War Tales Were Lies, Says Solon

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 13 —UP— The Utah State Republican Central committee meets here Monday to decide the political fate of Rep. Douglas R. Stringfellow, who dramatically admitted that his story of heroism behind German lines in World War II was a hoax...

Utah GOP Chairman O. J. Wilkinson, Salt Lake City, called the 125 members of the committee to meet in a hotel here at 8 p.m. (MST). Many Republicans felt that sympathy for the 32-year-old war veteran, who still walks with a cane because of injuries suffered in a German land mine explosion was strong enough to permit him to remain a candidate...

In calling the Utah Republican leaders together, Wilkinson asked "all members of the committee to give this matter a great deal of careful and prayerful thought between now and the meeting in order that a decision may be reached which will be fair to Mr. Stringfellow and the people of the district he represents."

Stringfellow, meanwhile, withdrew from active participation in the Republican campaign pending outcome of the meeting and secluded himself and his family in an Ogden, Utah, home...

In a surprise speech Saturday night, Stringfellow said it was "the most difficult statement of my lifetime, but admitted to a Utah radio and television audience that he was never an OSS agent or hero in World War II."

ON the top of a flat rock in the middle of the creek was his own revolver. Droplets of spray glittered in sunlight. Its muzzle pointed directly toward the hole through which the creek found its path of exit to the lake.

Jim waded in. The water was cold, but with the heated overflow from the swimming pool on the other side of the rock barrier, it did not have the deadly cramping chill as it swirled against his legs. He pushed past the flat rock, stumbling over water-rounded stones, and reached the cavern entrance.

The path he followed ended abruptly in cold, damp stone. He left his rock path, waded into this new pool, found the under-surface opening which let water gush through. A large enough opening so the force of water was not too great for passage.

He filled his lungs and dove beneath the surface. He inched along the passage, clawing at any projection from the water-smoothed walls which would give scant handholds.

His ears were roaring, his lungs bursting with the spent oxygen in the effort of his progress. He kept his eyes open even against the pressure of moving water which sent an ache clear to the back of his head.

Was that light, shining through clear water?

He began raising his head carefully toward what he hoped would be the surface. The ache of his lungs increased the speed of that rise, the body's demand for air was greater than the mental command for caution.

There was no warning. There was nothing but a flash of shock. There was a vague dream-world of strange comfort and quick motion. There was another and more violent shock.

Jim found himself back in the blinding sunlight, pressed against the ledge from which he had fallen into the first pool. But that jet and the shock of light had cleared his head enough so pain registered. Pain and determination.

He pulled himself into shallow water, splashed along the creek, fell full length on the bank next to the jeep. He coughed, retched, managed at last to replace some water with life-giving air. He pulled himself to his knees, began crawling toward the jeep. His strength came back quickly, let him get erect, into the car. He started the motor, left the jeep in low gear and drove up the winding road. His panting breath seemed to keep time with the snarl of the motor.

JIM did not overestimate his ability. He knew he did not have the strength to try again against the current. But from the other side, with the current. The idea of a possible passage-way through the huge rock base of Lion's Head had occurred to him, of course. It had been something to be checked, just as the possibility of a ledge along the base of the cliff near the lake must be checked. Obviously such a possibility had occurred to Nancy.

He drove faster now, and he still hoped.

Perhaps Nancy, with her smaller but strong young body, would have been able to negotiate the passage. Perhaps she had been able to control herself, had not stood up so quickly as to knock herself silly against rock ceiling as he believed he had done. Perhaps he would find her, dripping and thrilled with the idea of her contribution, at the end of the creek near the heated swimming pool.

He would not let himself think of Nancy caught in some underwater crevice, fighting out the last of her life in a useless struggle against unfeeling rock and surging water.

He drove fast, but the minutes were ages long until he reached the swimming pool, deserted now, and left his jeep. This time at least he did have the forethought to take a flashlight along from the glove compartment.

At this end of the cavern, there was a well-worn path at the side for the first 50 feet. His light shone down into the translucent water, showed innumerable fish darting around in the glow. The path showed signs of many feet, but not of recent passing of wet feet. There was no evidence of water drops falling from soaking clothes. Not until he himself passed through the cave to the ending wall of rock.

HIS light showed an opening through which the water surged onward. A small-appearing opening, doubtless distorted by the water itself. It showed him three depressions on the path itself, and three lines through the dust where heavy objects had been rolled to the water. He wondered vaguely why rocks should have been rolled into the water.

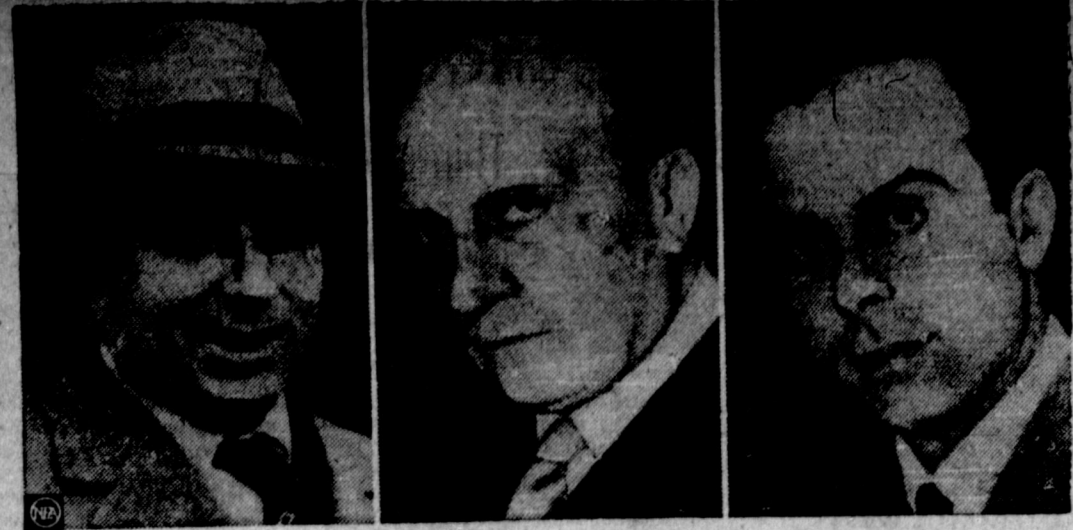

A chill shook his whole body, and his mind was equally cold with loss of hope.

Time was a traitor. Elapsed time was a killer. Too much time had passed. Too much time.

Jim wedged the flashlight carefully on the bank, left it glowing. He edged cautiously into the water, swam toward the under-water opening. The light glinted from myriad bits of mica in the rock walls, brought a transparency to the water itself.

Jim detected movement first, then saw the pallor, the white flash of skin in the water's depth. It was a hand. It was an arm. He did not remember crossing the remaining distance, but he felt a stiffening of muscles as his hand clamped around a slender wrist, and then a dreadful relaxation.

Reporter Tells Why

Ghost Of Wilma Montesi Still Roams Over Italy

EDITOR'S NOTE: The sordid mixture of sex, dope and murder seem like a far cry from NEA Correspondent Leon Denner's usual beat on the diplomatic and Iron Curtain fronts. But Italy's sensational "Montesi affair" has implications far graver than mere scandal. This is the first of two dispatches in which he backgrounds those implications from observations in Rome.

By LEON DENNER

NEA Staff Correspondent

ROME — (NEA) — More than 19 months after her mysterious death, the ghost of young Wilma Montesi still haunts Italy.

The delayed-action scandal has already caused the resignation of Italy's chief of police and of Foreign Minister Attilio Piccione whose son, Piero, is involved in the "Montesi Affair." Other political heads are likely to roll as the sordid drama unfolds.

It even threatened for a while the fall of Premier Mario Scelba's government, which won a vote of confidence.

Was the shapely Roman girl murdered — and if so by whom and for what reason? This is the question Italians — from Rome to the remotest peasant village in Sicily — want answered. The answer will have to come soon if the government is to retain the respect of the ordinary man.

ITALY'S WILMA MONTESI: In death, a powerful Red weapon.

For the death of Wilma Montesi has not only become a cause celebre in Italy but also a powerful political weapon in the hands of the Communists. Punishment of the man who killed Wilma — daughter of an honest carpenter and herself painted as an "honest" working girl — has become a test case of justice in post-Fascist Italy.

The man-in-the-street asks if the Reds are right in claiming that Italian "capitalist justice" squirts in two directions — one way for the rich and one way for the poor.

Wilma Montesi was a big, attractive Roman brunette — pretty though a bit buxom. She was just 21 in April, 1953, when shortly after dinner she left her family and ostensibly took a train for Ostia, a Mediterranean beach about 12 miles from Rome.

This was the last time she was seen alive. Two days later her half-naked body was found on another beach, the Capocotta, about 10 miles from Ostia. According to the Public Security Police, her death had been an accident.

Fourth Major Blaze Hits Wichita Falls

WICHITA FALLS, Tex., Oct. 18—UP—The fourth major fire within 60 days destroyed a building housing five businesses on the fringe of the downtown district Saturday, doing an estimated $100,000 damage.

Only last week end, a $500,000 fire destroyed the Milam Hotel, but some 30 persons fled safely.

