John Tower won't seek re-election

chairman of the Armed Services Comittee, will announce today that he will not seek re-election to the Senate next year, GOP sources said.

A leading conservative spokesman since he came to the Senate in 1961, Tower will make his decision known at a 1 p.m. CDT news conference in Austin this afternoon

'What he has to say, he will say," said Jack Warren, Tower's campaign finance director in Austin Warren refused to comment on the report, which appeared first in today's Houston Post, that Tower would not run.

The decision by the 58-year-old incumbent surprised many, for he had already raised more than $1 million for a re-election campaign. But Tower was also said to be one of the more vulnerable GOP incumbents up in 1984 as

A GOP source here said that Tower had kept his decision 'very close to the vest.'

"He is simply bored with the job," said the Republican source, who requested anonymity.

Tower has been a Texas senator since he won a special election to succeed former President Lyndon B. Johnson in

His wife recently quit a top government job to help in his Tower is from Wichita Falls, Texas, where he was a political science professor at Midwestern University before entering politics.

Tower told close friends in Wichita Falls Sunday that "I'm just tired of being a senator." the Wichita Falls Times and Record News reported today.

friends quoted Tower as saying. "I hope to work for the re-election of President Reagan.

The friends, who did not want to be identified, said the senator did not mind the race for re-election. They speculated Tower expects to hold a reponsible position in Reagan's re-election campaign and possibly receive a high appointment in government, such as secretary of defense, if Reagan is re-elected.

Former Democratic congressman Bob Krueger, who has announced his candidacy, said today in New Braunfels, "I was shocked.

"If the announcement is made, it will give my campaign a shot in the arm," he said. He believes he is the best-organized and best-financed of the Democratic probably would open the way for an influx of new candidates. He said he doesn't understand how Tower could be tired of

"There's no way I would ever get tired of being a U.S. senator," he said. Krueger predicted Tower's decision would not have a major impact on Texas Republican politics, since Tower's is the only major statewide office now held by the

Another possible Democratic candidate, former Gov. Dolph Briscoe, said from his home in Uvalde that he was 'certainly surprised by the report, I think everybody was.'

'I definitely am interested," in making the race, he said. Briscoe said he still plans to make sort of sort of announcement about his political plans in September, as he has said previously.

Reagan attacks peace movement

SEATTLE (AP) — President Reagan today accused the peace movement of advocating strategies for "weakening the free " and said the United States is determined to support its friends and defend its interests.

Speaking to the annual convention of the American Legion, Reagan also said the United States is not seeking an arms race or trying to be a world policeman.

The president said that military veterans were "the real peacemakers" because they understood that "peace must be built on strength.

"We Americans covet no foreign territory and we have no intention of becoming policeman to the world," the president said. "But, as the most powerful country in the West, we have a responsibility to help our friends keep the peace.

Reagan interrupted his California vacation to fly here from Los Angeles Today's address was the first of three speeches this week to politically important groups. Reagan, who is expected by aides to announce soon he will seek re-election, will speak to Hispanic leaders in Los Angeles on Thursday and to a Republican women's group in San Diego on Friday. Reagan told the veterans that peace

Reagan said that former British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain 'thought of peace as a vague policy in the thirties, and the result brought us closer to World War II. Today's so-called peace movement - for all its modern hype and theatrics - makes the same old mistake.

"They would wage peace by weakening the free," the president charged. "That just doesn't make

He did not criticize any group or individual by name.

Reagan said his heart was with those who march for peace, and "I'd be at the head of the parade if I thought it would really serve the cause of peace.

The president said Americans "can't build a safer world with honorable intentions and good will alone. Achieving the fundamental goals our nation seeks in world affairs - peace. human rights, economic progress, national independence and international stability - means supporting our friends and defending

"Our commitment as peacemaker is focused on those goals," he said, adding that the U.S. commitment is visible now in Central America, the Middle East Reagan said that in Africa, "naked, external aggression is what is taking place in Chad today.

He said that throughout Africa, the United States is offering economic assistance and promoting the growth of democracies and peaceful settlement of U.S. economic assistance to the region is four times larger than security assistance, Reagan said By contrast, Soviet military aid outpaces other forms of Soviet assistance by a seven-to-one margin, he added.

Referring to strategic forces, Reagan said, "In the past, we paid a grim price for indecision and neglect - for a one-way restraint that was never returned by the other side.

He said that under his administration, "Our military forces are back on their feet and standing tall.

'Modern equipment is being delivered to the troops, training is way up, and combat readiness rates have really soared," the president said "Once again, young Americans wear their uniforms and serve their flag with

Falling food prices hold inflation to slight gain

WASHINGTON (AP) - Consumer prices, held in check by a second straight month of falling food costs. rose a moderate 0.4 percent in July, the government said today.

For the first seven months of 1983, retail prices rose at an annual rate of just 3.2 percent, bettering the 3.9 percent clip for all of last year. Prices over the last 12 months have risen only 2.4 percent — the smallest gain in 17

Also helping hold down the overall rise in July's Consumer Price Index was a modest 0.4 percent increase in gasoline costs Those prices are now 2.7 percent lower than a year ago, despite May's 4.2 percent surge and June's 0.7

The 0.1 percent drop in food prices resulted largely from fresh cuts in meat prices, a trend expected to reverse tself next year. Food prices overall had dropped 0.3 percent in June, the steepest one-month plunge in seven

In all, July's 0.4 percent seasonally adjusted gain doubled the 0.2 percent advance of the previous month. Even with today's report, however, economists were still predicting that inflation this year will be less than last year's advance, which had been the smallest in a decade

Leading the eegkin food prices were a sharp 2.9 percent drop in pork prices and a more moderate 0.7 percent decline in the costs of beef and veal. Fresh fruit prices rose 3.1 percent while fresh vegetable prices tumbled 3.6 percent. Eggs were off 1.1 percent.

While meat prices were declining for the second straight month and further cuts are expected as producers trim their herds rather than pay rapidly rising feedgrain prices, analysts caution that meat prices will begin rising next year as the number of animals going to slaughter slackens.

The rising grain prices are largely the product of the drought that has scorched much of the nation's breadbasket.

