WEST TEXAS — Cloudy Tuesday night and Wednesday. Occasional rain Tuesday night and Wednesday, snow in Panhandle Tuesday night. Lowest 23-22 Tuesday night.

Ike Forces Going All Out To Back Farm Price Plan

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 — Administration forces went all out Tuesday to put over President Eisenhower's "flexible" farm price plan in the face of determined opposition from high price support advocates of both political parties. Democrats, with one notable exception, attacked the program almost as soon as it was submitted to Congress Monday. They were joined by a few outspoken Republican supporters of the present system of high level and rigid price props on basic farm products.

But the administration let it be known it is prepared to fight for the flexible idea. The "aiding scale" price support plan proposed by Mr. Eisenhower drew powerful support in and out of Congress. Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson went on the air Monday night to tell the nation the President's program "will work" — and the present program is not working and cannot work. He planned to plug hard for the program in speeches before farm groups in Chicago Tuesday night and in Colorado Springs, Colo., Wednesday.

The nation's largest farm organization, the American Farm Bureau Federation, came out strongly for the President's plan. But the National Grange was "disappointed" at some provisions and the National Farmers' Union announced its opposition to all but the wool and stockpile provisions.

While congressional reaction to the plan cut across party lines, most of Republicans who would comment came to the support of the President.

Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt.), chairman of the Senate Agriculture committee, had an enthusiastic "flexible" man, planned to begin hearings Monday. He said he "hopes" the committee will send a price support bill to the Senate floor for debate by March 1.

'Grass Roots' Ideas Given On Farm Plan

Oklahoma Farmer Groups Encourage Present Supports

ENID, Okla., Jan. 12 — UP — The House agriculture committee Tuesday got a sample of what "grass roots" farmers think of President Eisenhower's new farm program.

The traveling committee met here to learn the sentiments of Oklahoma farmers in its first session since the President's message to Congress Tuesday outlining a flexible price support program for six basic commodities and livestock.

Oklahoma's two biggest farm groups gave advance notice that they were in favor of the present mandatory 90 per cent of parity supports, plus additional price supports for farm products.

Homer Duffy, president of the Oklahoma Farmers Union, in a prepared statement for delivery before the congressional group, said any legislation which would reduce prices below the current guaranteed level would be "intolerable and completely unjust."

Duffy's statement said the farmers union, representing 50,000 families, also wants mandatory price supports for livestock at 90 per cent of parity and supports for other farm commodities.

Lewis Munn, president of the Oklahoma farm bureau, which opposes price supports for cattle, indicated in a prepared text that his organization wants a program of government beef buying.

The farm bureau also favors the present 90 per cent supports on basic commodities of wheat, cotton, corn, peanuts, tobacco, rice. However, Munn said the state group would go along with the parent American Farm Bureau Federation which has approved the flexible plan.

Hearing at Waco
The committee hearing was scheduled to last all day. The legislators will go to Waco, Tex., Wednesday and to Memphis, Tenn., Thursday before returning to Washington.

Other recommendations in Duffy's advance statement included: Expansion of the school lunch program; restoration of funds for the National Conservation Service; expanded credit from the Farmers Home Administration; and continuation of REA co-operatives and municipal owned power projects as opposed to private ownership.

to finance her triumphant return to Texas on horseback.

She didn't take more than three months that Kim was found living in the woods 16 months ago. She convinced some people she had left a wandering tribe of "white Indians" near the Yukon and made her way south.

But a device of paleface civilization betrayed her. An alert sheriff discovered her real name — Yvonne Hanks — on her brassiers.

Police records showed that she was listed as a runaway. Her father, Richard Hanks, who runs a tavern here, went to Texas and brought her home.

However, a taste of Texas was all Kim needed. She loves the wide open spaces and is determined to go back there to live, on a ranch.

Already she has her black riding habit, her hood and saddle and, what is more important, her horse. The horse, gift from an aunt, is a registered Morgan bay named Honey. For protection on the 1,900-mile trip Kim will take along her Collier, Shaitan.

"I didn't have any trouble when I hitch-hiked last time," Kim said, "and I don't expect any this time."

