Colorado Site Said Favored For Air School

WASHINGTON, June 4 — UP — Colorado Springs, Colo., appears to have the edge in speculation among military circles on the site that will be chosen for the Air Force Academy.

A five-man selection board has narrowed the field down to Alton, Ill., on the Mississippi River; Lake Geneva, Wis., and Colorado Springs. It is now up to Air Secretary Harold E. Talbot to make the final choice since the board failed to agree on a single location.

Among the factors favoring Colorado Springs, military circles noted, are the large amount of acreage available—about 15,100 acres—and the semi-arid climate with cool summers and moderate winters. Colorado Springs is about 60 miles south of Denver.

Smaller Sites
The Alton site has 7,500 acres and the Lake Geneva site about 9,000. Both are somewhat smaller than Air Force officials have indicated they wanted for the academy.

Talbot said he will have engineers, construction men and real estate experts examine the three sites and he expects to come up with a final answer certainly within a month.

The Air secretary soon will name an architectural-engineering firm or combination of firms to plan the academy and supervise construction. Congress has authorized $125 million for the academy and an additional $1 million to be spent on a temporary location which is expected to be used for the first classes next year.

Rep. Lawrence H. Smith (R-Wis.) told Talbot Lake Geneva property owners oppose the academy because it would "detract" from the area as a vacation spot. Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) said, however, that he would "most certainly favor" the Geneva site.

Johnson Disappointed
Rep. J. Edgar Crenshaw (R-Colo.) said the people of Colorado Springs are "practically unanimous" in favor of locating the academy there.

Sen. Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.) said in a statement that he regrets the selection board's decision but still believes one of the Texas sites would be "the best possible location."

AFL Concedes Dock Defeat

NEW YORK, June 4 — UP — The American Labor union appeared Friday to have conceded at least temporary defeat in its eight-month fight for representation of New York longshoremen.

The AFL union, contending with the Independent International Longshoremen's Association which it ousted from the AFL for corruption last September, failed to file objections to last week's election before the deadline Thursday night, and began shutting up shop.

If the IILA is certified by the National Labor Relations Board, and signs a contract with the New York Shipping Association, the AFL-IILA will be unable to challenge its jurisdiction again for at least two years.

The old IILA won the NLRB election May 26, by a scant 319 of the 33,000 votes cast, with 1,192 charged ballots still uncounted. Although the AFL-IILA did not formally concede the election, it appeared unlikely the uncounted ballots would swing the count in its favor.

Dulles to Speak on Asia
LOS ANGELES, June 4 — UP — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles will speak on the problems of Southeast Asia at a meeting of the Los Angeles world affairs council Friday June 11. It was announced Friday.

Dulles' speech will be televised and broadcast on radio nationally.

Slivers Aide Called To Give Testimony
AUSTIN, June 4 — UP — Maurice Allen, executive assistant to Gov. Allan Shivers, and John V. Cronkite, former political adviser to the governor, have been called to testify in liquidation proceedings next week against Lloyd's of North America, a Houston insurance firm.

Also called Thursday by the defense were Attorney General John Ben Shepperd, State Insurance Commission Chairman G. A. L. and five other members of the insurance department.

Hearing on the state's plea for a permanent injunction to stop Lloyd's of North America from doing business in Texas will open Monday in 98th District court.

Request Made By McClellan

WASHINGTON, June 4 — UP — Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) demanded Friday that the administration waive its secrecy order forbidding disclosure of monitored telephone calls between Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens and Army counselor John G. Adams about the Army-McCarthy dispute.

At the same time, Sen. Karl E. Mundt (R-SD), acting chairman of the subcommittee investigating the dispute, suggested the same action on two or three calls which Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) has demanded be put in the record.

After considerable wrangling, the subcommittee approved a motion by McClellan to call John J. Lucas, Stevens' appointments secretary, from the Pentagon to testify. Lucas monitored most of the calls.

Special subcommittee counsel Roy H. Jenkins asked that two other Pentagon employees, a "Mr. Rhodes" and a "Miss Pike," also be called because, he said, they took down some of the calls.

Li. Col. John F. T. Murray of the Army legal staff left the hearing room and notified the Pentagon to send the three to the hearing room.

From Lucas and the others, McClellan said, the subcommittee needs identification of transcripts of the monitored calls and certification that the records are accurate.

Otherwise McClellan said, the records would not constitute sworn documentation and could not be used as a reference in any legal action that might result from them.

The day's session opened with Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) moving to force McCarthy to give the names of his 130-odd alleged defense plant Communist workers to the Justice Department and FBI immediately. Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) seconded it.

Committee Chairman Clifford R. Hope (R-Kan.) has abandoned efforts to work out a compromise within the committee between the high level support advocates and the administration.

Under the present program, the so-called basic crops must be supported at 90 per cent of "fair price" parity. The administration's flexible program would allow the secretary of agriculture to vary the support level between 75 and 90 per cent of parity in line with supply and demand.

Senator Asks Veil Be Lifted On Phone Calls

Indian Sign

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 4 — UP — Dr. H. H. Donahue, state mental health director, said lie detectors don't work on Indians.

"We get no results at all," he said. "The graph just runs along with no quivers at all. We think it's because of their very stoic nature."

Safety Group Drive Gets Go-Ahead

A meeting of several Pampa Citizens' Safety commission members this morning to iron out confusion regarding plans for local service club to take over safety campaign projects this summer resulted in a go-ahead signal for the campaign.

The confusion came about over a mix-up of names of one of the committees, the Traffic Promotion committee headed by R. D. Wilkerson. The group was originally tabbed Traffic Promotion committee but later through a mix-up became known as the "projects" committee.

Housing Bill . . . 'Watered' Victory

WASHINGTON, June 4 — UP — Key legislators indicated Friday the administration's housing bill would be somewhat "watered down" and altered by the time it is ready for the President's signature.

The Senate Thursday showed down a southern Democratic move to scuttle President Eisenhower's public housing proposals and then in near-record time passed the overall measure containing most of his other housing recommendations.

It was one of the administration's brightest victories in the current session. But it won't be final until House and Senate conferees meet next Friday to iron out the differences between the House and Senate versions of the measure.

Congressional horse trading in the conference appeared likely to reduce the 14,000-unit public housing program and alter some of the President's other recommendations.

The Senate approved its housing bill by a voice vote after three hours of debate.

The southern Democratic move to kill all public housing stemmed from fears growing out of a Supreme Court anti-segregation ruling. It was led by Sen. Burnet R. Maybank (D-S.C.).

By a 68 to 16 vote, the Senate then adopted the administration's

Franking Privilege Record Shattered

WASHINGTON, June 4 — UP — to run state-wide for his party's senatorial nomination his frank gets a real workout. It is merely that the post office ruling makes it possible now absolutely to blank out an area if that seems to be necessary.

A non-member of Congress opposing a sitting member for a party nomination is at a tremendous money disadvantage.

Johnson Hit For Franking 'Extravagance'

BEEVILLE — (Special) — Senator Lyndon Johnson may be spending $15,000 a week of taxpayers' money in free postage, sending hundreds of thousands of letters to Texas voters. It was charged today by an election expert.

Dudley T. Dougherty, a member of the House of Representatives in the Texas legislature, is opposing Johnson for the nomination for U. S. Senator in the primary of July 24. The election expert said:

"I wonder if the public realizes the great advantage a sitting senator has over any opponent. I am told that Senator Lyndon Johnson sends 500,000 letters every week into Texas, carrying propaganda for his re-election. The post office expense is a violation of the postal regulations and of the United States laws."

Crash Derails Freight Train

DALLAS, June 4 — UP — A Southern Pacific freight train collided with a large tractor-trailer on a rural grade crossing north of Dallas Friday and the three-unit locomotive and 13 cars were overturned.

The accident occurred about 7 a.m. at Forest Lane, just east of Central Expressway and only a short distance south of Richardson. The train was operating over a Southern Pacific branch line from Dallas to McKinney and Sherman.

The Dallas county sheriff's department said there were no serious injuries either to the train crew or occupants of the truck, operated by the Vigo Dog Food Co.

Randolph Wins ITU Election

INDIANAPOLIS, June 4 — UP — Woodruff Randolph is assured reelection as president of the AFL-CIO Christian Typographical Union, an ITU spokesman said Friday.

Don Hurd, international secretary, said final unofficial returns from 781 locals gave Randolph a majority of about 500 votes over George Banie, Chicago.

Race Talks By Baptists

ST. LOUIS, June 4 — UP — The Southern Baptist convention was scheduled to deal with the thorny problem of racial segregation Friday.

The issue was to hit Friday night in the form of a report by the Christian Life Commission.

