

Jobless rate drops below 10%

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's civilian unemployment rate crashed through the double-digit barrier to 9.5 percent in July as a half-million people found work, the Labor Department said today.

Not since 1959 has unemployment plunged by as much half a percentage point in a single month. Moreover, total civilian employment reached 101.3 million last month, the highest ever.

The decline in the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate — from 10.0 percent to 9.5 percent — broke a 10-month string of double-digit joblessness and returned unemployment to the level of June 1982.

Since unemployment hit a post-Depression peak of 10.8 percent in December, with more than 12 million people jobless, the rate has retreated 1.3 percentage point and 1.7 million people have found work.

Some 10.6 million, however, Americans remained on the government's unemployment roster last month.

An alternative unemployment rate, combining the civilian labor force with the 1.66-million-member, U.S.-based military contingent, fell to 9.3 percent in July, duplicating the 0.5 percentage point drop in the civilian rate.

The rapidly improving job market eased unemployment woes across the spectrum of the civilian population, as many businesses rehired workers laid off during the long recession.

Both private and government economists have said they expect unemployment to decline steadily in the coming months as the business recovery picks up even more steam. These analysts have cautioned, however, that any sudden surge in interest rates could choke the recovery and lengthen unemployment lines.

The 0.5 percentage point drop came as the number of people searching for work fell by 57,000 following a record May-to-June increase of 1.2 million.

In testimony prepared for the congressional Joint Economic Committee, Janet L. Norwood, commissioner of labor statistics, said today's report showed that "the labor market has improved substantially. In July, employment increased markedly and unemployment registered its largest reduction since the recovery began."

The plunge in the jobless rate was the greatest since national unemployment fell from 5.8 percent to 5.3 percent from November to December, 1959.

A separate survey of private businesses, which is not used in the computation of the jobless rate, showed that payroll employment grew by 500,000, approximating the total turned up by government statisticians in the Census Bureau's survey of 50,000 U.S. households, on which the unemployment rate is based.

The 101.3 million people with jobs eclipsed the previous record of 101,006 million established in April 1981.

Adult women benefitted most from the improving labor market, the report showed, as their jobless rate plunged from 8.6 percent to 7.9 percent. Among blacks, who have been particularly hard hit by the business slump, the jobless rate fell beneath the 20 percent level for the first time this year.

Among the various population groups, the July jobless rates were:

—Blacks, 19.5 percent, down from 20.6.

—Adult men, 8.8, down from 9.0.

—Teen-agers, 22.8, down from 23.6.

—Whites, 8.2, down from 8.6.

—Hispanics, 12.3, down from 14.0.

The jobless rates declined, as well, in eight of the nation's 10 largest industrial states, rising only in Texas and holding steady in New Jersey.

Unemployment fell in several Midwestern states, which had felt the brunt of the recession because of the region's heavy manufacturing concentration. In Michigan, for instance, the jobless rate dropped from 15.2 percent to 13.1 percent.

Double, double, toil and trouble; when chili cooks, our stomachs bubble

By CARNELL HUNNICUTT
Staff Writer

It's time to grab the Pepto Bismol, your dancin' shoes and one dollar if you're not under six years old. You're set for some of the country's best chili cooks, cold brew, family games and some country and western stompin' at Pampa's Second Annual Chili Dilli all day Saturday, August 13.

And don't worry if at the event you see a few cooks dressed as giant green peppers, punk rockers, or similar characters, or if some in the crowd decide to proudly exhibit a flubbery beer belly, because it's all expected during the chili cookoff at the Sportsman's Club on South Barnes Avenue.

All proceeds from the day-long family fun go to benefit the Pampa Shrine Club Travel Fund, according to Shriner Terrie Horst.

For a $1 admission charge at the gate for adults, (children under six get in free) anyone who attends the chili cookoff may sample the entries of up to 100 cooks.

The fee also pays entry to any of the games scheduled and to the dance later Saturday night.

The cookoff is sponsored by KSZN Radio and North Country Coors, the beer distributor in Borger, and the money from beer sales, cookoff entry fees and gate admissions all goes to the charity.

The Pampa Shrine Club Travel Fund is set up for burn victims and crippled children who need special medical attention.

The club pays the expenses for the transportation of burn victims to be sent for medical attention to the burn treatment centers in Houston and Galveston.

Texas job picture is brightening

DALLAS (AP) — Economic recovery in Texas is "still on track" despite unemployment figures released today that showed a slight increase in joblessness, Department of Labor officials said today.

Unemployment statistics on the 10 most populous states were released in Washington and revealed a climb in the seasonally adjusted rate for Texas' unemployment from 7.7 percent to 8.0 percent.

The nationwide unemployment rate was 9.5 percent, down from 10 percent in June.

"Texas is the only one of the 10 states to show an increase for whatever that's worth, which I don't think is much, in terms of economic significance," said Bryan Richey, southwest regional commissioner for the Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Richey attributed the increase to the large number of students who sought summer jobs.

"This increase in July is placed primarily on the youth factor, students coming into the work force to find parttime jobs, and I think more of them failed to find jobs this year than in the past," Richey said.

"I think we're seeing an emphasis this year on recalling workers who have been laid off rather than providing backup jobs or extra jobs for youths while regular workers are on vacation," he added.

"Some might look on a three-tenths of a percent increase in unemployment and interpret it as meaning the recovery has been aborted. I don't think it shows that at all. We are showing evidence of a recall of workers, particularly of adults, in manufacturing jobs, and recovery in Texas is still on track."

Peak unemployment for Texas was 9 percent in March.

Pioneer Rosie Urbanczyk of White Deer is dead

By CARNELL HUNNICUTT
Staff Writer

Mrs. Rosie Urbanczyk, better known as "Grandma" by the people in White Deer, died Thursday at the age of 97.

Mrs. Clara Dillman, her daughter, recalled the days of horses and buggies.

"She lived a long life," said Dillman. "She was a very wonderful person and everyone loved her. I remembered her doing a lot of handwork things, like making quilts, needle work, and sewing."

She continued, "Back in those days she worked hard. She picked cotton and did a lot of farming work. We really worked hard back in the days of the horse and buggy."

"Dad had two girls before Mom married him, so that will make them my step-sisters. She had six children all together, but one step-sister is no longer living."

"She was a very devoted church person," continued Dillman. Everyone in White Deer called her Grandma because she was the oldest person in the town, and every one just loved her."

Early day farm life was not without its discipline. "Oh yes, I remember those spankings," Dillman said, "but she did it because she loved us and that was the way to learn discipline. When she gave us a talking we listened and did what she said."

Sister M. Consilia of the Saint Ann's Nursing Home where Mrs. Urbanczyk spent her last three years said, "She was very lovely, very inspiring, and a perfect example of thinking of others. I remember her last birthday here when all of the family got together with the people from the nursing home and gave her a party. It was lovely."

"Even through her illness (heart condition) she would always be thinking and trying to help others. She was a great person, a great grandmother, and a great mother."

People who knew her well remember her daily church attendance and how she would tell jokes even when bedridden. She was described as a "God-oriented person" and friends remember her as never being idle, having some sewing or other chore always at hand.

Rosie Urbanczyk was born August 29, 1885, at Panna Maria, Texas. She moved to White Deer from Knox County in 1910. She spent her last 3 1/2 years in Panhandle, and was the oldest living White Deer pioneer and member of the Sacred Heart Catholic Church and its Altar Society.

Mrs. Urbanczyk married John Urbanczyk in 1904 in Panna Maria.

She is survived by four sons, Henry Urbanczyk of Groom, Emil Urbanczyk of Pampa, Fred and Wilfred Urbanczyk of

U.S. border towns need help, Reagan study says

By T. LEE HUGHES

WASHINGTON (AP) — A task force formed by President Reagan has forwarded to the White House its recommendations for providing relief to southern border areas whose economies have been devastated by last year's devaluations of the Mexican peso.

And an aide to Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, who requested that Reagan form the task force, says he expects there's "going to be some short-term relief" for the area as a result of the task force's work.

"I fully anticipate something will be forthcoming that is very beneficial from the White House," said Fred McClure, legislative assistant to Tower.

Robert Dederick, undersecretary for economic affairs at the Commerce Department and chairman of the task force, said the group had forwarded a report containing "a combination of recommendations and options" for assisting the area.

But he declined to say what the report recommended, or whether it had suggested any new programs or funding. Dederick said that "not till after it's worked its way along and gotten to the president would I feel that I would say anything about it."

