Sted Allen, called Fletcher when he managed Houston, will probably be the skipper of the Lubbock entry.

Field Threatens Mile Record In NYAC Games

NEW YORK, Feb. 19 (AP)—If the long-dreamed-of 4:05 mile is desired to become a reality this year, there seems no better spot for it to happen than in the historic Baxter mile of the New York A. C. track and field meet tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden.

Except for the absence of Jack Lovelock, the international field has a record of the Olympic 1,600-meter, with five of the finalists in that competition matching strides again.

Glenn Cunningham, who has swept the boards in the current indoor season, is favored to add the Baxter to his string, but the powerful opposition may chase him into a better time than his 4:04.4 world record in doing it.

The possibility for fireworks in this mile has taken a lot of the spotlight away from the two-mile array, despite a stronger field than that which forced Don Lash to a world record 8:28 last Saturday.

Cage Race Hinges On Rice-Arkansas Series

By The Associated Press Outcome of the Rice-Arkansas two-game series at Fayetteville, Arkansas, Friday and Saturday nights means everything to a sophomore band of Southern Methodists seeking their first Southwest Conference cage title.

Ideal for the Methodists, leading the league with six victories and one defeat, would be a split series. Rice coming by leaps and bounds after half its squad had been declared ineligible scholastically, now rests in second position and a double victory would give them more than just a remaining shot at the Mustangs. The Owls have five games left on their schedule.

Here you see a pair of skis with stiffs on a car parked in front of the Settles hotel, but they happen to belong to a Massachusetts tourist's car. They were about as strange a sight for the natives as the dust storm was for the tourist.

We bury the sense of infinitude, when we admit that, although God is infinite, evil has a place in this infinity, for evil can have no place, where all space is filled with God" (page 469).

Trade Still On Uptrend

Retail Distribution Outstanding, Dun-Bradstreet Reports

NEW YORK, Feb. 19 (AP)—Nearly all branches of trade moved forward in a more determined advance this week as temporary influences of a restrictive nature dropped further in the background. Dun & Bradstreet said today in the weekly review. Retail distribution was outstanding in the extension of its upward trend, the agency said. Wholesale volume was maintained, orders running ahead of the estimated total for the spring season. Industrial expansion widened, with emphasis strongly on the capital goods sector. While dust storms curtailed retail trade in some sections of the country and others were hampered by snow-clogged highways, the agency estimated gains ranged from 6 to 10 per cent over the preceding week and from 12 to 20 per cent ahead of the same week last year. Demand spread to practically all lines, the review stated, "as postponed winter needs were covered and weather favored the movement of early spring apparel. February promotions of furniture, household goods, floor coverings and dinnerware contributed an important part to the upturn."

New, Seeded-Up Paris Service Is Offered By Dodge

A service program designed to give local Dodge dealers and their customers what might be termed "next-door-to-factory" parts and replacement service, has been perfected by the Dodge Brothers corporation. The plan is noteworthy because it aims at giving the same fast maintenance service to owners in all sections of the country. The new Dodge service chain provides a comprehensive assortment of parts and supplies available at 13 key points of which Dallas is one. From these strategically situated stocks, Dodge dealers keep their individual parts stock in a state of constant replenishment. "The advantages of the system accrue to the service stations as well as to owners," explains Robert S. Muir, manager of the Dodge Dallas region. "The average service shop, to be prepared for work on any one of the several million Dodge cars and trucks now in service, might have to carry a parts stock, including many units for which no call might come in months. The Dallas key stock, on the other hand, caters to a much larger clientele and carries a more varied assortment of parts. By putting dealers in reach of fully-stocked supply sources the service becomes one of practically nation-wide convenience. "The net effect of the plan is that though thousands of miles separate Dodge owners in the Dallas region from the factory, supplies and replacements are available, or so close at hand that service delays are reduced to the veriest minimum."

COURT ORDERS ISSUED ON MARITIME ACT

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 19 (AP)—A ban of federal court orders obtained today in the four major west coast ports against enforcement of the Copeland maritime safety act, bitterly opposed by seamen. Unions representing unlicensed personnel obtained temporary writs yesterday in Seattle, Wash., and Portland, Ore., adding to those previously issued against the act in Los Angeles harbor and here. The first hearings on petitions to make the orders permanent will be held Saturday, to be followed next week by hearings in the other ports. Seamen have objected to the discharge book provision of the Copeland act, contending it furnishes employers with a blacklisting weapon against union men.

Linking toward the further development of its already vast research work on petroleum products, the Gulf Oil Corporation has added to its research staff a famous automotive engineer and designer whose name is synonymous with automobile racing in this country. Harry A. Miller, whose racing cars have been winning championships since 1911 and whose engines have won every Indianapolis Speedway Memorial Day classic during the last nine years, has accepted an appointment to the Gulf staff, and will begin a series of practical experiments in the use of gasoline and other petroleum products. The state affairs committee last night determined a procedure by which it hoped the bill would retain tax features ordered deleted by the house. The committee set a hearing March 2 for a proposal to license real estate dealers and did not take action on a bill which would establish a public welfare department. Rep. John K. Russell of Cleburne retained his house seat by action of that body, which favored him 65 to 58, over E. E. Hunter, former member also of Cleburne, who contested Russell's election. Water and soil conservation ranches was being demonstrated the Fisher ranch south of a day in a program directed by County Agent G. P. Grittis. It was planned to throw up terraces, diversion dams, furrows and to clear out a portion of the last near highway No. 8. Some of the drainage from the highway was diverted over the range bar and captured by the terraces. Thursday afternoon approximately 20 farmers and stockmen took part in the ranch site demonstration at the T. W. Ashley place 10 miles south of here. Ashley has several score tons of feed stored in his underground silo and is feeding it as a part of ration for his topping venture. He told those who attended that the bulk of the feed which was in his trench silo would have rotted had it been left for surface storage. It was wet and immature, said, and would have rotted in the field. Put into the trench silo, it making ideal forage, he said. Most of the men who attended indicated they were planning to put their silos on a small scale at their places. Ashley is so enough on the idea that he is going to construct another trench silo this year.