It said the recent Supreme Court cases on this issue "should not have been a surprise to any of us."

Jap Ship In Distress

TOKYO, June 4 — UP — A Japanese ship with more than 200 people aboard sent an SOS message Friday that it was sinking in waters near Okinawa.

The ship, the 226-ton Nanshu Maru, was believed to be foundering in seas between southern Japan and Okinawa. The distress signal was picked up by the Moji wireless station on Kyushu, Japan's southernmost island.

High-Level Farm Props Seem Likely

WASHINGTON, June 4 — UP — Two congressional farm leaders predicted Friday the House Agriculture committee will vote to extend present high level farm price supports, but they disagreed for basic crops.

Rep. Harold D. Cooley (D-N.C.), ranking Democrat on the committee, said the group will "probably" approve a Democratic plan for the three-year extension of the present 90 per cent of parity supports on basic crops.

But a high-ranking Republican member predicted the committee will vote a one-year extension of the present program and provide for a farmer referendum to determine whether a two-year extension should go into operation in 1957 for wheat and possibly cotton.

Either action would be a defeat for President Eisenhower. He has recommended shifting to a "flexible" sliding scale system of price props for wheat, corn, cotton, rice and peanuts after this year.

Under the present program, the so-called basic crops must be supported at 90 per cent of "fair price" parity. The administration's flexible program would allow the secretary of agriculture to vary the support level between 75 and 90 per cent of parity in line with supply and demand.

French Lose 'Lifeline' Post

HANOI, June 4 — UP — French Union troops Friday abandoned the post of Cho Noi under heavy Communist assault, giving Red rebels access to the road leading to the Hanoi-Haliphong lifeline.

A second rebel force swept into the Catholic village of Koon Phon Gha on the coast 80 miles southeast of Hanoi and seized a seminary for priests after hand-to-hand battle with Catholic militiamen.

The French high command said Cho Noi had been under attack for a week and was abandoned during the Reds' eighth attack.

The French high command said Communist losses were "heavy" in the attacks on Cho Noi.

Filing Date Draws Near

Time was short today for Republicans and Democrats who want to file their candidacies for precinct or county chairmanships.

Deadline is midnight Monday, the Texas Election Code states. By noon today, only 10 Democrats and no Republicans had filed, according to Demo County Secy. Bob Baker and GOP County Secy. Ed Vickers. There are 13 precinct chairmen and one county chairman for each party.

The Democrats who have filed are Jimmy Thompson (county chairman), Mrs. C. A. Fygon (May 2), John Kelley (Pct. 10), N. Park Brown (Pct. 12), W. H. Blakney (Pct. 4), Elmer McLaughlin (Pct. 8), Mrs. Siler Hopkins (Pct. 9), Charles M. Webb (Pct. 18), Amos Page (Pct. 17) and Charles Cousins (Pct. 5).

All candidates for precinct and county chairmen will be on the party primary ballots. Primary Day is July 24.

Mexico Ups Import Tax

MEXICO CITY, June 4 — UP — Stiff new import taxes, in some cases well over the value of the items taxed, went into effect Friday in Mexico.

Treasury Minister Antonio Carrillo Flores said the new tax schedules, including both flat rate and ad valorem levies, were expected to cut Mexico's foreign spending for luxury goods. He estimated some 400 million pesos (currently $32 million U.S.) was spent on "not indispensable articles" in 1953.

An example of the new taxes cited by Carrillo Flores was on an automobile carrying a $4,400 (U.S.) price tag. He said the tax would be $5,200, including a fixed fee of $800 and an ad valorem levy of 100 per cent. Less expensive cars will not be taxed so heavily, he said.

Wreck Kills Wagon Driver

DURANT, Okla., June 4 — UP — A L. Kennedy, 37, of Durant was killed Thursday when his car driven by Eli Paul Veal of Tyler, Texas, ran into the rear of Kennedy's horse-drawn wagon.

The accident occurred on U.S. 70 seven miles west of Durant. Two other persons in the wagon suffered minor injuries. Veal was not hurt.

Segregation Ended Voted
BALTIMORE, June 4 — UP — The Baltimore Board of School Commissioners voted unanimously Thursday to end segregation in Baltimore schools this fall. The board acted after receiving a legal opinion from City Solicitor Thomas Bidgood.

Farm Income Rises in May
AUSTIN, June 4 — UP — Texas farmers got more money in May than they did in April, but less than they pocketed a year ago.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture reported Thursday its mid-May index prices received by farmers was up two points compared with the previous month, but down eight points from the May 15, 1953, index.

The USDA said prices received for livestock and livestock products were down four points for the month, but that decline was more than offset by a seven-point rise in the price index for all crops.

Commercial vegetables were up sharply, the report said, and there were lesser increases on cotton and oil bearing crops.

The Dempster Dumpster . . .

New Trash Unit At Work

LOADING THE CONTAINER — Loyd Repean, 330 N. Wells, work producerman for Ideal Food Store No. 1, 220 N. Cuyler, loads some trash into a Dempster Dumpster container, the first step in the city's new trash disposal operation. This is one of 22 Dempster containers, all of which Pampa is expected to have sometime next week, according to Sid Patterson, company representative. Containers like the one shown will be placed in the downtown business area with a minimum of two to a block—which means that no one should have to walk more than 75 feet to a container. They will replace the garbage cans, oil drums and wood and metal bins that have been serving as refuse containers and, unlike them, are closed at the top. There are four different sizes of containers: six, eight, 16- and 22-cubic-yard ones. And each cubic yard holds 265 gallons. (News Photo)

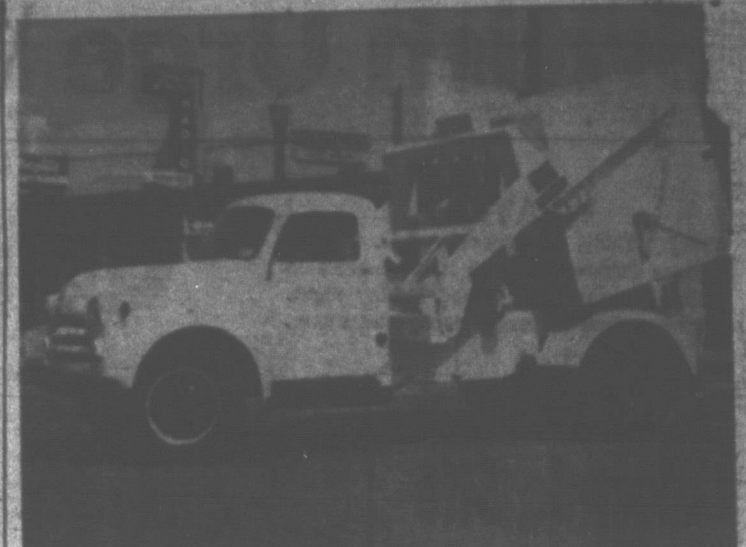

IN TRAFFIC — Here the Dempster Dumpster unit rolls through Pampa downtown traffic on its way to the dump ground. Average time for driver to pick up a container, take it out to the dump ground, and return it to its customary location is 20 minutes, Sid Patterson, company representative says. An estimated 17 trips will be made each night of the week except Sunday. Patterson made a survey of Pampa before the city bought the equipment, thereby making it possible to figure out the accumulation points of most use. That information will determine how big a container goes in each location. Ninety-five per cent of downtown Pampa refuse containers have no covers—all D.D. containers are covered. They are fly, rat and fire-proof and are designed virtually to eliminate scavenging of all kinds. The entire disposal system should be in operation next week. (News Photo)

WORKING THE CONTROLS — H. B. Bagwell, 591 N. Starkweather, night-driver for the city sanitation department, works the controls for the city's new Dempster Dumpster system of trash disposal, preparatory to lifting the container up from the sidewalk, and putting it on the specially-equipped truck which carries the container. The truck was purchased by the city from Purley Motor Company, Pampa, and Bagwell took it to the Dempster plant in Knoxville, Tenn., to be equipped with the hoisting unit and one container. The whole system—truck, hoisting unit and 22 containers—is costing the city an estimated $24,000. Many of the containers will be picked up six nights a week, Sid Patterson, Dempster representative, says. Others will be picked up and dumped once, twice or three times a week, depending on their use. (News Photo)

DUMPING THE LOAD — Next-to-last item on the Dempster Dumpster agenda is dumping the load of trash and refuse at the city dump grounds. Here the first Dempster load ever gathered in Pampa is dumped southeast of town. Last thing to do is bring the container back—empty. It has been advertised the system which Pampa is instituting can pay for itself in less than four years. Sid Patterson, Dempster representative, points out one of the system's biggest points is that of sanitation. Most U. S. Navy stations use the system exclusively and so does a well-known American. For the White House has had a Dumpster container since June 13, 1952. (News Photo)

