Water Gains Negligible

Pampa used 367,170 gallons of water out of storage in the 24-hour period ending at 7:30 a.m. today, but "we have been holding our own since then."

Commie Retreat Is Begun

Actual Fighting In Indo-China To End On August 6

HANOI, July 22 - UP - Communist invaders of Laos Thursday began withdrawing from the Indo-Chinese kingdom.

It was announced formally in Hanoi that hostilities in Laos will end Aug. 6. Fifteen days were needed to inform all combatants because of poor communications to isolated outposts.

Fighting is already virtually over in Indo-China, although minor skirmishing may take place in remote districts until the Aug. 6 deadline, military sources said.

French Union troops made "tight contact" with Red rebels near Vinh Yen, about 25 miles northwest of Hanoi, the high command said.

Sporadic fighting continued in northern, central and southern Viet Nam where troops of both sides apparently had not received word that the seven-and-one-half-year-old war had ended.

Viet Nam circles said Wednesday the Communists proposed that they be given three days to inform all their troops in northern Viet Nam and the Red River delta, seven days in central Viet Nam and 10 days in southern Viet Nam.

A French high command spokesman said it was "relatively calm" in the Red River delta, which is to be turned over to the Communists in accordance with the truce terms reached at Geneva Wednesday.

Both sides suffered needless losses when rebels attacked the French Union post of Chu Hai in central Viet Nam.

Paris, July 22 - UP - The French cabinet Thursday unanimously approved the Indo-Chinese cease-fire agreement won by Premier Pierre Mendes-France at the Geneva Far Eastern conference.

Mendes-France spent two hours and 15 minutes outlining for his cabinet the details of the agreement ending the eight-year-old Indo-China war, in advance of his appearance before the national assembly.

He was quoted as telling his cabinet that much credit for success of the conference was due to the understanding of the United States and Britain.

"France was never more solid with her allies," he was quoted. "We will ask the national assembly to follow the cabinet in giving strong approval to the cease-fire arrangement."

The young prime minister specifically had asked before his departure from Geneva that there be no demonstrations and the public was barred from the meadow-like Villacoublay airfield near Paris.

But 200 cabinet members, officials and newsmen who were admitted to the airstrip burst into applause when the tired leader stepped down to get a kiss from his wife.

"Pierre is a man who always gets things done," said Mrs. Mendes-France, a lovely Egyptian.

Shamrock Gas Station Is Robbed

An unknown man and his companion held up a Shamrock service station attendant early Wednesday morning and took $100 from the cash register at gunpoint.

The armed robbery was at 8 a.m. on West Highway 66 at the P. B. Woodridge Service Station according to Sheriff Bus Dorman of Wheeler County.

Lone station attendant at the time of the holdup was Kenneth King, who said the two men drove up and asked him to service their car, a dark 50 or 51 model. He put seven gallons of gas in the tank, a quart of oil in the crankcase and three more in the car trunk.

"Slim will pay you," said the passenger as the driver stepped out, brandished a gun and pulled a mask over his face. King told officers.

"Yes, son, I'll pay you," the driver responded and forced King to hand him the contents of the cash register. The masked gunman then got back in his car and drove west on Highway 66. The bandit was described by King as about 35 years old, tall and balding.

A-Energy Bill Debate Passes 24-Hour Mark

U.S., Britain Join Hands In Asian Matters

WASHINGTON, July 22 - UP - The United States and Britain have suddenly buried their differences and agreed to go ahead with plans for an international conference to blueprint southeast Asia's defense, it was disclosed Thursday.

A course of action has been agreed on within the last 48 hours, an informed source said. "Some announcement should be made soon on the next Allied step. Major disagreements between Washington and London have been overtaken."

A congressman acquainted with the development said Secretary of State John Foster Dulles is "hopeful and optimistic" that the conference can begin next month.

Only a few days ago the United States and Britain were deadlocked over how soon to set up the proposed Southeast Asian Treaty Organization (SEATO) to block further Communist advances. This country wanted immediate action. Britain wanted to wait to line up more charter members.

But an agreement to go ahead came swiftly as the great fact of the Indo-China truce entered the picture. Informants said the allies feel a defense system must be created quickly to deal with the "dangerous interval" following the cease-fire.

Washington, July 22 - UP - President Eisenhower reported Thursday he had cut about $10 billion from former President Truman's federal spending budget for fiscal 1954 which ended last June 30.

Even so, the Treasury wound up with a deficit of $3,029,000,000 for the 12-month period. This was about $245 million less than President Eisenhower had estimated last January.

"We have come over two-thirds of the way towards balancing of the budget," Mr. Eisenhower said in a statement. "And we have done this while putting into effect a tax program which will return nearly $7.5 billion to the people."

McCarthy Information Try Fizzles

WASHINGTON, July 22 - UP - The Defense Department refused Thursday to give in to Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy's demand that it reveal why it denied a security clearance to one of the senator's aides.

McCarthy charged in a letter to Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson Wednesday night that the department was "hiding behind a technicality" in refusing the information. He said the investigator, Thomas W. LaVenia, in a should be granted clearance to handle security information.

McCarthy asked Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr., in another letter, to supply the subcommittee with any additional information the Justice Department has on LaVenia.

Assistant Secretary of Defense Fred A. Seaton said Thursday he knows of no plans to make an exception in LaVenia's case. He said department rules forbid releasing information on security clearances since much of it comes from the FBI and is of a "confidential nature."

The Justice Department is expected to take the same position. McCarthy's investigating subcommittee refused to confirm LaVenia, this week when it ruled on members of the staff in a stormy aftermath of the Army-McCarthy hearings. It agreed to hold a special meeting soon to decide whether he should be fired because of the security problem.

Donald Surine, another McCarthy investigator who was denied Defense Department clearance, was transferred to the senator's personal staff just before the subcommittee was due to act on his case.

Second Man Killed By Hit, Run Driver

Two men have been killed on Pampa highways this week by hit-and-run drivers. The first now positively identified as Andrew Marcum, was killed near Jericho Tuesday. The latest victim, Joe Grueter, a 58-year-old farm hand, was killed Wednesday night at the intersection of U. S. Highways 117 and 66 near Pampa.

A three-state alert issued after Marcum's death has netted nothing. A road block set up Wednesday night for the car which killed Grueter was equally fruitless. Police and sheriff's officers in the area are continuing their search for the death driver.

Grueter is being taken to Elk City, Okla., today by the Poston Funeral Home at Pampa. Services are pending there. He is survived by his wife and daughter of Canby, Okla., and three sons, Harvey and Calvin Grueter of Amarillo and another son in Korea.

'TAKE MY CARD,' URGES CANDIDATE - THEN, WOWEE!

Justice of the Peace D. R. Henry is having his troubles campaigning these days.

Like many a candidate, he usually carries a pocketful of campaign cards. And, like many a voter, he also receives cards from other candidates.

Wednesday he stopped a voter on the street, talked a while, pulled out a card and gave it to him.

There was only one trouble - the name of his opponent, Mrs. Crystal Hankhouse, was on it.

President Boasts Budget Reduction

WASHINGTON, July 22 - UP - President Eisenhower reported Thursday he had cut about $10 billion from former President Truman's federal spending budget for fiscal 1954 which ended last June 30.

Even so, the Treasury wound up with a deficit of $3,029,000,000 for the 12-month period. This was about $245 million less than President Eisenhower had estimated last January.

"We have come over two-thirds of the way towards balancing of the budget," Mr. Eisenhower said in a statement. "And we have done this while putting into effect a tax program which will return nearly $7.5 billion to the people."

Mr. Eisenhower also claimed that his administration's fiscal policies "have halted inflation." He said purchasing power of the dollar has varied only one-half of one percent in the past 18 months.

"We are laying a firm base for a healthy and expanding economy for better national security, and for more jobs for more people," Mr. Eisenhower said.

The federal government spent about $67.5 billion and received in taxes and other revenue about $64.6 billion in fiscal 1954. Mr. Eisenhower's estimate last January called for spending of $70.9 billion and revenue of $67.4 billion.

This smaller revenues than anticipated kept the deficit from being even smaller than it was.

Truman's 'Tight' Budget Mr. Truman, in his fiscal 1954 budget sent to Congress in January of 1953, estimated federal expenditures at $77.9 billion and receipts at $68 billion. He called this a "tight" budget and said it could not be cut without endangering national security or eliminating essential federal services.

Most of the economies made by Mr. Eisenhower and the Republican Congress were at the expense of defense and the foreign aid programs.

Knowland To Keep Solons In Session

WASHINGTON, July 22 - UP - Senate debate on the Atomic Energy bill rolled around the clock Thursday and Republican Leader William F. Knowland (Calif.) said he would keep the chamber in continuous session until the controversial measure is passed.

The 24-hour mark of frequently heated debate was passed at 8 a.m. (CST) with Sen. Wayne Morse (Ind-Ore.) holding the floor. He frankly labeled his speech a 'filibuster.'

Morse finally sat down at 9:30 a.m. but having held the floor for six hours and 13 minutes. At that point the Senate had been in session 23 1/2 hours.

More Talk Later Morse said, however, that he intends to discuss "at some length" tax features of the Atomic Energy bill later in the debate. He agreed with Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-S.C.) that senators "might be back here this evening."

Enemies of the bill persisted in their efforts to talk it to death despite a defeat they suffered Wednesday night over a private power proposal involving the Atomic Energy Commission.

The Senate voted 56 to 36 against an amendment to bar the AEC from contracting with a private utilities group for power to be fed into the TVA system at Memphis. It then approved by voice vote a provision giving President Eisenhower specific authority to make the contract.

To Stay In Session The session started at 8 a.m. Wednesday. Morse, who holds the senate's continuous talking record 22 hours and 26 minutes - said he wasn't out to hang up a new mark.

But as he kept on speaking, Knowland sent word to the news gallery that he will keep the Senate in session until he gets a final vote on the bill.

The public vs. private power battle was a side issue. The main purpose of the bill is to modernize the atomic energy act of 1946 to permit fuller industrial participation in atomic energy and greater U.S. cooperation with friendly nations.

Hoppers Plague Pampa Residents

Blast Injures Factory Crew

HIGHTSTOWN, N. J., July 22 - UP - An explosion that shook this whole community wrecked a building at the Unexcelled Chemical Co. here Thursday, injuring a number of employees.

Three persons were taken to nearby Princeton hospital and a hospital spokesman said "there may be more on the way."

State police said the blast occurred at 7:35 a.m. est. They first reported it as a fireworks explosion but a company spokesman said the firm had stopped manufacturing fireworks several years ago.

The spokesman would not say what was being manufactured in the building where the explosion took place.

"All I can tell you right now is that we are working under government contract," he said.

