Moths Blamed For Beetle's Rug Appetite

NEW YORK, Aug. 21—A tiny beetle with huge appetite for carpets and furniture stuffing has become a worse household pest than the clothes moth, but most homeowners don't even know the insect exists, the National Pest Control Association said Saturday.
People just go right on blaming damage done every year to their belongings, entomologist Philip Spear said, while the beetles munch away uninterrogated.
The truth is that carpet beetles do at least 60 per cent of the total damage, and possibly more, particularly in the northeastern part of the nation, Spear said. The pestence appears to be growing, he added, and he warned home owners to be on the alert for the little black insects, about the size and shape of ladybug.

The pestiferous beetles are crafty, and they also have a varied appetite, including woolsens, hair stuffing in furniture, feathers in pillows and almost anything else containing material of animal origin. Sometimes they even gorge themselves on cereal or morsels of meat.
Spear, technical director of the association, said in an interview there are four known varieties of carpet beetles — common, black, varied and furniture. Their names don't mean much, however, for they all like the same food, and plenty of it.
Like the moth, carpet beetles do its dirty work when it is in the larva form. It eats and hibernates alternately for anywhere from six months to two years before turning into an egg-laying, flying creature.
All four types of beetles are quite cosmopolitan, Spear reported. They are nibbling away in many homes, hotels, clubs, museums and other places containing their favorite foods. Larvae often find security in areas of carpeting under heavy furniture that seldom is moved. When they are disturbed, they play possum, burrowing deeper into their lunch and remaining motionless until their path through the warp and wool is clear again.

'Talked To' Cheese Will Taste Better

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 21—UP—Two scientists are working with a device for putting the tang in cheddar cheese with sound instead of time.
The University of Wisconsin researchers have aimed ultra-sonic waves at cheddar cheese and produced aged cheddar in one-half to one-third of the time needed by present methods of letting it age naturally.
Some who tasted the "electronic" cheese said it is as good in texture, flavor and aroma as other aged cheddar.
Natural aging takes about a year. But when the bacteria is stimulated by sound waves above the range of the human ear, the same taste can be given cheddar in four to six months, the researchers said.
The process still is in the stage of experiments. But a process patent has been sought in the name of the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation which is supporting the study.
Some $30 million pounds of cheddar are produced in the United States annually. It is expected that savings in inventory and warehousing costs would be tremendous if the sound wave process can be developed fully.

Whole World Ticks On His Clock

F. J. SENAC — He's the only man who knows the secret of the clock's intricate workings.

By ROSETTE HARGROVE
NEA Staff Correspondent
PARIS — (NEA) — The most incredible clock of all times is now ticking away in Paris.
It is comparatively small — 39 inches high, 27 inches wide and 15 inches deep. But it gives the time in every country, the days and months of the year as well as the dates of Easter holidays.
Besides this it indicates the movement of translation (what is known in astronomy as the lunations or synodical months), the effect of night and day on the globe, the real time (solar) and the mean time (which is given by our clocks), and also the times of the eclipses of the sun and the moon. Lastly, it is self-winding.
The creator is F. J. Senac, who spent 10 years in its construction. It is made entirely of rock crystal, and he alone knows the secret of its intricate workings.

An artisan clockmaker, Senac declares that his art is a vocation, not a profession.

"I was four years old when I started to take clocks and watches apart. The sight of a watch which did not work made me positively unhappy," he says.

His father wanted him to be a doctor like himself. But instead of studying medicine, young Senac would cover the margins of the Latin and Greek textbooks with computations on the mechanism of clockwork. When his father died in 1917, Senac had already established a clandestine clientele and owned a complete set of tools.

Today, Senac is the owner of the most extensive collection of books on clocks constructed since the 14th Century. He studied the defects and qualities of clocks throughout the ages before constructing his extraordinary model.

Chryslers, DeSotos, Dodges and Plymouths also.

Air conditioning is expected to be more widespread. Nash now is offering an air conditioner as extra equipment in its low priced cars, the first company to offer this in a low-priced car. With Nash sales running strong, more companies are expected to offer this in 1955 models.

Colors are expected to get even louder in 1955 models. Ward says the public will even see a purple car.

But about the cost of the 1955 car, there have been no signs that any general price-cutting at the factory level is in prospect.

New Car Models Touted As Best Buy For Money Ever

By E. W. BRUNE
United Press Staff Correspondent
The automobile buyer who goes shopping for 1955 models probably will find the best buy he has ever been offered.

