Legislator Owns Up To Hoax

'Cloak And Dagger' Exploits Imagined

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 16—UP—Douglas R. Stringfellow, 32-year-old Republican, representative from Utah, admitted publicly Saturday night that his oft-told story of leading a daring "cloak and dagger" raid into wartime Germany was a complete hoax.

Utah Republican leaders tentatively called an emergency meeting of the state central committee for Monday night to consider the crisis brought about by the Stringfellow admission. He is opposed in the general election from Utah's 24-county second congressional district by Democrat Walter K. Granger, who represented the district for six terms ending in 1952.

Stringfellow, crying heavily, made the admission during a hastily arranged appearance at 7 p. m. on a Salt Lake City television station, KSL-TV. He said that he has offered to resign as a candidate for re-election in the November 2nd balloting but would continue to seek office "if that is the decision of my party."

Fell Into Trap
The crippled war veteran said that "I fell into a trap which was in part laid by my own glib tongue." He explained that after his release from a hospital where he was treated for nearly crippling injuries, he was called upon frequently to speak.

"Somewhere along the line," Stringfellow said, "The thought came in during the introduction that Douglas Stringfellow was a war hero. As the stories grew, I did not correct these erroneous accounts, but rather thrived on the new-found popularity."

Stringfellow confessed that "consciously or unconsciously I began to embellish the account... and awoke to find that they had taken on an aspect that even I had never expected."

He added that it had not been easy to ask that "the erroneous impressions be corrected and consequently they remained uncorrected."

Slept Little
He said that he had slept little at night during the past week since there had appeared printed accounts questioning the accuracy of his stories of war heroism.

"I came here tonight to give you the facts," he told the people of Utah. "These here are the facts. I was never in the OSS. I was never on a behind-the-lines mission. I never captured Otto Hahn or any other German physicist."

Death Takes 'Boss' Crump Of Memphis
MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 16—UP—E. H. Crump, the "benevolent dictator" of Memphis for half a century and one of the last of the old-line political leaders, died Saturday of a heart ailment. He was 80 only two weeks ago.

Crump, who boasted that he never backed a loser in Memphis elections and for many years was a statewide political power as well, had lain in a coma since Friday.

His wife, two sons and other members of his family were at his bedside when he died.

Crump became ill after the August primary election in which Frank G. Clement, the man he supported, was nominated to a new term as governor. Earlier this month his physician revealed the white-haired unofficial ruler of Memphis had suffered a serious cardiac setback.

Until bedridden, Crump had given his full time to operating his prosperous insurance, investments and real estate firm and calling the political shots in this city of nearly half a million.

Crump's enemies, of which most lived outside of Memphis, called him "Boss Crump," a name he abhorred. But he was the unquestioned "law" of the city and even his enemies admitted he gave the city honest and efficient government as well as seeing to its municipal improvement.

Season's Eighth Hurricane Peters Out Over Canada

Pennsylvania Ravaged By Flash Floods

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 16—UP—Flash floods, built up by hour after hour of teeming rains, ravaged western Pennsylvania towns and cities Saturday, leaving a trail of death and destruction totaling millions of dollars.

The floodwaters receded from most of the low-lying river tributary areas by this afternoon, but flood crests on the mighty Ohio, Allegheny and Monongahela Rivers still lapped at the fringes of Pittsburgh's famed golden triangle.

A 32-foot crest, seven feet above flood stage, was expected there by late evening.

The savage one-two punch dealt by the rains and rivers was the most destructively in 18 years, authorities said.

At least 12 persons died, including eight by drowning, and an estimated 3,000 to 4,000 left temporarily homeless.

A half dozen small towns in the Pittsburgh area, including West Newton, Pa., where 11 feet of water swirled through the streets, were isolated for hours.

Police, U. S. Army units, civil defense workers, and the Red Cross worked all night and Saturday to get aid to flood victims in areas where homes were flooded, water supplies cut, and telephone and power lines down.

The rains, which dumped up to five inches of water on Erie, Pa., and other towns, moved in from the west early Friday morning. Blocked in its eastward progress by Hurricane Hazel as it cut a swath across central and eastern Pennsylvania, the rain storm hung like a pump over the western counties in eastern Ohio and the West Virginia Panhandle.

The downpours continued for as long as 30 hours, swelling tributaries of the Ohio, Monongahela, and Allegheny far beyond their capacities.

Eight hurricane deaths in the central and eastern portions of the state swelled the Pennsylvania weather death toll.

Pittsburgh itself suffered only a trifle from the flooding of its big rivers as compared to outlying communities where tributary streams staged furious strikes.

Streets along the Monongahela and Allegheny which join to form the Ohio at the point of the downtown triangle area were inundated and a few cellars filled.

Cabot Will Build $300,000 Shop

The Cabot shops, five miles west of Pampa, Monday morning will hold ground-breaking ceremonies for a new fabricating shop, officials announced Saturday.

Cost of the new building — 360 feet long and 123 feet wide — will be an estimated $300,000, according to H. J. Pickett, general superintendent.

The new unit will make all structural steel and platework for oil-field pumping units and any and all outside oil-pumping units, Pickett said Saturday. That will be its "sole purpose."

Engineers had already begun Saturday on the new structure, which will be located south of two large buildings on the shop grounds, Pickett continued. "All steel for the new building will be fabricated in our shops."

A number of buildings have been dismantled and moved, which are now a part of the old fabricating division. In the new building, there will be complete, modern and up-to-date material - handling equipment, Pickett said.

The Cabot shops is a subsidiary of Godfrey L. Cabot, Inc., Boston, Mass.

109 Known Dead; Havoc Is Staggering

By UNITED PRESS
Hurricane Hazel, blasting a freak inland path of destruction from the Carolina coast to the industrial heart of Canada, faded away Saturday over the Canadian northland after taking more than 100 lives.

Damage in the hurricane, eighth and worst of the season, was in the untold millions.

Spurred in warm Caribbean waters near the Windward islands, Hazel barreled 2,000 miles northward, slamming full-force hurricane winds into nine states and the District of Columbia before roaring into Ontario and Quebec and then disappearing into the wastelands around Hudson Bay.

There were 109 confirmed deaths in the hurricane's path of devastation which slashed from the Negro island republic of Haiti across the eastern United States and on into Canada, where it booted the Toronto metropolitan area.

Death Toll High
Seventy-four persons were killed in the United States, including 13 in flash floods in the Pittsburgh, Pa., area. At least 14 were known dead in the Canadian provinces of Ontario and Quebec, where damage was estimated at $100 million, but many others were missing and almost certainly drowned in rampancy confirmed dead in Haiti, but Red Cross officials there estimated the final Haitian toll would approach 100.

One of Weirdest
In Washington, weather bureau officials said Hurricane Hazel's path deep inland on the North American continent was one of the weirdest on record. Not since a 1941 hurricane, which came out of the Gulf, roared over Texas and past Cleveland, Ohio, has a hurricane driven so deeply ashore.

Red Cross officials estimated that Hurricane Hazel damaged 10,000 buildings, destroyed outright 1,500 others and disrupted the lives of 4 million persons in the Carolinas, Virginia, Pennsylvania and New York alone.

The most concentrated destruction occurred in the area between Myrtle Beach, S. C., and Wilmington, N. C., where approximately 1,000 homes—most of them summer cottages—were destroyed or seriously damaged.

As Hazel sliced across eastern Pennsylvania on its way north, the (See HURRICANE, Page 3)

Lodge Flays UN Official For Laxity

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Oct. 16—UP—U. S. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., made a blistering attack Saturday on the American head of a key United Nations organization who he said had refused to dismiss eight American employes with adverse loyalty records.

Lodge charged that by retaining the employes Dr. Luther Evans, director general of the UN Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO), frustrates the efforts of the United States... "to ensure the highest standards of integrity on the part of those United States citizens who are employed by international organizations."

Ex-GI Told Of Impending Death

DALLAS, Oct. 16—UP—Aghapito R. Chavez, 23, who told his family the Communists gave him a delayed action poison while he was in a prison camp for 28 months, died mysteriously Saturday.

Chavez' brother, Paul, discovered his brother dying when he went to wake him to go to work. Ambulance attendants said Aghapito Chavez was still breathing faintly when they arrived, but he was dead by the time they reached a hospital.

Pampan Free In Shooting

SHAMROCK — (Special) — A. W. (Bill) Kohler, 39, of 1105 E. Francis, was free after posting $1,000 bond Saturday in the Wheeler County Justice of the Peace Court of Judge J. H. Templeton, after being charged Saturday with assault with a deadly weapon.

Charges of simple assault will be filed against two other men from Wheeler and Amarillo, according to Guy Hardin, county attorney.

Hardin said witnesses and Kohler gave him the following version of an affray at a Shamrock service station in which Kohler is accused of shooting another man three times in the stomach with a .25 caliber pistol:

The episode was said to have started in a Wheeler cafe when a man, unknown to Kohler, began berating him and told him to get out of town.

Kohler left the cafe and started driving toward Shamrock when he said he noticed two men following him with their car lights off.

Hagler Said Loaded With Life Insurance

FORT WORTH, Oct. 16—UP—A detective said Saturday that asphalt company executive David H. Hagler Jr. had "too damn much" insurance and was trying to get more before he was charged with murdering a stranger and trying to burn the body in a red station wagon.

Hagler was believed to be the victim of a murder and attempted cremation near Davis, Okla., last Sunday. But Tuesday he showed up alive in Fort Worth, his hometown, and announced he had been blind drunk since last Friday.

ma Crime Bureau, Fort Worth Detective John Dunwoodie and insurance agents started an investigation of the 36-year-old Hagler's insurance policies.

They were reported to have found policies totaling more than $55,000. The $55,000 was reported to include a $10,000 national service policy made out to his four sons, another $10,000 policy made out to his mother and a $25,000 policy made out to a business partner.

All but the national service policy were reported to pay double in case of violent death. Newsmen asked Detective Dunwoodie how much more insurance than the $55,000 Hagler had.

HURRICANE

western part of the state suffered a weather calamity of its own. Flash floods in low lying communities along tributaries to the Ohio, Monongahela and Allegheny rivers caused the deaths of nine persons and drove hundreds of families from their homes.
Low-lying sections of Pittsburgh's downtown Golden Triangle were flooded and the waters still were rising.
Canada Counts Its Dead
Canada was just beginning to count its dead and injured in the hurricane. Police in Weston, Ont., estimated that the death toll there might go as high as 26. Ten persons in two automobiles were feared drowned when the vehicles overturned and fell into the river.
Some of Hazel's victims were electrocuted by fallen power lines. Others were killed by falling trees. Many were drowned in raging rivers or died in automobile accidents caused by the blinding wind and rains.
Hundreds were listed as missing in Toronto and low-lying land along the Humber and Don rivers. Flash floods sweeping through Toronto, carried away whole houses and left thousands homeless. Communications and transportation were disrupted.
Damages in Millions
Flood damage to homes, factories and stores in Toronto, which has a population of more than 1.1 million persons, was expected to run into millions of dollars.
Seven inches of rain fell in Toronto in 24 hours.
The Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways halted all trains to western Canada. Two trains were derailed and others marooned by washouts. Helicopters and boats rescued hundreds of persons from roofs and automobile tops.

According to Nix, Kohler went to the telephone to call the police, at the same time telling the man, "Please go away and leave me alone."
It was then, according to witnesses, that Kohler fired the shots. The victim was taken to the Shamrock Hospital in serious condition, but was expected to live, according to hospital authorities.
He was later transferred to the Veterans Hospital in Amarillo.

much," Dunwoodie said.
Frank A. St. Clair, 47, of Irving, Tex., a friend and business associate, said he and Hagler tried to take out $25,000 double indemnities on each other, but the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States turned them down after they had made the first payment.
It was not determined whether the $25,000 he tried to take out on St. Clair was the $25,000 policy made out to the "business associate," St. Clair said he was not sure whether Hagler knew this policy had been rejected.
Hagler was reported earlier to have tried to get a $90,000 policy from Great Southern Life Insurance Co. He didn't complete his application after he was told he'd have to take a "very thorough" examination.
St. Clair blamed "fast-talking insurance agents" for the policies Hagler had.
"He always was a sucker for an insurance salesman," St. Clair said. "Any policies we had together were on the up and up and had no relation to this killing case."
Hagler's divorced wife, Doris, denied that she lent him her new Mercury automobile two days before the body was found.

Ford To Bring Back Continental
The Ford Motor Company will introduce in 1955 a high-quality, low-volume automobile to be known as the Continental, William Clay Ford, company vice-president announced Saturday.
Ford said the new car will be a modern version of the Lincoln Continental, first built in 1940 and continued until 1948.
"The Continental will not be produced in large volume, but will be as near a custom-built automobile as our techniques and resources will permit," Ford said.
A new plant in Ecorse Township, Mich., is under construction for the exclusive manufacture of the new car.

