Liquidation of the Petroleum Administration for Defense, which kept government relations with the bil and gas industries on a harmonious keel during the Korean war, is taking more time than expected, it was disclosed Saturday.

When finally abolished, PAD's duties, but not its arbitrary powers, will be taken over by the Interior Department's oil and gas did vision. The powers will de as PAD died. They will include authority to allocate scarce oil and gas field goods and to impound for the military whatever products were essential to the national defense.

Deputy PAD Administrator Joseph A. LaFortune moved swittly to close the agency's doors after the Korean war ended, but his Jan. 1 target date bumped into so many obstacles he had to move it back.

As of now it appears the National Petroleum Council's recommendations for closing the agency will be adopted. This is up to Secretary of the Interior Douglas Mckay. In the past he has followed NPC suggestions. NPC suggestions.

pens, however, is contingent upon stockholder approval.

Sound Out Powers
Customary practice in sales or mergers of this type is to sound out major stockholders to see if they will go along. Queen Julians may already have registered her opinion.

What form the Hudson Nash agreement — if there is one—may take is problematical.

George W. Mason, president of Nash has said "working agreements" among independent auto firms short of actual merger of assets and administration might be the answer to the competitive challenge of the "big three" — General Motors, Ford and Chrysler.

Under this system, which probably would not need sockholder son outnight in the same fashion approval two or more smaller auto companies could exchange parts, on the could be the same fashion that Kaiser bought Willys early this year and Chrysler Corp, purchased Eriggs Masufacturing, the biggest independent body maker, full financial to the cars last year.

A full financial merger as equals a possibility. Supporting this is President A. E. Barit's statement that Hudson will not lose its identity in any arrangement.

However, a look at the assets of the two corporations would indicate Nash would be the "strong partner." Its assets of close to $250 million are about double those of Hudson.

Some financial circles believe that fa deal is announced it will be that Nash has purchased Hudson will not need sockholder son outnight in the same fashion that Kaiser bought Willys early this year and Chrysler Corp, purchased Eriggs Masufacturing, the biggest independent body maker, full fast in the first of each care.

But the CIO and, in a more moderate tone, the AFL, last week contended that the job situation actually is worse than the govern-

Census Bureau experts who draw up the figures conceded that there may be a "little" hidden unemployment in them. But they said the CIO's arguments, at least, were "exaggerations."

Union officials said that they are worried not only about the "rapid" rise in unemployment this winter from record low levels last fall but also about the drop in overtime work and the rash of temporary lay-offs in the auto and transportation industries. All these factor affect buying power, they pointed out, and the demand for goods

New Ism Is Born

Ever since the Communist newspaper, The Daily Worker, coined the word "McCarthyism," the Wisconsin junfor senator's name has been anothema to everyone with a vested interest in withholding from the public the facts of Communist subversion in our national life.

The nasty word has been bandied about, too, by many well-meaning people who believe that while the senator's aims may be all right, his methods are all wrong. Some members of McCarthy's Republican Party are in the latter group, and one of the most interesting speculations in connection with the celebrated Harry Dexter White affair is the theory recently advanced by a Washington commentator that Attorney General Brownell's target, in divulging the facts of the White Case, was not former President Truman, but Senator McCarthy.

According to this intriguing, if somewhat peculiar theory, the purpose of Mr. Brownell's Chicago speech was "to prove to the American people, and the Republican Party, that the Eisenhower administration is capable of handling the problem of subversion and espionage In government without benefit of Senator Joseph R. Mc-Carthy of Wisconsin."

If this indeed was the strategy in bringing the White case out in the open, it may be said to have succeeded, for the affair definitely was not the controversial Mc-Carthy's show. But did that satisfy the folk who admit Communism is a menace but insist that McCarthyism is worse? Not at all. The rancor formerly reserved for the senator was promptly transferred to the Attorney General. And while former President Trumon called the whole incident McCarthyism, it remained for the prominent New Deal Democrat Averall Harrima in a television broadcast, to castigate the GOP with a brand new word invented for the occasion: "Brownellism"

It begins to appear after all that it hasn't been the methods of Communist exposure that have been so hysterically feared in some quarters, but the exposure itself.