McClure, who accompanied members of the task force on a visit to Texas, said he expected the recommendations would result in "some administrative tinkering that will make the (various federal aid) programs more accessible" to border areas.

Democratic Gov. Mark White, meanwhile, is continuing to accuse the administration of not acting quickly or forcefully enough to provide aid to the border region.

"Surely they would have rushed disaster relief in if there had been a hurricane that had resulted in as many dislocations as this economy has resulted in," White said at a news conference here this week. "Almost a year this has been going on now."

"I don't know why they have to take so long before they take action or even start looking at the problem," White said.

That problem has arisen as a result of the peso devaluations of 1982, which sharply curbed Mexican trade with the border region. In communities that had relied heavily on such trade, retail sales plummeted, unemployment skyrocketed and tremendous strains were placed on local tax resources.

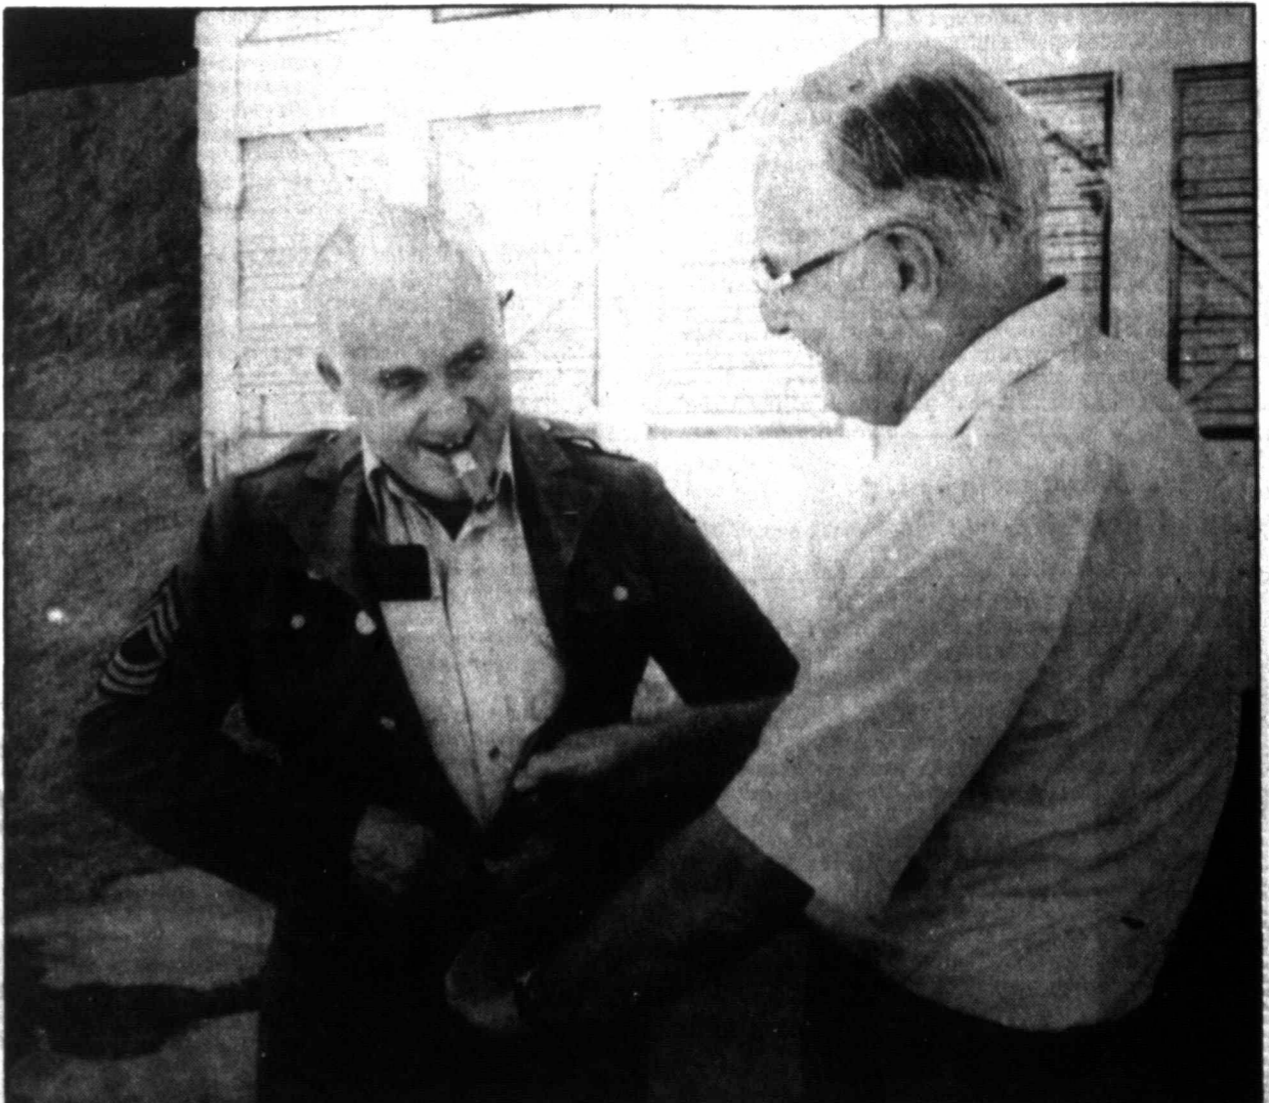

Attempts to deal with the situation have political as well as policy ramifications, with both Republicans and Democrats hoping to capture a significant chunk of the border region's sizeable Hispanic vote in 1984.

That Hispanic vote is considered one key element in both President Reagan's chances for capturing Texas and Tower's re-election prospects next year.

Asked about the politics of the aid issue at his news conference, White responded that he hoped "the upcoming political year will be a pressure point for this administration. 'My goodness, does it have to wait every four years to get them to do something?'" White said.

Whether a political coincidence or not, Republican Tower appears to have had considerably more success than

So what if the old jacket doesn't fit quite the same as it used to? Lewis Epps isn't that worried about as he gets a helping hand from Roy Kay in front of what used to be a hangar at the Pampa Army Air Field this week. Both Pampa men are getting ready for the annual reunion of servicemen and civilian employees of the World War II flight training base for bomber pilots which will be held Aug. 12 and 13 at the Coronado Inn in Pampa. For more information, call 685-2526. (Staff photo by Bruce Lee Smith)

Border...

Democrat White in getting the Republican administration to respond.

In February, White confronted Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige at a meeting of the National Governors' Association here, asking Baldrige what plans the administration had to assist the border area.

Baldrige replied that "I don't have any specific remedies for that one section" of the country, and that it would be difficult to solve the region's difficulties "without some kind of (economic) recovery" in Mexico.

Shortly thereafter, White met with Vice President George Bush about the region's problems, and again came away without any specific commitments.

However, in April, Tower publicly urged the president to appoint a special task force to evaluate the problems of South Texas and to come up with some solutions.

This time, Reagan responded by announcing establishment of the task force during a visit to San Antonio in early May, in an appearance aimed partly at courting the Hispanic vote.

That task force, officially known as a working group, was composed of representatives from a host of federal agencies, and visited California and Arizona as well as Texas.

McClure said he felt that as a result of the visits agency representatives "gained a deeper appreciation of the impact (the devaluation) has had on those border communities."

At a recent subcommittee hearing of Congress' Joint Economic Committee, chaired by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, several witnesses from Texas border areas called for increased job training assistance, development grants and education aid to help the region weather the crisis.

However, Bob Duffey, president of the Texas Commerce Bank in Brownsville, one of the communities hit hardest by the devaluation, cautioned that "the only real remedies for Brownsville's economic plight are patience and time."

"We cannot throw money at the situation and expect instant recovery," Duffey said.

And Dederick, who made three visits to border areas, said the seriousness of the problem varied from community to community.

"I thought (the problems) were very serious for those who were affected," Dederick said.

"It heavily affects those communities which are retail-oriented toward Mexico.... So for those who are intimately involved it's had a serious impact, but perhaps not too far away you'd find that it wasn't that big an impact," he said.

The top three chili cooks at the Pampa Chili Dilli will be awarded points toward the national chili cookoff in October at Terlingua, according to Horst.

Entries from several states are expected for the Pampa event.

Other activities include the Scraggly Beard Contest at 7 p.m., the Big Beer Belly at 7:30 and the Ugly Legs Contest at 8.

The dance outside the club tops the day's events, from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 in the morning.

The dance will include a waltz and two-step contest and a broom dance.

The country music is by the group "Spring Creek" from Panhandle.