Meals eaten outside the home rose 0.1 percent last month. Food bought at grocery, stores declined 0.1 percent Alcoholic beverage prices were up 0.2 percent

Across the board, prices last month were slightly higher than in June: -Medical care costs rose 0.6 percent a bit above the increases of each of the previous six months but much less than the double-digit gains prevalent over the last four years.

Even so, those costs have soared 8.4 percent in the last year, the sharpest gain for any of the major components of the index —Housing costs were up 0.4 percent. double June's 0.2 percent gain. Homeowners' costs rose 0.5 percent while renters' expenses rose 0.6

-Home heating oil prices rose 0.2 percent after falling 0.5 percent in June. Natural gas prices also turned up, rising 0.2 percent after falling 0.4 percent in the preceding month.

Since last July, heating oil prices have tumbled 8.9 percent, but natural gas prices have soared 18.6 percent.

 Used car prices surged 1.5 percent following increases of 1 percent in May and June. New car prices were unchanged after climbing slightly in the previous month. Overall transportation costs were up 0.5 percent last month.

-Clothing prices rose 0.6 percent, following a 0.4 percent gain in June. -Entertainment costs increased 0.4 percent, the same as in June

Government agencies fight over reef's inclusion in oil lease sale

lederal officials have sided with fishermen and environmentalists in trying to dissuade the U.S. Interior Department from including rare and delicate coral reefs off Texas' coast in Wednesday's oil lease sale

Interior Department officials say they expect the tracks over the East and West Flower Graden Banks, which amounts to 0.05 percent of the 33 million tract for lease, to contain less than 1 percent of the potential oil or gas reserves.

The Environmental Protection Agency, Texas Gov. Mark White, the National Sierra Club and the Gulf of Mexico Fishery Management Council have urged the Interior Department to exclude the reefs from the tracts or at least ensure existing zoning regulations are maintained.

Interior Secretary James Watt and

The department has decided to allow drilling closer to the Flower Garden Banks — home of the only living coral reefs in the northwest Gulf of Mexico than previously permitted. The lease tracts are part of Watt's five-year plan to open nearly 1 billion acres of offshore land to oil exploration.

Pat Alberico, director of the EPA's office of federal activities, said the Interior Department's plan is not in agreement with the EPA's, Interior Department's and National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's stated policy that the coral reef communities should receive maximum protection

Alberico said in his letter that tracts around the reefs should be deleted from the sale and that "it is essential that the WASHINGTON (AP) - State and the Mineral Management Service 100-meter level be re-established as the Garden tracts."

White wrote to Watt Aug. 10, urging that the previous 100-meter no-activity zone be maintained as a compromise between environmental and energy

Bill Hamilton of the governor's office called the change in policy "part of the overly aggressive leasing program of Secretary Watt

Sierra Club officials threatened to file suit if their pleas for the safety of the reefs go unheeded.

Alberico, White's office and Sierra Club headquarters all said they received clear indications from the office of David Russell, Mineral Management Service director, that the Interior Department is not backing off from the zone change.

Treasury Secretary Jesus Silva ZAMORA, Mexico (AP) - As in Herzog has admitted Mexicans will see hundreds of other towns and cities in rural Mexico, the nation's economic their standard of living decline as the crisis is making the hard times in this government follows through on a agricultural marketing center even austerity program. The program was put into effect because of the difficulty in making payments on Mexico's People say those earning the massive $83 billion foreign debt, the minimum wage — about $3 a day here second-largest in the world. - used to have at least some spending Under the program, controlled prices money left over after paying their basic food and housing bills.

Now, with inflation near 100 percent on food and other goods are going up. Basic foods like beans, bread and last year and 40 percent for the first six tortillas cost as much as twice what they did a year ago. Tortillas increased months of 1983, those same people are worried about making the most basic in price from 3 to 4.7 cents a pound this business? How changed is summer

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - There was a time, perhaps as recently as 15 years ago, when economic activity took a summer siesta of sorts and people almost forgot that getting and spending were the most compelling forces in Noisy Wall Street became an empty echo because so many brokers left on Thursday, not to return until Tuesday. And on Main Street, car dealers

yawned because nobody bothered to drop by until the new models were announced

It was quiet even in Washington. because elected officials felt that in the heat of August nobody was inclined to listen to them or alert enough to wonder where they had sneaked off to.

Activity everywhere picked up again right after Labor Day, with conferences and speeches and announcements scheduled in such profusion that nobody could accommodate them all.

But that is past. Now, important economic news is as likely to occur under the blistering summer sun as under the cool clouds of fall, as attested to by the frantic pace of such events this summer as the rise of the dollar and the big swings of the stock market.

What happened? That question, asked casually but repeatedly. revealed a pattern of answers that might be significant or could, perhaps, be of little significance at all.

mind-searing, record-breaking heat wave that has sent temperatures to 100 degrees or more in 18 cities held on today across the Midwest and Southeast with "no relief in sight," baking crops, closing schools and causing at least eight deaths.

New temperature marks were set or tied in 25 cities in a dozen states Monday, from Missouri to the Carolinas, and although thunderstorms dropped as much as a half-foot of rain on sections of Nebraska by midnight, they may have done farmers more harm than good, a forecaster said.

'We see no immediate relief from the heat," said Harry Gordon, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service's Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo. 'The nation's high was 107 yesterday in Augusta, Ga., and Fayetteville, N.C., and we expect more of the same around there today.

The heat wave, which began Saturday, has broken records in up to 40 cities, some of which have stood since the late 1800s, Gordon said.

"Although we had some pretty good rains reported yesterday - not to mention wind damage in five states any break from the heat will be short-lived," he said today. "And in areas like Burwell, Neb., where 6 inches of rain caused flash floods, you may see more harm than good to crops because of the pounding they took. "The water simply came down fast for it to soak in." Gordon said.

Public schools already in regular session in Nashville, Tenn., were ordered closed today and were to remain closed until a break in the heat. Officials will decide "on a day-to-day basis" whether conditions have improved enough for the city's 63,000 students to resume classes.

In some classes the temperature today ranged from 96 to 100 degrees." said Charles Frazier, director of Metropolitan Nashville-Davidson County schools.