PLAN TO LIBERALIZE PENSIONS IN HANDS OF HOUSE COMMITTEE

AUSTIN, Feb. 19 (AP)—A bill to liberalize old age pensions with increased natural resources taxes today lay in a subcommittee of the house of representatives with plans under way to obtain reconsideration on the floor. The state affairs committee last night determined a procedure by which it hoped the bill would retain tax features ordered deleted by the house. The committee set a hearing March 2 for a proposal to license real estate dealers and did not take action on a bill which would establish a public welfare department. Rep. John K. It's The Bath---Not The Makeup ---That Makes Beauties That Way

NEW YORK (UP)—Beauty baths are more important than cosmetics in a campaign for good looks.

They can stimulate circulation, smooth and soften skin, firm muscles and quiet jangling nerves—all of which are a step forward in the march toward beauty.

The most famous beauties the world has known have been aware of their value. But the modern woman, spending all she can afford annually on creams, powder and rouge, often makes her bath a hurried routine from which she receives no benefit except cleanliness.

Reading + AND + Writing

By John Selby

February is dumping a plethora of fair to excellent novels into every willing lap. The most valuable so far is not strictly speaking a novel at all, but a historical romance which ends in tragedy. This is Bertha Harding's "Golden Fleece."

Warm baths should never be extremely hot. Take them at a moderate temperature, and allow time to relax in the tub for a few minutes before you begin the scrubbing process.

Baths for reducing weight are now given by beauty experts. Margaret Brainard gives a foam bath, in which air is forced through a tube into the water, making a mass of bubbles. These break against the skin and produce a gentle massage which is said to reduce weight.

Another Question About CARDUI

MOTHERS RECOMMEND IT

"Why do so many MOTHERS recommend Cardui to their daughters?"

Isn't it but natural that any good mother should tell her daughters about Cardui if the mother herself felt that she had been benefited by this medicine?

It is impressive that so many women report having taken Cardui on the advice of their mothers.

Cardui has been found to benefit women when weakened by malnutrition (poor nourishment); and it helps to relieve much discomfort at monthly periods.

Thousands of women testify Cardui helped them. Of course, if it does not help you, consult a physician.—adv.

Try Exercise To Forestall 'Figure Age'

Suggested To Keep The Waist Slender And The Hips Slim

NEW YORK (UP)—"Exercise" is among the first of the ten commandments of beauty.

It helps to hold the weight normal and the figure to the slim lines which are essential to chic these days. It firms the muscles of the abdomen—one of the first spots to betray "figure age."

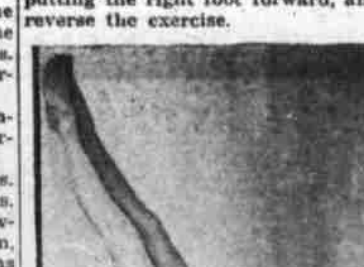

Since modern life affords less opportunity for exercise than that of past decades, most modern beauties make setting up exercises a part of their beauty regimen.

Here are three of the outstanding exercises in the Arden system for limbering, stretching and relaxing.

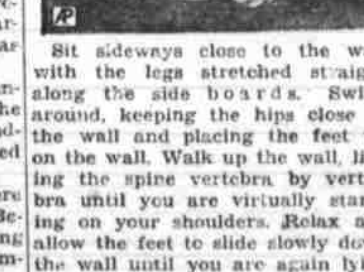

Stand with the feet about 25 inches apart the left foot forward. Push forward across the body with the right hand, extending the arm and slightly bending the left knee.

Repeat ten times. Change stance, putting the right foot forward, and reverse the exercise.

Sit sideways close to the wall with the legs stretched straight along the side boards. Swing around, keeping the hips close to the wall and placing the feet up on the wall. Walk up the wall, lifting the spine vertebra by vertebra until you are virtually standing on your shoulders.

Repeat five times.

Start in a kneeling position with the knees and palms of the hands on the floor. Swing the right leg up in the air, turning the head to look back over the shoulder toward the upraised foot. Bring the knee back to the floor. Repeat with the other foot.

Those three exercises, done every morning before you take your shower, will do much to keep you limber, your waist slender and your hips slim.

Salmon For Eight Weeks Is Enough, Rescued Man Avers

KANAB, Utah, Feb. 19 (UP)—If anyone ever tries to feed me salmon again I'll shoot 'em.

That was the first observation of Carl Cox, former national park ranger, as he and his wife arrived here this morning after being rescued from their snowbound ranch 19 miles south of Jacobs Lake, Ariz.

Eight weeks they had been marooned in a small cabin. Despite the long period of isolation, neither suffered ill effects.

Mrs. Cox, an expectant mother, was exhausted from the long trip to Kanab and nervous from the tension of the tedious wait for rescue. She retired immediately, leaving her husband to recount their experiences.

"All we had left to eat when the tractor arrived was some salmon and pop corn," Cox said. "Our supplies had been dwindling away for weeks, but men passing on snowshoes left us a little food and we were able to get along. But I don't want to see any more salmon."

Ritz Offers 'Green Light'

Errol Flynn, Anita Louise In Film Version Of Popular Story

"Green Light, the stirring story of heroism, sacrifice and love which had many hundreds of thousands of readers in its book form a couple of years ago, comes as a photoplay to the Ritz theatre...

Errol Flynn, the young Irishman, who made sensational hits in "Captain Blood," and "Charge of the Light Brigade," is the masculine star of Lloyd C. Douglas' gripping tale. He plays Dr. Paige, the scientist who almost gives his life in researches destined to alleviate human suffering.

The girl he wins, after much misunderstanding and unhappiness, is the lovely little blonde, Anita Louise, who had a recent triumph of her own as the mother of Anthony Adverse, in the film version of that book, and shares stellar honors with Flynn.

The saintly philosopher, Dean Harcourt, friend and adviser of all the characters in the story, is played by the distinguished British character star, Sir Cedric Hardwicke.

Margaret Lindsay portrays a devoted hospital nurse who loves Flynn, but has to surrender him. Henry O'Neill as a surgeon who unwittingly forces Flynn into a long martyrdom.

Walter Abel, whose most recent success was as the district attorney in "Fury," was especially engaged to enact the role of Flynn's friend and fellow scientist.