Children are welcome to dance, according to organizers. The Sportsman Club, site of the cookoff and dance, is located on Barnes Street, south of the city limits and across from the Twin Drive In.

Vince Partsch declared war on litter and is helping the intersections at his own expense. Like the old West fight by putting barrels out for trash at heavily used marshals, Partsch is out to clean up Odessa. (AP Laserphoto)

ODESSA (AP) — Litter is Vince Partsch's bread and butter, but that doesn't mean he likes it.

Partsch, owner of Western Sanitation Co., intends to help clean up west Odessa by placing 12 trash cans near heavily traveled intersections, he says.

"We're providing this as a public service," he said. "It's not a panacea for all litter problems, but it's a help."

Partsch started Western Sanitation in December 1982 and earlier this year purchased a small west Odessa garbage collection operation from businessman Sam Holloman.

He said the idea for public trash cans in west Odessa originally was Holloman's, but Holloman sold his garbage collection business before he could set up the public litter cans.

He expects to see an increase of refuse at the public trash can locations if the City of Odessa begins a landfill user's fee in September.

Holloman already had the metal drums, and trash container stands with lids had been fashioned by some of Holloman's welders, Partsch said.

Last week, Partsch received permission from Ector County officials to place the cans along main roadways.

While the trash cans are intended to collect litter that otherwise would be thrown from vehicles, Partsch said he also expects to collect garbage generated by west Odessa households.

Some of the household trash ultimately would end up dumped along roadways, in private caliche pits or vacant lots, he pointed out.

"I've seen vacant lots used as dump sites, and when the property was cleaned up, the land sold," Partsch said.

He expects to see an increase of refuse at the public trash can locations if the City of Odessa begins a landfill user's fee in September.

Last week, Partsch received permission from Ector County officials to place the cans along main roadways.

While the trash cans are intended to collect litter that otherwise would be thrown from vehicles, Partsch said he also expects to collect garbage generated by west Odessa households.

Partsch said if west Odessa is a cleaner place, more people will move to that area, "which means more business for me."

While Partsch is donating the time and expense of twice-weekly collection, he said owners of B&B Hardware store donated tools to affix the container holders in the ground, and Sherwin-Williams Co. donated paint for the cans and stands.

Mattox surprises reporters, admits need for press coverage

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox told news reporters he had come to the Travis County courthouse merely to talk to them, but at first the Capitol press corps did not believe him.

"I just came to see you all," a smiling Mattox told about a dozen reporters late Thursday afternoon.

A few feet away, behind closed doors, a grand jury investigating the attorney general's affairs was in the process of interviewing two of his top assistants and his secretary.

For the last two weeks, grand jurors have been investigating Mattox' 1982 campaign finance reports and an allegation that he made a threat against a Houston law firm.

Mattox called the probe a "charade." He said the grand jurors had his bank records and those of his sister and "all my campaign accounts."

"I've got absolutely nothing to hide. I'm not worried about it," Mattox said. "I haven't done anything wrong."

Two lawyers from the attorney general's staff — Dave Richards and Tom Green — and Mattox' secretary Patricia Manly testified during the grand jury's afternoon session, which ended shortly before 9 p.m.

Later, District Attorney Ronnie Earle said the investigation was "by no means" complete. "We have a ways to go," he said.

Earle said it was probable that the grand jury would "invite" Mattox to testify at some future session.

But when Mattox stepped off the third floor elevator at the courthouse, news reporters, assuming he had come to testify, repeatedly asked what he was doing in the building. Five times he said he had come to see the press corps.

"That sounds like a very flippant answer. It doesn't sound like a serious answer," one reporter said.

"I'm telling you exactly the case. I came to see y'all," Mattox insisted.

Later he said, "How else could a fellow get $100,000 worth of free press coverage unless he goes where the press is?"

The investigation into his affairs was held up a week ago when the attorney general refused to turn over records sought by the grand jurors. Under threat of arrest, he agreed to surrender his office files to a court for safekeeping.

Mattox has since agreed to let prosecutors look through the files on the condition that Earle would show the grand jury only those documents pertinent to the investigation. Mattox' legal counsel Arthur Mitchell said if there were any disagreement as to which documents were pertinent, the attorney general would go back to court and let a judge settle the matter.

Earle said Thursday his staff was still going through the records, and that it would take "a few more days." Grand jurors have not seen any of the records.

Last week's subpoenas for Mattox' records and those of his pilot, secretary and others in his office has led to speculation that grand jurors are expanding their investigation into the attorney general's relationship with South Texas oilman-rancher Clinton Manges.

Manges, a $50,000 contributor to Mattox' 1982 campaign, and the attorney general are on the same side in a $1.7 billion lawsuit Manges filed last year against Mobil Oil Corp. over disputed leases on ranchland Manges owns in Webb and Duval counties.

The state joined Manges in the suit because it owns the mineral rights to a portion of the land.

Mattox has said his grand jury troubles were started by lawyers representing Mobil who Mattox said leaked unfavorable information about him to the press in an effort to pressure the attorney general to be more cooperative in the lawsuit.

"This whole charade is an effort by Mobil Oil to try this case in the press, and to allow Mobil Oil to force me out of this case," Mattox told reporters Thursday.

He repeated his call for a boycott of Mobil products.

"People who would like to assist the attorney general in bringing a conclusion to this case could assist us by putting pressure on Mobil Oil perhaps by not consuming their products," he said. "They could also write the company and they would talk to dealers."

One of the witnesses to appear before the grand jury last week was Thomas McDade, a law partner with the Houston firm of Fulbright & Jaworski, which represents Mobil. McDade accused Mattox of threatening the Houston firm's bond business unless McDade dropped efforts to subpoena Mattox' sister, a Dallas lawyer.

McDade said he wanted to talk to Janice Mattox about a newspaper report that she and her brother borrowed $125,000 from a Seattle bank and turned it over to Mattox to use in his campaign. The published report implied that Mattox improperly reported the loan in his 1982 campaign finance report by failing to reveal its true source.

Brother of dead convict testifies in woman's capital murder trial

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Newspaper accounts of a missing Southeast Texas family convinced Richard Dugas that his brother Joe wasn't lying when he bragged about "committing the perfect murder," the man has testified.

Dugas, a prosecution witness against capital murder defendant Linda May Burnett, also said Thursday that his brother told him a woman helped him kill five members of a Southeast Texas family on July 4, 1979.

Another brother, Roy Dugas, testified Thursday that Joe Dugas had bragged about the crime and that he said he had a woman accomplice whom he not identify.

The slayings occurred near Winnie, about 25 miles southwest of Beaumont.

When he read a July 6 newspaper story about the missing family, "it was a blunt realization at that time that they had actually done this horrible thing," Richard Dugas said, breaking down on the stand.

Three days later, law enforcement officers arrested Joe Dugas after Richard Dugas told police in Vidor about his conversation with his brother.

When asked if he could identify Mrs. Burnett, Richard Dugas could not do so.

Joe Dugas, who was shot and killed during an escape attempt on June 20, and Mrs. Burnett were convicted and sentenced to die in 1979 in the shooting death of 3-year-old Jason Phillips.

Mrs. Burnett's conviction was overturned because of a tape recording that her jury was allowed to hear. She is now being tried in the death of Jason's mother, Martha Phillips.

Richard Dugas testified Thursday that his brother had borrowed his .22-caliber rifle and later told him that he had used it to "get rid of somebody." His brother had asked him at least three times for his help in getting rid of his in-laws, but he thought he was joking, he said. His brother frequently exaggerated, he testified.

Joe Dugas was once married to Mary Phillips and blamed her parents, Bishop and Esther Phillips for his marital problems and for his wife's decision to leave him and take the children, Richard Dugas said.

Bishop and Esther Phillips also were slain in the massacre, as were their son, Elmer Phillips, his wife, Martha, and their son, Jason, who were visiting from Woodward, Okla.

His brother told him he and the woman with him made the Phillips go with them to a pre-dug grave in a wooded location, where the five were made to get on their knees in the grave, Richard Dugas testified.

"Joe said the woman shot the four adults but she wouldn't shoot the baby," Dugas testified. He said his brother told him he was shaking so badly that the woman had to help him hold the rifle so he could shoot the 3-year-old, he said.

"It made me sick. I didn't believe him, but it made me sick," Dugas said.

Ma Bell's split-case proposal to get official answer Monday

AUSTIN (AP) — Southwestern Bell, which acknowledges it does not have all the information to back its $1.7 billion rate hike request, should not be allowed to have its case heard in two separate hearings, a lawyer for the Public Utility Commission says.