Students were sent home early Monday in Pender, Dublin, Scotland and Buncombe counties in North Carolina and in the cities of High Point and Reidsville. Closings or short school days also were ordered in some Kentucky communities The deaths of two elderly St. Louis residents increased the city's heat toll to 35 since July 15, Health Commissioner William B. Hope said. Heat has been blamed for three deaths in Alabama, two in Missouri, and one each in North Carolina, Kentucky and

The Kentucky Crop & Livestock and Reporting Service, meanwhile, listed the tobacco crop in poor condition and said many growers were being forced to begin harvesting earlier than usual because leaves were drying up. Some North Carolina agricultural agents reported that tobacco leaves are . burned on the tips, resulting in reduced quality and prices. The soybean crop in North Carolina's southeast counties has been hard hit and corn yields are expected to be smaller than usual. It's a disaster throughout the Southeast," said Ralph Sasser, a southeastern district agricultural Johnny Bryant, an Alabama farmer  in the Wellington community, said his soybean, sorghum and corn are burned out by the drought. "We can only hope for another year.

Hurricane cleanup continues hard to return to normal. "We've got a black eye and company

About 12,600 households in 10 counties were physically damaged in the storm, which has been blamed for at least 17 deaths, said American Red

Nearly 470 single-family dwellings were destroyed by Alicia, as were 419 mobile homes. About 1,500 single-family houses were hit by major damage, as were about 280 mobile homes and 125 apartments, according to Red Cross figures.

Almost 6,800 single-family homes received minor mobile homes and about 2,780 apartments, the Red Cross

All downtown Houston areas were open for traffic Monday for the first time since Thursday, said Public Works Department spokesman Dan Jones.

Houston City Council members said Monday that cleanup is more than the city itself can manage.

"We need to get away from the idea of telling people that the city of Houston is going to solve this problem. It's too big. There is no way in 30 days or 60 days or 400 days that the city and these contractors can clean up this mess," said City Councilman John Goodner.

The city is expected to take bids worth $2 million today from private companies for cleaning up the city.

Power will be restored to most households by Saturday. said Steve Gonzales, a spokesman for Houston Lighting & Power Co. But in areas that were hardest hit. such as western Galveston Island, "we're looking at weeks, literally. Two to three weeks," he said.

"I would say the vast majority (of customers whose homes are without power) are understanding. But people are getting hot and tired," Gonzales said. "That's very understandable We're doing a lot of trying to explain to people. The utility company has about 3,800 people working to restore power to its customers, which "is probably the largest repair force ever assembled in this country," HL&P spokesman Jim Parsons said. More than 800 workers from utilities along the Gulf Coast were assisting HL&P. 'There is a long-standing tradition of help among utilities on the Gulf Coast,' Parsons said. "We have sent crews to other areas but this is the first time we have had to call in people from other dtilities.

At the height of the storm. about 750,000 people were blacked out - the highest number of power failures ever recorded by the utility company

About 50,000 residents remained without phone service Monday as Southwestern Bell waited for repair materials being shipped from other parts of the country. Company officials were optimistic that a tentative agreement to end the 15-day strike by the Communications Workers of America would speed up repairs, Brasel said.

The storm could set a record for insurance claims payments, an insurance expert said Monday.

Given the population density, the concentration of costly industrial facilities and the magnitude of the storm. paid claims could easily

DALLAS (AP) - Texas coastal residents still without telephone service because of Hurricane Alicia will get no immediate help from striking telephone workers despite a tentative national labor agreement with American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

Strikers offered to work without pay to fix emergency lines after the hurricane battered the coast early Thursday, but union officials said there were no reports of such emergency phone service being knocked out. However, about 50,000 coastal residents remain without telephone service.

Two families move together employment. About four weeks later he found a job as a loss

By CAROL HOLOWINSKI

Dallas Morning News SACHSE, Texas (AP) — The journey south was more than a matter of economics — it was a proof of friendship.

In a piecemeal style, the two men, two women, two children and four dogs made their 1,482-mile trek from Enfield, Conn., to Sachse, leaving hard times for a more promising future. Like most people, when Tom McDevitt, 28, and his wife,

Mary. 25, decided to move to the Dallas area, they made plans to bring their household furnishings, clothing and two family But they also brought a bit more - their friends, Frank Kincman, 35, his wife, Pat, 32, their son, P.J., 11, their daughter. Christine, 9, and the Kincmans' two family dogs. The McDevitts bought a three-bedroom home in the new Salmon Estates residential development in Sachse, a Dallas suburb of 1,600 residents. The Kincmans are living with the

McDevitts until their home is completed, about a block down the street "It will be the same situation we were in in Enfield." McDevitt said

Some of their friends in Enfield "thought it (the move) was kind of unusual, but we don't because we're such close friends," he said

The seeds of the two-family move were planted in the cold of 'We were sitting around the table with my neighbors, and I said, 'Guess what? I got a transfer to Dallas.' And he (Kincman) said, 'Guess what? That sounds like a good place to go.' So he decided to move down himself." McDevitt said. McDevitt, who worked as an auditor for a firearms company, left Enfield in January to work at Aurum Etchings in Garland. In late February, Kincman, who had been laid off control manager for K Mart Corp. Their wives, the Kincman's two children and the dogs stayed in Connecticut until the houses were sold.

Mrs. McDevitt arrived in May, and the Mrs. Kincman and her children arrived in July.

"It took us five months to get all down here," said Mrs. Kincman. She said the two families were finally together again on the Fourth of July weekend. The McDevitts and Kincmans said they were glad to leave

Connecticut with its ailing economy "Dallas is booming compared to the rest of the country

Connecticut is dying," McDevitt said "It's just a depressed area," Mrs. Kincman said. Both families have adjusted well except for the Kincman dogs - Raquel, a Newfoundland, and Rookie, a Samoyan Husky. Both are cold-weather dogs and have had trouble adjusting to the heat, she said The families, who have been friends for two years, said they have had no problems sharing the three-bedroom house.

'We never get tired of each other," McDevitt said. They said they had grown closer over holiday get-togethers. monthly poker games and a joint firewood business back in Enfield. The men would chop and split the wood, and the women would stack it, they said It's a friendship close enough that they finish each other's sentences. And it's a closeness that allows laughter to flow before a witticism ends. Both families are comfortable in their friendship and share a sharp sense of humor, poking fun at each other from time to the tentative agreement with

Do good-or else

The state that gave us Hubert Humphrey, Walter Mondale and a long tradition of faith in government to make us do good has now given us the nation's first "Good Samaritan .. or Else" law

Several states already have lelgislation that aims to encourage people to come to the aid of individuals in emergencies by relieving them of liability when they render aid.