Plans for the army include three offices, two classrooms, a large assembly hall, a locker room, two baths, a kitchen, a supply room and a vault. At present, the Guard has its office in the State Highway Patrol office and holds its weekly drill meetings in the VFW hall.

An expected cold snap failed to reach the Lower Rio Grande Valley Tuesday but forecasters warned that snow, sleet or rain will fall over the entire state Wednesday.

Heaviest Snow In Five Years Hits East Coast

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 — UP — A second snowstorm threatening the mid-Atlantic seaboard blew out to sea off Virginia Tuesday and left eastern cities to dig out of the heaviest snowfall in five years.

As the first snow storm, which began Sunday, dissipated early Tuesday morning, the weatherman said the coastal states would see biting winds and sub-freezing temperatures during the day.

Authorities blamed the snow storm for at least 47 deaths from Maine to the Carolinas.

The layer of snow, up to 15 inches deep in some areas, posed a costly removal problem in major eastern population centers. The expense of shoveling snow off the streets in New York alone was estimated at $100,000 for each inch of snow — almost $1 million.

New England and the Middle Atlantic states were hardest hit by the storm. Elsewhere the Rockies temperatures were 10 w and winds were strong but snow was confined mostly to flurries.

In Washington, D.C., seven deaths were counted as a result of the storm, including five cases of heart failure from over exertion. Public schools in the nation's capital were closed Monday as the snow reached depths ranging up to seven inches.

Philadelphia
Philadelphia was buried under 10 inches of snow and the city joined the local transit company in hiring extra crews to clear the streets.

At least 13 persons died in Pennsylvania, including four cases of heart failure brought on by snow-shoveling.

Guard Seeks Bids On Pampa Army
A five-year dream of Pampa's National Guard unit is nearing reality with notice received Monday by Capt. Charles L. Robinson, post commander, that bids on the new armory will be advertised Jan. 15.

Thirty days later, on Feb. 14 or 15, the bids will be opened, and the winning contractor notified. Approval from Washington must then be obtained before actual construction can begin, Robinson advised.

However, the contractor can be making arrangements and will have 120 days to complete construction after approval is received. The armory is to be built in Recreation Park on the land donated by the city.

"We hope to get in by July," Robinson stated. He added that the armory is not a definite thing yet. "Anything can stop it until it's completed."

Plans for the armory include three offices, two classrooms, a large assembly hall, a locker room, two baths, a kitchen, a supply room and a vault. At present, the Guard has its office in the State Highway Patrol office and holds its weekly drill meetings in the VFW hall.

Woman Is Pinned Under Mate's Body
AUBURN, Calif., Jan. 12 — UP — A 73-year-old paralyzed woman was pinned almost three days beneath the body of her husband, who had died of a heart attack, it was disclosed Tuesday.

Mrs. Maude Wallrab was recovering in a hospital from her ordeal during which she had no food or water.

She said her husband suffered a spasm and fell across her on the bed Friday night.

TWELVE DEAD — State troopers search wreckage of amphibious plane which crashed and burned near Shreveport, La., Sunday killing all aboard. Tom E. GOP Denies Ike's Plan Is Anti-Labor

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 — UP — A greater voice in critical decisions affecting their paychecks. Republican supporters of the Taft-Hartley law disagreed Tuesday with opponents' charges that President Eisenhower's proposal that the government start conducting strike votes was anti-labor.

They said the plan is anything but anti-labor because it actually gives rank-and-file union members

introduces Bill
The controversy came in the wake of Mr. Eisenhower's message to Congress on the administration's recommendations for amending the Taft-Hartley act. He sent the 14-point program to the Capitol Monday and Chairman H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.) immediately introduced a bill to carry it out.

Republican congressmen generally applauded the program while northern Democrats were critical. Reuther and President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers roundly condemned it for failing to remove the "anti-labor" character of the Taft-Hartley law.

Although the AFL with held immediate comment, the head of its building and construction trades department said the construction industry were "well-intentioned" but meaningless.

Attention on Strike Plan
But of all the points in the President's program, it was the surprise plan for government-sponsored strike votes that drew the most attention.

Smith's bill provided for a vote, under National Labor Relations Board supervision, "after" the strike was under way.

