Pampans Pick 'Victor' In McCarthy Hearings

A recent national opinion poll has concluded that most Americans feel both sides in the McCarthy-Army dispute were guilty of using "improper means." The issues in the dispute, subject of a nationwide televised Senate hearing which lasted 36 days, involved charges by the Army that improper means were used by Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, Republican, Wis., and the chief counsel for his Senate Investigations subcommittee, Roy M. Cohn, in efforts to obtain special treatment for G. David Schine, a former McCarthy aide.

McCarthy forces, in a counter move, charged that the Army had used Schine as a "hostage" in an effort to halt the McCarthy investigations of Communist activity at Fort Monmouth, N. J. The Pampa Daily News Tuesday set out to get the reaction of Pampa citizens to the same general questions which had been put to citizens on the national level. The results? About the same. Twenty-one Pampa citizens were questioned on a down-town street corner. Only ten would agree to be interviewed.

Some parents already are counting the days when high school opens again and they can have the ranchy car.

"They've got a man up there in Washington - J. Edgar Hoover - who can find out about anybody, anywhere, at one-third the cost of the hearings. Both of them got a lot of publicity. I have an idea McCarthy came out on top." Mrs. Loretta Jones, 217 N. Houston, waitress.

"I think both the Army and McCarthy used improper means in the Schine case. But I think the Army and Stevens probably came out on top." E. E. (Andy) Anderson, 1328 Garland, accountant.

Leslie Hart, 1233 Mary Ellen, insurance man: "I think McCarthy got hurt worse than any of them. Stevens topped him. They should not have brought Schine into the thing like they did, that goes for both of them. Mrs. Leonard Goss, 508 Oklahoma, housewife: "The whole thing could have been handled in a much nicer way. We have enough trouble, with all this fighting, without anything like this. I just don't know who came out on top." Dub McKendree, 612 LaFors, highway engineer.

Most people sided with the Army, but McCarthy outdebated them. Very few people changed their minds as a result of the hearings. There's no question Roy Cohn was trying to get special treatment for Schine, maybe with, maybe without McCarthy's knowledge. The Army was not trying to shield Communists, they were just trying to get away from public.

Mr. Eisenhower was expected to ask for vast new sums to support farm prices Wednesday in a dramatic move to bolster support for his flexible farm program. Mr. Eisenhower was expected to make the request as the House called up a "catch-all" farm bill which will provide the springboard for an all-out fight between the administration and the farm bloc over price supports.

Rio Grande Flood Toll May Pass 500 Mark

LAREDO, June 30 - Mexican officials estimated Wednesday that the great Rio Grande flood drowned 200 to 500 persons in Piedras Negras, Mexico, and other unconfirmed reports said the death toll was even higher. Piedras Negras is across the Rio Grande from Eagle Pass, Tex., about 100 miles upstream from Laredo. Lt. Don E. McMains, a National Guard officer on duty at Eagle Pass, quoted the Mexican estimate.

"We haven't been able to go in there yet," he said. "But Mexican officials have estimated there are 200 to 500 dead. We've flown over there several times and you can see quite a few bodies caught in the drift and brush next to the river." State police quoted other seemingly fantastic reports that "anywhere from 300 to 1,000" were drowned. These reports were that hundreds of Mexicans climbed on the roofs of adobe (mud) buildings to escape the flood.

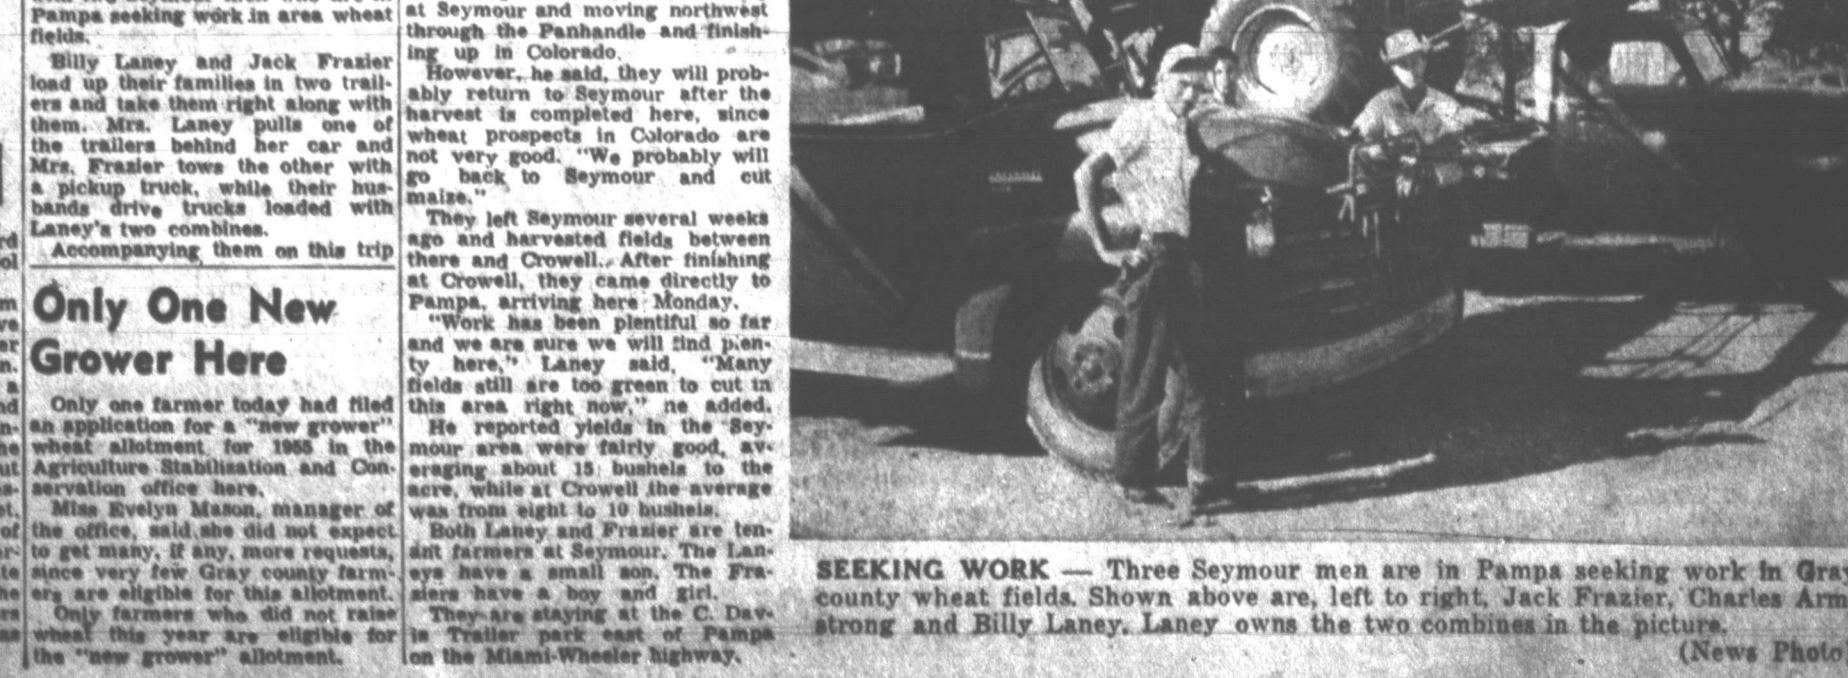

Mud Buildings 'Melt' When the water surrounded the buildings, they simply melted and the Mexicans on the rooftops disappeared in the swift water. Another report spread that the patients from the Piedras Negras hospital had been put inside a dikes near the bulging and the dikes broke. There was no confirmation of these reports and state police confessed that they found them hard to believe. Capt. D. J. Miller of the Air Force said he flew over Piedras Negras in a helicopter Tuesday night and saw nothing to indicate so many deaths.

The panic engines for the evacuation of town two or three miles to the airport," he said. "I was on the ground a few minutes. I just don't see how there could be so many dead." Make Another Trip Captain Miller said he was going back as soon as possible to "get the official reports." The only communication between Eagle Pass and Piedras Negras was by helicopter.

The flood, greatest in the history of the Rio Grande, was falling rapidly in Piedras Negras and Eagle Pass and the crest was almost at Laredo and Nuevo Laredo. Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas ordered a plane so he can fly to the stricken area Wednesday. The river climbed to 62.12 feet at 8 a. m. and Karl Keeler, chief hydrographic engineer for the U.S. section of the International Boundary and Water Commission, said it appeared the crest of the flood was still six to eight hours away.

He said the crest itself - probably not over 63 feet - will be a long, slow-moving crest that may remain at the maximum height for another eight hours. The massive crest at Laredo will be made up of three separate crests from upstream points, he said. The city water supply in Laredo was turned off at 10 p. m. Tuesday night because of water in the filtration plant. Radio station KVOZ, the only station in Laredo, went off the air at 8 a. m. because flood waters began rising in the studio.

Before it went off the air, it broadcast an appeal for volunteers to help carry the station's transmitter bodily to Webb Air Force Base, which is on higher ground, so it could resume transmitting.