The new Minnesota legislation goes one horrendous step further. It makes it illegal not to render aid.

Minnesotans who fail to give "reasonable assistance" - a foggy phrase which could mean anything from providing actual medical first aid to simply calling the police or paramedicas in an emergency - can be fined up to $100 for their failure to help.

Minnesota legislators apparently have been horrified by a few highly - publicized recent incidents in places far from Minnesota, most notably the alleged rape of a woman in a New Bedford, Mass., barroom while patrons stood and watched

We, as well, are horrified by such indifference. But it is precisely because such incidents are so rare that they make headlines ... from Massachusetts to Minnesota.

And, frankly, given the nearly uncontrolled tendency of Americans to sue each other - albetted by our world leadership position in the number of lawyers per capita - it is understandable if we have become less willing to rush to the aid of someone who may take us to court later.

The Minnesota law seems likely to make that situation more confusing, providing, as it does, a legal basis for suing our neighbor for not helping., Damned if you do. damned if you don't.

W also wonder how the people of Minnesota view the low regard in which they are held by their irepresentatives, who apparently believe only the force of the state can evoke compassion and responsibility.

To the extent that these qualities have diminished in America, in fact, we think it is in large part because government has intruded in the most basic human relationships, to the extent that individual initiative. responsibility and caring can seem almost superfluous.

In a community where government promises beyond its ability and its legitimate purposes — to care for all human needs and to protect against all misfortune, where is th individual's reward for freely

New health centers multiplying

By OSCAR COOLEY

When you hear someone say, "There are too many doctors in this state," you may safely guess it is a doctor, or someone who dispenses the means to health in some form or other. He is simply protesting against the amount of competition he

Competition is a result of freedom. When people are free as they are in the U.S., they tend to choose an occupation which is in demand (and which they are able to do and enjoy doing) People compete freely on every Main Street in America, and we laud free competition as a breeder of excellence.

But competition makes people hustle, and we get tired of hustling. Then we complain about the competition, and we cry out for relief. "There oughta be a law!" we say.

Admittedly, we cannot have both freedom and a law denying freedom. So we calm down and conclude, "Well, there is too much competition." But how much is "too

Health is an area in which people always want more. One can get all the housing he wants and all the food he wants, but seldom all the health he wants. So the services of doctors are in great demand. There seems to be little danger of overproduction in this area. However, the technology of medicine is difficult, and this tends to limit the number of doctors. Hospitals, too, are expensive to build and equip, and this limits the availability of hospitals.

In recent years, doctors have developed a new institution which is somewhere between a doctor's office and a hospital emergency room. It is called a Freestanding Emergency Center, or urgent care center. It can give immediate treatment to people who have been severely hurt of are quite sick and need more treatment than is available at a doctor's office but scarcely need to go to a hospital emergency room. It has more equipment than the individual doctor but less than a hospital. Normally, it offers X - rays, lab work, and minor surgery. It is open 24 hours a day.

Dr. Burton Klainman, who has pioneered such centers in Cincinnati, says they are equipped to care for about 85 percent of the patients who have been going to hospital emergency rooms. And they cost the patient about 40 percent have sprung up throughout the U.S. in the last five years. Hospitals, themselves, are setting up such outlying urgent care centers.

A development so extraordinary as this is bound to arouse questions: how good are the urgent care centers? Being new, are they required by law to measure up to certain standards as to equipment, personnel, etc.? If they can render the same service for 40 percent less than the hospitals, does it mean the latter are overcharging? As a result of this new competition, are hospital rates coming down?

The states, you may be sure, will not allow the new centers to go unregulated. In Ohio, Gov. Richard Celeste on July 21 issued an order that before an urgent care center can be built it must get a "ceftificate of need" from the state health department. Governors tend to ignore the regulatory power of competition. State regulation will add unnecessary legal costs to the establishment of urgent care centers, in the belief of James Hammer, president of a chain of such centers in Cleveland. Doctors are best qualified to judge such institutions. In this as in most health matters, people will do well to "consult their family physician."

Following convention speeches or during campus speeches the questions invariably include one which leaves me dumb: What do you think should be done about the misuse of drugs? I don't know.

The American Management Association finds one - in - 10 American workers, white - collar and blue - collar, use illegal

Dr. Joseph Pursch of Orange, Calif., treats addicted athletes at that city's Care Unit Hospital. He says the incidence of drug misuse is even higher among athletes. Undercover DEA agents find drug use virtually pandemic among government workers; pushers and users in Post Offices, in Social Security Administration offices. Americans will spend $100 billion on illegal drugs this year; five percent of our nation's gross national product. . Illicit drug sue per capita in the U.S. is greater than in any other industrial nation. The numbers keep looking worse and countermeasures

One in every 40 residents of New York is now on heroin. And the uglier, costlier byproduct of the drug cult is the crime it takes to pay for it. More than half of all prison inmates are users going in. A worker in a Coral Gables stock brokerage firm was never suspected by fellow employees as "a user" while he was embezzling $103,000 to finance his habit.

Following the IC freight train crash near Livingston, Louisiana, in which two cars of hazardous chemicals exploded and $10 million worth of property was destroyed, it was discovered that the brakeman had been arrested twice on drug charges.

A further fringe deficit is that the wrong people are harvesting untaxed riches on this traffic. Marijuana has become our nation's biggest single agricultural crop; $52 billion a year!

Also, much of what's debilitating us - making us - U.S. weaker - is making Castro stronger. With the Mariel boatlift, Castro purposely sent pushers to Florida.

And if all this is not sufficiently scary, we learn that among professionals the highest percentage of users are soldiers What to do about it? I don't know.

The seizure and confiscation of cocaine shipments by our government's agents tripled last year - yet sale and use continued to escalate. Maybe the professional athletes who are acknowledging their dependency on drugs and identifying the deleterious effects of those drugs.--(I count 42 professional athletes presently undergoing drug - rehabilitation treatment.) -Perhaps some young will hear and heed them and become health - conscious again. If that's not the way to bet, that is the way to pray (c) 1983, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Most of the "funny money" was used to finance large drug purchases, said Secret Service special agent-in-charge Barney Bovett

The ongoing investigation. which could result in more arrests, began in March when some counterfeit hills were passed to an undercover narcotics officer, he said Monday

The fake money - $10. $20, $50 and $100 bills - circulated mostly in San Antonio, Dallas, Houston and Mexico and was "looking better and better with each printing."