NNRC Rejects Plan To Free Anti-Commies

TOKYO, Jan. 12 — UP — The United States agreed Tuesday to discuss with the Communists Thursday the possibility of resuming negotiations for a Korean peace conference.

In a second major development the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission rejected a Swedish proposal to release 22,000 anti-Communist civilians at 12:05 a.m. Jan. 23 as provided by the armistice.

India voted with the Communists against the Swedish proposal. But it is expected that the Indians will announce Thursday a plan of their own under which both anti-Communist and pro-Communist prisoners now in neutral custody will be handed back on Jan. 23 to the side which captured them.

U. S. State Department Far East expert Kenneth Young sent a note to the Reds proposing a meeting of liaison secretaries a few minutes after he received authorization from Washington.

The note was dispatched to North Korean negotiator Ki Sok Bok and Red Chinese delegate Huang Hua, whose insulting remarks about the United States had caused preliminary talks to be broken off Dec. 12.

Young, who was left in Korea by U.S. negotiator Arthur H. Dean to deal with the Reds if they apologized, said he did not know whether the charge of American treachery had been withdrawn.

Young said he did not know whether the result would be discussed at the meeting Friday.

"We have to know what the conditions are under which we will resume the talks," Young said. "We know what our conditions are. We don't know theirs."

Young indicated the UN command might continue to insist on an apology but said "I'm afraid I can't when asked to elaborate on U.S. conditions for resumption of the preliminary talks.

Man Charged For Murder Of Soldier

CANADIAN — Army authorities from Fort Sill, Okla., were expected to arrive in Canadian late Tuesday to identify the body of Pfc. Edward G. Meyer, 24, who died in Hemphill County Hospital here Saturday after being severely beaten in a Tucumcari, N. M., motel Friday night or early Saturday morning.

Sheriff Clyde Rialley said that Army officials were to take the body to Fort Sill, where funeral arrangements will be made.

Meanwhile, charges of murder were filed Monday in Tucumcari against Milton Carl Justus, 24, a hitchhiker from Lawhouska, Okla., who signed the fatal beating of the Fort Benning, Ga., soldier who had been enroute to the Presidio of San Francisco, Calif.

According to Justus' statement, he met Meyer in Tucumcari and Meyer invited him to let him ride with him to Arizona. However, the two men spent the night in a motel and when an argument ensued, they fought and Meyer received severe cuts from blows administered by Justus with a whiskey bottle.

Justus drove Meyer's automobile to Miami, where a service station operator saw Meyer on the back seat of the car and notified authorities. Justus was arrested in Canadian Saturday afternoon and Meyer died that day at 4:10 p.m.

GI Killed Trying To Flee Stockade

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Jan. 12 — UP — Camp Carson officials Tuesday admitted that a South Dakota soldier awaiting court martial was shot to death Sunday night "while attempting to escape" from the stockade.

After nearly 96 hours Camp Carson officials gave out sketchy details in which they said Pfc. Richard W. Gillings, 24, of Academy, S. D., was shot to death while attempting to scale a fence.

Officials said Gillings was ordered to stand general court martial for "falling asleep some time ago while guarding prisoners." They said he attempted to escape Sunday night shortly after the evening meal and was shot while trying to climb a fence that encircles the stockade where he was confined.

Officials could not offer details about the shooting, except to say he was shot by guards. One official, who asked not to be identified, said he understood "unofficially" that Gillings was killed with a shotgun.

Commission Finishes Off Busy Session

Today's agenda for the Pampa City Commission had 14 items on it, but commissioners polished the whole thing off in 1 1/2 hours.

Two ordinances were passed on their third and final readings. They will become law after they are published twice.

They concern the regulation of explosives within the city limits and the restriction of building for 40 feet east of Hobart Street between the Santa Fe Railroad tracks and Francis Street.

Commissioners voted a one-year maintenance contract for Catholic Equipment Company, Tulsa, Okla., in the amount of $1,325.

City Manager B. H. Cruce explained that cathodizing will prevent rust in the city's seven water tanks which have been out of use. Also it'll eliminate painting, he said.

City Attorney Bob Gordon was directed to draw up an ordinance, with the help of Cruce and City Director of Public Works James Cowan, on an established truck route through the city. Cruce said complaints have been received on the matter and that trucks are missing most Summer, Dwight and Faulkner.