New Release Of March Of Time At The Ritz Theatre

Opening Friday and Saturday at the Ritz is the new March of Time with three subjects due to provoke considerable discussion.

Edited with authority and good taste, "Conquering Cancer" is a frank discussion of this dreaded disease and of the concentrated crusade against it. In this episode, March of Time claims to have scored one of the biggest triumphs of its entire series. Discussed frankly are the advances being made in the medical profession's drive against this most fatal of all human ailments.

In an episode entitled "The Mormon Church," the editors of the picture reveal the growth of an ecclesiastical experiment in solving the relief problem. "Vacations In Winter" is the third episode, an entertaining pictorial survey showing that the American public's holiday season is becoming a year-round affair.

Gene Autry, the singing cowboy, is back at the Lyric this week-end, in a new action melodrama, one called "Round-Up Time In Texas," and Maxie Doyle, shown here with him, is his leading lady. The picture is offered Friday and Saturday.

PRINCIPALS IN COMEDY AT RITZ

Joan Blondell, Frank McHugh and Carol Hughes in a scene from the riotous comedy hit, "Three Men on a Horse," the Ritz theatre's featured offering for Friday and Saturday. McHugh, as "Owlin," shows how to pick the ponies.

Famed Stage Comedy Made Into Picture

'Three Men On A Horse,' Uproarious Farce, Here Friday-Saturday

That phenomenon of latter-day stage comedies, "Three Men on a Horse," has been made into film fare and the production comes to the Ritz screen Friday and Saturday of this week. The show is phenomenal in that it has run for two years on Broadway and has toured practically the entire nation in several road companies. Few plays have ever attained the same popularity.

"Three Men on a Horse" is the side-splitting story of Erwin (pronounced Owlin) a meek little writer of greeting card verses—who has the weird gift of picking winners in horse races. He keeps that secret to himself, and as he rides to and fro to work from his home, he jots down in a little book his prognostications and imaginary winnings. His nagging wife finds the book, denounces him as a phillanderer, and browbeats him to the point of desperation.

When his boss orders him to produce fifty Mother's Day greeting verses before the noon whistle blows—his troubles begin to pyramid—and drive him to a gin mill to drown his woes in drink. It is there that fate catches up with him.

Three gamblers are talking about horses and Owlin timidly offers a tip. They laugh at him and bet on the favorite who loses. Seeing that the little man has something—they imprison him and proceed to get rich on his tips on the winners. They phone to his boss that he is sick—and when his wife hears this—she rouses the police and a city wide search is instituted. Then begins an uproarious complication as ever climaxed a comedy.

The cast is headed by Frank McHugh and Joan Blondell. Carol Hughes plays Owlin's weepy wife. The trio of gamblers are played with loud gusto by Allen Jenkins, Teddy Hart and Sam Levene—the latter two from the Broadway stage production. Guy Kibbee is the greeting card manufacturer who drives Owlin to his doom. Others in the cast are Paul Harvey, Harry Davenport, Eddy Nalmon, Eddie Anderson and Tola Nammoth.

IN RITZ DRAMA

Anita Louise and Errol Flynn, who have featured roles in the film adaptation of that best-selling novel, "Green Light" Flynn, a comparative newcomer to movies, scores a new success in the dramatic story. The picture is at the Ritz Saturday midnight, Sunday and Monday.

Experts Fail To Agree On Crop Figures

Acreage Estimates Vary By 15 To 60 Millions, U. S. Reveals

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (UP)—"How much should we produce in future years?" a group of farmers asked A. G. Black, chief of the bureau of agricultural economics.

Black called together commodity specialists and economists in the bureau of agricultural economics who were experts on soil conservation, on demand for farm products, foreign trade, and other subjects. He found each of the groups used a different yardstick and got a different answer to the question. Black tells about it in an agricultural department report.

Farm economists, using the yardstick of farm income and the AAA goal of 1910-14 parity between farm income and non-farm income per capita, said farmers should reduce harvested crop acreage by as much as 45,000,000 to 55,000,000 acres below the 1928-32 average of 365,000,000 ac. ±.

Cut Held Too Drastic "It is extremely doubtful that it would bring farmers parity income for a short time. High prices which would result from such a reduction might cause consumers to reduce greatly their purchasing of farm products. And in the long run farmers might be worse off than before." Commodity specialists, using domestic consumption as a yardstick, figured that between 1920 and 1929 the nation used slightly more than two acres per person for food and fiber.

Taking the average population of the country as 130,000,000 during the next few years, they estimated the nation needed 265,000,000 acres to feed and clothe the people, plus 40,000,000 acres to feed horses and mules.

Thus commodity experts figured 255,000,000 acres for domestic consumption. This would call for a reduction of 80,000,000 acres from the 1928-32 average.

Foreign Trade Rise Seen But, foreign trade experts argued, the nation must add enough acreage to supply an export market. These specialists predicted a return of foreign trade to the 1920-24 level and estimated the country will need an added 40,000,000 to 45,000,000 acres above domestic needs for export.

A compilation of domestic and foreign trade consumption opinion, thus, would call for an annual harvested acreage of about 250,000,000 acres, or a reduction of only 15,000,000 acres from the 1928-32 average. Soil conservation experts, taking into consideration maintenance of the farm plant, arrived at a fourth figure. They said more than two-thirds of the land area of the United States has been affected by erosion.

Land Less Fertile About 50,000,000 acres have been destroyed for tillage. Heavy cropping has sapped the fertility of much more of the farm acreage, soil experts said. Plainly, they said, the fertility of the land has been decreasing.

Altogether, they said, a shift of from 20,000,000 to 30,000,000 acres of soil-depleting crops to soil-conserving crops seems desirable, if soil conservation is the only yardstick. A shift of 30,000,000 to 40,000,000 acres would be possible, they estimated.

Summing up these four answers, Black said: "Thus, measuring future farm production by these yardsticks, we need to reduce our acreage of harvested crops somewhere between a maximum of 50,000,000 acres and a minimum of 15,000,000 acres below the 1928-32 average. Variations in domestic and consumer demand would affect the adjustment needed in any given year."

