nelson said. "I was also able to press the entire game, which is something I've never done before."

Pampa High's all-time leading scorer will be heading for Lubbock this fall where he will be playing basketball at Texas Tech. Now, it's relaxation time.

"I know I'll be working hard when I get to Tech," Nelson said. "I won't be able to rest then."

Flashback: July, 1963 Bobby Pritchard, 13 years old, had a hole-in-one at the Pampa Country Club course. Pritchard used a six-iron to ace the par 3, 145-yard, No. 7 hole.

Lloyd, Shriver advance in McDonald's tourney

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Chris Evert Lloyd beat Australia's Wendy Turnbull 6-4, 6-4 and Pam Shriver defeated Britain's Sue Barker 6-1, 6-1 Saturday in the third round of the $250,000 McDonald's women's indoor tennis tournament.

In other third-round matches of the double-elimination tourney, Andrea Jaeger downed Leslie Allen 7-5, 6-0 and West Germany's Sylvia Hanika forfeited to Lisa Bonder after trailing 7-6 in the first set because of an infected tooth.

In Sunday's final, worth $100,000, Lloyd plays Shriver. Jaeger and Turnbull will meet for third place.

It was sweet revenge for Lloyd, who was defeated by

Wansley runs tight ship at "Fort Landry"

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — You can kid Larry Wansley but don't mess with him.

You are permitted to needle the former undercover FBI agent who is now the Dallas Cowboys' security chief about turning this serene California Lutheran College training camp into "Fort Landry" with his barricades.

"Where's the barbed wire, Larry?"

He has an excellent sense of humor and laughs hard.

Just don't hassle this guy TOO hard.

Try this resume:

He worked on the cases of Patty Hearst, ABSCAM, and the murder of federal Judge John Wood in his 10 years with the FBI. During this period of time he used five different identities, including everything from being a newspaper publisher to a jet setter.

He's been on S.W.A.T. teams. And, oh yes, when he was a policeman in Compton, Calif., he was assigned to handle a little rumble called the Watts riots in Los Angeles.

Wansley says, almost casually, "A few times my life has been in danger; a few times I thought it was over."

He won't get very specific about the cases except to poke fun at himself.

Example: Once as a Compton cop he cornered a suspect and tried to kick open a door — like they do it on TV. His foot went through the door but the suspect surrendered as the door swung open.

A giggling backup unit found Wansley with a gun trained on the suspect and his foot still jammed through the door.

(A "footnote": The suspect had fired a bullet from a window at Wansley. An attorney got the man off, claiming his client was test-firing his gun.)

Wansley hasn't been hired by the Cowboys to be Coach Tom Landry's check curfew. That job will fall to the assistant coaches.

"I've just had a feeling our security has been loose on the road and at home," Landry says.

"There's just been too many people around."

Steelers win hall of fame game, 27-14

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Reserve quarterback Cliff Stoudt threw for two touchdowns and the Pittsburgh Steelers intercepted five passes Saturday in a 27-14 opening National Football League exhibition victory over the New Orleans Saints.

The Steelers, rolling to their sixth straight exhibition triumph over the last three seasons, were in control all the way after scoring 17 points in the opening quarter.

Before the nationally televised game, Sid Gillman, Bobby Mitchell, Bobby Bell, Paul Warfield and Sonny Jurgensen were inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

Stoudt, a seven-year veteran from Youngstown State University, filled in for injured regular Terry Bradshaw, who still is recovering from surgery on his right elbow in March.

The seldom-used Stoudt responded with the longest touchdown pass play of his pro career, a 69-yard bomb to wide receiver Greg Hawthorne.

He also connected with rookie Gregg Garrity on an 18-yard play for another opening-quarter touchdown. Gary Anderson had opened the Pittsburgh scoring with a 34-yard field goal in the first six minutes.

Stoudt connected on eight of 14 passes for 174 yards.

Quarterback Kenny Stabler appeared only briefly for New Orleans, playing the first three series. The left-handed veteran threw nine times, completing six passes for 59 yards.

The Steelers' secondary feasted on his replacement, Dave Wilson. They intercepted his second-year play from Illinois four straight times and picked off one of Guido Merkens' throws.

New Orleans scored twice in the last quarter. Jimmy Rogers plunged 1 yard with 13:10 remaining to cap a 78-yard Saints' surge, and Merkens hooked up with Marvin Dumas on a 38-yard scoring strike with 1:18 to play.

Red Sox rally past Brewers

BOSTON (AP) — Carl Yastrzemski and Glenn Hoffman drilled three-run homers and Dwight Evans smacked a two-run double and a solo homer as the Boston Red Sox overcame a 3-0 deficit and pounded the Milwaukee Brewers 10-5 Saturday.

Yastrzemski's fifth inning blast snapped a 3-3 tie and made him the 17th major-league player to hit 450 career home runs. It also was the 43-year-old veteran's 47th homer after his 40th birthday, breaking a tie with Stan Musial for the major-league record.

Broyles comes from behind to win Tri-State Tournament

By L.D. STRATE
Pampa News Sports Editor
TSSGA officials should nominate Jake Broyles for some kind of "comeback certificate" in addition to the championship trophy the Lamesa golfer walked away with at the 49th annual Tri-State Seniors Golf Association Tournament. He's certainly deserving of another award after shooting a two-under-par 69 Friday to win the Tri-State tournament at the Pampa Country Club.

Broyles had a 73-hole total of 289, coming from seven strokes back to overtake leader Bob Giese of Amarillo and runnerup J. Rowland Ferguson of Dallas in the final round. He also had to overcome his own putting difficulties.

"My putting had been killing me all week," Broyles said. "I finally got it all together and putted real well on the back nine."

Rowland, who won the Tri-State title in 1981, finished with a 75-290, while Giese, who won medalist honors Tuesday and led for the first three rounds, soared to a 79-292.

It was the first seniors title for the easy going Broyles, who said it was all "unexpected."

"I think I caught Bob and J.R. playing each other and I came through and had a good round," Broyles added.

Giese never could get back into the groove after a double-bogey on the opening hole, pulling his tee shot into the trees.

"I was late getting to the tee box and they had started without me," Giese explained. "I just set my ball down and hit it as quick as I could."

Even after hitting a couple of trees on the front nine and shanking an iron shot on No. 7, Giese was still very much in the match.

"I was still two shots up on Jake and even with J.R. after I had parred No. 12," Giese said. "I was thinking I needed a birdie when I hit my second shot about 120 yards from No. 13 (par 5, 540-yard hole), but I burned one with my nine iron and ended up with a double-bogey."

Broyles shot a 36 on the front nine to lead Giese by three strokes and Ferguson by one for the round. He tied Ferguson for the overall lead when he sank a 30-foot putt for a birdie on No. 16. Ferguson bogied the par three hole.

Both had pars on No. 17, setting up a showdown on the par 5, No. 18 hole.

"No. 18 was the highlight of the tournament for me," Broyles said. "I got off a super drive, then hit a 5-iron onto the green."

Broyles missed his 20-foot putt for an eagle, but tapped in a five-iron for a birdie.

Ferguson also had a chance for an eagle, but his 25-foot downhill putt inched by the hole and stopped four feet away. Ferguson missed by inches again, and also missing his chance for a sudden death playoff.

"If I could have had two-putted every green, I would have won by four strokes," Ferguson said. "I just couldn't handle those downhill putts."

It was Broyles' first title. He was sixth last year when rain canceled the final round of the tournament.

Landrum leads Canadian Open

RAKVILLE, Ontario (AP) — Ralph Landrum, a rookie admitted long shot, bounced back with a 67 and took a 3-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the $425,000 Canadian Open Golf Championship.

Landrum, playing in his first tournament as a fledgling member of the A Tour, scattered seven birdies across his card as he rebounded from a 75 in Tuesday's second round.

The 25-year-old club professional from Florence, Ky., completed three trips over the 7,060-yard Glen Abbey Club course in suburban Toronto in 207, six under par.

"I know I'm a long shot, not supposed to win the golf tournament," said Landrum. "I won his tour playing lights by surpassing the money-winning minimum standard in the last month."

"But that does two things for you. The crowd gets behind you. They like a long shot. I never had people rooting for me like that. And, when somebody tells you that you can't do something, that you aren't capable of doing something, well, it kind of spurs you on."

Tom Purtzer, an experienced player with one tour title and four consecutive years as a $100,000 winner, was one shot back after a 70.

Defending champion Bruce Lietzke, a two-time winner on this course, and John Cook were another stroke behind at 209. Lietzke had a 70 that included 17 consecutive pars and a birdie on the 18th hole. Cook also had a 70.

Fuzzy Zoeller, the second-round leader, dropped back to 210, three off the pace. He was tied with Johnny Miller, Frank Conner and two Australian natives now living in the United States, Greg Norman and David Graham. Graham made an eagle-3 on the 18th hole for a 71. Norman shot 70, while Conner and Miller each had a 67 in the muggy weather.

Jack Nicklaus, who has won almost everything the game can offer but has yet to take this national title, dropped an 18-20 foot eagle putt on the 18th hole for a 70 that left him at 211.

Landrum, who made several unsuccessful attempts at the PGA Tour school, tied for eighth in the U.S. Open and was fifth last week in the Anheuser-Busch Classic in Williamsburg, Va., in which he won $13,300. That gave him more than $31,000 for the year and entitled him to his playing rights.