Revolt Earns A Victory Guatemalan Rebel Leader Ends Three Years In Exile

GUATEMALA CITY, June 30 - Col. Carlos Castillo Armas, victor in the western hemisphere's first battle against communism, was expected to make a triumphant return to the capital Wednesday from three years in exile. Fighting in the 12-day-old open revolt against the Red Guatemalan regime ended at 8 o'clock Tuesday night in a cease-fire obtained by the defeated government on the rebel leader's own terms. "At the request of the government, fighting stopped at 8 p. m.," a rebel communique, which asked the public to remain calm, said.

It was apparent there would not be a resumption of the shooting which had claimed only a handful of casualties on each side, despite claims that each had inflicted heavy losses on the other. Opened Truce Talks The Guatemalan radio announced that Col. Elizardo F. Moron, who took over leadership of the government junta early Tuesday night and opened truce talks with Castillo Armas in the presence of Salvadoran President Oscar Ochoa.

Castillo Armas planned to come here by plane later Wednesday. A ruse imposed by the ousted regime of former President Jacobo Arbenz Guzman, who sought asylum in the Mexican embassy, remained in effect but the capital slowly was returning to normal. Government police scoured the city in an effort to ferret-out members of the outlawed communist party who went underground after other Reds had been jailed or fled to embassies.

Other police were busy collecting guns from civilians who had received the weapons from Arbenz in the early stages of the revolt. They were ordered to turn in the guns within 24 hours of the cease-fire or be shot if caught possessing the illegal arms. Shortly after Monzon ordered all Communists arrested Tuesday, at least 25 Reds every 30 minutes sought asylum in foreign missions. Among them were Communist party Secretary General Juan Manuel Fortuny, and former Interior Minister Augusto Charnaud Macdonald.

Col. Carlos Enrique Diaz, who was ousted as head of the junta that succeeded Arbenz, and 450 other former high officials and Communist leaders packed the Mexican embassy. Turning point in the revolt, started on June 18 by Castillo Armas and fellow exiles, actually came Tuesday when Monzon kicked the junta headed by Diaz, a professed anti-Communist who did nothing to change the general situation as it had existed under Arbenz.

WASHINGTON, June 30 - President Eisenhower told reporters Wednesday that he asked the Atomic Energy Commission last year to reinvestigate Dr. J. The President said in his news conference declined to go into any detailed evaluation of the 4 to 1 vote by the commission Tuesday settling the matter by refusing "security clearance" for Oppenheimer. It found that he had "imprudent and dangerous associations...with known subversives."

The President said the AEC decision was made in normal procedure by men he trusted and that he had not studied their findings in any detail. Then, in answering a series of related questions about Oppenheimer, the President said the investigation and handling of the Oppenheimer case was the responsibility of the AEC. # Ike Seeks Support

WASHINGTON, June 30 - President Eisenhower was expected to ask for vast new sums to support farm prices Wednesday in a dramatic move to bolster support for his flexible farm program.

Mr. Eisenhower was expected to make the request as the House called up a "catch-all" farm bill which will provide the springboard for an all-out fight between the administration and the farm bloc over price supports.

Informal sources said the President would urge Congress that the government's investment in farm surpluses - now past the $8 billion mark - threatens to soar past the present $5.5-billion legal limit when this year's crops are marketed.

One source said the President would ask that the ceiling be hiked to $10 billion before Congress adjourns. The reported move to dramatize the cost of the present farm program would provide farm ammunition for embattled administration forces fighting for House approval of the President's program of flexible price supports.

Arrayed against them is the powerful farm bloc which wants another year of rigid high supports for basic crops. With the outcome of the battle in doubt, Republican leaders considered a possible compromise for a provision in the farm bill calling for a one-year extension of mandatory supports at 90 per cent of parity for wheat, cotton, corn, peanuts and rice.

Billy Laney and Jack Frazier load up their families in two trailers and take them right along with them. Mrs. Laney pulls one of the trailers behind her car and Mrs. Frazier tows the other with a pickup truck, while their husbands drive trucks loaded with Laney's two combines.

Accompanying them on this trip is Charles Armstrong, a young harvest hand, also of Seymour. Laney said he and Frazier have been following the wheat harvest for the past five years, starting at Seymour and moving northwest through the Panhandle and finishing up in Colorado.

KPAT Begins Move Today

Radio Station KPAT will go on the air at 8:30 or 9 p. m. today to move to its new quarters. It is expected the station will be back on the air at 6 a. m. Thursday, Ed Murphree, chief engineer, said late this morning.

Six or eight Plains Electric company men and a half a dozen station staff, plus the station staff, will help in the move from the present location on North Hobart 195 feet to the west. Murphree said.

Transmission line will be the big problem, the engineer continued, pointing out that half a dozen cables, plus the transmitter, will be moved tonight. Transmitter will remain in the old building Thursday while the station is operating.

All should be done by Thursday night, Murphree thought. J. C. Daniels, owner of the station, has sold the old building to three Pampa physicians, and one dentist and has built the new smaller station building to replace it. Estimated cost of the new structure is $7,000-8,000.

Real Deal NEW HAVEN, Conn. - UP - Bandits who robbed grocer Charles P. Vitina of $800 made sure that he wouldn't notify police for some time. They not only locked him in a refrigerator room but also cleaned out the store so thoroughly that there wasn't even a dime left for summoning help with the pay telephone.

Wheat Harvesters Follow The Grain

Most men who follow the wheat harvest through this area travel as light as possible. However, that is not the case with two Seymour men who are in Pampa seeking work in area wheat fields.

Truman Recovery To Be Slow

KANSAS CITY, June 30 - UP - Harry S. Truman's doctor said Wednesday it may be "weeks or even months" before the former President struggles back to full health.

Only One New Grower Here

Only one farmer today had filed an application for a "new grower" wheat allotment for 1955 in the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation office here.

Miss Evelyn Mason, manager of the office, said she did not expect to get many, if any, more requests, since very few Gray county farmers are eligible for this allotment. Only farmers who did not raise wheat this year are eligible for the "new grower" allotment.

Moon Steals Light Of Sun

MINNEAPOLIS, June 30 —UP— The moon stole the light of the sun for 76 seconds in a rare total eclipse Wednesday. The sun, center of the solar system, was blotted out by the moon, cat over the twin cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul. Eminent scientists including Dr. Harold Urey, Nobel prize winner, and Dr. Donald Menzel, director of Harvard Observatory, studied the eclipse from a plane, 239,996 miles from the phenomenon. If they had watched from the ground, it would have been 240,000 miles. The moon's distance from the earth, Northwest Orient airlines took them up 20,000 feet in one of its high-flying strato-cruisers. Along with 49 other scientists and science writers. Urey said he thought only of "the order and laws of the universe" while watching the theft. Menzel concentrated on picking up a little more knowledge about the sun. Much of Minneapolis-St. Paul was out of bed and staring into dawn sky when the huge aircraft took off from World Chamberlain airport.

In all the world, the best spots to see the total eclipse was in this area and along 75-mile wide path up across Minnesota, Canada, the North Atlantic and Scandinavia, and down across Russia, Iran and into India. From our vantage point, we saw the orange-red disc of the sun come up over horizon with the moon already having a bite of it. A tiny bit of the upper right quarter of the sun was blotted out. Slowly the blot moved down across the fiery orb from upper right to lower left, the sun was reduced from fat crescent into a thinner and thinner one and then into a mere sliver of a crescent. Meanwhile, the encroaching black blot was developing into the shape of a disc and at 5:07:30 a.m. (est) the blot became a perfect disc—a disc that blotted out the orange-red sun disc, except for rim of eerie iridescent light—the "corona" of the sun, which is the matchless wonder of our solar system.

Dispossession Restrained By Court Order

Dist. Judge Lewis M. Goodrich has issued a temporary restraining order in one case and has rendered a default judgment in another. Goodrich Tuesday afternoon issued the restraining order to keep Mr. and Mrs. Jim Storms, 1357 Duncan, from being dispossessed by Frances Hopkins-Williams Threatt et al and rendered a default judgment in the case of Faye Pipkin and husband vs. Maryland Casualty Co. In Storms-Threatt suit, Storms, charged defendant May 15, unlawfully entered upon and dispossessed the Storms of their residence at 1357 Duncan and that, also, defendant Oct. 30, 1951, borrowed $5,500 from plaintiff. In the Pipkin-Maryland suit, defendant failed to send in a written answer to the charge. So Goodrich ruled Pipkin should be awarded $3,344. Adcock, who has been in Pampa since June 1, replacing Dr. T. M. Johnston as pastor, was returning from Lubbock at the time of the accident. He had just put his children on a bus when the car overturned, the result of defective steering, he said. Mrs. Adcock is attending church training session in Fayetteville, Ark., this week.

The Laketon post office has been operated since 1930 by Mr. and Mrs. Sam Arnett. The office has 16 regular box renters and about 30 patrons.

Aid Given Tax Cut Plan

WASHINGTON, June 30 —UP— Senate Republican leaders agreed Wednesday to support a compromise plan to increase personal income tax exemptions for low-bracket taxpayers. Details of the GOP plan were not disclosed immediately, but the decision to offer it was announced at the close of a Senate Republican caucus. The caucus was called when Republican leaders found they might be unable to block a Democratic amendment to the administration's big tax reform bill. This amendment called for increasing personal income tax exemptions, now $600 for each taxpayer and dependent, to $700.