Fire Chief E. C. White, pointing out that Saturday's fire was the fourth two-alarm blaze in three months, said "We're certainly working mighty hard to see if we can't fix some of these together."

"We're having entirely too many fires here lately," White said. "We've never had anything like this before and I don't know if it's happening in any other towns."

One person was picked up for questioning in connection with Saturday's pre-dawn fire, but he was released. White said persons were seen to leave the area of Saturday's fire, a building at the corner of Indiana and Third Streets, housing Jack Craven's farm sales, A-M Wholesale News Co., a Morton's Foods warehouse, Champ Smith service station equipment and the Brake, Bearings and Clutch Auto Parts store.

Eleven pieces of fire fighting equipment and some 50 firemen fought the blaze, but the roof of the building already had caved in by time the fire had been reported. The first alarm was at 2:26 a. m., White said.

The building was a total loss.

The fire chief said there were suspicious likenesses in the four major fires of the past 60 days.

Tomorrow: "Marquis" Montagna.

Doctor's Plea Ignored By Draft Board

DETROIT, Oct. 18—UP—A controversial "eye specialist" whose medical degree was not honored in Michigan became a soldier Saturday over his protests that many of his patients "unquestionably will go blind" if the draft keeps him from treating them.

Wolfson, 36, whose "indispensability" claims were disputed by the Michigan Medical Society, will not be in Detroit for the arrival of the Italian boys who hope he can help restore their eyesight. However, the receiving hospital eye clinic said the youths would be examined and possibly treated by other doctors experimenting with the drug ACTH.

Public Opinion

For some time disturbed Pampanos have been protesting the harm some comic books were fostering to younger minds.

It looks now like the comic book business might have learned a lesson in the power of public opinion.

A newly created trade group which includes most of the industry has taken steps toward banning offensive comic books.

Under a code of ethics every book will be read by reviewers. All "terror" and "horror" books will be refused approval. Books that meet with approval will be marked with a seal so that the parents can know at a glance which books are safe to buy.

With all the talk about this development, it deserves to be put in perspective.

In the first place it should be noted that all but a very few comic book publishers are innocent bystanders in the situation. They have never published anything but wholesome material. They have deplored the excesses of the offending publisher. They should not be tarred by too vigorous a brush.

Then, too, it should be pardonable if newspapers, as the granddads of the comic cartoon point out the character of their branch of the brush.

Your newspaper is now doing, and has always done, a good clean job of entertaining with comics and policing itself, all these years, with good taste and judgment.

There are many safeguards. The newspaper comics are produced by organizations with a sense of responsibility and are reviewed, finally, right in each community by the newspaper editors themselves who are the ones who decide what to print and what not to print.

Smacking down a few merchants of viciousness in the comic book field still leaves unresolved one of the major tasks facing a democracy built with the keystones of free speech and a free press. There are these at one extreme who feel you cannot have "a little censorship." It fills them with a dread of a growth toward Hitler-type book burnings. At the other extreme are those who fear, equally, a contagion from poisonous words which would fill the nation with a soul-sick and misled citizenry.

This debate will go on and on while we struggle to hammer out workable rules for our own welfare.

At least, in the area of mass reading for juveniles, it would appear that public opinion has forced a restraint. If the publishers of comic books can't see what is acceptable good taste, they will be made to conform.

It spotlights a basic principle which can stand repeating; that the right kind of censorship is that of public opinion.

If people find something offensive, it is their right and duty to withdraw support from it. Soon, as occurred in the comic book case, the public's refusal is certain to bring results.

Hankering

Sagittarius Must Be Mad At Hank; Signs All Wrong

By HENRY McEldore

What did I ever do to Sagittarius to get him mad at me? And what can I do to get him to like me?

There is no doubt in my mind that the ninth sign of the zodiac hates my innards and is out to get me.

I have been a follower of astrological forecasts ever since I was old enough to read. When I was stumbling over words in the second grade reader, I could pick out in papers and magazines that a lot of prominent and successful people followed the stars and gave them credit for their health and wealth.

Today, I read all the time about how Joseph Inghram, bedspring tycoon, never introduced a new spring until he consults the stars. Or that Milton Sillips, matinee idol, accepted a new contract with Super Slambang - And - Hilton Pictures because the heavenly bodies were in a juxtaposition favorable to him.

I could list a thousand more. This man won't accept an oil well unless the heavens are in a T-formation that suits his age, weight, height, and glove size. Another turns down a chance to buy Pike's Peak for $3 because the stars have told him that it would bring him gout, a daughter who'd run away with a master of ceremonies, and a son who'd become a second-rate unicyclist.

A blonde says she was about to dye her hair mauve when the stars told her to keep her hair the same color, and two minutes later she was signed for a part in a production to be shown on a screen exactly a mile wide — and on a screen that wide, the smallest bit player has a role as big as the Grand Canyon.

Sagittarius gives me nothing but grief. Every day I wake up feeling fine and brisk, ready to tackle the world and feeling as though it is my oyster. Then I read what it

Sag has to offer me. Here are a few typical examples:

"Don't be discouraged just because you are discouraged. Things are never so bad that they can't be worse. Be happy today that today isn't tomorrow, when things will be bleaker."

"You are on the verge of success, and the only weakness that prevent you from reaching your goal are laziness, the way you part your hair, your fondness for buttermilk, unwillingness to stuff ballot boxes, and the fear of the hangman's noose."

And another:

"Quit trying to be comfortable. This is the day for you to engage in hard toil, even if it breaks every bone in your body. Dig ditch, visit relatives, lend tramps money. Watch TV for three straight hours. Hug a buzz saw."

This sort of forecast, straight from the shiny blue, can't help but get a man down. I have often thought of pretending that I was born on December 2nd, and was an Aries, Leo, Libra, or Scorpio man.

But this would cost me birthday presents, and how I love to get them!

Besides, if Sag would know what I was up to, he'd kidding him if I became, say, a Libra boy. He'd have this to say:

"This is a day for sitting back and weighing all your faults, of which you have plenty. This is especially aimed at anyone who has deserted me for Libra. There is only one way to straighten yourself out, and that is to hold your breath for one hour while holding your head under water."

But tomorrow I'll read what Sagittarius has in store for me.

He must have a soft spot in his heart at that, because he never has advised that I keep in the social swim by wearing a tartan cummerbund, or that I should partonize a movie house that sells unbuttered popcorn.

The Need Of The Bricker Amendment

I want to quote for a day or two from an article prepared by Attorney Frank E. Holman, past president of the American Bar Association, under the heading of "Treaty Law — Nation's Greatest Menace to National Sovereignty and Constitutional Liberties." This presentation is distributed by the Committee for Constitutional Government Inc. Attorney Holman writes:

"On August 5, 1954, Senator John W. Bricker introduced the following text of a proposed Constitutional Amendment on treaties and executive agreements (S. J. Res. 181):

"Section 1. A provision of a treaty or other international agreement which conflicts with this Constitution, or which is not made in pursuance thereof, shall not be the supreme law of the land nor be of any force or effect.

"Section 2. A treaty or other international agreement shall become effective as internal law in the United States only through legislation valid in the absence of international agreement.

"Section 3. On the question of advising and consenting to the ratification of a treaty the vote shall be determined by ayes and nays, and the names of the persons voting for and against shall be entered on the Journal of the Senate.

"Section 4. This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several States within 7 years from the date of its submission.

"This new text of a Constitutional Amendment to control the legal effect of treaties and executive agreements substantially embraces the concept and objectives of the form of Constitutional Amendment approved by a majority of the Senate Judiciary Committee in its report dated June 4, 1953, which report was made after extended hearings before that committee in February, March, and April of last year. The new text also substantially conforms to the principles and objectives approved by the House of Delegates of the American Bar Association and by the resolutions of other great national organizations which went on record in support of a Constitutional Amendment.

"After careful consideration of the matter during the several months since the great debate in the Senate this spring, Senator Bricker and many others who for a long time have devoted careful thought to the problem concluded that, instead of urging Senate ratification to press his motion for reconsideration of the George Amendment and attempting to get a vote on this matter during the present session of Congress, it would in the long run be better and fairer to the American people to renew the fight for an adequate Constitutional Amendment by introducing a new text of amendment phrased in a form which would unequivocally cover the foregoing original principles and objectives.

"As to executive agreements, it should be pointed out that as matters now stand the State Department in its sole and uncontrolled discretion with the concurrence of the President may make an executive agreement on practically any matter and without the Congress or the American people knowing anything about the terms thereof, even though such an executive agreement may involve us in war or other serious and disastrous commitments.