Mexico Hopes To See 50,000 Auto Tourists

This Year Expected To Be Bumper Season On Tourists

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 19 (UP)—The Mexican director general of highways, Carlos Bazan, expects 50,000 visitors to use the new highway from Laredo, Texas, to Mexico City during 1937, he told the Keystone Automobile club here. Bazan urged that motorists planning to visit Mexico City cover the section south of Tamaunachale during daylight hours, because high mountains and night traffic might prove dangerous to persons unfamiliar with the road.

He suggested that visitors spend the night at Laredo, Tex., and cross the border in the morning, arriving at Monterey about noon. The afternoon, he said, could be pleasantly spent in Monterey. Remaining there overnight, the visitors might leave the following morning for Juarez or Valles. The third night, he said, might be spent at Pachuca, seven miles off the main highway from Colonia. The tourists would arrive at Mexico City the following afternoon.

Bazan said that while construction work south of Tamaunachale was incomplete, traffic was being maintained "with a minimum of difficulty." He added that gasoline in Mexico sells for 18 cents per gallon,

Foreign Countries Found To Offer Few Opportunities To News Women

ST. LOUIS (UP)—Women journalists have better opportunities in the United States than in any other country, according to Mrs. Walter Williams, widow of the founder of Missouri University's school of journalism.

Recently returned from China, where she was a visiting professor of journalism at Yenching University, and a trip around the world, Mrs. Williams has begun teaching a course in "Opportunities in Journalism for Women" at Washington University of St. Louis.

No other country has the same open-minded attitude toward women in journalism that is found in the United States, she discovered on her last world trip. In England few women even have routine office news jobs. Women employes there do their writing at home and send it in as a contributor.

Only in Australia and New Zealand did she find women doing newspaper work comparable to the variety of their duties on American newspapers.

There are more American women correspondents for American newspapers in Paris, she declared, than French women doing newspaper work. In Germany there have been no newspaperwomen since Hitler's ascendancy. Chinese women, she found, are taking positions on newspapers on a par with those occupied by men.

"Opportunity for women in new fields of journalism has developed with mechanical science and invention. A newspaper woman, trained and tested and with some ingenuity and imagination, has far more scope for her talent in America than anywhere else in the world," she declared.

Gene Autry Star Of Adventure Picture Booked At Lyric

Gene Autry quits the Plains scene for adventure in the jungle belt of South Africa, in his latest action-filled movie, which is never the less, called "Round-Up Time In Texas." The film is at the Lyric Friday and Saturday. From the plains of the Lone Star state, Gene and his pal, Smiley Burnette, take a shipment of horses to Dunbar, in response to a request of Gene's brother, who has discovered a diamond mine.

Arriving, the pair find the brother missing and accused of murder. With a sinister villain blocking their path, the Texans battle their way to the hidden mine and right the wrong done the name of Autry.

Maxine Doyle appears opposite the cowboy singer, as the English daughter of the murdered man. The supporting cast includes LeRoy Mason, Dick Wessel, Earle Hodgins, Charles Whitaker, Buddy Williams and Frankie Marvin.

Musical moments enhance the production. The Cabin Kids, well known negro quartet, appear with Smiley in comic numbers. There are seven other songs, with Gene singing his share.

Dry ice as a railway refrigerant is being experimented with in South Africa.

Real comfort and enjoyment while reading depends almost entirely on the amount and kind of lighting you have. Poor light, glaring light or dark shadows in the corners of the room cause unnecessary eye fatigue and make reading a task instead of a pleasure. A DEGREE ISN'T EVERYTHING

Coming from the president of a college established near one hundred years ago, this statement might be worth noting. He said "Our American parents used to remember that the number of college graduates exceeds, and the future will far exceed, the number of desk jobs."

The president of this college does not decry education—he only warns that a college education does not mean the recipient of it will step into what is generally known as a white collar job. He makes the statement to prevent, in some measure at least, some of the disappointments that are to come to some of the young people now attending colleges and universities, and those who study his statement and take the trouble to check up on employment figures will find that he is correct.

College is not intended to guarantee a man or woman a position or even that less gainful occupation generally known as a job. A college education is valuable, in that it fits the person having it for a fuller enjoyment of life, by reason of acquaintance with literature, art, history and kindred subjects. Some technical schools of course educate their students for special work, but even this does not always fit the student to enter immediately on a lucrative position after graduation.

Diplomas do not have the distinction they once had—they have become so numerous that they could not have. A diploma is evidence (or should be) that its holder has a knowledge of things that will be useful to him and his employers, if rightfully applied, and while ability to do the work required comes first the diploma is a worthwhile secondary recommendation.

But no man or woman is entitled to a position solely because of being a college graduate. There must be something in addition.

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—"Tin-ear Alley" in New York is Cauliflower Row, or, broadly, the hangout of prize-fighters, where the big matches are arranged, and where palookas, on round heels, shuffle around begging fights and talking of fabled greatness in the past.

For days a distinct odor of overripe fish has hung in the sector, and now the reason is clear. This is a little package the boys have wrapped and ready for delivery to Max Schmeling, the ex-champion, who would be the champ right now if James J. Braddock hadn't taken a run-out powder on him last summer.

To appreciate all this, you must understand that nobody really minds a run-out powder around here—nobody, that is, except the man holding the sack. With its reputation for double cross and the double deal, a little thing like a run-out is scarcely noticed in New York, and that is why they are trying like mad to arrange a fight between Joe Louis (whom Schmeling slaughtered) and Braddock, strictly a second rater, in Chicago, or elsewhere.

Braddock wants no part of Schmeling because, so his manager says, the Jewish boycott would kill the gate. Schmeling having had the extremely bad taste to be born a German. Another reason, one accepted by a large portion of the populace, is that Schmeling figures to knock Braddock's block off, if he can ever induce him to get into a ring, and Braddock doesn't want to vacate the crown with his purse still empty.

Braddock, as champion, has hustled around now for nearly two years without officially putting on a glove. He won the title by outlasting Max Baer, a ham and a clown who was thoroughly perforated and made to say uncle by the same Louis whom Schmeling half killed.