The Dam Craze -

It is no secret that certain people in government, as well as out of it, are eager to build high-priced dams on practically every river in the country. The usual argument is that this is needed in the sacrosanct names of flood control and land conservation - though, in many cases, the main goal is a tax-subsidized, tax-tree electric power plant which would advance the cause of socialism another step.

In any event, the citizens of Franklin county, Idaho, recently gave a practical demonstration of the wastefulness of the "federal dam craze" - and they deserve the praise of every taxpaver in the country and all who believe that local problems should be solved by local action whenever possible.

A river had been washing away great quantities of irreplaceable Franklin county topsoil. Federal "experts" came in, spent some $30,000 on a survey, and announced that the solution lay in a $500,000 dam.

This seemed absurd to Franklin county people. They hired an engineer and developed plans for financing the dam locally, and using local materials and labor. Individuals made donations running from one dollar to $200. Merchants, dairies, form implement dealers, a power company, a railroad, and other businesses contributed. The dam was built — at a cost of less than $40,000, which was only about $9,745 more than the federal "experts" had spent on a preliminary estimate, and only 8 per cent of what the federal dam would have

Put And Take

Advance jubilation over Uncle Sam's New Year's gift of a cut in income tax of about 11 per cent (which seems a pretty healthy slice) is going to mean a "morning - after" for a good many people . . . if Congress allows Uncle to keep that piece of Social Security pie he cut for himself on New Year's Day.

In the lowest income brackets, that increase in the Social Security tax (that you pay yourself) from 1.5 to 2 per cent more than wipes out the benefit of the income tax cut. For instance, a single individual earning $660, on which he pays no income tax, pays $3.30 more for Social Security. If he earns $880.00 he pays $4.22 less income tax and $4.40 more on Social Security - for a net loss of eighteen cents.

Married couples earning up to $1,780 a year are losers in the tax switch, as are those with one child and making up to $2,670. Those with two children have to make over $3,500 before they can win.

And then too, this tax juggling will cost Uncle five billion dollars in revenue . . . which he may need. So maybe you'll have to reach in your other pocket for that - in the form of a tax we don't know anything about - yet.

It sees no way for much further reduction in taxes, yet failure to make such reduction would be both contrary to its stated purpose when it took office and would make unavailable the added incentive and capital necessary at this stage of our economy.

Nor does it do the administration too much good to point out that we would have been even worse off under the policies of the previous administration. What this nation needs is a sound economy, not a lesser degree of an unsound economy.

omy. This situation is, of course, all the more complicated by the actuality of a slight recession in business and the possibility of a more decided recession. It has now become the accepted procedure of political leadership—and the present administration seems to be no exception—to plan to meet a substantial recession. By WHITNEY BOLTON

William Jones, 47, has been sentenced to 80 days in jail in the first case on record of drunken driving of a motorized boardwalk pleasure chair.

Municipal Judge Stephen A. Damico sentenced Jones Friday on a plain charge of drunkenness when no law could be found putting his offense in the category of drunken driving.

Jones was arrested after he drove his chair through a plate

I am always alone. My daughter always says they are invited to her husband's family and so they accept, I wish that they would include me but they never do. What would you do about this, Grace Friend?

I am so lonely and need something to fill my time.

I don't need the money but I have been asked to stay with an elderly lady for a while as she is not well. Would you accept?

A quick way to forget our own loneliness and unhappiness is to be busy doing something for others. If the work is not too hard for you, then by all means stay with your friend until she feels better. You will be amazed at how much better you will feel yourself if you are busy.

And when the next holiday comes along, Easter, shall we say, why not plan a dinner for your daughter and her family. Get your invitation to them early so that tee. they won't have made other plans. Since you can afford it, hire a woman to come and help prepare and serve the dinner. If your house is large enough, invite your son-in-law's parents too.