His first round as a card-carrying member of the tour was a 65, which gave him a share of the 18-hole lead here. But he blew 10 shots higher in the second round, then came back again with an effort that included six 3s on the front side and a double bogey that failed to discourage him.

Stephenson leads women's open

ULSA, Okla. (AP) — Jan Stephenson survived steamy conditions Saturday to seize the whole lead of U.S. Women's Open with a 3-over-par 216.

Stephenson, the 1982 Ladies Professional Golf Association classic champion who has captured the Open, led two shots over Debbie Behan, who were at 218.

Sheehan, the current LPGA champion who led by three strokes when play began, fell to a 5-over-par 76 while Stephenson posted a 2-over-73. Temperatures around 100 degrees, 63 percent humidity and a late afternoon thunder shower which delayed play 10 minutes turned the course into a stamina-sapping sauna.

Stephenson, a 32-year-old Australian who now lives in Fort Worth, Texas, went out in even par 36 then matched par 35 on the homecoming nine.

She knocked in a 20-foot birdie putt on the 14th hole but gave it back to par with a 3-putt 15th green. It was her second 3-putt of the day.

Stephenson bunkered her tee shot on the rugged 400-yard par 4 No. 17, drilled her second shot wide of the green and wedged to within 15 feet. She then slipped the downhill putt into the side of the hole for a saving par on perhaps the toughest hole on the course.

Pat Bradley, the 1981 Open champion, shot a record-tying 5-under-par 31 on the front nine which included an ace, but she found trouble on the homecoming nine.

Bradley knocked a 5-iron in the hole on the 145-yard par 3 No. 6 as she tied Judy Bell's U.S. Open nine-hole record. Bell set the record in 1964 at San Diego.

Brett's bat shipped to Tiger Stadium

ETROIT (AP) — George Brett got his famous pine-tar bat shipped to Tiger Stadium last Sunday — and then was called out because the bat had too much pine tar on it.

The bat, the centerpiece of baseball's liveliest controversies, was delivered to Tiger Stadium about two hours before the start of the 5 p.m. EDT game, said Belger, a service agent at Emery Air Freight's Detroit-area office.

The bat was shipped to Detroit in a cardboard tube after spending the day in the New York City office of the American League.

It got a little special handling and some tender care," Belger said. "The bat, an injury-looking Louisville Slugger, is the one Brett used to hit the controversial two-run home run at Yankee Stadium last Sunday — and then was called out because the bat had too much pine tar on it.

The Royals protested and, after studying the bat and various reports, American League President Lee MacPhail reinstated the homer even though the bat had too much pine tar on it. Baseball rules say the coating cannot exceed 18 inches.

The ruling turned a 4-3 Yankee victory into a suspended contest with the Royals leading 5-4 in the ninth inning.

Birds keep AL East lead with 8-6 win over Texas Rangers

BALTIMORE (AP) — Eddie Murray continued his torrid hitting as Baltimore held onto first place in the American League East with an 8-6 victory over the Texas Rangers before the second-largest Memorial Stadium crowd of the season, 44,970 spectators, Friday night.

Murray, who now has 19 runs batted in in last 20 games and is batting .320 (22-75) in the that span, clipped a bases loaded single in the last of the eighth inning to drive in two runs bringing the Orioles from a 6-5 deficit into a 7-6 lead. Murray now has 67 RBIs on the year.

John Lowenstein's sacrifice fly knocked in the final Oriole run.

"I hit a fast ball," Murray said. "The (reliever Victor Cruz) got the pitch a little higher than he wanted it and I hit it. If you're hot, you usually come through when you need it. We knew Cruz pretty well. He throws sinkers and a slider. I just waited for the fast ball."

"One thing, we have faith in our offense and our pitching," Murray said. "And it was a big crowd. Even the Rangers mentioned it. Some of their guys were saying, 'Jeez it's nice to play in front of a crowd like this. I'm just glad the humidity stayed away and it wasn't oppressive heat.'" Murray said.

Joe Altobelli, the Orioles manager, said, "I think Eddie expects to come through in those situations for us. That's bigger than me expecting to do it. But that's why he's Eddie."

Altobelli was also pleased with the large crowd and the victory, Baltimore's fifth in the last six games, ninth in last 12 and 15 out of 19.

"It was a very nice way to come home," the manager said. "When you're hot, you're hot. And we seem to be hot right now. We came from behind three times. We gave them (Texas) a couple of runs but that's beside the point. We feel we can hit the ball and we can score runs. As long as we're doing that, I think we'll be okay," Altobelli said.

Aces at open

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Pat Bradley and Jane Lock scored the eighth and ninth holes-in-one in the 31-year history of the U.S. Women's Open Saturday.

Bradley hit a 5-iron on the 145-yard par 3 No. 6 for her ace while Lock drilled a 6-iron into the cup on the 158-yard par 3 No. 15 at the Cedar Ridge Country Club.

Amateur Susan Fromoth made an ace in the tournament Friday.

Garvey injured

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Steve Garvey underwent surgery for one hour Saturday to repair torn ligaments in his left thumb, an injury that ended his record consecutive-game streak Friday night and will sideline him for at least three weeks.

Jerry Kapstein, Garvey's agent, said Saturday the surgery was performed by Dr. Merlin Hamer at the Scripps Clinic in La Jolla, Calif.

Kapstein said the doctors told him that the surgery was successful. Garvey, whose National League-record streak ended at 1,207 games when he missed the second game of a doubleheader Friday, is expected to be released from the hospital Sunday, Kapstein said.

"His doctors said his chances for a full recovery are excellent, but that he would be sidelined for a minimum of three weeks," Kapstein said.

Bluegrass festival preserves homemade fun

The Old Mobeetie Bluegrass Ole Tyme Music Festival preserves more than a heritage of American music, it recreates a vestige of old fashioned family fun and togetherness.

For the past four years the Panhandle, Bluegrass & Old Tyme Music Association and the Old Mobeetie Association jointly sponsor this three-day event the fourth weekend of July.

Bluegrass musicians from Texas and Oklahoma load their instruments, wives and kids and make their way to the grounds surrounding the historic Old Mobeetie Jail. They set up their campers and their chairs under the towering cottonwoods. And the festival begins.

Bluegrass bands play 45-minute stints on stage for the festival crowds sitting in lawn chairs and on blankets. Meanwhile, other bluegrass pickers gather under the trees and swap tales and Bluegrass "licks" — techniques. Mobeetie's volunteer fire department mans a concession stand, sending wafts of charcoal-cooked meat across the grounds. Children chase each other between the campers

All of this is the brainchild of two Amarillo men (former Yankees, I'm told, but now accepted as transplanted Texans) — Dave LaCaze and Hugh Coder. About five years ago they decided what the Panhandle needed was an organization bringing the various area bluegrass lovers together.

Eudell Gifford of Lefors, a member of the Tri-State Bluegrass Express says the two approached him after a concert one night and asked him if he'd be interested in such an idea.

From there the organization, The Panhandle Bluegrass and Old Tyme Music Association, grew to more than 300 members from all walks of life, all with a common interest — bluegrass music. At LaCaze and Coder's suggestion, they decided to sponsor the bluegrass festival which is yearly growing in popularity throughout the area.

This year's president, Thunda Wigley of Amarillo, explained that their purpose is to preserve Bluegrass music and to help people retain their ability to create their own entertainment.

Bluegrass music was originated by Bill Monroe and the Bluegrass Boys, she said, a popular group of the 1940s. Monroe created the sound, she said, by joining the banjo, guitar, bass fiddle, fiddle and mandolin into one acoustical sound.

Bluegrass songs often come from old folk songs that no one knows who wrote, but the difference between them and these old folk songs is in their presentation. In the past they were sung with a guitar or a banjo "frailed" (which is similar to strumming) unlike the complicated fingering of today's bluegrass music.

"The electronics of today have stolen the imagination of the younger generation," Wigley said. Youngsters today haven't been exposed to creating their own entertainment and Wigley says she feels they are losing something from this lack of exposure. That is one reason she feels the bluegrass festival is so important.

"The people that are really steeped in bluegrass are 50 years old," she said. Now she feels it's time to give the younger ones a chance to carry the music on to the future.

In a nutshell, that is what the bluegrass festival is. A chance for people to remember how to create a fun time on their own, not depending on special effects and electronics to do it for them.

THURSTON SELBY

WALLACE SELBY

Pampa boys perpetuate heritage

Bluegrass music is becoming increasingly popular and in Pampa, anyway, two youngsters are doing what they can to perpetuate the tradition — Thurston and Wallace Selby, sons of Jack and Carolyn Selby of Pampa.

Thurston, 11, plays the fiddle well enough to make many older men jealous. He shyly admitted that he had taught himself to play during the past two years by listening to tapes then duplicating the sounds he heard. He had played the piano, he said, so he could read music and understood the fundamentals.