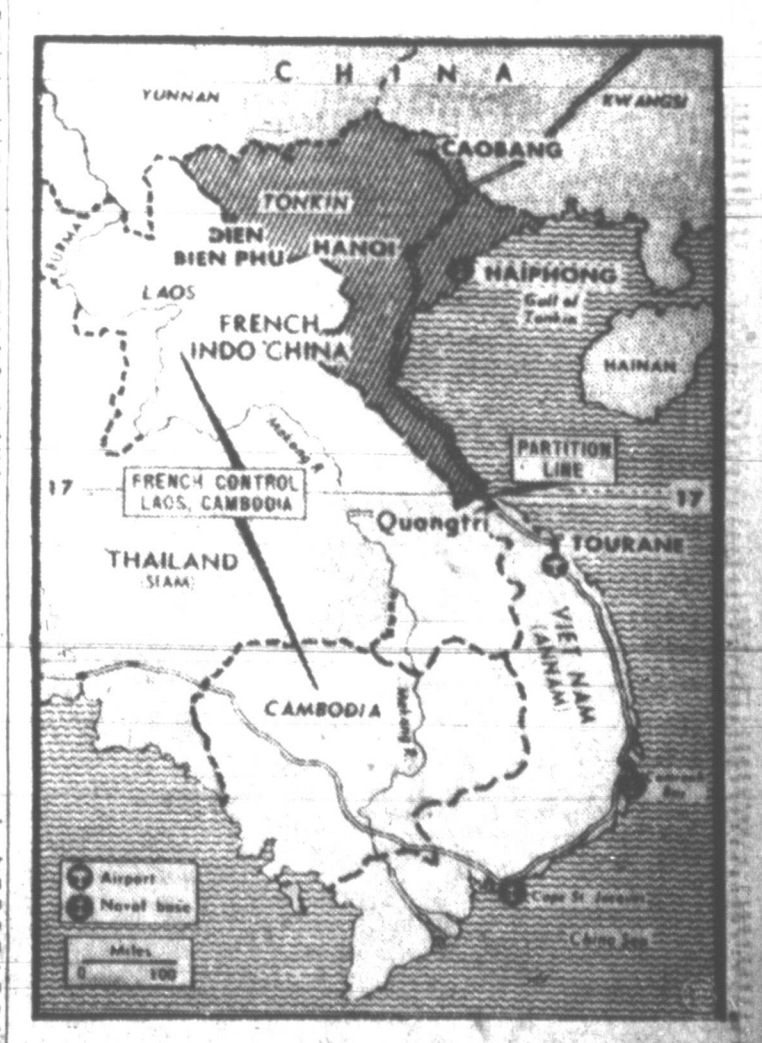

State police said the company was located in a rural area and the explosion was confined to one building.

Rep. Walter Rogers, of Pampa, will be an honored guest Friday night in the Borger Hotel at a meeting of the Borger Service Station Association, called to help form a Top of Texas association for smaller communities. Ben Ogden, of Pampa, vice president of the Texas association, late this morning said an estimated 40-50 Pampa service station operators and their wives are expected to be on hand. Purpose of the dinner-meeting, slated for 8 p.m., is to show appreciation for service station operators in Top of Texas communities and to give them an opportunity, after dinner, to form a group of their own, which will be part of the state association.

U.S. Polio Eases Up

WASHINGTON, July 22 (UP)—The U. S. Public Health Service said Thursday 1,066 new cases of polio were reported in the nation last week. Although this was an increase over the 758 cases reported during the preceding week, health authorities expect a steady mounting of the polio rate at this time of the year. More significant was the fact that the latest week's toll was considerably smaller than the 1,245 cases reported during the corresponding week of 1953, and the 1,799 reported during the corresponding week of 1952.

For the polio "disease year" which starts on April 1, the cumulative total of cases for 1954 stands at 4,988, compared with 5,285 last year and 5,348 in 1952. Health service physicians have said that it would be premature to attribute the decreased incidence of polio this year to the new vaccine administered to school children in some selected test areas. The vaccine was given to a relatively small percentage of the total population, and its efficacy will not be determined until results of the tests are fully studied.

Lions Attend H. C. Wilson Rites Pampa Lions Club members adjourned shortly after they finished their meal this noon in the basement of the First Methodist Church for that members could attend the funeral of H. C. Wilson, club member, who died Tuesday afternoon. The funeral was held at 3 p.m. today in the First Presbyterian Church with Dr. Douglas E. Nelson officiating. Boss Lion Aaron Sturgeon said a few words about Mr. Wilson, announcements were made and the group dismissed.

United Fund Drive Date Up To Chairmen

John Campbell and Ed Myatt, co-chairmen of 1954 United Fund drive, will set a date for the drive — sometime in October — when they have contacted Amarillo fund officials to determine when the drive will be held there. United Fund directors and campaign committeemen met Wednesday afternoon and it was decided to let the drive chairmen pick the date.

A new census of employees in Pampa business and industrial houses will be made again this year, Campbell continued. Telephone company employees on strike helped in the census a year ago. This year it is hoped school teachers can be used for the same task. A short discussion of the Pampa fund's economic situation comprised the remainder of the meeting, the drive chairman reported.

Two more fund meetings have been scheduled. The Budget and Admissions Committee will hold a hearing at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 17 in the City Commission Room for the purpose of reviewing the budgets of the eight participating agencies. And a fund board meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 24 in the office of Hugh (Buck) Burdette in the Hughes Building. Agencies in the fund are the Red Cross, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Milk Fund, Cancer Society, Heart Fund, United Service Organization and Salvation Army. Present for Wednesday's meeting in addition to Campbell and Myatt were Burdette, Gene Sidwell, A. A. Schuneman, Dr. J. B. Veale, Jr., Ray McKernan, Mrs. Rufe Jordan, John Frick, Frank Smith and Gordon Lyons.

'Trafficking' Charged In Flood Relief

MEXICO CITY, July 22 (UP)—The newspaper Ultimas Noticias charges that municipal officials of Nuevo Laredo are "trafficking with supplies and medicines" sent to help flood sufferers. The newspaper said residents are being "vilely" exploited by city officials. It said citizens of Nuevo Laredo and other towns devastated by the great Rio Grande flood "only can count on the aid the American Red Cross offers them."

Mexican authorities... have dedicated themselves to trafficking with supplies and medicines from the Red Cross but handed out much less expensive Mexican brands to the flood victims. Ultimas Noticias said Nuevo Laredo city officials received 25,000 packages of American cigarettes from the Red Cross but handed out much less expensive Mexican brands to the flood victims.

M., July 22 (UP)—An Air Force Sabrejet went into an uncontrolled dive and disappeared Wednesday night in the vicinity of a ziggzag mesa about 10 miles southwest of Kirtland Air Force Base here. George, a Korean war veteran assigned to the 172nd Fighter Bomber squadron of the Air National Guard, was flying from Detroit to International airport at Ontario, Calif., when another Sabrejet piloted by Capt. L. A. Erickson.

Tibbets and Arlie Carpenter were on hand at 9:30 a.m. when Wayland Merriman, commissioners' court consultant engineer and designer of the stands, opened the bids. County Judge J. E. McGuire, Jr. entered the county courtroom just as discussion got underway. Completion date for the job is set for Aug. 20, Merriman said. With a sealing capacity of about 230 persons, the structure will consist of steel supports and wooden seats around the south end of the barn. Today's was a special meeting of the court for the express purpose of opening the bids on the stands and making a decision.

Meanwhile four new patients were admitted to the polio clinic in Plainview Tuesday, one with bulbar polio. The number of polio patients under treatment at the West Texas Polio Center now stands at 23. Ex-King Farouk of Egypt, right, raises protesting arm and cigar as his photo is taken in open-air night club in Rome Monday. The portly former ruler, it seems, objected to having his picture taken with luscious Irma Capece Minutolo, 23, (barely visible behind Farouk), who claims to be his present fiancée. Cameraman settled for Irma alone, a pretty fair exchange, at right. (NEA TELEPHOTO)

France Was Never Ready For Total War, Experts Say

By KENNETH MILLER

PARIS, July 22—Why didn't France win the Indo-China war? Why couldn't a world power, backed by more than $2.8 billion in American aid, beat a rebel Communist army that started with numerical inferiority and poor arms? Too little and too late sums it up. French military experts say France never was ready to make total war—militarily or politically—to beat the Viet Minh in eight years.

Nothing But Hesitation

And the Viet Namese, seeing nothing but hesitation from Paris and failing to get satisfaction on demands for independence, never threw themselves wholeheartedly into the struggle. Millions preferred to sit on the fence until it became clear which side would win. From the military viewpoint, according to French experts, successive French administrations saw too late that classical European warfare tactics must be adapted to large-scale fluid guerrilla fighting, without fixed front lines.

Until recent tightening of French lines, the 260,000-man French expeditionary corps was spread over a territory as big as Texas—1 1/3 times larger than France.

Everything the French wanted to keep had to be guarded day and night. Areas they controlled by day belonged to the Communists after dark. Peasants who tolled to rebuild blasted roads under the French crept back at night and dynamited them anew under Viet Minh threats.

Frittered Manpower

Every bridge, every post, every village, every railroad, every highway the French wanted to secure only frittered away their manpower for offensive drives. Each time scores of little posts needed relief or supplies, a major military operation was necessary to punch through guerrilla ambushes.

French airpower—always weak despite U. S. aid—was consumed in making air drops to isolated garrisons instead of keeping Viet Minh supply routes to China cut, or making large raids against enemy concentrations.

When the French did get up a big operation, word of it generally leaked to the enemy.

No Longer Does Leprosy Mean Lifetime In Exile

EDITOR'S NOTE—To become infected with leprosy once meant a one-way trip into exile from society. But modern drugs, plus a modern approach to a problem that is mostly superstitious, has given new hope and a new lease on life to victims of one of the world's most merciless diseases. The following dispatch, the second in a two-part series, tells how one man conquered leprosy and the fear that goes with it.

By JACK GATES
CARVILLE, La., July 22—Nineteen years ago a young man named Johnny Harmon abruptly quit his job with the Texas Highway Department and left his hometown of Hankamer, Tex.

He didn't tell anyone, except his father, where he was going. When he applied for admission to the U. S. Public Health Service hospital here he gave his name as "Johnny Harris."

A few months ago John Harmon—using his real name again—left the hospital. A spare man of 43, he went to Vacherie, La., and opened a photography shop. Business is good. He is making new friends and getting used to being on his own.

Harmon has a slight depression in the skin between his left thumb and forefinger. This is the only sign that for the past 19 years he has been one of the rare American victims of a disease that strikes terror by the very mention of its name—leprosy.

Harmon was 24 and just getting started on a career as a draftsman when a doctor told him he had Hansen's disease, the medical name for the scourge which since ancient times has brought shame and banishment to those it afflicted.

Thought Life Was Over
 "I guess I changed my name because I was ashamed and didn't want my relatives to have to suffer, too. I thought my life was over. I would just as soon have died," he recalls.

At Carville he found a colony of lepers wrapped in gloom. Few of the patients spoke to each other. Many never left their rooms. Doctors and nurses made a game of it, trying to keep them cheerful. But most of them could not shake off the knowledge they might never move freely again in society. At that time the only treatment for leprosy was an old Indian drug called Chaulmoogra oil. Since then have come the sulfa drugs, and a new era in the treatment of leprosy.

Doctors have found that with sulfa treatment they can arrest the progress of the disease and keep it under control. Best of all, they can check its infectious quality and allow sufferers to return to their families.

No Foreboding 'Pesthouse'
 The revolution at the Carville leprosarium has made it not a foreboding "pesthouse" but a pleasant community where doctors mend both the physical and mental health of the patients.