"Since the defeat by a narrow margin last February of the George Amendment and the earlier defeat of the other proposals presented to the Senate, several new important and disturbing developments have strengthened and emphasized the necessity for a Constitutional Amendment to protect American rights and the American form of government against the dangers of 'treaty law.' These developments may be listed as follows:

"1. On March 3, 1954 after several years of consideration, the Human Rights Commission voted and determined not to include in the Covenant on Human Rights any provision recognizing the right of an individual to own property and be secure in its enjoyment against arbitrary seizure by government. Significant to the philosophy dominating the United Nations Commission on Human Rights is the fact that after holding over four hundred meetings the Commission at last refused by a very large majority to recognize, as a basic human right, the right to own private property and be secure in its enjoyment. This discloses the extent to which the Human Rights Commission is controlled by Communists and Socialists. Dr. Charles Malik of Lebanon had this to say of Socialist and Communist influences dominating the work of that Commission:

"I think a study of our proceedings will reveal that the amendments we adopted to the old texts under examination responded for the most part more to Soviet than to Western promptings. For the second year an unsuccessful attempt was made to include an article on the right to own property... The concept of property and its ownership is at the heart of the great ideological conflict of the present day. It was not only the Communist representatives who ridiculed this concept with questions and doubts, but a godly portion of the non-Communist world has itself succumbed to those doubts. A study of this particular debate will reveal the extraneous. Bricker informed Senators Langer and Kefauver. Although this testimony was given in a four-hour, open hearing, for some reason it was not reported in the press generally. A single New York newspaper published a sketchy account one day late, and only after the reportorial neglect had been brought to its attention by a representative of the private utilities.

Neither Senator Langer nor Senator Kefauver were influenced by the report of the WEC and FPC agencies. They have continued to repeat the Stietenroth charges, together with campaign spokesmen for the Democrats and advocates of a Federal power empire. It is their key argument on the "give-away" issue respecting TVA.

The two agencies' dismissal of the Stietenroth accusations will not affect congressional consideration of the more important Dixon-Yates deal with the TVA and AEC. That problem still remains under Capitol Hill study, and the Administration may defer final action until it has resolved the qualms of the Congressional committees.

But the effort to discredit the contract in advance on the ground that the power participants have not entered into it with clean hands, has been exploited by the SEC-FPC findings. It simply remains for White House or Republican National Committee publicity to get the story across to Congress and the American people.

As House Minority Leader Charles A. Halleck concedes, the GOP's press agents are about the most inept in recent political history.

Meanwhile, they supported their case by bringing Stietenroth before their Monopoly Subcommittee. For a week on the stand, he repeated his charges, and they made front-page news throughout the nation. They tended to cast discredit on the Dixon-Yates contract in that they indicated the practices of the two companies.

On October 7, however, almost the full administrative staff of the Securities & Exchange Commission headed by Chairman Ralph Demmler, blasted Stietenroth's charges. They testified that they had read them in detail, and also talked with the resigned power company official without finding any substance to the indictment.

In addition, SEC sent Andrew Barr, assistant chief accountant, to Jackson, Miss., to examine the books of the accused firms. He reported, and so testified before the Langer-Kefauver Committee on October 7, that the companies' practices met all SEC's legal requirements.

Barr also discovered that a representative of the Federal Power Commission had investigated the situation on the spot, and that he likewise gave a clean bill to the holding and operating companies. They disproved all Stietenroth's tent to which the non-Communist world has been communally softened or frightened. It seems incredible that in these economic matters, which reflect in a direct and much more than mere economic divergences, the Western world is so divided itself as to be incapable of presenting a common front against Communism."

Attempted Smear Of South's Power Companies Has Failed

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — The attempted "smear" of several southern power companies involved in the controversial Dixon-Yates, AEC-TVA contract, has backfired against the Capitol Hill perpetrators — Senators Estes Kefauver of Tennessee and William H. Langer of North Dakota — but the fact is one of the best kept secrets at Washington.

The politico-economic drama began when J. D. Stietenroth, former secretary-treasurer of the Mississippi Power & Light Company, resigned amidst charges that it was holding companies dominated by the Mississippi operating firm, giving the government out of taxes, paying excessive dividends and charging exorbitant rates for electricity.

The holding company accused is the Middle South Utilities, Inc., which is headed by Edgar H. Dixon. His firm and the Southern Company, which is headed by E. A. Yates, are scheduled to build a private plant to furnish hydro to TVA, replacing energy that TVA will turn over to atomic facilities in the valley.

Sensors Kefauver and Langer, who thrive politically on the power issue, have denounced this proposed plan as a "give-away scheme." The Langer-Kefauver group have demanded a full Senate investigation, and the Joint Atomic Energy Committee will conduct an inquiry after the election.

Meanwhile, they supported their case by bringing Stietenroth before their Monopoly Subcommittee. For a week on the stand, he repeated his charges, and they made front-page news throughout the nation. They tended to cast discredit on the Dixon-Yates contract in that they indicated the practices of the two companies.

The Doctor Says

By EDWIN J. JORDAN, M. D.

The condition known as piles or hemorrhoids has been discussed on numerous occasions previously but the problem is still with us and probably always will be. In any event numerous readers of this column keep asking questions on the subject, principally about cause and treatment.

It is not possible to give a very good explanation of the cause of piles. They consist of enlarged or dilated veins known as hemorrhoidal veins lying around the exit of the intestinal tract. It would seem that anything which increases the pressure of the blood passing through these veins would be likely eventually to weaken the walls of the veins so that they remain permanently enlarged.

Certainly there are reasons to believe that long continued strain such as chronic constipation, childbirth, a severe cough contribute to the development of piles. It is also possible that the sitting for hours at a time which so many occupations now demand has something to do with the development of hemorrhoids.

Once present what can one do, and is there anything better than surgery? It is true that sometimes the veins become temporarily greatly enlarged and then may return to normal or almost so. This happens quite often at childbirth, for example.

But if the piles are permanent and are causing bleeding, itching or discomfort, all of which are common, the best treatment is usually surgery. This involves cutting out or tying the enlarged veins, or both. Injecting them with an irritating fluid which causes them to close up is sometimes used but this is not always possible.

When a person with hemorrhoids understands what has happened he will not be so likely to expect some new and miraculous form of treatment. But there is another thing, too, which everyone should realize.

There are a lot of these veins and no person with piles has them all enlarged.

Reece tried to persuade Hays to behave, but he persisted. "I do not know her," "But I have done a little checking. You have to use your lunch-hour to try to find out what kind of documents these are. The book, itself, doesn't mean anything. It is but one person's opinion."

Sargent said: "It is considered to be the best document of its kind in existence. I think any well-grounded scholar will tell you the same thing. The book is eminently reliable."

I telephoned Hays at his home in Ohio where he is campaigning for re-election. He admitted he had made the remarks here quoted, but said he had asked to have some of his conduct expunged from the record. His attack on the validity of Sister Mary Margaret's degree was made "in the heat of debate," he said, but he insisted nevertheless that he did have authority for saying that there had been "some argument" at Catholic U as to whether the degree should be awarded. His informants were "high in the Catholic hierarchy" but they had refused to let him identify them.

"I made it perfectly clear," he said, "that my knowledge was based on hearsay."

He said The Tablet, of London, a Catholic publication, had found a number of errors, including incorrect spelling of names.

The record shows persistent abusive conduct by Hays toward Reece, other members of the committee and witnesses. Hayes' conduct was so flagrant that Reece finally felt duty bound to state the situation to the full membership of the house.

"I have never observed a better organized smear campaign against a congressional committee nor such wanton distortion of the facts by the public press," he said. "There are some 10,000 foundations with assets of $10 billions and an annual income in excess of $300 million. Less than a dozen are well-known. They have tremendous resources which largely are taken out of our taxable income. The evidence disclosed what might be an important clue to the location of the nerve center of subversion—the left-wing intellectuals whose prestige and influence seemed to be the product of tax-exempt foundation grants."

The New York Herald Tribune and the Times have fought savagely and not always truthfully against McCarthy's "methods." They have exulted over the political plot to "hit" him by a vote of "censure."

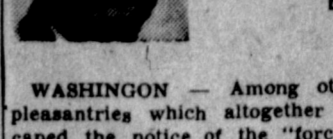

They also exulted over the temporary frustration of the investigation of foundations. The fight against the investigation was led by political pressure groups in New York which have ramifications all over the country and overseas. Some of them raise tax-exempt money by practical blackmail.

However, these two papers were not at all moved by Hays' affront to the Catholic nun, Catholic University, her work of scholarship or Mr. Sargent.

Fair Enough

Things That Escape Forces Who Object To McCarthy

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

WASHINGTON — Among other paeasntries which together escaped the notice of the "forces" which object to Senator McCarthy's "methods," a Democratic congressman from Ohio insulted a Catholic nun and flatteringly charged pressure in the bestowal of a degree of doctor of philosophy by Catholic University in Washington. This behavior is admitted by Wayne Hays, of Flushing, Ohio, who was a minority member of the House Committee to Investigate tax exempt foundations.

At one of the hearings, Aaron M. Sargent, a California lawyer, expressed approval of an exhaustive study of the Fabian Socialist movement in Great Britain which reached its farthest line so far under the late mis-called labor government... actually a socialist government. Later, Carroll Reece, of Tennessee, a Republican who has been in Congress 30 years, made a speech on the floor in which he charged that Hays "throughout the hearings assumed an attitude of insulting distrust of the majority and the committee staff."

"It became very obvious," Reece said, "that the ranking minority member (Hays) had no intention of permitting orderly hearings and was determined to discredit and harass the investigation. He could not have made it clearer that he intended to frustrate orderly procedure to the limit of his abilities." He interrupted Sargent 243 times in one session of three hours.