Many Cases Of Mumps Here

Pampa doctors are evenly divided in their opinion of whether or not Pampa is undergoing a mild epidemic of mumps. But they are in agreement that there are an "unusual number of cases at this time." Cause of the disease, which is affecting many adults as well as children, is unknown, but the disease is becoming less common as the summer progresses, they said.

Area Wheat Harvested At Fast Pace

Wheat has either been cut or is being cut on practically every farm in Gray county, according to Jerry Mobley, assistant county agent. Harvest of wheat is now in full-swing with nearly 400 combines in the fields, he said, but added that many fields in the county have green wheat that still is not ready for cutting. Yields are holding up fairly well in most sections of the county, with the overall average being above 10 bushels per acre. In the southwest section of the county yields have been extremely good, Mrs. L. F. Eakin said the 370 acres already harvested on her farm southwest of Pampa averaged about 15 bushels field on her farm, in which harvest began this morning, the yield per acre. However, in another part, she expected to be somewhat smaller.

Wheat that has been brought into various grain elevators here and in other sections continues to test good, with most of it being No. 2, weighing more than 60 pounds to the bushel. Elevator operators report the moisture content is running from 11 to 13 per cent in most cases. "It is beginning to pick up rapidly now," one grain elevator operator said today. Fisher-Panhandle Grain company reported 27,500 bushels received Tuesday, while at least 35,000 bushels were expected today. Trucks began rolling early this morning into the Tubbs elevator at Kingsmill and "have been coming in a steady stream all morning," a spokesman for the company said. The Barnett elevator there also reported "business is picking up steadily."

The code classes are scheduled to begin today at the club house near the rodeo grounds, one mile east of town. Meeting every week, day at 7 a.m. and 7 p.m., the classes will not last over an hour each. Club members will rotate the teaching among themselves.

JOHNSON IN HOLLYWOOD

By ESKRINE JOHNSON NEA Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Exclusively Yours: Jack Webb is ready to harvest a bundle of greenbacks for his big-screen version of "Dragnet" but young Sheldon Reynolds just said "No" to Hollywood for a feature-length "Foreign Intrigue."

"The money makes sense," Reynolds told me during a fast trip to Movietown from Paris. "But the time and effort aren't worth it."

"I don't see why I should make a feature-length version of 'Foreign Intrigue.' So what would I have — a great big 'Foreign Intrigue'?"

With his film bag — in Europe an ex-New York radio writer and TV director — admits he's talking to major studios about movie-making, plus a new TV show similar to "Foreign Intrigue" but using scenic and historical U.S. backgrounds.

"Sherlock Holmes," starring 33-year-old Ronald Howard, son of the late Leslie Howard, is another Reynolds-produced TV show due for home screens in the fall.

Reynolds' explanation of why he replaced Jerome Thor with James Daly in "Foreign Intrigue" after 74 episodes:

"I don't believe any star can last more than three years in one role on TV. There's too much wear and tear and erosion."

His reason for quitting live TV for film three years ago:

"Nobody concentrated on the acting. All the effort was on the hysterics of getting on the air."

It happened to Ingrid Bergman and now it's happening to Zsa Zsa Gabor.

A flood of mail to the studios from church groups protesting the employment of Miss Zsa Zsa because of her front-page antics.

Grace Kelly's demands for a long rest, not script trouble, is the reason MGM postponed "Digby" for a year. The film, when it hits the cameras, will be shot in Scotland.

Jon Hall, has two original screenplays, "Gods Hurricane" and "The Tidal Wave" making the studio rounds. He's due for more movies before making additional "Honor of the Jungle" thrillers for TV.

The rent scale of a new Hollywood apartment owned by Loretta Young is an eyebrow lifter — $400 a month for a one-bedroom apartment.

The August edition of a fan magazine will feature Terry Moore's life story for the third time.

Terry's explaining it. "Well, there's always something new."

"This is Your Music," a west coast TV hit, will be syndicated on film this fall with Byron Fellemyer and Joan Weldon as its warblers.

Hollywood's howling about the manager of a third-rate prize fighter telling the mug:

"I don't care if it's bad luck or not, but this is the ninth round and you've got a no-hitter going."

Lillian Ross, who burned Hollywood in a New Yorker magazine series about movie-making, will do it again in under the title, "Hollywood Abroad."

Ann Southern, it's said, dished out $20,000 for routines and gowns for her June 30 opening at the El Rancho Vegas in Las Vegas.

VICTIM OF "CLIP-JOINT"—Hollering for all he's worth as he's about to get his first haircut is Dale Jeffrey Hallman, left, of Cleveland, Ohio. Almost three years old, he is the son of Sgt. Robert Hallman and his wife, Joan. Just back from Korea, Sergeant Hallman, wanted to be on hand for Dale's first haircut, so the locks were allowed to grow. When it was all over, Dale looked into the mirror and said, "all gone."

EDSON IN WASHINGTON

By PETER EDSON NEA Washington Correspondent

How Could He Be So Naive? Is Big Oppenheimer Question

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Regardless of how the Atomic Energy Commission decides the security clearance case of Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, it is now considered unlikely that his contract as a $100-a-day consultant will be renewed when it expires on June 30.

In 1953 Dr. Oppenheimer worked only two and a half days for AEC. The move to ease him out of the government's atomic picture has been on for some time, whether his security clearance is restored or not.

Most people who have formed an opinion on the Oppenheimer matter have based it on the summary recommendations of the two-to-one findings of the special investigating board headed by Gordon Gray, president of University of North Carolina and former Secretary of War. Many have found the substance of this report highly inconsistent.

"That a man can display 'a high degree of discretion reflecting an unusual ability to keep to himself vital secrets,' and still bring forth a recommendation he was not a good security risk, has not made sense."

If more people had read the 100,000 words of testimony in the hearings, now made public, or even the more 20,000 words of the Gray report, there might be more understanding.

They make an exhaustive study of 24 charges of past associations with Communists and Communist causes. The Gray board found 18 of these charges true or substantially true.

One side observation here is almost inescapable. If these same charges and findings were made against any other individual, he would be fired outright.

The factor that makes the Oppenheimer case different is that he is one of the greatest scientists in the world today. He was in charge of developing the first atomic bombs at Los Alamos, N.M., in World War II.

It may be that today there are other scientists who are just as good. Dr. Oppenheimer left full-time employment as an A-bomb builder two months after the war was over. He remained as a consultant, for which he has been paid a mere $11,000 in the last seven years.

He was dropped as chairman of AEC's general advisory committee at the end of 1952. It was Dr. Edward Teller and another group of scientists who developed the hydrogen bomb.

The full hearings and the brief filed in rebuttal to the Gray report by Dr. Oppenheimer's attorney, John W. Davis and Lloyd K. Garrison, throw new light on his early opposition to the H-bomb development.

Research on this project was begun under Dr. Oppenheimer at Los Alamos during the war. This research was not stopped after the war, but it was not pushed.

The reason was that early thinking envisaged the H-bomb as a tremendously complicated affair. It would have been costly not only as to money but as to the amount of still more precious plutonium — the stuff A-bombs are made of — required to trigger the H-bomb. Also, nobody knew whether it would work or not.

This was the thing that Dr. Oppenheimer admitted opposed, from the fall of 1949 when the Russians exploded their first bomb, until the spring of 1951. It was then that Dr. Teller came forward with his new design for the H-bomb.

Dr. Teller testified that "Dr. Oppenheimer warmly supported this new approach, and I understand he made a statement that if anything of this kind had been suggested right away, he would never have opposed it."

92 Scouts Sign Up For Colorado Trip

Scout officials late this morning were putting finishing touches on the third annual Adops-Walls council's Colorado expedition for Explorers and their fathers, scheduled July 11-17, 40 miles southwest of Creede.

Phil Pegues, Santa Fe District Scout executive and trip director, said two meetings were planned this week to discuss the trip.

Pegues will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Borger with Jake Ross, Borger district Scout executive and assistant trip director; Ray Caruth, Ross' assistant and supply courier; and Rev. Dick Glaburn, pastor of the First Christian church in Borger and trip chaplain.

And Pegues will be at the Amartillo Air Force Base at 1 p.m. Friday for a session with James Woroner, warrant officer, who will supply the expedition with four cooks and all kitchen equipment.

Ninety-two reservations were on hand late this morning in the Scout office in City Hall, Pegues said. There is room for only a few more. Each Explorer post will furnish its own transportation to the camp site, 482 miles from Pampa.

Campers — boys and adults — are expected to be in Creede by 5 p.m. July 11 when a hot meal will be served. The program continues. Claburn will conduct evening verses and that night there will be a campfire complete with stories and expedition planning.

July 12 will be a free day with campfire and wildlife stalking. Campers went on, each morning Claburn will conduct sunrise services. A visit will be made July 13 to the Emporium Silver Mine in the morning and a geological tour will be made in the afternoon.

Packs on backs will be the order of the day July 14, Pegues continues for a long series of questions. In the evening, there will be a trip to a nearby mountain where there will be an Order-of-the-Arrow ceremony. Campers will return to their base July 15 where they will go swimming in Antelope Springs and have a social that night.

Mystery Day will be July 16. In the evening there will be a fish fry and a discussion of the entire expedition. They will head back to Pampa July 17.