Burglary Suspect Quizzed

SHAMROCK — (Special) — Law enforcement officers from here were in Clinton, Okla., Saturday, to question James Edward Felton, 19, of Amarillo, in connection with three robberies and a car theft in Shamrock last week, according to Wheeler County Attorney Guy Hardin.
Felton was to be arraigned Saturday in Oklahoma City before the United States Commissioner on a charge of transporting a stolen motor vehicle across a state line, Hardin said.
Hardin said Felton admitted robberies Monday in Shamrock at the Station, the Gulf Service Station, and the Douglas Greenhill Drive-in.
When picked up, the 19-year-old parolee from a Texas penal institution, had a bag containing $170.60 and a set of burglary tools.
Paul Maloy of the Clinton Police said Felton confessed eight robberies and one each in Erick, and Clinton, Okla.
The stolen Shamrock car was returned to its owner, Johnny Wilson.

Six Streets Worked On
Four Pampa street blocks Saturday were being excavated, one was being filled in and a sixth was having its curb-and-gutter work completed.
City Director of Public Works James Cowan said four blocks on Powell were being excavated, preparatory to being paved. The 700 block of North Faulkner was being filled in, before curb-and-gutter work was undertaken. And the 400 block of Williston was having its base hauled in.
These six blocks plus Varmon Drive will be stabilized in the second and third weeks of November, Cowan said.
As for the graveling of streets, several blocks are ready, but must await the completion of all paving in accordance with city policy.

Knife, Fork Club Names Speaker

Cameron Ralston, former head of Chicago's famous "Committee of 100" against gangsterism, will speak the night of Oct. 25 to the Top of Texas Knife and Fork Club in the Pampa High School Cafeteria.

Title of his speech will be "The United States — Republic or Fool's Paradise," according to Mrs. Clotilde Thompson, club secretary-treasurer.

Ralston is the director of public forums for the U. S. Department of the Interior. Son of a Scotch weaver, he was born and reared in Paisley, Scotland, and came to America in 1914. He purposely worked as a coal miner and laborer at other jobs under the same conditions as other men in order to gather first-hand information in his search for facts.

Before he entered college in the United States after serving in the A. E. F. during the first World War, he learned his philosophy of life the "hard way" as he continued his daily labor.

He is by no means bearish on the chances of the United States for the future. He does not fear frontal assault from without. The danger to this nation as Ralston sees it, is from within.

Wal, neighbors, I moseyed down to catch "Hayride" a new show which is just a bunch of the gold-darned hillbilly music pickers you ever heard'd. Feller sittin' next to me was from deep down in the hills, and I figgered as how he'd be whoopin' and hollerin'. Even the city slickers was enjoyin' the music of Zag, the Ozark Mountain Boy, and the Coon Crick Gals and the Foggy Mountain Boys and Sunshine Sue and all the young 'uns.

But this feller sat through the first part without crackin' a smile. Just set there, with a froze-up look on his face. Finally, durin' intermission, he turned to me and he said, "I been studyin' that feller there in the blue-checked shirt.

Nancy Olson Lionel Hampton

Finally figgered him out. Knew I seed him afore. It was down in Miami, it was. He was singin' with Roy Acuff and the Smoky Mountain Boys. I knew I seed him afore, and it worried me."

During the second part of the show, he had a good time. So did everyone else, but I'm glad there weren't no third act. Two plumb wore me out.

An actress leads one kind of life. A housewife leads quite another. To be both requires a great deal of juggling, patience and intelligence. Nancy Olson seems to be one of the few successful jugglers.

Nancy is primarily a movie actress, yet she spends no more than three or four weeks a year at it. Of late, she's doing some television—like her appearance on CBS-TV's "The Royal Family," first of "The Best of Broadway" series. But, here again, the career comes second to the home.

"I had a wonderful offer for a TV part," she was saying, "but I had to turn it down. Liza was just starting to school and there were so many other things around the house. I just felt I couldn't take the part."

Liza is three, her oldest daughter, off to nursery school this year for the first time. Jennifer, the other child, is one.

Nancy is married to Alan Jay Lerner, the playwright responsible for the book and lyrics of "Brigadoon" among other things. She thinks that their being in allied professions helps their marriage—at least insofar as his understanding her career—but they never work together.

"We may make suggestions to each other," she says, "but that's all. Of course, I realize that a great deal of enthusiasm is expected of me when I read anything Alan writes. Especially when he's down — depressed. Then I'll say it's good even when I know it isn't. I know he'll find out for himself that it isn't, and meanwhile this keeps his spirits up."

At the moment, she has that "great deal of enthusiasm" for his latest—the book and lyrics of a new musical she says is better than "Brigadoon." But she would not tell the name nor setting. "I'm sworn to secrecy," she said. She manages the Hollywood end of her career through great cooperation on the West Coast. They shoot all the scenes of her pictures without her, first, then she flies out for three weeks and they do her scenes all at once. Then she steps on a plane and flies back. The housewife emerges triumphant.

Lionel Hampton flew low into the haven of jazz, Basin Street, and the place was really rocking. Sammy Davis, Jr., Joan Benny Baker, Jack Carter, and a sprinkling of assistant district attorneys dotted the crowd. Hamp had his vibrato phone vibrating. But Basin Street is too small for the big band he brought along—the noise level was so high you drowned in sound.

Bennett Cerf's wonderful line on NBC's great program, "Conversation": "What you should look at if you want to see old-fashioned beauty are the covers of the paperback books that you can find at the railroad stations. These books have beautiful women on the jackets, but there are no jackets on the beautiful women!"

A Wild Spree

You've seen it. Some young punk goes on a spending spree. He has blown up $1500 or so in three days making the rounds of the spots with the older boys.

When the authorities catch up with him his unbelievably old mother looks in her tea pot. Half her life savings are gone. Public wrath cries for punishment. What funny, funny people we are!

Young (as nations go) Uncle Sam has gone on a world's record money binge... doing all the global "spots" with the older boys of Europe.

We wake up. Half the nation's savings are gone. We just sit quiet.

Why?

It was hocus pocus, legerdemain, hand-faster-than-the-eye.

We keep looking in the post. And there are more dollars there than ever.

It was the VALUE of the dollars the rioter took when he started out to throw dollars, resources, sons of mothers literally up for grabs.

It was never called by its right name, this squandering spree.

It was "defense." It was lend-lease. It was Marshall Plan Aid. Sometimes it was initiated. Called UN, NATO, or EDC.

It was bottled and labelled AGGRESSOR REPELLENT. Shipped like mad to Asia. No matter that the aggressors were immune.

At home it was "social gains," social security, social justice, civil rights.

With a smirk they called it peace, industrial and among nations.

With a perfectly straight face they would call it WELFARE.

Why do we gnaw our finger ends, chain smoke and gulp sleeping pills like no population on Earth?

Business stays near all-time peaks. Private and corporate savings, life insurance in force are at record tops.

Our national indoor sport is bragging about our standard of living.

We have mastered more tools and instruments than any other people. Our arms and armaments are the terror of the wide world.

And, yet, we're either uneasy or scared.

Why?

It is because we feel rather than know that, when you can't trust Uncle Sam and the integrity of his currency, you can't trust anything.

We didn't like what we had seen. We were told it would be different if the Republicans came in.

But inflation, political money meddling, is still national policy.

No one has any idea what tomorrow's dollar will be worth. Least of all the tinkers in the Treasury and the Federal Reserve. It will be based on pure political expediency. To continue the Squandermania, the politicians of both parties have learned to love expediency above all things. Uncle Sam must continue to SEEM richer than anybody.

If this is self government any longer, then we the middle people, Uncle Sam's better self, will have to act. It is time he sobered up.

The remedy may be hard for the political parties to swallow. It is HARD MONEY!

We will have to demand of our Congressmen and Senators that they sell us back our gold for the currency they gave us when they grabbed it.

Give-away subsidies to our own people, the richest on Earth. Four billions shipped annually to perpetuate Fabianism, Socialism, Pseudo-Communism of the morally bankrupt Europeans might look as silly as they are corrupting if they had to be handed out in gold or money you could swap for gold.

It was our gold in the first place. It is still our gold. DEMAND they sell it BACK to us at a fair price. Make Uncle Sam a thrifty, honest, sober government again. Right now!

THE DOCTOR SAYS

By EDGAR P. JORDAN, M. D.

The removal of tonsils and adenoids is probably performed more often than any other operation. Nevertheless it is not a procedure to be entered into lightly and certainly many of us can keep our tonsils and adenoids all through life without causing any harm.

The tonsils are small nodules or lumps lying in the back of the throat made up of lymphoid tissue. The exact function, if any, of this lymphoid tissue is uncertain though it is possible that it may trap and perhaps destroy germs entering the body as one breathes in air.

Possibly this view of the function of the tonsils may change, but up to recently, at least, they have not been considered to be of much value to the body and beyond doubt they can often be removed without any sense of loss.

THERE ARE a number of reasons which have been advanced for not taking the tonsils out. Removal of the tonsils is therefore advised against in the presence of tuberculosis of the lungs, severe diabetes, several kinds of blood diseases and when the tonsils themselves are acutely inflamed.

Most physicians also feel that they should not be removed at the time when polio is frequent in the immediate community. There are some other reasons for not taking the tonsils out.

THE REASONS FOR taking out tonsils are not always so clear-cut. Frequent attacks of acute tonsillitis is one. Difficulty in swallowing, breathing, or talking caused by enlarged tonsils is another.

Do you possess it's one of those low down PROPHETS OF GLOOM who keeps circulating the rumor that Dewey's gonna be the candidate in 1956?

"The Measure Of Man"

In the last issue I was quoting from the book "The Measure of Man" by Joseph Wood Krutch. Mr. Krutch quoted the results of intelligence tests made by the army as to the relative standing of educators compared with other classifications. They were at the bottom of the list.

Now I want to quote a few gems from this book: "Educators, sociologists, and lawmakers have begun to act as though man were absolutely incapable of choice, of self-determination, or of any autonomous activity. The man they have in mind when they describe their principles, plan their societies, or draw up their codes is something significantly, perhaps fatally, different from any creature who could possibly escape the catastrophe which many former confident 'engineers' have now begun to predict.

"Moreover and merely by being treated as though he could do nothing for himself man is, perhaps, actually becoming less capable of doing so. Any society which not merely tells its members that they are automata-but also treats them as though they were, runs the risk of becoming a society in which human capacities atrophy because they are less and less rewarded, or even tolerated, as well as less and less acknowledged.

"As the individual becomes, either in theory or in fact, less capable of doing anything for himself the question what may be done to him inevitably comes to seem more and more interesting."

"Thus sociology begins to promise to achieve by scientific methods all that which religion and moral philosophy, proceeding on false assumptions, failed to accomplish.

"In its mildest and most defensible form the result of this conviction is simply the whole broad, benevolent effort of social reformers to relieve poverty, provide opportunities for education and remove as far as possible all obviously corrupting features from the environment in which the individual grows to maturity."

"What is more important, both law and education have followed suit, and in the name of what are variously called 'humane' attitudes tend to treat the average man as though he were, indeed, the helpless creature implied by Marx or Freud and described in naturalistic fiction."

"Thus the education which is accorded man comes more and more to be thought of in terms of 'adjusting' or 'conditioning' him to predetermined opinions or attitudes; and educational theory tends to be based more and more on the Pavlovian assumption that something should be done to him in much the same way that something is done to a monkey being taught tricks or a dog trained to bark and bite on the proper occasion. In a similar fashion 'social legislation,' which professes the intention to do him good, decides what he ought to have and then gives it to him, disregarding both the fact that he may want something else and that, if it is more in accord with the best kind of human nature if he were permitted to get it for himself. Criminology - again in the name of a 'humanity' which begins by depriving the criminal of all human attributes - proceeds on the assumption that those guilty of 'antisocial conduct' have been in no way responsible for that conduct and that they are most likely to be reformed if they are first told that they, like everybody else, are mere victims of their experiences, and then promised that they will be reconditioned. Thus - and again in the name of humanity - it assumes that to urge him to be a man and to choose good rather than evil would be both unscientific and inhumane."

Refuse To Permit Questions "As influence, power, and authority in our society pass, as they are passing, from philosophers and theologians into the hands of those who call themselves 'human engineers' whether they happen to be functioning as lawmakers, publicists, teachers, psychologists, or even advertising managers, it is passing from those who were at least aware of what value judgment they were making to those who are not; passing into the hands of men who act on very inclusive and faithful judgments while believing that they are acting on self-evident principles immune to criticism. They do not know what they are making us into and refuse to permit us even to ask. Moreover, in so far as their attempt to 'condition' the human beings on whom they practice their techniques are successful, they make it less, and less probable that their fatal assumptions will ever be questioned."