The nun who was insulted is Sister Mary Margaret Patricia, Ph.D., of the College of the Holy Names in Oakland, Cal. She is a scholar on socialism whose thesis for her degree has been published under the title of "Fabianism in the political life of Britain, 1919-1921." She is a daughter of the late anti-Communist Senator Pat McCarran, of Nevada, who was a Democrat.

Mr. Sargent said of this work: "Here is a chronology of the subversive movement, as first of all general background."

Sargent then gave the author's name as Sister Mary Patricia McCarran and mentioned the fact that her father was the senator.

Hays interrupted to ask: "You say she is a sister?"

Sargent said she was a member of a Catholic order of nuns.

"I didn't know they used her last name," Hays said.

"That is her full name," said Sargent. "Her full name appears on the book and that is who she is."

A noon recess soon intervened and when the committee resumed its work, Hays accused Sargent of pausing "for emphasis" before he mentioned the name "McCarran." He said "Ordinarily names in the orders do not use the last name and I wonder if it is on the fly leaf."

"It is," Sargent said. "You had been questioning authority for statements I was making. I want to make it clear that I was relying on a high-type of research book."

"Maybe we ought to subpoena the officials of Catholic University and find out how high-type it is," Hays said. "I happen to know something about the background of that book, how long it took her to get a degree and so forth. And even that there was a little pressure or she would not have it yet."

Reece tried to persuade Hays to behave, but he persisted. "I do not know her," "But I have done a little checking. You have to use your lunch-hour to try to find out what kind of documents these are. The book, itself, doesn't mean anything. It is but one person's opinion."

Looking Sideways

By WHENEY BOLTON

NEW YORK — Anyone would think, from reading the newspapers of the last few weeks, that New York is a city in which habitually Miss Marilyn Monroe's skirts are blown waist high by vragrant winds and in which Miss Ava Gardner walks about without shoes. These are merely incidents. Actually, New York is a city of wonderful nonsense inhabited by about 9,000,000 persons of whom easily 1,000,000 are wily press agents who have no trouble at all getting their wares and wisdoms onto Page One. New York is No. 1 on any press agent's sucker list.

Across the years some weird and by now thoroughly publicized press agent antics have made Page One without an editor raising a forbidding finger. Lions have been registered in hotels, dolls have walked across Broadway on slack wires 50 feet above the street, celebrities have been manufactured out of nonentities. Even that metallic old dame, the Statue of Liberty, was hoax-bait for a soap company some years ago. Paris pressers have successfully invaded New York as Oriental emirs. Fat girls from the Middle West have lived free at hotels for weeks posing as Egyptian princesses. One slim, mustached fellow has posed with enormous success and not a little admiration as successively a Navy officer, a foreign diplomat, an international banker and as a noted philologist. "Fony sultans" come a dime a dozen and we even have bowed gravely to counterfeit maharajahs. Half the people in show business are operating under fake names and with fabricated backgrounds. Even authors go for the gimmick; they grow beards, pose interestingly for the cameras and emerge with totally untrue tales of daring and imagination.

In the celebrated case of Miss Monroe the fact is that the two brief film scenes she enacted on the sidewalks of New York could have been made in a Hollywood studio for much less money and with equal visual veracity. But then, of course, enticing shots of Miss Monroe's tightly linged and striated would not have hit Page One of even so austere a newspaper as The Herald Tribune. In the less-celebrated case of Miss Gardner, she is in the title role of a current movie called "The Barefoot Contessa," and it was no strain on any press agent's brain to convince her that she has sheslessness when interviewed in her hotel suite. With or without shoes, Miss Gardner is not one of the more cosmic commentators and bare footless little to elevate the tone of her remarks on life in general.

As a man who once earned his fodder and scoff in the press agent department of the movies, I like to study these manifestations as they come along and pass silent if personal judgment. The Monroe thing was champion. It made no sense, was totally unnecessary, cost a bag of money and was staged a full 18 months to two years before, by contractual agreement, the movie can be released to the public. Nonetheless, it was a ribbon winner because it splashed rarely-photographed areas of Miss Monroe's person across every newspaper in town, plus most of the magazines. She received more space of an enchanting and free-will kind by posing in panties than she ever did while posing in the nude for a now-celebrated calendar.

June Talk

By JANE KADINGO
Pampa News Women's Editor

I'VE ALWAYS had the greatest respect for the women in the county home demonstration clubs. They are a group of women who devote their time together to learning skills to aid themselves as housewives. Of course, the success of the program is also due to the work of Miss Helen Dunlap, county home demonstration agent, and her assistant, Miss Faye Burns, who head the county program. Recently one of the clubs had an Achievement Day, which is described below by Miss Dunlap.

"THE BELL HOME Demonstration women Friday had a unique experience of all wearing dresses of their own construction at their annual achievement event. All the garments were constructed by a newer, more rapid method of sewing than what they originally learned. As they were hostesses to other home demonstration club members, members of the commission court, and friends, they were taking part in an active dress review. The cotton, rayon and blended fiber materials were used in garments with a professional touch by this newer method of sewing.

"This achievement event took the form of a combined tour and exhibit, ending with a tea in the new home of Mrs. Conner O'Neal. The first stop was made at the home of Mrs. Troy Maness to see her accomplishments. She had on display dresses for herself and daughter, as well as shirts for her husband and son. All these garments she had made since and during the time the sewing methods were given. In her kitchen were different types of baking emphasized in the club program. She particularly drew attention to a dried apple cake which is a family favorite. She told the women that it seems to mellow the same as a fruit cake, and her family likes it better several days after it has been baked. The apples used in the cake were home dried. She had one large sack full, that she processed in the Tennessee sun this summer, while visiting relatives.

"On her cellar shelves were about 500 containers of fruits and vegetables she conserved this year. From the waste fats, she made lye soap for use in the home laundry. For ease in dissolving it, she had shredded some into narrow strips.

"AT THE HOME of Mrs. Charles Warmilski she told the people that she fortified the foods she served by adding dried milk. By this method her family gets more calcium and protein, which are needed by growing children. Her baking showed a recently made fruit cake, that was moist. Her cellar was full of canned products and crates of freshly-laid eggs. Squash, tomatoes, sweet peppers, cucumbers and other fresh vegetables showed they had been gathered just before the freeze.

"Mrs. Warmilski reported having received 18 ribbons on her canning and baking this year at the Top of Texas Achievement Event and the Tri-State Fair. She reported helping to make a high altitude sponge cake on a television program and another one at the Top of Texas Achievement Event.

"THOSE WHO had never seen the new home of Mrs. T. D. Anderson were busy looking for new ideas they might use. In the front hall closet were hanging some clothing for the different members of the family she has made this year by the no-baste, no-pin method taught by the agent. Mrs. Anderwald particularly mentioned the understitching of collars and the front part of the pocket, that help to keep them in place.

"Mrs. D. W. Swain brought clothing which she has made for her two daughters and herself. During the last few weeks she has made 50 garments. From a light-blue wool blanket, she made a short coat for each of her two daughters. They were both made on simple, tailored lines. Since both girls ride horses, Mrs. Swain makes all the shirts and breeches they and five-year-old Jeletta use, styled in one outfit, which made her appear western.

"THE LAST STOP was at the new home of Mrs. Conner O'Neal at White Deer, where fruit punch and cakes, made by the club members, were served by the hostess, Mrs. O'Neal especially drew attention to her kitchen, which she said "included all the conveniences learned in home demonstration work." All the corners were made available for some type of storage.

"Together, the high school daughter, Peggy, and Mrs. O'Neal made the draw-drapes for the house. The one in the living room was made of a figured cotton to blend with the plain finished walls. In Peggy's room, they were made of a striped denim. Peggy's reading lamp was made of an airplane propeller.

"Mrs. T. H. Kelley brought dresses, skirts, blouses and corduroy slacks suits and jackets of her two daughters. The slacks suits were made of scraps of corduroy; yet the sewing had been done so skillfully, no one would know they were made of short pieces.

"Mrs. Walter Noel, the president, had brought an electric lamp, made from the hub of a wagon wheel. It was set on one end, with a metal pipe fastened in the center for wiring. The hub had been soaked in turpentine before it was finished with mahogany varnish. The metal bands, on the hub, were painted gold. The completed lamp had a white celia shade, bought by Mrs. Noel.

"The small tousled head of your little girl might not disturb you, but it would certainly worry a child psychologist. Authorities say that little girls take more pride in appearance, playtime or partytime, if they help care for their own hair and are not restricted to a pigtail hair-do or a straight Dutch bob. Let a children's home permanent provide her with the curls nature forgot. Her hair should be well cared for, with a hairstyle as carefree as she is.

The couple was married before an altar flanked by baskets of yellow and white chrysanthemums.

RUTH MILLET

Every woman, a home-economist points out, can treat her home as a research laboratory for the improvement of housekeeping methods. Most housekeepers today do just that. They read, they observe, and they experiment; and in the process keep changing and improving their housekeeping methods. There's just one thing, however, most of them have little luck in changing — their families' habits. And that is why they so often get discouraged and still find Grandma's old saw about a woman's work never being done almost as applicable today as it was in Grandma's time.