A discussion of center-street parking on Cuyler, Foster and Kingsmill brought forth the fact that many a passenger car has been doing what was designed for trucks alone. One man told Mayor Tom Rose that he had almost hit a child because of two cars parked in the center of the street. No action was taken, however.

Cruce told the commission that Paul Camp, 400 Louisiana, would like the city either to sell to him or to maintain a plot of land next to his near the Garland-Yeager-Louisiana intersection. That plot was originally designated as a street. Action was deferred.

Commissioners considered, but took no action on, the matter of the street that runs in front of the county dual-purpose barn, now being constructed in Recreation Park. How big to keep it was the subject brought to Cruce's attention by Irvin Cole, member of the joint city-county Recreation Park Committee which made arrangements for the county barn.

The Commission also decided to place the city legal advertising for the coming year with The Daily Spokesman. It was generally agreed that such advertising should be alternated every year between it and The Pampa News.

In addition, the commission approved $21,028.93 in monthly bills and $46.34 in library bills; passed on a time deposit of $24,000 for nine months (interest, 2 1/2 per cent); and passed on its second reading an ordinance on the new Lamar addition — there was a typo mistake in the original ordinance.

Scout Council Due To Meet Thursday

Policy and money those will be the two major items of discussion at the annual Boy Scouts' Adobe Walls Council planning conference.

Get-together is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Palm Room of City Hall, according to Phil Pegues, Santa Fe District Scout executive.

Purpose of the affair, Pegues said, is to set up the policy — the broad, general program — for 1954 and to determine the amount of money that'll be required to carry out that program.

"If the weather's not too bad," he continued, more than 70 Scouts-ers from the council's 12 Texas and three Oklahoma counties are expected to be on hand, 30 of them from this district.

The gathering will divide into seven sections, Pegues pointed out.

Dirt Loader Bids Called For Feb. 10

Bids will be opened at 10 a.m. Feb. 10 in the county courtroom for a 1/2-cubic-yard dirt loader.

That's the same date that Wayland Merriman, consultant engineer for the Gray County Commissioners' Court, is expected to have road and bridge plans ready for discussion by the commissioners.

The court, meeting Monday afternoon, made the decision on the self-propelled dirt loader.

Commissioners also passed a motion that all land consisting of right-of-way which has been turned over to Gray County by the Texas Highway Commission will be sold to anyone who wants it, on terms mutually agreeable to the court and the purchaser.

In other action, the court:

(1) authorized two contracts for Merriman: one, for two steel buildings and various small road projects and the other, for bridge work and certain highway improvements.

(2) okayed a contract with West Construction Company, Borger, for construction of a concrete extension to a box culvert, four miles south of Pampa, on a site known as "Mears Lake," on the Bowlers City Road.

(3) approved a contract with B. R. Cantrell, local architect, for architectural and engineering services in the renovation of the heating and electrical wiring systems of the Court House.

(4) okayed a new bond — larger than before — for County Tax Assessor-Collector Jack Back; and

(5) amended several budget items, including the improvement in the quarters of District Judge Lewis M. Goodrich.

McLean Takes Pair From Clarendon 5s

McLEAN, Jan. 12 — (Special) — McLean swept both basketball games from Clarendon Monday night, the boys winning 46-28 and the girls 48-46. Both were District 1-A games.

The win gave the McLean boys a 17-1 record for the year. Their lone loss occurred in their own invitational tournament in December.

All District 1-A teams will play a single round robin schedule with a district tournament to follow. Winner of the season schedule and the tournament will meet in "play-off" for the district title. If one team wins both, then no playoff will be necessary.

Charges Pending On Ainesworth

Charges of forgery still had not been filed this morning against Doris Ainesworth, one of two wives of James Gene Ainesworth, who claims to be Jimmie Capone, brother of the late Al Capone.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Ainesworth are lodged in Gray County jail here. He is being held for Army authorities on charges that he escaped from the prison stockade at Fort Sill, Okla., in August, 1952.

Sheriff Rufus Jordan said this morning that forgery charges probably would be filed against the woman sometime today. She has admitted forging checks in Gray and Potter counties and in Illinois and Indiana, the sheriff stated.