Return To Moral Discourse Mr. Krutch continues: "If the proposal that we should 'return to God' seems to some impossibly ambitious, the counter-proposal that we should simply begin to talk will certainly seem to others absurdly inadequate. How can anything so insubstantial as Discourse affect anything so substantial as the march of history or the operation of economic forces? Yet 'mere talk,' if it is actually part of the Discourse proposed, may have consequences greater than at first sight seem possible. Could, for example, any group of men have decided that hundreds of thousands of members of a particular ethnic group had better be systematically destroyed if those leaders had ever genuinely participated in any Discourse which recognized as valid the concepts

Writers Telling About South Don't Give True Picture

By THURMAN SENSING

There is a small - but voluble - coterie of writers in the South who, with any encouragement at all - or even without any encouragement - take it upon themselves to speak for the South, to present the Southern viewpoint.

In doing so, unfortunately, these writers almost invariably make light of Southern customs and traditions - its "solidity" in national politics, its adherence to the states rights philosophy, its traditional "Bible Belt" conservatism, its customs in race relations.

At the same time, they do their level best to portray the South as becoming enlightened after years of darkness - due to the stimulating influence, of course, of their own "liberal" minds - and well on the way to abandoning its "horse and buggy" philosophy. They see some hope for the South.

These writers, along with all other individuals in this nation, of course have the right to their own opinions and to have their opinions expressed. And, so far as these liberal writers are concerned, there is no objection to their expressing themselves so long as they make it clear it is their own opinions they are expressing and that they are not speaking authoritatively for the South as a whole. It is this latter fault to which they are highly susceptible.

Unfortunately, also, is the fact that it is very difficult if not impossible to find a magazine of national circulation that will accept articles on the South by Southern writers other than those who either poke fun at its "hidebound" traditions or attempt to show that the "Old South" is breaking up and is now on the march in the ranks of the liberals.

Could it be, by the way, that the Southern writers referred to above write as they do because they know this is the only kind of articles they can sell; or do they really believe what they write?

Regardless of the reason, it is all too apparent that the national magazines will not accept articles giving the traditional conservative Southern viewpoint. They will accept, for instance, articles decrying the South's attitude on segregation or attempting to show the South is readily and willingly abandoning segregation, but where can one be found that will use an article around which the Discourse has usually revolved? Could the leaders of the Russian state have deliberately assumed as a primary premise that moral considerations have no place in political thinking if they had done the same? How can we effectively combat them unless we deny that the end always justifies the means; or that there are no values other than those measurable in terms of survival and material goods? And how can we deny any of these things without recourse to the terms of Moral Discourse. Can we proceed to any other measures if we do not begin by recognizing the indispensability of such Discourse? How can we protest against inhumanity, treachery, ruthlessness, deceit and indecency unless we believe that the opposite of each has some substantial reality? How can we object to the enslavement of mankind unless we assume that men are capable of freedom?

The above is right along what this column has been preaching in season and out of season, and yet our professional "educators" refuse to talk about the morality of their acts.

Will World Historic Changes Lead To War Or Long Peace?

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON - Diplomats here cannot decide whether an inevitable collision or live-and-let-live co-existence between the Democratic and Communist powers has been produced by the latest and prospective realignment of the world's military and economic balances.

It was, however, agreed that these historic changes portend either a terrible war for survival or promise a long period of peace. Not since the Congress of Vienna, which shored up a broken and bankrupt Europe after the Napoleonic Wars, in their opinion, has there been such a revolutionary revision of great nations' relations with one another.

Such leading actors in the current drama as President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles, Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Eden, as well as their European counterparts, share that viewpoint. Despite a sort of breathless confidence, none dares to predict how the curtain will fall on the pageant they have just written.

Prospective formation of the Western European Union, as the new Brussels-NATO organization has been formally baptized, reflects an about-face in Anglo-American policy. Since the rout of Napoleon, Britain has held aloof from continental entanglements.

Believing that her economic and security interests were best served by a balance-of-power strategy, playing France against Germany and vice versa, and keeping Russia weak in Europe and the Far East, London has pursued a dog-in-the-manger attitude.

Now she promises to commit four divisions and a tactical air force, a good bite of her entire defense establishment, to Europe. Had it not been for this pledge, France would not have agreed to any kind of an association with Germany.

But the United States has given equally solemn commitments, not only in Europe but in every part of the world. The nation which refused to become entangled in Wilson's League of Nations only 35 years ago is the ultimate guarantor of the West's new security organization. Had we not underwritten all these pacts, they would be uncollectible promissory notes.

Even a year ago, it would have been inconceivable for any Administration to agree to retain four or more divisions in Europe and the British Isles for 44 years, which is the proposed life of the Brussels-NATO alliance.

Despite lingering doubts of eventual agreement, the regrouping may mean that France and Germany will abandon their historic enmity, which has fomented three wars within 100 years. But if they do agree to live in peace and friendship, it will be only because of American and British willingness to serve as a combination of European umpire and watchdog.

Our Pacific commitments guarantee the security of almost every nation in that vast area against Communist attack. Linked with us there, although as minor partners, are Britain, France, Australia, New Zealand, Japan, Korea, the Philippines and Thailand.

Had these alliances existed 40 years ago, diplomats believe that the world might have been spared the two global wars. Their theory is that the Germany of the Kaiser or Hitler would not have dared to precipitate a conflict, if they had known at the time that the U.S. and Britain would have gone to the aid of France. Nor would Japan have dared to embark on her frenzied military adventures in the Far East.

These western shifts have had resounding repercussions on Russian foreign policy. In an effort to disrupt Western European Union, Moscow now offers the unification of Germany, free election and withdrawal of Red troops. In order to counter our offensive in the Far East, the Kremlin has agreed to transform China from a satellite into a full partner in Communism Incorporated. She also proposes atomic disarmament.

With the process of revision of these relationships still in an embryonic or fluid state, it is impossible to discern the outcome. It can be seen, however, that once both sides consolidate their military, territorial and diplomatic gains, unforeseen tensions will produce another and unimaginably disastrous battlefield showdown. Or it can be seen that, with the two alliances stalemated, there will emerge an uneasy century of peace like that which ensued after the Congress of Vienna in 1815.

Mr. Dulles' diplomacy is running to form. In the plan worked out at London to rearm Germany, the United States is to keep its divisions in Europe, but Britain is given the benefit of an escape clause. It will keep its divisions there, too, except that if what Britain judges to be an overseas emergency should arise, then Britain reserves the right to withdraw them. Dulles reserved no right of any sort with reference to American troops.

He did make a speech in mournful tones saying that Americans were astounded with European inaction, and that, if the present meeting failed to get Germany started on the job of rearming, the United States might feel compelled to withdraw all its forces from the continent. But Dulles has voiced this muted threat so often that nobody pays any attention to it and it is to be doubted that he believes it himself. The Europeans are accustomed to having Uncle Sam do it for them, and they don't look for old Dulles to learn new tricks.

Dulles has given them renewed assurance on this point in a sidebar agreement reached with the French whereby the United States will pay the bill for continuing to maintain French troops in what is left of Indo-China. These American funds are to be paid directly to the three native states of Indo-China instead of being funneled thru France.

This arrangement puts the responsibility of directing the rearmament of the native states to communism upon the United States, and takes France off the hot seat. Now our soviet complaints of "imperialism" will fall upon this country rather than upon France, also America has no stake in Indo-China and France has large surviving colonial interests there.

other aspects to the attitudes of the South and other explanations for the actions of the South than are indicated by those who would belittle its traditions and remake it to suit their fancies.

Remember the popular song of a few years ago, "The Merry-Go-Round Broke Down"? I was reminded of it the other day when I read that the Government's Export-Import Bank is now cooking up a scheme to subsidize exporters so we can sell more capital goods abroad. Excuse - foreign competition is getting too stiff.

Well, well, we have spent, in the past several years, tens of billions of dollars, under the Marshall Plan and other plans, for the express purpose of building up competing foreign industry. One of the alleged reasons for this was that we customarily sell too much to, and buy too little from, our foreign friends.

But, as soon as we get them in a position to even things up a little, we immediately turn around and put them in an inferior position again. I suppose the next thing will be to even things up again.

Ho-hum. What I'm wondering now is just how long it will be before this international monetary merry-go-round breaks down - and just how far away from our starting point we'll be when that happens.

BIGGER - DEBT: If the late Lord John Maynard Keynes were alive today he would be delighted to see how well our socialist bureaucrats are following his advice on deficit spending. At the end of fiscal 1954 (last June 30) that year's deficit was $3 billions, whereas Mr. Eisenhower's advisors demanded and got a $6 billion hike to bring the legal debt ceiling up to $281 billions.

This was supposed to be a temporary increase to tide the administration over to the end of fiscal 1955 when the ceiling was to go back to $275 billions. But the deficit which was $3 billions last June is now estimated at $4,700,000,000 for fiscal 1955, with three-fourths of the year yet to go. Instead of restoring the debt ceiling to its former limit, the presidential advisers are certain to set up the howl for another increase, which they undoubtedly will get.

A balanced budget, despite campaign promises, has become an annually recurring joke, while the administration, like the preceding New Deal, enthusiastically pursues the Keynesian theory of deficit spending. Therefore it won't make much difference on the economic scene whether a Republican or a Democratic Congress is elected this fall. The socialist, free-spending leaders of both our major political parties subscribe to the theory that it's wise to spend more than you make. So the big give-away, deficit spending, and higher debt, will still be the order of the day.

TO HELP PEOPLE: Administration apologists and supporters, as well as all the other Keynesians, assure us that an unbalanced budget really is a blessing in disguise because it's used "to help people." So-called financial writers for the left-wing press hail it with joy. One says it "needs no apology;" that "The budget must be used to help people." Another solemnly expounds this curious bit of economic theory: "... thus the borrowing will be an automatic inflationary (or at least stabilizing) force in our economy." Since when has inflation become a "stabilizing" force?

Every principle of sound economics and fiscal honesty is violated by the specious argument that deficit spending adds to purchasing power. A more flagrant example of gross deception would be hard to find. This is how it works: Suppose you are a merchant; you hand one of your hard-up customers $100 out of your cash register and say, "Now spend this in my store." How much has that added to genuine purchasing power? Not one cent. It merely moves some goods off the merchant's shelf, goods for which he himself is paying but which somebody else is getting.

Our whole system of high debt, high spending, subsidies, and foreign aid is based upon this fallacious theory. Through our subsidy programs we buy up great quantities of commodities, store them at enormous expense, then give foreign countries the money to "buy" these surplus commodities back from us at lower prices than our government paid the farmers. Who foots the bill? You do, you, the American taxpayer.

FORCED CHARITY: You have to foot the bill because our government is determined to make you "help people" all over the world, whether you want to or not. And you haven't any choice about whom you'll help. You can't say, "I'll make gifts only to my friends." Just recently, for example, Mr. Harold Stassen arranged for you to present 100 locomotives and 5,000 freight cars to India. Mr. Nehru who cannot turn his back on either Communist Russia or Communist China, a

I was reminded of it the other day when I read that the Government's Export-Import Bank is now cooking up a scheme to subsidize exporters so we can sell more capital goods abroad. Excuse - foreign competition is getting too stiff.

Well, well, we have spent, in the past several years, tens of billions of dollars, under the Marshall Plan and other plans, for the express purpose of building up competing foreign industry. One of the alleged reasons for this was that we customarily sell too much to, and buy too little from, our foreign friends.

But, as soon as we get them in a position to even things up a little, we immediately turn around and put them in an inferior position again. I suppose the next thing will be to even things up again.

Ho-hum. What I'm wondering now is just how long it will be before this international monetary merry-go-round breaks down - and just how far away from our starting point we'll be when that happens.

Panhandle Artist Spurs Interest In Creativeness

By BILL KERR
Pampa News Staff Writer

The old Cabot Company offices on W. Browning are quiet these days. But Monday nights considerable activity may be seen by peering through a rear window of the usually lifeless building. Dord Fitz' art class is in session.

Traipsing into the building about 7 p.m. is what appears to be a group of bobby-soxers, almost all of whom are clad in Levis or slacks. But closer examination reveals members beyond that age group.

Top Instructor

Some 25 Pampans are gathering for their three-hour session at the palette, canvas and easel. And to an artist, everyone echoes Mrs. Tom Eller.

"Dord can't be beat as an instructor. He draws a person out, making him do his best work. He's the initiating force that has stimulated once-latent art interest in Pampa."

Fitz, native of Higgins, who presently lives on a 400-acre ranch 20 miles southeast of town, is affectionately referred to by many of his students, spread all over the Panhandle and northwest Oklahoma, as the "circuit rider artist."

Tours Panhandle

In addition to his classes in Pampa he tours several hundred square miles of Panhandle each week instructing at his Western Art Center for the Shattuck, Arnet (Okla.) and Higgins area, and other centers at Canadian, Borger and Amarillo.

"There is a stronger cultural appreciation in the Southwest than in any other part of the country. We have proportionately more Ph.D.s and trained people in this area probably than any place else because of companies like Cabot and Phillips," Fitz emphasized.

"Most important, we are more progressive in the acceptance of various phases of cultural change. It makes for a healthier artistic and cultural atmosphere."

According to Mrs. Dorothy Station, it is unusual to have an art class as advanced as Dord's in Pampa or in the Panhandle. "Just look around and there will be cause to doubt. We have been fortunate in having Fitz with us."