For what difference does it make if contour sheets cut down on the time it takes to make a bed and if self-polishing wax cuts 15 minutes off the time it takes to "do" the kitchen floor and so on, if Mama can't persuade her family to take on neat and orderly ways? It isn't cleaning a house most women object to — it's trying to keep it clean. And what stymies the average housekeeper is that she gets so little cooperation from her family in helping her keep a clean house looking orderly. What housewife needs to know isn't how to improve her house-keeping methods but how to get her husband and children to help her out by looking on home not as a place where any kind of sloppiness makes life easier and more pleasant. If the home economist can teach women how to accomplish that, they'll really be doing something to make keeping house an easier job.

Girl Scout Activities

The first meeting of the Brownie mothers will be held at 9:30 a.m. Thursday in the Girl Scout Little House. On the agenda is the election of a new president as Mrs. H. Brown has "flown up" to the Intermediate level. Brownie songs and games will also be taught.

Brownie Troop 13 under the leadership of Meses A. L. Smiley and J. H. Walker of Horace Mann School were to the home of Mrs. Smiley for their meeting this week. The troop divided into 3 patrols—the first baked cookies, the second made hot chocolate and the third worked on the clean-up detail. Following the refreshments games were played, a song session was enjoyed and suggestions for Christmas projects were made. Ten girls attended.

Mary Kay Bailey, reporter of Troop 36 reported the entire troop had decided to work on one merit badge this year — Arts and Crafts. Refreshments were served to 15 girls.

The Girl Scouts Troop 9 under the leadership of Mrs. Bob Andis held an election of officers — Pres. Virginia Hopkins, Lou Ann Taylor, Sec.; Linda Lander, Treas.; and Marianne Perkins, reporter. Norma Fatheree, Sherry Rhoten, and Donna Tarpley received some merit badges as they were absent for the regular Court of Awards. This troop put on a quarter hour radio program over station KPND during Fire Prevention Week.

Mary Ann Kelley reported that Troop 11 under the leadership of Mrs. J. D. Wright Jr. have been studying the following Girl Scout songs — "World Song," "Tell Me Why," "French Cathedral" and "Under the Old Oak Tree." Patrol 1 closed the meeting with "Taps" as the group formed the Friendship Circle.

Girl Scout Troop 17 under the leadership of Mrs. Joe Wells reviewed flag ceremonies and made plans for a sleep-out for Friday night at the Little Girl Scout House.

Brownie Troop 66, under the leadership of Mrs. E. Dobbins, was given instructions on Brownie ceremonies and duties by the leader. The troop discussed plans for an outing and worked on wall plaques made from coat hangers as a handicraft project.

Fly-up Troop 38 under the leadership of Mrs. Herman Brown met at the Presbyterian Church and made a chart for badges the girls were working on this year and a clean-up caper chart.

Sr. Girl Scout Troop 22 under the leadership of Mrs. Marion Osborn is having a barn dance at the Red School House with Boy Scout Post 80 for the Miami, Texas Boy and Girl Scout Troops.

Brownie Troop 29 worked at the Woodrow Wilson school this meeting on flag ceremonies under the direction of Mrs. Bob Gordon, their leader. Eight girls attended.

The Brownie Troop 42 of Mrs. L. B. Paden held their meeting at the home of Judy Pemberton. Judy, who is confined to a cast, for several months was waiting in her wheel chair with her Brownie cap perched jauntily on her head, and for her first outing her troop took her on a "hike" around the block.

On their return Mrs. Pemberton served the ten members refreshments. Judy is maintaining her true Girl Scout spirit.

Troop 54 of the Brownie level with co-leaders, Mrs. W. K. McDonald and Mrs. Edward Eaton, held an organizational meeting at the home of Mrs. Ivan Noblitt. Candace Noblitt was elected chairman, Jan Lively, Treas., and Linda Andis, Reporter. The troop participated in a cook-out with nine girls present.

Brownie Troop 64 under the leadership of Mrs. John Adams has been working on Fly-up requirements and as a special project Mrs. Hess provided quilting squares the Brownies sewed together and after the quilt is quilted it will be given to a needy family.

Brownie Troop 66 of Mrs. R. E. Dobbins, hiked to the Hobart Street Park and after games, refreshments to thirteen girls were served by Mrs. McElroy, mother of one of the members.

Brownie Troop 58 under the leadership of Mrs. Chris Walsh held a planning meeting at the Sam Houston School Cafeteria and decided to have a Halloween Party the end of the month. The entire troop will work on the decorations and the Mothers will supply the refreshments.

Plans were laid during their meeting in the basement of the First Methodist Church Tuesday morning. Co-hostesses, Mrs. Lonnie Burks, and Mrs. E. R. Burks, arranged an attractive arrangement of gold chrysanthemums. Mrs. Virgil Agan presided over the business session which opened with the Club Collect read in unison.

Mrs. A. R. Hugg was program leader, and Mrs. J. B. Wright gave the program on "Growing Chrysanthemums." She gave many interesting points out of her own experience of growing them locally.

Garden hints for October were given after which Mrs. Scott McClellon introduced two Junior High students, Nona Pendleton and Marilyn Turnbow, who were taking orders for bulbs, for the eighth grade class funds.

Three members of the Garden Club group, Mrs. Virgil Agan, Mrs. J. B. Wright, and Mrs. J. W. Gooch, served as judges for the Wheeler Flower Show.

MANNERS MAKE FRIENDS

In time of trouble, friends always gather around to offer their help and sympathy. That is so it should be. But it is also important to gather around and offer congratulations to the friend who has good news to celebrate.

Being glad for a friend's good fortune is fully as important as being sorry for his bad luck.

Atomic Energy Talk Given Hopkins PTA

Hopkins Parent-Teachers Association met recently in the Community Building, with the president, Mrs. Buster Sublett, in charge. Mr. Irving Akst, physicist from the Pan-Tex Energy Plant, Amarillo, gave a talk on atomic energy.

"In the future," he said "our electric power will be so inexpensive that we will not use meters on our houses. The cost of the meters would exceed the cost of the electricity for a ten-year period. And our meters will have atomic power built in, so that they will not have to be refueled for the life of the motor."

During the business meeting, Mrs. Harry Garrison announced the baking demonstration, which the PTA will sponsor. The first class will be held at 1 p.m. Tuesday in the community building.

Mrs. Helen Dunlap, county home demonstration agent, will conduct the classes.

The sixth and seventh grades presented a musical program under the direction of Mrs. Marguerite Cleghorn.

The fourth grade mothers served refreshments. The sixth grade won the room award for having the largest number of parents present.

CHICKEN WITH MACARONI, Italian style, is both a good family and party dish.

Supply Of Broiler-Fryers, Stewing Chickens Plentiful

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor
From Washington, D. C., the United States Department of Agriculture reports that stewing chickens and broiler-fryer chickens are now in tremendous supply all over the country. Prices are reasonable for this high quality protein food. So we pass on a new family recipe from our friend Kathryn B. Niles, home economics director, Poultry and Egg National Board. "Many people have never heard of browing and crisping stewing chicken that has previously been cooked to tenderness in seasoned water. It makes the chicken even better," Miss Niles says.

Chicken With Macaroni, Italian Style
One ready-to-cook stewing chicken, cut-up stewed, seasoned flour, fat for browing, 1 package (8 ounces) macaroni, cooked and drained, 1 large clove garlic, minced, 1/2 cup chicken fat, butter or margarine, 1/2 cup minced fresh sweet

A FAMILY AFFAIR—Proving that he's got the stuff to carry on a tradition as a sixth generation circus performer is Rickie Atterbury, 11 months old, and perhaps the world's youngest gymnast and wire performer. Dad Bob Atterbury keeps an eye on his smiling son, who seems quite at home on the tight wire at the Steel Pier in Atlantic City, N. J.

A TURN FOR THE WORSE—Belgian featherweight Jean Sneyers was knocked for this somersault by Raymond Famechon, of France, in a defense of his European title in Paris. Sneyers made it up by the count of eight, but walked away from Famechon, giving up the fight—as well as his crown.

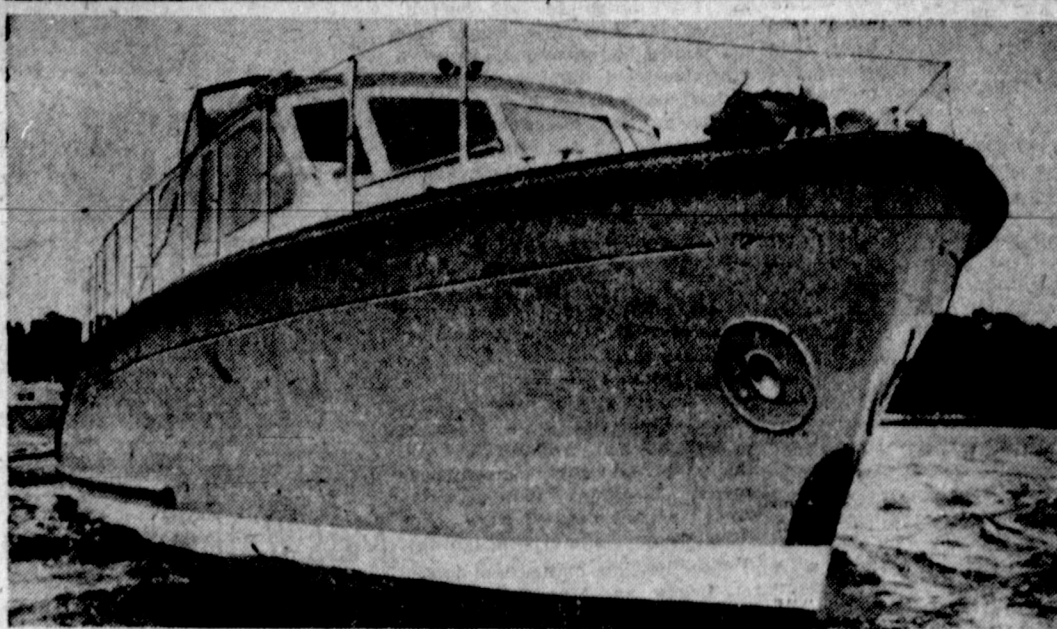

HARD GOING—The University of Connecticut's Frank Mirabello, left, is going around Yale's end for a gain of four yards during a game in New Haven, Conn. Tackling him is Yale's Stephen Ackerman as Connecticut's John Livieri falls on the ground. Yale won, 27-0.