PULLING OUT — This shows the entire Dempster Dumpster system — truck, hoisting unit and container — as it pulls away from a curb. H. B. Bagwell, the man who will work the whole operation by himself, is in the driver's seat, Sid Patterson, Dempster representative, says there are two main things to be considered with the city's new disposal system: (1) Average distance that users will have to walk is about the same as it is from an average back door to an alley; (2) city officials urge all users either to fill cardboard cartons with trash before dumping them or to break down the carton before inserting it. Chaplin Accepts Soviet Prize

CORSIER, Switzerland, June 4 — Charlie Chaplin accepted a $14,000 Communist peace prize Thursday and said he was "honored and very happy" to receive it. "To promulgate a demand for peace, whether from East or West, I firmly believe is a step in the right direction," the film comedian said. "Therefore I am honored and very happy to receive this award." Chaplin accepted the check from a delegation of the Communist-run "World Council of Peace." He now lives in Switzerland and has been barred from returning to the United States, where he made his fortune in the movies. (News Photo)

Cadet Found Dead In Plane

LUBBOCK, June 4 — UP — An Air Force cadet from Louisiana was killed Thursday when his plane crashed on a farm 24 miles northeast of Lubbock. Reese Air Force Base officials identified the cadet as Jerome D. Powell, 23, Ponchatoula. They said he was on a night training flight and reported no trouble on his last radio call, about 1:10 a.m., when he was near Abernathy, Tex. Powell's single-engine T-28 trainer dug a four-foot hole when it crashed. The wreckage was found by Marshall Overstreet, a farmer. (News Photo)

Wire-Tapping Power Asked By Brownell

LOS ANGELES, June 4 — Attorney General Herbert Brownell Friday implored Congress to approve a bill allowing the government to use evidence acquired through wire tapping against "spies and traitors." Brownell, in a speech before the Los Angeles Bar Association Thursday night, attacked the limitation placed upon the use of intercepted evidence in the trial of security cases. He made no mention of Sen. Joseph McCarthy, despite an earlier promise that he would discuss the Wisconsin Republican in his address. Brownell agreed that invasion of privacy was repugnant to all Americans, but said he deplored the "strait-jackets" placed around federal prosecuting attorneys in not permitting them to use intercepted evidence in the trial of security cases. He said conviction of spies and traitors "is practically impossible unless you can use wiretaps in court." Brownell said that because enemy agents will not talk in court and since federal agents cannot testify as to what they heard over a telephone, the Department of Justice is blocked in proving its case against espionage agents. Soil Waste Scored By John White

CORPUS CHRISTI, June 4 — Agriculture Commissioner John C. White warned Friday "a bare six inches" of topsoil separates the United States from starvation. He blamed poor farming practices for the vast loss of topsoil and said, "there is no greater scandal than the costly waste of our natural resources." White, in a speech prepared for delivery before the American Cotton Congress, said "Americans have ruined more good land in less time than any other nation in recorded history." "In the space of only 250 years, we have completely worn out and discarded 100 million once-fertile acres—ad most of this happened, actually, in the last 50 years," he said. "We have lost about a third of that original acreage of nine inches of topsoil that once covered this land. We are a bare six inches from a total cotton crop failure. More than that, we are a bare six inches from starvation," he added. Recent drought-breaking rains in the Southwest are no assurance of continued productivity, he warned. "We should treat our soils like we treat our women, and remember that they both have many temperamental qualities. One soil may be warm and yielding — the other cool and unco-operative. Very often, these two kinds of soil are found within a few yards of one another, and the farmer has a problem on his hands — like having a wife and a mother-in-law in the same house," he explained. "A neglected woman will fly off the handle — and neglected soil will fly off the land," White said. Cotton, the commissioner said, has been called the "culprit" of soil depletion. "I am growing rather weary of those people who want to eliminate cotton as the first step in their soil conservation plan. I admit we need more grassland in this state—and there are certain sections of Texas that are not adapted to cotton or any other type of cultivation. This is the land that should go back to grass." "But, the vast majority of this state is cotton growing land. It is to our advantage to adapt our soil and water program to the land—and the crop will help," he said. "Soil, water and cotton can be our modern-day version of the 'three musketeers'—adding to tomorrow's productivity of the land while adding money to the pocket book of our farmers today," White said. He pointed out that in recent weeks "we have had enough rainfall to break the drought." However, he warned, "every time it rains, we relax — just as though there was never going to be another drought. We allow our attention to be diverted by the more immediate problems of taxes, high cost of living and public scandals. Yet, there is no greater scandal than the costly waste of our natural resources." (News Photo)

ATLANTA — UP — The frightened telephone call from children at the T. C. Saaser home while their parents were away was convincing enough to bring Patrolman D. T. Kirkland dashing into the house as quickly as he could, with revolver drawn. Opening a closet he fired one shot at the "big snake" the children had found, smashing to bits a novelty rattlesnake made of plaster that an elder brother had tossed aside and forgotten.

SENATOR

Mundt put it aside without any action immediately because of the absence of some Republican members.
"I do not propose to stand by idly," Symington said, "while names of these alleged subversives rest in our files."
Conflicting Impressions
He said McCarthy and Roy M. Cohn, chief counsel for the McCarthy investigating subcommittee, had at various times during the past two days given conflicting impressions on whether the names already were available to proper government authorities.
On one hand, Symington said, McCarthy and Cohn once had said the Defense Department already knew the names. Thursday, Symington went on, it developed that the Defense Department did not know the names -- or at least McCarthy and Cohn indicated they did not know if the department had the names.
Cohn was in the witness chair for the sixth consecutive day.

rancher, fully 99 per cent of the millionaires and billionaires of Texas are favoring my opponent, and I must rely on the votes of the "little" men and women to win this July 24 primary."
He further added that: "When there is a criticism of my personal expenditures I think it should be known to Texas voters that the Herman Brown-Root corporations, which have received, and are receiving, hundreds of millions of dollars in the government contract since Lyndon Johnson became a member of Congress in 1937, are vigorously opposing me and supporting Senator Johnson."
Dougherty said, "I do know, however, that any claim that only $3,000 was spent in the last period of reporting time in the Senator Johnson campaign is bald-faced. Nobody can hope to reach the several million voters in Texas for any less than I have honestly reported."
Senator Johnson reported less than $4000 for the same period of time but I again call attention to the fact that he is sending many thousands of letters to voters in Texas postage-free, and at the taxpayers' expense, which cost the taxpayers far more, every week, than the less than four thousand dollars he reported."
Dougherty added that he was going to wage an "honest campaign," he asserted, that what he spent would be from his own personal funds, and not paid by the taxpayers of Texas, or the United States.

Shot Victim's Rites Pending

BORGER — Funeral arrangements for Charles L. Mobley, 37, who was shot and killed here Sunday, are pending at Minton Funeral home here today.

Mobley died Thursday about 10 minutes after he had taken a German-made pistol from his pocket and fired a shot into his head as he talked with his estranged wife, Borger police said.
The shooting occurred at 11:30 p. m. in the home of his estranged wife, Frances Mobley, where Mobley had gone to see his daughter, Sandra Kay, and to discuss the separation with his wife, it was reported.
Arriving at his wife's home about 8:30 p. m., he held a brief conversation with his wife, after which he took his daughter for a two-hour drive. Upon returning he held another lengthy conversation with Mrs. Mobley, then went to his car, where he stayed about 30 minutes.
Re-entering the house he read a copy of the court order and resumed his discussion with his wife. Suddenly, police said, he took the .38 calibre pistol from a pocket and fired the first shot, the bullet landing in the base of his skull.
Mobley, a veteran of World War II, had lived in Borger 10 or 12 years, moving here from Pampa. Survivors include his wife and daughter, a son, Bill, all of Borger; his father in Pampa, mother, Mrs. Edna Mae Dillingier, Princeton, Ind.; two brothers, Gerald and Ray Mobley, Pampa, and a sister, Mrs. Mary Joyce Noland, Borger.

STUDENT — Hiroshi Yasuma, 15, of Nirasaki, Japan, believed to be the youngest "exchange student" to enter the U. S., leaves through some books after his arrival in San Francisco. He will be the personal guest of Assistant Secretary of State Walter Robertson while attending Whittier College's (Calif.) kindergarten. His father, Kei-kan, and mother, Ai, will study child education at the college.