Taught in Kentucky

The local artist comes to the Panhandle with a wealth of training.

Graduated from Central State College, Richmond, Ky., Fitz undertook further study at the Chicago Art Institute, and finally grabbed a Master of Arts Degree at the nationally known Art Department of the University of Iowa, where he studied under the renowned American artist, Grant Wood.

Following his student days, Fitz returned to his alma mater where for 10 years (1937-1947) he was in charge of all advanced painting classes. Before returning to the Panhandle in 1951, because of the health of his son, Brewster, he was on the faculty of the University of Kentucky. During these years he helped set up art education programs throughout the state for the university, and edited the Kentucky Art School's bulletin.

Holds Student Exhibits

Fitz returned to his home country some three years ago, determined to stimulate art enthusiasm here.

Last spring he held an art exhibition of all his student's work at the Western Art Studio, an abandoned school near his ranch in Higgins.

"So many people were interested in the exhibit beside the students that all 350 of us who attended barely had room to stand," according to one of the students who attended.

One-Man Show

Students from his five art centers will be going to Amarillo Tuesday to view this international collection of 25 paintings and 15 original prints. Every year he also brings to the Oklahoma artists' show to the Panhandle.

Fitz own work was recently on exhibition in Amarillo. He was honored with a one-man show at the recent Tri-State Fair, and many of his paintings have been seen in galleries all over the country.

Diversity Of Students

Fitz's Pampa class in 1953 was concerned with beginning problems in painting. They started out with a limited color palette, and simple space structures. They have graduated to higher matters in this, the second, year of the course.

The range of his pupils runs a wide gamut of backgrounds.

Bob Norton, 808 N. Somerville, a newcomer to Pampa, is in his second year of the course, though but three years in the community. An engineer in research and development with Cabot, and an M.I.T. grad from Twin Falls, Idaho, his bent is to master more of the artists' fundamentals and mechanics. Norton favors modernist abstraction, particularly the late German master, Paul Klee.

TRIESTE —UP— When the new frontier between Trieste and Yugoslavia was set down by the London Italy-Yugoslav settlement, it cut through a farmhouse, it was discovered Wednesday.

The yellow painted line set down by U. S. and British engineers cut the farm in two, leaving an olive grove, one room and kitchen under Italian administration and two rooms, stables and a backyard under Yugoslav rule.

The Irish potato actually is a South American plant. For stiff egg whites, have the eggs at room temperature before beating.

The Great Lakes contain one half the fresh water of earth. George Washington is carried on U. S. Army rolls as a three-star general.

Nervous Time Here For Auto Designers

DETROIT, Oct. 16 —UP— The "nervous season" has arrived for the men who design the new model automobiles.

The public will start returning its verdict on the new cars when public introductions start next month. A miscalculation anywhere along the line in putting that new car together can cost an auto firm millions of dollars.

Take the case of Virgil M. Exner, Exner, 45, is chief stylist for Chrysler Corp. He is the man responsible for the radically changed Plymouths, Dodges, DeSotos and Chryslers which got their first showing this week at a press preview in Detroit.

To Correct Bad Guesses

Exner's job was to correct bad guesses made by the Chrysler Corp. in the post-war years. Poor designs were blamed for a big share in Chrysler sales in recent years. Chrysler, which formerly sold some 20 per cent of all new cars, slipped to 12 or 13 per cent this year.

Exner, who had been working in Chrysler's advance styling section, was picked by L. L. Colbert, company president, to give the corporation's new cars.

Chrysler liked the job he did. It spent $250 million to get the styles changed drastically on all its cars for a comeback this year.

But Exner is waiting now for the verdict that counts — the verdict from the public when the new cars go on sale.

Ed Cole, chief engineer for Chevrolet, gave newsmen an insight into some of the things taken into consideration in developing a new model automobile at the Chevrolet press preview this week.

The first consideration, of course, is "what the public likes." But other considerations are involved also. For example, there are some 1,500 parts on the new Chevrolet. In designing each part, a company first must decide whether the part can be produced, and produced economically.

For each of those 1,500-odd parts, Cole said, it almost must be determined just how they will be produced, and how they will be assembled. Those can be major problems. T. H. Keating, Chevrolet manager, said the changes in the 1955 model were so great Chevrolet had to build three new plants to get all the parts.

Must Consider Used Values

But, Cole said, besides making a car that will appeal to the public now, the used car market also must be taken into consideration. The designers must decide whether the car will have value later as a used car. If it doesn't, new car sales could suffer in future years.

The major consideration is style. According to General Motors stylist, Harvey Earl, women are the dominant factor in the majority of car sales nowadays. Women, the auto manufacturers have found, look for style.

Exner and other stylists are waiting nervously now to see if their calculations are right. They know they're usually right, but they know too the penalties are costly if they are wrong.

that's sweeping Buick to record sales in October!

BUICK BONUS Record-making allowance in October

BUICK BONUS Higher resale value

BUICK BONUS Tomorrow's styling today

One look at the national sales figures tells you this: Buick is outselling every other car in America — regardless of price class — except two of the "low-priced three." And just to keep sales soaring — we're willing to give a whole of an allowance this month — to keep success rolling in high. So come in — get a car and a deal that are too good to miss.

Year after year, Buicks have always carried a high resale value. But the 1954 Buick has an even bigger edge in its year-ahead styling. It will still be fresh and new-looking when other '55 models come out. So the new Buick you buy today will keep you plenty of dollars ahead when you trade it in.

You can see it on every new Buick on the road — glamorous new-day styling keynoted by that broad panoramic windshield that most other cars won't have till 1955 or later. And with this advanced styling, you get Buick's record-high V8 power, luxurious room and comfort, that famed Million Dollar Ride — and all for prices that start just a few dollars above those of the so-called "low-price three." Result: Buick is now outselling all other cars in America except two of these "low-price three!"

THE Argyle Hotel was closed and locked. Jim pounded on the glass-paneled front door. He could make out the dim figure of Toby Argyle sitting alone at a back table. Toby looked around, made a vague gesture of dismissal. He got up when Dunn kept up his racket.

Toby opened the door a crack and apparently came to the conclusion that since he had gone so far he might as well go farther. He swung the door wide, said, "Come on in then. We're closed up though." He walked the full length of the building and sat down again at his chosen table.

Jim shut and relocked the door, followed. He sat down at the table. "I'm very sorry about your daughter, Mr. Argyle."

That had the desired effect, penetrated the whisky haze for a moment. "Sorry? So you know. That's right. I remember now. Aggie phoned and said you knew S&J you might be able to see me. I'm to cooperate. Mrs. Oswald said so. What you want?"

"A couple of things," Jim said. "First, did you deliver any pitch wood to the Carlson place recently?"

"Never did," Toby said. "Tried to once or twice. Old Mrs. Oswald she wouldn't have any pitch around. Wanted nothing but dry pine and maybe a little heavy aspen. Says pitch is too dirty."

"About your daughter," Jim said quickly. "Tell me, did you or your wife ever give her a doll?"

Two fat tears rolled down Toby's face. "We never gave her anything. Except away. That's it. We didn't have her long enough, and we didn't have anything anyway. No, all we gave Aggie was a doll."

Agnes could have given the daughter a doll without Toby's

President Banks On Respect Of Farmers

By PATRICIA WIGGINS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—UP—Republican farm experts are hopeful the "Ike Story" will help swing the unpredictable rural vote to the GOP column in the November elections.

They describe the "Ike Story" as the President's personal warning in a Denver speech that election of a Democratic Congress would mean a "cold war" between the executive and legislative branches, with the public good going begging.

One high Republican, who declined to be quoted by name, said the GOP is counting on the President's warning to keep the farmers who "like Ike," but are "unhappy about other things," from voting Democratic.

While the President's Denver speech was not deemed primarily at farmers, his speech from Indianapolis Friday was—and was aimed at rural voters still on the fence.

Sentiment Not Jelled

The official, just returned from a cross-country swing, said he feels the voting sentiment of many farmers hasn't "jelled." He said on the one hand, many farmers are faced with drought losses and price declines and are "generally unhappy and unsure" about the future. But on the other, he said, is their respect for President Eisenhower.

"It's not so much that farmers are mad at the GOP farm program," he said. "It doesn't even go into effect until next year. It's just that the Democrats are blaming the drought and everything else on it and have spread confusion and doubt."

The Republican politicians have been trying to gauge the effect of recent Agriculture Department decisions on farm voting. The consensus is that removal of "total allotment" planting restrictions will definitely help in the north-west and that two other moves, first expected to be unpopular, may not "hurt" after all.

One of these was a poultry advisory committee's veto of a support program to bolster low egg prices. The poultry industry is so split on the issue that few repercussions are expected.

The other was Secretary Ezra T. Benson's order fixing the new wool prop level at 106 per cent of parity instead of the maximum 110 per cent allowed in the new wool act and requested by members of the wool industry. GOP pundits figure that since wool growers were satisfied with 105 per cent, when that figure was the proposed maximum during the wool program debate in Congress, they shouldn't be too unhappy with 106.

Benson on Tour

Meantime, the Agriculture Department, on the advice of party managers, is taking positive steps to help GOP candidates.

Benson has been satisfying so many speaking requests he has been in Washington only briefly in the past two months.

HOUSTON, Oct. 16 —UP— Southern Methodist, the team that knocked Rice out of sole possession of the Southwest Conference crown last year, passed for three touchdowns and a 20 to 6 victory over the Owls Saturday night. It maintained an eight-year home game "jinx" for Rice against the Mustangs.

Rice, a potent foe of the Mustangs in away-from-home games, hasn't won a home game against SMU since 1946. Saturday night, before an estimated 63,500 fans chilled in 89-degree weather, the Owls scored halfway through the first quarter and then bogged down against a stiff SMU defense.

The Mustangs climaxed long drives to score in the second, third and fourth periods on passes by

Porkers Stun Texas Longhorns To Stay Unbeaten

SHARP RAMBLES

Buddy Sharp, junior quarterback for the Fighting Harvesters, is shown during a 15-yard run on the first Harvesters offensive play in Friday night's game with the San Angelo Bobcats at Harvesters Stadium. Sharp, shown crossing his own 40 yard line after evading a would be Bobcat tackler, was run out of bounds on the 46 by Don Abbott who is shown converging in on Sharp. Early Surge Drops Longhorns, 20-7

AUSTIN, Oct. 16 —UP— Arkansas, the reformed doormat of the Southwest Conference, beat the University of Texas, 20 to 7, Saturday for its third conference victory and a continuation of a perfect record.

A 82-yard touchdown run by fullback Henry Moore highlighted the game. It was Arkansas' first victory over Texas at Austin since 1937.

The Razorbacks, pre-game "underdogs" in all three conference victories, were a near-unanimous choice of pre-season "experts" to finish last in the 1954 Southwest Conference football campaign.

Instead, they jumped Saturday to a commanding lead in the conference race after victories over Texas Christian, Baylor and Texas. Arkansas also has beaten Tulsa.

Arkansas overwhelmed Texas in every phase of the game, scoring all of its three touchdowns in the first half. The sensational play of Moore, sophomore back George Walker, back Preston Carpenter and the rugged Razorback forward wall thrilled 42,000 fans in Memorial Stadium.

Walker intercepted two Texas aeriels, Carpenter corralled another and raced 20 yards for Arkansas' first touchdown, and Moore and back Ronnie Underwood also gathered in wayward Texas passes.

Coach Bowden Wyatt's club now is the team to beat in the Southwest Conference race. Arkansas' last title was won in 1946.

The surprising Razorbacks, piling up 284 yards on the ground, spiced the first period with two quick-kicks by Walker, going for 67 and 50 yards, before Carpenter gathered in a pass thrown by Texas quarterback Charley Brewer, and darted 20 yards to score. Carpenter also converted.

Guard Gerald Henderson recovery a Texas fumble early in the second period, and 11 plays later substitute quarterback Buddy Benson plunged over from the 1, and also converted.

Arkansas turned back Texas' first serious scoring threat later in the second period, stalling the Longhorns on the six-inch line. The Razorbacks climaxed their scoring when Moore broke through the middle of the Texas forward wall and ran 82 yards, on a drive set

Army Blasts Duke, 28-14

DURHAM, N.C., Oct. 16 —UP— Army's thunderbolt backfield, striking behind precision blocking and Pete Vann's perfect faking, shattered Duke, 28 to 14, Saturday to upset the previously unbeaten Blue Devils before 42,500 fans.

The angry Cadets, avenging an upset by another southern team, South Carolina, sent fullback Pat Uebel, Vann and halfbacks Tom Eell, Mike Ziegler and Joseph Oyler ripping for 378 yards in a crushing ground game. Vann's famed passing arm seldom was used, but he completed a 58-yard aerial play to end Don Hollender to set up one touchdown.

Score by periods:

Duke 0 0 7 7-14

Army 0 14 7 7-28

Duke scoring: Touchdowns—Blaney, Pascal, Conversions—Sebastian, Nelson.