SWB officials told a PUC examiner that the company is ready to go ahead with $991 million of the request, but does not have the information needed for the rest of the package.

PUC Assistant General Counsel Sara Cristol, in a letter to the examiner, said, "segregating a portion of the filing will only serve to complicate an already confused and difficult filing, with nothing to gain."

"Clearly, without the severance, the filing as it now stands is incomplete," she said, adding, however, "even with the severance the remainder of the filing is incomplete."

If SWB is forced to proceed to hearing before it gets the additional information, it could wind up with far less than requested.

Hearing Examiner Jacqueline Holmes said Thursday she would rule on the SWB request Monday.

SWB spokesman Dale Johnson of Dallas said the company hopes to have information to support the entire request in "a matter of weeks." But Johnson said SWB does not want to delay the entire case in order to wait for that information.

Ms. Holmes' decision can be appealed to the full commission.

The missing information concerns access charges, a fee to be paid by SWB customers to offset some of the long distance business SWB will lose under the court-ordered breakup of the nationwide Bell System.

The divestiture of American Telephone & Telegraph is scheduled for Jan. 1.

SWB's call for two separate rate cases was blasted by consumer groups, the Texas Municipal League and competitors in the long distance market.

In a letter to the commission, Ray Besing, lawyer for long distance company MCI, said SWB's "persistent theme" has been that the company and commission are "faced with a crisis — dire consequences will occur when the bell tolls on Jan. 1, 1984."

Besing said, "That is, at best, a gross exaggeration to elicit an unwarranted and undeserved sympathy for SWB. There is no crisis."

GTE Sprint, another long distance telephone company, told the commission that SWB split-case proposal would spark "a completely unwieldy procedure."

A joint request from Consumers Union, Texas ACORN and the Texas Municipal League said the only solution is to throw out the whole case.

"It is impossible to go forward with the rate design portion of this case until the commission can examine all the pieces of the puzzle," the groups' letter said. "Any attempt to arrive at a meaningful rate design without taking into consideration the proposed access charges would be a futile exercise in speculation."

Rate design is the determination of the price of various services.

"The cleanest and surest way to disposed of this issue is an outright dismissal," the organizations concluded.

Try artificial insemination of fire ants

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Researchers at Texas A&M University are launching a new project to control the mating habits of the fire ant through artificial insemination.

Dr. Brad Vinson, head of the fire ant project and professor of entomology, said that by artificially inseminating the female, the male ant eventually becomes sterile.

Vinson said the operation is a "tricky little process" conducted under a microscope.

"You sometimes have to have even better hands than a surgeon when you're working at such a small level," he said.

He said that although developing the sterile male ant may not totally eradicate the insects, which have been plaguing the South and Southwest, it could control their mating habits.

This process was highly successful 20 years ago, when Texas scientists sterilized the screwworm.

A&M researchers also say they have perfected a technique for tagging worker ants and thus determine which males are sterile — something they were previously unable to do.

Working with funds provided through the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, part of the Texas A&M University system, Vinson and his associates will begin work in September.

Governor intervenes in Alcoa plant shutdown

MARSHALL, Texas (AP) — A group of Aluminum Co. of America employees who want to buy a plant Alcoa plans to close here have gotten a boost from Gov. Mark White.

U.S. Rep. Sam Hall, D-Marshall, said when White was in Washington, D.C. earlier this week, Hall told the governor about the employees' plight and White responded by picking up the phone.

"It was an opportunity for both of us to talk about the dilemma with the Alcoa plant closing in Marshall," Hall said Wednesday in Washington. "I explained to him that there was a petition in my hands from employees and that they sought, among other things, an opportunity to buy out the plant to save their jobs."

Hall said he has been assured by Alcoa vice-president Frank Jones that the company would be willing to sell the Marshall plant to employees and would continue to operate the plant until the transfer of ownership, provided that the union granted the $5 concession on wages and benefits the company said it needs.

"I told Gov. White there seemed to be a need for the (United Steelworkers of America) union to take some action and that the president of the union, Lloyd McBride, had told me the matter had been assigned to the union's regional director, Ed Ball in Houston."

"The governor said he knows Ball personally. Since we were in the Capitol building, we went to (House Majority Leader) Jim Wright's office nearby and Gov. White called Ed Ball."

Ball told White he would give Alcoa management "a proposal that would support workers' wishes, and that he would try to work something out," Hall said.

Hall said the petition from Alcoa employees said they were willing to accept wage

Let Coast Guard off the hook...

For the small fraction of the population, even in coastal states, who own pleasure boats, the role of the U.S. Coast Guard needs no illumination. But for the great majority of us, whose participation in boating may be limited to a tour of the Queen Mary, it could be a surprise that fully one-quarter of the Coast Guard's business - and budget - is given over to being the marine equivalent of the automobile club.

If you're lost on the ocean, the Coast Guard will help find you; if your boat runs out of gas, a cutter will deliver; if the engine breaks down, the Coast Guard will provide a tow; if you need navigation help or other boating information, call on the Coast Guard.

It's something the Coast Guard has been doing since the early days of the Republic, and it's no doubt a valued service to the boat owners who use it. Highly valued, we assume, since boaters don't pay for it. Landlocked taxpayers everywhere foot the bill.

A national advisory committee has proposed that the Coast Guard turn over these boating services to private operators.

In California one private operator runs a small harbor-to-harbor towing operation, in addition to a dockside boat filling station. But he ordered a 25-foot rescue boat, complete with radar and towing equipment, which will let him assist boaters far from shore, up to 60 miles out to sea.

Of course, the boaters who need his services would have to pay for them. But that is how it should be. There's no reason for taxpayers everywhere to subsidize the recreational activities of a relative handful of people.

There is some doubt, expressed - naturally - by the Coast Guard, that private operators will be able to provide the comprehensive service the Coast Guard has always provided.

"We handle everything from the routine job to boat fires. The private concern doesn't have to help. But we are required by law to do it," says Lt. John Zantek, commander of the Coast Guard cutter at Newport Harbor, Calif.

That may be, under present conditions. But remove the tax-supported services of the Coast Guard, however, and boat owners and private entrepreneurs would likely fill the gap quite nicely. We can envision, for example, a Boat Club, similar to automobile clubs, where members pay a yearly fee for certain services. The Coast Guard now answers a call under order of law; a boat club would be bound by contract to respond. Competition among boat-service firms would help assure service even the Coast Guard might envy.

Considering the entrenched tradition of the Coast Guard's boating services and the reluctance of a government bureaucracy to give up any of its turf, it may be too much to hope that the Coast Guard or the Congress will see the issue this clearly and simply.

But their reluctance doesn't change the fact that it is manifestly unfair for taxpayers to subsidize the expensive recreational pursuits of a tiny group of people, and unnecessary for them to do so, given the willingness and ability of the private sector to take over.

Man still wears kimono in old Japan

By DON GRAFF

TOKYO (NEA) - If there's a gender gap in Japanese politics, it isn't showing. Yet.

Women voters outnumber men in the electorate by 2.58 million (according to Japanese League of Women Voters figures). Yet women are almost ceremonial upper House of Councillors; nine in the lower House of Representatives, the one that really counts.

There is no indication, in the breakdown of the women's vote, that they favor any specific political party, despite the considerable efforts of the Communists. No male politician need feel threatened by the women's vote, particularly not members of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party.

If anything, admits Teiko Kihira, women voters are more conservative than the men.

Mrs. Kihira, a pleasantly determined matron who could be everybody's favorite aunt, doesn't look a political activist. But as president of the League of Women Voters, she is in the forefront of the effort to raise and focus the political consciousness of Japanese women.

The league at present has only some 5,000 active members. Its headquarters is in a modest building tucked away on a narrow side street in Tokyo's Shinjuku section, otherwise known for high-rise office buildings and low-life bars.

The league, like its American counterpart, is non-partisan. Its primary function is educational.

But it has formidable to overcome, the greatest being in the home. The first obstacle the Japanese woman must overcome is the Japanese husband.

And if she has her way in that confrontation, she is up against the custom of Japanese political parties, with a couple of exceptions, to regard women as decorations on the national level.

There are always numerous women candidates on the party lists in Diet elections. But under Japan's system of proportional representation, most are guaranteed losers. They are usually placed at the bottom of the party lists, the top names on which are the ones selected for the Diet seats the party wins. Or they are entered in the most difficult constituencies, the ones in which the party does not expect to do well.