High School Student Dies In Accident

FLORESVILLE, Tex., June 4 — A San Antonio high school student, one of 12 persons riding in a two-door sedan that was involved in a traffic accident north of here Thursday night, died early Friday of injuries suffered in the mishap.
Robert Montiel, Jr., 16, died in a San Antonio hospital a few hours after the accident. Two other boys, both 16, suffered minor cuts.
Montiel was riding in the trunk compartment of the sedan when it was struck from the rear by an oil truck.
Mrs. Royle Guzman, 22, San Antonio, driver of the automobile and a sister of the boy who was injured fatally, said a cattle truck had passed them and an oil truck, driven by B. F. Dixon, San Antonio, apparently failed to see the car in time.
The car with its 12 occupants also included other members of the Montiel family, some San Antonio friends and two women and a man from Floresville.

SAFETY

Besides Jones, those present were Wilkerson, Commission Secretary Leonard Hall, Warren Hoyle of the publicity committee, E. Kefauver Asks GOP To Bare Policy

WASHINGTON, June 4.—U.S. Sen. Estes Kefauver called on the administration Thursday to "bare" its policy in regard to American intervention in the Indo-China war. He said the administration "tells the people nothing."

Intervention, he said, poses questions of such gravity that it is not only foolhardy but dangerous in the extreme to keep the American people in darkness.

Kefauver said the administration may be "fearful" of telling the people the facts because of the "possible reaction" to more active participation in the Indo-China war, particularly in an election year.

He said, however, there is "no instance when, in the face of danger, either the Congress or the people of the United States ever hesitated to do their duty when they possessed the facts."

Algoa Boy Drowns — ALGOA, Tex., June 4.—UP—Fred Salas, 8, was drowned Wednesday while on a swimming party in a canal near Algoa. Washington Military Talks On Asia Open

By CHARLES M. McCANN, United Press Foreign Analyst. The week's balance sheet between the good and bad news in the hot and cold wars:

THE GOOD
1. High staff officers of the United States, British, French, Australian and New Zealand armed forces started talks in Washington on the military situation in Southeast Asia. The talks are purely military. No political decisions are involved. But they will lay the basis for action if a Southeast Asia security pact against further Communist encroachment is concluded.

2. Japanese Premier Shigeru Yoshida leaves Japan soon for the United States at the start of a world tour. Yoshida is a fast friend of the United States. His visit should strengthen American-Japanese relations. Two other good friends of this country, Premier Adnan Menderes of Turkey, and Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, also are here on friendship-strengthening visits like Yoshida's.

3. The prospect for ratification of the European Defense Community pact, which is to bring German troops into the Western defense set-up, was improved. The Socialist party, strongest group in the French parliament, voted at a national congress to support it. So did the popular Republic party, which is nearly as strong. A split developed in the 40-member Italian Monarchist party, which opposed the pact. Some monarchists are forming a new party. It is expected they will support ratification.

Washington Military Talks On Asia Open

By CHARLES M. McCANN, United Press Foreign Analyst. The week's balance sheet between the good and bad news in the hot and cold wars:

THE GOOD
1. High staff officers of the United States, British, French, Australian and New Zealand armed forces started talks in Washington on the military situation in Southeast Asia. The talks are purely military. No political decisions are involved. But they will lay the basis for action if a Southeast Asia security pact against further Communist encroachment is concluded.

2. Japanese Premier Shigeru Yoshida leaves Japan soon for the United States at the start of a world tour. Yoshida is a fast friend of the United States. His visit should strengthen American-Japanese relations. Two other good friends of this country, Premier Adnan Menderes of Turkey, and Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, also are here on friendship-strengthening visits like Yoshida's.

3. The prospect for ratification of the European Defense Community pact, which is to bring German troops into the Western defense set-up, was improved. The Socialist party, strongest group in the French parliament, voted at a national congress to support it. So did the popular Republic party, which is nearly as strong. A split developed in the 40-member Italian Monarchist party, which opposed the pact. Some monarchists are forming a new party. It is expected they will support ratification.

Meyner Puns - What Rain? Gambling Device Pays Off

WASHINGTON (NEA)—New Jersey's young Democratic Gov. Robert B. Meyner showed up with a good line of political hokum on his first visit to Washington since his surprise election.

Being something of a punster, he referred to his election as the "Republican Meyner deviation."

He has been making a lot of speeches since election, he said. At one of them he was photographed openmouthed in front of a restaurant bearing a sign, "Open 24 hours a day."

The Republican legislature had raised the governor's salary last year and bought a new Cadillac, thinking they would be for Republican use, of course, Meyner said he was enjoying both.

He told about the time some rich man had offered to give a million dollars to some college if it would award a degree to his horse. In presenting the diploma, the president of the institution said, "This is the first time we have ever awarded a degree to a whole horse."

Referring to his election as New Jersey's chief executive as having been "in the bag" from the start, Governor Meyner told a story about a man who married a re-calcitrant widow with a bolsterous son. After they were married they went back to the (New Jersey) shore resort where the courting had been done, taking the boy along.

One morning the boy was observed coming in out of the surf. He was asked how he liked his new stepfather. "Just fine," said the boy. "Every morning early he rows me out five miles and lets me swim ashore."

"That's pretty far for a boy of your size. Do you like that?" he was asked.

"Sure," said the boy. "There's nothing to it once you get out of the bag."

Citizens around Wichita, Kan., were recently nonplused when the Boeing aircraft plant paid $1400 for 92 pinball machines which had been seized in raids by the county sheriff.

The Air Force now says that the gambling machines were purchased for the electronic devices in them. These included relay banks, counters, sequence switcher and transformers. As it turned out, this transaction saved around $800 in the salvage of the electronic gear.

One of the more intriguing stories told by Lt. Gen. Kuni Sook, the North Korean pilot who delivered a Russian MIG to the U.S.

The American pledge of allegiance to the U.S. flag needs to have more godliness put into it, according to 11 congressmen. They have presented separate but identical resolutions to amend the pledge. All of the resolutions want the wording changed from "One nation, indivisible" to "One nation, under God indivisible."

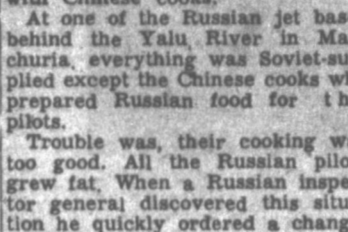

Rep. Louis C. Rabaut (D, Mich.) says of this proposal: "Remember when you hear your own children recite the pledge of allegiance, that these same words as they now stand could come from little Muscovite children standing before the red hammer-and-sickle flag of Soviet Russia."

At one of the Russian jet bases behind the Taku River in Manchuria, everything was Soviet-supplied except the Chinese cooks who prepared Russian food for the pilots.

Trouble was, their cooking was too good. All the Russian pilots grew fat. When a Russian inspector general discovered this situation he quickly ordered a change. He made the Chinese cooks prepare only Korean food. Everyone on the base quickly became streamlined.

LIFE'S A PUZZLE

After 37 years in prison, Lyman William Hall, right, is welcomed to the Salvation Army Industrial Center by Maj. Arvis Hamilton. Hall, who went to prison in 1897 said changes in women and their fashions amaze him most, but he's puzzled by one other thing, "Who the Sam Hill is this fellow McCarthy?" He expects to start life anew by helping others at the Salvation Army's social center in Chicago, Ill.

Trouble was, their cooking was too good. All the Russian pilots grew fat. When a Russian inspector general discovered this situation he quickly ordered a change. He made the Chinese cooks prepare only Korean food. Everyone on the base quickly became streamlined.

Arthur Larson, Undersecretary of Labor, tells the story of the first Soviet-made airplane. "I was talking to a group of South Dakota farmers. I had a very carefully prepared and memorized speech, and delivered it in my best speaking class style."

"After it was all over, I asked one of the farmers in the crowd what he thought of it. 'Well,' he said, 'it wasn't too bad. But a half hour of rain would have done a damn sight more good.'"

The Soviet man is considerate and tender. However, there are people in capitalist countries who want a war in order to murder people and make more money this way.

"We have to be attentive and well-meaning toward our people and the Soviet people. However, we have to behave differently toward the enemy. The little boy was considerate and tender to his small sister. But he was also right when he threw a hand grenade among the Germans."

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

AN UNBROKEN CIRCLE

Take a moment and observe closely the frame of pictures outlining this page. You see church houses of every description and of nearly every denomination. Inanimate as they are, they form a peaceful and glorious circle. No jealousy — no prejudice — no heated debate as to which ought to frame the top of the page!

Rather, each church house seems resigned to the truth that the only valid credential for "circle membership" is to be a House of the Living Lord.

