Keeping Freedom

The warning, attributed variously to Ben Franklin and other framers of the Constitution and the Bill of Rights, that "we have given you a Republic --- if you can keep it" certainly can use a little review today.

In the minds of most of us today there never was a more aminous year than that of 1954. Whether all of the anxiety and worry that is present is real or fancied is something that we have not been permitted to learn. We can see evidences on every hand that there is growing unrest and threat of the outbreak of a monster shooting war between the two factions known as the Soviet bloc and the free nations. Until the development of the atomic and hydrogen bombs the threat of war was not sufficient to chill the bones of Americans who had fought and won war after war and had somehow maintained to considerable degree the form of government designed by the founding fathers.

Many of our senior Americans can recall with nostalgia on era when the celebration of our Independence was a carefree holiday, given over to funmaking, fireworks displays, picnics and a flood of flowery oratory. There was no general worry as to the activities of other nations and other governments for the great oceans and our naval defense seemed an impassable barrier between our shores and peril from abroad. Even the most pessimistic could conceive only of another nation calculating to defeat us in battle and the threat that we would be perverted from our ideals and destroyed as free men in a free nation was not considered.

Today we still have the great oceans to keep land troops of a foreign power from attacking our soil. We have set up all conceivable types of defense for attack from the air since the use of aircraft has shrunk the oceans so far as this type of attack is concerned. We have set up an elaborate system of bases throughout the world designed to hold at bay a physical enemy should there be actual and physical attack upon the United States. We recognize that there is a malignant hatred abroad in the world and that we are the object Certainly if an all-out atomic attack should be aimed at this nation there would be terrible loss of life and destruction of property despite all of the defense efforts we have made. We have been shown over and over again how much destruction can be wrought through the setting off of thermo-nuclear instruments of death and destruction. To deny that such a hazard exists would be to deny an established fact.

But, great as our vulnerability is to this type of attack, the great danger is that we shall be conquered not be any such attack — for a conquering nation must still be able to bring foot soldiers and other means of enforcing its will. That the Stars and Stripes shall fly no more is still a remote, very remote possibility — unless we ourselves are responsible for striking the colors. If we fly another flag it will be because we have chosen to desert the ideals upon which the nation was founded for some other way of life. If we lose our national sovereignty and dignity it will be because we have chosen to follow some other guiding star than that of freedom.

This is the real danger, real and present, that confronts us today. We can see on every hand evidences of the dangers and the presence of the enemy if we but take the proper look.

We can see one after another action taken by government wherein the decision is prompted by expediency and temperance with a belief in individual freedom. We see, daily, the great bulk of the American people becoming more and more convinced that it is possible to have too much liberty and that a vague nothingness called "security" is more important than freedom.

We see a widespread belief in the working of an authoritarian type of government giving lip service to a belief in free enterprise and at the same time diligently trying to undermine the free market. We see tariff barriers erected to provide protection to a special segment of the population. We see statism being taught in public schools which are the full expression of socialistic scheming.

We see a nation holding that its people must not be placed in bondage or involuntary servitude and at the same time operating a draft service that places the youth of our country in involuntary servitude. We hear on every hand expressions of approval of this type of statism by editors, professors, ministers and others whose public statements are designed to influence public opinion. We see the resistance to the trend toward statism and totalitarianism growing weaker and weaker, numerically, as generation after generation is conditioned from birth to accept the fate of being a part of a government that denies the validity of the Ten Commandments as a standard of right and wrong.

By R. C. HOILES Sound Money Means Better Jobs

I want to continue to quote from Ludwig von Mises' latest book "The Theory of Money and Credit." If anyone wants to understand sound money and how it affects him, I suggest that he get and study this book.

Here is more from his chapter on "The Principle of Sound Mon-ey" under the heading "The Virtues and Alleged Shortcomings of the Gold Standard":

"The excellence of the gold standard is to be seen in the fact that it renders the determination of the monetary unit's purchasing power independent of the policies of governments and political parties. Furthermore, it prevents rulers from eluding the financial and budgetary prerogatives of the representative assemblies. Parliamentary control of finances works only if the government is not in a position to provide for unauthorized expenditures by increasing the circulating amount of flat money. Viewed in this light, the gold standard appears as an indispensable implement of the body of constitutional guarantees that make the system of representative government function.