Marriage, once frowned upon, is accepted. An American Legion post at Carville operates a station wagon called the "honeymoon express" to transport couples to nearby Baton Rouge for licenses and weddings.

When babies are born they have to be separated from their mothers immediately. Babies are more susceptible than older persons to leprosy in its infectious stage.

Carville patients enjoy a nine-hole golf course, and a New Orleans pro makes frequent trips to the hospital to give lessons. There are schools to train patients in special skills that will help them find jobs when they leave.

In 1948, John Harmon had responded so well to sulfa treatment his case was marked "closed" by hospital authorities. But he did not leave. He says today he preferred living among the leprosy victims to going back home and facing a world that might always shun him because of his disease.

He opened a photography shop to develop snapshots for patients and employes of the hospital. He fell in love with a girl named Ann—also a patient—and they were married. They had two children who were sent to stay with Ann's family at Vacherie.

Agreed to Leave
 This year doctors told Harmon he should leave for his own good and get a fresh start outside.

He finally agreed. Though the Texas Highway Department offered him his old job back, he did not want to return to his hometown. He went instead to Vacherie, and had a frank talk with Ernest Bechel, a leading citizen of the town.

Bechel asked if he had been officially discharged from the hospital. "Yes," Harmon replied.

"We have great faith in the doctors up there," Bechel told him. "If they discharged you that's okay with us."

There are no secrets in a town the size of Vacherie, and everyone knew Harmon was a leprosy victim. But townspeople agreed with Bechel. They bring him their rolls of film and crowd into the shop to talk over their picture-taking problems. Harmon feels right at home.

"I've been invited out a few times," he says, "but it wouldn't be much fun without Ann so I usually turn the invitations down. When she comes home, I guess I'll be getting round more."

Mrs. Harmon is an "open" case. She must stay at the hospital for further treatment, but doctors say it won't be too long before her file is marked "closed."

Investigator—Sen. Homer E. Capehart (R., Ind.), chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, plans investigating builders who parlayed small investments into large profits from government-backed loans.

NEW YORK, July 22—Joyce Bannon told a judge Sunday she still loves her boy friend, even after he broke her arm, smashed her foot, stole $2,500 worth of articles from her apartment, threatened to put a bomb in her car and said he would put marijuana cigars in her purse.

Virginia Mayo Revives Milk Bath Routine

By ALINE MOSBY
HOLLYWOOD, July 22 —UP— Virginia Mayo beat other Hollywood beauties to the bathtub Wednesday by taking the first movie milk bath since Claudette Colbert dunked in 400 gallons of the stuff back in 1932.

Director Victor Saville elected to carry on the tradition of Biblical bathing scenes. He ordered the long-legged Miss Mayo to step into a black sunken bathtub filled with 300 gallons of white-colored water for a scene in "The Silver Chalice."

This bath, however, was more subdued than past Hollywood Saturday night scrubbing.

Saville ordered an iron curtain of secrecy lowered against any reporters or photographers on the set because, according to a spokesman, "this is a religious picture and we don't want to emphasize a sex angle."

But before entering the sound stage to take her milk bath in private, Miss Mayo was cornered for her opinion on the screen ritual.

It was a hot day. "This bath sounds great because it will be cool," the blonde observed.

Virginia wore a flesh-colored, strapless bathing suit and body make-up all over. She said she understood some French actresses took their movie baths in the nude and, "well, really, that's going too far!"

Miss Mayo said she would be covered discreetly by a huge towel when she steps out of the tub.

Virginia thereby has nosed out Ann Baxter in the 1954 bathtub division.

Director C. B. DeMille, long hailed as the master and originator of the Biblical bathtub scene, hasn't even decided yet whether Ann will climb into a tub for "The Ten Commandments."

So far the script for DeMille's most supercolossal epic calls for another bathing scene, but not in a tub. The Pharaoh's daughter and handmaidens are scheduled to wander to the river for a bath and there find baby Moses in the bulrushes.

In the past DeMille had Miss Colbert shiver in 400 gallons of real milk (historians insist) for "The Sign of the Cross." In "Unconquered," Paulette Goddard scrubbed in a wooden bathtub, and the censors made her use suds. Gloria Swanson played a scene in a tub in "Male and Female." In fact, the bathtub industry awarded DeMille a medal in 1931 for glamorizing the art of the bath.

Rita Gam was tossed into a tub last year for "Attila the Hun," and Bella Darvi's reflection is seen in the water of her bath in "The Egyptian."

Susan Hayward took one of the most famous baths in Biblical history when she caught Gregory Peck's roving eye in "David and Bathsheba."

GRACE FRIEND

Dear Grace Friend

Some time ago I started writing to some pen pals in Japan.

Since that time they have apparently printed my name in a magazine and I now have approximately 200 pen pals.

I am unable to write to this many as you can tell so I would like to give some of them away.

Would you please ask those who are interested to write to me so that I can send them some of the names. The pen pals should be 16 or under.

B. H.

If boys and girls 16 or under are interested in writing to boys and girls of the same ages in Japan and will write to B. H. in care of Grace Friend, this newspaper, I will be glad to forward the letters to them.

Young people not only can learn a great many interesting things from writing to pen pals abroad but there is much fun and pleasure to be gained from the correspondence. It is a good way to spend part of the summer vacation.

DEAR GRACE FRIEND

I just can't understand my baby. One day he is so good about eating and the next day he just refuses everything I offer him.

Even when he likes something very well he sometimes won't let me give him even a spoonful but just spits it out.

He is a big baby and I know that he needs lots of food for energy and yet I hate to upset him by forcing him to eat. Still if he doesn't I worry and worry.

He is very good and sleeps through the night. My only problem is in getting him to eat enough.

M. M.

Dear M. M.

If he is good and sleeps through the night you can be assured that he is getting enough to eat. Evidently he is gaining regularly if he is a big baby and that is another sign that he is getting enough to eat.

Remember that he is like you and doesn't always want to eat as much one day as he did the day before. Perhaps he tires of a food and wants more variety.

If he seems tired of a certain food leave it out of his diet for a few days. If he just doesn't want to eat, don't make him. You may be overfeeding him if you force him. It is just as bad to have a baby too fat as to have him too thin.

RUTH MILLET

Several readers have written to say, "Please, please won't you tell mothers to look after their own children during the vacation months?"

Seems as though in many neighborhoods there are some mothers who turn their kids loose after breakfast and leave them on the neighborhood for the rest of the day.

It isn't surprising that the neighbors get a little tired of having these children descend on their homes and yards day after day.

One reader whose children are grown says "During the vacation months it is a target for the children whose mothers just turn them loose. They land on my yard with their wagons, bikes, guns, etc., and sometimes there are a dozen or more children racing through my yard, screaming and yelling, breaking down shrubs, trampling flowers, etc."

"My husband and I like children. But we would also like a little peace and quiet — and we don't get it even on Sunday."

Well, there it is, Mom. If the shoe fits, put it on. It fits, all right, if you have been kidding yourself that a child can be turned loose from morning to night to roam at will and not annoy any of your neighbors.

It fits, if you are the kind of mother who doesn't check up on where your children are and what they are doing so long as they aren't under foot at home.

Where is Junior right now? If you don't know, maybe you had better do a little checking up.

Could he be out annoying the neighbors.

Piano Recital Given

One of the highlights of the recent Wednesday piano pupils of Mrs. Ramon Wilson and Miss Kay Wilson was the presenting of awards to Miss Eileen Trout and Miss Jenny Ann Goff for making the most progress during the summer.

Following the recital, a tea was held in the pupils' mothers. Refreshments of cake and punch were served. Decorations were arrangements of summer flowers.

Those performing were Don Helton, Betty Gail Richardson, Eileen Trout, Jimmy Flynnt, Nannette Flynnt, Jim Garard, Jenny Ann Goff, Glenda Deering, Edna Sacklett, Carolyn Harvey, Patricia Cook, Elizabeth Ann Emerson, Linda Hyatt, David Balch, Marilyn Scott, Jim Scott, and Patricia Grubbs.

Bell HD Club Has Sewing Program

The Bell Home Demonstration Club met recently in the home of Mrs. Carl Smith, southwest of city.

Mrs. D. W. Swain presented the program on skirt making.

"Stay stitch from both sides of the edge to the center of the skirt," she advised. "You do not stay stitch straight or bias seams. Stay stitch the placket line and the place where the pocket is put into the side seam. Stitch about 1/4 inch from the edge to keep the stitching from showing."

Mrs. Swain advised the women to start sewing from the bottom of the skirt and to work material with fingers from bottom to top to be sure it is even. Seams should be pressed open with the fingers as they are made and later pressed open with the point of an iron, she pointed out.

In making a belt, a strip of muslin one-half the width of the finished belt plus 1/4 inch should be cut, she stated. Shrink the muslin three times. Place it wrong side up, allowing 1/4 inch to turn over, she instructed. Center crease the inside of the belt. Stitch the muslin to the belt 1/2 inch from the edge and just inside the crease. Press the folded belt to make it curved at the top. Attach the right side of the belt to the right side of the skirt and machine-baste. Stitch across the ends.

Following the program, refreshments of cookies and punch were served. Those present were Mrs. Walter Noel, Tommie Anderwald, Roland Dauter, Swain, and Smith.

Next meeting of the group will be Aug. 6, in the home of Mrs. Tommie Anderwald.

MAKES UNUSUAL CHILI — Mrs. Deck Woldt, 801 E. Francis, adds chili powder to the other ingredients used in her Wisconsin-style chili. She learned how to make it partly from her husband, but says she "learned how to make it better" each time she prepared it.

This Is My Dish

Chili With Macaroni Has Special Appeal

By JANE KADINCO

"When Deck told me to add macaroni, I thought it would be terrible," Mrs. Deck Woldt stated while giving her special recipe for chili. "But it's really very good."

"Mrs. Woldt prepares chili Wisconsin-style. Husband Deck is originally from Sturgeon Bay, a d the family just returned from a trip 'up there.'"

"When you order chili in a cafe in Sturgeon Bay, you get it prepared that way," Mrs. Woldt advised. She added that she makes a big pot of it and keeps it in the refrigerator. "Deck likes it when it comes home from a ball game," she pointed out. "And it always seems to taste better after you've warmed it four or five times."

"Mrs. Woldt, who lives with her husband and two children at 801 E. Francis, has been a Pampa baseball coach at Pampa High School this past year and has been playing with the Pampa Oilers for five summers."

"During the summer, Mrs. Woldt doesn't make chili quite as 'hot' as she does during the winter months. It requires the lighting of only one burner, a wonderful feature for these 'soaring temperature' days. Here's how she does it."

Lime Party Loaf Is Budget-Happy, Festive Dessert

Fancy enough for a party, but at a "budget-happy" cost, is this LIME PARTY LOAF. It's called PARTY LOAF because it is so pretty, so festive and so delicious, but don't let that fool you into thinking it takes a long time to fix, because this dessert doesn't.

There is very little measuring, only a few lost cost ingredients, no peeling or chopping, and only a tiny bit of stirring. Your refrigerator does most of the work. Wonderful flavor and simple garnishes make this dessert outstanding.