Solon Says FHA Man Had Crime Record

WASHINGTON, June 30—UP—Sen. Homer Capehart (R-Ind.) charged Tuesday that Clyde J. Powell, former assistant FHA commissioner and "key" man in current housing scandals, concealed a criminal record when he joined the government 20 years ago.

Powell, under oath before the Senate Banking committee, refused to answer a long series of questions put to him by Capehart on grounds of possible self-incrimination.

Capehart then produced what he identified as a Justice Department report on Powell's background dating back more than 35 years. It showed several arrests on bad check charges and one alleging $480 embezzlement in 1917 from a Kansas City hotel where Powell was assistant auditor.

Philosophy Of An Arm's Smuggler 'As Long As Civilized People Kill Each Other, Serge von Daron Is Bound To Turn A Fast Buck'

By LEON DENNEN NEA Staff Correspondent

PARIS — (NEA) — At 38, Serge von Daron is rapidly becoming one of Europe's most successful smugglers of arms.

He is certainly the busiest. Though not yet a Basil Zaharoff, he is one of the most devoted followers of the mysterious Balkan "merchant of death."

When I first met Serge during the last war in Istanbul, Turkey, he was still known as Adriano. Tall, lanky, blond with a deep scar, like a sabre cut, on his right cheek, he looked — as he still does — like a junior Erich von Stroheim. Years later I learned he was the son of a landless Romanian peasant.

At that time, I suspect, Serge von Daron (or Adriano) was doing a bit of spying, selling his services to the highest bidder. He was one of countless shadowy characters who invaded neutral Turkey during the war.

But just before the break between Turkey and Nazi Germany he disappeared from Istanbul as mysteriously as he appeared. I did not see him again until recently, 10 years later, when I ran into him in the plush bar of one of Paris' most expensive hotels.

"What made you change your name, Adriano?" I asked when he informed me of his new identity. "Serge, then."

"Ab, my friend," he exclaimed striking a Napoleonic pose, "when my fortunes changed I also decided to change my name."

"What are you now, a French industrialist or still a German aristocrat?"

"Neither, my friend, neither. I'm just Serge von Daron, a European gentleman."

"And how is business, Serge?" I asked.

"Excellent, my friend, excellent," he replied summoning one of the overdressed bar flunkys. "As long as what you call civilized people insist on killing each other, the Serge von Daron of this world are bound to turn a fast buck."

The waiter approached Serge with the ingratiating servility and respect that one accords at least an ex-king or an Arab prince. But the ex-Romanian peasant was hardly impressed. He ordered two drinks without even turning his head.

"Doesn't your conscience ever trouble you, Serge?" I asked.

"Why should it? I am only one of the best people in Europe."

"You are human, surely you have some principles."

"If righteous and neutral Switzerland can sell arms all over the globe — why can't I, Adriano alias Serge von Daron?"

"Ever sell arms to Latin America?"

"You mean Guatemala, of course. Unfortunately, it is not my area. It is controlled by another syndicate. Right now our best customers are Egypt and Syria."

"What about the Red countries?"

"Sometimes I buy from them and sometimes I sell them."

"Forging the weapons of your own destruction," I said.

For the first time during our conversation Serge lost his temper and "aristocratic" composure.

"Listen, my moral American friend," he exclaimed. "Your British allies are dying to sell strategic goods to the Reds. The West Germans are actually doing it right under the very noses of you American military authorities. Why should I be holier than they?"

I did not get a chance to reply. A bell boy whispered something into Serge's ear. He jumped up, paid the bill and we shook hands. A moment later I saw him leave the hotel accompanied by a tall peroxide-blond with a mink wrap. A smiling, bowing hotel manager escorted them to the door.

This Can Happen TO YOU!

DRIVE CAREFULLY OVER THE July 4th Holiday

Throw a line to a drowning person and with all his remaining strength he reaches for it — to save his life. Throw one or two solid lines down the length of a highway and too many drivers ignore it in their hapless hurry to get somewhere fast.

But those, too, are life lines. Road markings at danger points are put there to save lives. Passing on the wrong side of the road, violating right-of-way, cutting in, passing on curves or on the right, failing to signal a turn or intention to pass and other reckless acts are utter disregard for life. Traffic gamblers guilty of these violations cost the lives of thousands of persons each year — and the toll is increasing every year.

Have you ever been guilty of crossing a traffic line when it wasn't necessary? Have you taken the right-of-way when it wasn't yours to take? How often have you seen a squeeze coming and breathed a sigh of relief when Lady Luck gave you one more chance?

The life line in the palm of your hand doesn't contemplate violent death on the highway. Your future may be written — or written off — the way you drive during the coming holiday weekend. You, and only you, hold the answer.

Don't Be One of the Casualties You Will Read About In the NEWS the First Part of Next Week! Remember . . . THE LIFE YOU SAVE MAY BE YOUR OWN!

Addition Of Palmer Gives Oilers Strongest Lineup In Several Years

IT GOES WITHOUT SAYING that it's great to have I. B. Palmer in a Pampa Oiler uniform. This is the first time that Palmer has been on "our side" although the veteran catcher has played on four different clubs in the West Texas-New Mexico League.

Until Palmer joined the Oiler forces, he was the fellow I hated most, to see come to the plate Palmer usually got the hits where it hurt the most.

But now he is on our side and we hope he'll never be on the opposing side as long as we are around.

type personnel to hold their own in this respect.

Well, I'm putting the cart before the horse, I guess, because we're still 2 1/2 games out of first place and we may never overtake Clovis for the league lead.

THE LITTLE LEAGUERS put on a good show last night despite the fact it got a little one-sided toward the end. Several of the boys show great possibilities as baseball prospects and who knows, some of them may some day be playing in the major leagues.

Oilers Complete Series Sweep Over Hubs

Valesquez Wins 7th Game Of Year

The Oilers completed their series sweep over the Lubbock Hubs at Oiler Park last night with an 11-3 victory and today the Oilers embark on a six-day road trip with two day stops coming up at Lubbock, Abilene and Plainview in that order.

Jose Valesquez treated the largest Oiler crowd of the season to a nifty six-hit triumph last night and thus became the winningest pitcher on the Pampa staff. It was Valesquez's seventh win of the campaign against three setbacks.

Valesquez got plenty of help from his teammates, both afield and at the plate. The Oilers collected 13 hits off two Lubbock hurlers—seven of which were for extra bases. Defensively, the Oilers made several spectacular plays, playing errorless ball except for a third inning miscue by third baseman Curt Hardaway who failed to come up with a slow bouncer off the bat of Jerry Ludwig.

The lone Oiler error caused no damage, however, as Valesquez forced the next three batters following Ludwig to hit into force outs at second base.

Except for the sixth inning when the Hubs picked up both of their runs, Valesquez didn't allow a Lubbock runner to reach third base and on only one occasion did a Hub get so far as second.

Valesquez struck out five and issued just one free pass.

Oilers Show Power

The Oilers' power attack completely overshadowed three double plays turned in by the Hubs. Dub Woolbright socked his third homer of the season leading off in the third which set off a 5-run uprising by the locals.

Curt Hardaway kept the rally going two outs later when he rifled a line drive over the left field wall for a two-run homer, scoring Ben Felder who had singled, ahead of him. It was Hardaway's 15th round tripper of the season and snapped a long "home-run slump" by the Oiler third sacker. Last night's homer was Hardaway's first homer since June 18.

The Oilers picked up two more runs in the third to make it 5-0 before relief pitcher, Ed Ackerman, could put out the fire. Starter George Deering loaded the bases after Hardaway's smash on walks to I. B. Palmer and Dick Hairston that was sandwiched by a single by Don Tierney.

Manager Doug Lewis greeted Ackerman with his 50th double of the season to score Palmer and Tierney with runs No. 4 and 5.

Put Game On Ice

The Oilers didn't score again until the seventh when they broke loose for three runs to put the game out of reach of the Hubs. The visitors had gotten within striking distance of catching up when they scored twice in the sixth to cut the Oiler lead to 5-2.

But back-to-back doubles by Palmer and Tierney that were preceded by a walk to Hardaway produced two Oiler runs in the seventh. Then Hairston singled Tierney home to boost the Oiler lead to 8-2.

Halrston came back in the eighth with a bases-loaded double that scored all three base-runners and completed the Oiler run-making.