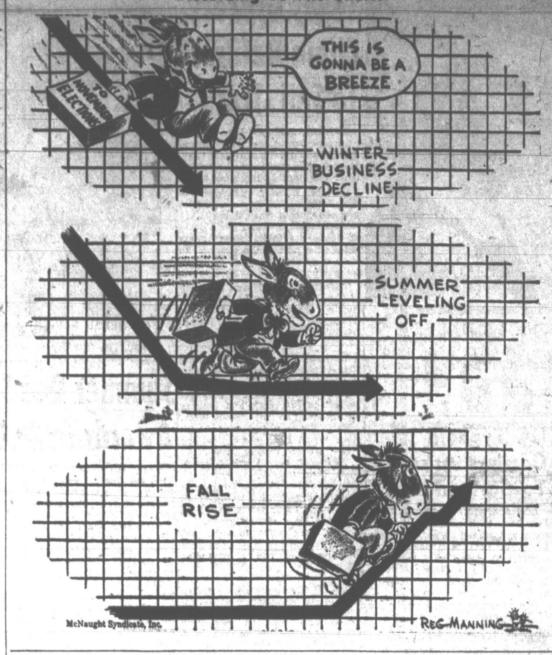

'From time immemorial inflation has been recommended as a means to alleviate the burdens of poor worthy debtors at the expense of rich harsh creditors. However, under capitalism the typical debtors are not the poor but the well - to-do owners of real estate, of firms, and of common stock, people who have borrowed from banks, savings banks, insurance companies, and bondholders. The typical creditors are not the rich but people of modest means who own bonds and savings accounts or have taken out insurance policies. If the common man supports anti-creditor measures, he does it because he ignores the fact that he himself is a creditor. The idea that millionaires are the victims of an easy-money policy is an atavistic remnant.

"For the naive mind there is something miraculous in the issuance of fiat money. A magic word spoken by the government creates out of nothing a thing which can be exchanged against any merchandise a man would like to get. How pale is the art of sorcerers, witches, and conjurors when compared with that of the government's treasury department! The government, professors tell 'can raise all the money it needs by printing it.' Taxes for revenue, announced a chairman of he Federal Reserve Bank of New Youk, are 'obsolete,' How wonder-ful! And how malicious and misanthropic are those stubborn supporters of out-dated economic orthodoxy who ask governments to all expenditures out of tax rev-

"These enthusiasts do not see that the working of inflation is conditioned by the ignorance of the public and that inflation ceases come aware of its effects upon the monetary unit's purchasing power. In normal times, that is in periods in which the government does not tamper with the monetary standard, people do not bother about monetary problems. Quite naively they take it for granted that the monetary unit's purchasing power is 'stable.' They pay attention to changes occurring in the money-prices of the various commodities. They know very well that the exchange-ratios between different commodities vary. But they are not conscious of the fact that the exchange - ratio between money on the one side and all commodities and services on the other side is variable too. When the inevitable consequences of inflation appear and prices soar, they think that commodities are becoming dearer and fail to see the early stages of an inflation only a few people discern what is going on, manage their business the situation. They go on in the nee, routine they acquired in non-inflationary periods, Filled with indignation, they attack hose who are quicker to apprehend the real causes of the agitation of the market as 'profiteers' and lay the blame for their own plight on them. This ignorance of the public is the indispensable basis of the inflationary policy. Inflation works as long as the housewife thinks: 'I need a new frying pan badly. But prices are too high today; I shall wait until they drop again.' It comes to an abrupt end when people discover that the inflation will continue, that it causes the rise in prices, and that therefore prices will skyrocket infinitely. The critical stage begins when the housewife thinks: 'I don't need a new frying pan today; I may need one in a year or two. But I'll buy it today because it will be much more expensive later.' Then the catastrophic end of the inflation is close. In its last stage the housewife

"Let us leave the problem of sether or not it is advisable to ase a system of government finnce upon the intentional decep-tion of the immense majority of the citizenry. It is enough to stress the point that such a policy of deceit is self-defeating. Here the famous dictum of Lincoln holds Yoy can't fool all of the chemes of their rulers. Then the leverly - concocted plans of inliant government economists may

for Little Leaguers

Proper use of your body enables you to throw hard without appearing to do so. You've heard the expression, "He's got a sneaky fast ball." This generally means that it doesn't look like a pitcher is throwing hard, but the ball whizzes past the batter before he is set to hit it. The great Christy Mathewson, Hall-of-Famer Dizzy Dean, and many other famous pitchers discovered how to pitch so smoothly that it did not seem that they were putting any effort into their pitching. Learning to push off the rubber properly and to follow through with their bodies were big assets to them. On the other hand you have seen pitchers who huff, and puff and moan and groan as they throw and it is obvious to everyone in the ball park that they are putting a lot of effort into their work. The desire to bear down is good, but no pitcher can get the best results unless he is relaxed. Too much strain in throwing makes it difficult to control a pitch. Pitchers like Mathewson, Dean, Ed Lopat and Hobin .toberts, with smooth motions, have such good control that they can hit the target the catcher holds for them 80 per cent of the time.

Off on an Hour's Vacation!

To be honest with you, we're not certain where he's going. He may be journeying to a branch office of his corporation . . . or he may be heading home for the day . . . or he may just be taking his afternoon "constitutional" behind the wheel.

But one thing we know for certain. He's about to embark on a little vacation. And for its length, it will be one of the most wonderful interludes a man could

For he's about to spend an hour in his 1954 Cadillac and here, beyond any question, is the perfect remedy for a trying day.

It will bring him physical relaxation—for his Cadillac is so comfortable and luxurious that merely to sit in the driver's seat is to rest. And the car handles and atters with such complete effortlessness that every mile is a tonic for the body.

It will bring him mental refreshment—for the car is such a joy to drive and ride in that a man seems al-