WT-NM Goes Class B; Doubles Veteran Limit

EL PASO, Oct. 16 —(Special)— West Texas-New Mexico baseball league members voted to advance to Class B status and doubled the veteran limit at the annual winter meeting in El Paso Saturday.

The jump from Class C will require approval of the executive committee of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues.

The league, which consists of six West Texas and two New Mexico members, voted to restrict clubs to no more than six veterans and no fewer than three rookies.

In keeping with its advance to Class B the league adopted a salary limit of $4,600.

In other action, the league required a performance deposit of $2,300 with the league office, to be repaid at the end of the season.

Changed league financing operations to require each team to pay $45 per night instead of the former per capita tax on paid admissions; set a maximum of $1 for general admission tickets, named a two-man executive committee of Jim Conlen of Abilene and Dick Azar of El Paso to enforce the salary limit; modified the five-day rule to limit it to rookies; eliminated the limitation upon conference between manager and pitcher; awarded Plainview the 1955 All-Star game; and re-elected Hal Sayles of Abilene to a three-year term as president.

OU Batters Kansas By 65-0 Tally

LAWRENCE, Kan., Oct. 16 —UP— Oklahoma's crushing Sooner, gunning for a national championship and their seventh straight undisputed Big Seven title, humiliated Kansas before 29,000 fans Saturday, using every one of a 36-man squad in a record-smashing 65 to 0 victory.

It was man against boy from the start. Bud Wilkinson's power-packed machine rolled to its 33th consecutive triumph and thoroughly convinced all but the blind of its right to the No. 1 ranking in the nation.

The only thing the Sooners ran out of was breath. They built up a 28 to 0 margin in the first half and then turned the easy assignment over to the third stringers. By this time, Kansas was so fagged and the third stringers so adept that the huge score mounted as the minutes dragged.

Most Decisive

The victory was the most decisive ever scored in the 52-year history of this football rivalry. The Oklahoma total was the biggest the Sooners have amassed since Wilkinson became coach seven years ago. The record before was 60 to 7 over Kansas in 1948.

Saturday's success added to the unprecedented record of Wilkinson coached teams. Never has a Big Seven rival beaten Wilkinson. The seven year record now shows 38 wins against two ties in 40 conference games.

With Sophomore Jim Harris carrying on for the injured Gene Calame, Oklahoma's first string sputtered and fumbled and had to be content with a mere 7 to 0 lead in the first period. But the next stanza brought three touchdowns, one of them a 91-yard run by Harris.

All Hands Play

Oklahoma showed anything but mercy, regardless of which team was on the field. The varsity made four touchdowns before sitting down for good. The second team added three markers, and the third finished making another three touchdowns.

Statistics further emphasized Oklahoma's unbelievable superiority, favoring first downs 26 to 6, an din yards rushing 53 to 37.

Score by periods:

Oklahoma 7 19 18 26-65

Oklahoma scoring: Touchdowns—Herdson 2, R. Burris, Harris, K. Burris, F. O'Neal 2, Long 2, J. O'Neal, Conversions—Leake, Pricer 3, Simmons.

Raiders Suffer 1st Loss Of Year

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 16 —UP— Chuck Johns, a speedy 185-pound halfback with a feather tread, scored three touchdowns Saturday night to lead Louisiana State to a 20 to 13 victory over heralded Texas Tech before 35,000 fans.

Johns, who used the Tech line for a private speedway most of the night, scored his third touchdown with less than two minutes left in the game to break a 13 tie and give LSU its first win of the season.

It appeared for a while unbeaten Tech, the pride of the West Texas Plains, might end up with a tie at least. But in the fading minutes, LSU battered to the Tech two yard line from where Johns carried it over for the victory.

Both Tech touchdowns came in the second half after LSU had built up a 13-0 lead. Late in the third period, halfback M. C. Northam took a pitchout from quarterback Jack Kirkpatrick, then lateraled to Lonnie Graham on the LSU 35 and he sped over for the first score.

The same play worked again early in the fourth period. Kirkpatrick pitched out to halfback Ronnie Herr who carried it to his own 35, lateraled to fullback

UCLA 'Nips' Stanford 72-0

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 16 —UP— UCLA's rock-ribbed football team, led by tailback Primo Villanueva, handed Stanford University its worst defeat in history Saturday, as the Bruins ran up a 72 to 0 score before 70,555 dumbfounded fans in Memorial Coliseum.

The worst previous licking Stanford had ever taken was the 49-0 defeat in 1901 by Michigan. But UCLA surpassed that mark early in the fourth period. It was the largest score ever compiled by UCLA.

Villanueva, the little senior left halfback, had a hand in the first five scores, making two of the touchdowns himself before Coach Henry (Red) Sanders began cleaning off the substitute bench.

The huge throng saw one of the great passing exhibitions of the season by Stanford's sophomore hurler, John Brodie. Before the game was over UCLA picked off eight interceptions for 218 yards, more yardage than Stanford made on its 22 completions out of 46 passes attempted.

UCLA came within one interception of equalling the Pacific Coast Conference record of nine in one game set by Washington two years ago. Late in the fourth period, tailback Sam Brown took a punt in the 18 and raced it back 82 yards for his second touchdown and the longest run of the game.

Frogs Stave Off Aggies To Win 21-20 SWC Tilt

COLLEGE STATION, Tex., Oct. 16 —UP— Texas Christian, led by Ronnie Clinkscales and Jimmy Swink, struck quickly and then held on for dear life Saturday to defeat Texas A&M 21 to 20 in a Southwest Conference football game.

Clinkscales ran and passed the Frogs to a 14 to 0 first quarter lead, and TCU dominated play throughout the first half.

But the Aggies, calling on new spirit and initiative in the second half, staged a rally that the Frogs won't soon forget.

There was hardly any doubt to outcome, however, until the Aggie drive pulled within one point of the Christians with just 90 seconds left.

TCU Scores First

Clinkscales ran three yards for a TD in the first quarter. Swink kicked the extra point.

TCU scores: First quarter—Clinkscales 3, Swink 2, Conversions—Clinkscales 2, Swink 1.

TCU scores: Second quarter—Clinkscales 2, Swink 1, Conversions—Clinkscales 2, Swink 1.

Irish Outlast Spartans, 20-19

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 16-UP—Notre Dame squeaked through the mud and rain Saturday for a 20-19 triumph over Michigan State before 57,238 fans as Jerry Planutis missed the potential tying point on his conversion try with 65 seconds to play.

The victory, Notre Dame's third against one defeat this season, broke a string of three straight Michigan State wins over the Irish, and gave the Spartans their third loss in four games this season.

It might have been a moral victory for the Spartans who were 13 points underdogs, but the Irish spotted the losers 13 points in the first period and then came back to tally one in each following session for the triumph.

All Weather Backs
Two Notre Dame all-weather backs, Joe Heap and Don Schaefer, were the stand-outs of the day as they crashed through the out-weighted Spartan line consistently after the Spartans grabbed their stunning lead.

Heap, who tallied two touchdowns on runs of one and 16 yards, finished the game with 113 yards net on 23 carries, while Schaefer, a slender junior with gazelle speed, even on a muddy field, gained 75 yards on 10 carries.

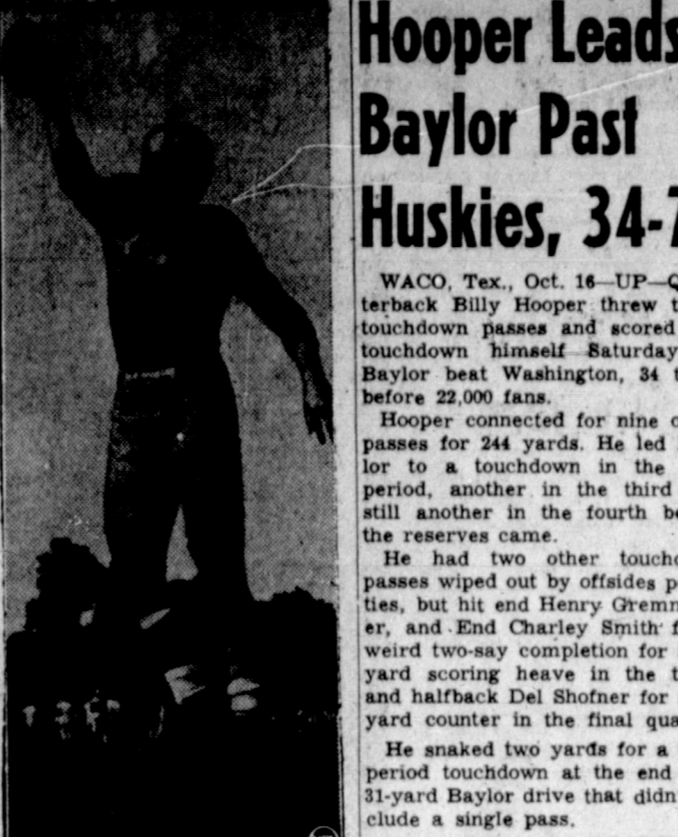

The performance of these two stalwarts set up the eventual winning points for Notre Dame and necessary. The clever Krenchman had the advantage until the final few minutes, but could not pin the husky Mexican before time ran out. Because of his last-minute aggressiveness, Gomez was awarded the decision after each had won a fall.

It was clean and gentlemanly and no tempers flared, which accounts for their continued friendship and their teaming together for tag matches. Gomez and Drapp will be the fans' favorites against the rough and rowdy Doc Gallagher and Vern Taft. The latter arrived in the territory too late to enter the 24-man tournament, but he has made his mark since moving into the hottest junior heavyweight area of the entire country.

In preliminary matches, the four men will set the stage for the main event with man-to-man duels. Gomez goes against the blond, veteran Gallagher, and Taft meets Drapp. Each match is slated for one fall or 15 minutes. The feature event goes for two best falls of three or one hour. Pampa's Shrine Club is sponsor.

By UNITED PRESS
Although 10 teams fell from the unbeaten list and four others suffered ties, Texas schoolboy football teams got through the sixth week end of the season with a minimum of shocking upsets.

Nearest thing to upsets of major proportions were Alice's 7-to-7 tie with previously undefeated-united McAllen in a District 8-AAA game and a similar 25-to-25 deadlock between Vernon and previously unbeaten Big Spring in 1-AAA.

Dallas Hillcrest in AAAA, Grand Prairie in AAA, San Antonio North-east, Columbus, Beville, Port Lavaca and Alvin in AA and Merkel, Joaquin and Woodville in A met their first defeats of the season.

Hillcrest was beaten by Dallas Sunset 20 to 7, Cleburne beat Grand Prairie 13 to 7, Gonzales stomped Northeast 33 to 0, Caldwell stopped Columbus 12 to 6, Refugio whitewashed Beville 27 to 0, Yoakum beat Port Lavaca 20 to 13, La-Marque whipped Alvin 27 to 12, Albany ran over Merkel 41 to 7, Logansport, La. nosed out Joaquin 6 to 0 and Trinity beat Woodville 13 to 7.

Carthage suffered its second tie of the season, 14 to 14, at the hands of New London and Teague was deadlocked for the first time, 6 to 6, by Rusk.

To win, he'll have to break the jinx hurting the front runners, Byron Nelson shot an eight-under-par 62 the first day, then collapsed on his putting the second day, taking more than 40 taps on the greens. He dropped far back, while Jack Harden took the lead. But the El Pasoan ran into trouble Saturday, and slipped out of the first 10.

Tied for fourth place in the $5,000 tournament at the Oso Municipal golf course were Ned White of Shreveport, who put three 70's together for a 210, and amateur Ernie Vossler of Fort Worth, with 138-72-210.

"PEPPER" GOMEZ ANDRE DRAPP ... to appear in tag match here tomorrow

Tag Match On Tap At Arena Monday

Four of the most popular wrestlers now operating in the Southwest States territory are scheduled to provide three matches for Pampa fans Monday night at the Pampa Texas Sportsmen's Club arena.

A tag team match tops off the card, with Andre Drapp, famous Frenchman, teaming with Pepper Gomez of Los Angeles against Doc Gallagher of Bayonne, New Jersey, and Vern Taft of Salt Lake City.

With the exception of Taft, a tall, handsome former college and professional football player, all of the contestants were competitors in the summer-long tournament to decide a new Southwest States junior heavyweight champion.

Gomez was one of the finalists, losing a close, colorful match to Bob Geigel of Des Moines in the championship match a couple of weeks ago. Gallagher and Drapp were in the tournament, Drapp losing a clean, fast match to Gomez in the only referee's decision necessary. The clever Krenchman had the advantage until the final few minutes, but could not pin the husky Mexican before time ran out.

Because of his last-minute aggressiveness, Gomez was awarded the decision after each had won a fall. It was clean and gentlemanly and no tempers flared, which accounts for their continued friendship and their teaming together for tag matches.

Gomez and Drapp will be the fans' favorites against the rough and rowdy Doc Gallagher and Vern Taft. The latter arrived in the territory too late to enter the 24-man tournament, but he has made his mark since moving into the hottest junior heavyweight area of the entire country.