Poll Tax Rule Exception Told

Those from out-of-state who entered Texas after Jan. 1, 1953, and will have been here a year before election can get away without paying a poll tax.

County Tax Assessor-Collector Jack Back mentioned this point late this morning, realizing that many persons assume they have to pay that $1.75 poll tax to vote.

But he emphasizes that those out-of-staters must apply for an exemption. It takes either a poll tax receipt or an exemption to vote.

Last day that anyone can get his poll tax receipt is Jan. 30. Back reiterated. Any time after that date is too late.

Possessive Jealousy Eliminates Peace

By MURIEL LAWRENCE
Neil's mother writes, "He's always been able to count on me. After his father died, we stayed together, although I had to put him in a day nursery while I worked."
This means that Neil's mother worked very hard to keep them together. It means that in his early childhood, day in day out, she rose, dressed herself and Neil, prepared their breakfasts, took him to the day nursery, and then went to work.
It means that at the end of the day, the routine was reversed, and there was also shopping to do, supper to be made and a child to put to bed. It means there were interminable evenings for the battles with physical exhaustion, discouragement and self-pity.

Now, at 14, accustomed to counting on his mother, Neil is shocked and angry that she wants to marry again.
"I suppose it's only natural for him to hate the idea," she writes. "Sometimes I think I'm not strong enough to go through with this marriage. Although I love this man, don't you think I should put him out of my life for the sake of peace?"

What I think is that possessive jealousy, whether it claims mothers who begrudge love to their sons or sons who begrudge it to their mothers, is an evil thing. However, Neil's mother does not think so, or she would not have written for help. So she must not act on my thoughts. We cannot deal firmly or kindly with possessive jealousy if we fear it or sympathize with it.

Just as his grip on a parent can make a child ashamed of his love for someone else, it can make Neil's mother ashamed of her love for the man who wants to marry her. Under such a circumstance, love becomes something else. As to peace, we don't get it by putting love out of our lives. For these three people, it will be gotten only by a united effort to put possessive jealousy out of their lives.

One day, not too distant, Neil will want for himself the kind of love he is denying his mother. Do we want him to marry his girl without self-reproach?

Do we want him to feel free to be a man as well as a son? What kind of example in growth are we giving him by refusing to grow ourselves? Isn't this our chance to begin to open this closed corporation of mother and son to take in others?

Neil will believe in the goodness of our marriage if we do. If we really want to marry as much as we think we do, we and our boy can look forward to quite a time working out that peace from possessive jealousy.

Pampa MOD Mothers' Attend Amarillo Tea

Five workers in the Pampa Mothers' March of Dimes attended the Amarillo tea in Amarillo, Texas, to meet and discuss with the March of Dimes workers of Amarillo. Mrs. Beatrice Wright, New York, who was herself a polio victim during the epidemic in Detroit four years ago, was the guest speaker and helped clarify the workers the objectives of their Polio Drive.

A film was shown of the new serum which has been developed and which is to be used in an experimental way on selected children this year. "Second grade children have been chosen," Mrs. Wright explained, "because polio most often strikes the six to ten age group. By 1955, the effectiveness of the serum should be known. If optimistic predictions are justified, mass inoculation will make the serum available to all peoples of all ages by 1956."

Guests were served tea on a silver and crystal appointed lace-covered table centered with an arrangement of mixed flowers.

Be Firm Only On Big Issues To Keep Your Teen-Ager Happy

By RUTH MILLETT
A mother writes me, "My teenage daughter and I are not at all alike. We have different tastes; think differently about almost everything. In fact, we seem to speak a different language. Is there anything that can be done about this?"

That is by no means a unique discovery -- that one doesn't understand a teen-age daughter -- and vice versa. Right now you probably do think differently about most things, and it isn't odd that you speak a different language.

You know what you should do. The sooner you get to it, the quicker will you gain back your smooth skin and glowing eyes.

Start by eliminating all sweets from your diet. Have fresh fruit or dessert. Have more fruit or raw carrots for between-meal snacks.

Plan to spend more time outdoors. The fresh air will stimulate your skin and outdoor exercise will prepare you for the extra sleep which you also need. Try to get to bed at least an hour earlier than usual.