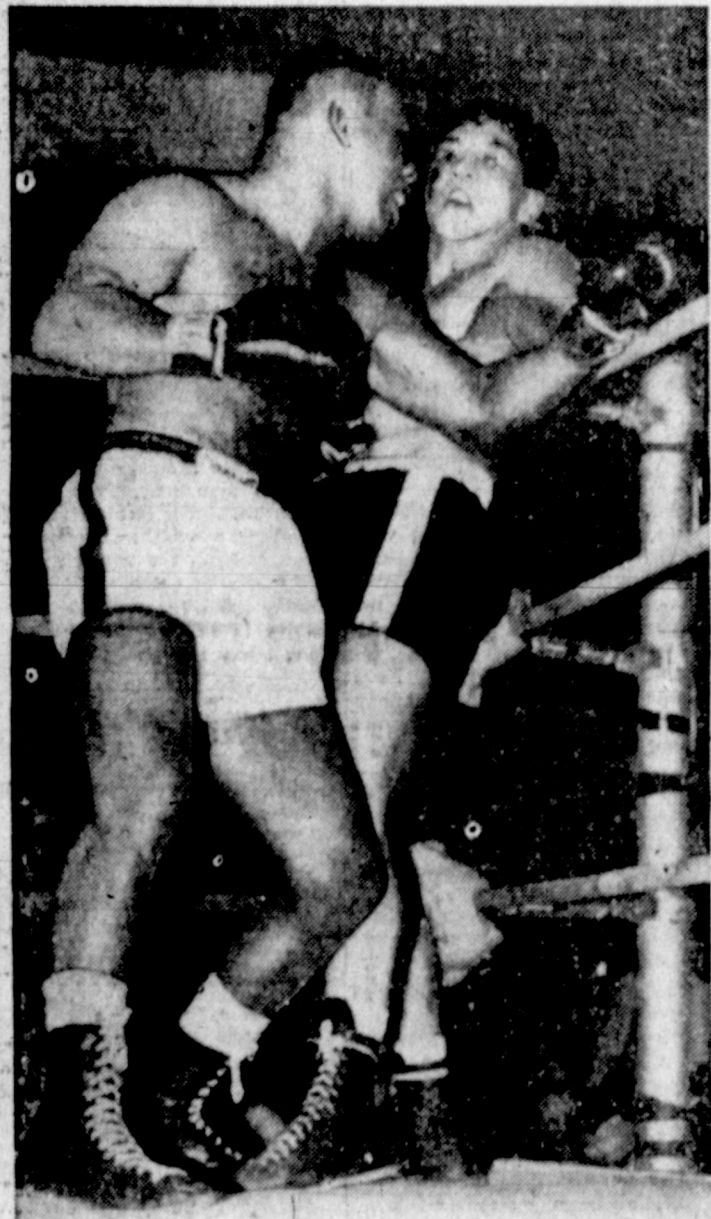

HOPING FOR THE BEST—Airman Second Class Robert Taylor, of West Orange, N. J., is practicing at a London airport for a demonstration of the U. S. Air Force's helicopter air-sea rescue work. Taylor later dropped into the seat of a jeep.

PICTURE SPORTS NEWS

CHEMICAL CRAFT—The hull of this 45-foot sea-going cruiser in Cowes, England, is made of resin reinforced with glass fibers. Only 3/4 of an inch thick, the hull is very lightweight, never needs painting and can be made fireproof. Its mold can be used over and over.

MAKING A NAME FOR HIMSELF—Ralph "Tiger" Jones pounded Joey Giardello into a corner in the seventh round of their bout at Philadelphia. Giardello, number one middleweight contender, won a unanimous 10-round decision over Jones, a 12-5 underdog. A small crowd booted the decision, apparently as a gesture to the unexpected fine showing by Jones.

SUDDEN INTRUSION—An unscheduled performer at the Army-South Carolina game at West Point, N. Y., was a fleet-footed dog on the playing field. Giving chase is Sgt. Ernest Mayer, wearing the arm band of the MPs. Of course, that doesn't stand for "Mutt Patrol," but the dog may think it does, although he's running too fast to find that out.

DELIGHTFUL DUET—In a game of catch, it would be nice to have either Ann Daniels, left, or Ann Wolfe as a partner. The girls were tossing beach balls around Cypress Gardens, Fla.

STRIPED PANTS DIPLOMACY—Hardly wrinkling his natty striped suit, Dr. Shunichi Matsumoto, Japan's Ambassador to Great Britain, neatly throws fellow wrestler T. Kawamura during the inauguration of a Japanese clubhouse in London. This may well be the Japanese version of U. S. President Theodore Roosevelt's "speak softly and carry a big stick" diplomacy.

HEAP LITTLE INDIAN—Despite the fact that he probably won't get into the game until 1970, nobody can say that this little center in Wisconsin Dells, Wis., is not a real "All American." He's Jacob Lone Tree, seven, adopted as mascot by the N. Y. football Giants during their training.

MAYBE IT WAS—Fernand Hubert, 22, is exhibiting his haul after he won a fishing contest on the banks of the River Seine in Paris. Hubert caught two pounds of fish in three hours and his surrounding admirers seem to feel that was quite a fishing accomplishment.

REHEARSAL—Mrs. Doris Archer Houbtan is reviewing troops during a rehearsal for a reenactment of Queen Victoria's Royal Review of Artillery in 1856 after the troops' triumphant return from the Crimea. Mrs. Houbtan was in London to take the role of the Queen.

IF THE FIGHTING HARVESTERS continue their all-out spirit the last half of their schedule as they have done the first half, they'll certainly win the plaudits of the local fans, win, lose or draw.

The Harvesters comeback Friday night was one of the most spirited rallies we've seen even though the rally did fall one touchdown shy.

It's not often you'll see a team 34 points behind and only one quarter of play left keep up their spirits as the Harvesters did in Friday night's game against San Angelo.

Who would have ever thought the Harvesters would get a chance to pull even with the Bobcats when the score stood at 41-7?

Frankly, I was among those who didn't think they would.

The chance to catch up was slim, of course, but the fact that the Green and Golders did come within striking distance won the fancy of the partisan crowd.

After the Harvesters made it 41-34 in the fourth period, they only got the ball one more time and for just one play, then—but at least they did have a chance to catch up, slim as it was.

DON'T KNOW WHETHER HARRY Gilstrap, sports editor of the Amarillo Daily News, is seeking an answer for a question asked at our direction in his column Friday morning, but since he did ask a question, guess we'd better answer it.

Abilene To Seek First Win From Harvesters

Teams Meet Friday Night In Abilene

The Abilene Eagles, the pre-season District 1-AAAA favorite, will be running for their first victory in history over the Fighting Pampa Harvesters Friday night at Abilene.

The Harvesters have won all three games played between the two clubs in the past. All three games were played after the organization of District 1-AAAA.

Pampa won the first game in 1951 by an overwhelming 46-7 score but the last two games have been close. The Harvesters won by 13-7 in 1952 and 7-4 in 1953.

Abilene currently is setting the pace in 1-A with the Midland Bulldogs, both of whom own 2-0 district records.

The Eagles have won four out of five games this season, their latest being a vital 21-7 decision over the tough Odessa Broncs at Odessa Friday night.

The Harvesters dropped below the .500 mark for the first time last week by losing a 41-34 thriller to San Angelo. The Green and Golders have now won two and lost three for the season.

All three Pampa defeats have been by seven points or less. The Harvesters lost to Vernon, 20-13; Amarillo, 33-28; and to San Angelo, 41-34.

The only loss suffered by Abilene this season was a 35-13 defeat at the hands of the Breckenridge Buckaroos.

The Harvesters and Eagles have not met a common opponent this season.

In other games this weekend, Borger goes to San Angelo, Amarillo travels to Odessa and Lubbock journeys to Midland.

Midland knocked Amarillo, play the unbeaten ranks in 1-AAAA, play last week while Abilene was handling Odessa's first 1-A loss.

The other game last week besides the aforementioned Harvesters-San Angelo game was Lubbock's comeback 26-20 win over Borger.

No serious injuries were reported in the Harvesters camp this morning from the San Angelo game.