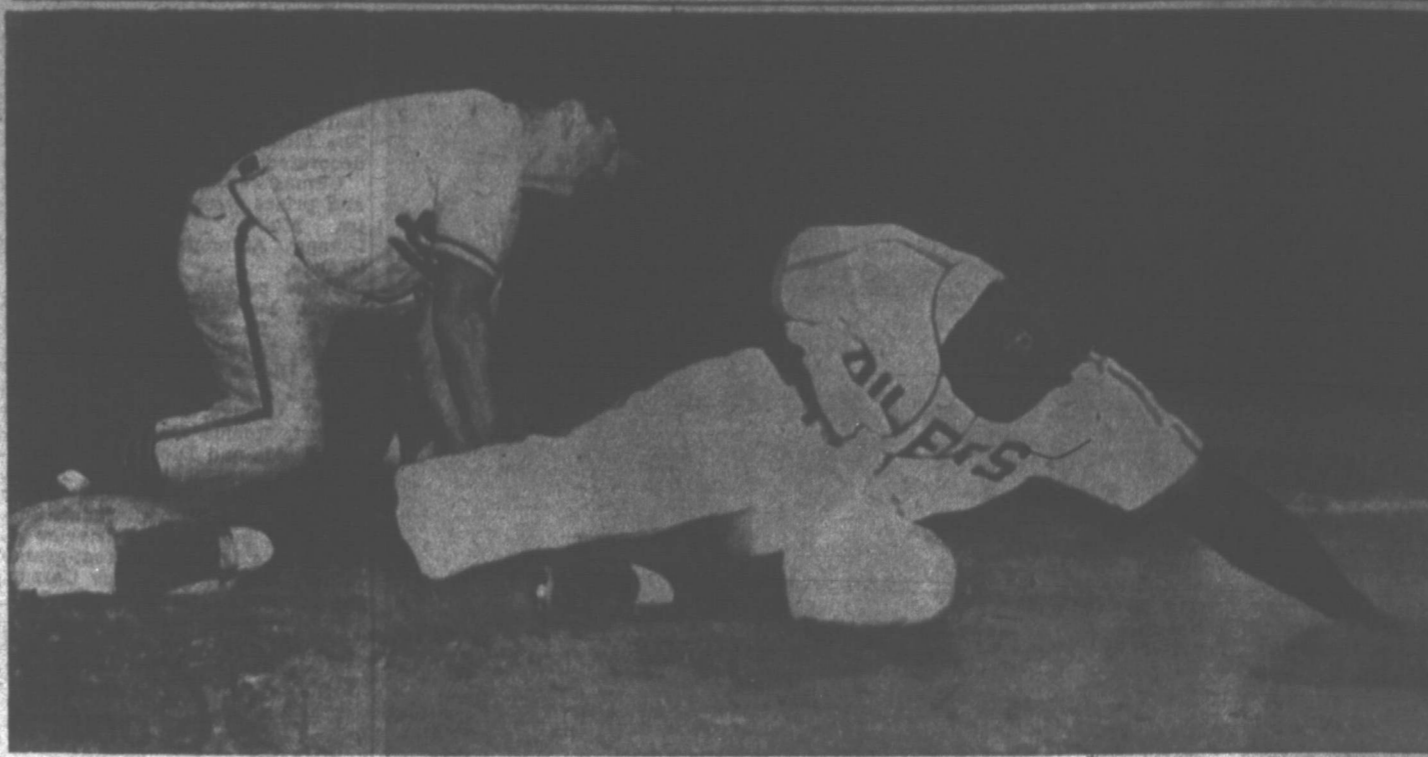

Tierney, with two doubles and a single was the Oiler batting leader of the night.

Tierney is Manager Lewis' choice to topple the Hubs' knight at Lubbock.

'HOT CORNER' ACTION — Curt Hardaway of the Oilers slides back into third base just in time to avoid an attempted pickoff play during the eighth inning of last night's Oiler-Lubbock game at Oiler Park. The Hubber third baseman is Les Rosa. The Oilers won the game, 11-2.

Locke Notches 12th Victory For Gold Sox

Amarillo's Gold Sox regained third place in the West Texas-New Mexico League Tuesday night as pitcher Eddie Locke won his 12th game of the season by beating Soper, 4 to 3.

The Gold Sox's win, coupled with Albuquerque's 5 to 4 defeat by league-leading Clovis, dropped the Ducks into fourth place.

In other games, solo home runs by Bill Adelman and Gus Vergetis of Plainview gave the Ponies a 3 to 2 win over Abilene, and Pampa hammered Lubbock, 11 to 2.

Locke set down the Gassers on seven hits. Amarillo catcher Cesar Balcueta broke a 3-1 tie with a home run in the seventh inning that provided the winning margin.

Abilene's Max Newcomb and Plainview's Cecil Davis both pitched good ball—the Blue Sox getting eight hits to six for the Ponies. It was Davis' 11th win.

Pampa got 12 hits off two Lubbock pitchers and six of them were for extra bases. The Oilers took a good ball—the Blue Sox getting eight hits to six for the Ponies. It was Davis' 11th win.

Leo's Kindness Pays Off As Giants Nip Bums In 13th

By MILTON REICHMAN
United Press Sports Writer

A bit of unexpected kindness to an umpire — by Leo Durocher of all people — paid off Wednesday in a much more comfortable two-game lead for the red-hot New York Giants.

Durocher's charitable side toward the men in blue was shown Tuesday night in the 13th inning, a frame in which the Giants rallied for two runs to beat Brooklyn, 4 to 2.

Here was the setting:
The Dodgers led 3 to 2 as a result of Don Hoak's homer in the top of the 13th, the Giants had the bases full with two out and pinch hitter Jim (Dusty) Rhodes was giving plate umpire Frank Secory what - for because of a second strike he had called against him.

Unangered Secory called Durocher was out of the dugout dugout like a shot. Now, thought the frenzied crowd of 51,464, watch Durocher set Secory up alive!

But instead of heading for Secory, Durocher called Rhodes over for a whispered consultation.

Rhodes, who also thought Durocher was going to help him straighten out Secory, was a little let down, to say the least, when Leo, an umpire hated from way back, did no such thing.

"Listen," Durocher whispered into Dusty's good ear, "I didn't see where the first ball was, and maybe the second one was inside, but you have your hand in the ground, and you're not looking at where the pitch is."

"But," Rhodes protested, "both of 'em were inside, the umpire was dead wrong..."

Secory, Smokey sidestepped. "Look, will you forget the umpire?"

He's got his own troubles. Never mind him, will ya. Now be ready for that next pitch!"

Billy Loos' next pitch was a let-up in the dirt that Rhodes almost went for but didn't. Secory called it a ball.

Then Loos served up a fast ball which Rhodes pounced on like a starved wolfhound down on a bone and smashed it into center field for a two-run single. The blow turned the Polo Grounds into a roaring madhouse and gave the Giants their fifth victory in a row.

In the clubhouse, there was more bad news for the Dodgers, who dropped their first decision in the last six games. Dr. Eugene Zorn, the club physician, said that Pee Wee Reese, who pulled a muscle in his left leg will be sidelined for three days. Billy Cox will start shortstop in his place. Duke Snider, hit by one of winning pitcher Mervyn Grissom's tosses on the elbow, admitted he would not be able to swing a bat Wednesday.

Yankess Down Red Sox
Elsewhere in the National League, Jim Wilson of Milwaukee pitched a five hitter to hand Chicago its 11th successive beating, 7 to 0; Howie Judson's hitless relief pitching over the last 4 2/3 innings plus Gus Bell's homer, helped Cincinnati to an 11 to 4 triumph over St. Louis, despite Stan Musial's 24th homer, and Richie Amburn's three-run homer along with Herm Wehmeler's seven hit flinging gave the Phils a 4 to 3 decision over Pittsburgh.

Art Houtteman increased Cleveland's American League lead to two games by beating Baltimore, 5 to 1, with the help of George Strickland's homer, while the White Sox split a twin-bill with the Tigers, Detroit taking the opener, 10 to 3, and Chicago the finale, 10 to 0 on steady Consuegra's three-hitter.

Arnold Portocarrero of the Athletics nipped the Senators, 3 to 2, while the third place Yankees buried the Red Sox, 14 to 3, as Mickey Mantle paced a 17 hit attack with a triple and three singles.

Tuesday's star — Jim (Dusty) Rhodes of the Giants, who forgot about a run-in with an umpire long enough to slam out a key pinch hit.

Eastern LL Wins All-Star Contest

The Eastern Little League All-Stars spotted the Western All-Stars a three-run lead in the second inning last night and then battled back to down the Westerners by a 13-9 margin at Otter Park.

The All-Star tilt preceded the West Texas-New Mexico tilt between the Oilers and Lubbock.

The Easterners took a 3-0 lead in the first inning but fell behind when the West team scored all its runs of the game in the second inning.

East tied the score at 5-5 in the bottom of the second and then moved ahead with a three-run rally in the third to take the lead they never relinquished.

Thirty-one players saw action in the action-packed tilt. James Moses, second of three pitchers used by the Easterners, gained credit for the win. Moses pitched the third and fourth innings and gave up no hits and struck out three.

Husky Gary Myers of the Sportsman Store team took over in the fifth and likewise shut the Westerners out with no hits. Myers whiffed four of the six batters he faced.

Kent Stevens of Hoffman Oil led the 10-hit attack by the winning East team. Stevens collected three hits in four trips and drove in three runs.

John Campbell of Hoffman Oil was the only other player getting more than one hit. Campbell got two singles in four trips.

Much of the Eastern's run-making came as a result of three wild pitches and five passed balls.

The Westerners employed four pitchers. Terry Haralson of Jeffries, the starter; Clifford Williams of Your Laundry; Mike McDaniels of Utility Oil; and Ernest Mathis of the Spokesman. Williams was charged with the loss.

Bill Ridgway, aided by Lloyd Summers, Ot Engel and Foster White, managed the East team. The West team was managed by Joe Fortin with George Payne, Newt Secrest and Ed Loranec serving as assistants.