INGREDIENTS:
1 cup uncooked white rice
2 cups water
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups milk
3 packages time flavored gelatin
1 cup hot water
2 cups cold water
1 cup whipping cream, chilled

METHOD: Put rice, water and salt into a 2-quart, or larger, saucepan. Bring to a vigorous boil. Turn the heat as low as possible. Cover and cook over the low heat 15 minutes. Remove the lid and vigorously stir in the milk. Cover and cook slowly 15 minutes, stirring several times. The mixture should be very creamy and all the milk should not be absorbed.

While the rice is cooking, add the gelatin to the hot water. Stir over a low heat until dissolved. Mix the hot rice and hot gelatin. Add the cold water. Cool and chill until the mixture begins to thicken. Beat vigorously with an egg beater until creamy. Even if the mixture becomes solid, allow it to soften and beat vigorously.

Four into a greased loaf pan 9-1-4" x 1-4" x 1-4" or into a ring mold, or spoon into dessert dishes or sherbet plates. Chill until firm. If molded, unmold by running a

Bananas Are Great Picnickers in Nature's Own Portable Package

Bananas could have been made just for picnics. Nature designed such a perfect package for the fruit that they needn't even be wrapped to be ready for the picnic basket. Picnickers depend upon bananas for a portable dessert with a flavor everyone likes. But did you know that bananas are just as delicious hot as cold? Did you know they make a perfect food to grill whole right along with the frankfurters, the hamburgers, or with that steak sizzling on the outdoor grill?

For Grilled Bananas, a less ripe banana is best, the kind that has all yellow peel or yellow peel that is slightly green-tipped. This banana is less sweet and it will stay firm while cooking. Of course, for bananas to eat out of hand, you want the fully ripe kind that have all yellow peel flecked with brown. These are bananas at their best of flavor, sweetness, and digestibility.

Banana Layer Cake (1-Bowl Method)

Before Mixing: Have shortening at room temperature. Grease pans. Set oven at correct temperature (375 degrees F.).

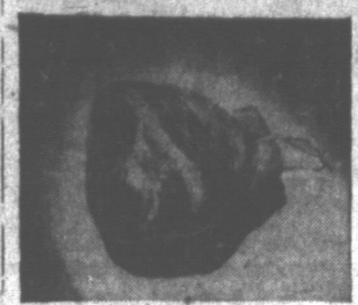

2 1/2 cups sifted cake flour
1 1/4 cups sugar
2 1/2 teaspoons double-action baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup shortening
1 1/2 cups mashed ripe bananas (4 to 6 bananas)
2 eggs, unbeaten
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift together flour, sugar, baking powder, soda and salt into large mixing bowl. Add shortening, 1/2 cup of the bananas and eggs. Beat 2 minutes at slow to medium speed with electric mixer or 2 minutes by hand. Scrape down bowl and beater or spoon frequently during mixing. Add remaining 1 cup bananas and vanilla. Beat 1 minute longer. Turn into 2 well-greased, 8-inch layer cake pans. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) about 25 minutes, or until layers are done. Frost with your favorite frosting.

Makes 1 cake.

4 to 6 firm bananas
Melted butter or margarine
Salt

Peel bananas. Place on rack or into pan. Brush bananas well with butter or margarine. Sprinkle lightly with salt. Grill about 5 minutes on each side or until bananas are browned and tender... easily pierced with a fork. Serve hot with grilled hamburgers, sausages or frankfurters. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Q. What is the name of this cut of meat?
A. Smoked picnic shoulder.

Q. Where does it come from?
A. It is the arm and shank sections of the pork shoulder which have been smoked.

Q. How is it prepared?
A. By roasting or cooking in liquid. For roasting, the shoulder is placed fat side up on a rack in an open roasting pan. It is cooked without a cover or water in a 300° F. oven for 35 minutes per pound. For cooking in liquid it is placed in a heavy utensil and completely covered with water. The utensil is tightly covered and the meat allowed to simmer until tender, approximately 45 minutes per pound.

Every woman, but particularly the woman who has passed 40, should treat her face and neck as one. Always use the same cleanser and lubricating creams on your neck as you use on your face.

STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL MOLD — The fancy strawberry festival dessert can be made in any of your decorative salad molds. Arrange fresh fruit or berries in the bottom of the mold before pouring in the ice cream. Tuck more fruit around the top of the mold and it's ready to freeze. Be sure to have a bowl of sweetened fruit or berries ready when you serve your guests their portion of this elegant frozen dessert. Make it a real festival!

Refreshingly Cool Frozen Dessert Best For Hot Days

The strawberry festival mold is delightfully easy to make during these hot weather days. It's especially fine for bridge parties or those informal summer club meetings.

1 quart fresh or frozen strawberries
2 cups light cream
1 package vanilla freezing mix
Wash and stem fresh berries. Cover with sugar syrup and let stand several hours. (This will keep fruit from getting too hard when frozen.) Arrange a few berries in bottom of quart size mold.

Whip light cream in a deep bowl until a deep layer of foam forms. Takes 1 to 2 minutes. Add contents of package of vanilla freezing mix. Whip 1 more minute to dissolve. Pour into mold. Arrange more berries around top edge of mold. Freeze until firm, but not too hard. Unmold by dipping mold in hot water for about a minute. Run knife around edge of mold to loosen. Turn out on large plate. Serve in slices with more berries.

Canned Fruits Are Larger, Cheaper

Plenty of canned fruits are waiting for you on the grocery shelf. The Agricultural Marketing Service reports that the combined stock of 10 canned fruits now in the hands of packers are about six per cent larger than last year at this time.

These fruits include apples, applesauce, apricots, sweet cherries, sour cherries, fruit cocktail an d salad pears, peaches, plums and prunes and citrus segments. Stocks of canned peaches, apricots, applesauce and sour cherries are considerably larger than a year ago while those of other products were considerably lower.

Picnic Food Items Are Plentiful Now

July is picnic time! The Agricultural Marketing Service points out that many favorite foods for picnics are so plentiful this month that they have been included on the official plentiful foods list for this area.

And when foods are plentiful, they are generally cheaper. So enjoy your picnic without wrecking your budget.

Any successful picnic depends on how well you plan the food. Keep it simple and easy to serve — that's the main rule.

And what can be easier to prepare and serve than such July plentifula as wieners, cheese or cold fried chicken?

Peanut butter is plentiful, too, and can come to the picnic table as is or all dressed up in a mixture of honey, dried fruits that have been cooked until tender or, mashed up with bananas.

For desserts, there are such plentifula as cantaloup, watermelon and ice cream.

Top spot on the July plentiful foods list — that's where broilers and fryers have landed because supplies are so heavy in this area.

As a result of these larger supplies, prices are more favorable to consumers. At the farm level, mostly at 25 to 27 cents a pound, about one to three cents lower than last year at this time, says the Agricultural Marketing Service.

The light weight birds — those especially suitable for broiling or barbecuing — are in the largest supply.

Broiling is a favorite way to prepare chicken and there's no quicker or easier way to prepare chicken than broiling. All you have to do is brush the halves or pieces with butter and place in a pan under a moderate flame.

You can vary the flavor of your broiled chicken with a few simple tricks. For instance, use French bread or sprigging the chicken with chopped, blanched almonds. Apply the nuts about 10 minutes before the chicken is ready to remove from the broiler.

Another trick is to blend equal amounts of butter and blue cheese. Use about a cup of this mixture to each chicken, applying half of it when you first place the meat under the flame and the remainder after the chicken is about half done. Frequent basting with the drippings, will enhance the flavor of the chicken.

Cheese, Almonds Give New Flavor To Broiled Chicken

CHILI, WISCONSIN-STYLE

1 1/2 lbs. hamburger
1 minced onion
1 can tomatoes
1 tsp. chili powder
2 cans kidney or pinto beans
2 cups water
shell macaroni
salt and pepper

Brown hamburger and onion slightly. Add tomatoes and 1 cup water. Season to taste. Simmer 15 to 20 minutes. Add beans and remaining ingredients. Cook 30 minutes. Add previously cooked shell macaroni and simmer long enough for macaroni to heat.

knife around the edges, then dipping the mold into hot water, placing a plate over mold and inverting plate and mold together. To serve, garnish with the cream which has been whipped until stiff and with slices of lime topped with cherries or with strawberries, raspberries or some other fruit.

This recipe makes ten servings.

MANNERS MAKE FRIENDS

It will not help keep our highways looking better, if will teach your children that good manners should travel with us.

The scalp should be massaged for at least two minutes each day. Hold your finger tips firmly against the sides of the head and move the scalp finger with the fingers. Slowly knead the entire scalp, and this will increase the blood supply of the hair.

Reduction of weight should be slow — two to five pounds a month if you want to prevent wrinkles and baggy skin. Remember the slower you lose, the easier it will be to keep your weight down. After four or five months of reducing, rest for a few months — the continue.

The "pinch" and "dash" of salt our grandmothers used have been brought down to exact measurements for the cook puzzled by such uncertain directions. Today's homemaker can salt with assurance by following this simple guide. Slightly larger amounts of salt should be used during hot summer days as a health measure to prevent heat tag, which results when excessive perspiration depletes the body of necessary salt.

HOLLYWOOD TODAY!
MOVIES - TV - RADIO
by Erskine Johnson

HOLLYWOOD —(NEA)—Notable quotations:
IRVING BERLIN, on why he won't sign on the dotted line for a movie based on his life story: "Why should I when Hollywood buys my fiction and my songs? If my family wants to let a studio do my life story when I cool it, it's their privilege."
KATHLEEN HUGHES, about her playright uncle, F. Hugh Herbert, who wrote "The Moon Is Blue": "My uncle is preoccupied with the subject of virginity."
ORSON WELLES, about television: "For the first time in the history of the world, the creative artist is given an opportunity to address 60 million people. The lesson of lightness and ease with which TV is made is something that we movie-makers have got to learn."
ETHEL MERMAN, fuming about the copy-cat allegations in Lillian Roth's "I'll Cry Tomorrow" blog: "The whole thing is so ridiculous that I don't even want to comment on it. I'm certainly not going to bother to defend myself. How does Lillian know that I saw her at Paramount Theater in New York when I was a stenographer? I did see some of the pictures she made."
ERROL FLYNN, about his three wives: "I married twice and they were both mistakes. It was only when I married a third time—to Patrice Wymore—that I really fell in love. I'm still in love. This time it is for keeps and I am going to be a good husband and a good egg. I'm just plain sick and tired of being regarded as a not-very-nice-to-know sort of a guy."
HILDEGARDE, the glamor splinter, about marriage: "The real Mr. Right hasn't come along yet. If he does, I may even give up this work I've given my life to. Being a very serious girl, once means forever with me."
JOEL MCCREA, about an acting career for his son, Jody: "I have no objection. I think he will do very well as an actor. He looks something like me, but his features are better. He gets them from his mother. I'd like him to follow a career in pictures. It can be a nice life. I know I've enjoyed it."
CHARLOTTE AUSTIN, Gene's daughter, blushing to the rumor that she will wed Dan Dailey: "Now, now, I've known Dan ever since I signed with Fox. I have fun with him. He's quite a character. But I don't think he's serious and I don't think I am, either."
PAULETTE GODDARD, on movie fame: "A woman should not make a career of work. All she will end up with, if she does, is a secretary and a book of faded press clippings. Neither is a consolation when you're old."
DOROTHY DANDRIDGE, who plays the title role in "Carmen Jones," holding forth on sex appeal: "There's never been a good actress who couldn't register sex appeal if the role called for it. If the actress fails to be convincing, it's because there's a mental block of some kind. Tell a good actress to convey it to audiences, and she will be sexier than a woman who is blessed with all the physical attributes of beauty and magnetism."
BARRY SULLIVAN, on why he prefers live TV: "You do a bad live one and it's booby, but the filmed ones come back to haunt you over and over again. An actor's taking a chance in a television film. I see some of them and I'm ashamed for the guys involved. I'll do them only if they're darned good and I won't feel like crawling under the rug when they're shown for the 10th time five years from now."
IDA LUPINO, about directing herself again in a movie: "Oh, sweetie, I don't ever want to do that again. I'm an actress who needs a director. It's just too tough to direct yourself."
ROBERT WAGNER: "I'm not a star, but an actor. Thanks, anyway. I think the life is terrific."
BURT LANCASTER: "As a kid in New York I had a fight every day. But I can't remember ever winning one until I was 12."