In the light of all this, how could they call a fight between Braddock and Louis a championship affair—especially since the winner of the fight was practically assured of a title go? That fight was to provide the opponent for Braddock's defense, and had Louis won he would have been shoved into a ring with the champ in a hurry.

However, the German, won, and Braddock started bleating about an ailing paw—arthritis, it was—in an old wound which he has carried for years.

Nobody has anything personally against Jim Braddock, but he has certainly lost prestige by his behavior, and it is the opinion of a large majority of fight fans that he has the title only by the greatest sort of "break."

The only hope I see for Schmeling is for the state boxing commission to vacate Braddock's title if he refuses to meet Max. He and Schmeling have signed contracts and each has posted $5,000 forfeit money, but that doesn't mean a lot in this village of easy conscience and smart lawyers. It looks to me like the German is having a very foul trick played upon him, and if he wants to salvage any shreds of his remaining chances for a whack at the title he'd better say Auf Wiedersehen to Mister Hitler and get on over here.

Mail Battle

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—When Mr. John (To be or not to be) Lewis announced he would swing his support behind President Roosevelt's extensive judicial new deal, he did not mean moral support.

Lewis plays his Hamlet in politics and in labor, not with lace cuffs and a rapier, but with a purse of gold and a billfold. In fact, his spokesman, Major George L. Berry of labor's so-called non-partisan league, broadly hinted at the weapon they had in mind this time. He said, "congressmen will be delighted to hear from their people back home, and we are going to deny them the privilege."

What they did not say is that the communications which congressmen have been receiving from Lewis' forces out in the country indicate that some organization is vitally necessary.

For instance, one congressman stopped a colleague from an adjoining state in the hall the other day, saying he had received the most unusual mandate from a constituent in all his experience. It came from a mine worker local. The colleague had received exactly the same wire from a local in his state. Both wires read simply: "We expect you to be for whatever the president is for."

Postage

What Lewis can do in a postage way, if he sets his mind to it, is indicated by a private check-up recently made of campaign expenditures reports on file with the clerk of the house.

Various United Mine Worker contributions have been published from time to time, but totals have varied. So many contributions and loans were made at separate times to various organizations that no one has been sure of an exact total.

While this one may be inadequate, it indicates clearly that Lewis is not parsimonious in politics, as he was at least able to furnish the following sums in 1936: To the democratic national committee, $419,548.91.

To the Pennsylvania state committee, $40,000.
To two congressional districts in Pennsylvania, $10,000.
Total, $469,548.91.

It indicates, also, that Mr. Lewis need not go to the expense of sending additional letters to those two congressmen from Pennsylvania in whose election he spent $10,000.

Fright Flurry

The Lewis-Berry postal attack on congress appears to be needed by the organizers of the president's fight. The real thing which stopped his program cold and delayed consideration was the onslaught of critical communications to congressmen from their folks back home. His normally loyal supporters were frightened.

Most of the estimates on mail are being given out by opposition congressmen. They may or may not be exaggerating, but their assertions indicate that their mail, unlike Mrs. Roosevelt's is nowhere near even.

Republican Representative Millard Tarrington, N. Y., told the house he had received between 1,800 and 2,000 telegrams, letters and petitions, but only one in favor. Republican Senator Capper's mail, which is reputed to be the largest in congress, is reported 95 per cent against; Democratic Senator Burke, Nebraska, 95 per cent against; Senator Herring, Iowa, 90 per cent against. Herring is the only one favorable to the president's plan.

Secretarial Work

During the utilities and bonus fights, congress received hundreds of thousands of communications, but most of these were obviously organized. Some of the utilities and bonus people were supposed to have written the letters themselves before going out on the highways and byways and soliciting signatures, in some cases signing the names themselves and paying the postage.

The first batches of incoming mail this time were obviously not the result of skillful organization, but much of the deluge poured down from pens of lawyers and others acquainted with the subject.

The president's friends believe their deficiency in mail support was due to the fact that the issue was not understood by the average man in the street. They trust that, after a period of systematized campaign educational work and organization, they can bring in mail to congressional desks which will give congressional justification for supporting the proposal.

This is the whole fight now.

Skill

It seemed significant that Mr. Roosevelt announced his new commissioner to the Philippines just as Philippine Military Adviser General MacArthur and Philippine President Manuel Quezon were on their way to Washington for a conference. It was.

Those who should know, say Mr. Roosevelt hastened the matter before his cabinet and obtained its unanimous approval to the selection of Indiana's political leader, Paul V. McNutt, at first, the president considered sending Assistant State Secretary Francis Sayre, but State Secretary Hull protested Sayre could not be spared from his economic work in the department.

McNutt then was given only 24 hours to make up his mind. The president's main idea, they say, was to act before the Philippine representatives arrive on the scene, thus avoiding any impression that they had a hand in the choice.

Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD—Turning war correspondent, we skim along the ocean highway, 50 miles up the coast, to Point Mugu Fish Camp.

Off the main road a mile or two seaward is the French aerial base: a couple of hangars, a "barracks," sundry war-torn fragments of homes, one cracked-up German plane, and assorted tents. A company of men—mostly in uniforms—is busy there.

Sherman, even in the movies, was right. War corresponding is no pleasure—and this is only a location for "The Woman I Love."

The huge canvas hangars billow in the cold wind that sweeps across this bleak wintry landscape. A timid, undecided sun has made up its mind and has retired under a cold blanket of cloud. Sudden driving rain pelts the face with whips of ice, and cold feet become more than a state of mind.

Snacks from fireworks—used to simulate fog—no chance in this gusty outdoor stage, and Director Anton Litvak switches to another scene, a close-up of Paul Muni in the cockpit of a plane. Everybody is dressed, and very sensibly, for pneumonia weather. But the dampness gnaws through wool and leathers.

They selected this site for its flat terrain, which must match that of the French film "Escadrille," shots from which will be used in the RKO picture. Behind rise grim un-Gallic mountains, but shooting out to sea the camera catches a limitless white backdrop of horizon.

Beneath our feet, 18 inches down, is salt water. At high tide, says Saraman Charles Roshier, this pushes up, dampening the earth. When it dries, the ground is white with salt, and must be sprayed with paint to look like earth.