Play in the Little League and PONY League will resume tomorrow. Thursday's schedule will pit Jeffries and Your Laundry in the Western Little League; Cabot and Spokesman Store in the Eastern Little League; and Pampa Drugists and Kist in the PONY League.

Americans Stealing Show In Wimbledon Net Tourney

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 30—UP—U.S. champion Tony Trabert and former Wimbledon champion Budge Patty were favored to win their semi-final matches in men's singles Wednesday in the Wimbledon tennis championships to set up still another all-American final round.

An all-United States wind-up in women's singles was assured Tuesday when American girls captured all four semi-final berths.

Wednesday, the crew-cutted Trabert of Cincinnati, who is top-seeded this year, clashes with powerful Ken Rosewall, the little Australian who was top-seeded in last year's tournament but failed to win the title; and Patty of Los Angeles meets veteran southpaw star Jaroslav Drobny, the self-exiled Czech now representing Egypt.

Trabert's Hand Seems OK

Rosewall is seeded third behind Trabert's first, while Patty is seeded eighth as he attempts to regain the crown he won here in 1950 and Drobny, twice a runner-up here but never a champion, is seeded 11th.

Concern over Trabert's blistered racquet hand faded in the wake of his one hour, straight-sets rout of Australian champion Mervyn Rose in the quarter-final round on Monday and his two victories in doubles Tuesday as a partner of Vic Seixas of Philadelphia.

The women's singles semi-finals became an all-American affair Tuesday for the seventh straight year when the four berths were won by defending champion Maureen Connolly of San Diego, Calif., second-seeded Doris Hart of Coral Gables, Fla., fourth-seeded Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., and unseeded Mrs. Betty Rosentzweig Pratt, native of East Orange, N.J., now living in Jamaica, B.W.I.

Maureen Wins Easily

Mrs. Pratt was the only surprise winner as she broke up the order of seeding by ousting third-seeded Shirley Fry of Akron, Ohio, 6-4, 9-11, 6-3.

Mrs. Connolly, top-seeded as she seeks her third straight title here, simply had too much power for 1947 champion Mrs. Margaret Osborne DuPont of Wilmington, Del., and won, 6-1, 6-1.

Trabert and Seixas had to play two doubles matches Tuesday, first completing a 5-7, 6-3, 10-8, 6-3 victory over Britain's Tony Pickard and Roger Becky, which had been interrupted by Barbara Bunyard, and then advanced to the semi-finals by beating Mark O'Connell and Jeff Robson of New Zealand in five sets, 6-1, 4-6, 3-6, 6-2, 8-3.

U. P. POLL REVEALS Montreal, Toronto Seeking Major League Franchises

Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of four dispatches on major league franchise shifts. The United Press has conducted a detailed survey on possible changes which may take place in the majors within the next year or two. This dispatch deals with Montreal and Toronto as possible big league cities. Subsequent ones in the series will discuss Minneapolis, St. Paul and Kansas City; Houston and Dallas; and Los Angeles and San Francisco.

By GERRY PARKER

MONTREAL, June 30—UP—Simple geography may bring Montreal and Toronto into the major leagues ahead of U.S. cities which are battling harder for franchises.

As in the case of both Milwaukee and Baltimore, the two Canadian towns could be moved into the orbit with a minimum of dislocation. What's more, each could be taken in separately, whereas expansion to the Pacific Coast would almost certainly require bringing in both Los Angeles and San Francisco together because of travel and schedule difficulties.

That would mean a 10-team circuit for the major league that there next season. It would be an unwieldy arrangement opposed by many magnates.

Potential Gold Mines

If the Philadelphia Athletics, for example, want to give up the fight there next season, it would be a comparatively easy matter to shift either to Toronto or Montreal. Both are potential big league gold mines.

Montreal has a metropolitan population of more than one million, exceeding that of St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Boston, Washington, Milwaukee, Cincinnati, and Baltimore. Toronto's population of 670,000 exceeds that of Milwaukee and Cincinnati.

Both have parks which could easily and quickly be expanded to meet major league specifications. Toronto's Maple Leaf stadium seats 16,592 while Montreal's park holds 20,142. Blueprints have been drawn to double those capacities.

Last year when Bill Veck first tried to transfer the St. Louis Browns, owner Jack Cooke of the Toronto franchise, tried hard to get them moved there. At that time a civic committee was formed to advance Toronto's bid for major league baseball, but it was inactive after the Browns were moved to Baltimore.

Top Minor Franchise

However, the committee still exists and may move into action again soon, in advance of the major league meetings at New York on July 26 when franchise bidding will be a vital item on the agenda.

Montreal, owned by the Brooklyn Dodgers, has become the most valuable minor league franchise in baseball. The Dodgers offered the holdings to the city last year for $2,350,000 when it seemed possible that there might be a shift of a major league club there. The city at that time, turned it down, considering the asking price too high.

Both Montreal and Toronto have shown ability to support big league sports. Their National Hockey League teams are prosperous and strong and the Montreal football Alouettes and Toronto Argonauts draw well whether they have good or bad teams. Both are good betting cities and both get their share of leading tennis and golf tournaments.

Expansion of Parks

Mayor Allan Lamport of Toronto said he was "100 per cent behind any drive to bring big league baseball to Canada." However, he and other members of the civic committee stressed that they would not settle for a weakling team but that they would have to be given a contender.

President Frank Shaughnessy of the International League said it would not stand in the way of either Toronto or Montreal moving up, but that the first step would have to be expansion of the parks. "There isn't a city in the minor at present with much hope of getting into the majors because they aren't a park that could assure financial success," he said. "When Toronto, Montreal, or any of several other International League cities get ball parks that will seat up to 50,000, it is time to start planning."

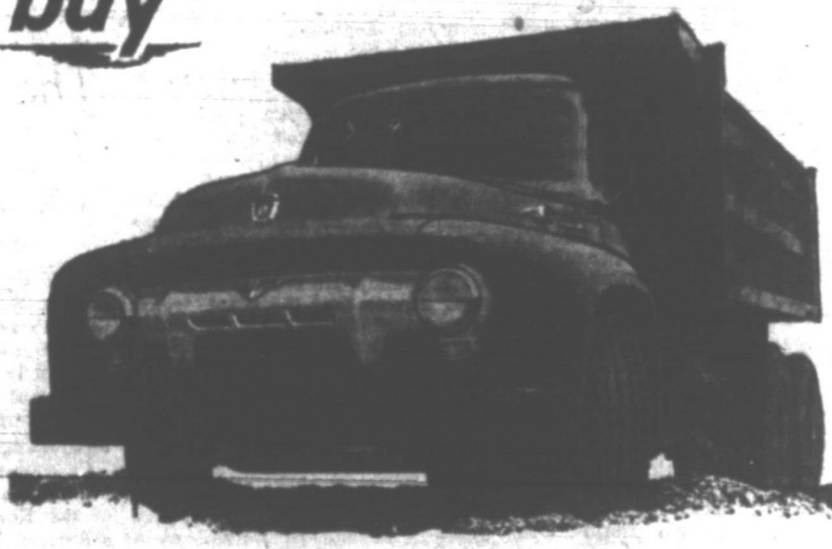

That seating expansion could take place in a hurry — immediately in fact, if the majors gave a green light.

Moore in New York

NEW YORK, June 30—UP—Light heavyweight champion Archie Moore arrived from San Diego Tuesday to begin preparations for his title bout with Harold Johnson of Philadelphia in Madison Square Garden, Aug. 11. Moore, who will be making his first appearance in the Garden, left immediately for his Greenwood Lake, N.Y., training camp. Johnson is in training at Pleasantville, N.J.

Automotive engineers have long known that friction and corrosion are the two major causes of engine wear. Now, from the laboratories of Continental Oil, comes America's first Double-Duty motor oil. It combines two exclusive discoveries (Oil-Plating and Acid-Proofing)* to conquer both major causes of engine wear.

The unique Oil-Plating additive conquers friction wear by actually fastening a thin film of protective oil to engine parts. Unlike ordinary motor oil, this film won't drain down even when your engine has been stopped overnight. Thus you get full-time protection against damaging wear due to friction.

Exclusive Acid-Proofing additive conquers corrosive wear three ways—it neutralizes acids, prevents rust, and gobbles up tiny particles of dust, dirt, and water and seals them safely in spheres of oil until the oil is drained. ACID-PROOFING actually gives new Conoco Super twice the cleansing power of other premium oils!

Right To Work

Writing in The Freeman, James R. Morris, a University of Chicago economist and specialist on labor unions, deals in considerable detail with a case which, in the view of many, may prove to be a milestone in the tangled history of labor legislation. The case is that of Sandberry vs. Santa Fe, and Mr. Morris' article carries the descriptive title, "The Right to Work."

Curiously enough, as Mr. Morris points out, "... the Supreme Court never has ruled on the constitutionality of compulsory union membership as a condition of employment." Now there are several cases involving the issue which may reach that tribunal. And one of the most significant of these, Mr. Morris states, is Sandberry vs. Santa Fe.

Under the original Railway Labor Act, passed in 1932, compulsory union membership was prohibited — any railroad worker was free to join or not join, as he chose. In 1951, Congress amended the act to make the union shop permissible. The Santa Fe Railway opposed the demands of the unions in this regard, even though threatened with a strike. Then, in 1953, thirteen Santa Fe employees went into the 108th District Court of Texas and asked for a permanent injunction against a union shop agreement between the Santa Fe and the unions, on the grounds that such an agreement would deprive them of rights guaranteed under both federal and state constitutions.