Latest advice on home interior decoration

AP Newsfeatures When Vicki Wenger, an interior designer, went on early - morning television in Washington to discuss decorating she invited viewers to write in for free

Dear Abby

Be sure your 'living will' is honored when it counts

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: You have written many times about a Living Will. While a resident in the retirement community where we live (about 900 residents) was hospitalized, she told the chief medical officer that she had a Living Will and he responded, "Oh, we don't pay any attention to those things"

That doctor recently retired, but I suspect there may be many other physicians who feel the same way.

My point: Having a Living Will, how can one be sure that it will be honored? I think your readers should be

AWAITING YOUR RESPONSE

DEAR AWAITING: Unfortunately, there are still some physicians who may refuse to follow the directives stated in the Living Will. Of course, if you are lucky enough to live in one of the 15 states that have enacted a Living Will law, then the physician must follow the directive. If you do not, ask your physician if he will respect your Living Will; if he says no, don't try to change his mind — change

DEAR ABBY: I-liked your suggestion of "reminding" a forgetful spouse that a big day is coming up.

I used to tape reminders to my husband's bathroom mirror saying, "Only 14 more shopping days until Shirley's birthday." Then the next day, "Only 13 more shopping days until Shirley's birthday." I did that every day until the final day. Then the message would say, "Today's the

DEAR SHIRLEY: I'm in your corner.

DEAR ABBY: The week before Father's Day, you wrote: "Don't give Dad another tie, shirt or wallet; give him something he will cherish forever - a letter telling him how much he means to you."

Well, I composed a letter on the bus to work that very father in a beautiful card that evening. He was actually my stepfather, but he had been more of a father to me than my real father. I knew it would mean a lot to him, especially since he was in the hospital at the time. He died on July 5, and I'm so glad I wrote that letter. Now I can live with myself knowing that he knew how ! felt about him.

Thank you so very much for making me put my thoughts of love and gratitude on paper. If this letter helps just one person to do what I did, it was worth writing. Gratefully, CLAUDIA IN SAN PABLO, CALIF.

to her that many Americans set of commonly - available recognize their homes could be more attractive but don't know how to manage the trick on their own.

That, of course, is what the interior design profession is there to do. but some people are intimidated by designers.

"They are afraid they will end up spending too much money," said Ms. Wenger, a member of A.S.I.D. and owner of the business. Beautiful Spaces Inc., in Washington, D.C.

However, people are not as helpless as they may think when it comes to questions of decorating, she said. What they need is some confidence and a knowledge of the basics

She has devised a method for laymen that can help. It involves measuring a "problem" room, indicating what furniture and accessories are already there, and putting it all down on paper, along with a written description of the major problem and the budget available to fix it.

Though she offers the service for a fee, individuals can accomplish some of the goals by doing them on their templates that can be cut out to represent furniture and architectural elements, and a yardstick or tape measure.

After plotting the room as it exists and entering the measurements on a piece of paper, a plan of the room is drawn to scale on the graph paper, and the paper templates representing the furnishings are placed on the Even without professional decorating advice, engaging in such a process is likely to produce excellent results, she said. At the very least, it will provide accurate information on what is on hand and room dimensions. It also forces a realistic appraisal of the problem and budget imitations.

Armed with such a plan, an individual is often able to draw up a program for improvement and by consulting a designer in a retail furniture store may be

Once the plan is completed. she advised experimenting on paper with room

"A good way to start is to chart a traffic pattern, noting how people get into the room. leave it and move around from one area to another. Moving furniture around to eliminate road blocks and improve comfort and appearance is a lot easier on paper than it would be in the room itself," she noted.

Ms. Wenger's experience over the years as well as the questions that have cropped up in her mail order decorating business have convinced her that the problem almost always comes down to basics.

People have trouble with color. Often they have furniture and accessories in mismatched colors and are seeking a third color which will tie them all together and make it possible to use all the colors in a more attractive

It is also difficult for many people to visualize color on a large expanse of space such as a wall or floor or sofa from a small paint chip, wallpaper sample or fabric sample. So she usually suggests paint or a single roll of the piece of cardboard.

"Live with the new color or pattern a week and you will soon know if it is the right one," she said

My philosophy is "Why

" I do what I can and that I do into reading, I could can't, I don't. (Does have the cleanest house on what I can't, I don't. (Does that make sense?) My cleaning creed is - "If there's a shortcut, take it!"

I read everything I can find on doing housework the fastest and easiest way. Two of my favorite volumes are "101 Ways to Semi - Clean Your House" and "Take Pride in Your Dust." (My husband snidely remarks that if I put the effort into cleaning the bock - excluding the fire station on the corner.)

I think you'll agree that the kitchen is the toughest challenge to keep clean. I could devote my whole life to keeping fingerprints off the toaster and the "gook" off the can opener.

But I'm much to crafty for that. I simply hide them under a set of kitchen cozies.

These clever - not to mention decorative - quilted cover-ups are decorated with machine - stitched appliques.

Appliques on the toaster cozy shown here are country style complete with barn, silo and appropriate country scenery. Other applique designs include a kitchen setting complete with fireplace and rocking chair, a fruit and vegetable them, and a rainbow and cloud motif.

All those fabric scraps you've been saving can be put to good use as appliques on the kitchen cozies. Use a variety of prints and solids in a rainbow of colors or limit the fabrics to various shades of one color.

We used a bright yellow pre quilted fabric to make our covers and trimmed them with matching single - fold binding.

Steps for adding the appliques are the same whether you're stitching them to ready - made covers or handmade ones.

Cut out the appliques and matching pieces of iron - on fusing material. Place the appliques and fusing material on a piece of muslin. (Fusing material is sandwiched between the applique and the following the manufacturer's directions for fusing the pieces together.

Stitch around the outer dges of the appliques using a narrow zizzag stitch, changing thread color when necessary to match the applique. Cut out the appliqued scene and whipstitch it to the cover.

If you make your own covers, it's easier to stitch the appliques to the front piece before it's joined to the other cover pieces.