The exceptions to the rule are the Communists, who make an elaborate point on their commitment to sexual equality by giving women favorable positions on the party lists, and the Socialists. As a consequence, the two parties have two-thirds of the women Diet members, including all of those in the lower house - seven Communists and two Socialists.

The governing Liberal Democrats, in contrast, have none in the lower house but six in the upper, including some entertainers. Which is another feature of Japanese politics - studding candidate lists with pop celebrities as bait for the politically unsophisticated voters.

Mrs. Kihira is anything but unsophisticated about politics. She learned all about it at home, on the southernmost main island, Kyushu, heartland of Japanese male chauvinism. Her father was a different stripe, however. A scholar and opponent of Japanese militarism, he was jailed during the war.

He was also a friend of Fusae Ichikawa, the matriarch of Japanese feminism and a longtime member of the upper house who served until her death two years ago, in her 80s.

While still a student, Mrs. Kihira became Fusae Ichikawa's secretary and eventually succeeded her as head of the league.

Mrs. Kihira sees a significant role for Japanese women in national politics as a long-term goal. But the ground is already being prepared.

In this spring's elections for municipal councils and prefectural assemblies, the Japanese equivalent of American state legislatures, women did very well.

At the grass roots level, the Japanese woman is gaining political confidence. And if national politics aren't yet gender conscious, the Teiko Kihiras of Japan are determined that it will only be a matter of time.

Mind your own business at home

More and more Americans are choosing to work at home.

The President Reagans work at home, of course.

The Paul Harveys have never worked any other way.

Our suburban Chicago home has four floors; two of those floors are offices.

On one level, Angel directs TV production, book and publishing and accounting.

On another level a staff tends the logistics of TV production and publication of newspaper columns and coordinating Paul Auran's "Rest of the Story" broadcasts and recordings and books.

Son Paul lives next door, a happy experience as well as an added convenience for us both. There, next door, he writes while his wife, Tanya, researches.

Only for my daily radio broadcasts do I go downtown to Chicago's loop and in any next home we will provide studio space for these.

We have experienced myriad advantages and no disadvantages working at home.

So we watch with interest the re-emergence of cottage industries throughout the U.S.

"I'm a homebody," says Mr. Hawkes. "I've had enough of rush-hour sweat and traffic."

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce has listed addresses of 10 million businesses in American homes, 50 percent more than just 10 years ago.

That number will double again within seven years if only because home computers are accelerating transition.

My newspaper column is transmitted from my suburban Chicago home to the offices of the Los Angeles Times as fast as I can type it.

Homeworkers have their own organization now: The National Assn. for the Cottage Industry. Its newsletter is called MIN YOUR OWN BUSINESS AT HOME, published by Coraless Smith Kern who prepares and publishes the newsletter - from her Chicago home.

Why English language is called 'mother' tongue

By OSCAR COOLEY

Some 800 million of the earth's inhabitants now speak the English language, and the number is increasing; it increased 40 percent in the last 20 years. No one is required to speak English; it just seems the practical thing to do. It is the language the other fellow, whatever his nationality, is most likely to understand.

English - American English, that is - is the language of technology, science, trade, diplomacy, and of an internationally popular culture," writes Richard Reeves.

Some governments are trying to stem the tide of Yankee talk. Pakistan officials are worried because it seems the Pakistani would rather be fluent in English than in Urdu. In France, where 88 percent of the students study English, the authorities are annoyed by the popularity of American TV shows such as "Dallas." But what can governments do about it?

U Ne Win, the ruler of Burma, banned the teaching of English in his country - until his own daughter was refused admission to British medical schools because she did not know the English language. Now, English is a mandatory subject in Burma from kindergarten through college.

Four fifths of the world's technical papers are initially published in English. In Finland 18 percent, in Sweden 14 percent, of all of the books published are in English. In Soviet Russia more than half of the high schools students are studying English. In the world as a whole, 77 percent of all secondary school students, and even 11 percent of primary schoolers, learn English.

Says Reeves, "There never has been a world language to match modern English." Even Latin in its day, Italian in the 16th and 17th centuries, French in the 18th and 19th, did not pervade as English does in the late 20th.

The widespread knowledge of English makes it easy for Americans to travel in any part of the world. In many countries the people are eager to engage the traveler in English conversation. Are they practicing?

It is highly flattering, but its significance is much deeper. It testifies to the strength of the Angli-Saxon culture and to the literary output in the form of books, newspapers, magazines, movies and the electronic media of the people to whom English is the mother tongue.

English first spread around the globe as the British empire expanded. As the British influence declined, the U.S. grew. It was settled by motley races, speaking a hubbub of tongues, but in the new land, pioneered mainly by Anglo-Saxons, the immigrant took for granted that English was the most favored language. Now the 234 million people of the U.S. constitute the largest bloc of English speakers.

The language unification, coupled with the American philosophy of freedom and democracy, plus the characteristically American desire to get ahead economically, accounts for this nation's position as a world leader. Of the three forces, language has been least recognized, but without it the political and economic factors would never have dominated as they have.

Wanted dead or alive

Harold Wilkey, flanked by his twins Jerry, left, and Larry, looks like a burly family man. But he has gotten so mad at thieves who continue to steal from his German

Barnyard antique shop - junk yard that he has run a "Wanted, Dead or Alive" classified advertisement in the local paper, and lately he's been sleeping outdoors with a shotgun. (AP Laserphoto)

Central Texas businessman says he wants burglars - dead or alive

RIESEL, Texas (AP) — On hot summer days, Harold Wilkey sits under his tin shed, swats at flies and admires his vast collection of antiques and junk.

But lately, he has been spending his summer nights under the trees, curled up with a shotgun. And last week he ran a "Wanted, Dead or Alive" reward notice in the local newspaper in Riesel, 15 miles southeast of Waco.

Wilkey desperately wants to nail the thieves who have burglarized his German Barnyard antique shop-junkyard six times in the past two months.

"I've always said I wouldn't shoot anybody over this stuff, but I've changed my mind," said 54-year-old Wilkey, a large man who always wears a "German Barnyard" baseball cap. "That's all I got. That's my living they're taking away from me."

The first time, someone untied the rope from the gate and stole a set of brass bells and other brassware valued at $400 to $500. He estimates his total losses at $1,400.

He never has called the McLennan County Sheriff's Department about the break-ins, since he figures it wouldn't do any good.

In fact, Wilkey is a little afraid that if anyone gets in trouble, it will be him for putting that classified ad in the paper.

Wilkey's ad in the July 29 issue of the local newspaper, the Riesel Rustler, is innocuously sandwiched between ads announcing a Ford LTD and tractor equipment for sale. But its message, and anger, are clear:

"$1,000 REWARD 'Dead or alive' if you can catch the two that have broken into the German Barnyard 6 times in 8 weeks.

Wilkey admits he was angry when he placed the ad, but he never really expected someone might show up one day with a dead man draped over his shoulder and ask for the reward.

He figured that if two drug addicts were involved, the ad would arouse their suspicion of each other, each thinking the other would try to collect the reward.

If there are laws that forbid Wilkey's kind of crime fighting, county and state officials can't find them. Questions about the legality of modern-day "Wanted Dead or Alive" notices drew these responses from law enforcement spokesmen:

- The McLennan County district attorney's office: "Well, it's certainly not good."
- The county-state division of the attorney general's office: "I don't know; I wouldn't know where to look."
- The enforcement division of the attorney general's office: "You're kidding. Oh my gosh..."

Judge acquitted of pulling weapon

HOUSTON (AP) — A judge acquitted on a charge of pulling a gun on an Iranian immigrant says he may leave the weapon at home and take a refresher course in karate.

Robert Scardino Jr., a defense attorney acting as a special judge, found State District Judge Felix Salazar innocent Thursday of reckless conduct. Scardino was appointed to hear the case after County Court-at-Law Judge Don Hendrix excused himself.

"I thank God and the American legal system. It's been a terrible ordeal," Salazar said afterward.

But Assistant District Attorney Jim Peacock argued that Salazar was a drunk looking for somebody to harass when he was arrested June 3.

"I hate to say it, but either the man does not remember pointing the gun or does not want to admit it happened," he said.

Defense attorney Tom Lucas said the court was considering only the word of a judge against that of a "17-country vagabond." He said most of the evidence was a sideshow.

Salazar contradicted the testimony of alleged victim Mansoor Ghiassi Thursday by saying he never pulled the gun. He said Ghiassi discovered the weapon after threatening to kill Salazar and his family.

After the verdict was announced, Ghiassi shouted, "This court is not fair."

"I came to this court for you people, for you, America, for your future, for your children, not for money. I had no (other) reason," Ghiassi said.