Now — look again, and think! Tragic, isn't it — that the Christian peoples of God's earth don't see the embodied truth of such a circle. May the day soon come when church members will frame the entire world — our fine community included — for Christ. Working shoulder to shoulder — no jealousy — no prejudice — no jockeying for position!

Thus, will "God's Kingdom come on earth as it is in heaven." Thus, will the circle be unbroken.

Pampa's Loss

Pampa is losing two of its most influential citizens, both of them preachers. They are Drs. Douglas E. Nelson and T. M. Johnston.

Dr. Nelson has submitted his resignation as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, effective Aug. 1, and plans to leave shortly afterward to continue study at Princeton University. Dr. Johnston, pastor of the First Methodist Church, has been transferred as director of the superannuate endowment campaign of the Northwest Texas Conference. He left Tuesday for Abilene where he will make his home.

The departure of these two men of the cloth leaves a distinct void in the spiritual and civic life of Pampa. Each has contributed greatly to the welfare of the community.

Dr. Nelson is a forthright man, in and out of the pulpit, dedicated to his chosen profession of preaching the gospel. He is recognized as an authority on the Bible and his interpretations of the teachings of Jesus Christ have aided many of his listeners in finding a better and more complete life.

Dr. Johnston also is dedicated to a life of service in the ministry and his Christian philosophy of life has been an inspiration to his congregation. Outstanding among his many contributions to the church was the development of a flourishing youth program which has gained favor with teen-agers and their elders.

The influence for good of Drs. Nelson and Johnston will be sorely missed in Pampa. They leave with our best wishes for success in their new ventures.

Scare Talk

Heard any new words lately? There's one — it's only about three years old — that's been scaring nervous people recently. It shows up in newspaper headlines frequently.

AUTOMATION: Automatic operation; the theory, art, and technique of making a device or industrial process more fully automatic. That's what the dictionary supplements say about it.

To some, the dictionary definition doesn't say everything. Automation spells unemployment to them. "Look at the newspapers," they'll tell you. "This electronic whoozis will do the work of 25 people. Another one'll replace 100 factory workers. If that doesn't mean unemployment, I'll eat my hat."

"Start eating it, brother," is the honest reply to their fears. And you can say it without fear, because the same nervousness has followed every great technological development since the year One.

In England, for instance, while we were fighting a revolution, people were rioting against new machinery that did work formerly done by hand weavers. They were in revolution, too — the Industrial Revolution.

Starring rioters defended a hand-work system that barely produced enough goods and food to support a meager population, in England and Wales, of about 10 million in 1800. They were used to starvation. They'd had it all their lives, along with filth and ignorance, child labor, 16- or 18-hour work-days, and six-day work-weeks.

Today, in the same parts of Great Britain, 91 million people live at a standard that a duke couldn't have bought at the beginning of the Industrial Revolution.

The simple truth about machinery, used in a free enterprise system, is that it works for all the people. True, it displaces some people. But it opens new jobs for them — operating machinery, servicing it, helping build it, selling its products.

Inventions that do the work of twenty people don't put twenty people out of work — they multiply the amount of goods that one man can produce by twenty times. . . and at the same time lower the cost.

Ruble Value
The Soviet government has given the ruble an official exchange rate of 25 cents. But according to an article by Harry Schwartz in the New York Times, in terms of purchasing power of staple foods the ruble is actually worth less than seven cents.

Mr. Schwartz then makes a comparison between food prices in Moscow and New York — and in evaluating them it must be remembered that the average Soviet worker earns 70 rubles a month. Steak that can be bought for 69 cents in New York sells for $2.27 in Moscow; eggs run 57 cents a dozen and $3.76 respectively; coffee is 99 cents a pound as against $4.83; milk is about 21 cents a quart as compared with 73 cents. The result, Mr. Schwartz says, is that " . . . the average Soviet worker eats mainly grain and cereal products and little meat, butter, sugar and eggs."

Other surveys dealing with clothing, furniture, appliances and so on, have shown similar wide discrepancies between prices in our privately owned and operated competitive retail stores as against the government owned and operated Communist stores.

You might keep this in mind next time you go shopping. Which kind of system does the most for the most people?

Argument
Tradition has a way of hanging on even after it is, for all practical purposes, dead. We in this country still use individualistic terms — as, for instance, the rights of man — when, as a matter of fact, we think and behave in the framework of collective doctrines. We support and advocate such practices as farm-support prices, social security, government housing, socialized medicine, conscription, and all sorts of ideas that stem from the theory that man has no rights except those given him by government.

Despite this growing tendency to look to political power as the source of material betterment and as the guide to our personal destinies, we still talk of limited government, states' rights, checks and balances, and of the personal virtues of thrift, industry, and initiative. Thanks to our literature, the tradition hangs on even though it has lost force.

But there are many Americans to whom the new trend is distasteful, partly because they are traditionalists, partly because they find it personally unpleasant, partly because reason tells that it must lead to the complete subjugation of the individual, as in Nazi Germany or Communist Russia, and they don't like the prospect. It is for these Americans that this book was written. For their opposition to the trend takes the shape of reform, while nothing will turn it but revolution. And by "revolution" I mean the return to the people of that sovereignty which our tradition assumes them to have. I mean the return to them of the power which government confiscated by way of the Sixteenth Amendment.

When you examine any species of government intervention you find that it is made possible by revenues. A government is as strong as its income. Consider the independence of the people is in independence of the people is in direct proportion to the amount of their wealth they can enjoy. We cannot restore traditional American freedom unless we strip the government's power to tax, no tinkering with this, that, or the other law will stop the trend toward socialism. We must repeal the Sixteenth Amendment.

CHAPTER I

Solomon's Yoke
It is told — 1 Kings, Chapter 12 — that the people of Israel petitioned their new king, Rehoboam, to relieve them of the "yoke" his father had suffered them to bear. The "yoke," we learn from the story, was the cost of maintaining the royal establishment. The designation of a levy on the production of a "yoke" is interesting; it shows how keen is the mind unencumbered with taxation. The yoke symbolizes the heaviest burden, who, of course, has no right of property. When the human has produced — which is the essence of income taxation — he is made a slave to the state. Rehoboam promised to take his subjects' plea under advisement. Apparently, he talked the matter over with his ministers. What they said to him is unrecorded, but we can surmise that they strongly advised him against any reduction of the income tax; after all, ministers have to be supported in the style to which bureaucrats always like to be accustomed. So, after shilly-shallying for three days, Rehoboam came to the point and said: "Whereas my father did chastise you with whips, and I will chastise you with scorpions."

Whatever chastisement with scorpions may be, it is certainly not pleasant to the recipient. And that is something you might remember when an agent of the Internal Revenue Department calls you on the carpet for not including in your income-tax return the winnings you made at poker or the grand total of money in a water or a beautician. Things could be much worse with us than they are; we could be chastised with scorpions.

We learn from this biblical story that income taxation is a very old custom. Antiquarians find mention of the practice in the annals of Egypt, as far back as 1580 B.C. In those days, it appears, the grand total of money did not lie on the incomes of public officials; since the latter had nothing of their own to tax — public officials are not producers — their taxable funds consisted of what they had pilfered from the producing public. It was tax farming. There is something to be said in favor of that system. Since the tax collector gets his "cut" first, before turning over the balance to the central government, he can never be accused of accepting bribes; a charge that is sometimes leveled against agents of our Internal Revenue Bureau.

Even evasion of this income tax, by way of false income tax returns, is not a modern invention. Gibbon makes mention of the use of ricks and scourges in ancient Rome, up to the fourth century of the Christian era, to get the truth out of suspected evaders. We have not, at any rate, come to that, although we do see occasional cases of tax dodger in our newspapers.

For something really different and quite startling in the income-tax business, we must again refer to the biblical story. Some of the Israelites were so resentful about the "yoke" that when Rehoboam's chief tax collector, one called Hadram, made his round among them, they unceremoniously met him with such a hail of stones "that he died." This was rather hard on Hadram and his family, and is not to be recommended for agents of the Internal Revenue Bureau. In the latter part of this book — which concerns itself with the immorality of the income tax — more orders and advice will be getting rid of the "yoke" that

National Whirligig... Demos Sharpen Ike-Joe Rift, Hoping Chips Fall Their Way

By RAY TUCER
WASHINGTON — Nothing less than the indictment of Sen. Joe McCarthy on the grounds suggested by Sen. John L. McClellan, possibly the ablest wartime or postwar statesman in the Senate, will prevent the Democrats from charging that the Eisenhower administration dare not challenge his usurpation of executive powers fixed by the Constitution.

It is true that Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr. used that very word in denouncing the McCarthy contention against the right of 2,000,000 federal employees to slip him classified material pertaining to national defense.