At noon, shivering, line up at the chuck wagon. M. the extra, and I all get the same fodder—roast beef and noodles, green beans, beef, bread and butter, stewed fruit, hot coffee or milk.

We eat in the barracks—a combination dressing, dining, lounging and make-up room as well as abode of a couple of rabbits vital to the film. It is heated, blessedly, by an open stove.

The room is odoriferous with damp clothing, food, rabbits, steam—and Vince Barnett's "gags." For his pains he gets a milk shampoo. Louis Hayward gloomily remarks that he is making a career of this location. Paul Guilfoyle, doomed to die, fears his fatal crash will not come for three days more. Muni philosophically chews behind his whiskers and smiles at the fun.

When we go out again, the sun is shining. There is a quick shift to a new set-up—one that will match the last scene taken in sunshine.

But as we leave, it is raining again, and getting colder.

ESCAPE IF YOU CAN

BY FREDERICK JACKSON

Chapter 13
A KNOCK AT THE DOOR
Several moments passed—agonizing moments—while Bigelow waited on the landing, supporting the body. At last Austrelitz came back.

"Someone's been here. The place has been ransacked," he announced in a low tone. "But nobody is here now."
He lent a hand and they dragged Vronski in, shutting the door behind them.
The place was in wild disorder. Obviously, someone had been there carrying on a frenzied search. Drawers stood open, their contents scattered about. A chair was overturned. Books had been dumped out of the book shelves. Clothes were tossed in piles on the chairs.
"The scene is set for us," said Austrelitz quietly. "Let us complete the picture and get away as quickly as we can."
He began to drag the coat and Austrelitz arranged the body on the floor, as though Vronski had been shot there.

hat off Vronski again, to place them in the hall. Then he came back and arranged the body on the floor in the midst of the debris, as though Vronski had been shot there and had fallen.

"Is that more or less as he fell?" he asked, looking up at Bigelow as he finished.

"Yes," replied Bigelow, and made a couple of minor adjustments. Austrelitz drew a black leather case from his vest pocket, opened it and produced a small lancet.

With this, he made a neat incision in his finger and permitted the blood to spurt out on the floor near the wound in Vronski's breast. When he was satisfied with the effect, he bound his slight wound and put the little black case away.

"I think that will do it," he said then, his eyes wandering critically about him. And he took up his hat.

At that instant there came a knock on the door. Bigelow and Austrelitz looked at each other, holding their breath. There was panic in Bigelow's eyes. Austrelitz, frowning, with a finger on his lips, shook his head slightly, warningly.

The knock was repeated imperatively.

Somebody Breathing Heavily
In the silence that succeeded the knock, Bigelow could feel his heart beating. Austrelitz—still cautioning him with a look—moved cautiously step by step to the front door and pressed his ear against the panel, holding his breath.

On the other side of the door, he could distinctly hear somebody breathing heavily.

The knock was repeated a third time, but less confidently. They waited—and then Austrelitz heard whoever had been there, retreating slowly down the stairs. He came noiselessly back to join Bigelow.

"If it was the officer," he said, so low that Bigelow had to strain his ears to hear him, "he will probably be waiting down there by the car. And we'll have to tell him that we were in the back with the door closed trying to get Vronski to go to bed. And that he was making such a row we didn't hear the knocking."

"Who else could it have been," asked Bigelow, "at this time in the morning?"

Austrelitz shrugged. "Let's go," he suggested, abandoning the field of useless speculation. "Nothing to be gained by lingering here."

Bigelow nodded agreement. He had already realized the futility of searching for Anne's letters among the litter in that disordered room. And, after all, there was no reason why she should not have written love letters to Vronski. Even if the police found them, they could find nothing in them to suggest a motive for murder.

They descended the stairs to the street, after turning off the lights and shutting Vronski's door securely behind them. Austrelitz did that, first slipping on his gloves.

But there was no sign of the policeman in the street below, no sign of anyone, anywhere.

They re-entered the car with a sigh of relief and drove away. . . . The Colony At One

It was nearly six when Bigelow tumbled gratefully into bed. The ringing of his telephone aroused him at 12. But he had slept soundly.

"Hello!" came over the wire in Anne's sweet husky voice. "Did I wake you up?"
"Yes," answered Bigelow frankly, "but I can think of no pleasanter way to be wakened."
"I waited as long as I could behour later he was stepping out of his taxi before the C-tony. Just inside, he found Anne already there. She was looking ravishing in a smart green tailored suit, a jaunty little green hat and huge silver foxes. She was looking fresh, too—showing no trace of her almost complete collapse of the night before. But there was a nervous excitement in her manner.

"You are prompt!" she cried approvingly. "I've got a table—had it reserved for Lorna and me. 'This way!'"

It was a table in a corner where it would be quite safe for them to talk. As they threaded their way to it, Tony Kane—preening over a table for eight—waved eagerly and cried, "What a party!"

"If she only knew," murmured Anne under her breath, without stopping.

"I like Mrs. Kane," said Bigelow, as they settled themselves in their corner under the anxious eye of the head waiter.

"So do I," cried Anne. "She's a darling. Mad, of course, but we're all mad. I sometimes think you and I no less than the rest." She opened her cigarette case and lighted a cigarette before he could find his lighter. "You order something—anything," she said. "But first, without any delay at all, I want a side-car."

NEGRO RETURNED TO FACE THEFT CHARGE

MONROE, La., Feb. 19 (AP)—Edward A. Nelson, negro, 28, was on his way to Los Angeles today with a police lieutenant to face charges of stealing a collection of 500 foreign gold pieces and a quantity of clothing from Sue Carol, former film actress. Monroe police arrested Nelson for vagrancy last Monday. An examination of his finger prints revealed Los Angeles police wanted him in connection with robbery of Miss Carol's home.

Oregon Spurs Development Of New Mines

Output For Year Expected To Show Substantial Gains

SALEM, Ore., Feb. 19 (UP)—Oregon mining is on the upgrade under encouragement from Gov. Charles H. Martin. Mining output in 1937 should show a substantial increase over that of previous years, according to C. D. Adams, director of the state board for vocational education, supervisor of all existing state mining agencies. A $5,000,000 annual production is a reasonable estimate, Adams said.