Salazar said he only spoke to two men in the restaurant after he heard one of them say, "Goddamn United States." He said he told the man he considered that kind of talk improper and the man told him it was none of his business.

Peacock asked Salazar if he believed he had a right to enter the conversation.

"When somebody says, 'Goddamn United States,' yes, sir, it's my business," Salazar said.

Ghiassi testified Wednesday that he and a friend were eating at the restaurant June 3 when Salazar began shouting obscenities at them. Ghiassi said Salazar ordered him outside and threatened him with a pistol.

Ghiassi and his friend, bank analyst Rick Edwards, testified they were discussing house repairs when Salazar began to shout at them.

Houston police officers W.J. Lockman Jr. and Robert Molloy testified Wednesday that Salazar was drunk when they arrested him and confiscated the pistol. They later took another gun and two knives with locking blades, they testified.

Salazar testified Ghiassi followed him outside and wrote down his license plate number.

"We got you now. We know how to get you, Mexican," Salazar testified Ghiassi told him. "We kill you. We kill your family. We got lots of people."

Salazar testified Ghiassi told him he made the threat because the judge had overheard the conversation. Salazar said he circled the block, then drove back to the restaurant to call police.

But the police had already been called, he said. Salazar said Ghiassi pulled open the judge's coat and saw the gun. He said the police found the weapon when they arrived and searched everyone.

Salazar testified he told the officers where to find the gun. The policemen testified he did not.

Peacock asked Salazar if he

Reporters committee praises action to drop secrecy provision

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press has praised a Congressional conference committee for agreeing to drop from next year's defense authorization bill a provision curtailing disclosures about military aircraft accidents.

"This action shows that the Congress realizes the importance of public accountability of the military when air disasters occur," said Jack C. Landau, executive director of the reporters group.

A Senate-House conference committee, meeting in closed session, decided on Thursday to drop the provision from the Senate version of the defense bill, according to a spokeswoman for Sen. John R. Tower, R-Texas, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Linda Hill, Tower's press secretary, said the action was taken "at Senator Tower's urging."

She said Tower had urged that the provision be withdrawn "in response to the concerns that have been raised by people who were concerned about the provision's application."

The secrecy provision had been strongly opposed by the Reporters Committee, based in Washington, and the Texas Daily Newspaper Association, which earlier this week passed a resolution condemning it.

"This is a victory for the public's right to a free flow of information," said TDNA president Charlie Kilpatrick. "We were confident that Sen. Tower would act once the publishers' views are made known, and he didn't disappoint us."

Jim Lonergan, Wichita Falls Times and Record-News publisher, who chaired a committee to fight the amendment, said, "I think that it's a very, very astute and proper kind of decision that reflects favorably on the judgment of the senator (Tower)."

The provision would have exempted safety investigation reports about military aircraft accidents from the Freedom of Information Act and allowed Pentagon officials to bar their release to the news media and the public.

The provision would have applied to "any part of any records or report of a safety investigation into the cause of an aircraft accident" including "any discussion, analysis, opinion, conclusion, finding or recommendations" by investigators.

In addition, such information could not have been used in legal proceedings or "in disciplinary action or other administrative or judicial proceedings."

The provision was contained in the Senate version of the defense authorization bill but not the House version. The conference committee working out differences between the two versions decided to drop the provision contained in the Senate bill.

Landau said that "the demands of the Defense Department to keep this information secret show disdain for the public's right to know about government and also for the lives of our service men and women."

Ms. Hill has said the Defense Department had sought the provision on safety investigations in order to assure confidentiality to witnesses in trying to get at the cause of an accident.

Dear Abby

Abby inspires family with case of puppy love

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: We don't have any problems for you to solve right now, we just wanted you to know that today we bought a beautiful, fawn-colored Great Dane puppy and we named her "Abby" — after you.

If we had a bigger farm we would buy her sister and name her "Ann," but we already have a dachshund named "Ada," and we all wouldn't fit on this one little acre.

Our "Abby" is going to be our beautiful watchdog on whom we will depend to keep us safe from harm, as you keep others safe with your advice.

We love you, but now we have another Dear Abby to love.

THE GARY CRAWFORDS,
MILFORD, OHIO

DEAR CRAWFORDS: I've been called a "great dame," but never a "Great Dane." Thank you. I'm flattered.

DEAR ABBY: Your reply to "Red and Fuming," the movie-house employee who, after being hired, dyed his hair red, has me fuming, too. (His boss objected to his dyed red hair, and you sided with the employee.)

Apparently this young man's dyed red hair has made a significant change in his appearance and he no longer presents the image of the person the boss hired. A boss should have the right to require his employees to look the way he wants them to look.

The rights of employers in this country are being reduced. Abetted by opportunistic lawyers seeking contingency fees for punitive damages, disgruntled employees are turning their petty grievances into court decisions, establishing unprecedented "rights." This forces companies of all sizes to eliminate positions and raise prices to cover the cost of maintaining substandard, unproductive employees.

The old rule is still the best one, Abby: If you don't like your job, give your notice and quit. It may not be easy to find other work, but you accepted the job on your boss's terms, so live up to those terms or look elsewhere.

HASSLED BUSINESSMAN IN W. VA.

DEAR HASSLED: The "rights" of employees and employers are not always black or white (or "red," where hair is concerned), and it's important for employees who are obviously at a disadvantage to have their rights protected.

I would defend the right of anyone to dye his (or her) hair red, since red hair is natural to some. However, if an employee showed up with green or purple hair, I'd vote with you.

DEAR ABBY: This problem has been bugging me for many years. When a single person is invited to a wedding and reception, is it proper to add on the RSVP card, "I am bringing a friend" — then add that person's name?

I have done this several times because as a single person I feel very uncomfortable attending a wedding alone. I am sure this could apply to other singles — widowed or divorced.

I have been criticized (behind my back) for doing this, and want to know if it is improper.

SINGLE IN VIRGINIA

DEAR SINGLE: It is never proper to tell a host or hostess that you are bringing another person. Feeling as you do, ask if it would be an inconvenience to bring a partner along. And since your partner is actually your guest, graciously offer to pay for him or her.

Every teen-ager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Author says:

Fathers can win custody

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Fathers involved in custody fights must realize there is little justice for them in divorce court, says a lawyer who has written a guide on avoiding the pitfalls of the system.

Attorney Louis Kiefer is convinced that many judges have a prejudice, believing that fathers who end up in divorce court have no interest in the welfare of their children.

Kiefer has not always felt that way, though. "I began with a lot of confidence and faith when the courts said they were concerned about the best interests of children. I believed that."

"Then I found out that 'best interests' are as subjective as one's taste in breakfast foods," he said. "Trial judges are committed to a very narrow perception of father and mother roles."

Kiefer's book, "How To Win Custody," is subtitled "a complete, practical and sensitive guide to winning custody — inside and outside the courtroom."

It brings together Kiefer's experience as clerk of Family Relations Court and as a lawyer specializing in divorce cases.

"I had observed that the judges had their own rules and no one knew them," he said. "One, you have got to have a relationship with the child."

"Two, you have to be able to prove it. "And, three, you have to be in a position in which delays in the court proceedings don't interfere with the first two."

He urges fathers to prepare for a custody fight by establishing for public view the private reality of a father-child relationship by collecting such evidence as photographs and scrapbooks of mutual activities.

It's "no longer considered sissified for a father to hold an infant" or take an active role in parenting, he says in arguing his point.

Central to his work is the chapter headed, "Trust No One," not your spouse, not your family, not your attorney, not yourself and especially not the courts.

Kiefer's book hasn't pleased the judiciary. Francis X. Hennessy, chief administrative judge for Connecticut courts' Family Division, said he didn't think it was "entirely fair and accurate."

Hennessy said Kiefer was correct in his historical perspective of the problem of fathers gaining equal status in custody cases.

"There are judges who will under any circumstances give a child to the mother, and this is cause for justifiable criticism," Hennessy said. "But that is an infinitesimal portion of the judiciary."

The 47-year-old attorney is not totally pessimistic in his book, because he sees a dramatic change occurring in the United States with the rise of joint custody decisions.

He defines joint custody as near-equal placement of a child's time between its parents and a geographical commitment to allow that to happen.

20th anniversary

Members of Barrett Baptist Church, 903 E. Beryl, will celebrate the church's 20th anniversary during Sunday services.

Barrett Baptist Church observes 20th anniversary

Barrett Baptist Church, 903 E. Beryl, will celebrate its 20th anniversary Sunday and all former pastors and members are invited to attend, as well as those who assisted in establishment of the church.