To treat the blemishes you now have, use a medicated cream at bedtime and cover them with a medicated lotion during the day. Do not put make-up over the blemishes unless you care to risk further infection. The medicated lotion will conceal the blemishes well, and it can be applied to the entire face for a smooth finish.

wears her hair short or in a pony tail. Save your breath for the important things. You'll need it. And if she doesn't feel that you are always "against" her she will be less resentful when you do have to stand firm on some issue.

Then one day -- not too many years away -- you may find that the two of you think alike about a surprising number of things, and that at last you can speak the same language.

McIlhany Tells How Bills Become Laws

"I can lay down the steps for getting a bill through the legislature, but it takes a good deal more to get it through—it's like hitting your head against the wall."

That was Rep. Grainger McIlhany's introduction Monday noon before members of the Pampa League of Women Voters as he began to explain the long process of authoring a bill to its signature by the governor.

Introduced by local Attorney Bill Craig with whom he served in the legislature from 1949 to 1951, McIlhany emphasized that there were probably 1,600 bills introduced each session. The 130 House members meet for 120 "working days" every other year. (There is no scheduled session in 1954.)

The speaker of the House and the lieutenant governor, who presides over the Senate, are "probably the most important men in the state, except for the governor," he said, pointing out that the speaker (elected on opening day) names the 42 committee members and their chairmen, assigns bills to the committees, puts them on the legislative calendar and presides over the House-Senate conference committees. "The lieutenant governor has pretty much the same power."

Then the man who represents Gray, Wheeler and Collingworth Counties took the passage of a bill step by step. First, it's drawn up in triplicate and turned into the chief clerk's office with the author's name attached. Oftentimes, a bill is supplied by a certain group or is drawn up by a legislative council, but the name of a House member must appear as "author."

The clerk gives the bill a number and turns it over to the speaker's office where it is ready for formal introduction. The speaker turns it over to a certain committee. A note of humor is often injected into the proceedings, McIlhany said, when someone arguing against a bill will introduce an amendment that deletes the enacting clause: "Be it enacted by the legislature of the State of Texas . . ." which would make the bill unconstitutional.

"It's up to the author of the bill to arrange with the committee chairman for a hearing," the representative continued. "Most committees meet once a week and have members."

"The hearing is the most democratic phase of the whole thing," he said. "It's open to the public and the public can express its opinions. The committee can make at least five different actions on a bill, he went on. It can pass it out to the House floor; it can make amendments; it can shoot the bill off to a subcommittee; it can postpone consideration; or it can give an unfavorable report.

Often known as "the deep freeze," the subcommittee either takes the unpopular bills or takes bills to be "reworked" on a technical basis. On a bill reported unfavorably, four committee members can file a minority report and the author can make a motion to have the bill printed and placed on the legislative calendar.

If a bill is reported out of committee, McIlhany said, it goes to the printer, then to the desks of each House member and "some bills will have thousands of pages."

The speaker puts it on the calendar and it awaits a vote. First, though, the author explains the bill to his colleagues and others can offer amendments. And a "strong, small minority" can effectively filibuster the bill.

If the bill passes, it goes to the Senate where the same process occurs. A bill must have three readings: one, when the author explains it; two, when it's put on the calendar; and three, when it's voted on.

If both houses of the legislature pass a bill, it goes to the governor who may first whip it over to the attorney general before deciding to sign or veto it.

Most important of all, however, McIlhany concluded, is the fact that "you must enlist support to push a bill along—because of the number and complexity of bills, it is necessary for everyone to pull together."

Turks' President To Visit In U.S.

By PHIL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign Analyst

The Turks aren't satisfied merely to be among the most enthusiastic of the United States' allies.

They also think everyone should get better acquainted.

So, later this month, Turkish President Celal Bayar will be arriving in New York for the first visit of a Turkish chief of state to the United States.

His advance man who already is here is Dr. Halim Alyot, director-general of Turkey's department of information. Alyot is a heavyset, ruddy man with a dark complexion and iron-gray hair. When he talks, it frequently is with a Turkish cigar stuck in the corner of his mouth. He smokes him slimy through a heavy hornrimmed glasses.

He talks with remarkable frankness, only occasionally warning that some particular item is "off the record."