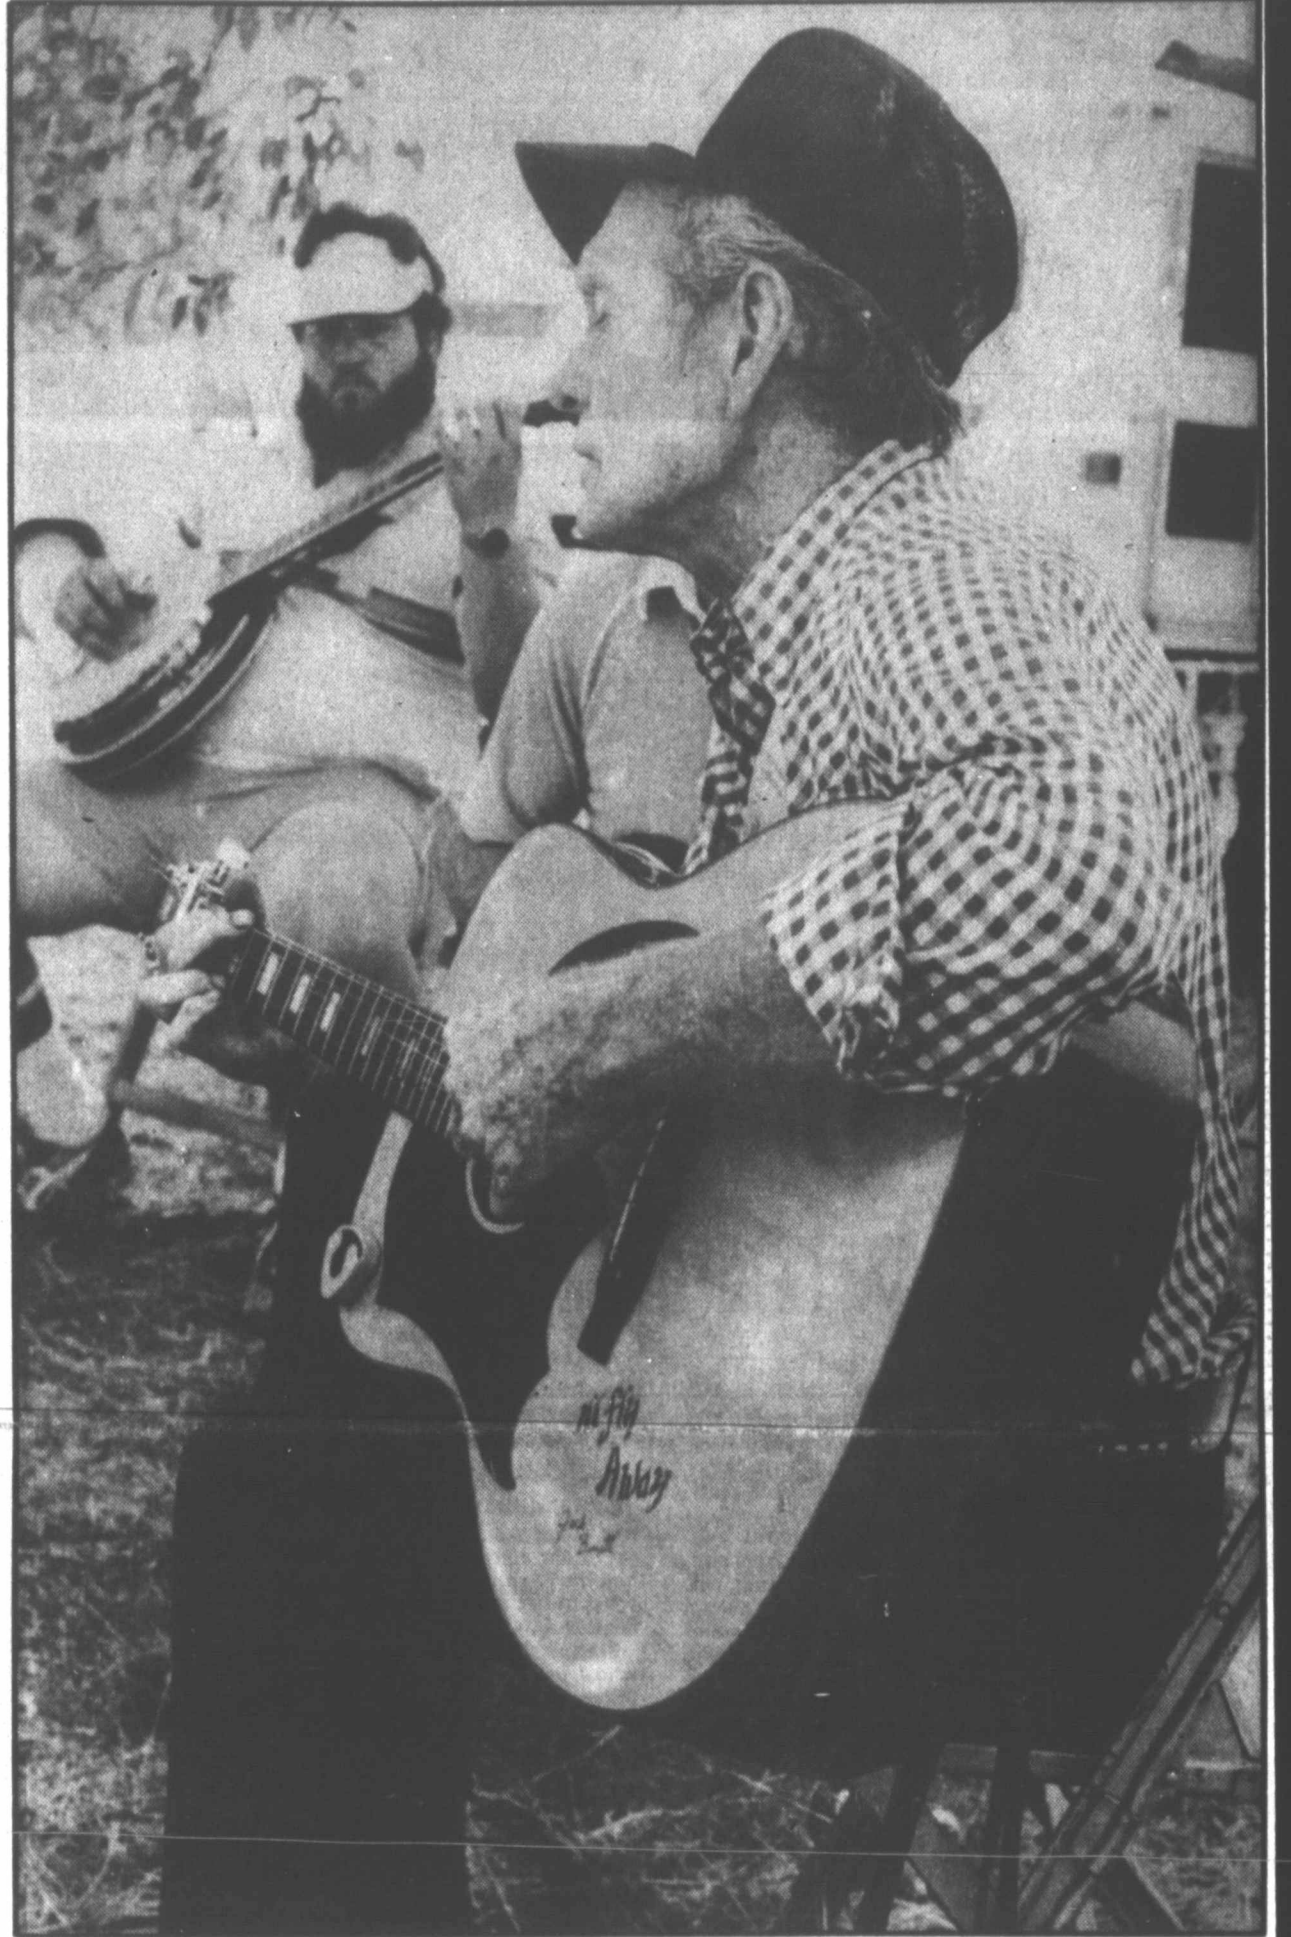

"I have fun playing," Thurston said, but added he enjoyed performing, too. He doesn't appear to be the least bit afraid on stage. He explained, sagely, "You get scared right before you go on stage."

Wallace Selby is an aspiring musician, too. He clogs (old-fashioned dance) and plays the harmonica.

Wallace said he learned to clog while listening to a group of people playing music at his grandfather's house.

"I tried to pat my foot and I found out I couldn't do it. I had to use both feet. Then somebody told me I was clogging," he said. When asked how he learned to play the harmonica, he replied, "There was a piece of paper that went with it."

Jack Bennett of Borger closes his eyes in concentration as he picks his guitar in the shade of a tree during the annual Bluegrass Old Tyme Music Festival in Mobeetie

July 23. Musicians attend the festival not only to perform on stage for the crowds but also to take time with each other to trade knowledge and practice new techniques.

Tri-State Bluegrass Express members perform Saturday night, July 23, at the Mobeetie Bluegrass Festival. The local group with members from Lefors and Amarillo brought the crowd to its feet with its lively renditions of bluegrass favorites. Members

Local families host students from Japan

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Lifestyles Editor

Three Japanese students visiting the area through a 4-H exchange program are finding many things are the same as and many things are quite different from their home country.