Barrett Baptist began as a mission of First Baptist Church of Pampa in 1954. Early services were conducted in the old Henry house at the corner of Beryl and Henry streets. The property was donated to the mission by Rev. Elmer Barrett, resulting in the mission being named Barrett Baptist Chapel.

During the mission years, 1954 - 1963, five pastors served the mission. They were Lee Roy Harris, Jerry Spear, Lee Hillon, Gene Grace and A. E. Burns.

On Aug. 4, 1963, the mission was constituted into a church. As a church, Barrett Baptist has been served by six pastors: Burns, John Ferguson, Derrel Lewis, Waylon Bruton, Jackie Lee, Jack Greenwood and Barry Sherwood, the present pastor.

Sunday morning services will be followed by a barbecue dinner. Afternoon services will be held at 2 p.m.

Returning to participate in the observance Sunday will be Jackie Lee, Derrel Lewis, Bill Broxson and M. B. Smith.

Anyone who has been associated with Barrett Baptist Church is invited to attend.

Pampa Baptist Temple, 500 E. Kingsmill, will hold a Vacation Bible School from 7:30 until 9 p.m. beginning Monday and continuing through Thursday.

Featured during the bible school will be clowns, Mickey Mouse, Bugs Bunny, Snoopy, Sassy Sally, Tiny, Silly Billy and the Devil.

Activities will also include a boys vs. girls penny march, crafts, singing and Bible stories. Refreshments will be served each night.

Buses will be available and parents wishing children picked up for the Vacation Bible School should phone 669-7830 prior to 6 each evening.

Abundant Life Outreach Center established here

The Abundant Life Outreach Center is being established at 324 Naida by Pastor and Mrs. Dave Ogle. Pastor Ogle is an ordained member of the Ministerial Fellowship of the USA. His wife Liz is very active in the ministry of teaching and help.

Beginning in September, Abundant Life Outreach Center will be opening the Word of Faith Bible Institute School, live via satellite from Dallas. This month the center will begin monthly Satellite Seminars live from Bob Tilton's Word of Faith Church.

Educated at Wichita State University and Kansas University, Pastor Ogle graduated from Rhema Bible Training Center in Tulsa, Okla. in May 1982. While in Tulsa he was an employee of the Kenneth Hagin Ministries.

The Ogles report they are here to serve the community and welcome everyone to attend services at Abundant Life Outreach Center.

His task: cohesion of diversity of people

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

His badge of office is a thick, silver cross, formed by riveting three crosses into one. His mission across America is to draw a diversity of people into similar, functioning cohesion, now that they've reunited in one church.

"That cross is a lot heavier than I had anticipated," says the Rev. J. Randolph Taylor of Charlotte, N.C., chosen to rove the church's wide reaches, guiding its growth back into a whole, rejoining Northern and Southern Presbyterians.

"We begin again," he says, fingering the fused Celtic cross hanging at his chest. In it were two crosses from an earlier Northern merger and one from the Southern branch.

As moderator of the new Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), combining Christians divided since the Civil War, he is a generous combination of scholar, archivist, preacher, organizer and diplomat, charged to oversee closing of a church rupture paralleling that of a nation.

He saw symbolism in that, too. "It says something to America. Presbyterians have been given a unique place of demonstrating to the nation that regional hostilities and prejudices are no longer valid — that the war is over, that the nation is basically one."

It was the fracturing of the nation, in a fierce struggle over slavery and state rights 122 years ago, that had fractured the church, leaving a residue of contending cultures and distrust.

Now that effects of it on Presbyterians, South and North, have been formally overcome in enactment of their reunion at an assembly last month in Atlanta, Taylor's task was to extend that reconciliation.

To do that, he's becoming a man on the move. He will go into the North and Northwest, and the deep South and Southeast where numerous congregations and some presbyteries opposed the reunion and are disturbed about its consequences. At least 16 congregations have withdrawn and about 30 others are wavering about it, waiting to see results.

As to why they are upset, he says "it's primarily a lack of understanding. It's not the thought just of being swallowed up, but of grievous things that might be done to them, the fear of a Yankee takeover."

However, Taylor, a skilled conciliator who headed the Southern wing of a joint commission through 14 years of negotiation to achieve the reunion, says he doesn't expect extensive defections.

Taylor, a tall, trim man of 54, genteel and gracious in the Southern manner and with a quick insight into issues and their historical aspects, has a taste for classic literature as well as theology.

Almost
Orchid

This iris is a gorgeous flower, so beautiful that one feels that it is almost an orchid. But on the flower market the iris brings no premium; it is no substitute for an orchid. There are substitutes for many things in life, but as there is none for the orchid, just so is there none for Christianity. Only the real thing gives life and that abundantly. Go to Church this week and partake of the blessing God offers to you.

Is something wrong with your life — an inner restlessness, dissatisfaction? The answer to every human problem comes only from God our Maker. He alone can forgive and reassure. Through the church God has committed the provision and proclamation of His forgiveness and redeeming love. Without a church relation no one is securely related to God. Everyone should be in the Church and the Church is everyone!

Tropical wind has shifted in Florida

By JOHN THOR DAHLBURG
Associated Press Writer
SANIBEL, Fla. (AP) —

Remember the way it used to be — Jim Dooley beaming and yelling on television to "come on down" and bask in the Florida sunshine? Remember those roadside stalls dispensing free orange juice to the vacationing and home-hunting Yankee?

Well, the tropical wind has shifted since the 1960s. Some Florida cities have pulled in the welcome mats.

Some, like Orlando and Daytona Beach, still seek growth. Others may accept your patronage as a tourist, but don't want you as a resident. A few simply prefer that you go elsewhere.

It would have been heresy a decade ago, but today a wave of more than 1,000 newcomers a day has some Floridians crying "stop" and lawmakers scratching their heads over how to deal with a people boom.

"The challenge," says Gov. Bob Graham, "is how to direct and accommodate that growth in ways that won't degrade the very quality that generated that growth."

This year, 10.1 million people reside year-round in Florida — double the 1960 figure.

Many Florida leaders agree with Gov. Graham. But in cities as diverse as trendy Boca Raton and up-and-coming Stuart, different feelings are emerging about the expenses new residents entail: more public schools, more sewers, more traffic lights, more books for the public library.

The new philosophy may seem almost "un-American," Stuart Mayor Joan Jefferson says. "But for a town, we're learning that bigger may not be better."

The first line against unbridled growth in Florida may have been drawn in the living room of an ex-Army general in Boca Raton.

Eleven years ago, a band of homeowners living in the Palm Beach County seaside town met at the home of retired Brig. Gen. Richard Mayo. Their ritzy retreat was becoming part of a supercity rising along the Atlantic Coast, Boca Raton residents winced.

Why not a legal growth ceiling — so many residences, then slam the door? They agreed on 40,000 households, or a population of 105,000.

In a 1972 referendum, Boca Raton's "dwelling-unit cap" became law.

"The cap gave this community a sense of identity, a separateness from its neighbors," said Dorothy Wilken, Boca Raton's mayor during much of the cap period and a current Palm Beach County commissioner.

But the ceiling on growth wasn't to everyone's liking. "We shouldn't forget that people have a right to reside here, the same as alligators and snails," said then-City Councilman William Archer. Lawsuits followed. Developers fought the cap as unconstitutional and capricious.

Their lawsuits went to the U.S. Supreme Court. The city lost. The justices in 1980 refused to review a decision by Palm Beach Circuit Judge Thomas Sholtz, who found the cap without "rational relationship to any permissible municipal objective."

The same exasperation is discernible in the voices of some builders and contractors in Stuart, a quintessential Sun Belt boomtown in Martin County east of Lake Okeechobee.

Once little more than a citrus depot on the Florida

East Coast Railway, Stuart's sole attraction was to anglers for the sailfish offshore.

The 1970s boom transformed Stuart into a mini-metropolis of golf courses, retirement "clubs" and condo complexes.

In 1978, a panther wandered onto a shopping center parking lot. He looked as bewildered at what he saw as many Stuart residents do when they talk about what happened to the town they knew.

"Stuart doesn't seem like the same place," says Grace Ausburn, president of the Chamber of Commerce and head of the First American Title Co. "When I think of the way it was when I grew up here, and the way it is for my kids and grandkids, my heart breaks a little."

From 6,000 inhabitants in 1970, Stuart's population doubled in 10 years. But the newcomers also included native Floridians fleeing the bigness and crime of Miami and Fort Lauderdale.