A-Energy Bill Enemies Defy Knowland

WASHINGTON, July 22—UP—Senate opponents of the atomic energy bill's private power provisions have openly defied Senate GOP leader William F. Knowland to carry on their marathon debate.

The Senate approved President Eisenhower's order to have the Atomic Energy Commission buy private power Wednesday night. Senators opposing the order permitted the vote — 56 to 36 — by interrupting their eight-day "filibuster" against Mr. Eisenhower's plan to revamp the nation's atomic laws.

But immediately after their defeat, they launched a wave of lengthy speeches leading through an all-night session ordered by Knowland to break the filibuster.

The roll-call vote came on an amendment offered by Sen. Clinton P. Anderson (D-M.). It would have prohibited an AEC contract with the Dixon-Yates power combine to provide 600,000 kilowatts of power over TVA lines for civilian use.

After the debate started up again, Knowland charged that "liberal Democrats" were trying to "block" President Eisenhower's entire legislative program and listed administration measures that were awaiting Senate action.

The vote on the private power proposal was an administration victory and a defeat for public power advocates.

FOREIGN AID

Sen. Styles Bridges (R-N.H.) predicted his Senate Appropriations committee will make "definite cuts" in foreign aid funds despite developments in Southeast Asia. He said the administration is making strong pleas against any slashes on the grounds the money is needed to build up Southeast Asia's defenses.

SUBVERSIVES

House leaders said there is a good chance the House will override administration objections and whip through a bill to outlaw the Communist party. The measure, approved by a judiciary subcommittee, would make party members liable to 10-year jail terms and fines of $10,000.

TAXES

A Senate-House conference committee has recommended approval of a 900-page tax reform bill calling for $1,565,000,000 in tax relief for individuals and corporations. Much of the tax relief would go to taxpayers with income from dividends.

HOUSING

Sen. Burnet R. Maybank (D-S.C.) charged the Republicans with "bad administration" of the housing program and demanded that rents be rolled back in "windfall" apartment projects.

OBSTACLE

Republican leaders have slammed the door against another House vote on a pay raise for the nation's postal workers after Wednesday's defeat of the administration's tandem bill to raise postal salaries and at the same time boost mail rates.

Kidnap Perjuror Begins Sentence

TEXARKANA, July 22—UP—Elmer Dolan, former St. Louis policeman convicted of perjury in connection with the Greenlease kidnaping, began serving a two-year sentence Wednesday at the Texarkana federal correctional institution.

Warden J. O. Kearney said a deputy U.S. marshal brought Dolan by automobile from Kansas City. He said Dolan would be eligible for parole after serving eight months of his sentence.

Dolan was convicted of giving false statements to a federal grand jury about the missing $300,000 Greenlease ransom money.

New York was the 14th state to require periodic inspection of motor vehicles.

U.S. Hopes Rest With South Beauty

LONG BEACH, Calif., July 22—UP—The United States' hopes for the title of the world's most beautiful girl rested Thursday with statuette Miriam Stevenson, a "wholesome, all-American type" from the Deep South, who was chosen Miss United States in the Miss Universe contest Wednesday night.

Miss Stevenson, who entered the contest as Miss South Carolina, won out over 46 other U.S. entries for the honor to compete against 32 foreign beauties in the final judging Friday night.

The 21-year-old blonde was the unanimous choice of the judges—and the other contestants too. The 20 semi-finalists, polled by the United Press, had only praise for the selection. "We're all glad because she's certainly the wholesome, all-American type," said Miss Indiana, Cecilia Dennis.

The sparkling winner, who measures 36-24-36 from bust to hips, said she will give up plans for a career in clothes designing to accept a $200-a-week contract with Universal-International studios. The total bag of prizes, valued at $7,500, included a new convertible automobile, a three-foot gold trophy, a pearl necklace and a silver compact.

Miss Stevenson, who lost her luggage enroute to the contest, won her title in a dress she had made herself—a white net gown with a blue train. The bathing suit in which she was judged was purple—a perfect match for the royal purple and ermine robe in which she was crowned.

Runners-up to the South Carolina beauty were Ellen Whitehead, Miss Virginia; Karin Huttman, Miss New York State; Renee Roy, Miss New York City; and Betty Lee, Miss Texas, in that order.

G-Sox Rebound; Sweep Pair To Even Series

Press Box Views
By BUCK FRANCIS
Pampa News Sports Editor

WE'LL TAKE THE SOUTH by something like 4-2, meaning, of course, tonight's West Texas-New Mexico League All-Star game at Amarillo.

The Reds, although they lead in the over-all series, 7-4, haven't won the all-star game since 1931 and they're just about due to crash the win column tonight.

Four Oilers will be in the South lineup tonight, first baseman Doug Lewis; third baseman Curtis Hardaway; catcher I. B. Palmer; and pitcher Vibert Clarke. Actually, the Oilers had five chosen on the all-star squad but the fifth, Don Tierney, was since sold.

Tierney, however, will still play in the game since he is now with Plainview which is one of the four clubs composing the Southern lineup.

Home runs should be a "dime a dozen" in tonight's all-star tilt. It's not that the pitchers are weak but it's the crackerbox Gold Sox park that will be inviting to the league's top sluggers.

The league's top homerun leader, Frank Green of Plainview and Curtis Hardaway of the Oilers will be in the South lineup.

Kempa Younger: Manager

WHEN AMARILLO HIRED Frank Kempa as the Gold Sox manager, she did something that is rarely heard of in minor league baseball—that of hiring a "limited service" player as manager.

Kempa, at 24, is possibly the youngest manager in professional baseball. He is in only his third year of organized ball.

It's the first case we've heard of where a player less than a "veteran" classification has been named manager of a professional ball club.

Maybe Kempa is a good leader—we don't know—but he's got a big job on his hands of pulling the Gold Sox out of the doldrums.

The veteran George Payte, on a five-day look with the Gold Sox, picked up the win in the opener although he required help from Len Ruyie. Payte pitched until the sixth when he walked Eddie Daniels leading off in the inning.

Ruyie put out the fire but he needed a fielding gem by center-fielder Johnny Rucker to turn the trick.

After striking out pinch-hitter Dick Hutzel, Deck would get a pinch-inning to send Daniels to second. Then came the play that saved Ruyie. Doug Lewis slammed one to deep-right center that had extra bases written all over the ball but Rucker, on a dead run, caught the ball just in front of the wall which resulted in a double play.

Gene Hauroudo, pinch-running for Wold, thinking Lewis' hit was sure to fall in, took off around the base paths and was called out when he passed Daniels between second and third.

Payte, in picking up the win, walked two, struck out two, hit two batters and scattered seven hits.

The Oilers blew a scoring opportunity in the first inning when Dub Woodright and Lewis hit successive singles to put runners on first and third with none away.

Payte got out of the jam by striking out Hardaway and after hitting I. B. Palmer with a pitch, he had to lead the bases. He got Ben Felder on a fly ball to center and Dick Hauroudo on a ground out.

Woodright, however, could have scored after Felder's fly to center but he failed to tag up in time and he had to hold tight.

Amarillo gave Payte a 2-0 winning margin in the first inning when Willie Whitte homered with a solo on and was later followed by I. B. Palmer with a solo.

The Gold Sox were never headed although the Oilers stayed close on their heels throughout. Hauroudo homered for one of the three Oilers runs in the opener.

John Coddington started both games and was charged with both defeats. He lasted only one-third inning in the opener and was lifted in the fifth inning of the nightcap.

It was all Amarillo in the nightcap after Charles Balcuius homered in the second inning to break a 1-1 tie. The Oilers had scored in the first inning.

Two massive fortifications, El Morro and San Cristobal, at San Juan Puerto Rico, were the strongest bastions built by the Spanish in the entire West Indies.

Despite a violent temper, which he has learned to control in recent years, Burnett is generally well liked and respected by his associates.

The youngest of a family of nine children, Burnett made his fortune on his own. His father worked for an East Texas coal and oil company and after his father's death, he went to work for about 18 months as a "soda squeezer."

Now, Burnett wants major league baseball for Dallas and he is simulating the efforts of some people to stop him. With the single-minded purpose of a Texas tornado, he may try to run over anybody that gets in his way.

Two other teams are entered in the tourney, Telephone Company and Panhandle Packing. These two teams will open the card Friday night while the winner of the games tonight will meet tomorrow night in the second game.

A brief pre-game ceremony will be held prior to tonight's card at 7:30 p. m.

Hose Snap Long Losing Streak

Amarillo's Gold Sox broke out of their long slump last night by sweeping both ends of a double header from the Oilers to even the four-game series at Oiler Park, winning the first game 4-3 and coming back for a 7-2 win in the nightcap.

The twin victories broke a 10-game losing streak for the Gold Sox and gave new manager Frank Kempa his first win since taking over the Gold Sox reins.

The double defeat also knocked the Oilers from the top rung in the West Texas-New Mexico standings after having led the league four days. Clovis moved one game ahead of the Oilers by virtue of a 5-1 win over Plainview last night.

League activity will be suspended for one day due to the WT-NM All-Star game tonight at Amarillo. Four Oilers will take part in the game of the stars, first man Curtis Hardaway; catcher I. B. Palmer; and pitcher Vibert Clarke.

Game time for the all-star tilt will be 8:15 p. m.

When play is resumed Friday, the Oilers will be in Albuquerque for a two-game set and then move over to Clovis for a pair with the front running Pioneers.

Next home game for the Oilers will be next Tuesday night when Lubbock comes in for two games.

Amarillo got good pitching to win last night's twinbill. The usually heavy hitting Oilers only got 11 hits in the two games, with only three coming in the nightcap.

Jim Clark spun the three-hitter in the nightcap.

The veteran George Payte, on a five-day look with the Gold Sox, picked up the win in the opener although he required help from Len Ruyie. Payte pitched until the sixth when he walked Eddie Daniels leading off in the inning.

Tribe Leads AL As Trucks Beats Yanks

By FRED DOWN
United Press Staff Writer

The Washington Senators, who know a good manager when they see one, were rallying behind Bucky Harris Thursday as the beleaguered manager made his last stand in an attempt to win the American League pennant.

The Senators' 6 to 5 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Wednesday night was their fifth in eight games since club owner Clark Griffith gave Harris a vote of confidence. It's the best showing the Senators have been able to make since they plunged into a 13-23 tailspin on June 3.