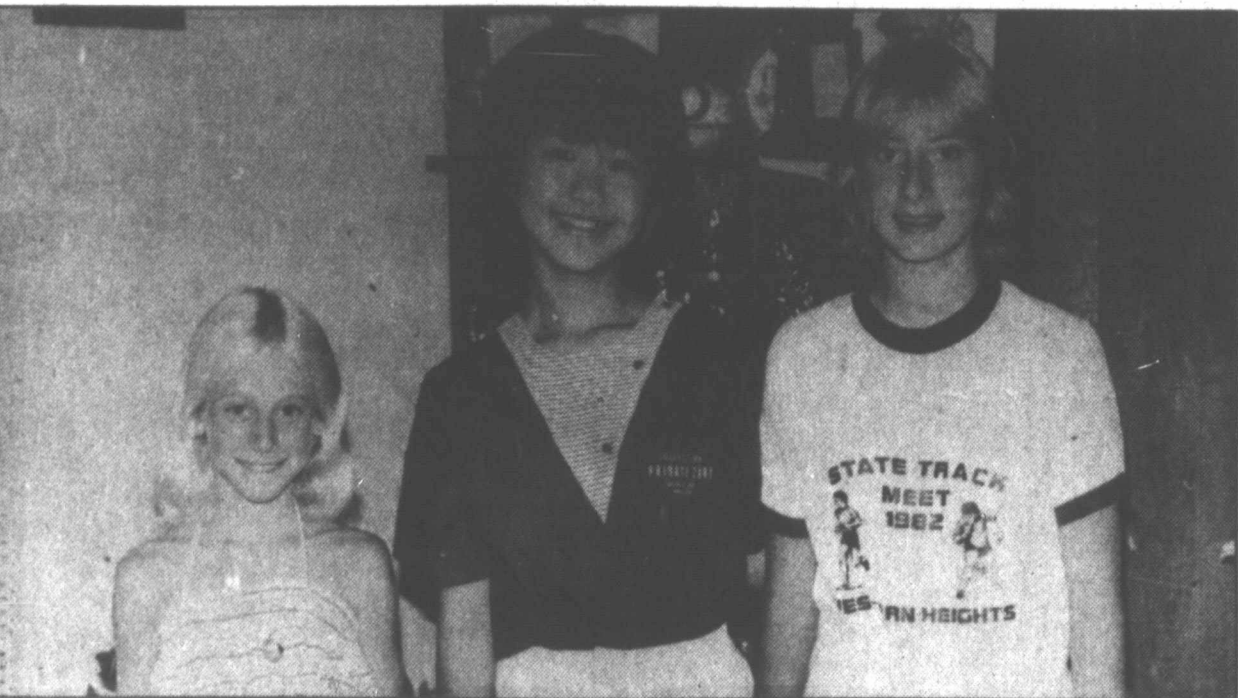

Akiyo Yamamoto, 12, is a guest in the home of Gary and Linda Hokit of Pampa. Yasuhiro Morito, 13, is staying with Mr. and Mrs. Owen Lafferty of White Deer. Hitoshi Inaba, 13, is the guest of the Marvin Urbanczyk family, also of White Deer.

These young people are members of LABO, the 4-H equivalent in Japan. They speak little English, so much of the communication between the two families transpires by sign language and using the Japanese to English and English to Japanese dictionaries. They all agree, however, that they somehow get the point across.

Each brought a scrapbook for their American families showing their home, family, pets, school, friends and depicting some of their customs. They brought examples of Japanese clothing, food, candy and toys. Brightly colored paper was brought to show their new American friends the Japanese art of "origami," folding paper.

Their host families plan to give them a good dose of American food and fun while taking them to points of interest and including them in their homelife.

Dear Abby Thief's wife remains loyal

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Buddy (not his real name) and I have been married for six years. We have two kids and love each other very much, but he has spent at least three years of our marriage locked up. That's where he is right now.

My mother doesn't like him and never has. For a long time she's been trying to talk me into leaving him and finding someone else. Please don't think I'm bragging, but I am a nice-looking woman and I get lots of offers.

I love my husband and don't like the idea of another man playing daddy to my kids, but I am confused. Buddy is really a nice man. He doesn't care for regular work, and he loves me and the kids so much he finds other ways of getting money. He tries not to hurt anybody. He just steals.

I hate to leave him, but I need a man who spends more time on the outside. What is your advice? Sign me...

LOYAL

DEAR LOYAL: "Nice" men work to support their families; they don't steal what other people have worked hard for. It's too bad Buddy doesn't care for "regular work" because that's the way honorable men make it in this world.

Tell Buddy that you love him and don't want another man playing daddy to his kids, but unless he goes straight and stays straight, he will lose a loyal woman who loves him.

DEAR ABBY: It's usually women who are reluctant to tell how old they are, but I recently met a young man who simply will not tell anyone his age. If anyone attempts a guess, he doesn't let on whether the person is right or wrong.

I feel a very strong attraction for this young man, and I know it's mutual, but I don't want any problems to arise, such as contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

I am 20, and I'm sure he is younger, but I don't know how much younger. I don't want to mess things up by pressuring him to tell me how old he is, but I'd sure like to know.

Any ideas?

MAD ABOUT THE BOY

DEAR MAD: If he refuses to tell his age, he's probably not old enough. Throw him back. He's not a keeper.

DEAR ABBY: After months of agonizing over how I was going to tell my husband of six years that I wanted out of our marriage, I finally gathered the courage to tell him that I admired him, liked him and respected him, but I just didn't love him, and I thought our marriage was a mistake.

I also told him honestly that I had met another man who I felt was more "right" for me, and Abby, before I finished the sentence, my husband hugged me and said, "I'm so glad, because I've found somebody else, too."

Abby, when a marriage isn't working, it's usually bilateral.

Gardening by Moonsigns

Plan now for fall garden, spring bulbs

By LOIS BOYNTON

The Moon will be Decreasing: 1-8; 24-31.

The Moon will be Increasing: 9-23.

The Fruitful Signs are from 1:10 the 5th through 7th (Cancer); From 4:00 13th through 15th (Scorpio); from 11 a.m. 23 through 25 (Pisces).

The Semi-Fruitful Signs are 1-2 (Taurus); from 12 noon 11 through 13 (Libra); 18-20 (Capricorn); 28 until 30 at 4 p.m. (Taurus).

Barren Signs are 3 until noon Friday, the 5th (Gemini); from 2 p.m. the 7th until 12 noon (Virgo); 16 - 17 (Sagittarius); 20 - 22 (Aquarius); 26 - 27 (Aries).

With July being so unkind with no rain we know what is ahead for us. Water! If you have already mulched, Power to you! If you have a 3 to 4-inch mulch, you are in great shape.

Compost, pine straw, shredded newspaper, spoiled hay is good. Hay is likely to bring weeds. You can sprout them before using the hay. Sprinkling the hay and keeping it moist for two to three weeks.

You can mulch with sawdust but you will need to apply extra nitrogen before using. We always use cotton seed meal. Use it sparingly, it is potent.

We take the grass clippings from the mower and place them on the flowerbed, being careful with water to penetrate the mulch.

Keep digging your iris, we seem to get ours all done. The 12th through the 15th are the days for digging.

Pull up cornstalks when you have stripped them. This could help with fewer earworms and smut when removed from the garden.

If you wish to plant a fall garden, the time to do it is the 12th through the 15th, this is for things that make the fruit above the ground for radishes, beans and potatoes.

They should be planted the 6th - 7th. Soak the soil deeply before planting.

Give the compost pile a good drenching.

Watch ripening tomatoes for the first signs of blossom endrot. If you find any, increase the watering. Give one cupful of manure to each plant. They should never be allowed to dry out.

This is the month to get your orders for fall bulb planting. Do not plan on the tulips coming back. We grow as an annual. We have had the Darwins come back occasionally. Parrots, Fantaisies, peonies seldom come back. We tried lifting some in the spring, but it didn't work. So we just plant them as annuals.

Dahlias will give you extra-large flowers if you will give them a feeding of nitrogen-rich food. We always use cottonseed meal.

If there are seeds you want to plant in the fall, place them in the refrigerator until the days have arrived at 40 to 45 degrees, then plant outside.

Red spider infestation can be brought under control by spraying morning and late afternoon, wetting the foliage well with water.

It will still be time for rose cuttings; do this on the 6th.

Some gardeners think that beans allowed to ripen and mature on the vine are much better, according to them, you don't know what baked beans really taste like until you cook up a batch of your own, organically-grown beans.

Onions and garlic are nice braided for storage. The tops should be thoroughly dried before braiding.

Watch your corn and pick just as it is ready in hot weather. It peaks very fast, one more day may be too late.

Plant turnips for the bulbs 6-7 and for the greens plant 24 and 25.

When phlox have finished blooming cut them back to the ground. They may be lifted and divided. Water well.

It is time to take stem cuttings from geraniums to bring in the house. They will root quickly and form six able plants for early December.

The cuttings should be about four inches long and taken near stem, near a node.

Trim off the lower leaves. Place in a pot of sharp sand. After applying rootone, water well.

Oriental poppies and daylilies can be divided. The entire clumps should be lifted and divided. With a hose, wash the extra soil around the clump. Get rid of the center clump, pushing and dividing until you have a nice clump to plant back. You will have plenty more for yourself and your friends.

Since the shrubs and trees constitute a major investment for your home, they should be selected carefully. August is a good month for you to visit the nurseries or the catalogue and see what is available to you. Is it dwarf or regular trees, is it broadleaf or evergreens?