The Turks do, and through geographical necessity must continue to live next to the Russians.

They feel they know the Russians well.

The questions and Alyot's answers about Russia ran like this:

What about the Russian peace offensive?

"At the moment the Russians are in the midst of an internal crisis. It may be that the new regime in the Kremlin needs time to establish itself at home.

"But—Russian objectives do not change. We have lived next to them for hundreds of years. Their foreign policies are the same now under the Communists as they were under the Cezars."

Can we gain anything by negotiating with them?

"We should never lose any opportunity for peaceful negotiation—no matter what the reason may be for a change in the Russian attitude."

What about Russian attempts to renew close ties with the Yugoslavs?

Pampan-Thanked For RC Package

Mrs. Joe Gordon of Pampa received a "thank you" letter Monday for the gifts she contributed to the Red Cross Christmas packages for servicemen on the high seas, according to Mrs. F. W. Shotwell, Pampa Red Cross chapter secretary.

The recipient of Mrs. Gordon's gifts was Pvt. Dale E. Nichols of Pampa, Calif., who stated that the gifts "helped our morale a great deal."

Torn Program

LONDON, Jan. 11—UP—Bisect's opera Carmen came to a sudden halt in crowded Covent Garden when the clear tone of tenor Robert Thomas was accompanied by the sound of tearing cloth.

While singing Don Jose, the chubby tenor split his pants when he stooped over to pick up a rose thrown by Carmen.

After a brief pause, the program continued with Don Jose in a new pair of pants.

Cinderella Waitress Is Still A Waitress In New Movie Role

By ALINE MOSEY
HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 11—UP—The first Cinderella story of 1954 is a waitress who, like in the movie, was slinging hash when a director saw her and signed her to star in a picture.

This real life plot sounds as if it should have been the scenario for an old Deanna Durbin picture entitled "Smart Girl in Hollywood" by "1,000 Steaks and a Girl."

The heroine is June Hammerstein, a cousin of composer Oscar Hammerstein II. That distinction doesn't help much because she's never met him.

June's father is a projectionist in a Brooklyn theater, and she had a year to see her name on the marquee. She worked as a Fuller brush girl, an onion picker and a receptionist before she snagged a part in a road show version of a play.

When the company hit Iowa, she quit and took a bus to Hollywood.

But movie studio gales were closed in her face. The pretty redhead fibbed about her experience and got a waitress job in a little German restaurant across from a movie studio. Being on her feet hurt them. She didn't like waiting on tables.

One day she saw a movie directed by and starring actor Hugo Haas. She wrote him, "I want to work for you."

"He was so startled he called to ask who I was," she says. "He said, 'someday he'd give me a part.'"

June next ran into Haas at a bus stop. She introduced herself and hopped on the bus behind him. I didn't know directors ever rode buses, but she says by fast talking she got through her biography before he pulled the buzzer and got off.

Months later the director was eating in the restaurant when he spotted his "shadow." She was serving the wiener schnitzel.

"I told him being a waitress was like acting a part," she said. "The next thing I knew I read in the movie columns he had given me the lead in his picture, 'Tender Heart.' He hadn't even told me."

June kept the waitress job, to insure a steady paycheck, and you still can see her at night dishing up the sauerbraten. The first day of the picture she hurried to the studio across the street with the happy thought that by day, at least, she could be playing some glamour girl.

Her role in the Haas movie:—A waitress. She has to wear high heels, too, to show off her legs.

"Life isn't too different," said the star. "My feet still hurt!"

Seven-Phase C-C Program Wins Directors' Approval

The various working committees of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce are facing another busy year.

This was pointed out at a meeting of the chamber board of directors Monday noon in the Palm Room of the City Hall by President Clinton Evans as he outlined the 1954 work program, which was unanimously approved.

The program was divided into seven categories—agriculture and livestock activities, industrial activities, civic affairs, trade relations, highways, transportation and tourist development, and general information and public relations.

Many of the items included on the year's program were continuations of 1953 projects, while many new projects are planned.

Among these is a project to explore the possibilities of sponsoring an Agriculture and Livestock Week at which time special recognition could be given to outstanding achievements in those fields.