The Cleveland Indians, meanwhile, went a half-game ahead of the New York Yankees in the American League race when they battled to a 7 to 7 tie with the Red Sox while the world champions suffered a humiliating 15 to 3 debacle at the hands of the Chicago White Sox.

Chicago over Yankees
The Indians overcame an early 6 to 0 deficit with four runs in the fourth and three in the fifth but the Red Sox tied the score at 7 to 7 on Jim Piersall's single, Ted Williams' double and Harry Agganis' forearm shot.

The game was held in the ninth after a 41-minute delay producing the second tie between the teams in as many days.

Virgil Trucks gained his 13th win for the White Sox behind a 18-hit assault that included four hits by both Minnie Minoos and Johnny Groth.

Sonny Dixon, making his first start since June, 1953, ended the Philadelphia A's 10-game losing streak with a six-hit, 4 to 1 triumph over the Tigers.

Pinch-hitter Bill Taylor's ninth-inning single scored Hank Thompson to give the New York Giants a 2 to 1 victory over the Chicago Cubs and maintain their seven-game stranglehold on first place in the National League. Sal Maglie pitched a four-hitter for his 10th win—two more than he gained all last season.

HE SHOULD COME UP ON HIS TOES TO GET A FAST START TOWARD A GROUND BALL.

AND SHOULD BRING UP HIS GLOVE IN FRONT OF HIS CHEST TO PROTECT AGAINST LINE DRIVES.

BOBBY SHANTZ, DIMINUTIVE SOUTHPAW OF THE PHILADELPHIA ATHLETICS, FIELDS HIS POSITION SO WELL HE IS KNOWN AS THE "FIFTH PITCHER."

Bobby Shantz has proved that ability, not size, makes a major-league pitcher. Bobby's ability is based on knowledge of all phases of the game. He might be described as "the complete pitcher" because he can field his position, bat, hunt and run bases in addition to delivering the ball to the batter.

With adequate practice, every pitcher should become a good fielder. The ability to turn one possible hit into an out often makes the difference between victory and defeat.

Pitchers generally finish their motions with the pitching arm pointed toward home plate. If the pitcher stays this way when the ball is hit, he will have trouble catching a ball hit to his right or a right-handed thrower and to his left if he is a left-handed thrower. By taking a quick step with the foot of his glove hand, he can square around to face home plate.

Tulsa Wins 'Rubber Tilt' Of Series With Leading Sports

By UNITED PRESS
The Tulsa Oilers captured the rubber game of three with the Cleveland Indians leading the Shreveport Sports by a 6 to 1 score Wednesday night to trim the Sports' first-place margin to three and one-half games.

Don Franchia went the route for the Oilers and surrendered 11 hits but he kept them effectively. An 11-hit Tulsa attack on Jim Willis and Billy Muffet was sparked by home runs by Joe Macko and Ted Tappe, accounting for four Oilers runs.

Second place San Antonio, with Ryne Duran and newcomer Al Epperly teaming in an eight-inning, beat the Fort Worth Cats 6 to 5 by scoring three times in the ninth. Houston won a battle of home runs with Dallas in 12 innings 8 to 7 and Jack Hollis' second inning homer proved to be the winning run as Beaumont edged Oklahoma City 5 to 4.

Hollings Hits Homer
Stan Hollings from Honda, Tex., former Texas A&M football and baseball player who played with the Philadelphia Phillies, joined the San Antonio team from Richmond, Va., and powered a two-run homer in the sixth inning.

His blow offst a homer by Fort Worth second baseman Jimmy Bragan who is usually a "bivies" hitter. Bragan is the brother of Bobby Bragan, former Fort Worth manager.

Willie Brown and Buzz Clarkson of Dallas and Kenton Boyer and George Lanzetta of Houston scratched.

French Chief Now Faces A New Problem

By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Foreign Analyst
The test which Premier Pierre Mendes-France faces now is whether he can get the French Parliament to ratify the European Defense Community pact on terms acceptable to the other countries which signed it.

When Mendes-France was confirmed as premier on June 17, it was feared that France might get ratification for months and perhaps would never ratify it. Now the situation has changed. Mendes-France has made good on his undertaking to get peace in Indo-China by July 20.

Defeat for the West
The armistice agreement signed in Geneva was a defeat for the West. But it is now recognized that the situation in Indo-China had become impossible.

Capitalize on Momentum
That seems to indicate clearly that the United States and Britain hope to capitalize on the diplomatic momentum Mendes-France has built up.

Police Wary Of Confession In Texarkana Phantom Deaths

TEXARKANA, July 22—UP—The eighth man to confess he committed the five "phantom" murders which terrorized Texarkana in 1946 was returned Thursday to the scene of his alleged crimes. He was Robert Martin Chandler, 36, of Stamps, Ark., 35 miles east of Texarkana.

Chandler walked into the Shreveport police station Wednesday night and said he was Texarkana's "phantom murderer."
"It's just been on my mind so long, I had to tell somebody," Detective Capt. Wayne Bateman quoted him. "Texarkana authorities were contacted immediately, and Chief of Police Max Tackett and Deputy Sheriff Tillman Johnson went to Shreveport."

Details Not Correct
Chandler said he had beaten up and robbed a couple in February, 1946, killed another couple the next month, and killed a man in April. The "phantom murderer" was accused of killing two couples, in March and April, and a farmer in May.

Chandler, who said he was an accountant, told police he was stationed at Barksdale Field, near Shreveport, when he committed the murders. The crimes blamed on the "phantom murderer" were:
March 24 — Pelly Ann Moore, 17, and Richard Griffin, 29, shot as they sat in a parked car north of Texarkana.
April 2 — Betty Jo Booker and Paul Martin, 17, were shot and their bodies found about a mile apart, near the scene of March 24 murders. Ballistics tests showed they were killed with the same .32 caliber weapon used in the first killing.
May 3 — Virgil Starks, 36, was killed in his farm home 10 miles northeast of Texarkana, near Hoeman, Ark. He was shot with a .22 caliber bullet and his wife, who was not killed, was shot twice in the head with the same weapon.

Ill Climber Rescued

ASPEN, Colo., July 22—UP—Four expert climbers braved rain storms and high altitude cold Wednesday night to rescue a bassoonist who fell ill near the top of 14,300-foot North Maroon Bell. ## Shivers For Texas

As they are often calculated to do in political campaigns, the side issues in the Shivers - Yarborough conflict have muddied the water somewhat.

Reckless charges have been tossed around in hopes of hitting special prejudices here and there to capture a few votes.

In the main, however, the strategy is ill conceived; the thinking voter is seldom sidetracked.

And in this campaign, the principal issue stands out clearly.

Allan Shivers, who has served Texas well, is the symbol of state's rights. His record of long and faithful service to Texas has been up to the test time and again and he has won the confidence of Texans on each occasion.

Ralph Yarborough's only claim to fame is his opposition to Allan Shivers, and in his previous venture in this capacity, he was soundly rejected. Yarborough is also the darling of the "labor" bosses and the New Deal faction of the party.

Shivers led the revolt against the tyranny of the national political party in the summer of 1952. And in November, Texans showed him they were behind him.

Mr. Yarborough has repeatedly attacked Shivers for that courageous 1952 stand.

That should make everything clear. The issues are the same as they were in 1952 in the conflict between these two.

We know where Shivers stands; we know where Texas stands; and, at least on this one issue, we know where Yarborough stands. And in that, he apparently does not share the views of Texas voters.

What is in Yarborough's background that would qualify him to hold the highest office in Texas? He says he is for the Tidelands. (A unique idea.) He says he's been fighting for the Texas Tidelands for 20 years. If that is true, it couldn't have been much of a fight.

No, Mr. Yarborough just won't do. This is a big state, with big problems, big ideas, big dreams and a big future.

We need a state's fighter at the helm, not a New Dealer.

We need a leader, not a "me too-er." Shivers asks Texas to re-elect him, and presents as his qualifications his record of strong, courageous leadership.

Yarborough makes a second bid for Shivers' job saying he's still against Allan Shivers and using the same type of smear campaign he practiced in 1952.

Well, it won't wash in Texas, Mr. Yarborough; Texas voters are not to be deceived.

The American Way

MUSCLE DEVELOPMENT

By George Peck
Several years ago in this column I told of an exhilarating experience—one that occurred shortly before the outbreak of World War II. It is still quite vividly remembered and I believe is worth repeating here.

Crossing Columbus Circle in New York City one evening during the spring of 1939, I noticed a soapbox orator who had gathered quite an audience around him. Back to those days Columbus Circle was a mecca for orators or would-be-orators advancing just about every kind of theory—social, political or religious. It was not unusual to find as many as six meetings being conducted at the same time. It was evident that the man to whom my attention was attracted was the best performer on Columbus Circle that evening as his rivals were attracting few listeners. He was stealing the show.

Curiously getting the better of me, I paused to watch and listen, for which I am mighty thankful. This fellow was immense; he was giving that crowd a real message. As I was worming my way into the crowd, he reached over with his right hand and clutched the muscle of his upper left arm. The crowd watched him with interest and some amusement.

"You see that muscle," he said, "I'm proud of it. I got it by exercising, and I had to do that exercising myself. Nobody did that exercising for me, and if I want to get more muscle into that arm, I'm the guy who will have to exercise to put it there. God gave me the arm, but left it entirely up to me to develop it."

"Now, there are some people down at Washington who are trying to tell you and me that they can put muscles into our arms without our having to do a single thing. They are fooling me and don't let them tell you, No, Sirs! The only way we can get muscle into these arms of ours is by each of us doing our own exercising. George can't do it for us."

He dropped his hand from his arm and made a dramatic pause. "You see what I'm driving at?"

he asked, and then answered his own question:

"Over 19 centuries ago there lived a great teacher, the greatest the world has ever known. He made use of parables in teaching the multitude. Humbly I am trying to follow in His footsteps. I have just told you about muscles in a parable."

"God in His wisdom guided the Founding Fathers to set up here in America a land of opportunity, a form of society in which a boy born in the humblest home through ability and by thrift and toil, can lift himself to the very top. God gave that boy the talent, America provides him with the opportunity to exercise that talent, but he himself must do the lifting."

"Those same people who tell you that you can get muscle into your arms without exercising, also tell you that the Government will take care of you, that it owes you a living, that you are entitled to security against poverty and illness from the cradle to the grave. They tell you to just turn everything over to them. That's all. You will never do another blessed thing and they will see to it that your every want is taken care of."

"No government in all history has ever been able to do this. No government ever will be able to do so. Every man must exercise his own talents—neither Government nor relatives nor friends can do that job for him."

"Some of you ladies in this crowd undoubtedly are mothers. All you can do for that child of yours is to shower your maternal love upon him, see to it that he is given the proper home, religious and educational training, but what he finally makes of himself is strictly up to him. It is he who is the ladder of success, while your love and guidance will help, he must climb that ladder rung by rung, by his own effort."

"Never forget that, if you want muscle in your arm, you must exercise; if you want success in life, you must struggle. Whatever it is that you want, whatever it is that you wish to accomplish—you've got to do it yourself."