Tip: If you prefer, applique the cozies by hand rather than by machine. Allow a % inch seam allowance on the outer edges when you cut out the applique pieces. Press the raw edges under, clipping curves as necessary to form a smooth edge. We've found that using a piece of thin cardboard as a template makes turning the edges much easier. Pin and stitch the appliques in place on the background fabric using a blind - or satin stitch.

To order your Kitchen Cozies plan, please specify Project No. 1233 - 2 and send $3.95 to Makin' Things, Dept. 79065, P.O. Box 159, Bixby.

The museum was the brainchild of association members who decided three years ago that families in the rolling hills surrounding the Palo Pinto county seat possessed memorabilia of the early farming and ranching days that was worth saving.

"There have been loans and donations." said John Winters, county tax assessor-collector who is a past association president. "I have a whole display case in there from my family - all my father's ropes and rawhide hobbles he had in the ranching business, and spurs, boots and bridles and other Western gear

"We've got some woman's cut glass and different things like that - just pretty much donations," said Winters, chairman of the county historical commission.

Some eye-catchers in the museum include a straight razor used twice to shave outlaw Sam Bass while he holed up in the county.

Marine lab summer retreat for scientists

WOODS HOLE, Mass. (AP) - Each summer, scientists hopes to learn about the inflammation that occurs in victims of come here to puzzle over how squids squirm, how water fleas see and how slugs think

They prod and probe they worry and wonder. Their goal is not the betterment of the sea urchins, horseshoe crabs or 200 or so other slithery critters they attend to. It is, instead, a tiny fact, or maybe a eureka insight into the way all living things

For the past 95 years, the Marine Biological Laboratory has been a combination summer retreat and lab away from home for 150 of the brightest minds of American biology.

"If you go through the pantheon of American biologists." says Dr. Gerald Weissman. "most of them have worked here."

Among them have been 35 Nobel prize winners. They have used the buildings on the edge of Buzzards Bay for groundbreaking research into genetics, nerves, vision and the innermost workings of cells.

Weissman, a rheumatology expert from New York University, has been coming to Woods Hole for 14 summers. Like other scientists, he brings along a retinue of graduate students, technicians, junior researchers and helpers. They cram into tiny but tidy individual labs equipped with microscopes, centrifuges and other high-tech bric-a-brac.

The MBL looks at marine life as scientific tools. Dogfish and sand dollars are models for higher life forms — like humans. "If you want to learn how things function, they have to be explains Dr. Edouardo Macagno, a neurobiologist from Columbia University. "You can't use cadavers, and in civilized societies, you can't do things on living human beings. Many of us think that the principles of how things are put together and work are the same throughout the animal kingdom. Therefore, we prefer to work with animals that are simpler

Among the animals that Macagno studies is a little one-eyed creature called the water flea. He is trying to figure out how it sees. Humans have tens of thousands of cells in their eyes that receive information. The water flea's lone eye has only 500, so learning each one's function and how it connects to the brain is Weissman is concentrating on sponges, whose cells are similar to human white blood cells called phagocytes. He access arthritis.

The availability of these animals explains why the MBL is in Woods Hole. The village is at the intersection of the two great rivers of the Atlantic, the Gulf Stream and the Laborador Current, which transport a zoological galaxy from the world's warm and cold waters.

Every day, the MBL's boats and divers go fishing. They regularly bring back 26 different species, and sometimes gather 200 varieties.

A sea slug called Hermissenda is a tool for figuring out what goes on in the brain when animals learn and remember. Sea cucumber sperm and eggs reveal clues about early stages of reproduction. The blue blood of the horseshoe crab provides a test for bacteria

: A portrait of a striking copper worker

Associated Press Writer

CLIFTON, Ariz. (AP) 'Ricky Garcia" - a striking copper worker and the third generation of his family to work at the Phelps Dodge Corp.'s Morenci works - is frustrated, angry and worried.

The strike, 53 days old today, "is going to be a turning point for the union." said the copper worker, who asked to be identified by a pseudonym. "A lot of companies are watching us ... If we lose, you're going to see every union in the nation

"This is a trend," Garcia added. "What's gonna happen in three years down the road? The companies are going to say: 'We're gonna cut your pay in half."

At 28. Garcia is a 10-year veteran of the giant copper mining, milling and smelting operation in southeastern Arizona's Greenlee County. Both his grandfathers worked there, and his father is a brother is on strike.

Copper has been king in Greenlee County since before it was Greenlee County, since before Arizona became a state. And many of the striking miners think Phelps Dodge has become a despotic ruler. The dispute is stalemated over two major issues - cost-of-living adjustments and starting pay for new employees.

"All we want is a just and fair settlement," said Garcia, who, like many other strikers, feared that being identified would mean the loss of his job after the walkout is over.

He said he's received a suspension notice already. alleging illegal picket-line activity. About 70 striking workers already have received termination notices. and Garcia said he expects to get one, too. "Up here, you don't have the freedom of speech." said another young man, leery of giving his name even though salaried employee. His he no longer works for Phelps Dodge. He landed a $5 an hour construction job, about half what he was earning as a miner before being laid off at Phelps Dodge nearly two years ago.

The fear works the other way, too, said John Bolles, operations manager for Phelps Dodge's Morenci works - the second largest copper mine in the country. after Kennecott's Bingham Canyon operation in Utah.

"A great many of our workers are afraid to have their names used for fear of retaliation by the strikers," he said.

Bolles has said it was "absolutely not" true that the company had resorted to sending termination notices to strikers quoted or photographed by the media. However, it has used photos and videotapes to detail picket-line activity and has subpoenaed at least one newspaper's photos and

"We have used what photographs and what videotapes we've been able to acquire to determine some illegal acts - if that person was carrying a weapon on the picket line, that sort of thing," he said. On Aug. 8 and 9, hundreds

"It's hurting everybody. It's hurting the innocent people," said Garcia. He said his wife, who works at a store. has been subject to harassment because he is striking.

"If the company breaks the unions, it's going to break the families," Garcia said.

People like Garcia - a father of two - say they're going to have to leave as they are terminated or as Phelps Dodge continues to hire replacements. Many say there won't be jobs to reclaim even in the event of a settlement

Italian torture exhibit big hit with viewers

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) - A collection of bizarre torture instruments is threatening to outdraw the most renowned exhibits of this Tuscan city famed for its artistic offerings.