Mining of Oregon metals increased 11 per cent in 1936 over 1935, according to the federal bureau of mines. Production grossed $2,222,476 in 1936 compared to $2,010,343 in the previous year. The 1936 production was divided into: gold, $2,065,500; silver, $64,526; copper, $49,690; lead, $7,630; and zinc, $4,410. Silver was the only metal to decrease in production value. In the current legislature is a bill appropriating $50,000 for a new state department of geology and mineral industries. Accurate records and surveys of mining operations, never before obtainable, would be made by the new department. Free assays to small miners would be another function of the agency. Records of Oregon mining are fragmentary and indefinite. Latest reliable report is that of the U. S. department of interior for 1935. It shows a total production of $4,314,198. This was made up of: gold, $1,852,200; silver, $79,134; copper, $42,951; lead, $2,400; cement, $1,331,663; clay products, $550,000; diatomite, $150,000; lime, $150,000; mercury, $250,000; platinum, $2,500; salt $113,120. "The general building recovery will make more demands on clay products, cement and lime," reported Adams. "The Spanish war will undoubtedly have a beneficial effect on clumber properties in Oregon through the depleted supply of mercury." The Southern Oregon Mining School was established in 1935 under Adams' direction. In the last two years 1,600 miners have received free instruction in elementary geology, extraction, metallurgy, painting, rocking, sluicing, timbering, blacksmithy, ores identification, mining chemistry and mining law. Another important work of the school has been to interest itinerant prospectors in minerals other than gold. Outstanding in the non-precious mineral field has been the opening of a new industry in mining of chrome ore. A Maryland company spent $20,000 last year prospecting along the southwestern coast and getting ready for placer operations and expects to spend $50,000 this year. It has announced contract for 20,000 tons of high grade ore. Establishment of a smelter on the C. O. coast railway will enable delivery of chrome ore at $1.50 a ton less than the foreign price. Adams estimated that $1,000,000 had been put into mining construction in Oregon during the last two years.

Earthworm Nursery Set Up KAUKAUNA, Wis. (UP)—Hot-house fruits and vegetables frequently grace the tables of epicures, but, as far as is known, hot-house angworms have never been fed to fish until this year, when members of the Kaukauna Conservation club established an earthworm nursery to feed the fish in their rearing pond during the winter.

ply to Sheriff Dooling's order to leave the plant in nearby north Chicago held since Wednesday afternoon.

Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady yesterday ordered the estimated 82 strikers who have held the plant since Wednesday to leave the property. They refused and he cited them for contempt of court.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Thomas Kennedy, rallying his forces after the strikers had forced them back with acid and missiles, said H. N. Keefe, company attorney, empowered him to "use any method" to get the men from the plant.

"He said we had gone this far with the order and should carry it out," Kennedy said. "He said the company's buildings are covered by insurance."

Kennedy considered moving the strikers' automobiles, parked nearby, to within close range of the plant, where the officers could hold up the strikers for protection.

The strikers demanded recognition as their bargaining agency of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers of North America, sponsored by the Committee for Industrial Organization.

After the contempt order was read yesterday, Kennedy said one of the strikers shouted, "We will not be responsible for what happens if anybody tries to come in here."

MORE "STAY-IN" STRIKES
DETROIT, Feb. 19 (AP)—Five Detroit factories were held today by more than 2,000 "stay-in" strikers—most of them women—who demand wage increases.

Strikes at two other plants were settled during the night.

A labor demonstration was staged at one of the city welfare department relief stations, where 28 men and women workers of Cadillac and Westwood automobile plants were sitting in the office and demanding welfare assistance until the group, now returning to work, receive their first day checks.

The plants in possession of "sit-downers" are:

Also reviewed were activities for parks, highways, housing programs, aviation and new industries. The report was outlined in brief by Dunham who had words of praise for Manager W. T. Strange, Jr., and Mrs. Alice Phillips, secretary, for their work during the year.

Mrs. Carleton, accompanied by Miss Elsie Willis, sang two numbers, "Russian Nightingale," and "Oh, Miss Hannah."

steering" under the present confiscation law was flagrant, and that over 50 per cent of the cases up to Sept. 1, 1936, were filed, answered, judgment entered and the oil sold back to the defendant on the same day.

Re-Sold at Profit
Defendants, he said, were buying oil at "one-fourth to one-fifth of its value" from a receiver and profited from a good fee, then re-sold the oil at a big profit.

Most of the sales, he added, were not held in public, as provided by law, but "in hotel rooms, over cocktails."

Passage of the amendments was opposed on grounds they dealt with an oil confiscation measure, and not proration, which some senators claim should be considered by itself.

Sen. Clint Small of Amarillo declared if Hill's charges were based on fact an investigation of confiscation administration should be made and impeachment proceedings brought against anyone, including district judges, guilty of irregularities.

Other Bills
Another bill passed by the senate proposed the state auditor be appointed by a committee of the legislature instead of the governor. Its purpose would be to make the auditor an employe of the legislative branch similar to the status of the federal comptroller at Washington.

The senate also passed and sent the house a bill to prohibit the sale of goods made by child labor in Texas or other states.

The house passed a bill to authorize issuance of search and seizure warrants to aid in enforcement of the liquor law. Sponsors said recent court decisions that existing statutes containing no such authorization had paralyzed liquor law enforcement.

The house did not reach a vote on an enabling act for the constitutional amendment creating a new pardons and parole board. It set the salaries by the board members at $2,000 each, instead of the $4,000 as recommended by committee.

Braddock, Louis Sign For Battle
CHICAGO, Feb. 19 (AP)—James J. Braddock, world's heavyweight champion, and Challenger Joe Louis signed articles shortly before 1 p. m. today for a 15-round title bout to be held June 22 at Comiskey park.

The champion signed first. The formality was held up several minutes at the insistence of Joe Gould, manager of the champion, on revised terms for Braddock.

Braddock was assured his option on a flat guarantee of $500,000 or 50 per cent of the gate. He also will receive 50 per cent of motion picture receipts and 50 per cent of the broadcasting income.