OUTSTANDING DEFENSIVE PLAYERS

Tackle Ed Strickland, left, and Gene Devers have been named as the "outstanding defensive performers" for the Fighting Harvesters in Friday's game with San Angelo.

A's To Stay In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18.—UP—An eight-man Philadelphia syndicate, with plenty of enthusiasm but no baseball experience, took over the ownership of the founding Philadelphia Athletics Friday and left disappointed Kansas City fans on the outside looking in.

The group, composed entirely of local businessmen, prevented the transfer of the Athletics to Kansas City by making a successful bid for the stock owned by the Mack family—Connie Sr., Earle and Roy—in a hectic six-hour meeting here Sunday night.

"I have notified William Harridge, president of the American League, that we have agreed to sell to this fine group of civic-minded Philadelphia businessmen," Roy Mack said following announcement of the sale.

"I have requested league approval," he added. "I'm very, very happy to keep the A's in Philadelphia. That has always been my goal."

The goal of the new group will be to build up the club by use of a $550,000 operating fund, according to Arthur Rosenberg, food chain store executive who acted as spokesman for the new owners.

Tag Match Top Feature Of Mat Show Tonight

An Australian tag-team match will headline tonight's end of the Top of Texas Sportsman's Club wrestling arena tonight.

Starting time has been set for 8:15. Andre Drapp and Pepper Gomez will team against Doc Gallagher and Vern Taft in the tag match.

The four men will also make up the two preliminary matches. Gomez meets Gallagher and Drapp goes against Taft in the two 15-minute preliminary matches.

The tag match will be the best two of three falls or one hour time limit.

The weekly wrestling shows are sponsored by the Pampa Shrine Club with all proceeds going into the club's "Crippled Children's Hospital" fund.

Rice, Texas In SWC Feature Tilt

By UNITED PRESS Texas and Rice, the so-called one-two favorites for the Southwest Conference title, collide at Houston next Saturday, but a couple of underdogs have erased a lot of the luster from what was supposed to have been a "championship" battle.

These two clubs are lounging in the loop cellar instead of on the roof after their first outings in league play with their offensive thunder blunted and their defensive fences gouged open.

They still must be considered title possibilities because they shared the crown a year ago after losing one conference game, but one or the other is almost sure to bow out of the picture after their meeting.

That's about the only thing that injects much importance into the game after what Arkansas and Baylor have done in the conference hopes last week.

Arkansas' high-riding Razorbacks conquered the haughty Longhorns with even more ease than they did Texas Christian and Baylor on previous week ends, while SMU bottled up Rice's famed Dicky Moege and its other running backs.

Arkansas' 20 to 7 victory over Texas and SMU's almost identical 20 to 6 edge over Rice left those two clubs the only ones with unblemished conference records.

Border Loop Faces Another Rough Week

By UNITED PRESS Border Conference football teams essay another ambitious out-of-conference schedule this week with high hopes of improving on last Saturday's record of losing four out of five.

Chances are none—too bright, however, with Texas Tech playing College of Pacific at Stockton, Calif., Arizona meeting New Mexico at Albuquerque, Texas Western engaging North Texas at Denton and Hardin-Simmons tangling with Oklahoma A&M at Odessa.

Last week, Arizona was the only one to hold up league honor with its 35 to 13 verdict over Idaho.

Texas Tech suffered its first loss since 1952 as Louisiana State upset the Raiders 20 to 13 at Baton Rouge; Temple fell before Midwestern in another upset, 14 to 7; Texas Western bowed to unbeaten Trinity 20 to 14, and Hardin-Simmons was beaten by Cincinnati 27 to 13.

West Texas got into the conference win column by pasting New Mexico A&M 41 to 7.

I'd like to ask Harry or the Amarillo Golden Gloves official this question: "Is it worth the effort for Pampa or any other city to send boys to the Regional GG tournament if they are going to let such incidents as the Hernandez-Guana affair take place?"

Speaking on behalf of Pampa, a bunch of fellows here are putting in a lot of time to train boys in boxing which also includes good sportsmanship and something like which took place at last year's GG tourney doesn't set well with the trainers.

SWITCHING TO A MORE PLEASANT subject, why not get behind the Kiwanis Club "Attend Church" campaign and attend the church of your choice next Sunday and every Sunday.

Harden Wins PGA Crown

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex., Oct. 18.—UP—Jack Harden again won Monday the Texas PGA crown when El Paso golfer first won two years ago. And his bank account was enriched by $1,000.

Harden edged oldtimer Byron Nelson of Roanoke, who plays golf only infrequently these days and was the gallery favorite at Corpus Christi, to win the state PGA title with a 72-hole total of 278. He shot a two-under-par 68 in Sunday's final round after blowing to a fat 75 in Saturday's third round.

18 Major 11s Are Unbeaten

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—UP—UCLA, Colorado, Mississippi and Cincinnati, with perfect 3-0 records, headed a list of 18 major college football powers still unbeaten and untied Monday out of a total of 70 perfect records throughout the nation.

Cincinnati, which defeated Hardin-Simmons, 27-13, Saturday, tied Oklahoma, ranked the nation's No. 1 team by the United Press board of coaches, for its top winning streak in a row extending back to the 1953 season.

Little Peru (Neb.) State held the previous high mark—26 straight—but lost to Kearney (Neb.), 27-20, during the weekend.

UCLA led the major powers in points scored with 204, while Colorado has allowed its opponents the fewest points among those with five triumphs—18.

Oklahoma heads a grouping of 13 schools with four victories. Included in that bracket are such sectional powers as Wisconsin, the nation's No. 2 team, Ohio State and Minnesota from the Big Ten, Yale from the Ivy League, Arkansas from the Southwest Conference, Wichita from the Missouri Valley, and Virginia Tech from the Southern Conference.

Of this grouping, Boston College has allowed the fewest points—23—and Wichita has scored the most—177.

Arkansas remaining the Southwest Conference's only unbeaten team by blasting Texas, 20-7; Columbia scoring in the last period to upend Harvard, 7-4; Pittsburgh coming through under "sub" Coach Tom Hamilton to beat Navy, 21-19; and Houston overturning Oklahoma A&M 14-7.

Steelers Surprise Cleveland, 55-27

By EARL WRIGHT United Press Sports Writer The Pittsburgh Steelers and Green Bay Packers, relatively soft touches for the top teams in recent National Football League seasons, popped up Monday with the biggest surprise triumphs of the current campaign.

The Detroit Lions (3-0), the San Francisco Forty-Niners (3-0-1) and the Philadelphia Eagles (4-0) still are leading the respective divisions after the weekend action. But Jim Finks and Tobin Rote, a pair of "old pro" quarterbacks, made the top news by passing Pittsburgh and Green Bay to revenge victories over the Cleveland Browns and Los Angeles Rams.

Finks, playing with his battered face protected by a mask, scattered three touchdown passes to half-back Ray Mathews and one to fullback Fran Rogel to lead Pittsburgh to a 55-27 victory over Cleveland. It was the worst defeat the Browns have suffered in the NFL and their first loss to Pittsburgh in nine games.

Rote has had trouble with his throws this season, but he threw three TD passes and ran for another as Green Bay whipped Los Angeles, 35-17, for the first major upset of the season. The Rams had won 13 of their previous 16 games with Green Bay.

In the other Sunday games, Adrian Burk threw seven TD passes as the Eagles remained first in the eastern race with a 49-21 victory over the Washington Redskins; the San Francisco Forty-Niners defeated the Chicago Bears, 31-24; and the New York Giants downed the Chicago Cardinals, 31-17.

Arkasnas remaining the Southwest Conference's only unbeaten team by blasting Texas, 20-7; Columbia scoring in the last period to upend Harvard, 7-4; Pittsburgh coming through under "sub" Coach Tom Hamilton to beat Navy, 21-19; and Houston overturning Oklahoma A&M 14-7.

Oklahoma, Wisconsin, UCLA, Ohio State Rank As 'Big' 4

By JOHN GRIFFIN United Press Sports Writer Oklahoma, Wisconsin, UCLA, and Ohio State emerged Monday as the "big four" of college football after a weekend that saw many of their top rivals engulfed by the latest wave of upsets.

Power-packed triumphs by each of the big four, currently rated in that order atop the national rankings, stood out as especially impressive since three of the nation's top 10 teams were beaten and another, Notre Dame, squeaked through by a single point.

Now things are shaping up for a titanic battle this Saturday when Wisconsin clashes with Ohio State in a game that will break the perfect record and probably the Rose Bowl hopes of one of them.

Oklahoma, stretching its victory streak to 13 games as it opened its bid for its seventh straight Big Seven championship, walloped Kansas, 65-0, for the biggest margin in their 52-year rivalry. The Sooners now solidly rivalry to sweep unbeaten through the entire season, rolled up an amazing 635 yards rushing.

There's not much trouble ahead this week for either of the teams because Oklahoma figures as a solid favorite over once-beaten Kansas State and UCLA a heavy choice over three-time loser Oregon State.

Purdue, conqueror of Notre Dame, led Wisconsin, by 6-0 at halftime to present the Badgers with their steepest challenge. But Wisconsin came on to go ahead of touchdown smashes by Jim Miller and Alan Ameche and clinch it, 20-6, with a 98-yard pass interception TD by Billy Lowe.