'Torture Instruments 1400-1800," housed in the stone-walled chambers of Florence's Belvedere Fortress, has attracted 100,000 spectators since it opened in mid-May - more than twice the number of visitors to the famed Pitti Palace that contains works by Raphael and Titian, city officials say.

Attendance to the show has been slightly topped only at the Uffizi Galleries, which boast one of the world's most complete Renaissance art collections.

"Sadists Will Go Crazy with Joy." Florence's La Nazione predicted in a banner headline as the attendance soared for the exhibit of 84 torture instruments, many of them dating to the Spanish Inquisition of 1478.

But not all spectators react favorably to the display according to organizer Lorenzo Cantini

Victims were hung by their feet from a gallows and sawed from the bottom of their spine to the top of their skull, Cantini

The organizer says the set of instruments including racks, hanging cages and spiked interrogation chairs were taken from private collections in Europe and the United States.

Florentine craftsmen were put to work restoring the less preserved instruments. Cantini says. For macabre effect, skeletons have been placed beside or inside some of the Coordinator Robert Held, an American, says the exhibit is intended to remind viewers of "continuing violence in modern-day society.

Yaz turns 44, celebrates final baseball birthday

BOSTON (AP) - When you hit 32, says slugger Carl Yastrzemski of the Boston Red Sox, "you think about taking it one year at a time."

But, at 44, Yaz knows there'll be no next year. He plans to retire at the end of the season

Captain Carl, still muscular with only facial lines and gray hair betraying his age. is bowing out in style - and with the flair he broke in with as Hall of Famer Ted Williams' successor in 1961.

As he has done countless times during his 23-year career with the Red Sox, Yastrzemski rose to the occasion once again Monday night on his 44th birthday.

Yaz, who usually works out in the clubhouse hitting balls of rolled tape before it's time for him to go to work as the designated hitter, was conned into making an early appearance on the field before a game with the Toronto Blue Jays.

Then he broke into a grin at home plate, needled by teammates before taking the cake, juggling it a little and waving to the crowd as the organist played "Happy

After directing that a chunk of the cake be sent to Red Sox co-owner Jean Yawkey in her rooftop box and the rest taken immediately to "Jimmy Fund" children at the Sidney Farber Cancer Institute, Yaz got ready for the game.

"Yaz is amazing," said Toronto Manager Bobby Cox. 'He just keeps going and

"I'm just enjoying this game for all the six weeks or so I have left," Yaz said. "I'm not thinking about my last game. It's in the back of my mind and it's hard to not think about sometime. But now I just want to to help this team win some games.

Yaz continues to move up leaders in many categories. He dislikes setting goals, but shooting at.

He needs to play in just 21 more games to pass Hall of Famer Hank Aaron for the most ever played in the major leagues. And he needs only 20 more hits to join Ty Cobb as the only players to get 100 or more in 22 seasons. The only year Yaz missed was in the strike-interrupted 1981 campaign, when he had 83 hits in just 91 games.

Elway to start at quarterback for Denver Bronces

DENVER (AP) - John Elway will be hoping to buck the trend this fall of rookie quarterbacks who haven't fared well in the National Football League.

Elway, who has dazzled Denver Bronco fans in three exhibition games with his rocket arm and scrambling ability, was named the Broncos' starting quarterback Monday by Head Coach Dan Reeves.

Reeves conceded he was expecting Elway to make some rookie mistakes, but thought the Stanford All-American's unique talents would offset many of

"Nobody has ever come into this league and had a bed of roses, but he has mental toughness and is able to overcome adversity. John has more talent than anyone I've ever been around." said Reeves, who as an assistant at Dallas coached Roger

The record shows that the majority of rookie quarterbacks don't even play their freshman seasons. Of the few that were starters. most suffered through losing seasons. Joe Namath in 1965 led the New York Jets to a 5-8-1 record. Terry Bradshaw in 1970 led the Pittsburgh Steelers to a 5-9 mark.

One of the exceptions is Buffalo's Joe Ferguson. The Bills were 9-5 in Ferguson's rookie year in 1973, but it seems they won despite him. He completed only 45 percent of his passes and was intercepted 10 times as compared with four touchdowns. More instrumental for Buffalo that year was O.J. Simpson's record 2,003 yards rushing

Reeves admitted his choice of Elway over veteran Steve DeBerg was a difficult one. since both had played well in preseason

But he made the decision Monday, saying he felt it was important to establish the starter for the final preseason game - a Friday night contest in Minnesota. Elway then will open the regular season Sept. 4 at Pittsburgh.

Following practice Monday, Elway said, "I think there will be lots of growing pains and hopefully there will be a lot more peaks than there are valleys. I feel good about it and am excited about it Hopefully, we can do something and have ences no pain in the back. Instead, a variety of sensa-tions may be felt in other parts of the body. These include tingling, tightness, hot spots, cold spots, crawling sensations, electric shock sensations, sting-ing, burning, and others. Here are nine critical symp-toms involving back pain or strange sensations which are usually the forerunners of more serious condi-tions. Any one of these usually spells back trouble.

These signals indicate that your body is being robbed of normal nerve function. Until this function is restored, you will, in some degree, be incapacited. The longer you wait to seek help, the worse the condition will become. Don't wait! Should you experience any of these danger signals...call for in Depth consultation in Layman's terms.

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) - A 60-year-old Oklahoma man idly injured in an airplane crash Friday crawled 14 miles to a cattle watering tank and waited three days for rescuers to find him, officials say.

Elrod Harmon, of Hopeton, Okla., was found late Monday by the Oklahoma Civil Air Patrol near the tank, where he had crawled in order to be close to water while he waited, said 2nd Lt. Madge Harrah, public affairs officer for the CAP's New Mexico wing.

Harmon's wife, Jeannine, said he suffered two broken legs and a broken nose and was taken to a hospital in Buffalo, Okla., for treatment.

"His sinuses all up in his head are real messed up." she said

"He's going to have to have plastic surgery repair it. "He laid out in the rain for two days and got quite sunburned during the day," she said. "And his eyes, you know, they're just black and blue." She said temperatures in Oklahoma "have been pretty hot.

and then it rained Friday night and Sunday." Officials earlier had reported Harmon had suffered only a broken ankle and minor injuries.

Mrs. Harmon said she had not been able to talk in detail to her husband because he was resting.