Another new project is one to work with the City of Pampa on the possibility of modifying regulations on out-of-town shoppers for downtown parking.

The chamber, Evans stated, will begin soon to make preliminary plans for the dedication of the Canadian river bridge, when completed, at which time a celebration will be held by Gray, Ochiltree, Roberts and Donley counties, inviting members of Texas State Highway association to participate.

Other new projects include: Working out a joint program with the Berger Chamber of Commerce in the interest of widening State Highway 152 from Pampa to Borger; to study the possibility and advisability of widening Alcock street, and to work in cooperation with the city and county officials toward that end; to publish an overall transportation guide showing the various highway outlets from Pampa to metropolitan areas in all directions with information as to the best routes to take and mileage saved, and to repair and repaint signboards on the outskirts of the city for the purpose of impressing tourists traveling through this area.

Committee assignments for the year were announced by Evans and were approved by the board. Chairmen of the various committees are: Agriculture and Livestock, Quentin Williams; Aviation, Frank Culbertson; Fire Prevention and Safety, Joe Cree; Goodwill and Reception, Jeff Bearden, chairman, and Frank Fata, co-chairman; Highways and Transportation, Fred Thompson; Highway Signs and Tourist Development, W. S. Fannon; Industrial, Gordon Lyons; Legislation and National Affairs, Bill W. Waters; Merchants Activities, W. J. McNeill, chairman, and Harold Miller, vice chairman; New Business Greeters, George Newberry; Oil and Gas, George Cree, Jr.; Public Improvements, Lynn Boyd; Publicity and General Information, Paul West; Sports and Recreation, Ralph McKinney; and Trade Development, Paul Crouch.

Aubrey Jones, secretary of the Pampa Review Board, urged the cooperation of business and professional men in an effort to curb the practice of out-of-town solicitors calling on businessmen seeking funds for various causes.

He said that he has the records to prove that the Review Board has rendered a great service to the city and added that these out-of-town solicitations are increasing. Practically all of these solicitors are "thugs and out-throats," he stated.

Jones said that when a local merchant is approached by one of these solicitors, he should first determine if he or she is a local person. If not, he should tell them to come to Jones' office in the City Tax office and ask for a permit.

"Too many of our local businessmen are being clipped," he concluded.

J. C. Hopkins, president of the Pampa Junior Chamber of Commerce, spoke briefly and asked that committee chairmen of the chamber feel free to call on his organization at any time for help.

Paul Crouch spoke on details of the Top o' Texas Fat Stock Show and Sale, scheduled for Jan. 25-27.

Touch Backfires
NEW HAVEN, Conn.—(UP)—Walter J. Ledderhose, 56, went to jail for 120 days because police said he tried to "bum" two cents. Picked as a target for his "touch" were two men on a street corner who turned out to be detectives. They said Ledderhose had eight cents in his pocket and wanted to build his pile to 10 cents.

Rogers Comments On Ike's Talk

lights were so bright that you felt you were sitting under the brilliant sun of a fine spring day in the Panhandle."

Rep. Walter Rogers makes that comment in his weekly newsletter of the television lights during the State of the Union message Thursday to the joint session of the U.S. House of Representatives and Senate.

President Eisenhower "gave general treatment to almost every important issue that this Congress will face," Rogers commented, adding that one thing Ike did not include was the proposed Bricker amendment, pertaining to the curtailment of the treaty-making powers of the Executive branch of the U.S. government.

Thief Is Caught

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—Tavern owner John Kennedy, 60, decided to catch the thief who periodically raided his storeroom for a case of beer.

Kennedy stayed in the tavern each night, shotgun in hand, and waited. At 5:30 a.m. Sunday he saw a match light in the storeroom.

Gun in hand Kennedy cautiously approached and when the intruder stopped over Kennedy blasted away.

After having the bird shot removed Valentine Rybacky, 39, confessed. He said it was his fourth and last visit.

Poodle Driver

MONTECITO, Calif., Jan. 11—UP—A French poodle drove off in his master's auto Sunday side-swiped two parked cars and came to a halt when the vehicle knocked over a barber's pole.

Emilio Lagomarsino, who left the engine running while he went into a store, said the poodle apparently jumped against the gear level for the automatic transmission, pushing it from neutral to drive.