Ohio State also came from behind for a 20-14 victory over Iowa by stopping an Iowa drive on the five yard with less than two minutes to go.

Kansas City In Deep Gloom Today

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 18.—UP—The Kansas City big league bubble burst Monday.

The news that the Philadelphia Athletics will remain in Philadelphia plunged into gloom a city that only last Wednesday was a scene of mass jubilation over apparent assurance the American League franchise would be sold to Chicago reanator Arnold Johnson and moved to Kansas City.

Instead, it was announced Sunday that a syndicate of eight Philadelphia businessmen would purchase control of the Athletics' stock.

Reaction here ranged from disbelief to bitter resignation. "I don't believe it," said Karl Koerber, president of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce, "It's just more of the same confusion we've had all week."

Hog Offense Has Been Overlooked

DALLAS, Oct. 18.—UP—Coach Bowden Wyatt's amazing Arkansas Razorbacks have rooted their way out of the Southwest Conference cellar with much being written about the Hogs' opportunistic defense.

But it takes offense to win football games regardless of the adroitness of the defense and therein lied an all but overlooked chapter in the meteoric rise of Wyatt's wonder team.

Arkansas is playing to the hit the Tennessee style of exploiting opposition mistakes, but it also has the striking power to make the most of whatever comes its way.

For example, in exploding a 20 to 7 bombshell in the red faces of the overwhelmingly favored Texas Longhorns last Saturday, the Arkansas attack generated 284 yards on the ground—more than any previous Longhorn foe, including Oklahoma and Notre Dame.

Operating from the single wing, Arkansas slashes at the line and sweeps the ends behind tremendous blocking from a pack of "lightweights."

Texas A&M Leads SWC In Total Offense

By UNITED PRESS Although the Texas Aggies have won but one game this season, their bellwether quarterback—Elwood Kettler—still holds a substantial lead in total individual offense.

Kettler, the player Coach Paul Bryant has relied upon to hold his flimsy forces together, has 506 yards on 288 rushing and 218 passing.

This is 88 yards more than that completed by Baylor's Billy Hooper, who moved into second place with 418 yards.

Hooper, who was almost beaten out of his job by an upset sophomore quarterback early this season, pitched his way to the individual passing leadership against Washington Saturday.

QB Meeting Set Tomorrow

The Pampa Quarterback Club will hold its weekly meeting tomorrow night, starting at 7:15 at the Sam Houston auditorium.

A movie of the Harvester-San Angelo game will be shown.

Also talks by each of the head coaches in the Pampa school system will be given and a scouting report on Abilene will be delivered.

All football fans of Pampa are cordially invited to attend the meeting.

Trinity Unbeaten In Five Games

By UNITED PRESS Face-setting Trinity, with five straight victories behind it, will be idle this week as the Gulf Coast Conference's two other members resume their activity against outsiders.

North Texas, which lost a heartbreaker to Chattanooga last week 20 to 10, should find things a little easier at home Saturday afternoon against three-beaten Texas Western, a club Trinity whipped 20 to 14 last week.

Hooper from the first team. Against Washington, Hooper picked up 25 yards on the ground to move in behind Kettler in total offense.

Pass Receivers

George Walker of Arkansas, the top punter with a 44.7-yard average, also leads the loop in interceptions with four.

Pass Receivers

Walker has hit 12 of 22 attempts with his rifle for 181 yards, while Benson has kicked in enough to give Arkansas third rank among the loop's passing teams with a 90-yard per game average.

To do oil field work quickly The Electric Supply's skilled men use all types of equipment (all of which the firm keeps ready for use) including a hole digger truck, electric line truck, flatbed unit to haul poles and heavy equipment, medium and light trucks.

E. W. (Bud) Southard, owner and operator of The Electric Supply

ply, pointed out electricity is the cheapest, most convenient and most modern way to pump oil wells. In many cases the cost is as low as $1 or $2 a year per horse power.

This is the time of the year that families and business men boost their uses of electricity — home, office and store lights are switched on earlier in the afternoon and turned off later in the morning.

All these add up to extra demand for electricity — all on the same wiring. And the heavy demand can overload electric circuits and cause a safety hazard.

For safety's sake it is important to have the wiring in your home or commercial building checked, to have heavier wiring installed where needed, to have additional outlets installed to prevent danger of wearing down and cutting insulation on extensions.

Businessmen call on The Electric Supply for oil field electrification work, a specialty of the electric firm. Like home owners the business leaders call Dirksen Electric Motor Service (4-6871), an associate of The Electric Supply, to repair all electrical motors — none too large or too small.

The Electric Supply uses its 15 years' experience in Pampa as a guide for constantly improving skill.

Longer Or Shorter Tax Forms? Depends On What You Earn

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—UP—The nation's No. 1 tax collector today disclosed plans to mail out the longest and most complicated income tax form ever used by the federal government.

But some with low incomes will get shorter forms. The new forms are dressed up in bright colors. But it is unlikely if the more attractive appearance of the instructions will result in any fewer headaches in filling in the forms.

Internal Revenue Commissioner T. Coleman Andrews said he will distribute during December and January 330 million, or about 190 freight carloads, of new tax forms and instructions to be used in filing returns on this year's income. The new filing period is Jan. 1-March 15 as in the past.

Instructions pamphlets have been dressed up with terra cotta — a coral shade of red-blue, green and yellow strips on the covers. Some have been printed in blue ink.

Drawings Match Business Those for farmers bear a drawing of a barn and silo. A drawing of an industrial area decorates the cover of the instruction pamphlet for businessmen.

Distribution plans call for mailing 40 million terra cotta-stripped instruction pamphlets, with return forms glued inside, to individuals with income between $5,000 and $10,000; two million yellow-stripped ones to persons with income exceeding $10,000; six million blue-stripped ones to businessmen, and four million green-stripped ones to farmers.

Short Form Shortened— And form 1040A has been shortened from letterhead size to a punch-card 7 1/4 by 3 1/4 inches. Instructions for filling it out require only two pages. The bureau will furnish taxpayers envelopes for mailing in the card but three cents postage will be required.

Information required on 1040A is about the same as last year. It can be used by workers earning less than $5,000 which has been subject to the withholding tax every payday.

Andrews expressed hope that about 22 million would use the form. He said 35 million are eligible.

The commissioner estimated that 60 million individual income tax returns will be filed this year, as against 57 million last year when 46 million actually had to pay a tax.

Two or more forms will be mailed to 52 million individuals. The extras are to provide the taxpayer with a copy of his return to keep and to give farmers, businessmen and some individuals the special supplementary forms and income estimate blanks they must file in addition to the basic 1040.

Extras Available— And 100 million 1040's and 15 million 1040A's will be placed in Internal Revenue offices, banks, postoffices and other public places, starting the first part of December, for persons who fail to get them in the mail or lose their mailed copies.

The mammoth job of mailing forms and instructions to individuals will start Dec. 26 and run to about Jan. 15. The so-called packages will be mailed on the basis of returns filed last year.

All mailings will be from Kansas City, Mo., because of its central location. Postage and other distribution costs will amount to more than $1 million, about one-third of the printing costs.

Saar Issue Agreement Seen Tuesday

By CHARLES M. McCANN United Press Foreign Analyst Premier Pierre Mendes-France and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer will have a chance to visit history Tuesday.

The live-wire French premier and the "old fox" of West Germany will meet in Paris to discuss the future of the Saarland.

If Mendes-France and Adenauer could reach agreement on it, it would be a major victory for Western unity, a victory which would crown those of the Suez Canal zone, Iranian oil and Trieste agreements.

Coal and Iron The coal and iron of the Saar and French Lorraine go together as ham goes with eggs.

The Saar is now, since World War II, linked with France economically and politically.

Notes of gratitude to the many people of Denver who were so nice to the White House staff and press party during the President's eight week sojourn in Colorado: Joan Nelson who operates a fine restaurant across the street from the Brown Palace hotel; Elice Relasco, the understanding maistra d'hotel at the Brown Palace; Brig. Gen. John T. Sprague, commanding officer at Lowry Air Force Base; Jack Foster of the Rocky Mountain News who gave the Washington newsmen a lot of level-headed steers on southwestern politics; the management of the Cherry Hills Country Club, a group of gentlemen most understanding of press and picture problems; Gov. Dan Thornton and his staff, and just about everybody in Denver.

New Liquid Kills Roaches And Ants Scientists recommend that you control roaches and ants the modern way — with Johnson's NO-ROACH. Brushed just where you want it, (in a misty spray) the colorless, odorless, coating kills these pests. It's effective for months, sanitary, and so easy to use.

Presidential Aides Have To Scramble For Scrabble Set

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—UP—Backstairs at the White House: While President Eisenhower was flying from Denver to Indianapolis last Friday, he decided he wanted to play scrabble.

His aircraft, the Columbine, was fresh out of scrabble sets, so a shorthand radio message was sent to the United Airlines charter plane carrying the Washington press corps.

As the President left the Brown Palace hotel in Denver after his birthday party last Thursday night, a group of four men—obviously feeling rather well—stood in a parking lot about 50 feet from Mr. Eisenhower's car.