The jury held for the plaintiffs and against the unions. Last February the judge, E. C. Nelson, granted the desired injunction and, additionally, enjoined the unions from striking to coerce the Santa Fe into signing a union shop contract. It is Judge Nelson's reasoning which, Mr. Morris writes, "... was based upon the jury's findings of fact as well as upon the court's conclusions of law," that is of exceptional interest and significance.

Judge Nelson held that the section of the revised Railway Labor Act which legalized the union shop is beyond the power of Congress, and is a violation of the First, Fifth, Ninth, Tenth and Thirteenth amendments to the U. S. Constitution.

He held also the Texas right-to-work law valid and applicable. He said Congress' right to regulate interstate commerce "... does not mean that Congress has the right to regulate matters that have no essential relation to interstate commerce..." He emphasized that his decision was in no way an attack on labor unions, but to require membership in any organization as a condition of the right to work "... is repugnant to American concepts of individual freedom."

Finally, and perhaps most important of all, Judge Nelson drew an analogy between the old, and long-outlawed "yellow dog" contracts and union shop contracts. Here he said: "The evidence indicates there was a period of union busting and head busting and of 'yellow dog' contracts. That was wrong, but that time, thank God, has passed. And it is just as wrong now that the unions should endeavor to compel men and women to join a union at the price of holding their jobs. The right answer is that they must be free or not to join, as they as individual persons choose to do."

Well, Why Not?

The Courier of Grants Pass, Oregon, recently dealt with the socialized electric power controversy. It said: "If the government rightfully should monopolize the power industry, why not lumbering, manufacturing and agriculture, also?"

That is a $64 question. For the production and sale of power is purely a commercial business. And if it is right for government to go into one commercial business, it is right for it to go into any other.

It is argued, of course, that socialized power is "cheap power." But it has been proven over and over again that the alleged cheapness is the result of tax subsidization and tax freedom. Anything on earth could be sold at a lower price — or given away, for that matter — if the Treasury footed the bill.

It is further argued that only government is capable of undertaking major projects whose costs run into the hundreds of millions. That, too, has been proven baseless. In every section of the country the regulated, taxpaying utilities have expressed their willingness to take on any needed project, no matter how difficult or costly it may be, and to sell the power at rates which will cover the costs of operation plus a moderate return on the investment.

What's sauce for the goose should be sauce for the gander as well. If we are to have socialized power, let's be honest and consistent and demand socialized food, clothing, newspapers, magazines and everything else, and live like Russians.

Some Slavery!

The very substantial increases in wages that have taken place in the postwar era are not the limit of labor's gains.

Preliminary reports from a Chamber of Commerce of the United States survey indicate that fringe benefit costs — employer payments for social security, pensions, vacations and other purposes — amounted to $739 per employee in 1953. The figure is $95 higher than that obtained in a similar survey, covering the identical firms, made two years ago.

This, it might be pointed out, has occurred while the Fair-Hartley law, which union leaders still monotonously call a slave-labor act, was in effect. Some slavery!

INSTALLMENT TWENTY-SIX

Unless Americans want to be free, unless they put their tradition of freedom above all else, the Sixteenth Amendment will stay in the Constitution until it wrecks both the tradition and the civilization from which it emerged.

It is customary to identify the American tradition with the Declaration of Independence. Yet the Declaration merely articulated what had grown into an American thought pattern long before it was written. It had become the American ethos. John Adams, writing in 1818, put it this way: "The Revolution was in the hearts of men... it was effected 'before the war commenced.' That is to say, when Jefferson wrote about 'unalienable rights' he simply put into words what Americans instinctively felt. They opposed the British Crown because they could not do otherwise.

When we try to define "Americanism" — of which there is much loose talk these days — we find it necessary to look to our beginnings for the essential ingredients. Whatever special character this country can lay claim to, it was the habit of freedom that was acquired before the country was a formally organized. And it was an acquired, not an inherited characteristic, for the American was an ethnologically as heterogeneous as his forbears. His ancestry gave him nothing that the peoples of Europe did not have. He had come by freedom through trouble and a toll; he meant to hold on to it.

When he got around to establishing a political establishment of his own, the American had sense enough not to put too much trust in it. He had learned — without the help of a textbook on political science — that inherent in government, any government, is the tendency to rob the individual of his freedom. Hence, while recognizing the need of government for orderly gregarious living, he was against giving it a free hand; it must be hamstrung. The Constitution was, for that reason, that distrust of government heavily underlined with prohibitions and with "checks and balances."

The Constitution was tailor made for and by Americans; it was fitted to their particular habit of thought. That point was emphasized by one of its makers, Gouverneur Morris, when he was Minister to France, during the Reign of Terror. "The French," he wrote, "want an American Constitution without reflecting that they have not American citizens to support it."

Missing from our original Constitution was a "check" that was all the more potent because of its omission. The straight-thinking pioneer knew full well that the power of the government is in direct ratio to its income, and he was therefore not for cutting its income to the bone; that way it could not get out of hand. About all he would allow it was what it could pick up from tariffs on imports. Grudgingly, because, as Hamilton pointed out, a tariff could not produce enough to pay the running expenses of the proposed government, he allowed it some excise taxes. More than that he would not give, and more than excise and tariff taxes did not get into the Constitution.

Certainly, no tax on incomes got into the Constitution. That was unthinkable. A people that had but recently kicked over the traces because of taxes far less onerous would hardly have countenanced an income tax. They knew their freedom.

The case for repeal rests on this tradition. If there are still enough Americans who are of the opinion that that government governs best which governs least, if there is among us a group willing to risk their fortunes for their lives, and their sacred honor for freedom, then repeal has a chance. If, on the other hand, the habits of mind acquired under income taxation have completely obliterated the American tradition, then any effort to restore citizen sovereignty is futile.

It is never too late to put up a fight for freedom. Right now, even in America, the prospect for starting such a fight is unattractive. Not that the goal is unattainable, but that interest in freedom is at so low an ebb. The great enthusiasm of the times is "security"; everybody is bent on catching this elusive will of the wisp, oblivious of the fact that it is beyond reach because it does not exist. There is no such thing as "security"; it is a mirage sprouting out of deep-rooted human yearning for something-for-nothing. Government, which lives and thrives on power, fosters belief in the "golden calf," so that it can surreptitiously rob the self-mesmerized worshippers of their wealth and their dignity. It requires no great acumen to realize that what trickles out of the government's cornucopia must be replaced by labor. But reflection is foreclosed by the madness that has come over us. The national passion is for handouts, no matter what the cost. Freedom, which puts a premium on self-reliance, is in short demand. Why put up a fight for it? The rank and file, those whose principal pre-occupation is with the problem of existence, are in no mood to argue with the beneficent State; they are for letting well enough alone. Those Americans who have pretensions to over-laboring capacities are also quite willing to put their self-esteem on the barrelhead. The entrepreneur whose venture would not exist but

The CRACKER BARREL

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) is a military alliance. The internationalists are trying to promote it into a political union which the United States will give up its sovereignty. If they put it over YOU will pay for Social Security for the citizens of other nations. YOU will always be outvoted. The United States will have 129 deputies in the ruling body. The other countries will have 151. The United States will have 10 Senators, the other countries 32. YOU will be tried for treason, if you object to the laws or taxes these other countries impose upon you and YOU will have no American Army to defend you. If YOU get into this mess, you can blame Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, who has introduced a resolution to approve Atlantic Union. It looks like none of us will ever get out of the woods if we follow the boy in the cracker barrel.

Jonathan Yan... for government loans or government contracts readily makes a peace with government regulation. So long as government bonds pay interest, the banker will not quarrel with government intervention. The farmer does not object to a meddling federal agent who brings him a gratuity, and the professor who lives by subsidies will write books in praise of the subsidizing State.

In the circumstances, those who know that the loss of interest in freedom is the sure mark of national and individual decadence, are in deep despair. Many, too many, have resigned themselves to what they call the inevitable. Let the country have its bellyful of socialism, they say, and be done with the struggle to stop it. The human animal can adjust itself to any condition that permits him a meal and a mate. Americans are no different from any other people that in times past have swapped their souls for a mess of pottage. They, too, will find that the only "security" that is provided by a penal institution, but by the time they find it out they will have made their adjustment to prison bars and barbed wire. After a century or two of that kind of living, some Moses will come along to remind them that they are in fact men, and a new exodus to freedom will be started. But that time, these prophets of gloom maintain, and not without good reason, the State itself will be in a starved condition and unable to stop the exodus. A handful of resolute men will easily topple it over.

There is historic support for such resignation. Every civilization on record has followed the same pattern. In the beginning, the civilization rose and flourished in the sunshine of freedom. And, in the beginning, the civilization was poor. Always some kind of government attached itself to society, but because of the general lack of goods, the government remained quiescent and even rendered service in the maintenance of order.

But the human race is always away from poverty, and that urge, while it improves his circumstances and widens his horizon, also is man's downfall. As soon as a general abundance appears, the passion for power is enflamed, and the political establishment changes its character; it gradually shifts its position from a protective to a predatory institution. It levies taxes. And the more the general economy improves, the larger its levies, all ways, of course, in the "general interest." So it was in the time of the Caesars, so it is now.