Louis will receive 17 1-2 per cent of the gate receipts, which promoters expected would reach $1,000,000. A rider to Louis' part of the contract stipulated he would appear only in exhibitions of six rounds, or less, before the title bout.

COTTON SPINNING AT A NEW RECORD HIGH
WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—The cotton spinning industry set a new all-time record for activity during January.

The census bureau reported today the industry operated at 157.7 per cent of "capacity"—100 per cent being figured on an arbitrary operating schedule.

The previous record was 134.5 per cent of capacity in December, 1936. A record also was set in November when mills were at 129.9 of capacity. A 128.9 per cent record has stood up since June 1935.

"Normal Granary" Next On List Of Agriculture Items
WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—An "ever-normal" granary system, already approved by farm leaders, will be the administration's next recommendation to congress for stabilizing agriculture.

Secretary Wallace said today government attorneys were drafting legislation covering the granary proposal, designed to store crop reserves in good years for use in poor ones.

It is broader in scope than the "all-risk" crop insurance system recommended yesterday by President Roosevelt.

The latter will receive prompt consideration from a senate subcommittee while the house agriculture committee is studying the president's message on farm tenant aid.

CHIANG KAI-SHEK GETS VOTE OF CONFIDENCE
NANKING, China, Feb. 19 (AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, chief of the government Kuomintang party.

He rejected his offer to resign all his positions and urged he continue at the command of China's ship of state.

Chiang told the party leaders he was responsible, as generalissimo, for the lack of discipline which resulted in the December Sianfu mutiny and his own kidnapping by "young marshals" Chung Hsueh-Liang, Chang, now pardoned and given back his full civil rights, is preparing to resume his former command in Szechwan province.

REPORT PROGRESS IN STRIKE NEGOTIATION
DETROIT, Feb. 19 (AP)—Conferees seeking final agreement on issues remaining from the recent General Motors strikes reported progress today after their seventh session, devoted to discussion of seniority problems.

A production line dispute in the unit at Oshawa, Ont., remained to be settled, however. The union which has no organization in the Oshawa plant, dispatched a representative there today to confer with the strikers.

Few Sign For Garbage Haul

City To Let Contract Only When Sufficient Number Join Plan

Big Spring's proposed system for garbage disposal was still a mere possibility today after months of time for signing service contracts had netted only 13 signatories.

The contracts, offered by the city, provide for the disposition of garbage twice weekly from residential property at a cost not to exceed 50 cents per month, provided a sufficient number take advantage of the plan to warrant its institution.

Cost of the service would be added to the water bill and collected in the same manner.

City commissioners favored letting contract for the garbage hauling if, and when enough sign contracts to make the project practicable.

A survey carried in the current issue of the Texas League of Municipalities shows that only seven other Texas cities offer as low monthly rates for garbage disposal from residences as Big Spring as Big Spring proposes.

The Big Spring plan met with enough sanction by the publishers of the magazine to carry a complete contract.

Many cities smaller than Big Spring have regular garbage disposal service, the survey showed.

City Manager E. V. Spence said that signatures for the service would be welcomed and as soon as enough, grouped together, could be secured, contract will be let and the project started.

STEEL NEEDED FOR WARSHIPS
WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—President Roosevelt said today the government would be forced to act soon to obtain steel needed in construction of naval vessels.

The steel industry has failed to bid on a large part of orders placed by the navy. Naval officers have attributed this to operation of the Walsh-Healey act which sets up wage and hour standards for government contractors.

At his press conference the president said he did not know whether new legislation would be necessary. Unless steel is obtained soon, naval officers, grouped together, and submarines will have to be stopped.

Commenting on the Walsh-Healey act, the president said he favored its minimum wage and maximum hours provisions and would like to see them applied to industry all over the United States.

Asked if the government was considering reopening its naval ordnance factory at Charleston, W. Va., the president replied in the negative.

He commented, however, this plant was in an excellent location for fabricating but if reopened its machinery would have to be substantially retooled.

Charles Edison, assistant secretary of the navy, discussed the steel problem with the president yesterday.

WILL FILE APPEAL ON OIL CONFISCATION
AUSTIN, Feb. 19 (AP)—The attorney general's department has been advised appeal would be filed in the J. I. Dyer case involving movement of certain East Texas oil products and a possible test of the state oil confiscation law.

Originally Dyer sued the railroad commission seeking to move 150,000 barrels of products, but the attorney general's department intervened with confiscation proceedings and a Travis county district court ordered the products confiscated.

From this judgment, Amos Felts, attorney, said appeal would be taken on grounds the oil was legal and entitled to a tender for movement. He also said constitutionality of the confiscation statute was questioned in the answer to the state's intervention.

The intervention originally named a number of other defendants, including the Ortiz Oil company, which claimed a lien on the oil products by reason of certain notes, but the court held the state's interest superior.

Felts said the Ortiz Oil company had no connection with the appeal.

BRITAIN SPEEDS UP MUNITIONS OUTPUT
LONDON, Feb. 19 (AP)—Great Britain's munitions and war equipment factories were thrown into high gear today for production of shells, guns and aircraft in the nation's undigested fear of "the next war."

Spurred by the favorable parliamentary vote on the resolution authorizing a two billion dollar government "war loan in peace," the country forged ahead on its $7,500,000,000 rearmament program.

Observers of the bitter two-day debate in the house of commons over the unprecedented peacetime preparations for conflict, were impressed by the way in which government leaders, especially in the conservative ranks, spoke of "the next war," rather than "the possibility of war."

MOTHERS ARE RESPONSIBLE
The family looks to you to aid your doctor in keeping them well. You can help prevent much illness and poor health by guarding them from common constipation.

Most constipation comes from faulty diet—meal low in "bulk." This condition can be corrected easily and pleasantly.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides the safe way to prevent constipation by putting "bulk" back in the diet. Within the body, ALL-BRAN absorbs twice its weight in water, forming a soft mass which gently sponges out the system.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B and iron. It is 50% much better for your family than constant dosing with artificial pills and drugs.

Two tablespoons daily as a cereal with milk or cream, or in recipes are enough for the average person. Three times daily in severe cases.