"Yes, I have always been mighty glad that I stopped to listen to this fellow, because never before or since have I heard such a sound and at the same time, such a simple explanation of Americanism."

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES

How Should We Regard Public Officials?

Here is a continuation of Frank Chodorov's article on his opinion of public officials. It originally appeared in Human Events magazine under the heading of "Washington, the American M. C. C." From here on Chodorov is talking: "The job should be approached from a basic premise, namely, that all the legitimate functions of the national government could be carried on, as someone has said 'in a good-sized kitchen'—surely, in not over one-tenth the floor space now occupied, and with one-tenth the present personnel. That means the country would have to be instructed in the proper functions of government—the functions for which it is designed and in which it has some competence; briefly, the dispensation of justice, cheaply, and the maintenance of order. When it goes beyond these limits, government becomes a harmful intruder in the affairs of men. There is nothing the government can do that free men cannot do better."

"With that as a starting point, the debunking can proceed with ease. It can be shown that the only thing government can do when it goes beyond bounds is to confiscate private property; it cannot produce anything. Its excuse for confiscation is always that it distributes the proceeds among the 'deserving poor'; the fact is that most of what it takes it keeps and spends on itself. There is justice in that. Oh yes, it can give special privileges to certain citizens at the expense of others, which is a blatant injustice, and when it does so its purpose is to gain support from those thus advantaged. It buys power with other people's money."

"Practically speaking, the acquisition of political power is in proportion to the acquisition of economic power. Policemen (including bureaucrats) have to be paid. So then, the power of government is dependent on the taxes it collects. The more dollars the government has to do with the more it will do. Conversely, when the people keep their dollars the more independent they are of the interlocking government. The government, being expert in these things, is well aware of the relation of the freedom of the people and their obedience, as well as the relation of its own power to their poverty, and therefore is bent on depriving them of their dollars. It is as simple as that."

"Now comes the crux of the debunking formula: what is government? It is a body of people—just ordinary mortals—whose primary purpose is to get on in life with the least possible exertion. Wielding power seems to them the way to accomplish this purpose. In that way, they are relieved of the stress and strain of the competitive world; and there is the added ego-compensation which the exercise of power yields. The effect of this ego-pact can be detected in the manner of even the lowliest in government service, such as post office clerks and receptionists."

"This last point, that government consists of people, not ordinary mortals—who have got ten hold of power, and nothing else, needs to be widely advertised. Apologists of power like to hide that fact in the fiction that government is a superentity quite independent of its component parts, and that it has a soul of its own and a capacity for doing things which ordinary people do not have. It is a Golden Calf needing only worship. If people can be got to accept that paganism—that is what the annual trek to Washington is expected to do—then it is easy to put over on them any stultification that these mediocrities can think of."

"Yes, mediocrities. There is nothing that so impresses the critical observer in Washington than the low mental level of those who presume to manage our destinies. This should not be a startling revelation; it stands to reason that a man of ability would hardly be content to bury himself in a dust-gathering pigeonhole of government. He is there simply because he is afraid of the market place; he is there because his nature inclines him to seek the comfort and security of his prenatal state. This should be brought out. A series of candid delineations of these personalities, sometimes called 'professors,' would go a long way toward cutting these self-styled demigods to size."

"A debunking 'movement' would be helpful. But, it needs hardly to be organized or formatted, for it would spring up automatically from a general realization that government consists of a lot of small timers who have, by hook or crook, got hold of power and are intent on increasing their power. The development of a suspicious attitude toward all people in government would suggest the use of social ostracism as a means of keeping them in line, and that would be 'movement' enough."

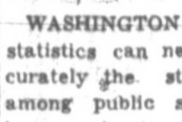

"Suppose people were to regularly shut off their radios when a politician is on the air. Suppose they would audaciously stay away from meetings addressed by a 'distinguished' personage or, better still, would 'sit on their hands' and sitter at his inanities. The ego-pact would be gone. Their balloons would be deflated. And those who had any ability, and some self-respect, would get out of government and start making an honest living. That would be good for society."

"There is no way of keeping government within bounds but by the whip of public opinion, not that expressed at the polls, but in the arena of private life. Social ostracism, or the fear of it, would go a long way toward restraining the

National Whirligig Internal Revenue Clean-Up Will Net More Collections

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Although cold statistics can never measure accurately the status of morale among public servants, a sharp increase in the collection of taxes reflects a tremendous improvement since Congressional committees and the Federal Courts sent so many former Internal Revenue Service officials to jail.

T. Coleman Andrews, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, estimates that, despite a lowering of tax rates and a smaller staff, his field men will turn in more cash and checks than they did when they knew that the men at the top were financially and politically dishonest.

It is estimated that more than a score of former Internal Revenue heads have been imprisoned or convicted of accepting graft or evading taxes. The latest to be found guilty of the latter charge is Joseph D. Nunan Jr., who headed the Bureau under Truman.

Key figures in the Boston, New York, St. Louis and other offices, all appointed for purely political reasons, have been prosecuted and sentenced. From top to bottom, the personnel has been weeded and cleaned out.

Even where no criminality was involved, political favoritism toward important contributors to campaign funds destroyed the morale of the service's 84,000 employees. Commissioner Andrews has described the following incident as typical of many that have come to his attention:

When a prominent Democrat was summoned to a Bureau office in certain Southern state, and informed of a heavy delinquency assessment, he blew up with indignation. Without saying a word, he grabbed the phone and told the switchboard operator: "Connect me with Joe Nunan!" In the presence of the local Internal Revenue official, he talked political turkey to his friend, "Joe. The delinquency assessment was cancelled. Naturally, such practices do not improve morale or lead to humble employees to 'give the old college try for Uncle Sam.'" and inefficient officials in Internal Revenue and Treasury. A House Ways and Means Subcommittee, headed by Representative Gordon Canfield of New Jersey, was responsible for the original exposure. Grand and petit juries finished the job.

Although the Canfield investigators operated without headlines or sensational tactics, it was one of the first Congressional groups of this kind to be denounced by formation of the CIA, promptly said that he "welcomed" the Clark study, and it is a fair inference that he would much prefer to subject his mysterious operations to the attention of anyone rather than Sen. McCarthy.

It is high time that somebody took a look at the CIA to find out what goes on. This global sleuthing outfit shuns the light of day, wants no publicity, and holds itself accountable to no one. Mr. McCarthy has suggested that some Communists may have installed themselves in the CIA, which is possible, considering the fact that the predecessor organization known as the office of strategic services had its share of them, some of whom were even charged with the political murder of an American officer who wasn't considered friendly enough to Russia.

But the main thing is to find out whether the CIA is using the large sums it receives in appropriations from Congress to good effect, and whether it can justify its existence. If it won't talk, nobody else could find out.

The Nation's Press

WHICH CAME FIRST, CIA OR CONGRESS? (Chicago Daily Tribune)
Inasmuch as Sen. McCarthy had announced that the central intelligence agency deserved early attention from his subcommittee when it again was free to act, that agency must have known that the Hoover commission intended to study its structure and function. The leader of the "task force" assigned to this mission is Gen. Mark Clark, now retired from the army.

Gen. Clark denies that he and his group are taking on the job to "beat McCarthy to the punch," and certainly it would not be possible to attribute a political motive to former President Hoover in ordering the inquiry. Nevertheless, Allen W. Dulles, the director of the CIA, promptly said that he "welcomed" the Clark study, and it is a fair inference that he would much prefer to subject his mysterious operations to the attention of anyone rather than Sen. McCarthy.

It is high time that somebody took a look at the CIA to find out what goes on. This global sleuthing outfit shuns the light of day, wants no publicity, and holds itself accountable to no one. ### Neither Political Party Willing To Stop Inflation

By THURMAN SENSING

As we considered the activities of the Democratic Party during the twenty years it was last in power and as we consider the activities of the Republican Party now in its second year of its present Administration, we would seem to be quite justified in asking ourselves the question, "Do both political parties want inflation?" Or, it might be better to put the question another way, "Do neither of the parties have the courage to stop inflation?"

And if you think inflation has been stopped, or is even well on the way to being stopped, just think again, because you could not be more wrong. Just consider some of the positions taken by the present Administration or by some of its spokesmen—all of which are directly contrary to those necessary to stop inflation!

1. Thus far the Administration has reversed itself on its sound-currency plank in the 1952 platform on which it was elected—just as did the Democrats on a similar plank in their 1932 platform.

2. Dr. Burgess, of the Treasury Department, has appealed to Congress to continue with the irredeemable currency system inflicted on the people of the United States by the New Deal. (A redeemable currency is one of the absolutely necessary steps to bring inflation to an end.)

3. Mr. William McC. Martin, chairman of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, has made the same appeal—but for just the opposite reason that given by Dr. Burgess. (Mr. Martin said we should not have a redeemable currency because economic conditions are not bad enough; Dr. Burgess because they are not good enough.)

4. Under the present Administration monetization of the Federal debt by the Federal Reserve banks reached a higher level than ever attained under the New Deal.

5. The present Administration had placed a bill before Congress to extend for another two years the authority of the Treasury, granted by the New Deal and Fair Dealers, to sell its securities directly to the Federal Reserve banks in an amount up to $15 billion—a device for direct monetization of Federal debt.

Other steps could be cited, but these are some of the main ones. In addition to this, however, it is well known that the Administration has stated that in case of a depression it has stand-by plans to put into effect some of the same old inflationary practices used by the New Deal, all of which failed miserably.

So we may well wonder whether either political party, as it vies for the votes of the people, has the courage to take those steps—painful but necessary—needed to stop inflation. It is a question that is highly debatable. I think they would be nobly embarrassed to intrude on us in that field and I think their good taste and sense of courtesy would prevent them from so doing.

At times, I drift toward a tiff is, that we certainly true. That the Cronyns do the same is just as true. Who do the Cronyns turn to? You say that the secret of the Cronyn marriage is that "each partner is considerate and has learned to respect the judgment (your spelling, old boy) and feelings of the other." This is like saying the sun rises in the east. No marriage is any good which does not have your above sentiments for a foundation. In spite of which considerateness, respect and forbearance, I dare to think that many a couple would like to throw Aunt Ella's vase at each other at some time during their life together.

You make a good deal of the fact that the work the Cronyns are engaged in is "a lot more interesting than that of the average Joe." Why? Because they are actors? Nonsense. Acting can become the worst kind of drudgery. You believe that because they are actors their work is fascinating and, therefore, their lives do not ever verge on the humdrum and stale. That is also the most reckless kind of nonsense. I dare to think, knowing actors as well as the Cronyns, that many an evening they come to 7 o'clock appalled at the notion that they have to get out and go to the theatre and go through a performance which, since they mostly are engaged in successful works, they have done 200 times before. I can imagine Miss Tardy longing to stay home and read, yell, jump over furniture or decide on the new wall paper. I certainly can imagine Mr. Cronyn getting miserably sick of the same role month after month. He is a scholarly man and avid reader and I don't think it avry to think that many a rainy, cold night he has hunkered down in a deep chair and read instead of hiking out to a theatre and saying lines that are slightly worn by time. The guy who drives the butane truck between the tanks at Bayonne, N.J., and the distribution point at Riverhead, L.I., has just as interesting a career and has the added advantage of having a new set of road and traffic conditions every day. I can testify, 'stan: I drove it with him once. He wasn't bored for a second. He didn't dare be lest that flamable cargo become even more lethal than it already was.