It might not be cheaper. There are no signs that it will be. But it will be packed with added features that will make it a better buy.

The automobile companies are getting set now for shifting over to 1955 production. Introduction dates are guarded as closely as the "top secret" plans for new models. But first introductions are expected in October or November.

Tubeless tires, power steering, power brakes, more wrap-around windshields, brighter colors, more air conditioning and an almost complete switch of the stragglers to high-compression V-8 engines are expected to feature the new models.

Tubeless tires became standard equipment on a car for the first time several months ago, when Packard made them available at no extra cost. Goodyear-Rubber Co., which has come out with the first tubeless tire without an inner liner, predicts all cars will come off the assembly lines with tubeless tires before the 1955 model run ends.

The new tires alone will give car buyers a better buy for their money. They'll give more mileage, be up to five times as puncture-proof and much more resistant to blowouts.

Power brakes and power steering, becoming cheaper as their volume increases, are expected to become standard equipment on more cars in 1955. The wrap-around windshields, pioneered by General Motors this year, on its higher-priced models, also are expected to be adopted by many auto makers this year.

The authoritative Ward's Automotive Reports said that Chevrolets, Plymouths, Pontiacs, Packards, Nash and Hudson will join the switch to modern, high-compression V-8 power plants this year. That will mean about 99.5 per cent of the cars made will have such engines. Ward's said it will give the car buying public "its most efficient and economical transportation in 50 years of car making."

New Body Designs
Many models are due for radical new body designs this year, with the big selling Fords and Chevrolets included. Chrysler will be making radical changes in its

PRINCESS MEETS BOY, GETS SAME — Giovanna Pignatelli d'Aragona looks over shoulder of her husband, Georges Brehat.

Resolute Princess' Romance

Roman Aristocrats Shaken, But She Chooses Her Man

By ROSETTE HARGROVE
NEA Staff Correspondent
ROME — (NEA) — In fairy tales, it's usually the Prince Charming who marries the unknown girl. But beautiful, 20-year-old Princess Giovanna Pignatelli reversed this order when she married the man of her choice, obscure but handsome French actor Georges Brehat.

Roman aristocracy was considerably shaken by the event. There is no doubt that George Brehat could not begin to match his wife's long line of illustrious ancestors.

This girl-meets-boy romance began at the turn of the year. Giovanna had an appointment for tea at Rome's swankiest hotel, and ran across a group of French actors including Henri Vidal, whom she had previously met.

Vidal introduced her to his colleague, Georges Brehat, who had come to Rome to play a bit part in a film. It was love at first sight.

Early in June, George Brehat and Giovanna Pignatelli d'Aragona decided to give her her full title — were married at the French Embassy.

So the young couple found themselves in the unusual position of being married without being married.

They lived apart for three weeks until the wedding was celebrated with all the pomp and circumstance worthy of a member of the Roman aristocracy at the historic church of Saint Agnes. Hundreds of people were invited to the ceremony.

Among Giovanna's illustrious forbears is Pope Innocent XII. He died in Rome in 1700, was recently beatified at Saint Peter's. Another is the fabulous conqueror of Mexico, Fernando Cortez.

On her mother's side, she is also a descendant of General Lafayette and entitled to favored treatment in the United States as are all descendants of the great soldier.

A tall, lissome blonde with deep blue eyes and a dazzling smile, Giovanna could pass for a Scandinavian. Her husband is tall, dark, in his early thirties. He was a member of Jean-Louis Barrault's theatrical troupe, and a couple of years ago played in 130 European cities with a touring company.

After a prolonged honeymoon in Capri, the Brehats plan to visit America, where his friends say he has an engagement to appear on TV. But the fairy-tale princess and her husband will stop off in Paris first.

To friends who commented on what was daring initiative for a member of the Roman blue bloods Princess Pignatelli said: "I was determined to choose the man I married. I am sure I did the right thing. That's just exactly what love means."

Profit Margins In New Car Sales Business Off

DETROIT, Aug. 21 — UP—The small automobile manufacturers aren't the only ones in the car business having trouble as competition gets tighter. The nation's new car dealers also are having their troubles.

The National Automobile Dealers Association has warned its members their operating profits have reached a dangerously low level.

The average profit of dealers in the first six months this year dropped to 1.9 per cent of sales before taxes. A year ago they averaged 4.4 per cent for the same period.

Prices of cars haven't dropped as much as the margin of profit on sales.