But the Democrats note that Brownell's repudiation was only a slap on the wrist, especially in view of McCarthy's subsequent reiteration of his challenge to disloyalty.

THREE LAWS VIOLATED — McCarthy, in the opinion of the McClellan-Symington group, has violated three laws, not merely a presidential directive or the order of a "little bureaucratic boss," as he contends. He has also urged that 2,000,000 people join him in breaking these laws, according to Democratic analysis of the case.

Although McCarthy's defiance of Eisenhower makes 6 shambles of two separate Espionage Acts, the opposition does not base its case on that. It is based on the fact that Brownell's repudiation of McCarthy's charges is in "abysmal silence." Among the pro-McCarthyites is Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen of Illinois, who is chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee. His executive aide, Victor A. Johnson, was formerly McCarthy's administrative

$90 BILLION FOR NOTHING
Ten Years Of U. S. Spending Pays Off In Faithless Allies

By Hon. Paul W. Shafer of Michigan in the House of Representatives.
Mr. Speaker, I have consistently opposed the giveaway programs by which the leadership of this nation has sought to buy the friendship of other nations since World War II. Recent developments in the realm of international affairs have, I believe, fully vindicated the wisdom of that opposition.

An excellent statement of the folly of this program, and of the isolated plight in which this nation finds itself today, is contained in an article by Mr. Constantine Brown in the April 29 Washington Evening Star. Under the heading "The Folly of the Giveaway," Mr. Brown's analysis of this situation:

OUR INTERNATIONAL DIFFICULTIES—NEARLY $90 BILLION WE HAVE SPENT IN LESS THAN 10 YEARS HAS PAID OFF IN ALLIES WHO FAIL US AT CRITICAL TIMES.
Even the wisest thinkers who firmly believed that by spending tens of billions to buy friendships we could weather the international storm caused by the Communists realize today that this country finds itself in unprecedented international difficulties.

Political men in Washington were astounded to read the British premier's speech of April 23. In addressing the Primrose League, a Conservative party organization, he suggested the establishment of links with the USSR, which would convince the Muscovites that the British wish peace, happiness and prosperity to the USSR.

Thus, in a shift of strategy, the Democrats have sharpened and delineated the breach between the "Ike" and "Joe" hoping that the chips will fall their way.

Fair Enough... Editorial Policy Of NY Times, Paper's Publisher Denounced

By WESTBROOK PEGLER (Copyright, 1954, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

NEW YORK — James B. Reston, the chief of the Washington bureau of the New York Times in succession to Arthur Krock, a much better journalist, has written for the editorial page of the Times an unwary essay on Sen. Joe McCarthy. Reston says "McCarthy's prestige is clearly falling, but he must receive credit for certain important results."

McCarthy has a "demonstrated" with appalling clarity what kind of man he is, and "this has not helped his cause." Reston might quite as well have said that the prestige of the Times "is clearly falling" and that McCarthy has caused Arthur Hays Sulzberger its publisher, to demonstrate "with appalling clarity" what kind of man he is. He could have written further with equal truth that this has not helped the cause of either Sulzberger or the Times. On the contrary, in his departure from the old standards which gave the Times dignity and prestige among self-respecting, patriotic citizens, Mr. Sulzberger, who married the daughter of the boss, the late Adolph Ochs, on one way to his dubious distinction in journalism, has spoken out of both sides of his mouth on the subject of honest, unaltered presentation of the news.

In one speech, to the American Association for Education in Journalism at the Graduate School of Journalism at Columbia University, noted that his late father-in-law promised to give all the news in good language, as early as possible, and had impartially without fear or favor. Editorial fervor was to be confined to the editorial page and "the news columns were to be unaltered by the passions of the crusader."

Continuing, Sulzberger said: "Even on the editorial page the Times, in those days, was loath to throw its weight around. Mr. Ochs feared that too much intensity could be seriously affected the reporters' objectivity and that before long editorial biases would show up in the news."

Sulzberger then admitted frankly that he no longer believed that it was possible to give the news without fear or favor, without regard to any party, sect or interest involved. He admitted that this was a heresy against the editorial principle of the old-line New York Times of Adolph Ochs. He traced the emergence of "a new form of journalism, shaped to fit the period, a form equally demanded by the needs of the many and the hitherto unheard-of complexities which confronted the few."

The time had come when the news had to be explained, when interpretation had to go hand-in-hand with the statement of the fact itself.

Here, in effect, is a confession by the publisher that the New York Times has adopted the principle of the German and British newspapers of the 1930's, and of Stalin, Hitler and Mussolini in the years since. In the first war "German propaganda," or "Hun propaganda," was a loathsome name applied to the news from the other side of the line which usually was doctored to about the same extent that the news from London and Paris was poisoned.

They Go Home Busted! Patrons Of Australian Tracks Given Thorough Cleaning Job

By HENRY McLEMORE
SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA — I have just seen my return ticket to my underwear.

This was a precautionary measure after my second trip to a Sydney racetrack.

Tracks in this country are outdoor dry-cleaning establishments with horses. One-day service. Deliver yourself at the 1 o'clock race and you're returned immaculately free of any filthy money at the finish of the 4:30 gallop.

Tracks here don't go in for such folders as pink flamingos, sunken gardens, infield lakes, swans, rick rugs and tapestries. They don't even have parking lots, because if they did they'd have to charge and that would mean the better would go inside with less money to lose. Food is ridiculously low priced. A lobster cocktail is 10 cents, for example. They don't want the player to waste his money in the dining room.

The proprietors of American tracks are babes in the woods when it comes to making it easy for bettors to lose on the track. At home the American has only the pari-mutuel windows and a daily double to aid him. Australians wouldn't stand for such poor service. When they go to the track they want every possible aid in getting rid of their pounds, shillings, and pence.

They have pari-mutuel machines, of course, that neat heatbreaker having been invented by an Australian. At home, two bucks is necessary to make friends with a seller. Here the year-mutuel clerk welcomes bets of five shillings, or about 55 cents.

There is a double going on all the time — first and second, second and third, third and fourth, fourth and fifth, fifth and sixth.

That would seem enough, but it isn't. They have quinquets, that tell of their delight in which one must pick the first two horses to cross the finish line to win. Quinquets players usually have a glassy stare, talk to themselves a great deal, and are frequent visitors to public baths.

Then there are the bookmakers, scores of them. They operate under huge umbrellas, and wear great white leather satchels around their necks in which to store your money. I have been dealing with a Mr. Connolly, a most delightful Irishman. He isn't young any more, and I felt a tug at my heart yesterday when I saw Mr. Connolly bent double under the weight of his satchel, leaving the track.

The bookies, the grandstand area and the members' enclosure will take only win bets, with 10 shillings as the minimum. But in the infield, the bookmakers are hospitality itself, and they make you feel right at home even if you have only two shillings worth of faith in a horse.

To further expedite the separation of a bettor from his money, the management in Australia feeds the bettors less than 15 horses in the starting gate, and many are cluttered with 21, 22 and 23 and hay gourmets.

HOLLYWOOD -- (NEA) -- Movies Without Popcorn: Director shooting "Shadrach" in rich Hungarian tones on the lavish set of Fox's "The Egyptian." Seated on a dais are Michael Wilding as the Pharaoh and Gene Tierney as his sister. Nearly 1000 extras are grouped against the background of the palace for the big CinemaScope scene.

"Hey," yells Curtis to Camera-man Leon Shamroy, "is that vestal virgin in green in the picture?" She is, Shamroy assures him.

The bell sounds for a take and prop men scurry around lighting incense in giant braziers. The ancient Egyptians may have used sandalwood fragrance, but in modern-day Hollywood plain charcoal briquets double as incense in movie epics.

You can perfume the joint and barbecue ham at the same time. A huge scenic cyclorama backdrop covering three and one half walls of an enormous sound stage at MGM brings Scotland to Hollywood in the studio's film version of "Brigadoon."

Before the ruins of an ancient abbey, Gene Kelly and Cyd Charisse are dancing to the playback strains of "From This Day On." Scattered all over the set are sprigs of artificial heather.

It's "this is Hollywood," Mrs. Jones," notes, MGM flew real heather in from Scotland for the first few days of shooting, but decided that artificial heather made in the studio prop shop photographs more like heather than the real article.

Betty Grable and Jack Lemmon are having trouble in a kissing sequence in Columbia's "Stars Were Born." The stars exchange dialog with Marge and Gower's champion, then go into their clinch.