In preliminary matches, the four men will set the stage for the main event with man-to-man duels. Gomez goes against the blond, veteran Gallagher, and Taft meets Drapp. Each match is slated for one fall or 15 minutes.

The feature event goes for two best falls of three or one hour. Pampa's Shrine Club is sponsor.

Buckeyes Clip Iowa To Stay Unbeaten

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 16-UP—Unbeaten Ohio State came from behind Saturday to beat Iowa, 20-14, and cement the Buckeyes' grip on the Big Ten leadership in one of the most heart pounding games ever played in Ohio Stadium.

The crowd of 82,141 almost had collective apoplexy as Ohio State thwarted two deep Iowa thrusts in the final minutes to save the day.

A 13-yard pass from quarterback Dave Leggett to Co-Capt. Dick Brubaker late in the third period provided the margin of victory. But it was a dirty-faced sophomore, guard Jim Parker and fullback Hubert Bobo, who saved the game by stopping Iowa's Jerry Reichow on the Ohio five with a minute and 52 seconds remaining.

Highly Satisfying
The victory was highly satisfying to Coach Woody Hayes' Ohio team which meets Wisconsin here next Saturday in a game that could help settle the Big Ten championship and the conference representative to the Rose Bowl.

Brown-Steeler Game Today Features Pro Grid Slate

By EARL WRIGHT
United Press Sports Writer
The Cleveland Browns will give National Football League fans and several interested rivals a fairly good idea of their chances of retaining the Eastern Division title when they play the Steelers Sunday at Pittsburgh.

The Browns showed little of their usual strength while dropping a 28 to 10 decision to the Philadelphia Eagles in their opener. Coach Paul Brown's defending division champions bounced back with a 31 to 7 romp against the Chicago Cardinals last week. But the Cardinals are one of the league's weakest clubs.

Brown has lured Tony Adamle, one of Cleveland's best linebackers a few years ago, out of retirement to bolster that position. And Maurice Bassett, a rookie fullback, stepped into the pass protection pocket in the Cardinal game and gave Otto Graham blocking that helped him complete 14 to 18 passes.

A Better Test
But the Steelers figure to provide a truer test of Brown's re-organized team. The late Dr. John Sutherland wouldn't recognize the pass-conscious Pittsburgh offense. But Sutherland and those teams made the off-tackle play a work of art at the University of Pittsburgh, would be delighted by the Steeler defensive line.

End Bill McPeak, tackle Ernie Stautner and middle guard Dale Dadrill head a front line that figures to give Graham's pass protection a rib-rocking workout.

Hooper Leads Baylor Past Huskies, 34-7

WACO, Tex., Oct. 16-UP—Quarterback Billy Hooper threw three touchdown passes and scored one touchdown himself Saturday as Baylor beat Washington, 34 to 7, before 22,000 fans.

Hooper connected for nine of 18 passes for 244 yards. He led Baylor to a touchdown in the first period, another in the third and yet another in the fourth before the reserves came.

He had two other touchdown passes wiped out by offside penalties, but hit end Henry Greminger, and end Charley Smith for a weird two-way completion for a 12-yard scoring heave in the third, and halfback Del Shofner for a 22-yard counter in the final quarter.

He snaked two yards for a third period touchdown at the end of a 31-yard Baylor drive that didn't include a single pass.

Reuben Saage scored the final Baylor touchdown with two minutes to go from the one-foot line. It came after a lone Washington scoring surge that carried 63 yards with reserve back Back Kyllingstad getting across from the one line.

Washington, which scared the daylights out of UCLA last week, started that way Saturday by powering 57 yards from the opening kickoff on the running of Bill Albrecht and Stewart Crook and the passing of Bob Cox.

Drive Stalls
But the drive stalled outside the Baylor 20. After that, the Huskies got as close as the Baylor 29 only one time as the Baylor defense solved the Huskie running attack and the secondary closed in on Cox's passes.

Baylor, with fullback Allen Jones leading the way with 55 yards, piled up 250 yards on the ground to 108 for Washington and got 254 yards through the air to the losers' 188.

Calls Himself A 'Rock Hound'

Pampa Pastor Is Avid Naturalist

By ED NASH
Pampa News Staff Writer

A Pampa pastor, who has been a hunting guide in Wyoming for Detroit's Hal Newhouser, today retains his liking for the open country, but settles for collecting and mounting stones and rocks.

Rev. J. E. Neely, pastor of the Assembly of God Church, lived in Wyoming for 12 years before coming to Pampa a year ago and used to be a guide on his vacations. He still likes to hunt, and so does his wife.

But now his forte is lapidary. How come?

Has Fine Collection

"Living in Wyoming, that's part of it," he says. "Wyoming is reported to have the finest collection of semi-precious stones on the North American continent." It is particularly well-known for its jade, which is considered to be proof the American Indian came here by way of the Orient.

Rev. Neely has a pretty fine collection himself. Having traveled over most of the United States and surrounding countries in his pastoral duties (he's been a pastor for 22 years), he talks knowingly of trana beds, Montana agate, the petrified wood of Eden Valley, Wyo., thunderheads, picture agate, flowering jade, Texas plume agate, even of Teapot Dome, Wyo., famed for both the scandal in the 1920s and its rock formations.

"My collection," he points out, "is pretty much what I've hunted for — I've only swapped for a little of it."

Labeling himself a "rockhound," Rev. Neely insists, "To go through life without knowing anything of geology is like going through an art gallery and seeing manhood and materials he uses puts the store stuff to shame.

The process he uses is relatively simple. Say he wants to make a pin. Take a piece of rock and use a diamond abrasive saw with a mixture of transformer oil and kerosene. Grind to desired size. Then use a trim saw, then a grinder on which water flows (to keep things cool). Sand papering and polishing with chrome oxide finish off the rock. Edging with tin plate and attaching a pin on the back completes the job.

Some of the rock Rev. Neely collects, however, is just for keeping. One item of which he is especially proud is what looks like a round, flat piece of rock. Actually, it is part of a petrified alligator which was found in one piece. An article on it was published in the National Geographic Magazine.

Rev. and Mrs. Neely, who make their home and lapidary headquarters at 1233 Charles, have two sons, Louis, 14, and Jimmie, 12, and two daughters, Lucy Jo, 16, and Linda Lee, 10.

It looks as if the Neely family will be "rockhounds" in the future. For, says the father proudly, both the boys are interested in lapidary, too.

Howe Girl Wins 4-H Dress Contest

DALLAS, Oct. 16—UP—Lynda Gayle Solis, Howe, Tex., 16-year-old Grayson county 4-H Club member, won the Texas 4-H dress revue Saturday and an all-expense paid trip to the national 4-H Club Congress in Chicago.

Lynda Gayle, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Solis of Howe, was judged first place winner after she had modeled the dark brown velvet princess jumper she had made featuring a short fitted jacket, at the revue in the State Fair Auditorium Saturday. The Simplicity Pattern Co. will pay for her trip to the national congress in November.

Second place winner was Regena Youngblut, 17, Dial, Tex. She won a sewing machine from the Sears-Roebuck Foundation.

Weslaco, Tex., won the third place (also, Tex., won the third place award and an additional award presented by the women's auxiliary of the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Association. For third place, she won a sewing machine from Sears-Roebuck Foundation.

MANNERS MAKE FRIENDS

If you make a telephone call to a person's home and the one who answers asks, "May I take a message for him?" don't just say, "No, I'll call back later." If you can't leave your number, at least leave your name.

Nobody likes to sit around waiting for a phone call without knowing who is expected to call.

Fashion Award Winner Tries To Make Women Appear Young, Pretty, Feminine

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

A gangling, modest young man from New Jersey who got the cool shoulder from the world's two leading fashion capitals now can say, "I told you so."

He won this year's top award from fashion critics. And he did it by sticking to his principles that clothes should first of all be pretty.

James Galanos, the 39-year-old designer who Monday night was presented in New York the "Winnie," the statuette given each year to the winner of the Coty American Fashion Critics' award, makes it all sound very simple.

He says he takes the most beautiful fabrics he can find and then turns them into dresses with the simplest and most flattering lines he can create.

Yet three years ago he scarcely had two spools of thread to rub together. He worked for one designer in Paris and sold sketches to several designers in New York before he moved to Los Angeles to open his own business in 1951. Now he has 50 employees and customers who happily buy gowns like his moss green satin evening dress priced at $950.

"I just try to do clothes that make women look young and pretty," the slim, boyish-looking designer said.

Galanos uses the long-waisted line but fits the bodice to show off a girl's natural curves. He prefers to work in neutral colors, like grey and black, with only an occasional bright red or vivid yellow.

low wool dress to brighten a wardrobe.

He has the average woman's figure in mind, if not her pocket-book. (At present, prices for his dresses start at around $200 and go up.)

One of his most handsome daytime dresses is a heavy grey and white fared with a full skirt that is threaded with a matching belt at hip level. He does the same dress in canary yellow wool flannel.

Except for the intricate seams and darts that make the clothes almost impossible to copy at budget prices, the prize-winning designer uses no tricks. Seems downright old-fashioned, but his clothes don't flatten anything or stretch anything or hide anything.

His favorite dress for a woman's wardrobe is a good, simple black dress. Right there's another old-fashioned idea.

MRS. FRANK DOODY of Oak Park, Ill., serves her seven youngsters a bowl of pancakes.

Cook's Nook

Doody's Pancake Squares Are Tops With Youngsters

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

Give 'em pancakes — lots of them. That's what Mrs. Frank Doody of Oak Park, Ill., does. She has seven hungry children and a hungry husband. "There are nine altogether and with the 'kids' bringing in neighborhood guests the table setting is frequently as high as 13 or 15," she said.

"What's the family's favorite dish? Why pancakes, of course, served to the crowd, our way. The serving method may be ingenious, but our family and guests say it makes the pancake meal seem like a party."

Mrs. Doody, who is chief pancake maker in the family, uses a prepared pancake ready-mix for light and fluffy pancakes. Then the pancakes are baked, they go into a large warmed salad bowl to be cut into squares, seasoned and syruped. Individual portions are served so every-spoonfuls of "squares" at a time. Here is how she makes her pancakes:

Doody's Pancake Squares
Three cups pancake ready-mix, 3 1-3 cups milk syrup, butter or margarine. Measure the pancake ready-mix into a mixing bowl. Pour the milk into the bowl and stir just enough to mix the pancake mix and milk. A few little lumps in the batter will disappear as the pancakes bake. Bake the pancakes on a hot griddle that has been greased lightly with shortening.

As the pancakes are baked, place them in a large salad bowl. Cut them into squares and then cover with warm syrup and butter or margarine. Pass the bowl of pancake "squares" letting everyone serve himself to some pancake right away. In the meantime keep baking more pancakes until all appetites are satisfied.

"This amount usually makes enough to satisfy our hungry crew, and the process goes on till someone's had all they can eat, another batch," Mrs. Doody added.

Hints On Storing Luggage Properly

If you neglect your vacation luggage until the next time you're ready to travel, chances are that you will find your suitcase in need of a major overhaul because they look so shabby. So, try these suggestions now to avoid trouble later:

- 1 - Don't "nest" one suitcase inside another unless you wrap the inner one in heavy paper or use regular luggage covers; linings can be ruined by snags, rust, stains.
- 2 - Avoid overstuffing luggage with out-of-season garments, etc. Prolonged pressure on hinges, lids and locks causes permanent damage, and the bag will lose its shape.
- 3 - Find a spot for storage where temperatures are fairly constant, an humidity not too high or low. Too much moisture will sometimes cause rust and mildew, too little makes coverings brittle and subject to cracking. If possible, stack suitcases standing upright with a little space between each one; a supporting plank raised on two blocks of wood or bricks will allow air to circulate all around the luggage, keep it off damp floors which invite mold.
- 4 - Clean each suitcase thoroughly before storage, and have needed repairs made when no immediate use for the luggage is foreseen.

However, she went on, not all publishers have cooperated, making it the parents' responsibility to remain alert to check the reading matter of their children.

Playing Store Is Past; Now It's Supermarket

NEW YORK — UP—Some supermarkets are catering to the juvenile trade these days with half-size shopping carts, but shoppers now can be conditioned for future buying sorties even before they're old enough to run an errand to the store.

One of the rapidly growing list of educational toys is a new item that is a supermarket checkout counter (Kamkap, Inc., N. Y. C.). It has a standing metal counter unit with sliding rack, a cash register that works, a tiny metal shopping cart, miniature packages bearing the names of well-known products, play money and paper bags.

Anyone for supermarket?

Novelty Treatment In Glove Fashions

Texture and color become newly important in the line up of gloves for the new season.

With tweeds so vitally basic for fall wardrobes, black and white pigskins, bright color jersey, high color velveteens, all give accent to tweeds. The plush look of many of fall's newest fabrics, invites the rich accents of suede and capeskin leathers on hand.

Velvet, and even satin will be seen to pick up the many satin and velvet trims that highlight fall suits and dresses.