I hope you have some lilies on your list for fall planting. They are not hard to grow. They reward you wonderfully and most generously.

The trick lies not in how green the thumb, but in how good the soil. They like loamy, fertile soil, well drained. They are one of the best you can buy for your money. They bloom in and look beautiful in 100 degree weather.

There's no greater truth in gardening than that gardeners must plant far in advance if the crops are to mature at the right time.

Chrysanthemums should be coming into their own this month. They will add beautiful color. A friend said her neighbor was on vacation and she was watering her garden and keeping things picked. She's getting luscious sweet corn. If you have never picked it from your own patch, you don't know what you have missed. Okras, broccoli, blackeyed peas and more. Hers is a nice neighbor to share.

Garlic is one of the most carefree crops in the garden. We use garlic for many dishes. When the stems lose all trace of green they are ready for harvesting. We keep them in a dry place and use all winter long.

Cantalopes begin to ripen in August. We have been asked how you tell the melon is ripe. When you look at the stem of the melon, you find a disk of fibrous tissue at the point where the stem joins the melon. When it is fully ripe, the disk separates from the melon.

If August is hot, we'll have lots of sweet corn. If it is cool, our lettuce will prosper. And if it's just average, our tomatoes and peppers will do well.

That's why you just can't lose in August.

Angie Wilson takes on two responsibilities

Angie Wilson has been elected president of the South Central Jurisdictional Youth Team of the United Methodist Church during a meeting in Shreveport, La., recently.

Wilson is the 17-year-old daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Billy Wilson of McLean. The Rev. Wilson was pastor of the Harrah Methodist Church of Pampa for three years.

She will serve as a youth delegate on the jurisdictional council on ministries and chair the meetings for the jurisdictional youth groups from eight states.

At the Shreveport meeting, Wilson and Gregg Mann of McLean were among the 288 youngsters who attended youth training classes. Mann is the vice-president of the Pampa District of the Methodist Church. Both Mann and Wilson will be seniors at McLean High School this fall.

In addition to her new job, Wilson is the Youth Service Fund chairman for the Pampa district and was re-elected president of the Northwest Texas Conference of the Council of Youth Ministries.

As if this wasn't enough, she also edits a newsletter geared for "Preachers' Kids" or "PKs."

The quarterly PK Newsletter was first approved by Bishop Louis Schowengerdt, by the Pampa district office in Pampa where the newsletter is printed and from the seven district superintendents of the Northwest Texas conference who tapped a discretionary fund to finance the project.

The free newsletter was first issued in February 1983 with 225 copies sent throughout eight states. It has since generated a PK luncheon at the annual conference and a PK pen pal system.

Anyone wishing to contribute to the PK Newsletter or receive a copy should write to Angie Wilson, P.O. Box 762, McLean, Texas 79057.

Peeking at Pampa

Summer '83 promises to be a banner season for beautiful flowers in Pampa. Let's just say "thanks" to avid gardeners for making Pampa so beautiful.

At least two families boast magnolia trees that bloomed recently — Lilith and Ed Brainard and Dona Cornutt. Dona's flowers run the full range of the rainbow. Similar displays can be seen in the yards of Vanita Gray and Elmo Thompson. The blooms speak of neighborly hospitality.

Spotted around town: for a bit of light laughter ask Grainger McIlhenny about his old cows, as he calls them. You'll do more than smile!

Wouldn't you like to spend hours looking at Vanessa and Mark Buzzard and their precious children, Matthew and Sara Beth.

Lib (Mrs. Charles) Jones could have stepped off Fifth Avenue in her creamy wide-brimmed hat banded in turquoise. Her colors are strong and well-chosen always.

Bill Dingus seems to enjoy his retirement from retirement. There's a thought twister! Paul and Leon Daugherty are a fun-loving couple.

Judy and Jim Marcum, Pat Marcum and Bob Johnson were deep in conversation while enjoying a meal together recently. Irene Miller and Dorothy Jeffries enjoy being together and around people.

Frank Stallings Jr., former Pampan now living in Kentucky, visited with family (Ethel Johnson) and friends last week. Mary Burdette and Wylene Curtis are never too busy to smile and chat awhile.

Do hope you saw June and Buster Ivory having their pictures taken on a great big beautiful bull last Sunday! The source said they are former professional rodeo performers of international renown and were married in Madison Square Garden.

Are you aware of the bus ministry of the First Baptist Church directed by Gary Schwalk? Eight buses and two vans complete the fleet. At least two participate every Saturday in children's visitation — Richard Wright and Jerry Teel. Others who from time to time visit and drive buses Saturday and Sunday are Laverne and Wayne Pogue, Ed Taylor, Jerry Haralson, Walker Bird, Bob Muns. That's called sharing.

Wedding congratulations to Betty Chamberlain and Jewett Scarbrough who were married last Saturday. A handsome couple! Congratulations also to Pat and Bill Eads who celebrate their 40th wedding anniversary today.

Belated happy birthday wishes to Loretta Robinson who is also enjoying retirement.

Do read the lengthy article on Aubra Nooncaster in Parade Magazine. Larry King spoke of him as a coach for life. Aubra is a poet, too. When his English students entered college, they were prepared. Although Aubra is retired now, his influence is still widespread. A remarkable man!

Lois and Paul Barrett report a wonderful trip to California.

Sam (Samia) and Hunter (Chiz) Chisum work as a team. She's a safety nurse and he's a safety coordinator. They took a whirlwind mini-vacation with children, Angela and Courtney last weekend.

Patty Bov, an exchange student from Brazil living with the Hoyet Dunn family just returned from a trip with other exchange students. From Chicago, they traveled to Yosemite Park, California, Grand Canyon, Dallas and all points between for a memorable trip.

Mike Sears, controller of CCH is the newest Rotarian. Capt. Milton Wood of the Salvation Army is the newest Kiwanian.

Both are making fine Pampans.

Jo (Mrs. Gary) Via — Jo Claire to her parents, Virginia and Jimmy Wilkerson — as a member of the Women's Division of the Plano Chamber of Commerce was an organizer of the annual Star Spangled Spectacular fireworks show their July 4.

Her picture appeared in a recent Sunday edition of the Dallas Morning News. Jo, the size of a sliver of soap, is a human dynamo of energy and ability.

All the flowers of all the tomorrows are in the seeds of today. See you next week! KATIE

Now's the time to use fresh vegetables

By DONNA BRAUCHI
 County Extension Agent

Whether garden grown or as a magnificent display in a supermarket or roadside stand, fresh vegetables are more than just an accompaniment to a meal — they are a delicious gold mine of essential vitamins and minerals.

Wise vegetable selection is the first step in having taste tempting vegetables on your table! When selecting green beans, look for clean, crisp peas, bright in appearance and blemish-free. Allow 1 to 1½ pounds for four servings. Select broccoli that has firm stalks with closed dark green buds. Allow two pounds for four servings.

Carrots should be firm and well-shaped with bright orange color. Allow 1 to 1½ pounds for four servings. Look for corn ears with fresh, green husks and the kernels should be plump and in even rows. Allow one to two ears per serving.

Look for firm, glossy summer squash. Allow two pounds for four servings. Tomatoes should be firm and blemish-free with rich red color. Allow two pounds for four servings.

Proper storage of vegetables can contribute to the maximum freshness, color and flavor at mealtime. Also, remember to try to use fresh vegetables as quickly as possible after picking or purchasing. Store less perishable vegetables in a cool, dry place without washing first. Carefully wash most fresh vegetables before storing, drain thoroughly, and place in vegetable compartment or plastic bags in refrigerator to maintain ultimate crispness and flavor.

Follow two general rules when cooking vegetables: (1) when boiling, use as little boiling water as possible; and (2) cook or steam only until almost tender to retain optimum flavor, color and texture.

Vegetables are really versatile! Try some of these ideas:

In the raw, cut-up vegetables make great snacks or appetizers when served with fondue or your favorite party dip. Create a refreshing salad mold with unflavored gelatin and crunch colorful vegetables. Saute' cut-up fresh vegetables in butter, combine with cheese sauce, wrap in a crepe and bake until heated.