"Desperation, I guess," is what gave him the strenth to crawl over a mile to the water tank, she said. "He's made of pretty tough stuff. I'm very relieved to have him back."

Apartment dwellers believe snakes in walls

MADISON, Wis. (AP) -Things that go "thump" in the night have forced a landlord to evacuate 10 families from an apartment house while an exterminator gets a grip on rumors that former tenants left behind a boa constrictor or two.

Odors from air vents and strange noises have set off serpentine tales about snakes to 10-feet long climbing the walls.

But exterminator David Pauli's attempt to lure the creepy, crawly critters into the open with live bait - a raccoon, rabbit and white mice - produced no results Monday

That didn't erase the suspicions of LaVone Stout, who lives with her mother in the 20-year-old Les Maisonettes complex on the city's south side.

"I don't know if it is a snake or not." said Ms. Stout, who returned to her apartment because her ailing mother didn't like living in a motel. Something makes a 'thump thump' sound. If I see a pair of eves looking out the vents åt me, I'll be moving."

The combination of odor and noise leads her to believe in the snake theory, Ms. Stout

"I worked for a time for a veterinarian and I know that smell," she said. "It's a very foul smell.

Pauli agreed. While he was not positive there was a snake slithering about, he said, "There is definitely something in the walls and a strange odor coming out of the vents that could tie in with snakes But reports of thumps and scratching also could be explained by rodents, he said. Boas kill by wrapping themselves around their victims and strangling them. but Pauli said he doubts that a boa would attack anything as big as a human.

Rumors of a snake on the loose are taken seriously by residents of the 70-unit complex because several students had boa constrictors they would show to neighbor children.

"I know there was a boa," Julio Rios, 12, said. "Some college students had it. They let me pet it. It was about six feet long One rumor has it that an exotic dancer moved in with four boas but only took one when she left. Like the college students, the young dancer left the apartment months Building Manager Lisa Barkelar said 10 families were moved out of the complex into hotels Friday until the mystery could be solved - and they were advised not to return prematurely. "I don't know if there is a snake or not," Ms. Barkelar said. "It's strictly a rumor so far. But we've got to do the

Marcos says Aquino assassin was professional

MANILA, Philippines (AP) President Ferdinand E. subversives seeking to discredit and undermine the rightist government hired a "professional killer" to gun wn his chief political rival. Government investigators said today they found the nickname "Rolly" mbroidered on the rwear of the unidentified man they say assassinated Benigno S. Aquino, Jr. at Manila International Airport on Sunday.

The nickname on the man's derwear matched the "R" graved on a ring the man was wearing, the official Philippine News Agency oted Gen. Prospero Oliva Rolly is a nickname common among Filipinos named Rolando. Marcos and Oliva, who heads the assassination investigation. said they have yet to learn the killer's full identity.

"It is not easy to identify a professional killer like him." Marcos said Monday night. "We hope to get a break in a few days," said Olivas.

Policemen's bullets felled the man moments after Aquino, 50, was shot once in the head as he stepped from a China Airliners jetliner to end three years of self-imposed exile in the United States. The government had warned Aquino not to return, saying it had information of a plot against his life.

Condemnation of Aquino's killing continued to pour in from around the world as more mourners, estimated by family members at more than 22,000, continued to file past the opposition leader's blood-spattered body in a casket at his suburban home.

Aquino's brother, Butz, standing on a platform, announced to the mourners that a "massive procession" was planned for Thursday. when the body will be moved to a nearby church.

Marcos denied government complicity in the assassination at a nationally televised news conference Monday night. But he told reporters earlier, "No matter what explanation we make now, there will always be some kind of shadow over the government.

In his television percent drop from 1973, the study found.

Less than 5 percent of appearance, Marcos said he wanted to put an end to rumors, sparked by the assassination and a widespread power blackout the following day, that he was dead or dying, had fled abroad or had been deposed by the military. He said government investigators suspected the killing might have been a "rub-out job" by communists whom Aquino had wronged and who also wanted to embarrass the government.

With his wife and Cabinet ministers circled around him. Marcos told presidential reporters, "The indications are that he belonged to the subversive group." He did not elaborate.

only that the alleged assassin was between 30 and 35 years old. 5-foot-7 and had held a Smith and Wesson .357 Magnum revolver with five bullets remaining in its six-bullet chamber.

In the United States, U.S. President Ronald Reagan's spokesman, Larry Speakes, said the administration wanted an "objective and thorough" investigation of the assassination.

Reagan, in speaking to reporters in Los Angeles, left open the decision on whether he will visit Manila as scheduled in November. He said he will make a decision soon after consulting the State Department.

Teachers getting smaller share of education spending

By MARGARET SCHERF Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) - A private foundation today med a bleak report on the leaching profession, saying teachers aren't making enough money and that the quality of educators is clining even as the demand for them is rising.

The study by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching said the money spent per student has increased over the last 10 years but that the percentage of education expenditures going to teacher salaries has shrunk

"The facts presented in this report make clear that the teaching profession is in crises," said foundation president Ernest L. Boyer. whose warnings echoed those of a national commission that in April reported a "rising tide of mediocrity" in the U.S. school system.

"Poor students are going nto teaching, teacher pay has actually declined in relation to other professionals and public employees," said Boyer. "Credentializing is a mess and teachers do not receive adequate recognition and reward."

Teacher salaries have lipped from 49 percent of the total spent on public elementary and secondary schools in 1972-73 to 38 percent in 1982-83, said the study by Dr. C. Emily Feistritzer, who also publishes education newsletters.

"For the same period, the amount spent on each student increased by 182 percent, to $2,917 from $1,035." said a summary of the study. When inflation over the decade is cranked into the equation, per-pupil expenditures are seen to be 22.5 percent higher and teacher salaries 12.2 percent

Furthermore, teacher salaries don't grow fast enough to be competitive, it

"Salaries at entry, $12,769 for a public elementary or secondary school teacher with a bachelor's degree, are almost $3.500 below starting pay for the hext lowest professional, $16,200 for a college graduate in business administration." said the summary. "But the gap widens thereafter: $25,000 after 15 years for the teacher. $40,000 to $50,000 for an accountant who started at $16,000."

The report said the average teacher's salary nationwide s $20,531 a year.

While minorities make up 17 percent of the total population, they comprise 26 percent of those of school age. the study showed.