Paisley-printed gloves are definitely a news note to complement the mannish-look of tweeds.

For sports and casual wear, the one-button tailored classic is favored — wool knits (angora) and cashmere are elegant as shown by all the fashion leaders.

Angry from the sports picture, gloves go all popular lengths — in orange, cognac shades, purples, mossy greens, golds, bright reds, peacock tones, as well as in bright whites.

Nun Supervised Building Project

PHILADELPHIA — UP—Workers employed in construction of a children's home here thought twice before using colorful language when something went wrong.

For Sister Constance, a Catholic nun of the Order of St. Basil the Great, was resident construction engineer for the order's $800,000 home.

Hiring a resident engineer was out of the question because of the cost, so Sister Constance, daughter of a builder and chief "handyman" at the old home, was assigned to the work grounds when the project started in June, 1953.

She roamed over the project daily with a folding rule in her hand, helping to wield a trowel or riding on a bulldozer.

On the job every day some 14 months, she made many excellent suggestions and changes that helped speed up construction so much that the building was dedicated ahead of schedule late in August.

Accent On Buttonholes

By SUE BURNETT

Made of contrasting material or of self material, the bound buttonhole on the zigzag opening of this trim shirtwaister make it outstanding. And really easy to make.

- Step 1. On right side of material, mark rectangle for button with chalk or basting.
 - Step 2. Cut a strip of bias, 1/4 inch longer than the finished buttonhole and 2 1/2 inches wide. Fold twice, stitching 1/4 inch inside each folded edge, keeping the two rows 1/4 inch apart.
 - Step 3. Thread a blunt tapestry needle with worsted yarn and work the yarn double through the two spaces made by stitching.
 - Step 4. Place the folded strip face down on rectangle, centering the strip. Stitch through the first stitching, stopping when you come to the vertical basting or chalk line.
 - Step 5. Slash through the center, to within 1/4 inch of each end, then slash to corners. Pull through to wrong side, drawing the triangular piece at each end to inside and stitch to cording. After the facing is attached to garment, slash facing over buttonhole, and turn in raw edges to hem.
- Pattern No. 1422 is in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20; 40, 42. Size 14, 5 1/2 yards of 39-inch.

New Development Is Adjustable Tablecloth

NEW YORK — UP—Comes now an adjustable tablecloth.

Most large tablecloths are used so seldom they spend most of their time in the buffet drawer or linen closet. But this one can be "converted" to fit either large or small gatherings, simply by zipping off or on neatly matched 15-inch panels.

The zippers are hidden under fine flat folds of the material — washable lurex with gold or silver banding — and the folds serve as finished edges when the cloth is left small. The metal yarn in the material won't tarnish from soap and water of age.

Baubles, Bubbles Are Teenager's First Love

For the most part, there's hardly a girl in her teens who knows she's dressed to meet the day unless she's decked out with jewelry.

This year's styles run to baubles on the neckline. Golden rope chains will be worn on woolen dresses and sweaters and with tweeds. And large real-looking pearls with golden chain chokers are another popular neckwear model.

Newest of all is the matinee-length pearl necklace with ball drop earrings. Coro, for example, has finished the pearls in mat, a subdued and conservative beauty.

Teacher Retirement Proposal Part Of Constitution Change

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is the last in a series of six dispatches on the 11 proposed amendments to the Texas Constitution, upon which voters will ballot Nov. 2.

By O. B. LLOYD JR.
AUSTIN, Oct. 16—UP—Two proposed Constitutional amendments—One concerning public school teachers and state employees, and the other a classification of city employees—will be up for approval of the voters Nov. 2.

Nine other changes in the state Constitution, making a total of 11, will be submitted on the same ballot.

Of the two proposals concerning employees, one is limited to teachers and state employees.

It would permit the interchange of retirement benefits between the state employees retirement system and the teachers' retirement system.

The other amendment would extend federal Social Security benefits to proprietary employees of cities—if city authorities wanted to extend the coverage. The legislation would be permissive, not mandatory.

For Proprietary Workers
Proprietary employees are generally classified as those working on jobs not necessarily connected with city government—such as employees of a municipal water plant or a gas distribution system.

Other city employees may be covered by federal Social Security benefits under the present law.

Permissive legislation was enacted several years ago allowing all employees of political subdivisions to be covered by Social Security.

However, the state Supreme Court held a section of the law unconstitutional, and limited the act to "governmental" employees.

Proponents of the proposal say the legislation would erase the present distinction between "proprietary" and governmental employees.

However, opponents warn that if the amendment is adopted, pressure would be placed on city authorities to extend Social Security benefits, raising the possibility of creating a need for additional tax revenue.

Claim Plans Now Available
Opponents also argue that suitable retirement programs for municipal employees—including those in proprietary classifications—are already available.

Proponents counter with the charge that many Texas cities provide no security for their employees, and that other retirement systems are too expensive. Putting the program into action, they add, would be a matter for local approval.

Exchange of retirement benefits, as provided in the other amendment, has been endorsed by the Texas Public Employees Association.

However, the Texas State Teachers Association has maintained official silence. The TSTA has not officially opposed the proposal. Neither has it, although thousands of its members are affected, said anything good about the amendment.

The teacher retirement system embraces all teachers and persons employed in the public schools and state-supported colleges.

Excludes Elective Officers
The employees retirement system includes all appointive officers and employees, but specifically excludes elective officers, persons employed on a piecework basis and those working less than 900 hours a year.

The Legislature, in 1949, provided interchange of benefits between the two systems, but the state Supreme Court held the act unconstitutional.

Proponents of the proposal say the legislation would erase the

The bus company's service from Mexico City now terminates in Nuevo Laredo.

His recommendation will go into effect Nov. 3, unless some interested party protests.

Only in the College of the Pacific game last fall did Texas Tech lose the ball on fumbles more times than it gained it on opponents' bobbles. Despite Tech's 34-7 win, the Red Raiders lost possession three times to the Tigers' one.

Texas Tech's Jack Kirkpatrick was hurt in an auto wreck his freshman year and did not do any quarterbacking. He did manage to complete the season as a defensive halfback and extra point kicker, leading the Border Conference in points-after-touchdown.

Texas Tech's only undefeated football team has been the 1938 squad that went to the Cotton Bowl.

Battle Due On Ike's Committee

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16-UP—A "battle of the century" is forming around President Eisenhower's blue-ribbon committee on National Fuels Resources.

The cabinet group's job is to report to the President by Dec. 1 with recommendations for future policies on oil, coal and natural gas—bitter rivals for the customer's dollar. But a situation has developed in which the three industries are tearing at each other's throats—and in some cases indulging in internecine warfare—in a fight to win the committee to their point of view.

Mr. Eisenhower appointed the committee July 20 with the objective of computing fuel resources in relation to current and future national defense needs and "orderly industrial growth." But his primary purpose was to find a way to keep each industry a healthy part of the economy, without one destroying the other.

Coal Excess Imports Banned
Wash is sick. Oil and gas have taken over a big slice of its market and hope to gobble up still more. But independent oil producers also are hard-hit by imports of cheap foreign oil and increasing competition of gas. With the coal men, they want the committee to propose a firm ban against excess imports.

Mr. Eisenhower is against this. With his help the last Congress killed all attempts at curbs. The President said such special treatment would undermine his foreign trade program and jeopardize foreign oil sources in war emergency. The defense, state and commerce departments agreed.

The new Congress in January will be the final arbiter but it is certain to split wide open when oil and coal state legislators square off against each other. In the weeks, ready to fight for their own agendas, will be the big importers and the natural gas industry.

The cabinet committee is headed by mobilization director Arthur S. Fleming. Members are Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson, Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr., Secretary of Interior Douglas McKay, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks, and Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell.

IPAA Meets In Tulsa Oct. 25-26

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 16—Oil and gas producers from 20 states will consider problems which "threaten the basic structure" of the petroleum industry when the Independent Petroleum Association of America meets here Oct. 25-26.

W. M. Vaughn, IPAA president, of Jackson, Miss., said seldom has the petroleum industry "faced problems which demanded more concern and resolute action."

Writing in The Independent Monthly, IPAA publication which is due out just prior to the meeting here, Vaughn said:

"We have an unsolved import problem which becomes more critical as its solution is postponed and the world surplus of oil increases."

"Added to this now is the problem of natural gas controls, a development which is alien to both our system and our philosophy of government, and control will be first step toward centralized control over all natural resources, including oil."

"Both of these problems can find permanent solution only by action of the Congress," Vaughn said. "Each involves basic public policy. Left unsolved, both threaten our security and national well-being."

The import problem and threatened controls over natural gas production and gathering activities will be subjects for committee study, and action by the IPAA membership. Both will be discussed by speakers during the meeting.

Oil Depletion Allowance Said To Be Necessary

New oil must be discovered every day if we are to keep our high standard of living, and the only way this day-in, day-out search for new crude oil sources is possible is through the 27 1/2 per cent depletion allowance, George R. Bryant, vice president of the Texas Company, said last week in an Oil Progress Week speech before the Pampa Rotary Club.

The speaker, who is state chairman of the oil industry information committee, also discussed the natural gas situation arising from the Supreme Court decision holding, in effect, that the gas producer who sells to interstate pipeline is a public utility.

He stated his belief that, as the situation exists, more and more gas will be directed to industrial uses, or left unproduced.

"The percentage depletion allowance, first enacted by Congress in 1926," he said, "is for the purpose of providing for the constant replenishment of a non-renewable mineral that is solely of new sources of supply. Any Congressional tampering with this provision of our tax law will jeopardize the destiny of our country. The parable of the goose that laid the golden eggs is a close analogy to what might happen if hastily ill-considered changes of the depletion allowance should occur."

"If we do not provide for the constant replenishment of our resources (the equivalent of the 10,000,000 barrels of oil that we use each day, our standard of living must certainly fall, and with it our security," Bryant warned.

A sharp reduction in reserves, he said, would normally mean a far-reaching

WHO CAN BE SAVED?

"Who then can be saved?" — Mark 10:26

A rich young ruler came to Jesus to learn how he might be saved. When Jesus gave him the answer — that all else must be put in a secondary place and He must be put first — the young man went away sorrowful, and still lost. Jesus turned to His disciples and said: "How hard it is for them that trust in riches to be saved. It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle . . ." To which the disciples asked the question above: "Who then can be saved?"