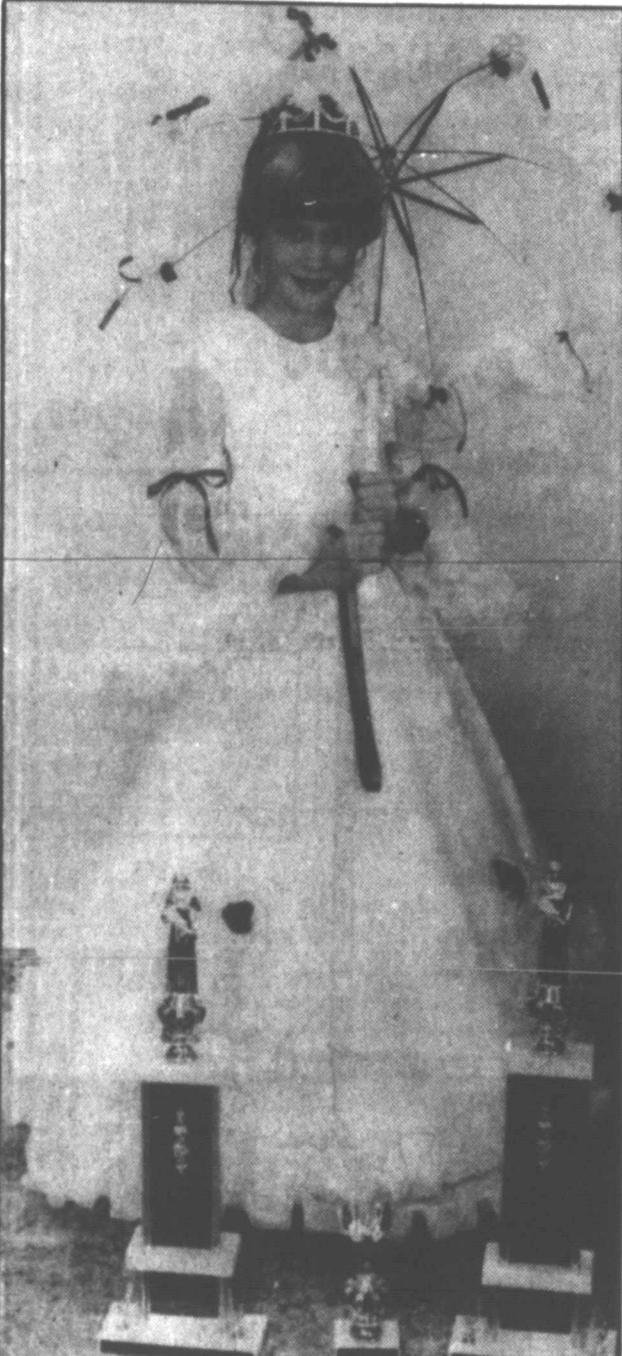

Take leftover cooked vegetables and add to golden onion soup mix for an easy creamy vegetable soup. Fill an omelet with a seasoned combination of vegetables, then top with a super-simple sauce of mushroom soup mixed with water.

Try zucchini bread! Add shredded zucchini to quick breads for garden fresh flavor by the slice! Skewer an assortment of cut-up fresh vegetables for a great-grilled side dish. Bread and deep fry cauliflower or broccoli flowerets, mushrooms, zucchini or eggplant sticks for snacking good taste. Don't forget to garnish foods with attractive, elegant edibles!

Other options you may have with fresh vegetables include canning, freezing, drying and pickling. Recipes and publications are available in the county extension office. Just call and ask for them.

Finally, after preserving, cooking and eating all the fresh vegetables you want and you still have them going to waste, consider sharing them with your neighbors, shut-ins, children's homes, day-care facilities or Meals-on-Wheels. There is always someone who can enjoy those versatile vegetables.

Dr. Lamb: Coffee and the heart

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband had a cardiac arrest, in the emergency room of the hospital — thank goodness. They saved him with no mental damage. As soon as he was able he had four bypasses put in and he recovered normally. After he returned home he had spells of irregular heartbeats, bad ones, landing him in the hospital four times with lots of tests. The technician at the hospital was watching the monitor and told us she was sure he was dying. He wore one of those special monitors for several days.

No doctor ever suggested he give up coffee. You don't mention it in your column either. He decided to do this on his own.

He stopped coffee and hasn't had even one spell since. That was five years ago. Do suggest that people do without coffee at least on a trial basis for a few months. It could save some lives. I think it saved one here.

DEAR READER — If you read my column regularly, you would know that I have frequently said that one way to help control or prevent heart irregularities was to stop coffee, tea, colas and all other sources of caffeine. I have also recommended stopping both smoking and drinking alcohol.

You can't really say that quitting coffee is what stopped your husband's heart irregularities. He could have gotten better anyway. But we do know that caffeine stimulates adrenaline production. By stimulating adrenaline production and perhaps through increasing the heart's sensitivity to adrenaline, caffeine can cause heart irregularities. Nicotine has a similar action.

May I point out the adrenaline problem is why caffeine makes anxiety or nervousness worse. Many people who are tense and anxious would be wise to avoid caffeine, also nicotine.

There is no good reason why heart patients cannot drink decaffeinated coffee or decaffeinated tea. But people with digestive complaints may not tolerate these either. To help give you a better appreciation of what beverages can do I am sending you The Health Letter 14-4, Controversial Beverages: Coffee, Tea, Colas and Chocolate. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Does Hodgkin's disease have stages to go through? Do you ever gain a lot of weight? Can it be diagnosed without removing a lymph node? Is there any known cure?

DEAR READER — Hodgkin's disease belongs to a group of diseases called lymphomas that cause enlarged lymph nodes. You must have a biopsy to identify Hodgkin's within the group of lymphomas and to classify what stage the disease is in. The stages refer literally to identifying the state of the disease so that the appropriate treatment may be given.

Sometimes corticosteroid hormone is used in treatment, which may cause fluid retention and a gain in weight.

By using staging to guide treatment and an aggressive treatment program, the major medical centers report that 50 to 70 percent of patients with Hodgkin's disease are being cured. These centers have the most to offer in terms of modern treatment. They include the major cancer centers such as Sloan Kettering in New York and M.D. Anderson Hospital in Houston. There are others.

Perryton bank hosts second area art show

An area art show sponsored by the First National Bank of Perryton, is scheduled Sept. 8 - 10 at the bank's community room.

The response to the 1982 Art Show was so favorable, bank officials said, that a second open show is planned this year.

All amateur and professional artists (including photographers), as well as artists in other fields of wall hangings, are invited to submit entries for this show. Works previously displayed at other art shows may be submitted.

Anyone who would like to participate in the show may contact Juanita Brillhart, First National Bank, Perryton, for more information and entry forms. Applications should be received for registration by Sept. 2.

As in the 1982 show, there is no age limit. The only stipulation is that the entrant live within 100 miles of Perryton. The artwork should be delivered on Thursday, Sept. 8.

Judges from outside the immediate area will select the best artworks in the major media categories. Cash prizes will be given for the first through fifth places in each category. Ribbons are to be awarded to all entries. A

$100 cash prize is to be awarded for the overall "Best Of Show."

Judging begins Friday, Sept. 9, from 9 a.m. to 12 noon.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — When all of the other popular remedies fail, one sure way to clean the lime deposits off faucets and sinks is a product called milkstone remover or pipeline cleaner. This can be purchased at farm supply stores. I use it full strength with a small brush. Remember to wear rubber gloves.

Here's a recipe for children's clay (similar to Play-Do) that mothers can easily make at home. Mix together one cup flour, one-half cup salt, one cup water, two teaspoons cream of tartar, one tablespoon vegetable oil and a few drops of food coloring. Cook the mixture gently over medium heat until it forms a ball. Store in an airtight container. This makes a safe, softer, more pliable dough than those you can buy. — DIANE

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Amanda King, like many housewives and mothers, has a part-time job. She moonlights for an intelligence agency.

Kate Jackson is Amanda King, who putters around the kitchen, drives the kids to school, and is sometimes faced with a dilemma: Can she make the PTA meeting tonight or will she have to save Western civilization instead?

She stars with Bruce Boxleitner in "Scarecrow and Mrs. King," a CBS fall series that mixes laughs and thrills. Boxleitner is an undercover agent (code named "Scarecrow") for a Washington-based intelligence group known as "The Agency." Mrs. King becomes innocently entangled in one of his cases and helps him solve it. The Agency figures, why break up a winning team?

Five years ago, Miss Jackson played the TV role of Sabrina Duncan in ABC's "Charlie's Angels." Sabrina was known as the "intelligent" angel, the one who took charge of this sexy trio of private eyes.

"Mrs. King is not like Sabrina Duncan. Amanda King hasn't a clue to what's going on. She just walks in and she's in over her head."

"The character is on the page. It's written and directed. It's a person to play, not just an attitude as in 'Charlie's Angels.' So Amanda is in over her head, but she's feisty and game. She may not admit it, but she'd love to have an adventure."

Mrs. King is divorced and lives in the Washington suburbs with her two children and her mother, played by Beverly Garland. She is an innocent in troubled waters, but she is not a pawn. She leads a double life, but her family comes first. Put the latest international crisis on hold as she has to take the kids to a Little League game.

The humor arises from these dilemmas and from Boxleitner's discomfort at being yoked to such an unlikely partner.

After she left "Charlie's Angels" in 1979, Miss Jackson hoped for a career in motion pictures.

She made a TV version of "Topper" with her then husband, Andrew Stevens, but it was a fizzle. Then she made a movie in Canada with Elliot Gould called "Dirty Tricks." She says, "It was fun, Montreal was a beautiful city, but it was a terrible movie."

She also starred in "Making Love" with Harry Hamlin and Michael Ontkean, a former co-star from her first series, "The Rookies." Her other TV movies were "Thin Ice" and "Listen to Her Heart."

"The movies were disappointing," she says. "We talk about how bad television is, but there are so many bad movies, too..."

Miss Jackson says, "I never intended to go back to doing an hour series. But I always wanted to go back to television. I had a contract with CBS and I wanted to do a three-camera comedy series. In an hour show all you do is work. Work and sleep. Especially with a two-character show like this."

CBS wanted her to do an hour show but she kept saying no until she read the script for "Scarecrow and Mrs. King."