They break and Director H. C. Potter cautions Lemmon not to kiss Betty as though the camera were asleep at the switch. "Jack's new to pictures," comments an observer on the sidelines, as Potter emphasizes that the kiss is to be a peck, not a bear hug.

"New, nothing," says an assistant director looking appreciative at Betty's shape. "He's just a RED-BLOODED BOY."

Kirk Douglas, Paul Lukas and Peter Lorre are playing a key scene in Walt Disney's cartoon film version of the Jules Verne classic, "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea." An enormous replica of the Nautilus, the submarine that Verne dreamed up back in 1870, has been constructed and set upon a hydraulic jack.

Inside the strange ship, furnished in Victorian style, Director Dick Fleisher puts his stars through the script against tanks of weird fish and a fountain that sprays water.

This is the first time this stage has seen flesh-and-blood actors since Jack Webb finished his Dragnet series here and the unit publicity man quips: "All Webb wanted were the facts. All we want is the fiction."

Orchestra leader Leighton Noble, turned actor for "The Country Girl," plays a piano in a living-room set at Paramount.

Noble is supposed to say, "Pretty tune, Frank, remember it?" but instead he says: "Pretty tune, BING, remember it!"

George Seaton, who is directing, yells "Cut!"

It's tough for actors to work with Bing and call him anything but Bing. It's like calling Zsa Zsa Gabor Mary or Bette.

Gene Barry, Sterling Hayden and Gloria Grahame have taken to U-T's back lot for an exterior scene of a small-town church wedding in "The Naked Ape."

FACING FRENCH in the delta are Reds like this prisoner.

The Red River Delta

By FRED SPARKS NKA Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON -- (NEA) --

What is the next battlefield in Indo-China? To win the war the Communists must push the French from the Red River Delta. The troops that crushed Dien Bien Phu, cocky with success, are now facing the delta.

In Hanoi, where any native on the streets after midnight curfew is fair game for armored patrols, French planters sip their cognac and recall that the late Gen. de Lattre de Tassigny said: "He who holds the delta holds the heart of Indo-China."

From the air the delta is a thing of striking beauty, with pagodas and churches, and thatched huts mirrored in placid sheets of paddy water. Eight million Vietnamese, working mud-caked water buffalo, are like a vast, green, growing rice to feed half the country. Shaped like a pointing hand, with the wrist backed into the sea of Tonkin, the delta is a lowland ringed by wild jungles and naked mountains.

Today, in fact, no one "holds" the delta, although it is a French base and the victors of Dien Bien Phu camp in the useless wastes outside.

To stop a modern army there's a "little Maginot Line" spaced at one-mile intervals on the delta's outskirts. The Nazis detoured around the original Maginot Line in France. The Communists ignore this line by slipping through it in peasant garb. Every Red soldier carries civvies as well as chopsticks and can change costumes fast as a chameleon.

There are 60,000 to 100,000 guerrillas already in the delta, taking orders from Communist General Giap's GHQ outside. The French physically occupy only 1300 delta towns, including major cities. The Communists hold 3300 villages and 3000 play both sides.

Airpower is useless against guerrillas in delta towns; you don't bomb a friend's house because a burglar is in his cellar.

When French forces appear, guerrillas bury their arms and innocently "work" the paddies, or would take a million G-men to check this citizenry. When the French move on, not having sufficient troops to garrison every town, the Communists slide back.

Night belongs to communism. French trains and autos are garaged until dawn for snipers would put slugs through windshields and upper berths. The best evening dress is a bullet-proof vest.

Recently, to deny to the French American aid, guerrillas have concentrated on uprooting rails and planting mines between Haiphong, the port, and Hanoi, the arsenal. It takes sweepers four or five hours daily to find and uproot the mines. Traffic seldom rolls before noon.

Even then some mines are missed. While torturing incoming traffic, the Reds have their own outgoing traffic. Much of the rice for General Giap's army is stolen from the delta and carried out by coolie-trains at night. It's like a merchant's employes tapping his till to finance a competitor.

There are fifth columns in all cities. The visiting American, promptly warned that half the hotel employes are guerrillas, tosses all night wishing his mosquito net were steel.

Army posts and police stations in Hanoi are sandbagged and straddled with barbed wire. The Hanoi jail is one prison where the warden locks himself up. The French trust few natives, and a member of the U.S. military mission said: "I sleep with my foot in my mouth to prevent myself talking in my sleep."

HUNTING THE REDS in the paddies is a wet, endless job.

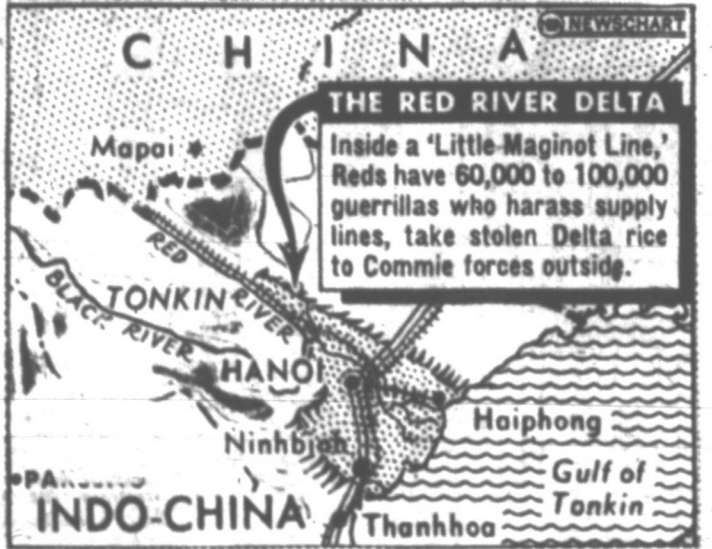

WAITING TO SEE who's ahead, many natives play both sides.

DELTA RICE CROP, enough to feed half of Indo-China, moves on women's shoulders. At night it also filters out to Communists.

ON DELTA'S OUTSKIRTS, forts like this one are spaced at one-mile intervals. But Communists slip through in peasant garb.

INSIDE THE DELTA, shown on map, French hold 1,300 towns, including major cities. But Communist forces hold 3,300 villages.

Gore Needs 25,000 Signers To Force McCarthy Recall

SAUK CITY, Wis., June 4 --UP-- Leroy Gore, founder of the "Joe Must Go" movement, fought a battle against time Friday to collect about 25,000 signatures by midnight Saturday to force the recall of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy.

Gore conceded he has "no more than a grim, fighting chance" to succeed.

He went on the air over a statewide radio network Thursday night to announce that almost 375,000 signatures have been collected on petitions demanding that McCarthy run again for his Senate seat.

But Gore must have 408,904 signatures by midnight Saturday to meet a deadline provided by state law.

"Please let me caution you that we have only a fighting chance to put the recall drive over by twelve, midnight, Saturday," he told his supporters. "I repeat that this is no more than a grim, fighting chance."

Even if the recall drive fails, he said, it will have proved "the job can be done."

"McCarthy is dead," he said. "McCarthyism is dead."

"It is only the reek of the corpse, still hanging heavy in the air, which gives the illusion that it is still alive," he added.

Gore, editor of a weekly newspaper here and a former McCarthy supporter, began his campaign to recall the Senator more than two months ago.

Lions Name New Club Pianist

It was the fourth go-round of five for Sid Patterson and his Dempster Dumpster demonstration at the weekly meeting of the Pampa Lions Club.

A brief explanation of colored film and an after-meeting demonstration of the city's newly-purchased method of trash and refuse disposal by the former Pampa were the highlights Thursday noon in the basement of the First Methodist Church.

Only today's noon meeting of the Pampa Kiwanis Club remained on Patterson's calendar. By Thursday he had already visited the JayCees, Rotarians and Optimists.

Speaking briefly before Patterson, City Mgr. Fred Brook said the purpose of the new sanitation system was the "health, welfare and safety" of the city. "It will help fight disease, fight fire and help beautify the city."

Miss Carol Paxson, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Paxson, 315 N. West, was introduced by Boss Tom Ralphy. Tomorrow the new club pianist, Steve will be Pampa High School senior next year and succeeds Miss Jackie Robertson who was graduated last week.

Rusty Ward handed over the charter of the club's Boy Scout troop to Thomas who, in turn, presented it to Bob Raamussen. Ward gave cards to all members of the club's Boy Scout committee.

Thomas spoke a moment on the club's Americanization class which has disbanded for the summer and labeling it an "inspiration." Homer Craig, club member, is the course instructor. Lion O. K. Gaylor, assistant Pampa postmaster, has the original charter for it.