Stuart Police Chief Charles White is one Florida transplant. He moved his wife and five children to the riverfront city in 1979.

Mayor Joan Jefferson and her husband, Peter, an architect, are two more. At first offended by a brusque reception, they came to understand why townspeople were standoffish with newcomers.

"There is a great fear here," says Mrs. Jefferson. "Many residents are refugees from other places that failed as communities. They've moved to Stuart. And they don't want to move anymore."

Stuart has learned by the errors of other Florida cities.

What's new in Stuart is that the town taxes growth to make it pay its own way. Developers must fork over hefty impact fees to offset estimated costs of the new roads and water mains their buildings will necessitate, and even the portion of the police cruiser and officer's time needed to protect them.

Such fees are being studied by a 22-member special committee of the Florida House headed by Rep. Ray Liberti, D-West Palm Beach, that is pondering the costs and benefits of growth.

"Impact fees are a vital tool, but the last person to walk into the restaurant shouldn't have to pick up the tab for everyone who's eaten," says Liberti.

"There is no free lunch," Mrs. Jefferson counters. "And the oldtimer shouldn't have to pay for the newcomer."

There are drawbacks to the method. Construction has become more expensive, and increased costs are passed along to the homebuyer.

"I could help provide you with a regular monthly income if you became disabled."

Selling Central America to be tough task for Reagan

BY EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has a lot of work to do to sell the public his policies in Central America, but it may not be as difficult as opponents like to believe.

The legacy of Vietnam looms large before the public as the news is filled with U.S. battle forces, advisers and potential blockades, raising the specter of a quagmire in El Salvador or Nicaragua.

Reagan has tried to deal with this time and again, as he did in a recent news conference — "There is no comparison with Vietnam..." But the flat denials have not calmed all the fears.

A Washington Post-ABC News opinion poll released Thursday says four in 10 citizens see the country becoming involved in a new Vietnam. Fewer than half said they believe Reagan is being truthful when he says he does not intend to send soldiers to fight in El Salvador.

Reagan said at his news conference last week. A CBS-New York Times poll in June said that only 8 percent of those questioned could accurately tell the U.S. government is supporting both in El Salvador and Nicaragua. That low level is even more remarkable when one understands that, if all answers were simply picked at random, 25 percent would have guessed right due to chance. In the Post-ABC poll, fewer than half knew the United States is backing the government of El Salvador and only three in 10 knew the United States opposes the Sandinista government in Nicaragua.

Reagan tends to blame his opponents and the media for the confusion. Without dealing with the issue of why the public is confused, it is clear that information about Central America is sparse. That means public reaction to polls about Latin American policy tap broad views and lingering fears.

Public opinion is not frozen on this issue, and there lies Reagan's opportunity. For Central America, Reagan's words and actions are the key. If he can present the case forcefully, then back it up with clear actions that make comparisons with Vietnam meaningless, Reagan can swing public opinion his way.

But he also can fail.

Congress could convene on short notice

WASHINGTON (AP) — With U.S. warships maneuvering off hostile shores on opposite sides of the globe, House and Senate leaders have quietly reserved the power to convene Congress on two days notice during the long August recess.

The provision — a staple any time Congress left for extended periods during the Vietnam War — was included without fanfare in the adjournment resolution adopted last week.

It places the House and Senate on official vacation until noon Sept. 12 with one important exception:

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. and Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. are empowered to ask their members "to reassemble whenever, in their opinion, the public interest shall warrant it."

Without that phrase, Congress could be convened only by order of the president. Neither O'Neill nor Baker discussed the matter publicly and few members voiced any concern that Congress will be in a five-week recess during a period of heightened tension in the waters off El Salvador and Lybia.

American fighters encountered Libyan jets over the Gulf of Sidra earlier this week and a U.S. destroyer challenged a Soviet freighter near Nicaragua, where U.S.-backed rebels are fighting the leftist government.

A House leadership source who answered questions only on the condition his name not be used, said congressional leaders did not make a big issue of the callback provision because they did not want to suggest they had any expectation of an incident that might make it necessary. But he acknowledged: "There is a great deal of concern about the Central American and international situation and I'm sure that had a lot to do with the decision. I think this is a big factor."

Staff members for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and the House Foreign Affairs Committee said no particular contingency plans have been made during the recess, but that there are standing procedures for contact between key committee staffers and administration officials and for the committee chairman to be notified of developments if necessary.

Dave Winfield arrested; charged with 'fowl' play

TORONTO (AP) — Dave Winfield may have slugged the New York Yankees to a 3-1 win over the Toronto Blue Jays, but he threw himself into trouble over another kind of bird — he killed a seagull with a baseball while warming up in the outfield.

Winfield was taken to a police station after Thursday night's game and charged with cruelty to animals. He posted a $500 bond and was released after being ordered to appear Aug. 12 in Provincial Court.

Conviction could result in a maximum of six months in jail and/or a $500 fine. The seagull is on Canada's protected species list, according to The Toronto Star.

The incident occurred as the Blue Jays were coming to bat in the bottom of the fifth inning.

"I had finished playing catch with (left fielder) Don Baylor and turned and whipped the ball to the batboy and the seagull happened to be there and caught it in the neck," Winfield said after the game. "It's unfortunate, but it was an accident. It wasn't intentional."

"They say he hit the gull on purpose," said Yankee manager Billy Martin. "They wouldn't say that if they'd seen the throws he'd been making all year. It's the first time he's hit the cutoff man."

The game was delayed momentarily while a ballboy removed the dead bird with a towel. Winfield drove in two of the Yankees' three runs to spark the win.

John Moen wins silver in national skeet shoot

John Moen, 29, of 1305 Mary Ellen, recently placed second and took home a silver medal in the World Championship Skeet Shoot at San Antonio.

Moen, an employee of Ingersoll-Rand and president of the Pampa Trap & Skeet Club, won the silver medal for .20 gauge, B Class.

The Pampa man was the only Panhandle representative among the shooters from all over the world.

Moen shot his first 100 in registered skeet shooting during the six-day competition last week. He shot 650 targets during the world competition.

Moen also placed in .12-gauge shooting and took home $552 in prize money.

The world competition in San Antonio was held at the National Skeet Shooting Association complex, a two-level facility with 32 fields.

The Pampa shooter has previously coached the local 4-H Club to a spot in regional competition. Moen has been shooting skeet for three years.

Sutton leads PGA

PACIFIC PALISADES, Calif. (AP) — Hal Sutton, who seems destined for golfing greatness, figures time is running out for him to win a major tournament — this year.

Sutton, a strapping 25-year-old in just his second year on the men's golf tour, fired a 6-under-par 65 Thursday to take the first-round lead in the final major tournament of 1983, the PGA Championship.

"I have two goals for this year, to finish in the top five on the money list and to win a major," he said after his sparkling round at Riviera Country Club gave him a one-stroke lead over Scott Simpson and club pro Buddy Whitten.

"I have three rounds left to get the major," Sutton, who set a rookie earnings mark on the tour last year ($237,434), also is well on his way to realizing his other goal. He currently is atop the 1983 earnings list at $297,684.

Although a relative newcomer to the tour, Sutton has learned to handle disappointment, too, and is coming off the most frustrating tournament of his brief tour career. In his last previous outing, the Anaheim Busch Classic, his game fell apart after he led by six strokes.

"I worked as hard as I ever have before this tournament," said Sutton, a 6-foot-1, 180-pounder from Shreveport, La. "I'm just trying to chalk up the ... collapse to experience."

A throng of golfers were within close striking distance of Sutton heading into today's second round of the 72-hole tournament at the 6,946-yard, par-71 Riviera layout.

Oilers thumped

HOUSTON (AP) — The Baltimore Colts are on a roll. They defeated the world champion Washington Redskins in a scrimmage last week and now they have earned a 15-0 shutout victory over the Houston Oilers in the National Football League exhibition opener for both teams.

The leaders of Thursday night's charge were a couple of players who weren't around to suffer the indignities of last season's laughable 0-8-1 record — quarterback Mark Herrmann and rookie linebacker Vernon Maxwell.

Herrmann came on in the third quarter to complete six of seven passes for 114 yards and help the Colts to their first victory since a 26-17 victory over Chicago in the 1982 season.

The Colts had not won again until Thursday night.

"I feel I can make a contribution to this team," said Herrmann, who came to the Colts as part of a trade that sent first-round draft choice John Elway to Denver.

"I feel we are off in the right direction."

"I hope this thing will snowball. I was impressed with the Colts. I know they took a lot of guff last year but we have talent."