Paul Rose, who runs the big Grand River Chevrolet dealership in Detroit — which is one of the nation's biggest, says the car business is getting the best bargain in history. The result has made the monthly profit-and-loss statements at the end of the month grim reading, he added.

Rose is in the midst of a huge car sale that is one of the wildest the industry ever has seen. He is offering people who buy cars from him during the sale their choice of practically any gift they want — gifts ranging from mink coats to frige ponies and paid vacations in Florida.

The buyer just has to step up and take his pick of a prize.

Rose got the list of prizes together by culling newspapers from around the country. He picked out all the gifts which car dealers were offering to car buyers and decided to go these dealers one better.

He matched all the prizes and put them under his roof — so a buyer who wanted a free television set with his car for example wouldn't have to shop around to find the dealer giving away television sets. Any prize that could be gotten with a new car was made available at his dealership.

Rose, who admits he also wants to sell cars during the sale, said the basic purpose he is giving so many things away is to show the nation's car dealers "just how silly they're getting."

"Maybe we can stop all this silly business and get back to selling our product alone," he said.

He said it was getting difficult to make ends meet in the dealership business, with the dealers competing boldly to see who could give a car buyer the best deal.

Public Out For Blood
He admitted the car buying public is out for blood when it sets out to buy new cars.

"One of my best friends came to see me for a new car," he said. "I figured out the best possible deal I could give him and he said 'Sorry, it's not good enough.'"

A Report on..... Roads and Bridges

-- BY --

W. E. (Bill) Jarvis CANDIDATE FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER (SECOND TERM) PRECINCT 2

During Bill Jarvis' administration, two concrete bridges have been constructed in Precinct 2 at a total cost of $90.00 per foot. A wood-type bridge would have cost $100.00 per foot. A saving of $2,500 of taxpayers' money.

Two miles on FM 749 at Meers Lake was raised above flood level. He used county machinery and labor to elevate this road, rather than contract the work, thereby saving $1,985.25 of taxpayers' money.

He has cooperated closely with the State Highway Department to build a bridge across the North Fork of Red River on FM 749 at Phillips Camp, thereby linking the two sections of FM 749 which were previously of little use because the river could not be crossed during bad weather.

PROGRESS — He has built roads, maintained them, built a new precinct barn to protect county equipment — all without raising taxes.

LAST-MINUTE ADJUSTMENT — Bob Mitchell, a Pampan who arranges the street window of a furniture store, adjusts a potted plant on the table beside the bedroom display. It takes a combination of many things to do a proper job, he says. (News Photo)

He Builds A Room Every Two Weeks

By ED NASH
Pampa News Staff Writer

"You take a lot of blank space and try to fill it in. Use the basics like line, color, form and texture. Then tie in unity, variety and dominance. And try to balance it."

No, that is not a college professor discussing an abstract theory. Or a fabric manufacturer telling his salesman how to plug the product. Or even an architect.

They are the words of Bob Mitchell, a 25-year-old Pampan who arranges the street windows of a local furniture store, in addition to his duties as assistant store manager.

MAJORED IN ART

A major in art at Wayland College, Plainview, the community where he was born and reared, Mitchell came to Pampa in September and almost before he quite realized it his boss was off to the Chicago market — with instructions to Mitchell to change the front windows.

"So I changed them," he said simply. "The boss liked them, too."

Now he does the window-changing all the time, about every two weeks. Both of them are done at the same time, with the help of the store's delivery boy.

One of the big problems in room, or rather lack of it. It takes a lot of moving of furniture in the store, to make room for what has been in the window. Then Mitchell must decide what to put in the window.

That's where all the business about line, unity, color, variety, form, dominance, texture and balance comes in. Plus the intangibles of what Mitchell thinks it should look like.

"I generally have a pretty good idea of what it should look like," the dark-haired window-designer says, speaking in a precise and clipped sort of way. When he gets finished, though, "sometimes it doesn't look so good." So he changes it. Rooms pictured are usually the living room and bedroom, sometimes the dining room.

Mitchell, who lives at 401 E. Foster, says he always felt as if he were more talented in art than in anything else. In college he took courses in creative design, painting, arts and crafts, ceramics, woodcarving and art education. The last he used when he taught art for a year in the fourth and fifth grades of the Ash Street Elementary School, Plainview.

HOBBY IS PAINTING

"My first and last year of teaching," he contends. He gives evidence, when talking, that he really prefers designing to instructing. The way he handles the subject of a transitional room — there is an early American chair and modernistic one in the window right now — is proof.