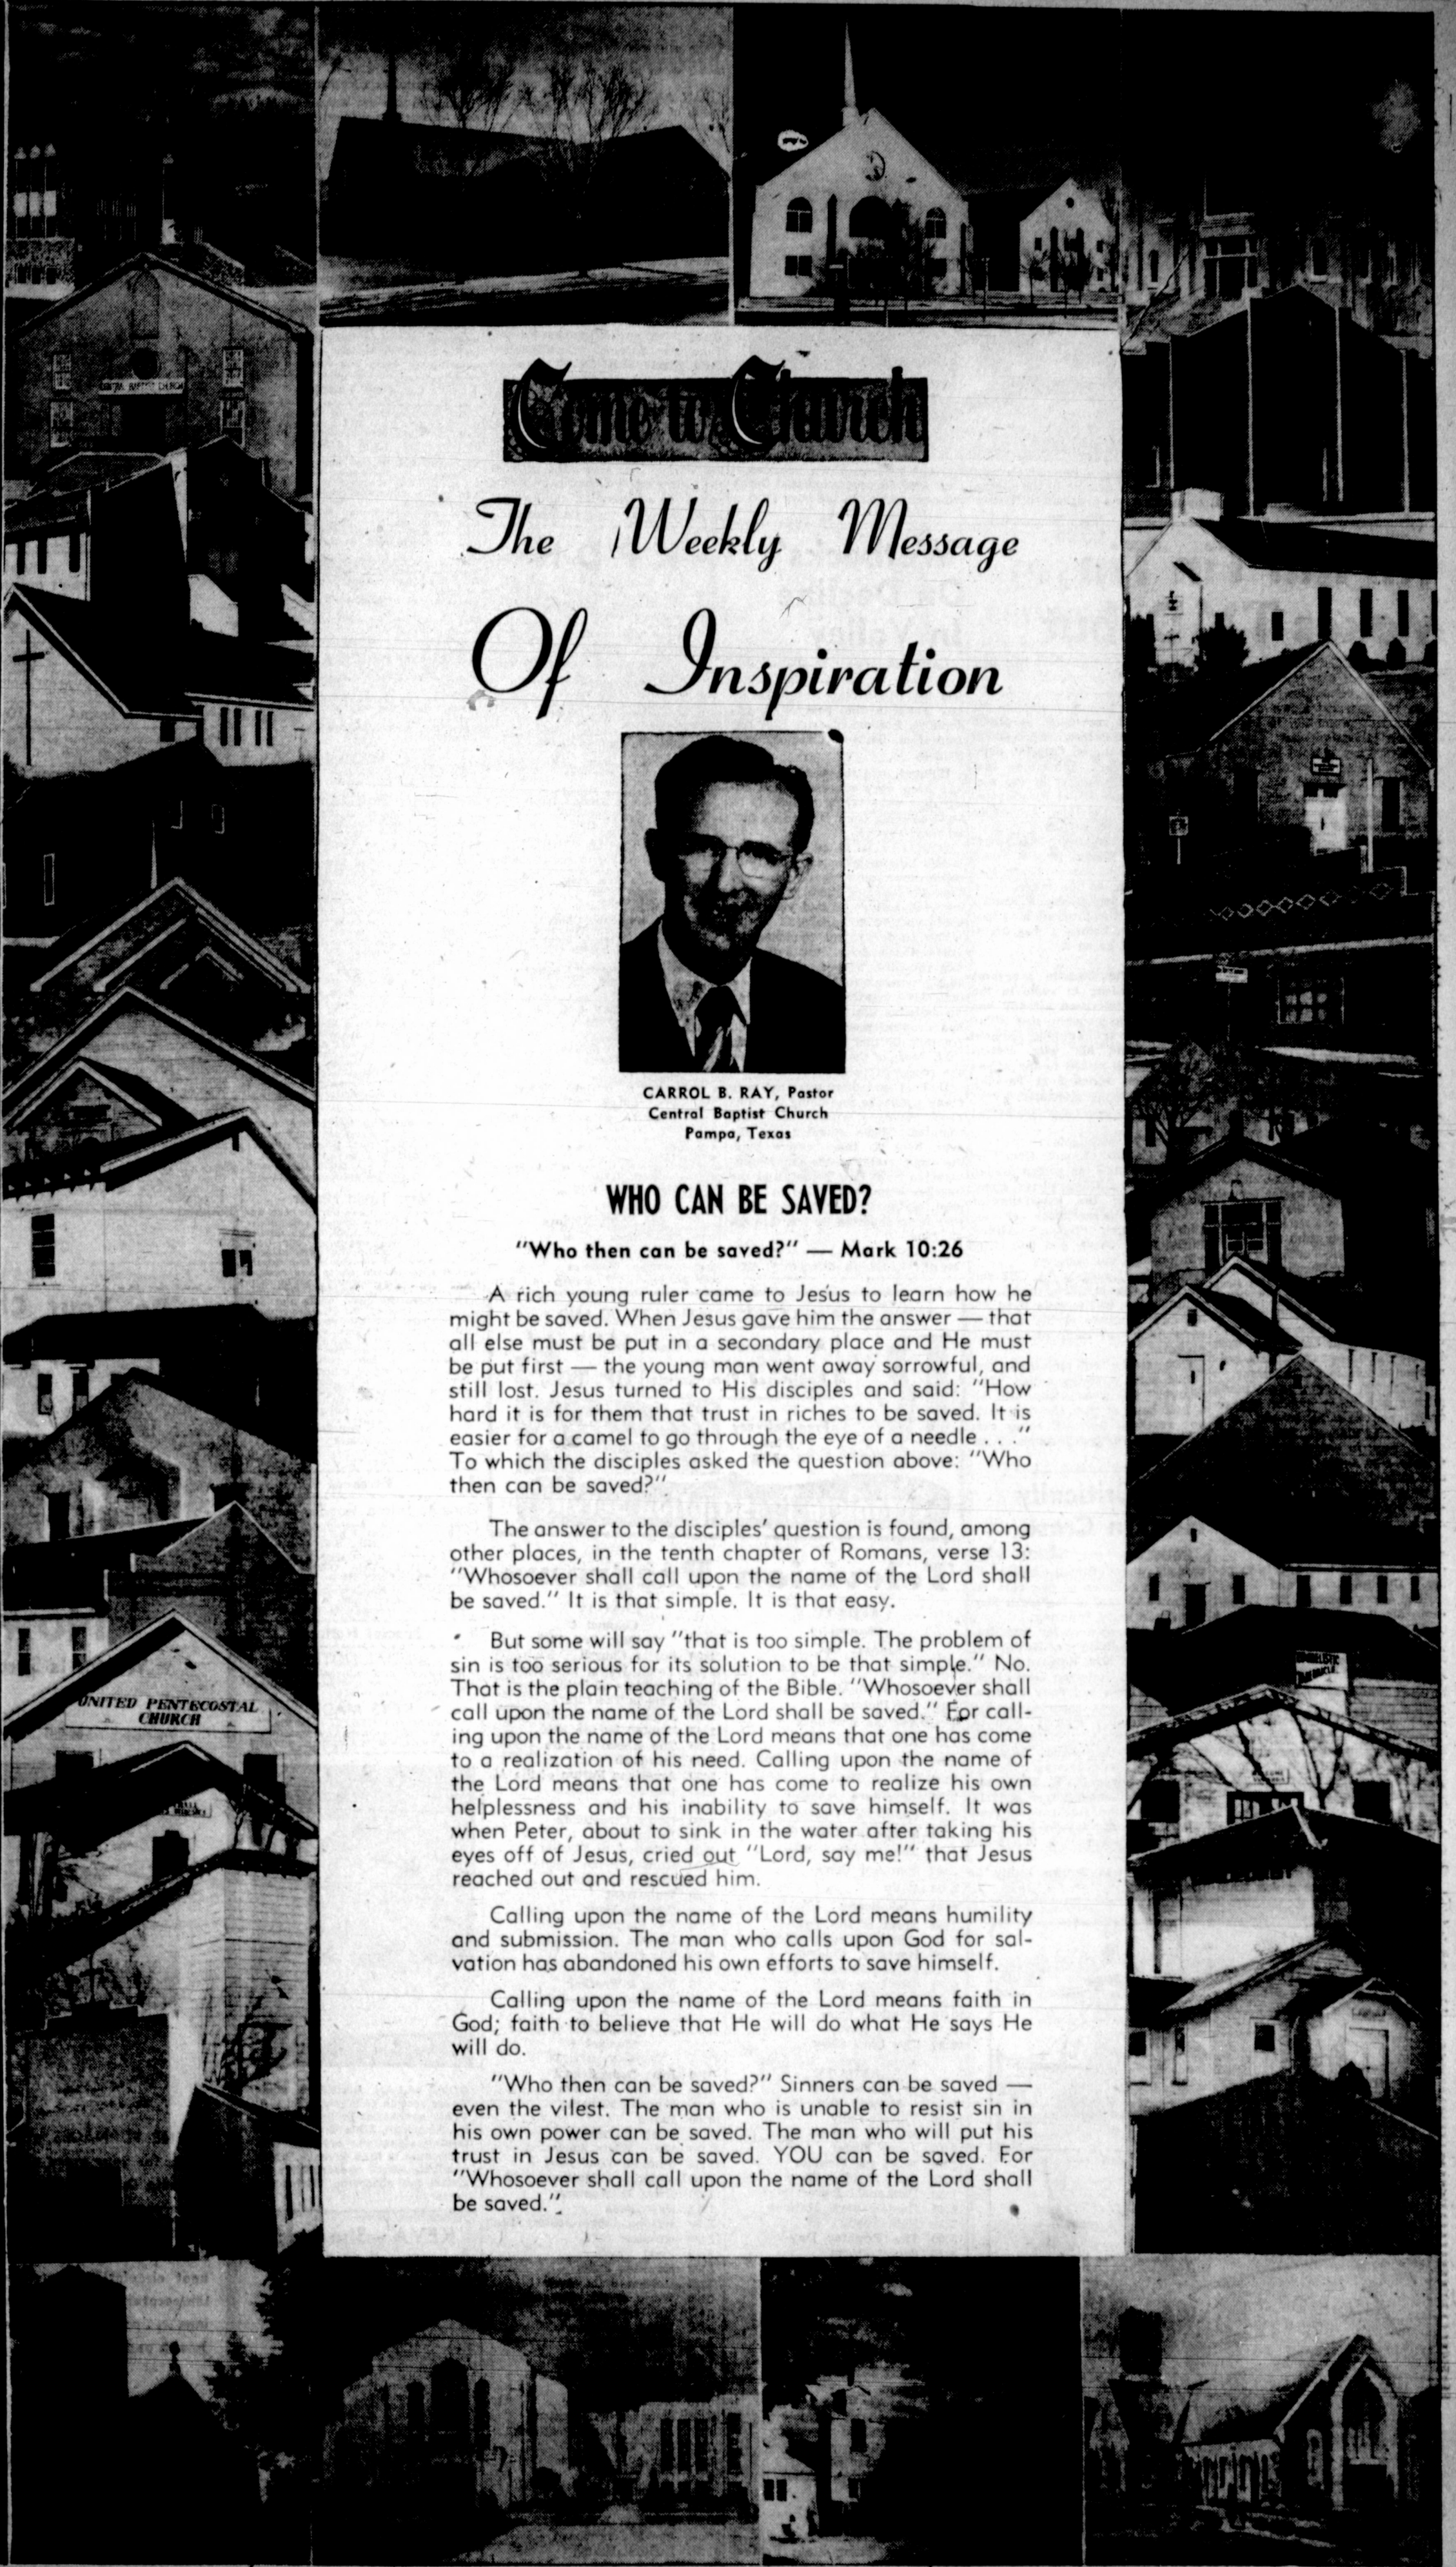

The answer to the disciples' question is found, among other places, in the tenth chapter of Romans, verse 13: "Whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved." It is that simple. It is that easy.

But some will say "that is too simple. The problem of sin is too serious for its solution to be that simple." No. That is the plain teaching of the Bible. "Whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved." For calling upon the name of the Lord means that one has come to a realization of his need. Calling upon the name of the Lord means that one has come to realize his own helplessness and his inability to save himself. It was when Peter, about to sink in the water after taking his eyes off of Jesus, cried out "Lord, say me!" that Jesus reached out and rescued him.

Calling upon the name of the Lord means humility and submission. The man who calls upon God for salvation has abandoned his own efforts to save himself.

Calling upon the name of the Lord means faith in God; faith to believe that He will do what He says He will do.

"Who then can be saved?" Sinners can be saved — even the vilest. The man who is unable to resist sin in his own power can be saved. The man who will put his trust in Jesus can be saved. YOU can be saved. For "Whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved."

Official Says Public Housing Does Not Fulfill Obligation

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16-UP—Battle was joined this week in the newest round of the never-ending dispute over public housing — to have it or not. More hot words are in prospect.

Charles E. Slusser, commissioner of the government's public housing administration, threw a large brick at the National Association of Real Estate Boards which represents local real estate boards.

The NAREB is outspoken in its criticism of public housing on grounds it does not fulfill its objective of housing the poorest, and discourages the incentive to own. It has other ideas for solving the problem, primarily involving local government action and private financing.

Slusser was equally outspoken in his criticism of the NAREB. "In eagerness to produce and slay a dragon to impress the paid-up membership, they have taken a useful cow, painted it black, and hung a socialistic tail on it," he said in a Philadelphia speech. He also accused the organization of using "sly and fallacious arguments."

Refers to Private Ownership

Slusser referred specifically to the association's campaign for local voting to convert public housing projects to private ownership. This voting is authorized by the new housing law, and the NAREB takes credit for its being there.

Slusser said he was all for allowing every city "to vote on whether it wants to 'deprive itself of federally aided low-rent public housing... just as the governing body of the community asked for it in the first place.'"

In line with administration housing policies, Slusser is no opponent of privately-financed solutions to slum problems, and he hopes the complete job can be taken over by other than public housing programs within a few years.

"In the meantime," he said, "low-rent public housing already is fighting the most effective delaying action against the steady advance of slums."

The current federal public housing program is less than President Eisenhower requested and much less than wanted by the strongest supporters of public housing.

The President asked congress to authorize 35,000 new units per year for four years. It authorized 35,000 for one year and tied on a number of strings — strings which some say might limit this year's program to only 10,000 units.

Far Short of Goal
In any event, public housing construction would be far short of the 1949 housing law's objective of 810,000 new units in six years — 135,000 units per year. Former President Truman reduced that rate in 1950 and Congress cut it more in 1951, 1952 and 1953, and raised it this year.

In view of congressional refusal to go the distance this year, Mr. Eisenhower has indicated he will seek further fulfillment of his program from the new Congress.

Any such effort no doubt will meet the strong opposition of the NAREB, whose objective is "to eliminate, by 1960, all public housing."

The NAREB says that public housing is bad because, among other things, it is: "A failure in housing the families in greatest need," "a new kind of 'ghetto' which herds problem families together and accentuates their difficulties," and "an unfair tax bur-

Perryton Ends Drive

PERRYTON — (Special) — The North Plains Mutual Concert Association completed its annual membership campaign last week with a total membership of approximately 500. The board of directors met Saturday afternoon and selected the programs for the coming year.

Three groups were selected this year instead of the usual four. The first performance will be offered in February and it will be Lord's Puppet Show.

In March the second performance will be Comic Opera Players who present two musical comedies, one of which is "The Telephone" by Gain-Carlo Menotti, which was presented on Broadway. This is the first attraction of its kind to be offered in Perryton.

The Concert Trio will be the third performance, and it will be presented in April. This trio consists of two piano accordions and a string bass.