Miss Jackson and her husband, David Greenwald, are partners in Shoot the Moon Productions, which is involved in the making of "Scarecrow and Mrs. King."

Rock 'n roll, old-fashioned way

LOS ANGELES (AP) — At a time when most imported bands are singing synthesizer dance jingles about a night at the disco, Ireland's U2 is making rock 'n' roll the old-fashioned way: with ringing guitars, showmanship and lyrical intelligence.

And after four U.S. visits in three years, the Dublin-based foursome is finally beginning to reap a modest commercial harvest here. Their third album, "War," made the top 40. Their videos are on MTV and their stage shows have wowed fans across the nation.

The band, whose youthful members went from classrooms to clubs about five years ago, has been collecting raves since their first album, "Boy," and their first visit back in 1980.

But the timing was off. Radio, then all-powerful in this country for breaking new bands, simply wasn't playing most of the music produced during New Wave's infancy.

U2 — then already hailed as one of the United Kingdom's top new acts — was known only to those who listened to college and more adventurous rock stations. During its first tour, it performed to appreciative, but small, audiences in major cities.

"We found that we're getting a crowd very much a product of the new spate of radio play. Top 40 radio," he says.

From good guy to romantic hero

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When actors Douglas Hawke and Bill O'Keefe get kicked off their television detective series, they don't sit by the telephone and wait for their agents to call with another job.

Hawke and O'Keefe take the skills they've learned before the camera and set up shop as real-life detectives.

Billy Dee Williams stars as Hawke, and Parker Stevenson as O'Keefe, in "Hawke & O'Keefe," a two-hour movie ABC will broadcast on Thursday. The movie, originally called "Shooting Stars," is a pilot for a possible midseason replacement on ABC.

Williams, who stars as Lando Calrissian in the summer movie hit, "Return of the Jedi," said he was offered a number of TV series before he accepted this idea from executive producer Aaron Spelling.

"The whole concept lends itself to serious moments, lots of love, action, humor and human relationships," Williams says.

Shelly Berger, Williams' manager and close friend, says that the character, Douglas Hawke, is a 1940s romantic hero.

"To see me playing that kind of role is interesting," Williams says. "Personally, I don't think in terms of black or white. I may talk about it because it's always an issue. I don't approach my work that way. He's just a guy who approaches his work depending on the conditions."

In the Record Industry Association of America's certifying of gold and platinum singles and albums, only gold singles are ahead of last year, at midpoint 1983. Platinum certifications were closer to 1981 than 1982. In general, there are no radical shifts.

The only platinum single in the first half of 1983 was "Mickey" by Toni Basil. Michael Jackson's name popped up frequently in the lists. Certifications of singles released a long time ago went to RCA for five by Elvis Presley and to Disneyland-Vista for 13 juvenile singles.

Gold albums have sold 500,000 copies and platinum albums have sold a million. Gold singles have sold a million copies and platinum singles have sold 2 million. A record company must wait 60 days after the date of a record's release to submit its sales records for RIAA certification.

Albums certified platinum during the first six months of 1983 are "Daylight Again," Crosby, Stills and Nash; "Combat Rock," the Clash; "Welcome to my World," Elvis Presley; "The Jane Fonda Workout Album," "Thriller," Michael Jackson; "Now and Forever," Air Supply;

"Eye in the Sky," Alan Parsons Project; "Copa," Led Zeppelin; "Special Forces," 38 Special; "The Distance," Bob Seger; "Forever, For Always, For Love," Luther Vandross; "Get Nervous," Pat Benatar; "Frontiers," Journey; "Pyromania," Def Leppard; "Screaming for Vengeance," Judas Priest;

"Rio," Duran Duran; "Kilroy Was Here," Styx; "The Closer You Get," Alabama; "1999," Prince; "The Final Cut," Pink Floyd; "Flashdance," soundtrack; "Cargo," Men at Work, and "Let's Dance," David Bowie.

For the first six months of 1983, the RIAA certified one platinum single, 23 platinum albums, 30 gold singles and 47 gold albums. In the first half of 1982, there were two platinum singles, 32 platinum albums, 13 gold singles and 51 gold albums. At the end of June 1981, certifications stood at one platinum single, 25 platinum albums, 17 gold singles and 72 gold singles.

Singles which turned gold in the first half of 1983 are: "Gloria," Laura Branigan; "The Girl Is Mine," Michael Jackson and Paul McCartney; "Maneater," Hall and Oates; "The Fox and the Hound," Peter Pan; "Bambi," "Cinderella," "Lady and the Tramp," "Snow White," "Pinnocchio," "The Three Little Pigs," "Dumbo," "Mary Poppins," "Sleeping Beauty," "It's a Small World" and "E.T.," from soundtracks;

"Down Under," Men at Work; "Beat It," Michael Jackson; "Mr. Robot," Styx; "Baby Come to Me," Patti Austin and James Ingram; "Dirty Laundry," Don Henley; "I Got Stung," "Are You Lonesome Tonight?," "Don't," "Return to Sender" and "It's Now or Never," Elvis Presley; "Billie Jean," Michael Jackson; "Swingin'," John Anderson; "Let's Dance," David Bowie, and "Flashdance ... What a Feeling," Irene Cara.

LPs becoming gold in the first six months of this year are: "Long After Dark," Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers; "Seven Year Ache," Roseanne Cash; "Famous Last Words," Supertramp; "Eagles Greatest Hits Vol. II," Eagles; "1999," Prince; "Showtime," J. Geils Band; "Here Comes the Night," Barry Manilow; "Still Life," Rolling Stones; "Spring Session M.," Missing Persons; "Speak of the Devil," Ozzy Osbourne; "Thriller," Michael Jackson; "Standing Hampton" and "Three Lock Box," Sammy Hagar; "Jump to It," Aretha Franklin; "Records," Foreigner; "Hello I Must Be Going," Phil Collins; "Coda," Led Zeppelin; "Bob Seger: "Just Sylvia," Sylvia; "Rio," Duran Duran; "Word of Mouth," Toni Basil.

bobby-soxers in broomstick skirts swooned over Frankie and Bing.

Her father, Richard Whiting, a famous pop composer of his day, wrote standards like "Hooray for Hollywood," "Too Marvelous For Words" and "Ain't We Got Fun." She grew up in a Hollywood house filled with music, with tunesmiths like the Gershwins, Harold Arlen, Gus Kahn, and Johnny Mercer.

But Margaret Whiting doesn't live in yesteryear. She thinks Michael Jackson is great, likewise Barry Manilow and Bette Midler. She even has kind words for the kind of music that impels America's young.

"I don't put disco down," says the singer, now 60. "After all, it was disco that got people dancing again."

Miss Whiting is still working in show business. At present, she's co-starring in a new off-Broadway musical, "Taking My Turn," a revue about the varied ways the middle-aged and ancient view the process of growing old.

"People always ask me if the show has given me new insights about aging," she says. "Well, I've never worried about it. To me, living is the important thing and you've got to give it all you've got."

"And singing, to me, is such a pleasure. It's never work. I've always been a very lucky woman to have the background I've had, and to enjoy a very pleasant, lovely career."

She's recorded more than 500 songs, 12 of them best-sellers, among them "It Might As Well Be Spring," "Come Rain or Come Shine," and one of the first country cross-over tunes, "Slipping Around," which she cut with Jimmy Wakely.

She's played the better night clubs, toured in musicals like "Call Me Madam," "Pal Joey," "Wildcat" and "Gypsy," and periodically pops up on the talk shows.

Her voice still is strong and sure, the result, she says, of 11 years of classical music exercises as a kid. And she remains a favorite in jazz circles for the way she "sells" a song, phrases a tune's lyrics.

Conceding that members of her generation may not agree, she insists that "we're getting better music nowadays."

She attributes this partly to increasing sophistication among young listeners, partly to radio stations that play and thus keep alive many of the standards she and her contemporaries helped make famous.

Miss Whiting, who says she's working with New York disc jockey Jim Lowe of WNEW on a three-hour music special that'll be syndicated to 250 other stations for a Labor Day airing, is optimistic that the better-music trend will be around for some time to come.

"Disco is gone and rock now is part of music, instead of being the all-encompassing thing," she says. "Jazz is getting bigger. Swing is coming back. The pendulum has changed."

Even when rock dominated popular music in America, she kept on going, never wanting to quit: "A lot of people said they wouldn't sing any more. But not me. I went right on."

This coming year you are likely to be more ambitious than you have been in the past. However, don't aim for so many goals that you spread yourself too thin and become ineffective.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 23) Don't let your ego or pride take precedence over your common sense today and cause you to do things that might make you look foolish. Leo predictions for the year ahead are now ready. Romance, career, luck, earnings, travel and much more are discussed. Send $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign. Send an additional $2 for the NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet. These reveal romantic compatibilities for all signs.

VRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Nobody's perfect, and there's a chance you'll make your share of mistakes today. The important thing is not to blame them on others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't jump impulsively into financial ventures today, even if they are being touted by well-meaning friends. Study their proposals from every angle.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In career situations today, protect yourself against associates who might try to step in and take credit for things which you accomplished.

AGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 31) Others will take you literally today, so be very careful that you don't give instructions on how to do something about which you lack expert knowledge.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Size up those with whom you deal very carefully today, or you might expect performances that they lack the competency to deliver.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Try to bring your interests and desires in harmony with those of your mate today, so that you're not pulling in opposite directions.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Try not to palm-off on others today tasks which you resent doing. They might tackle the chores, but they won't do the job that you expect.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's important to be practical and prudent in your financial affairs today. Don't leave anything to chance. Miscalculations could be costly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) There is a very fine line today between being progressively assertive and being pushy. If you cross it, it will make others angry.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Judge your audience wisely today, or you might be too frank with persons with whom you should be tight-lipped and hide things from those you shouldn't.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be hopeful regarding your material circumstances, but don't be foolishly optimistic to where you count on things which may never develop.

Luis Bunuel, who shocked movie audiences, is dead

By ISAAC A. LEVI

EXICO CITY (AP) — Luis Bunuel, the reclusive Spanish-born director who brought surrealism to the screen and garnered high critical acclaim with his films of a chaotic, sometimes violent world, is dead at the age of 83.

A spokeswoman at the American-British Cowdray Hospital said Bunuel died Friday of "biliary colic" after months of suffering from metabolic disorders the director had attributed to advanced age.

"I can establish my diagnosis easily. I'm old," he wrote in his autobiography "Last Breath," published shortly before his 83rd birthday Feb. 22. "I only feel old in my house, loyal to my daily routine."

Among the many films of a prolific career that spanned decades were "The Secret Chord of the Argentine," "Belle de Jour," and "That Obscure Effect of Desire."

The man whom New York Times critic Vincent Canby described as "the latest filmmaker" was born to a wealthy family in Spain and grew up in the northern town of Pampeluna.

Bunuel studied in Madrid, associating with poet Federico Garcia Lorca and painter Salvador Dali. All eventually became figures in the Parisian realist movement of the 1920s and 1930s.

Devoured by some films as big as the Earth, he was nothing, nothing more than a group of insolent intellectuals that blustered in a cafe and published a magazine," he wrote in his memoirs.

Bunuel fled Spain during the 1936-39 civil war, lived briefly in the United States, then moved to Mexico, where he made 20 of his 32 movies. He became a Mexican citizen in 1949.

"I always publicity-shy, he said in his last years quietly in his French wife of 50 years, Jeanne, in a middle-class neighborhood. He made his first silent film, "The Andalusian Dog," in Dali in 1929. It still shocks audiences with its surrealism.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Engineers and loyalists of the PLO's Palestine Liberation Organization have a new truce in east Lebanon today after sporadic shelling duels that killed four combatants and wounded 20, it is reported.

In the north port of Tripoli, reinforced police units stood ready to take over from warring Lebanese militias who occupied positions vacated by Syrian troops on Thursday.

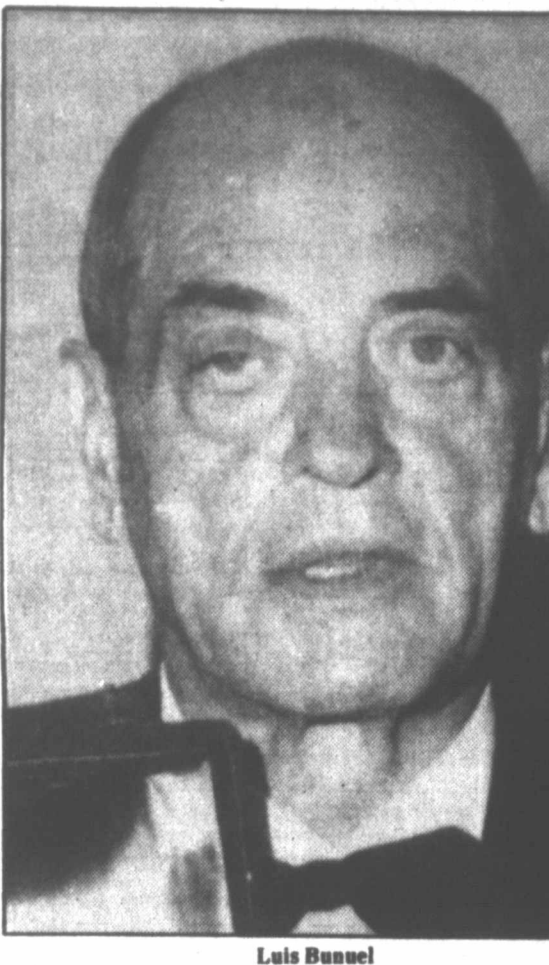

The PLO cease-fire went into effect at daybreak after hours of fighting in and around four towns in the Nahr Valley abutting a 10-mile stretch of the fruit-Damascus highway near the Syrian border, police said.

The latest casualty toll in 10 days of fighting in the Syrian-controlled central region of the Bekaa to 30 dead and 73 wounded by the rebels led by renegade leader Saad Mousa.

Seven Mousa's more important PLO policy, a bigger role in the decision-making process and financial terms. Arafat claims the PLO was instigated by Syria in an attempt to bring the militia movement under control of President Hafez Assad.

Telephone reports from Tripoli today said about 500 Syrian soldiers were standing by to take control of the city if the agreement is reached to draw 100,000 Syrian troops from vacated positions.

The Syrians pulled back to their mid-city positions the outskirts of Tripoli but advance notice. Rival factions quickly dug in at seven vacated positions in heavy weapons.

Luis Bunuel

scene of a razor slicing an eyeball.

The movie and "That Obscure Object of Desire" in 1977 epitomized his interest in scandal and perversion, blasphemy and the bizarre.

Writing about the Parisian days and Bunuel's movie, "The Age of Or" (The Golden Age), author Henri Miller said in 1939, "They have called Bunuel everything — traitor, anarchist, pervert, defamer, iconoclast, but lunatic they did not call him."

"True, it is lunacy he portrays in his film, but it is not of his making. This stinking chaos which for a brief hour or so is amalgamated under his magic wand, this is the lunacy of man's achievements after 10,000 years of civilization," Miller wrote.

Bunuel wrote that a Paris advertisement of one of his movies portrayed him as "the cruelest movie director in the world... This was a stupidity that made me very sad."

One lane of bridge open

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — The bridge connecting Brazoria and Galveston counties reopened this morning to one lane of traffic two weeks after it was shut down.

Traffic traveling west from Galveston to Brazoria County will be given precedence over east-bound traffic.

Coalinga on edge over the latest shakes

By CATHERINE WILSON
Associated Press Writer
COALINGA, Calif. (AP) — The people of Coalinga are fed up with the shakes they get every time an earthquake fault slips near town.

The isolated central California oil town of 7,200 people was hit May 2 by a tremor that destroyed eight downtown blocks of buildings and 300 homes.

Residents were reminded of the town's seismic underpinnings when three quakes measuring more than 5.0 on the Richter scale jarred the area in a week, the most recent, cracking walls and knocking cans from supermarket shelves on Monday. Six earthquakes above 5.0 and hundreds of smaller aftershocks have been felt since May 2.

The number and intensity of temblors since the May 2 earthquake is "well within normal bounds" in relation to the first tremor's magnitude, which was 6.7 on the Richter scale, said Robert Uhrhammer, research seismologist with the University of California at Berkeley.

But that is unlikely to give Coalingans, living next to two faults, much solace.

They are getting tired, angry and frustrated.

"There is absolutely nothing you can do about it," said policeman Jon Purcell. "Earthquakes come and go without warning."

The father of seven took the Coalinga job in April but didn't find a new house before the May 2 quake. The family now lives in two small trailers behind the fire station because the damaged town has few vacancies.

"The kids are cranky, I'm cranky, but we're fortunate to have this place to stay," he said. "We've paid our dues. If there was an entrance fee to the city, we've paid it."

Coalingans are also unlikely to get much solace from a report Uhrhammer helped write that predicts that for the next five to seven years, earthquakes will decrease in number but not much in intensity. An earthquake of 6.0 on the Richter scale is capable of doing severe damage, and although a quake of magnitude 5.0 is only one-tenth as great, even a 5.0 quake can inflict considerable damage.

The continual shakes are "jangling a few more nerves," said Fresno County social worker Sue Gonsalves. "We're seeing an increase with kids not wanting to be alone, not being able to sleep, with poor appetites even to the point of dehydration."

The regular rocking has kept tension high, she said. Common health complaints include chest pains, dizziness, tension headaches, shortness of breath and hyperventilation.

County mental health assistance "is directed toward ordinary people, normal people with normal problems who have been in an extremely stressful thing," said social worker Herb Paradies.

Many people know of somebody who has moved because of the earthquakes, and many will say they've thought of it themselves. City spokesman Bob Semple said utility shutoffs have run about 30 per month since April.

"I just might move but I don't know where I'd go, that's the thing of it," said Bettie Patton, a resident since 1936 whose house was wrecked. "It'd be easy to sell that property, but then again I'd probably turn up losers."

"It's just awful to keep cool after one of these," she said. "The last one was really hard, and it just made me a lot more nervous."

"It bothers people," said Jim Berry, commander of the local American Legion post. "I hear people saying they're going to move, and there have been some people that have moved, but I'm rebuilding."

Demolition of the devastated downtown business district is complete, and homeowners are rebuilding more rapidly than city planners expected.

But "people have been reluctant to put things back in their place," Semple said.

He found more wall cracks at his home after Monday's quake, but "you don't want to get out with a putty knife yet."