The general welfare is not improved by the increasing load of taxation. On the contrary, the upward climb of civilization turns downward.

National Whirligig Blundering Budget Bureau Embarrasses White House

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — bureaucratic blundering in the Budget Bureau, which is the Eisenhower equivalent of the "Roosevelt brain trust," has been responsible for recent inconsistencies and policy reversals that embarrass the White House. The budgeteers, who number many New Dealers hang-overs, have given the President wrong advice, although he must share some blame. It was Budget Director Rowland R. Hughes, for instance, who ruled that Alger Hiss must receive eventually his $700-a-year pension, despite the circumstances behind his legalistic attitude in the face of the Stevens-McCarthy sensationalism. It was almost incredible stupidity, what Hughes and Congress had repudiated.

In even more important matters, involving grave questions of national security, the bright young men in the Bureau have made such highly questionable decisions that they were reversed by the White House, Congress and the National Security Council.

The Budget Bureau's responsibility lies in the fact that all major matters of policy, especially those involving expenditures of money, must be "cleared through" this agency. Hughes consults so regularly with Eisenhower that the voice of the Budget is the command of the White House. Budget informs Congress and all executive agencies whether proposed legislation or action is or is not "compatible with the Administration's program," usually in writing. F. D. I. started this system of centralized control and clearance, and he has continued it for want of a better check. It also comports with his chain-of-command ideas.

The budgeteers, however, right-

Public Has A Duty To Press, Newsman Says

By THURMAN SENSING

The advocates of public power are now raising a great hullabaloo over the President's directive that the Atomic Energy Commission sign a contract with a group of private power companies to supplement TVA power for the AEC plant at Paducah, Kentucky. Their main arguments against this action are (1) it would stop the growth of the Tennessee Valley Authority, and (2) it would cost the government (the taxpayers) more than if the power were furnished by the TVA.

The answers to these arguments are very simple: (1) the growth of the Tennessee Valley Authority should be stopped, and (2) the power would actually cost the government (the taxpayers) less than if furnished by the TVA.

Its proponents and most of its beneficiaries simply won't face the fact that the TVA is out and out socialism. Perhaps they would admit it is socialism if they could point to one instance in history where socialism has ever worked — but, of course, they cannot. So, they just say it is not socialism.

But the very definition of socialism is government ownership and operation, complete government control of production and distribution of goods and services. That is the case with TVA.

There is one thing sure: if the TVA is good for the Tennessee Valley area, then similar operations would be good for all the rest of the United States. And if public power is good for the people of the United States, then public railroads and coal mines and steel mills and grocery stores and newspapers and all other forms of business enterprise would also be good for the people of the United States. If the water power "belongs to all the people," then surely the coal under the ground and the trees that grow and the land itself — and everything comes from the land — "belong to all the people."

Suppose we had public power on a nation-wide basis. During the last fiscal year, private utilities paid more than $700 million in federal taxes and nearly $470 million in state and local taxes — a total of one and one-quarter billion dollars. By comparison, the TVA paid no federal taxes at all and no local taxes. Its only taxes were on the federal government, which paid more than $2,418,110 in lieu of taxes. So the taxpayers would have to pay more than a billion dollars more in taxes if we had a national TVA!

Which, of course, leads into the second argument of those who want the TVA to furnish the electric power to the AEC rather than have private utilities do the job. They are just ignoring plain facts when they say that private power would cost the government (the taxpayers) more.

This statement can be illustrated by again using the record of the TVA. For the two months ending June 30, 1953, revenue derived by the TVA amounted to $104,877,369. Expenses, including the $2,418,110 paid in lieu of taxes, amounted to $102,459,259 — a balance of $2,418,110 — a balance that the TVA might call profit. But if the TVA had been operating like the private utilities must operate, it would have paid an additional $2,418,110 in taxes.

The American Way

By GEORGE PECK

Word comes from England that at first blush is most astounding. Britain's hoboes are up in arms against the welfare state — they claim it is ruining their profession — many of them already have left for the Continent and others are threatening to follow suit.

Of course, this spurning of the welfare state by England's Knights of Road, upon more mature reflection, is not so surprising after all, because you see, a representative tramp has chosen that way of life of his own volition. The thing about all else that influences his choice is his burning desire to escape the very regimentation which the welfare state administers in such large doses.

After a winter during which they were constantly being referred to hostels and reception centers, Britain's tramps are bored to tears with the whole welfare business and say they will have to find a harder life than Queen Elizabeth's Socialist Island offers, or face sure extinction.

By way of explanation as to why the welfare state is being spurned, let me quote Bearded Ernie Hanson, who has tramped the roads of the British Isles for 30 years: "It all started in 1948 when they officially classed us as 'persons without a settled way of living.'"

"We have been designated checked, urged into new-fangled reception stations instead of casual wards, persuaded to give up our way of life and take regular jobs, bathed, quizzed and generally treated as prehistoric freaks."

"But worst of all, everyone seems to have adopted the same attitude. Instead of allowing us to kip down in a hayrick or stable and give us a breakfast for an odd job or two, we now get referred to the nearest hostel by farmers. "One county actually supplied a taxi service to take us to the nearest hostel or gave us our bus fares. All this has just smashed tramping as a way of life."

"When I went on the roads as a lad there were scores of thousands of us and most of us genuine. Now I doubt if there are over 2,000, and many of them are on a temporary scrouge."

amount of $76,205,028 in taxes. The taxpayers lost $91,540,104 by operating the TVA as a socialist enterprise ($76,205,028 plus $15,335,076 in taxes). Even if the consumers in the TVA area paid $60 million less for their electricity than private power would have been forced to charge — the widest claim advanced on this score — the taxpayers as a whole would still have lost more than $30 million. And, of course, only those in the area benefited.

"To enlarge the TVA to furnish electric power to the AEC would simply increase this loss. To allow private enterprise to furnish the power would at least stop the loss where it is, and would in addition furnish increased revenue to the government. This accounts for the sensible attitude taken by the President in this matter."

Enlarging socialism is no way to stop socialism — and the decision is still between socialism and private enterprise.

Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

You have driven into New York in the forenoon and you are standing on Broadway at 47th Street doing exactly nothing at all, when Tom Weatherly, the hair-1-ess poet, comes along and says that if you are not doing any more than you seem to be doing why don't you join forces with him and go to Monte Proser? You say that it is 11:55 in the morning and you never go to night clubs at night, why should you go to one at noon? Everyone knows that Monte has a nice place at La Vie En Rose and, before that, his Copacabana was a pleasant spot, but who wants to put his head in the door of a night club when the sun is shining? Weatherly says no, not a night club, but a place down at New Hope in Pennsylvania — that Monte has just used up around a quarter of a mill and that it is expected to go half a mill and is gorgeous and the food will be wonderful.

"You want me to drive you 50 miles for a plate of scotch?" you cry. "I can walk you 55 feet and we can enjoy a nice lunch."

"Do yourself a favor," he insists. "Get your car and let's go." So we get the car and at this time you are convinced that writing poetry has added Weatherly's brains, but you don't say it out loud because it is a fearful thing to hurt a poet's feelings. You duck into a river tunnel and come out in New Jersey and head for New Hope, just across the river from Lambertville, and after a while you get there and you say: "We'll pull into the parking lot at the Buck's County Playhouse and ask them for directions to Monte's place."

"There isn't any more parking lot," says Weatherly. "That is where Monte has built his place. Right on it. It's called Monte Proser's Playhouse Inn. Right next to the theater. You'll see."

We turn a corner and Weatherly is right. There it is and it shines like a new door knob. All with Dutch stone, wood, and glass, a thing of beauty and allure. We stash the car up against a curb and go in. The air conditioning gives us a cool embrace and, in the bar, the people are four deep, so we go to the dining room and it is pecky carpet and glass and the food is good.

"Did Monte use his own scratch for this?" you ask Weatherly. "No, I think it is a company."

Weatherly says, between sips of a succulent steak, "My understanding is that Monte is the president, and Don Walker the composer, and Don Walker the money man are Ben Snyder, a Philadelphia actor, accessories man, and Bob Bodner, a Philadelphia stock broker."

Later, Monte comes along and says did you know that they have 15 rooms for people who wish to stay and contemplate the placid beauty of the Delaware River or who, having driven from New York to see a show at the Playhouse, might want to wait over until morning. We go to see the rooms and they are fine. You tell Monte that you are not allowed to quote price in matters of this kind, but what is the nature of the tariff for a room. He tells you a figure that is neither paralyzing nor curative, but just about right, and adds that a couple can come down for the theater, have dinner, pass the night, have breakfast and not create a bruise on their home budget.

In the afternoon you and Weatherly case two or three other boulevards and find that Monte's new place matches in price and, in one case, is even lower. You go back, get your car and head for New York. You drop Weatherly off at Broadway and 48th Street.

"It was a good lunch," you say. "Let's not drive 110 miles next time."

"You start for home and pass La Vie En Rose on the way to the East River Drive. You think that Proser is fast becoming a major boniface of the town and the scene. You think you'll tell your editor about the place at New Hope and drive down for dinner some night."