The last time we as a couple met with the Cronyns as a couple was about two years ago. We went over to their New York town a house around midnight, after their play, and we had a cold supper of chicken, fish, salad, and champagne, in well-mannered quantities. We left about 3 a.m., and not one of the four of us mentioned marriage, how to stabilize it, how to insure it, or how to live it. The subject just didn't come up. We talked about a acting, the theatre, but excluded that great many things, plus, children, and marriage. They didn't offer themselves as topics. But if you think that on the basis of a plate of Jessica's excellent chicken I'm going to ask her what to do when Nancy bolts over because I forgot to get a meal, you are woefully wrong.

...with JAMES G. INGEBRETSEN, President, Spiritual Mobilization

A limit that doesn't limit is hardly a limit. I guess that is some sort of an axiom. At least Sen. Byrd (D., Va.), and Sen. Williams (R., Del.), believe in it as applied to the Federal debt limit—which now stands at $275,000,000.

The other day these two Senators reportedly said they would oppose any current attempt to raise that limit. And, as I see it, they should have the support of every clear-thinking American citizen.

If the Federal practice won't support all the bureaus, I have turned loose to graze on it, the thing to do is not to push back the fences but to get rid of some of the bureau. After all, the rest of us have to have a few tufts of grass to nibble on, too, you know.

The CRACKER BARREL

Knowing says he'll resign as Senator majority leader if the UN seats Red China. If he does do, he says he'll also stump the country in an effort to get the United States out of the United Nations. That's fine, BUT WHY DON'T HE START THE FIGHT NOW?

AROUND THE WORLD

IN HIS CORNER—When "Lieutenant Dean," a nine-year-old trotter, needs a friend in Cleveland, O., he knows he can always rely on "Sandy," a goat known to be devoted to the thoroughbred. When harness races got under way at Grandview Oval, it was a sure bet that Sandy would be rooting for his high-speed pal to come home a winner.

FOR LUCKY RESIDENTS—Folks who live on winding, twisting Lombard Street in San Francisco have one man to thank for the unique pattern of flowers that bloom there, left. Called "the crookedest street in the world," Lombard now has row upon row of giant hydrangeas which were planted by Peter Bercut, right, about ten years ago. Bercut is shown with some of the more than 2000 plants he put in. The 68-year-old native of Limoges, France, cares for them himself.

LOOKING THINGS OVER—While mama seal casts a wary eye at the photographer, her two youngsters do what comes naturally in the London Zoo. They've got just enough of their long snouts out of the water to be able to breathe comfortably.

BETWEEN PERFORMANCES—Pretty Sally Forrest is being treated to a dinner by co-star Tom Ewell after a matinee of "The Seven Year Itch," their hit comedy which is now the longest running play in New York. It's Sally's debut on Broadway and she's fared very well at the hands of the critics.

SUN-STROCK—A tiny lass in Sweden is using a special pair of glasses to watch a sports event with her mother. The glasses, resembling the kind used for 3-D movies, are apparently revealing something that is fascinating to this little girl. She looks as if she intends to hang onto them without allowing mama to have a brief glimpse of whatever she's staring at.

STITCH IN LINE—Rows of stitching trace every attractive line of this striking beach costume from Capri, Italy, for wear while lounging after a swim. Done in bright yellow cotton to vie with the most brilliant sun, the two-piece outfit features a huge carry-all pocket on the hem of the blouse.

WHY MOTHERS GROW OLD—The combination of the heat in Cleveland, O., and her son's new Mohawk Indian haircut is just too much for Mrs. Arline Hoehn. Ten-year-old Mike insists that the eye-catching hairdo is not only "keen," but cool as well. Mama seems to be speechless at sight of it, but she undoubtedly had plenty to say when she cooled off.

GETTING THE GATE—A West Berlin baker created this cake replica of famed Brandenburg Gate in 40 hours. Shown here with an admiring assistant, the baker used more than 30 pounds of sugar in the sweet landmark. The Gate is one of the main East-West border crossings.

ATOMIC TASTING LAB—Dining in private stalls, a group of expert food tasters in Maywood, Ill., sample canned meat that has been preserved by gamma rays from radioactive material. The panel agreed that the meat, which had been in cans for about five months, was in good condition, but had a slight off taste. The partitions prevented the tasters from being influenced by the reactions of their neighboring samplers.

BEING THOROUGH—It's a game of "doctor and patient" that keeps tiny Emma Pfannenstiel, left, and Barbara Louise Small interested during their visit to a health clinic in Salina, Kans. The little girls will enter kindergarten next fall, and they expect to be enjoying the best of health.

TAXI TOURISTS—Cab fare for a European tour proved too much for a group of British secretaries, so they bought the taxi outright. The girls are shown visiting Cassino, Italy, a tourist resort which was completely destroyed during World War II, and has been rebuilt.

Financier W. L. Moody Succumbs

GALVESTON, July 22 — W. L. Moody Jr., one of America's richest but least known financiers, died Wednesday after a short illness.

The 88-year-old Moody died at John Sealy Hospital only 24 hours after he was admitted with pneumonia. He was stricken Monday night, after working a full day at his office.

He was believed to be one of the United States' 10 richest men, but he was not listed in Who's Who in America.

Moody's financial interests were controlled through W. L. Moody & Co., one of Texas' few private banking firms. They included cotton, insurance, banking, a chain of 30 hotels, 10 ranches, the two Galveston newspapers, and oil.

Moody was born in Fairfield, Tex., Jan. 25, 1883, and his father, who had been a colonel in the Confederate army, moved to Galveston a year later to go into the cotton business.

The young Moody attended several schools in Virginia, the state from which his father came to Texas, because of his health. He started law school at the University of Texas, but didn't finish and joined his father's cotton firm as a junior partner when he became 21 in 1896.

The Moody cotton business prospered and they formed the American National Insurance Co. in 1906. It since has become one of the largest in the nation. The family's cotton and banking interests were split in 1913, when W. L. Moody & Co. was formed as an investment banking firm.

Moody followed in his father's footsteps as a money-maker and added two more banks, the Galveston News and Tribune daily newspapers, the Affiliated National Hotel chain, and a number of other enterprises in Texas, Oklahoma and West Virginia to the family's holdings.

Crossing Crash Kills 3 Trainmen

PITTSBURG, Tex., July 22 — UP — Three trainmen were burned to death Wednesday when a freight struck a loaded gasoline truck and it exploded.

The truck driver, Earl James Hewitt, 30, of Houston, was injured only slightly when the truck's cab was knocked loose by the collision.

Sheriff Celia Bell said the diesel engine of the Louisiana and Arkansas Railroad freight struck about the middle of the truck's 4,500-gallon tank. The tank was wrapped around the front of the engine.

The wreckage of the tank, engine and three empty gondola cars burned more than six hours after the collision, sending up a column of smoke and flames that was visible for 20 miles.

The men burned to death were identified as Joe D. Cain, 35, engineer, and O. W. Phillips, brakeman, both of Hughes Springs, Tex., and Billy Bob Smith, 30, Greenville, Tex., the fireman.

power station near the crossing, about a half-mile from the center of Pittsburg, but continued spraying of the station and a wind shift kept it from spreading.

Bell said Hewitt put on his brakes nearly 100 yards from the crossing, but evidently didn't apply the airbrakes full force for fear he would jackknife the trailer.

There was no signal at the crossing, but city officials had approved plans to install a blinker light there only the day before the accident.

TV STAGE RADIO RECORDS PEOPLE

If you've ever wondered why they call summer the dog days, just take a look at some of the TV summer replacements. Dog nights, too.

Some of the crime shows on now are pretty bad. Call them police dogs.

Denise Darcel said she felt groggy. Too much sleep. She has a theory that lots of sleep keeps you looking young.

"I saw Dolores Del Rio in Mexico," Denise said, "and she looks 35, but she must be about 50 or so. She sleeps 12 hours a night. So I think I sleep a lot and keep looking young. And then sometimes I think you miss too much when you're asleep. Maybe I should wait until I'm around 50 and then start sleeping long hours. What is best?"

Don't all answer at once.

Sydney Smith's apartment is a visual busman's holiday. Miss Smith is billed as "Decorations Editor" on the NBC-TV "Home" show, which features Ariane Francis as editor-in-chief. And you'll be happy to learn that a full-fledged Decorations Editor lives in a very tastefully furnished apartment, indeed.

The living room is large and airy and uncluttered. There are pale yellow walls, dark green carpeting, and the upholstery on the large, comfortable couches and chairs is a brown-and-white check. Neat and effective.

Sydney Smith sort of backed into the decorating-via-TV business. She's the daughter of Loring Smith, the actor now in "The Solid Gold Cadillac." She was an actress and model, and even a school teacher for a while. Then she got on TV, conducting a show for mothers over a local New York station.

"I found, through mail response," she says, "that one of the most frequent problems on women's minds is decorating—what colors to use or things like that. So I began to concentrate on that phase of things."

She concentrated so hard she became known as something of an expert, even though she's had no formal training in the subject. But her innate good taste and common sense give her sufficient authority to speak.

From her mail, she's concluded that the average American homemaker tries to keep up with the Joneses in decorating. This leads to two big mistakes.

"So many people," she says, "with a decorative frown, put too many conflicting patterns and colors in the same room. I'll get a letter from somebody saying they have an oriental rug and polka-dot upholstery and striped wallpaper and floral drapes—but somehow they don't feel happy in the room."

And don't try to keep up with the Joneses. They have rotten taste.

Shirley Booth says the hardest thing for one actress to do is appreciate the performance of a friend.

"The only way I can tell if someone I know gives a good performance," she says, "is if I forget that I know them while I'm watching."

Robert Q. Lewis, talking to friends from Texas, recalled a trip he made through the Lone Star State some years back. He was driving with a Texan who suddenly slowed the car and pulled out a road map and studied it for some minutes.

"According to this road map," the Texan said, "we're somewhere on my property."

Dan Moody Backs Dougherty

AUSTIN, July 22 — Former Gov. Dan Moody came out Wednesday in support of Dudley D. Dougherty in his race against Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson.

Johnson has been an out-and-out New Dealer ready to support any radical proposal that might be made in the Congress.

Moody said, "who now wants to be known as a far-to-the-right conservative."

Moody, who was governor from 1927 to 1931, previously endorsed Gov. Allan Shivers' third term bid.

'Russian Roulette' Kills Boy

DEL NORTE, Colo., July 22 — UP — Seventeen-year-old Frank Grover Wray of Dallas who thought the law of gravity cancelled out the chance of death in Russian roulette, killed himself with a .22-calibre revolver Wednesday.

Mineral county Sheriff Harry Larson said young Wray put one cartridge in the cylinder of the revolver and spun it before pulling the trigger. He was trying to prove to two girls that the long slug unbalanced the cylinder so that when it stopped spinning the bullet would always be at the bottom, safely clear of the firing pin.

Four times his theory proved out. But the fifth time Wray shot himself in the head.

Ted Malone, 17, of Dallas, drove the car in which they were double dating to Creede, Colo., and Sheriff Larson rushed Wray to St. Joseph's hospital at Del Norte. But the youth was dead by that time.