His main hobby is, understandably, painting. He would rather do water colors and oil painting and "I do a lot of modernistic stuff." He doesn't go so much for black-and-white drawing and sketching. "I just sit down and do what ever turns out," he says. He pre-

Fighting Bulls On The Loose

UBEDA, Spain, Aug. 21 — UP—Panic spread through the Granada countryside Saturday when five fighting bulls escaped from an overturned truck and galloped through farms and villages, challenging all comers.

One bull gored and seriously injured a 45-year-old farmer. Another challenged a tractor—overturned it—and then killed a donkey. Two of the escaped bulls were shot by mounted ranchers and civil guards who were rushed to the scene. Poses spread across the Granada region of southern Spain seeking the other three. Citizens bolted their doors and remained inside.

Water Usage Back To Normal

"Water situation is good," according to James Cowan, director of public works.

"Not because we have more water, but people are using less." Cowan attributed this to generally cooler nights and reduced air conditioner water consumption. In addition, water used for lawns and household use has decreased considerably, Cowan said.

fers to do paintings of people, rather than scenes.

Mitchell's ambition is to design fabrics. He figures he would like to work out the print and block off the design.

Meanwhile, he is content to cast a critical eye at the window-rooms and figure out what will make them look better. He probably does the same furniture-changing at home, too, but there is no one to appreciate it — he is single.

Street Striping Work Nears Finish

The Public Works Department cross striping, for the protection of pedestrians," Cowan said.

The Teachers of Texas ARE FOR YARBOROUGH

When Mr. Shivers was running for governor in 1952, he promised the teachers of Texas a pay-raise. As soon as he was elected, he said he was for this raise, only if it were done on the local level by raising the taxes on homes and businesses.

When the $600.00 pay-raise for teachers was in the legislature, Governor Shivers opposed it, saying there was no money for this raise without new taxes. Then he favored the passage of another bill for a lesser amount with the understanding that it would be paid when the gas tax that was in the courts at that time, was settled. He must have known that this tax would be declared unconstitutional because he had opposed the levying of such a tax in the first place.

THESE TEACHERS OF TEXAS FEEL THAT THIS WAS AN EMPTY PROMISE. GOVERNOR SHIVERS HAS MADE MANY SUCH PROMISES.

Mr. Shivers was quoted in the press as saying "no organization should have the lobbying power of the Texas State Teachers Association. He called their leaders dogmatic, arrogant and adamant." This was an obvious effort to get the individual teachers at odds with their leaders, and thus weaken their organization, and its effectiveness.

UNDER SHIVERS' ADMINISTRATION, the Salaries of Texas Teachers dropped from 18th in the nation in 1948 to 27th in 1952-53.

There is no group in Texas more opposed to the re-election of Governor Shivers than the members of the State Teachers' Association.

Former Dry-Land Farmer Gets The 'Irrigation Call'

By T. D. ELLIS
Pampa News Staff Writer
The forthcoming grain sorghum crop on some farms in the Top o' Texas area looks pretty grim at present, as any one can see from the burned up maize crops, but not for Bob McBrayer, a resident of Carson County.

Has One Well
Bob has one irrigation well, pumping about 1,000 gallons of water per minute, and at present is irrigating Martin mill.

He has been a dry-land farmer up until the last two years, when he put down a well and started raising irrigated wheat.

McBrayer cited, just for comparison, the yields from his irrigated wheat and those from his dry-land crop. He harvested a 35-bushel-per-acre crop from the wheat he watered, but got a scant 6 bushels from his dry land crop.

He is convinced that the only way to farm is to irrigate.

He put down one well last year and had a little misfortune with it. He drilled to a depth of 500 ft. and went into the redbed formation. The well later caved in on him and he had to put down another. The second well is set on 370 ft. with the water level at 270 ft. Bob said "I have had the well running since May and the draw is only about thirty feet. I haven't stopped it for anything except changing the oil." The well pumps a full 8-inch stream and will average around 1,000 gals. per minute.

Switches to Wheat
McBrayer is irrigating rows slightly longer than a half mile and is running 40 two-inch tubes. The rows will water out in approximately 36 hours. That means he can water approximately 80 acres per week.

He has decided he will farm wheat exclusively from here on as the problems of growing and harvesting grain sorghums are great.

"The main trouble with wheat is the fact that the ditches will freeze over and when you get ready to change the water you have to break the ice, and that isn't fun. But I pastured my wheat twice last year and that you can't do with milo.

McBrayer has estimated his best milo at about 75 bushels but some of his friends say it will make at least 90 per acre.