Cliff Whitney told the club a total of 534 scarves had been prepared by local Lions and their wives for the Lions Crippled Children's Camp, Kerrville. They were sent off the first of the week. Wives of members -- 14 of them -- were special guests at the meeting. Another nine were on hand, including Rev. Woodrow W. Adams, pastor of the First Methodist church pastor, and Don Cain, who is running for county attorney. F. L. Montgomery, new Pampa Port Worth and Denver Railway agent, was inducted as a new member.

GI School Bill OK'd WASHINGTON, June 4 --UP-- The House Veterans committee approved legislation Wednesday to give veterans of the Korean War period two extra years to take training under the Korean GI "bill of rights." Under present law schooling must be started within two years after discharge and finished within seven years after discharge. The bill would change these limits to four and nine years. It must win House and Senate approval to become law.

$70,000 Auto Wreck Suit Filed

A $70,000 damage suit, arising from an automobile accident almost a year ago, was on file today in the office of District Clerk Helen M. Sprinkle.

Titled Anna Callaway and husband vs. Harvest Queen Mill and Elevator Co., the suit alleges Mrs. Callaway was involved June 8 in a collision with a Harvest Queen truck, some 15 miles east of Amarillo on U. S. Hwy. 60.

Seven counts against the driver of the truck were listed in the suit. The Callaways are asking $50,000 for general damages, $15,000 for loss of Mrs. Callaway's services, $4,000 for medical expenses and $1,000 for the car.

Mrs. Callaway was headed west on the highway when the right front of her car collided with the left rear of the truck, which the suit maintains, was either stopped or backing up. Mrs. Callaway was said to have suffered bruises, lacerations and fractures.

Patrolman Harold Roderick said Rico was shot twice when he tried to use a knife in the fight. One bullet entered his stomach, the other his chest. His condition was "fair."

Bakery Strike Looms DALLAS, June 4 --UP-- Threat of a strike loomed Thursday at nine major Dallas bakeries which supply large amounts of bread to the surrounding area. Home Called Filling Station

SAN FRANCISCO, June 4 --UP-- Dr. Arthur L. Beits, a Los Angeles psychologist, says the American home is becoming more and more a "filling station" where children are "tanked up with money, food and clothing--and very little else."

Beits told the general conference of Seventh Day Adventists Thursday that parents should teach their children "to love in the home and they will find it easy to carry that influence into their adult home lives."

"Religion that puts full emphasis on pure doctrine, authority, pessimistic viewpoints and mere austerity, and leaves out the concept of a loving God cannot produce happy homes," he said.

Beits said California leads the nation in broken homes and in that category, the United States and Russia lead the world. He said factors leading to a high divorce rate are moral laxity, materialism and indifference to religion.

Carrier Skipper Flooded With Letters Of Sympathy

QUONSET POINT, R.I., June 4 --UP-- Capt. William F. Raborn Jr., skipper of the fire-wrecked carrier Bennington, is trying to navigate through an ocean of mail. Since explosions and fire swept his ship killing 101 men last week, Raborn's cabin has been flooded by 40,000 letters, postal cards, cables and telegrams from throughout the world.

Johnny Ray Makes Debut On Celluloid

By ALINE MOSSBY HOLLYWOOD, June 4 --UP-- Johnny Ray is before the cameras for his movie debut but the famous swoon singer isn't crying or beating his fists on the floor.

Ray is making his entrance into movie as a serious dramatic actor, and he hopes the customers will do all the crying this time.

"I only sing one song, a spiritual, in the picture. It's a straight role," explained Johnny. "I don't cry or kneel or anything like that."

"But in one scene where I said good-bye to my mother and father, they told me there wasn't a dry eye on the set," he added proudly.

For his first picture 20th Century-Fox studio cast its new star in a musical, "There's No Business Like Show Business." Johnny, Mitzi Gaynor and Donald O'Connor portray the children of vaudevillians Dan Dailey and Ethel Merman.

"Johnny isn't worried that his fans will be disappointed to find his voice is second-fiddle to his acting. "I've always wanted to do serious acting," he said. "These people at the studio know what they're doing and I do what they tell me to do. I have confidence in their decisions. My part isn't big and it isn't small, but I like it."

Actually Ray appeared in a short subject at Columbia studio three years ago, "but I don't consider that my debut. I just sang a song." Fox signed him a year ago with the idea of doing his life story, but shelved the plan.

Ray will not wear his hearing aid on the screen. But acting with groups of players didn't stymie the singer, who is virtually deaf.

"I just memorized everybody's lines," he said. "I rehearse once with the hearing aid, once without and we shoot it without. It's a matter of timing while the other actors speak I say their lines to myself. I thought it would be hard but it worked out fine."

"Ethel and Dan have been wonderful, making suggestions and giving me advice. I was nervous at first, but Dan told me to relax and be myself."

Daily and Ray have become such pals, in fact, that one night when they went nightclubbing with actress Charlotte Austin, all three wore hearing aids.

Foxworth-Galbraith Lmbr. Co.'s Answer To The Grain Storage Problem Under current price support laws, farmers must find suitable storage space for their crops to qualify for federal subsidies. Storage space is at a premium. There is an estimated 280 million bushel shortage of storage space! Don't lose part of your crop... don't be caught short of storage space. Build your own building with Rilco Rafter. Or we will erect it for you. The post-free Rilco building can later be used as machine shed, barn, utility building, etc. Strong Rilco glued laminated wood rafters are delivered shaped, cut to length, drilled for connection hardware furnished. Rilco buildings go up fast with a minimum of labor and expense. Average storage cost is only about 25 cents a bushel. A Rilco building can pay for itself in as little as three years. A storage loan covers 80% of the cost of the building above foundation. For tax purposes building cost can be written off in five years. Can You Afford Not to Build? We have free plans and will gladly quote you the price for the size building you need. We think you'll be surprised at the low cost! FOXWORTH-GALBRAITH LUMBER CO. 214 E. TYNG PHONE 4-7433

"Fido's digging up and taking inventory of his leftovers from last winter!"

Jimmy Durante is back at the old stand — the Copa — and the piano parts are flying as saucily as ever. Jimmy's old routines never change, but who'd want them to? Even his ad libs have that ring of delightful familiarity, as when he greets a late-arriving, beautiful gal with: "If the ice box was empty, what a snack that would be."

On the bill with Jimmy is a young tenor named Val Valente, a big voiced youngster who sings up a storm, or at least a pretty fair squall. Val hails from Hoboken, N. J., right across the river, and this is his first big New York engagement. He says almost all of Hoboken has come over to see him — one night he had to make a reservation for 35 assorted cronies.

Success has come to Val Valente — and brought friends.

CBS-TV has a new show coming, called "Two In Love," with Bert Parks as the MC. The spotlight will be on honeymoon couples, and people who helped the romance along will speak of their contributions, and everybody will march down the aisle amid a shower of conubial quiz questions. Maybe they should call it "This Is Your Wife."

Every night, at somewhere around 11:05 p.m., a taxicab careens wildly through midtown Manhattan. In the back seat, a lovely blonde tootles away on a pitch pipe and sings something that sounds like wab-wah-wah. This may seem odd the first time you see it, but ever after it's just like any other blonde tootling on a pitch pipe in a taxicab at 11:05 p.m.

What is happening in that hack is that Edith Adams is warming up her TV voice. She is just left "Wonderful Town" at 11:03 or 11:07 (depending on the audience — "if it's a good audience we ham it up and it takes four minutes longer"). She's on her way to the DuMont TV studio, where she does a nightly local New York show with a funny guy named Ernie Kovacs.

Miss Adams is one of those rarities — a gal who hit show business fame through a contest. She was "Miss U.S. Television" a few years back.

"That was the Year of the Contests for me," she says. "I entered every one I found. I'd been studying serious singing, and Helen Jepson gave me some advice. Be flashy. I dressed flashy and I sang the flashiest number I knew — 'Love Is Where You Find It.' That song makes a voice seem better than it is."

Actually, Edie has a lovely voice. In fact, two lovely voices. And she has to make up her mind which one she'll use. "I don't know whether to be a coloratura," she says, "or to breathe into the mike and sing pops."

This double gift can be confusing. Her big number in "Wonderful Town" is a song she's done 500 times, and she's still not certain she's doing it right. "And I've tried it in four different keys," she says.

Maybe what she needs is a different cab driver.

Perhaps you won't envy the glamorous life of the stage so much after you read this story. It's about an actor who appeared in one of the all-time hit musical comedies a year or so ago, and played in it for its entire run. After it closed, he had a tough time getting another part. Finally he landed a spot on a big TV dramatic show.

When the performance was over, the star of the show said, "Hey, let's all go across the street for a drink." Our hero had to decline — he only had 15 cents in his pocket.
